THE EVIL EYE.—The models employed for the picture which Mr. Holman Hunt has in hand at Jerusalem took it into their heads that they suffered from effects of the "evil eye," and, pending recovery, declined to sit again. A new set of models has been engaged, and so the work goes on without much delay. Mr. Hunt has suffered from attacks of fever. These incidents have delayed his return to England for a few weeks.—Athenæum.

The World states that the funeral of the late Mr. Lake-Onslow, private chaplain to the Prince of Wales, which took place at Sandringham during the past week, was a very largely attended ceremony. The death of the reverend gentleman having occurred so suddenly, and during the absence of the Prince of Wales on the continent, his Royal Highness, who was on very familiar and even affectionate terms with the deceased, was unable to be present, except by Deputy. General Sir Dighton Probyn was specially despatched by the Prince to attend the last rite as the representative of his Royal Highness; whilst the tenantry and the whole of the Prince's Norfolk establishment were also present.

Masonic and General Tidings.

The annual meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Cheshire (Bro. Lord de Tabley, R.W.P.G.M.) will be held on the 20th inst., at the Wallasey Concert Hall, Liskeard, near Birkenhead. The Prov. Grand Lodge of West Lancashire (Bro. the Right Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, D.G.M., R.W.P.G.M.) will also hold its annual meeting at Southport on the 3rd October.

THE PRINCE OF WALES'S SOUTH DOWNS.—Those who feared that the recent sale of South Downs and Shorthorns at Sandringham might be taken as an indication that the Prince intended to relinquish agricultural pursuits may be reassured. During the past week Mr. E. Beck, the Prince's agent, has been to Sussex, and at several of the noted sales, including that of Mr. Goringe's, the Prince of Wales has been a purchaser.

A Monster Concert Hall and Winter Garden is to be erected in New York. The buildings will be of iron and glass, will cover an entire square, and will be two storeys high. The first floor will be converted into arcades on the plan of the Palais Royal at Paris, and the Victor Emmanuel Gallery at Milan, and there are to be 130 shops, the arcades being intersected by four wide thoroughfares. A garden, concert room, and restaurant are to be arranged upstairs, reached by large double staircases from below, and the orchestra will be placed so that the music can be heard as well from the garden as from the hall. The cost is estimated at £100,000.

FAMINE IN BRAZIL.—Three mercantile firms engaged in the Brazilian trade have appealed to the Liverpool public for relief for the sufferers by famine in the province of Ceara. These firms have received a very urgent petition from the Ceara Town Council stating that owing to the want of rain the cereal and root crops have largely or entirely failed, and the population of the province is reduced to a state of great destitution and misery. The inhabitants are labourers, but poor, and the long-continued drought has brought them face to face with starvation. The Brazilian Government has organised a relief system, but the succour is inadequate to so great a calamity. Consequently help is asked from the British nation.

The Highclere Park archers held their annual prize meeting on Thursday week on the excellent ground near Highclere Castle, which Lord Carnarvon placed at the disposal of the club. Since the last meeting a commodious pavilion has been erected.

New editions have just been issued of two most useful little works—the "Royal Guide to the London Charities," edited by Herbert Fry, and published by Hardwicke and Bogue; and "Low's Handbook to the Charities of London," edited by Charles Mackeson, and published by Sampson Low and Co.

The sale at Balham Priory realised, it is announced, £5000 in all. The pictures and water-colour drawings brought more than was expected, and there is said to have been rather a keen competition for the wines, especially the Champagne and Burgundy.

The Crystal Palace Saturday afternoon classical concerts will be resumed on the 29th inst.

TELEGRAMS.—The number of telegraphic messages forwarded from postal telegraph stations in the United Kingdom increased from 11,760,518 in 1871 (the first year after the transfer of the telegraphs to the State) to 21,575,207 in 1876. This last number comprises 17,671,518 messages sent from post-offices in England and Wales, 2,383,820 from Scotland, and 1,519,869 from Ireland. The Statistical Abstract, from which these figures are taken, states that they are exclusive of press, service, and news messages.

MADAME PATTI.—We are happy to be able to announce that Madame Adelina Patti, about whose retirement from the operatic stage many unfounded rumours have been circulated, will next season resume her position as prima donna assoluta at the Royal Italian Opera, Covent-garden. The contract was signed on Friday.—Observer.

"What is the difference between civilisation and barbarism?" recently asked a schoolboy of his papa. "Simply this, my boy," was the reply. "Civilisation consists of knowing the art of killing your enemy at two miles distance with a cannon ball, while to kill him with a sabre at arm's length is barbarism."

PREYING UPON GRIEF.—"J.H.A." writes:—"No sooner had my loss of a very dear daughter appeared in your obituary of August 30, than a photographer sent me (1) a photograph of the entry of her death and of seven other entries, surmounted by a photograph of the heading of The Times, the books, the clock, &c., and of the date of the paper; (2) a printed memorandum, which comprises the following:—"apologies for taking the liberty," &c. "If the copy is retained, please send six stamps to the enclosed address. Further copies can be obtained," &c. I cannot understand any one wishing to retain such a thing. To me, for one, the receipt of it from that man gave such a sensation as is caused by a lancet being thrust into a bleeding wound.

"THE GREAT SEA-SERPENT."—With a view of encouraging a closer observation than has hitherto been afforded of any sea-monster which may appear from time to time, the authorities at the Admiralty have permitted the publication in Land and Water of the official reports forwarded to them by the officers of Her Majesty's yacht Osborne, in reference to the sea-monster seen off Cape Vito, in June last. Those reports, together with the opinions of various scientific authorities (Professor Owen, Mr. F. Buckland, Mr. A. D. Bartlett, Mr. H. Lee, and others), with explanatory illustrations, appeared in Land and Water of Saturday last.

Prince Leopold arrived at Birnam Hotel Dunkeld, on Wednesday, from Balmoral, and visited the Dowager Duchess of Athole. He left on Thursday for Aberfeldy, on his way to Taymouth Castle to visit the Earl and Countess of Breadalbane.

ALBERT EDWARD LODGE, No. 1714.—The consecration of this lodge will take place at the Duke of York, Yorktown, Farnborough, Surrey, on Tuesday, October 2nd. The ceremonies will be commenced at half-past two o'clock p.m., by Bro. Lieut.-Gen. J. S. Brownrigg, C.B., R.W.P.G.M. Surrey. Bro. Henry Hacker, P.M. 723, P.P.G.J.D. Hants and I. of W., is the W.M. designate.

Miss Helen Barry will produce at the Prince of Wales's Theatre, Liverpool, on the 21st inst., a new and original domestic drama, entitled "Curyswold." The drama has been expressly written for Miss Helen Barry, by Messrs. H. Herman and Joseph Mackay.

A new calculating machine has been invented by a Michigan watchmaker. It contains 2100 specially-formed pieces, and, including screws and rivets, over 3000. It works with perfect accuracy, will use a multiplier or divisor of twelve figures, divide one number by another, subtract or multiply, at one operation. The machine gave the answer to the following compound interest question in forty-five seconds:—What is the compound interest of $630 dollars 75 cents for twenty years at 7 per cent.? Answer—$16,158 dollars 47 cents.

Mr. B. Whitworth, M.P., speaking at a meeting in London on the advantages of total abstinence, said that in the various industries in which he was engaged he employed 45,000 persons, and the greatest drawback in their prosperity was the drink traffic. The loss caused by that traffic on the capital invested in the employment of these people was quite 4 per cent.

At the sale of Mr. Cochrane's Canadian short-horns one animal, the Fifth Duchess of Hillhurst, realised 4500 guineas, Lord Bective being the purchaser. The Third Duchess of Hillhurst sold for 4100 guineas. The sale resulted in a total of £17,150.

The balance-sheet, showing the cost of the restoration at present effected of Rochester Cathedral, has been issued by Dean Scott. The total amount received in subscriptions was £11,396, and £11,264 has been expended. Further subscriptions are asked to enable the Dean and Chapter to complete the restoration of the cathedral.

"PARAGRAMMAKLEPTISTS" is the title by which literary "borrowers" are in future to be termed by the San Francisco Newsletter. Another coined word, invented by a Kansas editor, is "Czarsparilla," which forms the heading to the war news in his paper.

MR. GLADSTONE ON THE ANGLO-ISRAEL THEORY.—Mr. J. C. McClellan, of York, author of "Anglo-Israelism: Its Pernicious Nature fully exposed," has recently received the following communication from the ex-Premier:—"Sir,—I thank you sincerely for your pamphlet. Your interpretation seems to me rational, historical, and orthodox. I hope and think the disciples of the theory you confute are hardly aware of the strange consequences it involves.—Your faithful and obedient servant, W. E. Gladstone."

The Exchequer receipts from April 1 to September 1 were £30,652,703. For the corresponding period of last year they were £29,927,341. The expenditure this year was £33,821,844, and in the corresponding period of last year £33,569,572.

WINDSOR CASTLE.—Until the return of the Court from Scotland in November the State apartments will be open to the public on Mondays, Tuesdays, Thursdays, and Fridays, between the hours of eleven and four. Free tickets of admission are issued at the office of the Royal Windsor Guide, Castle Hill. The Albert Memorial Chapel is open every Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday from twelve to three. Tickets are not required.

PROSPECTIVE IMPROVEMENTS IN LIVERPOOL.—A very extensive scheme of street improvements, involving an estimated expenditure of £1,073,845, was laid before the Liverpool Council on Friday week, and after some discussion referred to the improvement committee for consideration. Mr. Hubback, who supported the resolution, said that in former times corporations had made great mistakes in not sufficiently anticipating the wants of towns. In order to show the enormous increase which had taken place in Liverpool, both in population and shipping, he mentioned that in 1835 the population was 250,000 and the tonnage 1,947,613 tons; in 1855 the population was 400,000 and the tonnage 4,096,160; and in 1877 the population was 550,000 and the tonnage 7,726,000 tons.

The parishioners of Peabworth, not wishing to part with their vicar, Bro. the Rev. J. D. Collis, D.D., have consented to cancel the appointment of the Rev. H. C. Lory as Priest-in-Charge of St. James the Great, Stratford-on-Avon, and he will remain at Peabworth.

A young man named Martin, valet to Lord Folkestone, was recently drowned whilst bathing halfway between Folkestone and Sandgate.

Mr. W. C. Smith took his seat at the St. Alban's Petty Sessions as the first Mayor of the city on Wednesday, and expressed the pride which he felt at the honour attaching to the first occupancy of the office.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—Comfort for Everyone.—It is essential for health that every organ of the body be fully competent and duly prepared for the natural execution of its appropriate function, which cannot be the case under great transitions of temperature, unless some corrective medicine be taken occasionally. When the chilly winds of spring are succeeded by summer heat, and this again gives place to autumnal chills, the liver and skin can only be maintained in efficient action by some such alternative medicine as Holloway's noted Pills, which regulate the circulation, cool the system, and fortify the nerves. In our variable climate, and in marshy districts occasional doses of these purifying, cooling, and aperient Pills will prove most efficient preservers of health.—Advt.

COSMOPOLITAN MASONIC CALENDAR FOR 1878.

W. Masters and Secretaries of Lodges, Chapters, &c., are respectfully informed that in order to ensure complete accuracy in the above, printed forms have been forwarded to them for supplying particulars of time and place of meeting. If such have not yet reached their hands, the Publisher requests that they would kindly call at the meeting place of the lodge &c., and fill up and return the form, in order that the particulars of their meetings may be correctly inserted. All communications in this matter should be addressed at once to the Publisher, 198, Fleet-street, E.C.

IMPORTANT NOTICE.

COLONIAL AND FOREIGN SUBSCRIBERS are informed that acknowledgments of remittances received are published in the first number of every month.

It is very necessary for our readers to advise us of all money orders they remit, more especially those from the United States of America and India; otherwise we cannot tell where to credit them.

TO ADVERTISERS.

The FREEMASON has a large circulation in all parts of the Globe, its advantages as an advertising medium can therefore scarcely be overrated.

ADVERTISEMENTS to ensure insertion in current week's issue should reach the Office, 198, Fleet-street, by 12 o'clock on Wednesday.

TO OUR READERS.

The FREEMASON is a sixteen-page weekly newspaper, price 6d. It is published every Friday morning, and contains the most important, interesting, and useful information relating to Freemasonry in every degree. Annual Subscription in the United Kingdom, Post free, 10/6.

P.O.O.'s to be made payable at the Chief Office, London.

NOTICE.

To prevent delay or miscarriage, it is particularly requested that ALL communications for the FREEMASON, may be addressed to the Office, 198, Fleet-street, London.

Answers to Correspondents.

"Slight Science for Leisure Hours" arrived just a little too late, as "copy" was sufficient. It shall appear next week, and proof will be sent. Much obliged to our V.P.C. Many regrets for delay.

BOOKS, &c., RECEIVED.

"Medical Examiner," "New York Dispatch," "Masonic Herald," "Bulletin du Grand Orient of France," "Rules of the Mercantile Masonic Club," "The Cleveland Leader," "Bulletin Official Republica Argentina," "New York News Letter."

Births, Marriages, and Deaths.

[The charge is 2s. 6d. for announcements, not exceeding four lines, under this heading.]

BIRTHS.

OLIVER.—On the 11th inst., at 5, Kew-gardens-road, Kew, Surrey, the wife of William Oliver, Esq., of a son.

STILL.—On the 2nd June, at Norfolk Island, New Zealand, the wife of the Rev. John Still, of a son.

TANNER.—On the 29th ult., at Queenstown, Cape of Good Hope, the wife of Richard B. Tanner, Esq., of a daughter.

MARRIAGE.

BURCHALL—LEEMING.—On the 10th inst., at St. John's Church, Torquay, George James Burchall, Esq., to Eliza, widow of the late James Leeming, Esq., of Bradford, Yorkshire.

WALKER—ROEBUCK.—On the 30th ult., at the parish church, Acton, John Walker, Esq., of The Woodlands, Acton, to Mary Annie, daughter of Bro. William Roebuck, of West Lodge.

DEATHS.

CAPPS.—On the 8th inst., at Crown Point, Ealing, Joseph Frederick Capps, Esq., aged 55.

PHILLIPS.—On the 5th inst., at Broom Hall, Sheffield, Bro. Richard Nathaniel Phillips, LL.D., F.S.A., a Justice of the Peace for the West Riding of Yorkshire, Recorder of Pontefract.

SILVA.—On the 10th inst., Emanuel Silva, Esq., of 8, Shen-villas, Richmond, Surrey.

WOODS.—On the 8th inst., at Seymour-place, Hounslow, Thomas Woods, sen., Esq., in his 73rd year.

The Freemason,

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 15, 1877.

A COLLECTION FOR INDIA.

It has been suggested, as will be seen by a letter in our last impression, that in every lodge a collection of one shilling a head should be made for the Indian Famine Fund. Should such a suggestion, which seems to be a seasonable and a desirable one, meet with the approval of the brethren, our Publisher, Bro. George Kenning, would be most happy to act, for the general convenience of the Craft, as Treasurer to the above, and hand the amount over to the Lord Mayor. All amounts will be carefully recorded in each week's Freemason, in a special column. If this idea should be agreeable to the brethren, all Post office Orders should be made payable to George Kenning, (Chief Office, London), 198, Fleet-street.

THE LAST QUARTERLY COMMUNICATION.

The proceedings of the last Quarterly Communication are both interesting and important. The votes for St. John's and Peru were duly passed, and Bro. Clabon's seasonable motion for a grant of 1000 guineas to the Lord Mayor's Fund for the Indian Famine was also, we are glad to record, unanimously assented to. Our worthy and esteemed Bro. Brackstone Baker seems to think that the vote was put somewhat hastily from the chair, but we cannot suppose for one moment that any such haste was intended, as any opposition to the vote could only proceed on one of two grounds, namely, of increase or decrease. The principle of the vote has been assented to by Grand Lodge over and over again, and we cannot believe that any of our Order doubt or deny the competency of Grand Lodge to pass such a vote, for general as well as Masonic Charity. We cannot think such an amount too large, and we feel sure that Bro. Clabon's proposal will be endorsed by our entire Craft. The suggestion for the limitation of the Board of Benevolence stands over, on the proposition of Bro. Clabon himself, until March. By that time all our lodges will have studied the proposed amendment of our Constitutions carefully, and we think it well to-day to throw out a few considerations why, in our opinion, the change is desirable, and even necessary. In the first place, the present committee is simply unworkable. It is composed of all W. Masters, or representative Past Masters, in their absence; of all Past and Present Grand Officers; and of certain nominated and elected members. We are not exceeding the truth when we say that probably nearly 3000 brethren can claim a right of admission to the Board. However wise and right the provision was in days when our Craft numbered about 70 London Lodges and 150 Provincial Lodges, it has surely become unsuited to the present state of things, when we have over 1700 lodges actually on our roll, and there is at present no limit, seemingly, to the progress of our Order. In the next place, under the present arrangement, we have and can have no system of administration of relief, which varies, as a fact, with each successive Board, and often is affected during the same sitting by the eloquence of an earnest brother, or the zealous advocacy and influential appearance of compassionate friends. It is not too much to say that under our present changing Boards many cases are relieved which ought not to be relieved at all; and some cases hardly receive that measure of compassionate aid which the exigency of the case demands, or the benevolent teaching of Freemasonry would dictate. Were the Board reduced to a reasonable number, not only would the sense of personal responsibility be increased, but bye-laws might be drawn up, and approved by Grand Lodge, which would tend to simplify the proceedings, and reduce the cases into classes. More power might be granted to the Board to deal with foreign cases, and more discrimination would be exercised in the apportionment of the grants than at present, with the best intentions in the world, is humanly speaking possible. Indeed, many amusing instances might be cited of the singular absence, so to say, of principle on which grants are made, which sometimes indeed appear to be given on no principle at all. We remember two cases which came before the Board, which demonstrate what we have before contended, that no uniformity of principle prevails. One was a case of a railway clerk with £80 per annum, (rising salary), who had backed a bill for a friend, and got into trouble. Some present objected to the case, as one not coming within the scope of the Board, and it was adjourned for reconsideration. Soon after another railway clerk with £120 a year (rising salary also), came up, in great pecuniary difficulty. A worthy brother dilated on his distressing circumstances, and the case was accepted. It was in vain that it was pointed out that such a vote was a contravention of the previous unanimous resolution; it was carried by a large majority that his petition be relieved with £20. Having once upon a time been influenced by the views ably put forth by Bro. Mason, we think it right to say, therefore, to day, that we have conscientiously arrived at the conviction that the limitation of the Board is most desirable in every interest of justice and charity. With the greatest humanity in the world, and the kindest feelings, it is impossible, as we believe, for the Board, as at present constituted, to do full justice to the funds of the Craft, on the one hand, or the needs of the petitioner, on the other. The only one point which seems a difficulty, is the question of the disenfranchisement of the country Masters. But this would be met by the provision that 13 out of the 45 should be provincial brethren, not subscribing to a London lodge. A Board of 45, with Chairman and two Vice-Chairmen, the Pro Grand Master, the D. Grand Master, the Grand Treasurer, the Grand Registrar, the two Grand Chaplains, the Grand Deacons for the time being, as ex officio members, would give us a body of brethren, which would, we think, administer our great charitable relief and benevolence with equal advantage to all concerned. But we feel it right to add that this is a subject on which strong and conscientious opinions may prevail, and we merely throw out these suggestions as "Amici Curie."

FROM THE SUBLIME TO THE RIDICULOUS.

We all of us know the now popular apothegm, "du sublime au ridicule, il n'y a qu'un pas," and certainly the truth of it was never more fully exemplified than in the amusing, if somewhat humiliating, extract we took from the Monde Maçonnique for August, and which appeared in our last impression. From the statement of our contemporary, (see page 159), it seems that there is at Toulouse an Ultramontane paper called Le Diable, published by a M. Resplandy. People often ask "What is in a name?" but to say the truth, we confess that we should not ourselves wish to be connected, if we could help it, with the "Gentleman in Black," either "nominatum" or in any other way. No doubt "tous les gouts sont respectables," but we have some distinct, and, if you like, superstitious views on the subject. It seems to us that, just now, for some reason, in Ultramontane circles especially, the name and the "prestige" of his "Sulphurous Highness" are at a high premium. We hear continually, for instance, of lying words and dirty deeds, which are a disgrace to humanity, civilization, and religion, but which seem to find favour with an unreasoning and vituperative party of heated and illiberal accusers of Freemasonry. Without returning to our Ultramontane opponents the hard names they are pleased to give us, and terming them "powers of darkness," "children of Satan," "allies of the Spirit of Evil," we yet may fairly observe that the principles of action they seem to approve of just now, have been regarded always by the thoughtful and serious as very Satanic both in idea and act. For we are accustomed, and rightly, in the world, to-day, to ascribe to a potent Spirit of ill all those tendencies to slander, falsehood, treachery, dissimulation, the lying lips and the evil deeds, whether of persecution or wrong, which disgrace the annals and blacken the records of humanity. We protest once again against that absurd and childish virulence of Ultramontanism which seeks everywhere to represent Freemasonry as in a league against religion and Roman Catholicism. In some Roman Catholic countries the rampant bigotry of the Roman Catholic Church, has thrown Freemasonry by the almost necessity of opposition into the ranks of extreme politicians and "libre penseurs," but this is an abnormal and local position of Freemasonry, and is in truth neither normal nor cosmopolitan! Freemasonry, we cannot too often repeat, has nothing to do with politics and religion, except that it is a professedly religious Order, and properly it neither meddles with the one, nor antagonizes the other. We do not deny that in some jurisdictions Freemasonry suffers accordingly, but once for all, we repudiate as truly Masonic any teaching or any acts which tend to make Freemasonry appear connected with the horrors of revolution, or hostile to this or that religious body. To represent Freemasonry as a great anti-religious, revolutionary society, (ignoring the loyal and religious principle of Anglo-Saxon Freemasons, who utterly repudiate such theories "ex imo corde") is only worthy of a Jesuit accuser, or some Ultramontane scribe, whose zeal outruns his discretion, whose ignorance is only equalled by his mendacity. The charges of irreligion, atheism, revolution, though they might impress the credulous, or affect the unthinking, will have no weight with the conscientious or the considerate, and we should not notice these ravings of imbecility or this froth of malignant invective, (which ever you like) did we not believe that on the principle "fling enough dirt, and some of it will stick," there might be possibly some gullible individuals and some weak brethren who might be led to credit the accusation that Freemasonry has really something to do with Communists and Illuminati, whose principles it openly disavows, and whose proceedings it utterly condemns. On the old adage "noscitur a sociis," we beg to congratulate the Ultramontane party on its new ally, and we can only suppose that with his magnificent principles of teaching and action, this noisy faction hopes to succeed in that senseless warfare it seems to be waging just now against all that is most religious, all that is most tolerant, all that is most beneficial to society, in this world of ours. But in such a campaign this new ally may prove the most dangerous of friends, for the very moment of apparent victory is often, in the good Providence of God, the prelude to hopeless and utter defeat.

THE RIGHT OF VISITING.

We have been asked by a worthy brother, who signs himself, modestly, "P.M.," what is our opinion as to the case of the admission of a visitor, with whom Bro. A is on unfriendly terms, and leaves his own lodge in consequence of the admission of Bro. B. In our humble opinion, Bro. B has no right to intrude himself into Bro. A's lodge, not being on friendly terms with Bro. A, as such an act necessitates Bro. A's retirement from his own lodge, where he is "dans son droit," and where Bro. B is only by sufferance. It were better that some effort should be made by a fraternal mediator to close up the breach between two worthy brothers, but if that is impossible, Bro. B. should keep away, and the W.M. may fairly protect the right of Bro. A to remain in his own lodge.

LABOUR AND REFRESHMENT.

In the case against the detectives at Bow-street, Bro. Williams, the Secretary of Lodge 177, in cross-examination by Bro. Besley, for Inspector Palmer, who it seems is S.W. of Lodge 177, stated that:—"There was usually a very short interval between the closing of the lodge and the banquet, for the members were generally anxious to get away from the business of the lodge to the refreshments." (Loud laughter.) Now for fear that this amusing view of matters should be accepted as the natural condition of our benevolent brotherhood, we beg to state that though refreshment is agreeable to the inner man, and the laborious Freemason, this anxiety on the part of our brethren to exchange refreshment for labour is somewhat exaggerated by our good Bro. Williams. We do not deny that many of our members like a good dinner, and are proficient, Ar, in the "Knife and Fork Degree," but, after all, they are not different from other people in this respect; and this we may fairly assert, that in many lodges "refreshment" only follows "labour," as a necessary and befitting corollary. The alleged love of Freemasons for refreshment is a good joke, and one they are able to laugh at heartily themselves.

THE CRIMINAL CLASS.

We do not propose to go into the whole of this vast question to-day, but only to allude to that large class of "gentlemen of the road" who simply live on the plunder of their fellow-citizens. We do not deal now with the petty robber or burglar of low degree, who is a "cracksman" of more or less celebrity. Such interesting individuals will always exist, where masses of men do congregate, since the love of idleness and enjoying the "usufruct" of other men's labours, and profits and property seem to be an hereditary taste of humanity. But we are all concerned with those who, well educated, and of genteel appearance, with the manners of good society, and frequenting the gatherings of their fellow-men, are those who plan and carry out the great robberies which require adroitness, tact, and skill, and are so serious to the community, startling us alike by their audacity and their success. The arrest of two of the robbers of the French railway van, and a large sum of bonds, has recently taken place, under circumstances most gratifying to us all alike as citizens of the great metropolis. Much has been hastily said of late of the inefficiency of the police, but the arrest of Mr. Martin and Mr. Carr reflect much credit upon all concerned. Indeed, it is not possible to read the evidence of Detective-officer Outram without a predominant feeling of amusement and gratification. The arrest was most skilfully and quietly performed, and the exclamation of Mr. Carr when the officer declares himself to be an officer—"What?"—is as melodramatic as it is striking. As one of our contemporaries observes, it was a "tableau vivant," when poor Mr. Carr, who thought he had safely bagged a cool "Thou," finds himself in the hands of Detective Outram, to be arraigned before that worthy magistrate Sir Robert Carden, and open to the amiable and affecting remarks of Mr. George Lewis. Chief-Inspector Trappington says, "It was very neatly done, Sir, and we think a good deal of it at the office." And so do we. Indeed, such is the way, we hope, in which all those who prey on the public may eventually be arrested in their evil courses. There are many great rogues going, and many outrageous criminals, yes, skilled criminals at large, especially those who plan these great robberies, and find the means of disposing of the booty—in common parlance, "fences,"—whether high or humble, great or small. To all such, we beg to call the attention of the detective force, and we hope to hear of many more as successful and creditable proceedings as the recent capture of Mr. Carr, by Detectives Outram, both by the City and Scotland Yard Police.

MASONIC SONGS.—A selection of Masonic Songs set to popular airs, written by Bro. E. P. Philpots, M.D., F.R.G.S., is now ready, forming a handsome volume, bound in cloth, with gilt edges, 3s. Sent post free from the office of this paper on receipt of stamps or post-office order value 3s. 2d.—ADVT.

Constitutions of the Ancient Fraternity of Free and Accepted Masons, containing the Charges, Regulations, E.A. Song, &c. A copy should be in the possession of every brother. It may be obtained for 2s. at the office of the Freemason, or will be sent post free to any part of the United Kingdom on receipt of twenty-five penny stamps. Address, Publisher, 198, Fleet-street, London.—ADVT.

Original Correspondence.

[We do not hold ourselves responsible for, or even as approving of the opinions expressed by our correspondents, but we wish, in a spirit of fair play to all, to permit—within certain necessary limits—free discussion.—ED.]

A VERY DELICATE QUESTION.

Dear Bro. Kenning,—

I am very anxious to ventilate in your columns a question which I confess has bothered me much of late, and I know of no fitter place to do so than in the Freemason, where, thanks to your liberal policy we always enjoy the happy liberty of proper Masonic discussion, a fair field and no favour, to all alike, high or humble. Now the question I wish to ask is this. As you will see when I put into words, it is a very delicate one in itself: "Is the Grand Orient of France a legal body, according to Masonic common law?" What I mean is, can any Masonic body claim acknowledgement from other jurisdictions, which has not, according to all Masonic custom and law, and precedent, a Grand Master?

Perhaps some Masonic jurists can enlighten us on this point, on which I feel the gravest doubts, as I know of no Masonic precedent, out of France, for such a state of things, as I have always been taught and told, that a Grand lodge without a Grand Master cannot act as a Grand lodge, is powerless, and has no claim to be recognised as a Grand Lodge by any other jurisdiction. Now I ask this question, because we are on the eve, I fear, of much Masonic trouble in France, and it will possibly be raised under certain contingencies in France and out of France. If the Grand Orient is not legally constituted, as I fancy it is not, according to the laws of Cosmopolitan Freemasonry, then it has no claim on any one's allegiance, unless, indeed, it be so well advised as to revert to the legal position of a Grand lodge, and elect a Grand Master, for I apprehend that no national Grand lodge, so-called, can take up a position unknown to Cosmopolitan Freemasonry, and expect other Grand lodges to acknowledge the dilemma of its own creation. And not only this, but I question very much whether it has, "jure Masonico," any jurisdiction over any Masons at all, and I am inclined to think foreign jurisdictions will be quite justified in treating it as a non-existent body.

I do not wish to claim to lay down the law, on the subject. All I am asking through the Freemason is for information and light on a very ticklish question, as I see it and understand it. But it is just possible that another question may shortly arise, owing to certain ill-advised proceedings of a reckless section in France, which cutting away the foundation of all Freemasonry, will, as it were, make the French Grand Orient drift away from the great family of Freemasonry. Under such circumstances many very important considerations must crop up, important to all Anglo-Saxon Freemasons, and I think it well to pave the way for a future discussion of the true position of French Freemasonry, if certain untoward attempted changes are successful, as probably they will be, which will affect its position greatly and gravely in the eyes of the Masonic world, and of a million Anglo-Saxon Freemasons.

I write this as a well-wisher to the Grand Orient of France, which I should like to see rise to the level of its high duties and proper position and superior to those stormy waves of revolutionary and suicidal movement which threaten to engulf it utterly.

When your readers peruse these hasty lines, the Grand Orient of France will no doubt have decided the "burning question" before it, for good or evil, for peace or turmoil. And then, if the result be, as has been predicted confidently, in our contemporary the Monde Maçonnique, it is inevitable that the most serious questions will be raised as to the exact position and actual Masonic character of the Grand Orient of France. So I think it well, with your kind permission, to raise a preliminary question of no little moment, according to my view, and I shall probably trouble you at length on the proceedings of the "Couvent," which began on Monday, September 10th, at Paris.

I am, dear Bro. Kenning, most fraternally yours

THE SHADE OF MASKELYNE,
One of the founders of French Freemasonry.

THE DIGNITY OF OPPOSITION.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

To my surprise, after the vote of Grand Lodge respecting the Indian Famine, on the 5th, I heard one brother inveighing against the principle of "unanimous" votes, (he, what for courtesy sake, I will call "arguing") that to let a matter pass with unanimity when the whole assembly is seen to be in favour of it is to lose a right. This brother, too, was a Past Grand Officer. It was this Past Grand Officer's wish, then, that when the world is agitated at the horrible famine now raging, a rich and ostensible beneficent association should be seen haggling whether it should give a half-penny or a penny to a struggling crowd of starving fellow-creatures, who are knit to us by being subjects of the same gracious Queen, the mother of our Grand Master. The fact is, Sir, such opposition, to call a spade a spade, is desired only on the score of a pitiful ambition existing in too many in all ranks of society to hear themselves talk. What wonder is it, then, that our Grand Lodge should be afflicted with specimens of those obstructionists? For the comfort of the many who grieve over this public exhibition, I say that it ought to be a matter for congratulation that in our large body the light of unanimity in the cause of true charity was dimmed by only one small streak—I was going to say a "ray of darkness."—

Yours fraternally and faithfully,

A CHIEF TAKING NOTES.

[We have had to take liberties with our correspondent's letter, as far too personal. We had some doubt about allowing it to appear at all, but subject to alteration, thought it better to insert it. What a curious fact it is in Masonic psychology that our brethren are always "personal." Let the "chief taking notes" be good enough to read our remarks. He could have said all that he seemed to wish to say without "personality." We always regret this tendency to personality in Masonic scribes.—Ed.]

A NEEDFUL CORRECTION.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—
Pray substitute "readers" for "writers" in my letter of last week, relative to the amusing extract from Figaro. Let me remind your "Chapel" that "writers" and "readers" are different people.

Yours fraternally,
[Of this fact the members of the "Chapel" are fully aware: none more so.—P.D.]

GOOD SERVICE TO THE COUNTRY.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—
As I think, that good service to the country should always be properly remembered, I think it well to send you a "clipping" with reference to the public services of our late lamented Grand Chaplain, Bro. Onslow. He was a Grand Officer of whom on every account Grand Lodge and the Craft should be proud.

The late Rev. William Lake Onslow, M.A., R.N., rector of Sandringham, and private chaplain to his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, whose death, in his 58th year, we have already recorded, was son of the late Capt. John James Onslow, R.N., and grandson of the late gallant and distinguished Admiral and Lieut.-General of Marines, Sir Richard Onslow, G.C.B. He was employed as Chaplain in the Carysfort, 26, Capt. George H. Seymour, in the Pacific, from January, 1846, until April, 1848, when he was appointed chaplain and naval instructor to the Hastings, 72, Capt. J. W. Morgan, fitting for the flag, in the East Indies, of Sir. F. A. Collier; and was paid off at the close of 1852. In April 1853, he was appointed to the Duke of Wellington, and served in the Baltic throughout the Russian war. In August, 1857, he removed into the Diadem, 32, Capt. W. Moorsom, C.B., and in February, 1858, was transferred to the Euryalus, 51, from which ship, in December, 1860, he was appointed to the St. George, 84, Capt. the Hon. Francis Egerton, in the Mediterranean. He afterwards served from February, 1863, until June, 1866, in the Ragoon, 22, Capt. Count Gleichen and W. Armytage, and from November, 1868, until paid off in June, 1869, in the Ariadne, 26, Capt. Colin A. and Frederick A. Campbell.

Yours fraternally,

EMERITES.

MOTHERS-IN-LAW.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—
You recently allowed something to be said about "Mothers-in-Law." Allow me to take from your gallant and excellent contemporary, the Graphic, the following salient extract:—

"AUDI ALTERAM PARTEM."—Mothers-in-law have from time immemorial been the butt of the witty and the sarcastic, but a worm will turn, and one of these much-abused matrons, writing to the Chicago Tribune, thus takes up the cudgels in the following letter which, to say the least of it, is worth consideration:—"I have a few words I would like to say with regard to daughters-in-law. I have seen several articles in the paper against mothers-in-law, but it is very seldom you see one against daughters-in-law. Now, I am a persecuted mother-in-law. My house was a perfect little paradise till my daughter-in-law was brought home. I think where a son takes a wife to his mother's home, if she is a right kind of a woman, it is no trouble to get along. There are some their own parents can't live with. They get married, and go to live with their husband's folks, and if they live like cats and dogs it is all laid to the poor mother-in-law, when they are the evil ones. For my part I have a great deal of sympathy for mothers-in-law, and I think you would, too, if you were in my place. There is one advice I would like to give to young men. Don't marry until you have a home of your own to take a wife to. Don't give your poor mother, who has nursed you in your infancy—idolised you—any cause for trouble; let her go to her grave in peace. How many families there are whose homes are a little Eden till a daughter-in-law was taken in the family?"

Let your readers "mark, learn, and inwardly digest," and oblige,

Yours fraternally,

A SISTER AND A MOTHER-IN-LAW.

DISCONSOLATE CATS.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—
A Mr. Rickards (all praise to him) has most properly called attention in the Times to the forlorn condition of an influential and aristocratic section of London cats, and as we know (by feline report) the kind-heartedness of your publisher and yourself, Mr. Editor, I have been requested as a "deputation" to "hair" our grievances in the influential columns of the Freemason.

Our family has left town, and Ann, the housemaid, is so taken up with the polite attentions of a good-looking young policeman that she has no time to think of poor "Tabby," who has, I assure you, a bad time of it just now in every way. Ours are "hard lines," and harder lives, Mr. Editor, for not only are we badly put to it for food,—yes, Sir, in this land of liberty and cat's meat,—but inhuman boys, young men, "fellahs," as they term themselves, throw stones at us, violently explode crackers at us, frightening us out of our lives, and making unearthly noises at the same time, which we suppose are meant to represent the ancient but expressive language either of the "Catchpaws, Choctaws, or the Miaws," for certainly it is not our own dialect. Have these "fellahs" nothing better to do? I think, Sir, their education has been greatly neglected, and that it would be better if all is considered if they would drink, smoke, and spit less, and learn to treat dumb animals a little more kindly. Even on Sunday they will not let us alone. Need I say more?

We feel sure of a few lines from your powerful pen to denounce this cruel system of leaving so many useful and domesticated animals (for cats are both) lonely, hungry, and forlorn. Will no good Samaritan set up a Cat's Home?

What have the dogs done that they are to have a home and we have none? I heard one gentleman say in a most unfeeling manner, that "he did not care who took his cat away, or what became of it, for that he could get a kitten."

Now I, on behalf of the cats, protest against this most unfair and improper use of things, and this cruel repudiation of one who has ornamented the home of her patron and has been so useful and so friendly.

Hoping that you will support our cause, (not our claws,) believe me, purringly yours,

A DISCONSOLATE CAT.

THE CHARGE OF POLITICAL TENDENCIES AGAINST THE FRENCH FREEMASONS.

As a good deal has been said lately on this topic, we think it only fair to the Grand Orient of France to publish the circular issued by the Council of the Order to the various Lodges of its obedience. It is perfectly Masonic in tone and spirit, and marks once again, we think it fair to believe, the distinction as between the Grand Orient of France, and individual lodges and brethren.

We wish that the Grand Orient of France was in a position of greater clearness and prestige, with power alike to enforce its orders, and restrain the unwise and unmasonic tendencies of some of its members.

Circulaire aux ateliers et aux Maçons de l'obédience.

Or. de Paris, le 26 juillet, 1877.

Très Chers Frères,
Quelques journaux politiques ont publié la note suivante:

Bien que le Conseil de l'Ordre soit convaincu que les Présidents d'Ateliers comprendront qu'une démarche de cette nature constituerait de leur part une infraction aux statuts et règlements généraux de l'Ordre, nous croyons néanmoins devoir leur rappeler que le Grand Orient de France, Pouvoir central de la Maçonnerie française, a seul qualité pour traiter toutes les questions extérieures. C'est à lui que les Ateliers et les Maçons de son Obédience doivent s'adresser toutes les fois qu'ils croient avoir à faire une réclamation concernant les actes de l'Autorité civile. Agir autrement serait violer les lois qui nous régissent.

Nous espérons, Très Chers Frères, qu'il nous aura suffi d'appeler votre attention sur ce point, et nous avons la confiance que notre recommandation sera suivie par tous.

Nous saisissons cette occasion pour rappeler également aux Ateliers qu'il importe, autant dans leur propre intérêt que dans l'intérêt général de l'Ordre, que les travaux maçonniques soient scrupuleusement maintenus dans les limites tracées par la Constitution et les Statuts généraux.

Agitez, Très Chers Frères, l'assurance de nos sentiments fraternels.

Au nom du Conseil de l'Ordre,

Le Président, DE SAINT-JEAN.

Les Secrétaires, CAUBET-POULE.

Reviews.

"An Introduction to Logic," by W.H.G.M.; Edited by MAURICE L. HIME, M.A. Dublin, Sullivan Bros.

We have received this little book and perused it with pleasure. It recalls ancient days with Aldrich and pleasant studies in Whately. We have always been of opinion that "logic," despite its serious aspects, its popular souvenirs of tedious "Dryasdusts," or hyper-acute schoolmen, has a very important part to play in the "curriculum" of all higher schools, and is a most needful and valuable introduction to that mental preparation and that intellectual development which belong alike to the idle logomachies, the serious contests, and the wordy encounters of life. Therefore we hail gladly a hand-book to a great science, in a small compass and easy of comprehension, and we trust that the little useful work Bro Hume has so well edited, may have a larger circulation.

We have also seen some well-merited eulogies of the work, and we fully concur with the following remarks of an able writer:—"The well-known initials, W. H. S. M.," which appear on the cover of this treatise, is a sufficient guarantee of depth and accuracy. The chapters which the editor has wisely collected originally appeared in Our School Times. Unlike most popular treatises, they were written by a thorough master of the subject, and we agree with the editor that a work like this is eminently suited for the senior boys in the English department of our superior schools. Any boy capable of understanding Euclid will understand Aristotelian logic as a practical system, and the writer can still remember the want he felt in a clear explanation of Euclid's indirect proofs. No better exercise can be imagined than making boys write out, in logical completeness, portions of Euclid.

In this way a boy will acquire the same taste for formal reasoning as a conveyancer does for formal language. The author's illustrations of formal reasoning are drawn from weighty matter, and teach important truths. Examiners may take a lesson from these sheets, and see how a master of his subject avoids far-fetched minutiae—the bane of examiners and the sphere of "cram." There is quite enough in this manual for any student who wants Logic in itself, and not for its metaphysics and its literature.

We commend the little work to the notice of our scholastic and student readers.

"Figaro at Hastings and St. Leonards." By CUTHBERT BEDE. Abel Heywood & Son, Manchester.

Our old friend, Cuthbert Bede, re-appears in clear print and a gay cover. He is as cheery and genial as ever. Perhaps time, which sobers us all alike, has tinged the "abandon" of other days, with its subduing and restraining hand, and rendered the author of "Verdant Green," like some old college mates of his, sensible that grey hairs are but the inevitable accompaniment of those years that have elapsed since they assembled in "Hall" or went "up the river," or followed the "Beagles" or mustered in the grand old "Minster." Memories of the "Keep," of "University House," of "Cosin's Library," of pleasant "Dons," of kindly "mates," of the "Eleven," and the "Regatta," will supervene when we are reminded accidentally of ancient days and narrow-streeted "Doorm," by the name of Cuthbert Bede. And if we have a little of a not unnatural—what shall we say?—well a more tranquil style, we still can discern the pleasant pen and the cunning pencil of our old and valued acquaintance. "Verdant Green" stands by itself, but we have often laughed over little "morecaux" of Cuthbert Bede, and are smiling gladly at his amusing "experiences" at Hastings to day.

Many of us will have memories of a seaside lodging, where the week's rent was eked out by certain "mysterious extras for linen kitchen fire, gaslight, shoe-blackening and castors, the 'castors' referring to a nickel plated cruet-stand, containing pepper, mustard, vinegar, or ketchup, (is that the proper way to spell it). 'No Sir,' says Mrs. Flitterling, 'Catsup, if you please.'"

Some of us may have had experience in the following conversation: "Why, I thought you said there was a sea view!" "No, Sir," replied Mrs. Flitterling, in a tone that seems to imply that if there had been a sea view, it would have been charged as an "hextra."

Well, we have laughed, which is something to say in these dull days, over the facetious pages of our "old familiar friend," and we recommend "Figaro at Hastings" to all whom the cares of life, the chaos of society, or the troubles of advancing years have not made grave instead of gay, dull instead of jocular, depressed instead of cheery. "Tempus fugit," and with it the gayer dreams of college life.

We who are old and grey, gouty and grumbling, to-day, are often unable to enter into the fun and frolic of the past, but look on sadly and gravely to that great change which transmutes the golden hours of youth with the alloy of older and later and weary hours. But some of us may find in cheery sketches and pleasant words an antidote to many a care, and refreshment alike amid the cares of business, or the toils of literature, the voice of a wife, and the shrill cries of a baby. Yes, married men and bachelors alike can find in Cuthbert Bede's contribution to our serial literature, something which will lighten up the changed face or the troubled brow with a passing gleam of "Auld lang syne."

"Geoffrey Oliviant's Folly." By Mrs. GEORGE LINNEUS BANKS. J. Allingham, 29, Farringdon-street.

This little story is effectively told, and will have an interest for many of our readers, for whom similar tales, with a touch of the "sensational" in them have now so great a charm. For ourselves, we do not, we confess, believe in either the sensational or the weird, the grotesque or the abnormal, and we cannot but fancy that the hour of startling episodes or unprecedented occurrences has struck at last, and that if we are to retain the attention of our young generation that we must go back to the real and the veritable, the actual and the possible. Now, we do not say that Geoffrey Oliviant's Folly sins in the respects of sensationalism; on the contrary, we consider the moral an excellent one, and we warmly commend the little tale to that large class of our readers, which is glad to take up a story for the passing hours, to amuse and to gratify, and let us hope to improve and to edify.

"La Chaîne d'Union."

La Chaîne d'Union for September is before us, and we congratulate warmly our confrère, Bro. Hubert, on its interesting pages, and its valuable Masonic intelligence. We rejoice to note that Bro. Hubert and ourselves agree as to our estimate alike of the tendencies of the present incidents in French Freemasonry, and in respect of the true principles of our Cosmopolitan Order generally. Like Bro. Hubert we always feel toleration, which some do not, for a different and even divergent "point de mire," and therefore we must always make "allowances" when we compare English and French Freemasonry. But what we fear is that if this new revolution in French Freemasonry becomes "un fait accompli," there will be a gulph opened as between our two systems, which neither of us will be able to bridge over, or to cross. We thank Bro. Hubert once more, noting his amiable words with respect to ourselves, for valuable information, and a most interesting periodical.

"Medical Examiner" (The Student's Number). George Bell and Son, York-street, Covent Garden.

We are glad to have seen this number of a very useful paper, most valuable to the medical profession. For scientificists the lectures it contains must be very important, while the information it affords to young students, is alike worthy of passing perusal, and also as a book of reference. To many the data it gives must be worth preserving, especially when they are beginning their career in the schools, the study of that great profession which is such a signal blessing to humanity. We wish our contemporary, both ably edited and admirably arranged, every success.

GREAT PRIORY OF CANADA.

[We have great pleasure in publishing for the benefit of our numerous Templar readers the accompanying address of our erudite Bro. Col. McLeod Moore.]

Sir Knights, Great Officers, Officers, and Frates of the Great Priory of Canada,

I greet you with heartfelt pleasure, and with thankful feelings that we have been spared to meet again and exchange congratulations on the success, so far, of our Great Priory.

The custom of delivering an annual address at our reunions, together with the report on foreign correspondence in the proceedings, although not demanded by our regulations, but adopted from our brethren of the United States, I look upon as an admirable method of disseminating the different views and opinions entertained of the Order, as also of clearing away existing prejudices and errors, and am satisfied much good has already been the result; at the same time, it has this drawback, in giving an opportunity to extend a simple record of facts into a long lecture not always very interesting to the hearers, and, as I fear in the present instance, calculated somewhat to tax your patience.

How little could we have foreseen what the past year has brought forth, or the changes that have taken place in so short a period. Amongst them a threatened disruption of the Union of our Order, and the lamented and sudden death of the Great Prior of England, who only a few months back, on the resignation of the Earl of Limerick, was installed as Head of the English Nationality, with all the dignity befitting his high position as one of the representatives of England's most ancient and purest chivalry.

The Right Honourable the Earl of Shrewsbury and Talbot, our late illustrious, worthy, and excellent brother, had endeared himself to the whole fraternity, taking an especial interest in all that concerned the Order of the Temple, which he was endeavouring to restore to a state of peace and harmony, when it pleased the Great Architect and Supreme Ruler and Disposer of all things to take him to that rest which knows no earthly waking.

It appears from the announcement of his death by the Great Sub-Prior, that he had sat with him for a considerable time the day previous, making arrangements for conducting the business of the coming Great Priory, as it was his lordship's earnest hope that all differences then existing might be amicably arranged, and his most ardent desire to be instrumental in cementing the Order—"L'homme propose, mais Dieu dispose"—was sadly exemplified in his sudden and lamented death on the very day of the meeting of Great Priory.

Our good Frates of the United States, who a few years back, made a pilgrimage to Europe, will I am sure, look back with mournful pleasure to the kind and hospitable reception they met with from him at "Alton Towers."

CIRCULARS ISSUED.

I regret that my first official act, as Great Prior, should have been the necessity of issuing the circular of the 4th of December last (see Appendix A), to repudiate the advocacy of secession and the formation of another independent Templar body in Canada. Had not the truth of such a movement been authenticated to me by an official of this Great Priory, I should not have thought it worthy of notice. There is, however, no difficulty, when desirable, in forming Provincial Priorities for any one of the Provinces, which would place them exactly in the same position to this Great Priory as it formerly stood to that of England, and as the Grand Commanderies of the United States do to their Great National Council, "The Grand Encampment."

With regard to the implied wish to adopt the system pursued across the line, I can only say that, delighted as we all are to cultivate the most intimate relations with our good Frates of the United States, I think, with very few exceptions, we infinitely prefer our own English system. In this we are not singular, and I hope I may be pardoned for quoting an extract from a letter to me, of 27th July last, by one always looked upon as an authority on Masonic and Templar matters, whose fearful and untimely death we all so truly deplored—our late respected and talented Frater, George Frank Gouley. He says:—"Your letter clears away some doubtful points in my mind, and I can frankly say that I am in full accord with your views, and trust that some day our American work may be corrected so as to conform more sensibly and harmoniously to the ancient Templar system."

PROCEEDINGS IN CONVENT GENERAL.

The subject which now particularly engages our attention is the action taken by Convent General in October and December last, which called forth my circular and the protest issued in your name on the 19th March (see Appendix B). While, owing to the death of the Great Prior of England, it has not yet been finally arranged, I am happy to be able to inform you that the Great Sub-Prior is using every means in his power to bring about a settlement, and has explained his views to me, which I am convinced, when laid before you, will be concurred in as the only practical way of satisfying all parties.

It is with pain I record the state of confusion into which the Order has been thrown by the inconsiderate action of some of the English representatives at Convent General. This continued re-opening of questions which should be regarded as having been finally settled is not calculated to raise respect for the Order, or for those who cannot rest content unless they have everything their own way.

What has taken place is the more to be regretted, as it shows that a certain section of the Order in England is leagued together to upset existing regulations, that had, before adoption, been under careful revision for a period of four or five years; and that the party composing it are embarked in a retrograde movement, with but little regard either to the history or the unity of the Order to which they belong.

England, or this dominant section, for the time being, of her Great Priory in Convent General, seems to ignore our rights to a voice in these matters, and, without the slightest reference to us, passes resolutions in Convent General of which we disapprove. Undoubtedly the general statutes contain a provision for altering them, but it could never have been contemplated that such alterations were to take place without the consent of the Nationalities. Canada joined the Union satisfied with the existing laws, and thus gave in her allegiance to the Convent General, and she cannot be expected to observe any infringement, which, in this case, actually changes the Order to a totally different organisation.

If Convent General assumes the right to make rules for us, it is high time we should assert our own rights, and, in my opinion, we neither can nor ought, as I know our Great Priory will be firm in refusing, to submit to any such assumption. I say so with the deepest loyalty and most profound respect for our Grand Master, a feeling I know to be equally shared in by all the members of this Great Priory, and I will uphold his authority, and bear him true allegiance as long as he is pleased to rule over us, but I confess to the same feeling which actuated the saying of Junius,—"That the subject, who is truly loyal to the Chief Magistrate, will neither advise nor submit to arbitrary measures."

The fact is, that the Great Priory of England has so long been the autocrat of the Temple Order that it is difficult to persuade some of its members that it is now merely one of a federated union, and they seem to be indisposed to recognise either Ireland or Canada as independent and co-equal members of the federation, while it is equally plain that neither Ireland nor Canada will consent to assert and maintain other than their fullest rights under the same.

It is from no capitious feeling I object to again returning to the old nomenclature, but because I consider it neither appropriate nor historical, and I am also fully aware many dissent from the opinions I have long formed and expressed as to the history and practices of the Order. I will, therefore, once more endeavour to give fully my reasons for the views I entertain, and the objections I have to return to the traditions and distinctive appellations of Modern Templary; leaving it for you to consider how far they are correct or feasible.

OPINIONS ON THE HISTORY OF THE ORDER.

Our order has always claimed traditionally to represent the Knights Templars of the Crusades, preserved intact through its connection with Freemasonry, and while Masonic authors are never weary of asserting this claim, at the same time they seem to do all in their power to perpetuate historical errors, stating as facts improbable surmises, and using titles and recording customs quite foreign to the true and historical nomenclature and practices of the Order.

There is no foundation for believing it grew out of the so-called Masonic Knights of the Temple, supposed to have been established somewhere about the Babylonish Captivity, or that it was based on Craft Masonry at all. Such legends are now generally looked upon as myths of the past, and arose from the untenable grounds taken by enthusiastic votaries to enhance the value of the Chivalric Orders in the eyes of the Masonic world, by assigning to them a mysterious origin they had not the slightest title to, and which was never thought of by their founders.

That there was a connection between the Military Order of the Temple and Freemasonry there is now but little doubt entertained. It originated in the trading community of Masons, who with other secret associations sprang up and flourished in the East; appearing in Europe during the dark ages. They established them in "Guilds," from which gradually emanated our present symbolic system. This connection with the Templars led in latter times to the preservation of the Order by the Masonic Society. But what that early connection was still remains a vexed question, and we can at best but theorise according to our own views.

History tells us that when the Templar Order was politically destroyed in the 14th century by Philip, King of France, and Pope Clement the 5th, the number of Templars in Christendom was about 15,000, and it is supposed by many that the remaining Knights incorporated themselves with the Masonic body.

This is not, however, warranted by facts; but there is every reason to believe that the greater number, mingling in the world, never lost their identity as Templars; and thus their bond of union continued, although mystical and unrecognised, as that of any other legitimate society.

THE ORDER NOT A PAPAL ONE.

A great mistake is made in considering the Templars a Papal Order. The Order, like that of St. John the Baptist, also called St. John of Jerusalem, was essentially a military republic which was brought into existence by the will of its own original founders, and in no degree owed its reception or organisation to the Head of the Latin Church.

At the commencement, this association or brotherhood consisted of nine Knights, whose desire to benefit their fellows prompted them voluntarily to bind themselves together for the protection of the Pilgrims visiting the Holy Land, then so much exposed to ill-treatment and danger; and not until some time after their establishment were they sanctioned and acknowledged by the then Pope, but in no sense did they owe their origin to Papal authority. Therefore what legal or moral right had a Pope to destroy what a Pope had not created.

This Papal assumption of undue and unjust authority was not binding upon Christendom, even though the whole Western Church at that time acknowledged the Papal rule, and so the Order of the Temple, not being lawfully destroyed, still lawfully exists. Many are therefore too hasty in assuming because the direct proofs are not readily forthcoming, that the Templars of the present day have no claim to the title.

THE TEMPLARS AS KNIGHTS OF CHRIST.

From Sir Bernard Burke's Book of the Orders of Knighthood, in the article on the Papal States, we find that the Order of the Temple was not only never abolished in Portugal, but it seems to have merely been suspended for seven years in the Papal States. Pope Clement, it is well known, abolished it in 1312, but this measure was objected to by King Dionysius of Portugal, who allowed the Order to exist in his dominions, with all its rights and possessions; and Pope John 22nd, successor of Clement, compromised the matter by consenting, in 1319, to its existence in Portugal under a new name, "The Knights of Christ," reserving to himself and his successors the right of creating a similar Order in the Papal States, of which right his successors avail themselves up to the present day, by conferring it as a distinction of merit on both native and foreign Roman Catholics. The change of name from the "Templars" to "Knights of Christ" was in reality no change, as the Templars had always been known as the "Poor Fellow Soldiers of Christ," or of the Temple. In both these countries the Order now exists in its entirety. Is it then proper to say that the Order was ever even outwardly abolished? How can that be abolished which always has, and still continues to exist?

PRESENT STATE OF THE TEMPLAR ORDER.

The correct state of the Order of the Temple at the present time, is this:—In Portugal and the Papal States it exists, never having been abolished. In Scotland it was completely amalgamated with the Order of the Hospitalers of St. John, and when the latter Order was abolished at the Reformation, we are justified in believing from well-accredited traditions handed down to us, and the general belief of the country, that the Knights, being without doubt in some cases Freemasons, preserved both Orders within the Masonic Fraternity. In England and Ireland, the Temple and Hospital were partially but not completely amalgamated, still very many of the Knights of the Temple, and a large portion of their estates, were absorbed into the Order of St. John, and at the Reformation, although we are without positive proof, used the Masonic Order, like their Frates in Scotland, to preserve their ancient chivalry. Consequently, the Masonic body of Great Britain and Ireland is now the lawful custodian of the combined Order of the Temple and St. John.

COMBINED ORDER OF THE TEMPLE AND ST. JOHN.

We cannot separate the two Orders as regards the Masonic Fraternity. If we are lawfully in possession of the one, we are of the other, because I contend, that although the two original Orders were at variance when at the height of their military glory, they became amalgamated after the political suppression of the Templars, and there is no reason for supposing that the Freemasons regularly and formally absorbed into themselves either the Order of the Temple or that of St. John, until after the Reformation, at which time the combined Orders disappeared from public view, and remained hidden until it was considered proper, in the last century, to permit them to emerge to the light of day.

In this view of the case, and I do not see what other can rationally be taken, the English, Scottish, Irish, and American Templars are just as lawfully Knights of the Temple and Hospital as any other now existing. The Pope never created the Orders, and the Pope could not destroy them. This is proved by Pope Clement's successor actually conferring the Templar Order himself, and the Order of Malta was never under the ban of Rome. It is of no consequence as regards validity of title, whether the Order continued openly, as in Portugal and Rome, or secretly, as in England and Scotland; the sole fact to be considered is, did it still continue? and of that we have the amplest proof. And, as regards the legitimacy of what is commonly called "Masonic Templary," what are the facts? The Masonic Fraternity have for over a hundred years openly asserted that they possessed the right to enrol certain of their own members Knights of the Temple and of Malta, and can show their connection with symbolic Masonry at the revival, and that this right had been secretly used and asserted for a considerable time previously.

Now, even by prescription, this title is good, and before it can be successfully attacked it is incumbent upon the parties attacking it to prove that it is bad. This has been attempted, but never with success; and until it is, the Templar Order attached to the Masonic body must be held as being legitimate, and as such entitled to all the ancient privileges of the Order, amongst which not the least are, the correct denomination, nomenclature, and costume.

DESIGNATION OF THE EARLY TEMPLAR ORDER.

In my circular of the 10th of March (see Appendix 2) I quoted from Addison's "Reliable History of the Knights Templar" (English edition, 1853), pages 19, 46, and 61, that the proper designation of the officer presiding over the Order of the Temple for each nation is that of Grand or Great Prior, and by natural consequence the body so presided over is Grand or Great Priory; and also shewing the organisation of the early Order in England to prove that the lowest organised body of Knights Templar is Preceptory, and as these Preceptories in Scotland and Ireland were dependent on the Temple in London, hence the precedent for our "Convent General."

ORGANISATION OF THE ORDER.

The Order being spiritual, the candidates for admission were required to have already been knighted by a Secular Knight, when they were received into the Order in a chapter assembled in the Chapel of the Order, for as members they could not deign to accept honour from a layman. The only exception was in the case of an Ecclesiastic, a Bishop, who was permitted to join the Order without being a Secular Knight. There were no Bishops, that is, Prelates of the Order. The Order consisted only of three distinct classes, not degrees, Knights, Chaplains, and serving Brethren, including the men-at-arms; besides the numerous retinue attached to the Order. The number of Chaplains was small, and admitted as a body after the Order had arrived at maturity.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

DUKE OF CONNAUGHT LODGE (No. 1558).—The first meeting of the season of this lodge was held at the Surrey Masonic Hall, Camberwell, on Thursday, 13th September. Bro. Cackett, W.M., presided, supported by Bros. Sleep, S.W.; Mitchell, J.W.; Runacres, S.D.; Chalk, J.D.; Taylor, W.S.; Sims, A.W.S.; Boyton, I.G.; W. Dann, Sec.; besides Bros. J. Dixon, C. E. Power, J. C. Pentruath, R. Scott, J. R. Smith, T. Corpe, J. Taylor, W. Briscoe, G. Stokes, and several other brethren. The minutes of the lodge of emergency called on the 14th June were read, which was to enquire into and consider the financial position of the lodge, and to determine the measures to be taken in connection therewith. Bro. Sleep, S.W., was then elected W.M. for the ensuing year, and Bro. Sleep then proposed that a £10 10s. P.M. jewel should be presented to the W.M., Bro. Cackett, upon his leaving the chair next month. Bro. Dixon said he thought the lodge was too poor to vote £10 10s. after the losses it had sustained, as well as being temporary in debt. Bro. Dann then stated that with a little management the lodge would soon be clear, and the motion was then carried. The next proposal was for Treasurer, and Bros. Corpe and Sims were proposed and balloted for, Bro. Corpe being elected. Bro. Pentruath and Scott were again re-elected for Auditors of the accounts of the lodge, likewise, Bro. Guider was re-elected as Tyler. Bro. Sleep returned thanks for the honour that was done him in a very pithy speech. Two candidates for Freemasonry were then proposed, and the lodge was closed in due form, and the brethren then sat down to a very pleasant banquet.

BATH.—Royal Cumberland Lodge (No. 41).—An emergency meeting was held at the Masonic Hall, on Thursday, the 13th inst., for the purpose of clearing off during the vacation the heaviest portion of the work left at the close of the session in May, thus preventing too great an accumulation at the opening of the new one in October. Business commenced at 7.30 p.m., when the brethren having taken their seats, the officers entered in procession, Bro. Reeves kindly presiding at the organ. Bro. F. Wilkinson, W.M., was supported by the following officers:—Bros. Brown, I.P.M.; Dr. Hopkins, P.M., acting as S.W.; Rubie, P.M., acting as J.W.; Ashley, P.M., Treas.; Wilton, P.M., Dir. of Cer.; Carey, P.M., Asst. Dir. of Cer.; Braham, Sec.; Murlis, acting as S.D.; Hunt, J.D.; Radway, I.G.; Robinson and Holmes, acting as Stewards; and Bigwood, Tyler. In addition to the members 41 of the following were present as visitors from 906—Bros. Bright, G. Neete, F. Neete, Reeves, P.M., and Young. The lodge having been opened in the First and Second Degrees, Bros. Davies, Baldwin, Peach, and Harris were presented by the S.W. as candidates for the Sublime Degree of M.M. The lodge was opened in the Third Degree. The candidates were re-admitted and duly raised by the W.M., who acquitted himself well in performing this ceremony for the first time, assisted in one portion by Bro. Ashley, P.M., who was, as usual, most efficient and impressive, as was also Bro. Moutrie, P.M., in giving the traditional history. At the request of the W.M., the S.W. explained the symbolism of the working tools, gave the charge, and an elaborate lecture, entering more fully on the description of the tracing board and the traditions of the degree. The W.M. brought before the lodge the subject of the terrible famine in India, and, though a grant in aid could not be legally made at this meeting, the feeling of the brethren was so completely in its favour, it appearing desirable that prompt action should be taken, and the Treasurer being willing to advance such sum as may be agreed upon, the sum of ten guineas was fixed as the contribution of the lodge, and the subject will be again entertained at the first regular meeting, when doubtless the requisite steps will be taken. The lodge was closed at a quarter-past nine.

LANCASTER.—Lodge of Fortitude (No. 281).—The monthly meeting of this lodge was held on the 12th inst., in the Masonic Rooms, Athenæum, St. Leonard-gate. Bro. Richard Taylor, the W.M., presided, and there was a fair attendance of members and visiting brethren present. The lodge having been opened with solemn prayer, the minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed. The ballot was then separately taken for Mr. John Wilkinson Simpson and Mr. John Atkinson, and proving unanimous in each case, they were severally initiated into the mysteries of the Craft by the W.M. Bro. Edward Phyzackerley, having given proficiency of his ability as an Entered Apprentice, was entrusted and retired, and the lodge having been opened in the Second Degree he was re-admitted and passed to the degree of F.C., the working in this degree being also gone through by the W.M. The W.M., S.W., J.W., and Secretary were appointed to represent the lodge at the forthcoming Provincial Grand Lodge meeting at Southport. The proclamations were then made and the lodge was closed with the usual formalities.

LANCASTER.—Rowley Lodge (No. 1051).—The meetings of this lodge were resumed on Monday, the 3rd inst., in the Masonic Rooms, Athenæum. Bro. Thomas Jackson, the W.M., presided, the attendance of brethren being small. The lodge was opened with the usual formalities, but there being no special business before the meeting the bye-laws of the lodge were read and discussed. The lodge was afterwards closed in peace, love, and harmony.

GREENWICH.—Star Lodge (No. 1275).—The installation meeting of this popular lodge was held at the Ship Hotel, on Friday, the 7th inst. After Bro. Capt. Reginald Williams, P.P.G.O. Middlesex, had been installed W.M., the following brethren were invested as his officers for the ensuing year:—Bros. H. J. Green, P.M. 1538, I.P.M.; C. Woolmer-Williams, S.W.; W. Kipps, P.G.O. Kent, &c., J.W.; J. Smith, P.G.P., P.M., &c., Treasurer; F. Walters, P.P.G.J.D. Midx., P.M., Sec.; Rev. G. R. P. Colles, L.L.D., P.P.G. Chap. Oxon, Chaplain; Major Williams, P.M. 1538, &c., S.D.; E. W. Chetwynd, J.W. 1538, J.D.; Alfred Tisley, I.G.; Chas. Marr, Organist; S. Marketis, D.C.; F. S. Leaper, A.D.C.; G. S. Elliott, A. Sec.; John Gilbert, P.P.G. Tyler Midx., Tyler. The banquet followed, and a very agreeable evening was spent.

LIVERPOOL.—De Grey and Ripon Lodge (No. 1356).—The usual monthly meeting of the members belonging to this south-end of Liverpool lodge was held on Wednesday evening, the 12th inst., at the Masonic Rooms, 80, North Hill-street, Toxteth Park, Liverpool, where was a large attendance of about fifty officers and brethren, and a number of visitors. Bro. T. Nickson, W.M., was at his post in the E., supported by Bros. T. Horne, I.P.M.; J. Cell, P.M., W.M. 1609; T. Evans, P.M., W.M. 1570; J. W. Williams, S.W.; A. Woolrich, J.W.; J. Paull, Treas.; C. Arden, Sec.; J. Keet, S.D.; E. George, J.D.; W. Evans, I.G.; H. P. Squire, S.; W. Parrington, S.; and P. M. Larsen, P.M., Tyler. Four brethren, after due examination, were passed to the degree of Fellow Craft by the W.M., assisted by his officers, in a remarkably able manner. The bye-laws of the lodge were subsequently read. The brethren present subsequently subscribed the sum of £7 in aid of the Indian Famine Relief Fund. This is an example which is certainly worthy of universal imitation by all the lodges in the province of West Lancashire, and there can be little doubt but that the fund will receive very substantial assistance from the Masonic fraternity, which has for its main object the promotion and exhibition of true charity. The lodge was afterwards closed in peace and harmony.

MORECAMBE.—Morecambe Lodge (No. 1561).—The monthly meeting of this lodge was held in the Masonic Hall, Edward-street, on the 7th inst. The W.M. (Bro. W. Duff) presided, and there was a capital attendance of members and visiting brethren. The lodge having been opened in the First Degree with the usual formalities, the minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed. Bros. Thomas Thornton and James Gorton having given proof of their proficiency as Fellow Crafts were entrusted and retired. The lodge was afterwards opened in the Third Degree, when the two brothers already named were re-admitted and raised to the Sublime Degree of Master Masons, the working in the case of the first named being gone through by Bro. F. G. Dale, (W.M. 1353), and in the latter by Bro. Longman, (I.P.M. 1051), both of whom went through the ceremony in a very impressive manner. Bro. Dr. Moore, P.G.S.B. of E., gave the portion of the degree. The W.M. announced that Bro. Moore would give a lecture next lodge night on some subject connected with Masonry. The usual proclamations were then made, and the lodge closed.

INSTRUCTION.

DUKE OF CONNAUGHT LODGE (No. 1524).—This lodge held its usual meeting on Wednesday evening, 12th inst., at the Havelock Tavern, Albion-road, Dalston. Present: Bros. Francis, W.M.; Brown S.W.; Mc Millan, J.W.; C. Lorkin, S.D.; Pollock, J.D.; J. Lorkin, I.G.; Fieldwick, Preceptor; E. Dietrich, Sec.; and Gilchrist, Brand, Brasted, Woolley, Little, G. Ferrar, R. George, and others. The lodge was opened at eight p.m. in ancient form. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. Bro. G. Ferrar was interrogated and entrusted. The lodge was opened in the Second Degree, and Bro. Ferrar was passed to the degree of Fellow Craft. Bro. Gilchrist then worked the sections of the lecture, assisted by the brethren. The report of the Audit Committee having been read, it was unanimously accepted. Bro. Brown was then unanimously elected W.M. for the ensuing week.

MASONIC SONGS.—A selection of Masonic Songs set to popular airs, written by Bro. E. P. Philpots, M.D., F.R.G.S., is now ready, forming a handsome volume, bound in cloth, with gilt edges, 3s. BEDFORD.—Stuart Chapter (No. 540).—The autumn meeting of this chapter took place at their rooms at the Swan Hotel, on Tuesday evening, September 11th, at which there were present: Comps. Alderman J. R. Ball (J.P.), Z.; Asher Barfield (P.Z. 19), acting H.; J. M. Cuthbert, J.; Rev. Faussett Ward, Chaplain; Billson, 1st A.S.; R. B. Stafford, 2nd A.S.; Capt. Colburn, E.; Thody, Organist; G. Reynolds, Janitor; Comps. Allan Harris, Alderman Sergeant, R. H. Combs, and others; and visiting Comp. Biggs, of the Bedford Chapter 282, Tavistock. Many companions were prevented attending by absence from England, illness, &c. The chapter having been duly opened the minutes of the preceding one were read and confirmed, as were also the bye-laws proposed at the same chapter. Comp. R. Boughton Smith, H. 1130, J. 1007, Prov. G. Assistant Soj. Leicester and Rutland, was balloted for and declared unanimously elected as a joining member. Comps. Asher Barfield, P.Z. M. Sinai, 19; and G. Read, P.Z. Andrew Chapter, 834, and J. 19, were then unanimously elected honorary members of the Stuart Chapter; the former proposed and seconded by Comps. Bull, Z., and Col. Stuart, P.Z., and the latter by Comps. Cuthbert, J., and Rev. W. Tebbis, P.S. This vote, which does the chapter as much honour as the recipients of the honour done by it to them, marks the gratitude of the members to these two worthy companions, who at a great deal of trouble and expense not only went down and took part in the consecration of the chapter, but also have ever since rendered most willing and welcome assistance, the former of them, as will be seen, taking a chair at the chapter meeting. At the close of the chapter the companions sat down to an excellent supper and spent a pleasant evening, Comp. Biggs singing several capital songs. The usual toasts were proposed, as well as those of the joining and visiting companions and the new honorary members of the chapter. All of these were suitably responded to and the companions separated.

FREEMASONRY IN NEW ZEALAND.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE, S.C.

A meeting of delegates representing the lodges holding under the Scottish Constitution of Masonry in the North Island of New Zealand was held on 31st May, in the St. Andrew's Lodge-room, Star Hotel, to take the steps necessary for the inauguration of a Provincial Grand Lodge. There were present: St. Andrew's Lodge (Auckland), represented by Bro. Walker, R.W.M., and Bro. Ellison, S.W.; Lodge Sir Walter Scott (Thames), represented by Bros. Murray, R.W.M., and Tyler, R.W.P.M.; Waterloo Lodge (Wellington), represented by Bros. the Rev. J. Hill, R.W. P.M. and Brodie, R.W.P.M.; Patea Kilwinning Lodge, represented by Bros. Dewar, R.W.P.M., and Wilkinson, S.W. (Lodge Sir Waker Scott); Lodge Manukau (Onehunga), represented by Bros. Niccol, R.W.M. (and R.W. P.M. Lodge St. Andrew), and Henry, J.W.

The delegates having produced their credentials, on the motion of Bro. the Rev. J. Hill, Bro. Tyler was called to the chair. He read the minutes of the meeting held recently at his office, also copies of correspondence which had passed between the several lodges relative to the appointment of delegates, &c., and said they were now met for the purpose of taking steps for constituting the Provincial Grand Lodge. He pointed out that the appointment of Grand Lodge Officers rested with Bro. the Hon. F. Whitaker, and they could only recommend their appointment.

Bro. Hill said Bro. Whitaker had stated to him that he would endorse the appointment made by them as members of the lodge.

The following nominations were made:—Bros. P.M. Dr. Johnson (of Wellington), G.W.D.M.; P.M. Niccol (Auckland), G.S.M.; P.M. Brodie (Thames), G.S.W.; P.M. Hay, G.J.W.; P.M. Tyler, G. Sec.; Gilton (Wellington), G.D. Sec.; Rev. J. Hill, G. Chaplain; Rev. David Bruce, G. Registrar; Rev. Harvey (Wellington), G.D. Chaplain; R.W.M. Murray (Thames), G. Treasurer; P.M. Powles (Wellington), G.S.D.; Ellison (Auckland), G.J.D.; P.M. Anderson, G. Architect; Whitson, G. Bible Bearer; P.M. Dewar, Director of Ceremonies; Captain Fraser (Thames), Sword Bearer; H. Brett, Director of Music; Dale (Patea), and Wilkinson (Thames), Grand Marshals; J. R. Henry (Onehunga), President of Stewards; T. Rawden (Thames), G. Tyler. On the motion of Bro. P.M. Brodie, it was agreed that the installation should take place at the Choral Hall, Auckland, at a time to be fixed by a committee to be appointed on the question of ways and means for procuring regalia, &c., it was agreed that the lodges represented should become responsible for £100, and that the Secretary (Bro. Tyler) be instructed to write by the outgoing mail for the necessary jewels and regalia, the amount for which the lodges became responsible to be made a first charge on the funds of the Grand Lodge.

Bros. Niccol, Brodie, Tyler, Hay, Hill, Brett, and Dewar were appointed a committee, and empowered to make all arrangements for the inauguration of the Grand Lodge.

The date for the installation of the Hon. F. Whitaker as Prov. Grand Master of the North Island of New Zealand, under the Scotch Constitution of Freemasonry, has not yet been fixed, but it will not take place until after the close of the ensuing parliamentary session. By that time the regalia and jewels for the Grand Lodge, for which an order will be sent home by the outgoing mail, will have arrived. The sister lodges will, in the meantime be communicated with by the committee appointed for carrying out the arrangements, and the inauguration and installation will be carried out in the most impressive manner. It has been suggested that Bro. Lazar, of the West Coast, who officiated at the installation of the late Bro. Sir Donald McLean as P.G.M. of the English Constitution, might be induced to come to Auckland and officiate in the same capacity on the opening of our new Grand Lodge, and the installation of its officers.

There was an unusually large meeting of companions of the Royal Arch Chapter, No. 348, I.C., and visitors, on Tuesday evening, 17th July, at the Masonic Hall, Princes street, Auckland, the business being the installation of officers. Ten representatives of the Hauraki R.A.C. from the Thames were in attendance. Comp. E. T. Wildman, P.K., of the Thames, assisted by Comps. W. Climo, P.K., and R. M. Mitchell, P.K., also of the Thames, officiated as Installing Officers; Comp. W. Lodder was placed in the chair of First Principal; Comp. W. R. Robinson in the second chair, and Comp. A. Brock in the third chair; Comp. J. H. Burns was invested as C.H. and M.E.; Comp. H. G. Wade as Registrar and Treasurer; Comp. the Rev. C. M. Nelson as R.A.C.; and Comps. Dawson, Niccol, and Dyer, severally as C.V.'s, and Comp. Porter, Janitor. The chapter was beautifully decorated, and the ceremonies were very successfully conducted by the P.K.'s and Principals of the Hauraki (Thames) Chapter, No. 454, I.C. Masons will understand the usual character of the gathering when we say that no fewer than twelve Principals took part in the installation. The attendance of so many members from the Thames tended materially to the success of the proceedings. After the installation a recherche banquet was provided by Host Hood, of the Masonic Hotel, in the large dining-room. It was evident from the quality and quantity of the viands that Host Hood had determined that the reputation of the hotel shall not suffer in his hands. About thirty sat down at table, and ample justice was done to the good things provided. While the banquet was in progress, the chapter room was cleared, and dessert was spread in it. The Chapter and visitors adjourned upstairs, and a very agreeable evening was passed.

GREAT PRIORY OF CANADA.

COMMANDERS AND PRECEPTORS.

The term "Commandery," and the title "Commander," were never used by the Templars. Singularly enough, the Order of St. John of Jerusalem used both "Commander" and "Preceptor" indifferently for the same officer, which can be seen by reference to old documents, A.D. 1500, or thereabouts. As they succeeded to the Templar possessions in England after the outward suppression of the Order, they probably adopted the old name of the religious houses, and used it in common with their own term of Commandery. All other Military Orders seem to have used the title "Commander," excepting the Templars, who were always called "Priors or Preceptors." Therefore, the title "Commander" has no Templar meaning in connection with a Preceptory.

ENCAMPMENT.

The name "Encampment" is quite a modern and most in appropriate innovation, not known to the early Order—a military Monastic body dwelling in fixed places of abode, having their Receptions in their chapels, never in the field. The English lexicons say an "Encampment" is ground on which an army, a body of gipsies, or marching party pitches "tents," and therefore cannot, with any propriety, be applied to places of meeting in the rooms or halls of houses in a city or town.

SEPARATION FROM FREEMASONRY NEVER CONTEMPLATED.

There is no valid reason for the assertion that the promoters of the changes made in 1873, when the Order was reorganised, were actuated by any desire to sever its connection with the Masonic Fraternity. This, I am satisfied, is not the case, and I wish most clearly to be understood that it was never contemplated by me to support such a measure, or to repudiate the connection with the Craft, for without the fostering care of the Masonic body our Chivalric Order would never have had its existence continued, and we could substantiate no claim to be considered as perpetuating the true Order of the Temple.

It is most unwarrantable and ridiculous to say that because the adoption of the correct titles and nomenclature is advocated that there is any desire for separation, or by dropping the prefix Masonic it separates the two bodies and makes us an illegal society, or that the Order has lost one particle of the claims it ever had to be considered an ally of Freemasonry. In fact, the Masonic connection has been drawn closer, and the Craft is still the vital prerequisite to admission into the United Orders of the Temple and Hospital. The whole object sought for was that of dispelling and clearing away palpable errors that had no historical foundation.

It was never disputed that our Templar body is now, to a certain extent, Masonic, its qualification being entirely so, but to say that its origin was Masonic is altogether erroneous—it was chivalric. By some it is contended that it had no such claim, being merely a modern Masonic invention. If this is the case, why make an allusion to the old Military Order at all? Still, if we be only ad imitationem, let us be so in reality, and use proper historical terms and practices, and not continue to promulgate false and erroneous ones that have not even antiquity to commend them. The original purposes for which the old religious Military Orders were created no longer existing they were gradually altered to suit the purpose of modern civilisation. This will account for the numerous changes they have undergone, and the differences that are seen in the various countries where they still survive; in some a mere remnant, but still sufficient to preserve their memory from total oblivion.

"KADOSH TEMPLARS."

Prior to the revival in England of Symbolic Masonry, during the early part of the last century, there are no records to shew that the Order had any connection with the Craft, but some time after that period we hear of it as the "Petit Elu Herodem Kadosh," Templars meaning "Elect or Chosen, and Consecrated or Holy Order of Templars" attached to Craft lodges. No doubt this very peculiar designation was introduced from the continent of Europe, where the political Order of the Temple had flourished, and never entirely lost its vitality.

The attempts made at different times to restore its former independence amongst the knightly Orders proved it continued to exist in secret, and we know it became afterwards incorporated under the name of the "Kadosh" with the "Hauts Grades," a foreign system of Freemasonry, which, embracing many of the old military and secret societies of the Middle Ages, was much sought after, and looked upon as more select than the pure and simple "Craft" degrees.

The "Kadosh" rehearsed the martyrdom of "De Molai," the last Chivalric Grand Master, and the sufferings of the Order; the doctrines inculcated being that the persecutors of the Templars did not wholly extinguish the Order, which still continued to exist under the forms of Freemasonry; whilst the "Rose Croix" taught the truths of Christianity by symbolising the Crucifixion and Ascension of our Lord. These two grades, the "Rose Croix" and the "Kadosh," being an admirable synopsis of the faith and sufferings of the great Order of the Temple, which, on very probable grounds of popular belief, they represented having just as much claim to be considered the legitimate descendants of the old Chivalric Knights as that of the "Ordre du Temple," of France, or any other branch; and I much question if they were not more characteristic of the true Templars than their authenticated successors, the "Knights of Christ," in Portugal, who became a mere honorary Papal Order, the crown alone having the right to nominate its members.

"KNIGHTS TEMPLAR AND KNIGHTS OF ST. JOHN."

Writers of the last century and a prior period consider the two titles of "Knights Templar" and "Knights of St. John" synonymous, probably from the absorption of the Templar Order, on its dissolution, into that of the latter; this may also account in some measure for the confusion of names by which it became known, and the too common practice of taking for granted and copying without investigation the statement of superficial observers. There is no clearer proof of this than what we have in the old Templar warrant at Kingston, Ont., of date 12th February, 1824, in which the Order is called "Knights Templar of Malta," and obedience directed to the "Supreme General Grand Conclave at Malta," whereas no such body existed there, and the Templar body was unknown in Malta until introduced by myself many years afterwards. The term Masonic was evidently added to distinguish it from other branches of the Order, non-Masonic, then existing.

"THE GRAND CONCLAVE OF KNIGHTS TEMPLARS."

Influential Masons established in England on the 4th of June, 1791, the first Grand Governing Body for the Templar system, and who, adopting a short ritual for that of St. John, commemorated and accounted for the union with their old enemies the Templars, but seeking no alliance with the Sovereign Order then in possession of the island of Malta. We learn by the records of the Jerusalem Conclave, Manchester, in 1786, that this grade was distinguished from the Temple by a red tunic with slashed red sleeves, black cloak, and slouched Spanish hat, bearing the white eight-pointed cross of Malta, in imitation of the red uniform and white cross worn by the military class of the Knights of Malta.

This Grand Body issued its own warrants to form Encampments, as they were called (a name not previously known by the Chivalric Orders), in connection with Craft lodges and Royal Arch chapters. Those lodges that had already the Templar system had no date assigned them, being called "Immemorial Encampments," and until the "Rose Croix" and "Kadosh" were surrendered to the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite, these degrees were always given in Encampments and under the Templar warrants.

UNITED ORDERS.

The United Orders as now practised in our English system are purely intended to represent the Christian doctrines, discarding all philosophical theories and dogmas introduced by Masonic enthusiasts, and it is probably better that it should be so, as we can now convey more clearly in our ceremonies the practice of the early chivalric founders. The "Rose Croix" and "Kadosh" are, however, in my opinion, quite unmeaning—detached from the Templar grade.

From what has been adduced I submit that we have a right to infer and are entitled to consider ourselves the descendants of the true Templar Order, revived and perpetuated by its adoption into the good old peaceful Craft; the principles and teachings of the Order harmonising with that of Freemasonry, which so nearly approaches Christianity in theory and spirit, having the Supreme Being for the object of its worship; mankind, without distinction of class, for its subjects; and the universe for its temple, placing all men on the same footing of fraternity.

MODERN TEMPLARS OF IRELAND AND SCOTLAND.

In my address, last year, I alluded to the Order in Ireland, where, I have since learned, it was introduced from Scotland, and the original warrant is still extant from the Royal Mother Kilwinning Lodge, signed in October, 1779, by the then Grand Master, the Earl of Eglinton, which has been always acknowledged and acted upon. This is a direct contradiction to the statement implying that the modern Templar system was first brought to Scotland in 1798, by some non-commissioned officers of an English militia regiment quartered in Edinburgh: evidently a mistake.

They very probably did revive the Order on its falling into abeyance, as a warrant was shortly after that date obtained from the "Early Grand Encampment" in Dublin, the offspring of the Mother Kilwinning Lodge. The former close intercourse between Scotland and France, and subsequently through the Stuart party, points to the direction from whence the Masonic adoption of the Chivalric Orders originated there. On the 19th June, 1811, the Duke of Kent, as patron of the Order in North Britain, granted them a charter creating them a regular Conclave of Knights Templar and Knights of St. John of Jerusalem.

RITUAL.

The report issued by the Ritual Commission (see Appendix C) will have made you conversant with the object in revising the one in use, which has been under consideration for several years. A copy of this Ritual has been in my possession, and I find it all that can be required for a body of intelligent men, being more in conformity with the nature of the traditions, true history of the Order, and arrangement of the different parts of a reception, than our present one; at the same time, it does not advocate any material change.

I consider it, with a few explanations and local alterations, to be admirably adapted for the standard ritual of this Great Priory, and strongly recommend its adoption. I purpose, at our present assembly, having it exemplified and explained, and arrangements can be made with regard to the issue of copies of it, as may be deemed advisable. By the terms of the treaty of alliance it has already become law on the signature of the Commissioners, and the Great Priory of Ireland is now using it, although England seems to hold back, and not consider the treaty binding.

SECRETA RECEPTIO.

It was shewn by the evidence given during the persecutions in Paris, A.D. 1310, on the great enquiry into the Templar Order, that they had a secret reception. The ceremonies took place at night, in the chapel, and none but Knights were present. It consisted of repeated entreaties for admission, exhortations to reflect, warnings as to fatigues, dangers, and privations, sending back to solitary reflection, summoning three times. This secret ceremonial was taken, most probably, from the Guilds, and added to their original simple rule as a test of doctrine.

I have had an opportunity of examining several rituals from time to time, and know that the old English Templar ceremony differs very much from our present one, claiming a derivation from the ancient mysteries, as also a "Rosycrucian" origin. It was expressed in obscure language, evidently to disguise the design of the secret societies, entertained before the Reformation, to upset the Papal power.

Such forms of ritual have been long very properly dismissed as unreliable and unnecessary legends. We now confine ourselves to the simple historical form of a reception, in which the duties of the Christian faith are inculcated. Much depends on the manner the celebrant conducts these beautiful ceremonies; for when they fall into the hands of those who do not appreciate them they lose all their effect, and become a mere mechanical repetition of words that fail to impress the aspirant.

TITLES AND CUSTOMS OF THE TEMPLARS.

The terms "Marshal," "Very High," and "Eminent," are all ancient titles of the Chivalric Orders. "Sir," before the name, denotes the person to be a Knight, but the title in ancient times was quite distinct from Knighthood, and was a common one amongst the inferior ecclesiastics, being the regular translation for "Dominus." Shakespeare makes this plain, where, in "Twelfth Night," Viola says, "I am one that would rather with 'Sir Priest' than 'Sir Knight.' Correctly speaking, 'Sir' should never be used as a prefix to the surname itself; the Christian name should always be added.

We do not use the title before the Christian name without the addition "Knight," because it would appear too much like an assumption of Courtly Knighthood, which the Crown alone has the authority to confer; but we address our members officially as "Sir Knight," "Frater," or "Brother."

DERIVATION OF KNIGHT.

"Knight" derived from the Saxon—"an attendant"—anciently the king's attendants or guards—is almost peculiar to England. Other nations apply it in connection with horsemen—"mounted soldiers." The French, "Chevalier;" Italian, "Cavaliere;" Spanish, "Cabelero;" German, "Ruyters," &c., &c. In Latin, "Eques" (from equus, a horse) is a knight—one mounted. "Miles" is a foot soldier. A knight is always said to be "dubbed," not created, but it means the same thing, for "dub" in English, and "doubter" in French, are said to be derived from the Saxon "dubbun"—to gird. "Dub" also signifies a blow, which carries us back to the most ancient ceremony—the cuff on the neck or ear, and the "thwack" on the shoulder.

"Accolade" has the same meaning in the ancient ceremony of conferring Knighthood, by the King laying his arms about the Knight's neck and embracing him. This appears to have been exchanged for the more stately act of touching or striking with the Royal sword the kneeling Knight.

THE SPURS.

The buckling on of the spurs was an indispensable adjunct of Knighthood, and every novice should be formally invested with them. In the old ceremony allusion was made to the metal (gold) of which the Knight's spurs were composed.

THE CROSS.

The practice to affix a cross to their names, by the ancient Knights, to denote the Brotherhood of the Temple was taken from the crosshills of their swords, which, when wounded and dying on the field, they fixed upright before them in the ground, that their last look might rest on the cross, the symbol of redemption.

* This preposterous title was called "The Royal, Exalted, Religious, and Military Order of Harodem, Grand Elected Masonic Knights Templar Radosh of St. John of Jerusalem, Palestine, Rhodes, and Malta."

They also used the Latin cross, with the titulus, of two bars †, known as the Patriarchal cross, symbolising salvation both to Jew and Gentile, now assigned to our Preceptors; but the cross of Salem, or triple-barred, is a pupal one, and never originally used by the Grand Master of the Temple. It indicates that he is the Sovereign Priest, Supreme Judge, and Sole Legislator. It is common in documents instead of using the title "Sir," to place the mark of the cross with an F., f., (frater) before the name, as † Fra. for a Knight, † Fra. for a Preceptor, and the triple cross for the Supreme Grand Master.

ALTERATION OF STATUTES—CONVENT GENERAL.

Having thus endeavoured to give you a sketch of the Order with my own long confirmed impressions as to what our Order of the Temple, in connection with Freemasonry, really is, I must now beg your consideration and attention to the communication I lately received from the "Great Sub-Prior" of England, Major Shadwell H. Clerke, the acting head of that Great Priory, who informs me that the Council had recommended, in view of the differences then existing, that past rank be in a great measure restored in the Great Priory of England, and the Ritual hitherto in use permitted to remain; and further, that the title "Eminent Commander" be substituted for "Preceptor," but as these views may not coincide with those of Ireland and Canada, the Great Sub-Prior has submitted the following alterations, which, if agreed to by the three Great Pories, would only require the formal confirmation of Convent General, viz.:—"That each Nationality have full power to frame their own regulations as to Titles, Past Rank, and Ritual (with common landmarks), but still remaining, as at present, under His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, who might hold triennial Convents General, where subjects previously agreed on by the three Great Pories could be formally passed, and where honours could be conferred." By these means he thinks the present state of disagreement would cease, and each country left free to adopt the line which it may think best.

Now, however desirable it might be to have perfect unity on all points, as the name Convent General implies, meaning a "general coming together in agreement and concurrence," I consider this compromise the only way open, and most strongly recommend that this Great Priory pass a resolution to carry it out. Canada would then retain all her present titles, and be guarded against future changes, excepting by her own consent. The capitation tax would of course be much reduced, and scarcely felt—a small sum to the Vice-Arch-Chancellor annually, with postage, stationery, and printing, being the only charge.

As we are at present constituted, other Nationalities could not well join the Convent General, but with these alterations in the statutes it would be quite practicable for the United States Templar Nationality (an original branch of our own tongue), to join this federal alliance, of which, with perfect propriety, the parent body has placed H.R.H. the Prince of Wales at the head. Scotland could also have no cause of objection. And in time each Nationality might voluntarily take a common view on most subjects, especially as to Ritual, which, it is very important, should be uniform. The Order would then again assume, as in ancient times, its cosmopolitan and united character of one great and powerful Christian association.

EXCHANGE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

In conformity with the resolution passed at the last Great Priory, I have appointed the V. E. Sir Knight, Richard Woolf, Past Pro. Sub-Prior of Worcester, to be our representative near the Great Priory of England, with the rank of a Past Prov. Prior of Canada; and the V. E. Sir Knight the Honourable Judge Townshend, Past Sub-Prior of Ireland, and Arch Chancellor of Convent General, to represent Canada near the Great Priory of Ireland, with the past rank of a Great Sub-Prior of Canada.

The relations existing between us and our sister Great Pories continue most satisfactory, as also with the National Grand Encampment of the United States and their State Grand Commanderies. From the M.E. Grand Master, James Herron Hopkins, of Pittsburgh, Penn., I have received letters conveying his hearty congratulations on the establishment of this National Great Priory, and his earnest wish to co-operate in every measure calculated to draw into closer union all belonging to the Order who speak our common language.

From Ireland, it has been announced that his H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught has been appointed Great Prior by the Grand Master, but no meeting of the Great Priory has as yet taken place for his installation, owing to the death of the late Great Prior of England. From this Nationality I am also in receipt of kind expressions towards the Great Priory of Canada.

The Calendar of the Great Priory of England of the 11th of May, 1877, notifies the appointment of our Most Worthy Past Sub-Prior † T. D. Harrington, to represent the Great Priory of England near that of Canada.

THE GREAT SUB-PRIOR OF CANADA AND THE CHANCERY.

Before conclusion, I wish to express the deep debt of gratitude we all owe to our Great Sub-Prior, our V. E. Frater, Samuel B. Harman, who, taking upon himself, from the commencement, the burden of organising this Great Priory, ably assisted the Chancery in all matters of detail, and by his well known accuracy and care has placed our Great Priory on a sure foundation; to him, then, are due our warmest thanks, and by none more than by myself. The careful revision of the statutes, forms, and returns are mainly, if not entirely, his work, and he has also satisfactorily closed up all accounts with the Great Priory of England, procuring numerous missing certificates for members neglected by their own Preceptories.

The Chancellor of the Great Priory will, I am sure, bear me out in my estimation of his valuable services and the aid and assistance he has received, who, although himself conspicuous for his Masonic and other abilities, was fortunate in his first year of office to have so proficient and painstaking an instructor.

I may here remark the duties of Chancellor are onerous and not to be acquired in a day, and it is neither wise nor desirable to change that officer when once his duties are acquired.

One little matter in the wording of the statutes appears to have quite escaped the notice of us all. I mean the oversight of continuing the word "Grand" as a prefix to the Officers' names, excepting as regard Past Rank. We are now designated a "Great Priory," having discontinued the use of the word "Grand" for the more English one of "Great;" therefore, in addressing the Officers the prefix "Grand" should not be applied, and as "Great" appears to be distinctive of the Prior and Sub-Prior only, the proper mode of address should be thus: The "Chancellor" of the Great Priory, &c. I am sure this mistake only requires to be pointed out to be corrected before the statutes are printed separately. If the Grand Master chooses to continue the word "Grand" for his own title, it rests with himself; but "Great Master" was also applied in ancient times.

I would still continue to remind you that although the Order is honoured by the patronage of the Queen, and presided over by our future Sovereign, it will be of little account if merely looked upon as an honorary and honourable society, to which we belong, if we do not perpetuate the sacred and noble principles handed down to us by entering on some practical path of usefulness.

V. D. S. A.

It may not be inappropriate, in conclusion, to explain the meaning of the initials, V. D. S. A., which has been frequently asked me. They stand for Veut—Dieu—Saint—Amour, which constantly recur in the Chivalric Rituals of the Order, and at pauses in the ceremonies, repeated by all present, similar to the "Kyrie" in the High Mass, and are also frequently placed at the head and termination of allocutions, letters, &c., &c., and sometimes with the cross patée between D. and S.

"Dieu, Amour, Concorde, Paix à tous. Voilà l'objet des leur travaux—V. D. S. A.—Voilà les crix des Chevaliers du Temple"—say the old Chronicles. "Love to God, unity and peace to all." Behold! the object of all their work; behold! the exclamation of the Knights of the Temple—"We will love the Most Holy God."

Brethren, with that admonition, I am ever, in the bonds of the Order,

Yours faithfully and fraternally,

W. J. B. MACLEOD MOORE, G.C.T.,

Great Prior of Canada,

Honorary Member "Abbey Boyle," Roscommon, and "Kilmahnam," Dublin, Preceptories of Ireland; and of the "Odo de St. Amand" Preceptory, Worcester, England; "Geoffrey de St. Aldemar," Toronto; "Hugh de Payens," Kingston, in Canada; as also St. John's Commandery, No. 4, Philadelphia, U.S., &c., &c., &c.

GENERAL GRAND CHAPTER OF THE UNITED STATES.

The Twenty-third Triennial Convocation of the General Grand Chapter of the United States was commenced at Buffalo, Tuesday, August 20, the Convocation being opened at St. James's Hall. The escort to the General Grand Chapter formed in procession.

The honour of a passing salute was given by the officers to the M.E. General Grand High Priest, Hon. Elbert H. English, when passing the Tiff House. As the rear of the column reached this point the carriages occupied by the members of the General Grand Chapter fell into the line.

On reaching the hall, the exercises opened promptly with an overture by the Union Cornet Band, following which, prayer was offered by the Rev. L. Van Bokkelen, D.D. Next, the following song of welcome, written by M. E. David F. Day, and arranged by Prof. Louis H. Plogsted, was rendered with a band accompaniment:

As old Niagara pours her tide,
Resistless, full and free,
Along our busy city's side
To swell the distant sea;
So, Brethren of the Royal Art,
The chosen and the true,
We give with one united heart
Our welcome unto you.

Ye come, as came old Israel's host
In good Josiah's time,
From Mamre's plain and Joppa's coast
To Zion's height sublime;
The East and West each other greet
In words of love divine—
In peace this morn together meet
The palm-tree and the pine.

With eager hands and hearts that move
As moves a mighty sea,
We offer you a brother's love,
And greetings "three times three;"
From thronging streets and opening doors
The acclamation comes:
Thrice welcome to our teeming shores,
Our altars and our homes.

At the conclusion of the singing, Hon. Geo. W. Clinton was introduced, and delivered the address of welcome.

The response of M. E. Comp. Elbert H. English, Gen. Grand High Priest, was everything to be expected from so able and distinguished a Mason and jurist. We quote the following:

M.E. Sir and Companion, Companions, Sir Knights, Ladies and Gentlemen:

We are much gratified to be welcomed here within the territorial jurisdiction of the M.E. Grand Chapter of the State of New York, in the cordial and complimentary terms in which you have been pleased to express such welcome.

Your Grand Chapter is among the oldest and strongest of the Royal Arch Unions, numbering upon its rolls over eighteen thousand members, good and useful men, and among them many distinguished Masons and citizens.

New York was present, as you have well remarked, when the General Grand Chapter was founded, gave it support in its infancy, and has faithfully adhered to it through all of its trials, as well as in its triumphs.

Two of her illustrious sons, Dewitt Clinton, your noble father, sir, and Edward Livingston, presided over its deliberations during a period of eighteen years, each one presiding three times three years. Their memories are enshrined in the hearts of all the Craftsmen—monuments more durable and more to be prized than the marble slabs that mark their resting-places.

We feel assured that the people of your great States are pleased that we are convened here, coming, as we do, on a peaceful mission, with purpose to benefit our fellow men. New York is an empire of itself, measuring 47,000 square miles of territory, occupied by four millions and a half of people—a million and a half more than the population of our whole country, when our forefathers rebelled against King George, fought the memorable battles of the Revolution, and established our free institutions. In Masonry, in agriculture, in commerce, in the arts, in jurisprudence and in statesmanship, New York has been a leading State; and her people have faithfully, and in spirit, as well as in letter, clung to the constitution ordained for a free people by our patriotic forefathers, and guarded with vigilance under all the trying events through which our country has passed, national liberty—which is liberty regulated by law.

We rejoice to visit, as pilgrims, the land of Kent, the father of American jurisprudence, and of Washington Irving, the father of American literature.

We are much delighted to be welcomed here by the generous Masons and citizens of Buffalo, a city sitting like a majestic queen on the shore of your inland sea, bathing her feet in its limpid waters, crowned with laurels of lake commerce, with 150,000 good-looking and busy children gathered about her—I say 150,000 children, because in 1870 they numbered nearly 118,000, and judging from her fruitfulness during preceding decades, I take it for granted that she has a large increase of her family in the last seven years—and her honoured and honourable Mayor, the father of all these children, may well be proud of his growing family, and deserves credit for keeping them measurably quiet during the recent disturbances. May God grant him bread to feed them bountifully in the future.

We stand uncovered, and pause with reverence, near the grave of our patriotic and lamented countryman, Millard Fillmore.

We have felt that we were welcome since we reached your city. By your address, sir, so aptly and happily expressed, we are confirmed in this impression. By the presence of this goodly company—this striking array of the local Royal Craft—by the bright eyes of beautiful ladies, blooming like the flowers of my own sunny land, we are eloquently told that we are welcome. By the enlivening and cheering strains of vocal and instrumental music, of surpassing melody and harmony, we are told that we are welcome. By the earnest appeals of the reverend Minister to Heaven, and to that God whom all true Masons worship for our protection and happiness, we are assured of our welcome. And by the nodding plumes and flashing swords of the gallant Templars, who have escorted us to this hall, we are finally and doubly assured of courtesy and hospitality while in your city.

These swords, however, do not mean war. They are but symbols, and indicate that the gallant Templars stand ever ready to defend and protect the helpless and innocent. But if the trumpet calls to war, these chivalric Knights would rally under their banners, and with stout beards and strong arms, do battle in the cause of justice, liberty, free thought, and freedom of conscience!

We are here, sir, as the representatives of thirty-five State Grand Chapters, and a number of subordinates, scattered over the American territories, and some beyond the deep seas. We also represent in general matters over 130,000 working Royal Arch Masons—men neither too indolent to be on the affiliation rolls nor too miserly to contribute small sums for the charities of the Order.

We represent principles as old as the rivers, and as firmly fixed as the mountains in their beds—aye, principles that will endure for ever—for faith is lost in sight, hope in fruition, but Charity, the synonym of Masonry, continues beyond the grave, through all eternity. Charity never faileth! When the Angel of the last day shall place one foot on the land and the other on the sea, and proclaim trumpet-tongued, that time shall be no more; and when the smouldering and pent-up fires that consume the heart of our fellow planet shall explode, and shiver it into atoms; and when the new earth shall appear, clothed in verdure, charity shall be its first inhabitant.

We represent the working-men of our country. In secular matters, we work on the farms, in the shops, at the counter, at the bedside, and the bar, navigate the rivers and plough the seas. And for the good of humanity, we work in the lodges, chapters, commanderies, councils, and consistories.

We come here from every section of our great country to shake hands with each other, improve ourselves in the noble art by an interchange of thoughts, by obtaining light one from another, and to consult upon such measures as may best promote the general prosperity of our institution.

At the conclusion of the G.G.H. Priest's address, the band played a selection from "Der Freischütz," and the benediction was pronounced by the Rev. L. J. Fletcher.

The General Grand Chapter was then duly opened with the solemn and dignified ritual used on this occasion. Rev. Comp. D. H. Muller, D.D., G.G. Chaplain, invoked the blessing of the Divine High Priest on this assemblage and its deliberations.

M.E. Comp. George Van Vloit, Grand High Priest of the State of New York, then heartily welcomed the General Grand Chapter to its hospitality, and predicted a most harmonious and interesting convocation, proffering the best efforts to make the session enjoyable and profitable, which was suitably responded to by M.E. Comp. English. A Committee on Credentials was then appointed, and the Grand Chapter was "called off" until three o'clock, at which hour it again assembled, and the Committee on Credentials reported the following officers and members of the 23rd Triennial Convocation.

Officers:—M.E. Comps. Elbert H. English, Ark., G.G.H.P.; John Frizzell, Tenn., D.G.G.H.P.; Robt. H. Bower, Iowa, G.G.K.; Alfred F. Chapman, Mass., G.G.S.; John McClellan, Mass., G.G. Treasurer; Christopher G. Fox, N.Y., G.G. Secretary; Noble D. Larner, D.C., G.G.C.H.; Henry Bostwick, Ky., G.G.R.A.C.; Rev. Darius H. Muller, N.Y., G.G. Chaplain; Jno. B. Hunter, N.Y., G.G. Sentinel.

Permanent Members:—M.E. Comps. John B. Lewis, N.Y., P.G.G.H.P.; James M. Austin, N.Y., P.G.G.H.P.; Josiah H. Drummond, Me., P.G.G.H.P.; Azariah T. C. Pierson, Minn., P.G.G.K.; Ezra S. Barnum, N.Y., P.G.G.S.; John Q. A. Fellows, La., P.G.G.S.; Martin Collins, Mo., P.G.G.S.

PRESENTATION TO BRO. BRADSTOCK.

On Tuesday evening last a very select company, numbering 37, assembled at the well-known old hostelry, the Falcon, Waltham Cross, in response to invitations to attend a complimentary dinner given to Bro. William Bradstock, who, for nearly 30 years was proprietor of that house, during which time he appears to have won golden opinions from all with whom he had to deal. A much larger company was expected, but an unfortunate time had been chosen for the dinner to take place, when most of the expected guests were away either at the seaside or on the moors. The chair was taken by Mr. W. Hammond (one of the oldest inhabitants), supported by Messrs. Bradstock, H. E. Cole, Dorman, Walklate, French, Gardner, Hearne (the new proprietor of the Falcon), and Bro. J. Tydeman (secretary of the presentation fund).

After the usual loyal toasts, the Chairman rose to propose the toast of the evening, "The Health of Bro. Wm. Bradstock," which he did in a few appropriate words, and at the same time took the opportunity to hand to Bro. Bradstock a testimonial, consisting of a gold watch, chain, locket, and key, which had been subscribed for by a number of friends with whom Bro. Bradstock had been connected in various ways.

The toast was received with enthusiasm, and was drunk with musical honours.

The present was then handed round for inspection, and was found to be a very handsome and valuable piece of jewellery. The inside of the watch case contained the following inscription:—"Presented to Mr. Wm. Bradstock, late of the Falcon Hotel, Waltham Cross, by his friends, as a token of esteem for the satisfactory manner in which he carried on the above business for nearly 30 years.—Sept., 1877." A similar inscription was engraved on the locket, while the reverse side contained a monogram, as also did the back of the watch. The key was embellished with Masonic emblems.

Bro. Bradstock, in responding, begged the indulgence of his friends, as he was no spokesman. Their kindness had placed him in a very proud position, and he could not but feel extremely grateful to them all. Bro. Bradstock then proceeded to give some particulars of his own history, commencing with the year 1813, when he was born only a few yards from the house in which he was now standing, his parents being honest and industrious, but poor, and able to give him but very little education and no trade, but they taught him what he always considered to be the three great principles of life—the fear of God, honesty, and industry.

Bro. J. Tydeman (the secretary of the presentation fund) then proceeded to give some particulars as to their financial position. He commenced by showing a bundle of letters which he had received from various friends expressing sympathy with the object, enclosing contributions, and regretting unavoidable absence. Some of these he read, including one from Mr. Anthony Trollope, dated from the Cape of Good Hope, and enclosing £3; and others from the three Messrs. Deacon, each enclosing contributions. The total amount of contributions, Bro. Tydeman said, amounted to £66 16s. 6d. He had paid £53 for the testimonial to Bro. Bradstock, and £10 for another to Mrs. Bradstock, leaving a balance of £3 16s. 6d. (Hear, Hear.)

The Chairman then proposed "The Health of the Ladies," coupled with the name of Mrs. Bradstock. At the same time he had to make another presentation consisting of a pair of ornaments, and he called upon those present to fill up their glasses in order to receive this toast, as it was the "cream of the evening." (Cheers.)

This toast was received with musical honours. The present consisted of a brooch and pair of earrings, in gold set with pearls. The brooch was inscribed as follows:—"Presented to Mrs. Jane Bradstock by a circle of friends, upon her and her husband, Mr. W. Bradstock retiring from business.—Sept., 1877."

Bro. Tydeman arose and said as his hearers would doubtless remember there was a balance of nearly £4 left, after paying for the presents. Out of this there were one or two necessary expenses to be paid for, but still there there would be money left in hand, and he proposed that this sum be expended in having an address illuminated on vellum, so that Bro. Bradstock might frame it and hang it in his room.

The proposition was seconded by the Chairman, and was, of course, carried unanimously.

Bro. Bradstock, in responding, said he could not now do more than thank his friends for their overwhelming kindness to him.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF SUSSEX.

The annual meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Ancient Free and Accepted Masons of Sussex was held at the Royal Pavilion, Brighton, on Tuesday. The Finance Committee assembled at a quarter past two o'clock, and the Lodge was opened soon after three.

The officers of the Provincial Grand Lodge present comprised the following:—R. W. Bros. Sir W. W. Burrell, Bart., M.P., Provincial Grand Master; W. John H. Scott, Deputy Prov. G. Master; T. Trollope, M.D., P.M. 40, Prov. S.G. Warden; C. J. Pocock, P.M. 271, Prov. J.G. Warden; Rev. E. Walker, P.M. 811, Prov. G. Chaplain; C. A. Woolley, P.M. 311, Prov. G. Registrar; V. P. Freeman, P.M. 732, Prov. Grand Secretary; R. Branwell, P.M. 271, Prov. G.S. Deacon; Joseph Dixon, P.M. 271, Prov. G. Dir. of Ceremonies; T. H. Cole, M.A., P.M. 40, Prov. G. Assist. Dir. of Ceremonies; Walter Smith, P.M. 732, Prov. G. Sword Bearer; A. King, 271, Prov. G. Organist; J. Eborall, P.M. 315, Prov. G. Pursuivant; C. Sandeman, P.M. 315; J. M. Kidd, P.M. 732, and T. S. Byass, P.M. 1465, G. Stewards; T. Hughes, Prov. G. Tyler.

The following members of Provincial Grand Lodge were also present:—Bros. Hyde Pullen, P.G.S.B.; R. W. H. Giddy; Bro. W. Challen, P.M. 315 and 114, P.P.G.S.B. George Smith, P.M., No. 8, P.P.S.G.D.; William Dawes P.M. No. 341, P.P.G.R.; William Marchant, P.P.G.R.D.C.; James William Stride, P.P.J.G. Warden; J. Terry, Sec., R.M.B. Institution, P.G.D.C., Herts; Thomas W. Paine, P.M. and Sec. 56, P.P.J.G. Deacon; Edward Carpenter, P.P.S.G. Deacon; George Smith, P.P.G. Pursuivant; Robert Crosskey, P.P.J.G.D.; Crawford J. Pocock, P.P.J.G.W.; William Robert Wood, P.P.S.G.W.; William Hudson, P.P.J. Deacon; P. R. Wilkinson, P.P.S.D.; W. H. Hallett, P.P.S.G.W.; W. Smeed, P.P.G.J.W.; Charles Hurley, G. Registrar and P.G. Secretary, Yarborough Lodge, and Chapter; George de Paris, P.P.G.S.D.; J. M. Cunningham, P.P.G.S.W.; S. Roberts Legg, P.P.G.S.B.; Richard Pidcock, P.P.A.D.C.

There were also present a numerous assemblage of brethren representing the various lodges in the province, and a number of distinguished brethren were present as visitors.

Prov. Lodge having been opened in due form, the Prov. G.S. read letters and communications he had received, amongst others, one from Bro. E. J. Furner, P.P.D.G.M., acknowledging the vote passed at the last Provincial Grand Lodge; from Bros. Sir A. Woods, Hervey, Kuhe (unwell), Tatham, &c., &c., expressing regret at inability to attend. After other formal business had been transacted a report was presented from the committee appointed to revise the bye-laws, together with a draft copy of such laws, the consideration of which led to considerable discussion, an amendment being proposed by Bro. Horsley to a particular law which required notice of proposition for consideration of the Provincial Grand Lodge to be sent in before the 20th of July in each year, Bro. Horsley contending that two months' notice was not requisite, and that by requiring such a long time much probable good might be prevented. He instanced the present Indian Famine and the recent earthquake wave on the coast of Chili, in both of which matters their sympathies might be enlisted, but this repressive legislation would prevent such matters being considered. If the present meeting had not the power to make a vote for such purpose he hoped exceptional steps would be taken to allow them to meet it. He moved an amendment altering the required time of the notice to thirty days. This was seconded by Bro. C. J. Smith, and supported by Bro. Dr. Tanner, Bro. Adc (who complained that the draft copies of bye-laws had not been placed in the hands of the members prior to this meeting by Bro. Dawes, and other brethren), and replied to by Bros. Woolley and J. H. Scott, who explained that the law, as proposed, was the same as had been found to work well for 24 years, and that its retention was necessary in order to facilitate the work of the Prov. G.S. Ultimately the amendment was rejected, and the committee's report was then unanimously adopted.

The Prov. G.S. then presented the report of the Finance Committee, recommending a vote of £100 from the funds of the Lodge to the Indian Famine Fund, which recommendation was unanimously adopted. The committee also expressed regret at the resignation through ill-health, by Bro. Tatham, of the office of Treasurer, and a recommendation that Bro. Crosskey should be chosen to fill the vacant post. This recommendation was subsequently unanimously endorsed by the lodge, on the motion of Bro. Challen, who highly eulogised the exertions of Bro. Crosskey, as displayed for many years past, and enlarged upon the fact that he had, by his exertions, risen to the highest post that his fellow townsmen could confer, that of High Constable of Lewes.

The Prov. G.S. presented his statistical report, showing that during the year seventy members had been initiated, twenty-eight had joined, and the present number of subscribing members was 754.

The R.W. Bro. Sir Walter Wyndham Burrell, Bart.,

M.P., then gave a short address. He observed that it must be most satisfactory to all the brethren to find a steady and continued prosperity in the Province, and to him it was most pleasing to find that Masons generally were performing the duties they had undertaken in a most admirable manner. He directed the attention of the Masters and Secretaries of lodges to the desirability of sending in the required returns by the prescribed time, for, unless they did this, the work of the Provincial Grand Secretary was greatly increased. He also hoped that brethren would in the future address all communications intended for him, through the Provincial Grand Secretary; by so doing they would save time and trouble, as he invariably referred all communications he received to that officer. Might the good feeling now existing be continued towards all, both at home and abroad—with regard to the latter he congratulated the brethren on the vote made to the Indian Famine Fund, and expressed a hope that it might please the G.A.O.T.U. soon to restore happiness and plenty to our suffering fellow subjects.

The Provincial Grand Master then installed the following brethren as his officers:—

J. H. Scott (re-appointed)	.....D. Prov. G.M.
J. Dixon	.....Prov. S.G.W.
C. P. Henty	.....Prov. J.G.W.
R. Crosskey	.....Prov. G. Treas.
Rev. H. M. Davy	.....Prov. G. Chap.
C. A. Woolley	.....Prov. G. Reg.
V. P. Freeman	.....Prov. G. Sec.
T. S. Byass	.....Prov. G.S.D.
T. N. Crouch	.....Prov. G.J.D.
G. A. Wallis	.....Prov. G.S. of W.
J. M. Kidd	.....Prov. G. D. of C.
C. Sandeman	.....Prov. G.A.D. of C.
G. Moren	.....Prov. G.S.B.
A. King	.....Prov. G. Organist.
W. Read	.....Prov. G.P.
A. R. Croucher	.....Prov. G. Steward.
J. Farncombe	.....Prov. G. Steward.
W. T. Nell	.....Prov. G. Steward.
W. G. Sharp	.....Prov. G. Steward.
T. Hughes	.....Prov. G. Tyler.

The Right W. the Prov. G.M. proposed—"That the sum of fifty guineas be voted from the funds of this Prov. Grand Lodge to complete the purchase of a Vice-Presidency in the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, the privileges of which to be exercised in perpetuity by the Deputy Provincial Grand Master for the time being." This was unanimously adopted.

The W. Deputy Prov. G.M. then moved the following resolution:—"That the sum of ten guineas be voted from the funds of this Provincial Grand Lodge to the 'Oliver Memorial Fund'." This also was carried unanimously, and Prov. Grand Lodge was then closed in the usual form.

The banquet took place in the Banqueting Room, under the presidency of the Rt. W. the Prov. G.M. Bro. Sir W. W. Burrell, Bart., M.P., supported by his officers and by about 80 of the brethren. The catering of Bros. Sayers and Marks, of the Western Road, Brighton, to whom everything had been entrusted, surpassed all their previous efforts, many and excellent even as these have been. A first-class selection of music was presented by a talented party of vocalists, conducted by Bro. Frank Elmore, including Bros. George Fox, Henry Taylor, and W. Ror. One word for the Stewards, Bros. C. Sandeman, J. M. Kidd, G. Moren, and T. S. Byop; thanks to their efficient arrangements, everything passed off admirably. The dessert, truly luxurious, was supplied by Bro. Nell, P.M. 315, one of the newly appointed Prov. Grand Stewards, by whom (and his partner, Balchin and Nell, of the Western Road, Brighton, and the Nurseries, Keymer), the tables were decorated with an elegant display of the most choice and beautiful flowers.

LODGE OF BENEVOLENCE.

The monthly meeting of the Lodge of Benevolence was held on Wednesday evening at Freemasons' Hall. Bro. Joshua Nunn, Senior Vice-President, occupied the chair as President; Bro. James Brett, Junior Vice-President, took the chair of Senior Vice-President; and Capt. N. G. Philips, Senior Grand Deacon, filled the chair of Junior Vice-President. Among the other brethren present were Bros. Col. Somerville-Burney, S. Rawson, P. Dist. Grand Master of China; J. M. Case, P.G.D.; W. Smith, C.E., P.G.S.; Griffiths Smith, P.G.S.; W. T. Howe, A.G.P.; C. A. Cottebrune, P.G.P.; William Stephens, J. M. Klenck, N. Bartlett, H. Murray, P.D.G.M., of China; H. Potter, Charles Atkins, W. Mann, Geo. Spinks, W.M. 1536; W. H. Perryman, W.M. 3; C. T. Barham, P.M. 754; H. Higgins, W.M. 1381; Chas. Daniel, W.M. 65; Thos. Smith, W.M. 30; R. H. Allen, W.M. 554; Josh. Geo. Defriez, W.M. 45; S. R. Speight, W.M. 147; W. J. Murlis, W.M. 1642; Samuel Walters, W.M. 700; Copeman William Fox, W.M. 1326; J. P. Cohen, W.M. 205; H. Massey, (Freemason) P.M. 619; John Hervey, G.S.; H. G. Buss, Assistant G.S., and A. A. Pendlebury.

Grants to the amount of £335, made at the last meeting of the Lodge of Benevolence, were first confirmed, after which the new cases were proceeded with. Of these there were only eleven on the list, and nine of them were relieved with a total sum of £133. This was made up of one £30; two £20 (£40); three £15 (£45); one £10; one £5; and one £3. Two cases were deferred.

The lodge was then closed.

In the letter of Bro. Capt. Portlock Dadson in our issue of the 8th inst., the name of the boy "Woon" was erroneously printed "Noon."

A Portrait of Bro. Hyde Clarke, LL.D., F.S.S., has been added to the collection at Guildhall, which was presented by the Clockmakers' Company.

NOTES ON ART, &amp;c.

The excavations at Nineveh have at length been authorised by the Sultan, who has given the necessary firman to Mr. Layard.

Big Ben began work again on Friday week, although the striking apparatus would not be in working order until the middle of this week.

MIDDLE TITIENS.—An operation was performed on Middle Titiens at Worthing last week. Considerable relief followed, and arrangements were made for her removal to London on Thursday, the 13th inst., which were carried out very satisfactorily. Mr. Harris, of Worthing, accompanied her, and very soon after her arrival Dr. Howell and Mr. Spencer Wells met him in consultation.—Medical Journal.

The story of the "Arabian Nights" has been translated into Bengalee, and is being printed by natives. The edition will be in eight volumes, and will be the largest work ever issued by the native press.

The first Belgian expedition to explore Central Africa sent by the International Association will start for Natal on the 18th prox. After making their arrangements at Natal the expedition will go on to Zanzibar and to Lake Tanganyika, and from thence will journey into the interior to establish the first station.

Monsieur Thiers is said to have left various posthumous works, which are to be published under the editorship of MM. Mignet and Barthélemy St. Hilaire. Amongst other works there are his personal memoirs, on which he has been engaged for years, a treatise on the distinction between Grecian and Roman art, a portion of a history of the Renaissance, and his long-looked for work on polemic and religious philosophy in which, on the authority of history, he refutes the doctrines of Darwin, Comte, Littré, Renan, and Spinoza, and which, it is said, is to afford a final answer to those who have termed him a "freethinker, or at least a Voltairian."

THE NOTTINGHAM UNIVERSITY BUILDINGS.—The ceremony of laying the foundation stone of the University buildings at Nottingham has been fixed for Thursday, the 27th inst. The ceremony will be performed at noon by the Mayor of the borough (Mr. John Warren Bowers), and subsequently there will be a public luncheon in the Albert-hall, at which Mr. Gladstone is expected to be present. Amongst the other guests who have accepted the invitation of the Mayor are Lord Belper (Lord Lieutenant of the county), Lord Carnarvon, the Duke of St. Alban's, and the Rev. G. F. Browne, secretary of the Cambridge University Commission. The cost of the buildings, including the land, will be £60,000. Of this sum an anonymous donor has contributed £10,000, and the remainder will be found by the Corporation, who have given the site. There will be lecture and class rooms for the promotion of the Cambridge University Extension Scheme, which it will be remembered was first incorporated at Nottingham, which has since been carried out successfully in several centres of industry. There will also be class rooms, laboratory, &c., for the use of the students in the science classes in connection with the local Mechanics' Institution, as well as rooms for the Free Library and the Natural History Museum. The architects are Messrs. Lockwood and Mawson, of London and Bradford.

A number of Arctic Relics has been presented to the Royal Artillery Institution, Woolwich, by Captain Feilden, who accompanied the recent Polar Expedition as naturalist. The collection contains reindeer skulls and antlers, a Greenland's harpoon, and a pair of snowshoes which belonged to the late Dr. Rae.

A NEW CITY.—At St. Alban's, recently, the Mayor, Mr. W. C. Smith, having received the letters patent for the creation of that town into a city, publicly proclaimed the new constitution. He was accompanied by other members of the Corporation, who wore robes of office. The Town Clerk read the charter to a large number of inhabitants, who were afterwards addressed by the Mayor and the rector of the Abbey. There was a luncheon subsequently in the Town Hall, when the Mayor congratulated the citizens on the honour conferred upon St. Alban's, and proposed the toast of "Success to the City."

BRITISH MUSEUM.—We are glad to hear that seven of the engraved stones, recently stolen from the British Museum, including one of the large ones with a regal head and Pehlevi inscription, have been returned by the authorities of the Hague.—Athenæum.

Some of our contemporaries have reported how a stray Whitehead torpedo had been picked up in Portsmouth Harbour, and have drawn attention to the possibility of a few ships and some hundreds of lives being lost by contact with similar straying projectiles. No such disaster could occur. The torpedoes with which practice is made from the torpedo ships and launches are in every case dummies. Every part is perfect except their heads, which are invariably empty. In this case the only loss which could possibly have happened would have been the loss of the weapon itself, which, had it not been discovered, might have floated out to sea.

The cylinder containing Cleopatra's Needle is now afloat in deep water, and the towing to this country will shortly commence.

Constitutions of the Ancient Fraternity of Free and Accepted Masons, containing the Charges, Regulations, E.A. Song, &c. A copy should be in the possession of every brother. It may be obtained for 2s. at the office of the Freemason, or will be sent post free to any part of the United Kingdom on receipt of twenty-five penny stamps. Address, Publisher, 198, Fleet-street, London.—ADVT.

Masonic and General Tidings.

LONDON MASONIC CLUB LODGE OF INSTRUCTION.—This lodge, which has been adjourned for the summer months, will resume its meetings on Monday next, the 24th, at 6 o'clock p.m., and will meet regularly on the 2nd and 4th Monday in every month throughout the season. Brethren can visit by introduction of a member of the lodge, without being a member of the club.

The consecration of a new lodge at Walton, one of the suburbs of Liverpool, will take place next month. The name selected is the Wilbraham Lodge, and will be No. 1713, on the registry of the Grand Lodge. The meeting place will be the Institute, Sefton-street, Walton, and the first leaders of the lodge will be Bros. C. W. Cayzer, W.M. designate; F. J. Pentin, S.W. designate; and G. Fry, the J.W. designate. The ceremony of consecration will probably be performed by the R.W.P.G.M. (Bro. Lord Skelmersdale), on or about the 4th Oct., the day after the Prov. Grand Lodge meeting at Southport. There is every prospect of the complete success of the new lodge, as the brethren identified with its origination have the good of Masonry sincerely at heart.

The Installation meeting of the King Harold Lodge, No. 1327, will be held on the 11th proximo, at the Britannia Inn, Waltham New Town. Brethren are invited, and can be supplied with banquet tickets at 10s. 6d. Bro. J. Tydeman S.W. having been unanimously elected, will be installed W.M.

THE SURREY MASONIC HALL COMPANY LIMITED.—Notice dated September 19th has been given by Bro. H. A. Dubois, Secretary to this Company that an Extraordinary General Meeting of the Shareholders will be held at the Surrey Masonic Hall, Camberwell, on Thursday, the 27th day of September, 1877, at 6 o'clock p.m., for the purpose of considering, and, if deemed expedient, of passing the following Resolutions on one of them, viz.:—That it has been proved to the satisfaction of the company that it cannot, by reason of its liabilities, continue its business, and that it is advisable to wind-up the same. That a Liquidator, or Liquidators, be appointed to wind-up the affairs of the company and distribute its property.

GREAT CITY LODGE OF INSTRUCTION, No. 1426.—The ceremony of installation will be worked in the above lodge, at the Masons' Hall Tavern, Masons' Avenue, Coleman-street, on Thursday the 27th inst., at 6.30 p.m. Bro. Lux, W.M. 1426, will be the installing officer.

The brethren of Aberfeldy, N.B., gave H.R.H. Prince Leopold a hearty reception on the occasion of his passing through on Friday week, on his way to Taymouth Castle.

A new application of the term "Pan Anglican" has been placed before us by Bro. C. F. Matier, P.G.S.W. of Greece, P.G.S. of Scotland, etc., who has patented a very novel railway key which can be carried in the waistcoat pocket and will open any railway door in the Kingdom.

URBAN CLUB.—An "at home," presided over by Mr. J. Jeremiah, was held on Friday week, at St. John's Gate, and it was well attended by the members and their friends. The musical and reciting arrangements were well carried out by Messrs. J. J. Bacra, W. G. Church, G. Graham, A. Bouchette, C. F. Drury, &c.

In answer to the numerous letters that the publisher has received from brethren in Liverpool, we beg to state that the Freemason is to be obtained in Liverpool on Friday afternoon at 5 o'clock, at the Office, 2, Monument place; at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street; and at the Landing Stage.

THE INDIAN FAMINE.—Up to Thursday night the Lord Mayor's Fund amounted in the whole to upwards of £192,500, of which £155,000 has already been placed at the disposal of the Madras Committee.

MANCHESTER.—For the information of the fraternity in Manchester, the Publisher begs to state that the Freemason may now be obtained at Oldridge's, Bridge-street, Manchester, on Friday evening at 6 o'clock.

The Liverpool contributions to the Indian Famine Relief Fund have now reached the very handsome sum of nearly £10,300. At a meeting of the Manchester Committee last week a resolution was passed requesting the local authorities of Lancashire towns to head their subscriptions "The Lancashire Fund," so that the subscriptions from this county may come under one general head. Lancashire has before shown what she can do in the way of charity, and "so she can again," notwithstanding bad commercial times.

Forty Scottish kings, two Irish kings, and one French king, two Irish princes, besides innumerable chieftains and ecclesiastics, are said to have been buried in Iona, Scotland.

In honour of the visit of Prince Leopold there has been a variety of entertainments at Taymouth Castle. The Prince has written to Mr. Rankin, chairman of the reception committee at Aberfeldy, a letter in which he says he admired the decorations of the town and was touched and gratified by the compliments paid to him. The Duke of Connaught arrived at Balmoral on Saturday afternoon, travelling by ordinary train. It is expected that he will also visit the Earl and Countess of Breadalbane at Taymouth shortly.

On Tuesday last, a meeting of the Prov. Grand Lodge of Sussex was held at the Pavilion, Brighton, presided over by Sir W. W. Burrell, Bart., R.W.P.G.M. During the proceedings, the sum of £100 was unanimously voted to the Indian Famine Fund.

The Prov. Grand Lodge of North Wales and Shropshire, have, through Sir Wm. Watkin Wynn, M.P., R.W.P.G.M., subscribed £50 to the Indian Famine Fund. The amount was sent to the Lord Mayor on Saturday.

A new Masonic lodge will be consecrated at Grand-over-sands, Lancashire, on Wednesday, the 26th inst., at the hour of high twelve. The lodge will be in the West Lancashire district, and will be named the Sir John Brogden Lodge.

The Provincial Grand Lodge of West Lancashire will be held in the Town Hall, Southport, at twelve o'clock at noon, on Wednesday, the 3rd October next. The R.W. Prov. G.M., Lord Skelmersdale, will preside. On the conclusion of the business the brethren will proceed to Holy Trinity Church, where a sermon will be preached by the Prov. G. Chaplain.

Madame Worrell-Duval announces a Grand Evening Concert to take place at the Horns Assembly Rooms, Kennington, on Thursday Oct. 11th, when several well-known artists will appear.

ALL SAINTS LODGE, No. 1716.—A full report of the consecration of the above lodge will appear in our next issue.

Bro. Wm. Bradstock of the King Harold Lodge, No. 1437, Waltham Cross, has been presented by a number of friends with a testimonial, in the form of a valuable gold watch and chain.

Bro. Edgar Anderson, the Dramatic reader, takes a benefit at the Surrey Masonic Hall, on Friday, the 5th prox., on which occasion a talented company will give a grand costume recital.

WHAT IT MAY COME TO.—William Sikes was again brought up on Tuesday before the magistrate at Bow-street charged with stealing a handkerchief. Mr. Hodges prosecuted, instructed by the Treasury, and the prisoner was defended by Mr. Montgomery, Mr. Wiggins, and Mr. Wilkinson. The Bench was crowded with Dukes, and several Bishops found places at the table usually reserved for solicitors. The first witness called was Charles Bates, alias "the Artful Dodger," who is now undergoing a term of imprisonment at Millbank. The witness wore the usual convict's garb; his hair was parted down the centre, and he appeared to be a person of remarkable intelligence and some education. He deposed as follows, examined by Mr. Hodges:—Knew the prisoner perfectly well. He was called "the Brain Spiller." (Laughter.) Supposed he was called that because he broke skulls. (Roars of laughter.) He saw the prisoner take the handkerchief. There was no doubt about the matter. Cross-examined by Mr. Montgomery.—He had been in prison on and off for several years. He had been charged with robbing his mother, stealing from his father, and trying to defraud his grandmother. He had also been charged with forging the names of seven-and-twenty different people. He supposed some of the charges were true. (Laughter.) He knew that he had been convicted on all of them. (Roars of laughter.) Mr. Montgomery.—Now, Sir, answer me this question. Do you think a convict's word is to be believed before that of an honest man? Bates (indignantly).—That is a most improper question, and I appeal to the Court. (Applause.) Let me tell my learned friend that an honest heart may beat under a prison waistcoat, and long hair does not always mean business aptitude, national honour, and hardworking integrity. (Loud applause.) Mr. Montgomery (with great warmth).—You must not call me your learned friend. Bates.—I retract the "learned." (Roars of laughter.) Cross-examination continued.—I have been tried for murder. I got off on an alibi. It was certainly rather crooked. (Shouts of laughter, in which the Bench and Bar joined heartily.) My maternal aunt did not like me before her death. I suppose she objected to me because I put some poison in her tea. (Laughter.) She found me out the first time, but the poison found her out the second. (Roars of laughter.) The money was paid by the insurance company. I had insured her life for £500. The prisoner had none of the proceeds. Cross-examined by Mr. Wiggins.—The handkerchief I saw the prisoner take was a cotton one. That I would swear. It was not made of Indian straw. Of that I am certain. Cross-examined by Mr. Louis George.—Until I was sent to prison I was an innocent little boy. My parents took great pains with me. I was their hope and pride. I have always regarded the prisoner with feelings of affection. In my opinion he is a most respectable person, and is quite incapable of stealing a handkerchief. Re-examined by Mr. Hodges.—I am quite sure the prisoner took the pocket-handkerchief. I saw him take it. The theft occurred in the broad daylight. There could be no doubt about it. Mr. Hodges then informed the magistrate that, although this was a preliminary inquiry, it would be necessary for the Crown to call 42 more witnesses. He was sorry to say that the case might take up some time, and therefore he would suggest that arrangements should be promptly made to allow for the Christmas, the Easter, and the Midsummer holidays. The magistrate, after expressing an opinion that no time had been wasted, promised to consider the matter during the adjournment, and remanded the prisoner (for the forty-second time) until Thursday.—Punch.

COSMOPOLITAN MASONIC CALENDAR FOR 1878.

W. Masters and Secretaries of Lodges, Chapters, &c., are respectfully informed that in order to ensure complete accuracy in the above, printed forms have been forwarded to them for supplying particulars of time and place of meeting. If such have not yet reached their hands, the Publisher requests that they would kindly call at the meeting place of the lodge &c., and fill up and return the form, in order that the particulars of their meetings may be correctly inserted. All communications in this matter should be addressed at once to the Publisher, 198, Fleet-street, E.C.

IMPORTANT NOTICE.

COLONIAL and FOREIGN SUBSCRIBERS are informed that acknowledgments of remittances received are published in the first number of every month.

It is very necessary for our readers to advise us of all money orders they remit, more especially those from the United States of America and India; otherwise we cannot tell where to credit them.

TO ADVERTISERS.

The FREEMASON has a large circulation in all parts of the Globe, its advantages as an advertising medium can therefore scarcely be overrated.

ADVERTISEMENTS to ensure insertion in current week's issue should reach the Office, 198, Fleet-street, by 12 o'clock on Wednesdays.

TO OUR READERS.

The FREEMASON is a sixteen-page weekly newspaper, price 2d. It is published every Friday morning, and contains the most important, interesting, and useful information relating to Freemasonry in every degree. Annual Subscription in the United Kingdom, Post free, 10/6. P.O.O.'s to be made payable at the Chief Office, London.

NOTICE.

To prevent delay or miscarriage, it is particularly requested that ALL communications for the FREEMASON, may be addressed to the Office, 198, Fleet-street, London.

Answers to Correspondents.

Panmure Lodge, 720; Lewis Lodge, 872; Earl Carnarvon Lodge, 1489; St. Augustine's Chapter, 779.

A letter by Maskelyne on the recent vote of the Grand Orient of France will appear in our next.

W. (Manchester).—On the whole we have thought it better not to publish your letter. Your allusions would be known in your locality, and we know nothing of the matter, which seems to be purely personal. We have far too much of personality in Freemasonry just now.

Births, Marriages, and Deaths.

[The charge is 2s. 6d. for announcements, not exceeding four lines, under this heading.]

BIRTHS.

BRODIE.—On the 16th inst., at Innerwick, Scotland, the wife of J. H. Brodie, No. 1, Gloucester-place, Hyde-park, of a daughter.

HAYTER.—On the 13th inst., at the Homestead, Belmont Park, Lee, Kent, the wife of Frank Hayter, of a daughter.

WEST.—On the 17th inst., at 2, George's-villas, Forest-hill, the wife of C. Spencer West, Esq., of a son.

WINSLOW.—On the 19th inst., at Bear Canon, Colorado, the wife of James Winslow, Esq., late 106th L.I., of a son.

DEATHS.

DOCWRA.—On the 11th inst., at Colchester, Hannah, the beloved wife of the late William Docwra, of Stanford Rivers, in her 70th year.

MASON.—On the 15th inst., at Kingston Villa, Sydenham-park, Alfred S. Mason, aged 66 years.

THOMAS.—On the 7th inst., at 58, Buckingham Palace-road, Mr. H. M. Thomas, aged 58.

YOUNG.—On the 16th inst., at 17, Jenner-road, Stoke Newington, William Thomas Young, the only surviving son of William and Anne Young, in his 23rd year.

THE GRAND ORIENT OF FRANCE.

"Alea jacta est." Yes, the Rubicon is passed, and the French Freemasons in Grand Orient assembled, have "burnt" their boats and their "bridges" with a vengeance! By 135 lodges to 76, and by a large majority, the Grand Orient, in a most noisy gathering, has taken out the "Belief in God" from the Constitutions, and has substituted for it "La Solidarité Humaine," which may mean anything or nothing, and which to English minds, has a most unpractical meaning. But so it is, and we have now to deal with a "fait accompli." We have received and read Bro. Hubert's Chaine d'Union with deep and heartfelt regret, though we are glad to note that Bro. Hubert voted in the minority, and terms the vote "une grande faute." We, remembering Talleyrand's "mot," are prepared even to say "une crime"—yes, a crime against Cosmopolitan Freemasonry. Whatever may be the results, and we fancy they will be serious enough, for French Freemasonry, their best friends can only say, "Tu a voulu, Georges Dandin," though they may be inclined to add, "Diable, qu'allez vous faire dans cette galere?" According to our views, the folly of the act is only equalled by its perversity. In the face of a powerful opposition, in the power of virulent opponents, the Grand Orient has adopted a resolution, by a large majority, which can only be productive to it of present disaster, of future defeat. For in so acting it leaves its own vantage ground and high position to descend into the stormy arena of present turmoil and political passions. The French Freemasons in promulgating a party cry as their motto, and refusing to acknowledge the name of T.G.A.O.T.U. in their Constitutions, have assumed a position utterly without precedent in the annals of Freemasonry, and most antagonistic to its great and genial principles. How can any Anglo-Saxon Freemason enter a lodge henceforth, in France or Belgium, from which not only the Bible is banished, but the governing laws of which no longer retain the acknowledgment even of a Theistic reverence for the Most High. Thus the great foundation of Freemasonry is undermined, its mighty and universal link is rent in twain. We hardly like, to-day, to go into the great questions, and the certain consequences arising inevitably from this, to our view, act of party spirit and suicidal folly, but we will recur to the subject next week. We are anxious not to do injustice to the actual motives of those who have brought about this revolution in French Freemasonry, but we cannot be insensible to the fact, that under present circumstances the words and actions of French Freemasons, as well as the position of the Grand Orient of France, cease to be defensible by English brethren, who value aright and love sincerely the great and distinguishing principles of true Cosmopolitan Freemasonry.

THE CLAIMS OF FREEMASONRY ON FREEMASONS.

There is a very mistaken notion afloat just now, amid some careless observers, and some weak brethren, namely that the ties of Freemasonry over-ride the duties and responsibilities which the law determines and social safety demands. Some apparently suppose that because a man is a Freemason and a brother, he has a claim on another brother, even in situations of questionable proceedings, and under circumstances of hyper-illegal association. We emphatically deny that any such Masonic obligation exists, or any such Masonic teaching can be found or approved of in our best authorities, in the traditions of the Craft, or the written or unwritten laws of Freemasonry. Freemasonry is a legal as well as a loyal Order, and always asserts the predominant authority of the Ordinances of the Realm, of the binding obligations of the supreme legislature and the statute and common law of the land. It is well to note this special teaching of our loyal, patriotic, and benevolent Order, as it is the best and only answer to some fallacies which seem to exist in the public mind at the present moment. In the enquiry into the conduct of certain detective officers, one of the accused is said to have used a Masonic sign for the purpose either of intimidation or "squaring." Very properly, such foolish conduct, if truly stated, had no effect, and no Freemason is bound, under such circumstances, to recognize the claims of a brother for the purpose of fraud, or any other purpose whatever, in order to evade the law, the claims of justice, or baffle the efforts of the police. A Freemason is only bound to assist his brother legally, fairly, above board, only those who have a "fair claim" on his aid, in fact, and in no case, under no circumstances, can he properly, or should he in any degree antagonize the law of the land, as he is, as a Freemason, bound to obey implicitly those enactments which are devised and upheld for the safety, happiness, and well-being of us all. Just as we carefully provide that all the rulers of our lodges should be law-abiding men, and no law-breaker can be a W.M., so we understand that if Masonic sympathy and legal duty come into contact, we are to remember that we were patriots before we were Freemasons, citizens of our great country before we were enrolled as members of the "Mystic Tie." This, in fact, applies to Freemasonry everywhere, as there is no possible claim on any Mason to do, on any ground, what is illegal, or what is contrary to public safety. We quoted in our last an amusing extract from an American paper, by which it seems a judge in that country, to whom a prisoner appealed, as a Freemason, increased the fine for social misconduct, because, as he truly observed, the accused, as a Freemason, ought to have known how to behave himself better. The fact of being a Freemason is no proper plea to obtain the commiseration or obstruct the discharge of the proper functions of the officers of justice, and we trust that we have heard the last of that mistaken teaching which would imply or proclaim anything contrary to what we now advance. Freemasonry knows nothing of disobedience to law, or of the tricks and chicanery of the astute and law-defying, and it would be a lasting reproach on our true principles, and a standing discredit to our ancient Craft, if it could really be supposed for one moment by any one that Freemasonry ever seeks to screen the culprit or to throw the ægis of its fraternal sympathy and protection over the rogue, the swindler, the slanderer, the rebel, or the thief.

COLLECTION IN OUR LODGES FOR THE INDIAN FAMINE.

We alluded in our last to a proposal suggested in a lodge to make a lodge collection at one shilling a head for the Indian Famine. We also mentioned the willingness of our Publisher to act as Treasurer of the Fund, and to hand over the sums so collected to the Lord Mayor, if it should so suit the convenience of our good brethren. We offered also to print a special column of such receipts with the name of the lodge sending the amount, as a useful and honourable record of Masonic benevolence. We venture to think the offers we then made worthy of the attention of our numerous lodges and brethren. It is quite clear that the famine is still assuming most alarming proportions, and every effort should be made to assist the fund now so happily growing, and so seasonably commenced, under the friendly and distinguished auspices of the Lord Mayor. We feel sure that no words of ours are needed to point out the greatness of the crisis and the need of succour. Some of our worthy correspondents may indeed say that they are able to send their contributions direct to the Mansion House, and do not need any intermediary, but it is for the very purpose of encouraging small sums, on the principle that "every mickle makes a muckle," and above all to provide a Masonic Record of the efforts of our lodges and brethren, that our publisher, always wishful to advance the cause of Masonry, throws open the otherwise crowded columns of the Freemason, to a weekly list of lodge collections, or the offerings of individual brethren. For this is a work in which all can take part, a labour of love in which all can share, and as the wants of a suffering and dying community are overpowering just now, so as it appears to us, we say it with all deference. Following the good example of Grand Lodge, should proportionally be the generous contributions of our lodges and brethren.

THE RECENT CATASTROPHE IN THE CHANNEL.

How wonderful and how appalling are the contrasted scenes of life. This world of ours, which rises to labour and refreshment, and life and emotion each morning, and goes to rest each night in tranquil confidence, apparently, that all is as it should be, is often the theatre of the most startling episodes, the most pathetic events. Amid the struggles and turmoils of existence, and the noise of competing crowds, amid the onward course of mankind, every now and then, a mournful catastrophe moves our innermost souls, and seems to witness full-voiced, indeed, if unheeded by us, to the littleness and impotence of man, and the uncertainty and insecurity of all things here below. Neither science nor skill, nor courage, nor the noblest efforts of any of us, are able to ward off those fearful visitations which every now and then break in on our perhaps too easy life, with the resistless energy of awakened sympathy, for some suffering, dying, departed fellow-creatures. Yes, the contingencies and the catastrophes of life are both serious and awful in the highest degree. Let us take the last of these mournful occurrences. Two vessels are going down the channel calmly and peacefully; one was the "Avalanche," Captain Williams, from London, to Wellington, New Zealand, having on board 63 passengers, and a crew of 34; the other was the "Forest," of Windsor, Nova Scotia, Captain Lockhart, returning in ballast. Both were full-rigged iron ships, the former of 1100 tons, the latter of 1500 tons. About 9.30 on Wednesday evening, 12th inst., the two vessels were beating down Channel, but on opposite tacks, the Avalanche being on the port tack and the Forest on the starboard. When about a dozen miles off Portland, and with scarcely any warning, the Forest came in collision with the Avalanche, striking her between the main and mizen masts. The force of the collision was so great that in less than five minutes the emigrant ship gave three plunges and then sank, carrying with her the whole of her crew save three, the third mate and two able seamen. The night was so dark that it was almost impossible to discern the mass of human beings who were struggling for life in the water below, but the survivors say they shall never forget the scene. The cries of men, women, and children for aid were heartrending. Some had managed to scramble on deck as soon as the Avalanche was struck, but others went down with her. The cries for help were heard on board of the Forest, though the crew were not able to render them the slightest aid. It was soon found that the Forest had suffered severely from the effects of the collision, and was in a very leaky condition, the water gaining on her so fast that at last, in order to save their own lives, the crew had to abandon her. For this purpose three boats were launched, and into these frail craft the whole of the crew of the Forest, as Captain Lockhart supposed, together with the three men belonging to the Avalanche, took their places. Captain Lockhart was saved, but the majority of the crew of the Forest also perished. Fourteen Portland Fishermen most gallantly went out in their "lerrets" to endeavour to secure the boats, but were only able to save one. Only twelve men remain to tell the tale of that terrible collision. Every passenger on board the Avalanche has perished together with the Captain. Thus not one passenger has been saved from the Avalanche, and only the Third Mate and two seamen; while of the crew of the Forest, so far as known, only Captain Lockhart, the Mate, Steward, and six seamen are saved. Can words depict or can the imagination represent a more frightful and more sudden overthrow of all men's best hopes and bold endeavours? Many of the passengers of the ill-fated Avalanche were going out, it seems, to settle in New Zealand. Some were returning to their adopted home, happy, wealthy, and prosperous, and none who were on board could have dreamt for one moment that their end was so nigh, that so sad a termination of all earthly plans, and purposes was hovering over them. And yet so it was, amid no doubt their happy and probably joyous anticipations of a prosperous voyage and of good days to come. Those of us who have been at sea, will probably realize best the awfulness of the event, when we remember that from their last meal, in all probability, they were hastily summoned to hear in a moment, in the "twinkling of an eye," the crash of the collision and the rush of the pitiless waves—for them, alas! such sounds and sights were but the sad omen of the end of existence, the close of their earthly voyage, the passing away for evermore of life, and trust, and joy, and gladness, happiness and affection for them and theirs. Such events should not be passed over by us without a few words of serious thought; they bear a message for us all "who have ears to hear." But as we do not profess to preach sermons in the Freemason, but simply to suggest serious consideration, we will only remark, as Freemasonry always teaches us, that this life is but the portal to another and a better, and so the trust and faith of the true Freemason always are, that amid all those scenes and sights of our lower world, the Good Star Hope bids us lift up our minds one and all to another and a better world, in which the trials and calamities of to-day are alike unheard of and unknown.

THE GRAND LODGE OF ITALY.

Dear Bro. Parkinson,—
You were so good on a former occasion as to answer a query in the Freemason with respect to the Grand Lodge of Italy, and I venture to trouble you with another to-day.

In the debate in the French Grand Orient, the "Commission" asserted that the Grand Lodge of Italy had adopted a similar resolution with the one proposed and carried, for the removal of the name of God from the Constitutions.

As I believe, the statement in question is unfounded, in justice to the Italian Grand Lodge I think it well publicly to call your kind attention to it.

I am, yours fraternally,

THE EDITOR OF THE FREEMASON.

FREEMASONRY IN FRANCE AND BELGIUM.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

What are English or American Freemasons to do in France and Belgium, now that the two Grand Orients have not only taken the Bible out of the lodges, but have voted out the name of God from their Constitutions? I, for one, equally object to their political motto, "Liberté, Egalité, Fraternité," as utterly unmasonic, because political.

Yours fraternally,

OBSERVER.

COMPLETION OF THE INSTALLATION ENGRAVING.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I have much pleasure in announcing the completion of the Installation Engraving; as by the time this letter appears in your columns I shall (D.V.) have returned to London with the finished plate, ready for the hands of Messrs. McQueen, the printers, of Tottenham Court-road.

I have been for nearly the last five weeks incessantly occupied with the engraver in the necessary revision consequent on a work of such magnitude (as far as the number of portraits are concerned), and I sincerely hope that the result will generally receive favourable approval.

If all goes well, in your next issue I trust the Craft generally will have an opportunity of reading your own verdict on the work.

I am, dear Sir and Brother, faithfully and fraternally yours,

EDWARD J. HARTY.

MASONIC SECRECY.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

As a good deal is often unjustly and unwisely said against Masonic secrecy, I think that we should always remember the noble words of Franklin, which are, as they appear to me, a good answer, alike to unjust allegation, and idle fault-finding:—

"Freemasonry, I admit, has its secrets. It has secrets peculiar to itself; but of what do they principally consist? They consist of signs and tokens, which serve as testimonials of character and qualifications, which are only conferred after a due course of instruction and examination. These are of no small value. They speak an universal language, and act as a postscript to the attention and support of the initiated in all parts of the world. They cannot be lost so long as memory retains its power.

Let the possessor of them be expatriated, shipwrecked, or imprisoned; let him be stripped of everything he has got in the world, these credentials remain. They have stayed the hand of the destroyer; they have softened the asperities of the tyrant; they have mitigated the horrors of captivity; they have subdued the rancour of malevolence, and broken down the barriers of political animosity. On the field of battle, in the solitudes of the uncultivated forest, or in the busy haunts of the city, they have made friends men of the most hostile feelings. The most distant regions and the most diversified conditions rush to the aid of each other, and feel special joy and satisfaction that they have been able to afford relief to a brother Mason."

I am, dear Sir and Brother, yours fraternally and obediently, SECRETUS.

MOTHERS-IN-LAW.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,

In her anxiety to "turn the tables," your worthy "Sister and Mother-in-law" (rather an odd combination of relationship, by the way, necessitating some study of the "Tables of Kindred and Affinity") seems to me to have tilted them so far that they have turned right over; in other words, "shifted the saddle on to the wrong horse"—or rather mare; for she is the wrong mother-in-law altogether. Your able delineator of character said nothing about Mrs. Jenkinson's "mother-in-law," it was Mr.'s that was a trifle objectionable.

Badinage, however, apart; to take the question seriously that your sister and mother-in-law has put—let me ask her if it does not smack very strongly of selfishness, this attempting, after having gratified her own matrimonial instincts, to indefinitely delay the happiness of the young folks? No one, least of all the young couple, would, I suppose, care to go to the home of the young man's mother, at least if there existed in her such a spirit towards the future bride as is shown in her letter—but, as I take it, your writer's remarks referred to the uninvited appearance of the mother-in-law in the married son's own household. Your little description was, I imagine, in fun, but the letter of your "Sister and Mother-in-law" is so suggestive that I should certainly advise her son (if she have one meditating matrimony) to "mark, learn, and inwardly digest" her advice, to "let her go to her grave in peace." Indeed, if she made up her mind for a speedy journey thither, I do not suppose that the son in question would wish to thwart her for a moment.

Yours sincerely,

THE FATHER OF SONS AND DAUGHTERS.

Reviews.

"The First Page of a Lodge History."

One of the most interesting studies of the Masonic Student is unearthing from the dust of ages the records of the past of our lodges. Much that is of interest might have been preserved, and much trouble and labour spared, if the praiseworthy course adopted by the Corinthian Lodge (Thames, New Zealand) had been in vogue in by-gone years; in this case we recommend it to our brethren for use in the future.

Some little time back we noticed the consecration of this promising lodge, and we have just now received that which calls forth our previous remarks, a little book containing the account of the foundation and consecration of the lodge. Not only will it be valuable as a record of its history in the future, but it is particularly interesting to us here to-day as showing us the remarkably earnest and careful way in which Masonry is worked in our far-off colonies.

After the details of the opening ceremonies, we come to a fine oration delivered by Bro. the Rev. James Hill, R.W.M., in which, after laying down the ruling principles of the Craft, he thus shows its symbolical excellences: "In accordance with that beauty that strikes the eye and awakens pleasure—that beauty of cornices and mouldings and columns, of light and shade, of golden tints—let us seek to acquire that moral beauty, the beauty of mind and heart and life, which truth and moral principle alone can impart; and of which all external beauty, even of the highest kind, is but a faint resemblance. These are the foundations of our principles, the real significance of our symbols, and by the careful resemblance of them we shall be enabled to be faithful to the solemn trust which has been committed to our hands."

The Installation came next; then the Institution of Officers; after which the brethren proceeded to a special service in St. George's Church, when an earnest and beautiful sermon was preached by the Rev. C. M. Nelson, vicar of St. Paul's Cathedral Church, Auckland, and Chaplain to the Bishop, Acting Chaplain of the day.

Our rev. Brother took as his text Heb. viii. 1: "Let brotherly love continue," upon which he based a stirring discourse on the duties of Freemasons to their Order, themselves, and their neighbours. "Worthy and beloved brethren," said he, "may we all as Freemasons remember that 'brotherly love' is the cement of our Order, binding us one and all together, and without it our system must cease to exist except in name. The whole human family we should regard as our species, and in this way recognise it both as our highest duty and highest privilege to aid, support, and protect each other. From such 'brotherly love' naturally springs 'relief.' Love unites us, and love further leads us to soothe the unhappy, to relieve the poor and afflicted, and to restore peace, as much as in us lies, to the mourner who pines in the desolate sorrow of bereavement. And 'truth' is our foundation principle—the truth of God Himself and of His revealed Word and will. Let, then, a few words from that Book of God's truth, spoken by way of conclusion, considered and entertained in the spirit of real brotherly love, move your hearts and hands to afford relief in the way now to be offered and presented to you." And with some of the living words of charity out of the Grand Old Book, Worshipful D. Grand Chaplain concluded a touching appeal (which was liberally responded to) for the "Ladies' Benefit Society."

A choice banquet, followed by toasts and responses, songs, anthems, and choruses, finishing with "Auld Lang Syne" brought this ever to be remembered day to a peaceful and happy conclusion.

THE GRAND ORIENT OF FRANCE.

The recent "Couvent" of the Grand Orient of France, which opened on the 10th and closed on the 15th instant, has ended, in our opinion, in giving one of the greatest blows to French Freemasonry which it has ever received. The lodges, by 135 to 76, and the Grand Orient, by a large majority, have determined to suppress the mention of the name of God. Whereas formerly belief in God and the immortality of the soul were publicly recognised as the great basis of French Freemasonry, now, the Second Section of Article 1 is to be reformed to this effect, "Elle a pour principe la liberté absolue de conscience, et la solidarité humaine," whatever that may mean. The article has this addition, we believe by Bro. St. Jean, "Elle regard la liberté de conscience comme un droit propre à chaque personne, et n'exclut personne pour ses croyances." By this change, it is quite clear, Atheists may be admitted, and no doubt will be. In fact, it is about as hurtful and violent a change as can well be imagined or effected, and, we are sorry to add, on the absurd plea of toleration, and must have the most disastrous consequences for French Freemasonry. If any course could have been adopted to play into the hands of Ultramontane accusers, and to merit the reproaches of Bishop Dupanloup, it is the one which the triumphant and violent party in French Freemasonry has pursued with a zeal and energy, we admit, worthy of a better cause? The principles of Massol are at last sanctioned by the Grand Orient of France, and the consequences of the act are most serious, and widely extending.

We cannot see, after this resolution, for instance, how the Grand Orient of France can keep "A la Gloire du Grand Architecte de l'Univers," at the head of their "planches," or circulars, and many unavoidable doubts must be cast on the actual position of the Grand Orient itself.

With regard to the meeting itself, the account of it in the Chaine d'Union does not fill us with any respect for the legislative body of French Symbolic Freemasonry. The gathering seems to have been noisy and without dignity, intolerant, and even unfair to the minority, whose speakers were unwillingly listened to, and some of whom were silenced with deafening cries of "La Cloture."

Indeed, as Bro. Hubert says, so tumultuous became the Grand Orient at last, that it not only would not hear the opponents, but even the supporters of the charge! The discussion was in no way worthy of the occasion, and in fact cannot be called a discussion at all.

It is a most regrettable occurrence. The considerations arising out of it are very important, inasmuch as it is impossible but that this new position assumed by the Grand Orient of France will be resisted by all Anglo-Saxon Masons. But it is unwise to anticipate the future. All we can do to-day is to record the fact, and to express our heartfelt grief and utter disappointment at a result alike deplorable and dangerous, to a proceeding which must, according to our view, gravely compromise and permanently weaken French Freemasonry.

THE COLLISION IN THE CHANNEL.

[We quite agree with the following earnest observations of our contemporary, the Times.]

"We published yesterday, from our Correspondent at Weymouth, a shocking account of the burial of the bodies which have been washed on land from the Avalanche and the Forest. They were buried, our Correspondent tells us, at the expense of the parish, where they were thrown ashore, and it was done as economically as possible. But in pursuit of economy common decency seems to have been forgotten. The coffins used were, properly enough, of strong plain construction. But that the dead bodies should have been placed in these without any sort of covering, stark naked, is simply horrible to read of. That they were not actually conveyed in this state to the grave where they were to be laid was due, not to those in charge of the funeral, but to the kindness of a stranger, the landlady of the Cove Inn, who 'could not bear that they should go like that,' and accordingly purchased white calico enough to veil them decently. Of the funeral procession which followed we will say little. It was, perhaps, difficult to find any better conveyance than a common four-wheel waggon, though even this ought to have been accompanied with some outward signs of respect, something marking the solemn purpose for which it was employed. But a worse omission was yet to follow. When the four-wheel waggon with its mournful load arrived at the churchyard, there was no one in waiting to carry the bodies into the church and from the church to the grave. This service was rendered by volunteers, who came forward at the summons of the officiating clergyman from the throng assembled in the churchyard. If it had not been for the kindness of these men—quarrymen, for the most part, in ordinary working dress—common decency would, our Correspondent adds, not have been shown to the dead. His meaning in plain English we suppose to be that the waggon would have been drawn up to the side of the grave, and the contents of it shot in wholesale. We are thankful that the feelings of Englishmen have been spared the shock of such a last indignity as this. What did occur is, from first to last, disgraceful to those answerable for it. The first neglect to provide any sort of covering for the bodies is quite inexcusable. We wish to make every excuse possible for the whole conduct of the funeral ceremony. The immediate resources of the locality are somewhat slender, and it may not have been within the power of the local authorities to provide on the large scale necessary a funeral which would have been all it ought to have been. But for such neglect as was actually shown we can find no apology whatever, and scarcely an explanation. It amazes us to read of it. A covering of some sort for the bodies themselves, a black pall for the waggon, and some few attendants in charge of it, might have been found at any rate. The omission to provide these is nothing less than barbarous. We should have thought, indeed, that on so special an occasion some effort would have been made to give outward solemnity to the last sad duty which alone remained to be performed. Such a disaster as that of last Tuesday night is terrible enough to impress the most thoughtless, Englishmen are not commonly wanting in feelings either of sympathy or reverence. Either would have been enough. The mere kinship of a common humanity ought to have forbidden the indecencies our correspondent has described. It sounds strange to have to express satisfaction that the funeral was in any way decent—that the dead bodies were veiled over, and that they were borne to the grave on the shoulders of their fellow-men. But even for this we owe no thanks to those to whom the duty belonged of seeing to the last offices. Let us think what the scene of Saturday last might have been, and of what, indeed, it would have been apart from the accidental kindness of private persons and strangers. The careless, indecent haste with which the unclaimed bodies which had been thrown on the beach at Portland were carted off to their grave will be a lasting shame to those who may prove to be answerable for it. The public reprobation which our correspondent's story will excite will carry with it a formidable punishment."

"OUR BOYS."

"Why are you so determined upon going to the Alexandra Palace to-day?" said Bro. Brown to Bro. Green on Saturday last; "put it off till Monday and I'll go with you. I want to see the Nubians." "The offer of your company, dear Brown, is tempting enough to pay a second visit to the Nubians, but I'm going to-day to see 'Our Boys.' 'Are you mad?' says Brown, 'Our Boys' is not to be played to-day; they advertise Leacock's comic opera, 'La Fille de Madame Angot,' so put it off till Monday, and I'm with you for the Nubians." "I'm sane enough, Brown; look at this paragraph in the Freemason. 'Cricket Match between the Boys of the Masonic School, and the Grocers' Company's School,' and I mean to be there to see if 'Our Boys' are as good in the cricket field as they have proved in the Cambridge Local Examinations." "Oh! nonsense, Green, how can you expect decent cricketing from the Freemasons' Boys? They are scarcely ever outside their own grounds, and have only a scrubby bit of rough land, dignified by the name of a cricket field, to practise in. How is it possible they can play? Why, the 'Grocers' would beat them with their legs tied." "Could they? Well come with me to see them do it." A Hansom takes the pair to Broad-street Station, and a train, on the point of starting, soon deposits them at Wood Green. "Those are not the Freemasons' Boys on the ground," says Brown, "in smart cricketing flannels and caps; M.C.C. is the Marylebone Cricket Club." "There's Bro. Jingle, I'll ask him. You're always chaffing a fellow. Bro. Jingle, How are you? Are these the Freemasons' Boys?" "Yes, these are 'Our Boys' fielding—white caps lettered M.C.C.—Masonic Cricket Club; those in the blue caps are the Grocers' Company's Boys, who sent the challenge to play. Do you want to see two prettier teams? If so you'll have to hunt another county or two; I know Middlesex well, and its no use trying there." "But can 'Our Boys' play, Jingle? Surely the 'Grocers' will give them an awful thrashing." "If they do," says Jingle, "they'll have some leather-hunting first. 'Our Boys, don't care a fig for the 'Grocers,' and I see no reason why they should not lick them like sugar candy, especially as the nobby prizes that have been sent will prove very good plums for them, and make this a memorable date. Why 'Our Boys' bats have cayenne handles, so they must give them pepper. There's another wicket down. Bravo! I'll add half a sovereign to the prize list as a bit of sugar. Bros. Bertram and Roberts have invited all the boys to tea, but we must give the 'Grocers' cold coffee first. Hurrah! another out. That's a spicely looking lad going in now, but I don't think he is full-weight. There's a Bye. Four for it. That's a sell." And Bro. Jingle rattles on, whilst poor Brown, almost in convulsions, retires to a seat.

After disposing of their opponents for a total of 24, the Masonic Boys go to the wickets, and, amidst the enthusiastic cheers of their schoolmates, runs are rapidly made, 230 being scored before the fall of their last wicket. Too late for a second innings to be commenced, this finishes a very pretty exhibition both of batting and fielding, and "Our Boys" proceed from labour to refreshment and to receive their well-earned prizes.

"Why! Bro. Brown, not gone yet, it's nearly nine o'clock?" "No, Green, 'Our Boys' are to stay to see the 'Crossing of the Danube,' and I'll not go till I've seen the last of those happy little fellows leave for Bedfordshire. If you were not a Good Templar I should stand a bottle of Cham, for the treat you've given me to-day; but mind, when 'Our Boys' have another glorious outing like this, if you don't shake me for a sovereign towards some prizes I'll cut your company."

SKETCHES OF MASONIC CHARACTER.

No. V.

BRO. POTTER AT SCHWALLBACH.

Our worthy and esteemed Bro. Potter, a most distinguished Mason, we may remark, who has long reached the "dignity of the purple," to use a common expression of Masonic scribes (though nothing can be more historically incorrect), has long been the "decus columenque" of the famous Lodge "Merope." We need not now descend on his Masonic merits, they are too great to need any eulogium at our humble hands. Indeed, to praise Bro. Potter (Jellico Potter, to be precise), would be, to use those words which Dr. Bayley, the acute commentator on Shakespeare, considers some of the finest in the English language, "to gild refined gold, to paint the lily, or add fresh perfume to the violet."

In the Grand Lodge, and in the "Merope," his name is well known, his praises resound, and his fame as a good Mason and true is widely dispersed "inter fratres suos." At the "Merope," he is, as some of us are aware, the permanent Treasurer, having been W. Master three or four times, and having always "lent dignity to the Royal Chair," as his friend and ours, Bro. Puffington, enthusiastically asserts. Indeed the same brother often confidentially tells a visiting brother that he does not mind informing him "on the square," that Bro. Potter is, as regards the famous Merope Lodge, I do not wish it repeated, Bro. Bolsover, its meat, drink, clothing and ruling mind."

Accurate and facetious Bro. Puffington. On the whole his "regime," we are bound to add, is a very genial one, for the "Merope" and its members, as it is a flourishing and friendly, hospitable and helpful, agreeable and affable collection of men and brethren, who are always glad to see visitors, and in happy concord with one another. There you always find good work and a good dinner, you listen to good speeches, and you are permitted to imbibe a glass of good wine, and not only this, but in the long list of subscriptions which delights annually the "cockles of the hearts" of that famous trio, Bros. Binckes, Little and Terry, the Merope is always well represented.

As we before observed, a visitor always has a good time of it at the "Merope," and we never yet heard of anyone sent famishing or grumbling away. Now all this "good form" the "Merope," owes more or less to the supreme tact and continued oversight of Bro. Potter and therefore, as Masons we see how great is his worth, how valuable his services to our good old Craft. Bro. Binckes, who has always some eloquent words at command in praise of Masonic charity, always bids the "neophyte" to follow the example of Bro. Potter, "a sincere friend to the great metropolitan charities."

Now Bro. Potter, like some more that I can name, is both mortal and ailing. He is not so young as he used to be, and suppressed gout and unsuppressed rheumatism have "played havoc" with a fine constitution and a manly form, and give him a good deal of active agony by day, and "waking twinges" by night. So our worthy friend and brother, when, after a recent meeting at the "Merope," he found himself, as he said to his wife, the best of women and sisters, "very much out of order," went and consulted that eminent practitioner Sir Johnson Parker, who gave him "ore rotundo," on the spot, his valuable advice, without any hesitation, and with that dogmatic authority which so distinguishes that learned ornament of the metropolitan medical profession. "Sir," said that able interpreter of "diagnosis," and with that famous shake of the head and authority of tone for which he is famous, "go to Schwallbach at once, and I will give you a letter to my friend Dr. Grotefend."

Snigger, who we may add, is jealous of the great man, is fond of saying, when mentioning Sir Johnson Parker, "vox et prætera nihil." But Sniggers is not only jealous, but wrong, and we need pay no attention to his remarks, for despite all the Sniggers in the world, Sir Johnson Parker flourishes, his advice is eagerly sought, his prescriptions rigidly followed. Perhaps one of the reasons why he is so popular is that he never gives a second opinion, and seldom says more than is absolutely necessary, and we all like precision and authority.

So having obtained some circular notes (good ones), our esteemed friend and brother started for Schwallbach, with the wife of his bosom, who always went with her husband, very properly, everywhere. Bro. Potter is an Englishman and a famous citizen of Bulldom, and when he obeyed his doctor, he did what a great many patients have done, and always will do, he growled at the prescription. If Sir Johnson Parker had known of the rebellious spirit, he would probably have said, "No, Sir, I do not expect my patients to like my prescriptions; but then, sir, my patients are not wise, and I know what is better for them than they know themselves, I do, Sir."

Accordingly nothing suited Bro. Potter at Schwallbach. He did not like his room, he did not like the life, he did not like his food, he did not like the water he had to drink, and he was always sulky at the table d'hôte. A remarkable contrast to his amiable wife, always pleased and pleasing. He did not like the enthusiastic Frenchman after his first bath, say very jauntily "On devient ici Monsieur, amoureux de soi même." No, indeed, but he staid his time, grumbling to the last. His frame of mind exactly resembles that of his old friend, Bro. Pottleton, who after his first mud bath at Wildbad, said to his affectionate sister, "A mud bath! Why have they sent us all this way for a mud bath. If mud would do, why should I ever have left the banks of the Thames, where there is plenty of mud, and the finest mud in the world?"

Oh, incomparable Briton! How strange and yet how childish, Mrs. Balasso often remarks, are the "cater-waulings of humanity!"

When Bro. Potter returned to England, he was a great deal better, ungrateful mortal that he is, and impressed all his friends with the elasticity of his gait, and the uprightness of his figure. No doubt when we read over his eloquent harangues, admirably reported in the Freemason, we shall feel persuaded that he has taken a "new lease of life."

Yet still he is not, after all, as thankful to Sir Johnson Parker as he ought to be, and still talks of the "expense he has been put to," and the bad food he has had to put up with. Perhaps Sir Johnson Parker remembered Abernethy's famous reply to his patient, "There is nothing the matter with you,—Eat less—drink less; go!"

And no doubt Sir Johnson Parker was right. Do we not often all of us behave very ill to our medical advisers? We take their advice, we get better, but we don't thank them. Yes, we are mostly wrong, and they are always right. But it is an "ungrateful world," my Masters!

SLIGHT SCIENCE FOR LEISURE HOURS.

By OUR V.P.C.

New Series; Book 1, No. 2, Part 2.

Science may seem a Slight, or "Light" thing (which ever you please, Mr. Proctor), but I can assure my learned and fair readers I do not find it so—my experience has been that it's quite true, as the Pope says, that though why he should go on to counsel us to "drink deep" I can't conceive—anyhow it brought about terrible consequences to me did this advice when followed by "the Professor."

"A little learning is a dangerous thing,"

Our little supper ended and the table cleared away, the Professor's bag was opened, and its contents turned out for use. The first things brought to light were apparently some large poultices, a couple of which were soon put on the Professor's hands and mine, to my great delight, for I remembered the terrible tingling inflicted by the electric bath of my former friend, the Lecturer.

"First experiment in Science," said Jones, placing me in front of the Professor. "Guard," cried he. "Where?" said I, turning towards the window and expecting to see that obliging functionary connected with the newly-opened railway, of which we, of Mudford-on-Spree, are very proud to be "The Terminus;" although Jones does irreverently remark that there is small credit to us for being it, as one single yard further would be quite out of the world;—just as I turned my head the shock (of what kind I can't to this moment conceive) took effect full on the bridge of my nose and both eyes, whilst a second in the mouth completely stifled in its birth the cry of surprise with which I greeted the first; I remember nothing more than a vague sensation of flying through space, accompanied by noises in my ears like falling furniture and smashing crockery, until I was roused by the by-no-means sympathetic queries of Mrs. P. Pry-Smith, enquiring, "What next? I wonder, Sir!" and "Who next, will you be pleased to be entertaining in my house in my absence? The lesson was over and my friends gone, and there was nothing for it, in my shaken condition, but bed. When I awoke in the morning I found that the effect of these shocks had been to completely alter my physiognomy, my lips were like those of a blackamoor, whilst my eyes

"O'erlaid with black, staid wisdom's hue." but, for "wisdom" I must say that I looked a good deal more like Minerva's owl (billed, as poor A.W. used to say), than Minerva herself; whilst, as for my nose, so handsome and, whilom, so penetrating, its bridge resembled Tam O' Shanter's "hour,"—

"O' night's black arch the key-stone;" besides I could hardly see, and could only sorrowfully murmur Shakespeare's lines—

"He that is stricken blind, cannot forget

The precious treasure of his eyesight lost."

Nor was I fully alive to the horror of my situation, until I remembered that it was "G.L." meeting that night and that I had faithfully promised to be present and to send my friend 'The Editor' a full report. I asked Mrs. P. Pry-S. what on earth I must do, but she would only mutter "Shade."

"But, my dear," I said, "It isn't dark, though people say so; light as day, I can assure you."

"—hence, horrible shade, unreal mockery, hence!"

"Yes," said she, with a contemptuous toss of the head, "you very real simpleton."

"Show his eyes, and grieve his heart, Come like shades, and so depart."

However with true woman's tact she solved the difficulty by going to a drawer and producing a "Shade," a sort of cowl of a greenish—grassish hue, like those things our fair (?) sisters used to wear at Margate—miniature bathing-machine hoods; "here," said she "is the only thing I know of to make you decent," whilst she maliciously added, "you need not mind the effect for it matches your complexion to a T;" I suppose she alluded to the kind from which I like my afternoon beverage brewed.

The bother that confounded thing was to me to be sure; in the street I was assailed with shouts of "bullo! there's a walking billiard-light," &c., until I reached the entrance hall, when I heard somebody audibly quote—

"He walks in beauty, like the night

Of cloudless climes and starry skies;

And all that's best of dark and bright

Meets in his aspect and his eyes,"

The climax of my misery was reached, when a wretched Scrutiner declined to let me pass on the ground "that a h— was not a part of the furniture of "G.L.," having his objection on the ground that none could be "made" there; "least of all greenhorns" I think I heard him mutter; and then he must needs go on to demonstrate the unfitness of the thing in England on account of the colour. However, Jones was luckily at hand, and got me out of the difficulty, explaining that I had met with an accident in the pursuit of "Science."

As to the proceedings I do not know that I can add much to the other fellow's report only to notice a point taken up since by a distinguished brother and friend of mine about no time being given for a discussion upon the thousand guinea vote. Now, in the first place, the Acting G.M. was uncommonly fair and patient of discussion, for he certainly let one brother wander considerably beyond the point, in going into the discussion of a certain question instead of confining himself merely to its adjournment; but as to halving the thousand, I should like to have seen any brother try to have moved it; why the hall resounded with cries of "Two! Two!" whilst, as the hands went up for the vote, a perfect shout of "ALL!" rent the air, followed by clapping "loud and long." I don't think I shall say more now, for I've nothing more to say, save that

"As my nature's been subdued

By the Professor's, like to dyer's hand"

(Of which I will give a full and true report soon), I mean to go to no more Professors, but to Nature herself for — "Nature never did betray

The heart that loved her; nor plant her hand

Upon the countenance, and change its hue

From verdant lily, to the patent black

Of jettiest coal."

[O.P.D., with his usual audacity, has queried my quotations, but I challenge him to find them. When the poor ignoramus has done that, I will prove them to be as his friend of the Telegraphs' would say, "O.K.."]

NEW TELEGRAPH INSTRUMENT.

Scarcely a week passes without our having to record some fresh stride made in telegraphy, and it is not too much to say that we are now living in an "electric" age. A century ago we were in a classical mood, comparing every one to Roman, Grecian, and mythological notabilities. The age of steam followed, and though scarcely any mechanical operation of consequence is carried on without its aid, still we are beginning to look even upon steam as a thing that will be sooner or later dispensed with. Gas also is being consumed in two senses, for we have signs that other media will be found to afford us illumination, which when compared with gas will be as between the light in the old tinder-box age, and that of the period when gasometers towered to the skies. But electricity is the rising feature of Civilization. Though its properties have long been known, and, though Franklin's discoveries were considered to be in his time marvellous, people rested content with knowing what electricity was, and confining its use to amusing and instructive experiments. Bye-and-bye the wondrous art and mystery of telegraphy sprang up, and the practical uses of the subtle fluid began to be found out and applied as means of communication between distant parts, and with what success we need not mention. It is, however certain that the electric current will not be confined to the conveying of messages only. The many ways in which its power of signalling can be utilised show that in future years it will be one of the most useful acquisitions of life. At the present time the amount of usefulness the electric telegraph is to the world at large cannot be estimated, and so long as we have modern Franklins and Newtons devoting their lives in penetrating the vast depths of incalculable mystery which surrounds their researches, and the progressive result of whose labours leads us to look upon them as great public benefactors, we shall find no end to the application of electricity for meeting our requirements in the advancement of civilisation. For exchanging ideas and general business intercourse with the most distant parts of the earth we have our cables, for regulating our immense traffic of living freights on railways we have our land lines, to render the movements of an enemy at a distance exposed to our view, we have our electric lights, for domestic and general business purposes, we have electric bells and indicators, and to add to these we have now an entirely new and novel instrument, not for numbering our days, but for giving us correct time by which we can arrange our various duties of this life. This instrument, the invention of Mr. F. R. Francis, F.S.A., Member of the Telegraph Engineers Society, has been introduced for the purpose of receiving the "Greenwich Time Signal," which is sent every morning to the various telegraph stations, and offices of private firms. Hitherto the passage of the time signal current along the wires gives no other indication of its presence than a deflection of the needle on the single needle instrument, and corresponding movements on the alphabetical instrument, and of the armature of the Morse printer at 10.0 a.m., so that unless a sharp look-out be kept, and the eye constantly on the instrument, the actual time is not taken, and consequently left for another day, when possibly from the same cause the inconvenience is repeated. In the new instrument, however, no excuse can be dredged for inattention, and the chance of losing the time signal is wholly removed, as at the moment the current is sent a bell rings, and continues to ring so long as the current is passing. In order to make the working of this new instrument more clearly understood, we will endeavour to explain its construction. The index needle, in other words the needle of the galvanometer which is the principal part of this invention, when deflected, presses against a small spring tipped with platinum, fitted to the stops on the dial, which are perfectly insulated from the dial plate, and by this contact the galvanometer forms itself into a "relay," and puts a local battery in circuit with the bell, which is also a portion of the one instrument or apparatus, so that the instant the first part of the time signal is given or sent, the needle of this little instrument is deflected, and at the same moment the bell rings, when attention to the time is at once arrested. The time allowed for the Greenwich Time Signal, and during which the transmission of messages is suspended, is two minutes. It should also be mentioned that the resistance to the line is intended to be inserted only during the time set apart for the time signal, as by means of what is generally termed a "Switch," the instrument is put in and out of circuit at will, and if desired takes the place of the message instrument for the time being, thus avoiding any additional resistance, and however feeble the current may be the galvanometer of this new instrument is so sensitive that a deflection of its needle is absolutely certain. To us the simplicity and importance of the invention seem to indicate that almost every Telegraph station in the United Kingdom should be furnished with one, and especially the offices of private firms, where correct time is of the utmost importance. Moreover we are informed that not only is the instrument capable of doing what has already been stated, but we are further assured it may, with little alteration and few additions, be made to record messages as accurately as now done by the more expensive forms of Morse printing instruments, and the manufacturers, Messrs. Francis & Co., of Hatton-garden, are at present engaged in adapting the instrument to this purpose, which will have the effect of reducing the cost of new recording instruments about one half. Everyone having a telegraph instrument in use should see this newly patented apparatus

CONSECRATION OF A NEW WELSH LODGE.

On Wednesday, the 12th inst., Bro. the Right Honourable Sir Watkin Williams Wynn, Bart., M.P., R.W. Prov. G.M. of North Wales and Shropshire, attended at Townyn, for the purpose of consecrating the Corbet Lodge, No. 1583, the warrant of consecration having been granted last year. The following are the first officers of the new lodge, as far as they have been appointed, one or two remaining still to be filled:—Bros. C. Elliott, W.M.; J. Foulkes Jones, S.W.; Rupert G. Kettle, J.W.; — Page, S.D.; Edward Pughe, J.D.; W. R. Davis, Treasurer. For the present the Senior Warden will also act as Secretary. Before the Provincial Grand Lodge was closed a resolution was passed concerning the famine in India, the R.W.D.P.G.M. Bro. Bulkeley Hughes proposed, and the P.G. Treasurer, Bro. J. P. White seconded, that £50 should be voted from the funds of the Provincial Grand Lodge towards the relief of the sufferers from famine in India. No previous notice of this had been given, but the Prov. Grand Master, under the by-laws, has a right to sanction such a motion in case of emergency, and of course, was only too happy to do it. The proceedings closed shortly before five o'clock, when the brethren sat down to a most excellent dinner at the Corbet Arms Hotel. —Cambrian News.

Obituary.

MR. MEREDYTH THOMAS.

We deeply sympathize with our esteemed Bro. James Lewis Thomas, P.M., P.Z., Junior Grand Warden of Mid-dlesex, in the most severe and irreparable loss he has sustained in the sudden death of his sole surviving brother after a few hours' illness. Though Mr. Meredyth Thomas was not a member of our Order, we do not think the insertion of this notice inappropriate, as he was such a noble hearted, single-minded fellow, who would have made a splendid Mason, he being one of those men who are, we regret to say, few and far between, thoroughly unselfish, and only happy when sacrificing himself to do others a kindness.

We extract the following from our contemporary, the Brecon County Times:—

"It is our painful duty to record the demise of our talented townsman, Mr. H. Meredyth Thomas, sculptor, the brother of our late distinguished countryman, John Evan Thomas, Esq., whose genius has enriched the principality with his works of art. This sad event was the result of apoplexy after a few hours' illness, and took place at his residence, 58, Buckingham Palace-road, London, on the 7th inst., at the early age of 58. He was the associate of his brother for upwards of 30 years, and during that time assisted him in all the great works which proceeded from his studio. Early in life he became a prize medallist student of the Royal Academy for his accurate models from the antique, which laid the foundation of that purity and truth of style which distinguished his works, and would have given him a prominent place amongst his contemporaries in the art, had he chosen to strike out a separate path from that of his brother. Of late years, and especially since his brother's death, he has devoted himself to ideal works and medallion portraiture, and in the latter work he will be long remembered among the charming circle who congregate at Llanover to enjoy the hospitality of its noble and bountiful lady, whose name is identified with the prosperity of Wales and Welsh institutions, for there are few among her guests whose features have not been transferred by him to "imperishable marble." He was an ardent and appreciative student of history, poetry, and elegant literature, and his retentive memory enabled him to delight his associates for hours with the beauties of Shakespeare, Goldsmith, Byron, Macaulay, and the other giants of our classical English literature. It may be truly said he has left a gap behind him which it will be difficult to fill.

"A sole surviving brother—Mr. James L. Thomas—mourns the loss of such a gifted relative. The news of Mr. Meredyth Thomas's death was received with the deepest feelings of regret by those friends and acquaintances in his native town, who knew how to appreciate one who had been endowed by nature with such rich and sterling qualities."

THE SURREY MASONIC HALL COMPANY LIMITED.

HIGH COURT OF JUSTICE, CHANCERY DIVISION,
SEPT., 20TH. ROLLS COURT.
(Before Mr. Justice Fry, Vacation Judge).

Mr. Harvey applied for an order to compulsorily wind up the Surrey Masonic Hall Company, limited. He said the matter first came before the Court on the 14th day of April last. It was ordered to stand over on two occasions, and then to stand over generally, in order that terms might be arranged. Terms, however, had not been arranged, and he now applied on the ground that the sheriff had given notice of his intention to sell the fixtures of the Hall.

Mr. Stott said he appeared on behalf of a great majority of the creditors, who opposed on the ground that the Company had given notice of an extraordinary resolution, for Thursday next, to wind up the Company voluntarily. If that were done much expense would be saved; and the assets were very small, and the debts very considerable.

His Lordship: Will you pay the petitioners and wind it up yourselves?

Mr. Stott: We do not pay them at all.

His Lordship: You do not deny the petitioner might so wind up?

Mr. Stott: No.

His Lordship: What amount do you represent, Mr. Harvey?

Mr. Harvey: One creditor for £3945, and another for £500.

His Lordship: And you, Mr. Stott?

Mr. Stott: £650.

His Lordship: How do you make out that to be a majority?

Mr. Stott: A majority of numbers. Mr. Harvey represents two creditors and I represent 8. It is our opinion that we shall save money if the company is wound up voluntarily.

Mr. Harvey said he thought that if the Company were wound up by the Court that it would be less expensive.

His Lordship: The petitioner's claim is a very large and substantial one, and your interest, Mr. Stott, is very small.

Mr. Stott said the petitioner was the purchaser of the hall at the sale by auction. If the petitioner did not wish to have the seats, gas fittings, and other fixtures removed he would pay out the sheriff. The only reason why he argued against the compulsory winding up was that although his claims were small he would rather have 2s. 6d. in the £1 than 6d. Eight of the creditors thought it would be much less expensive to wind the Company up voluntarily, and they would therefore get a better dividend. On the ground of expense and on the ground that eight of the creditors had come to the opinion that it would be better to voluntarily wind up the Company, he asked his lordship to postpone making any order until they saw whether the resolution to wind up voluntarily was carried.

His lordship said he would not take that course. There would be the usual order for winding up the Company, and the usual order as to costs.

CRICKET.

MASONIC INSTITUTION V. GROCER'S COMPANY.

The above match was played on Saturday last, on the Alexandra Palace ground, in weather particularly suited to cricket, although earlier in the day the clouds looked most threatening, and the weather overcast; in fact, anything but a fit prelude to a day's cricket. The two elevens arrived on the ground at 2 p.m., and stumps were immediately pitched on a splendidly level wicket, although, perhaps, slightly slow.

The Masonic eleven, having won the toss, decided to put their opponents in, to the bowling of Mr. Gardner (A.K.C.) and Scurr.

The wickets, as may be seen from the subjoined score, fell rapidly, Mr. Gardner upsetting three wickets with three consecutive balls. Oram, who carried out his bat for eight, was the only one who made anything like a stand against the bowling.

With a few minutes' intermission the M.C.C. commenced batting with Mr. Gardner and Sessions, when both batsmen began to hitting freely, Sessions making some pretty cuts; but after making eleven out of twenty-nine, he was bowled by a shooter from Oram; letting in Godsmark, who, unfortunately, went out at a like ball from the same bowler, and paid for his temerity; two for forty-one, of which Mr. Gardner had made twenty-five. W. Davies now came in, but failed to score, being followed by Scurr.

At this point the bowling was completely mastered, as Scurr showed some very fine defence, while his partner went on apace, until Mr. Matthews dismissed him with a shooter, he having been at the wickets one hour and thirty-five minutes for sixty-nine runs; four for 123.

Clemence followed Mr. Gardner, but made no stand. J. B. White commenced in good form, and rapidly put on twelve, when he was caught in the slips off Mr. Matthews, and made room for Ellis, who fell to Mr. Matthews. Wellington was Scurr's next partner, but here Scurr collapsed, being bowled by a slow, after playing a most careful innings of twenty-six.

The bowling here was rather slack, as Wellington showed by the way in which he punished it, to the tune of one five, two fours, seven threes, &c. Wellington saw Nutman and H. Wood retire, the latter having scored fifteen in a very short time, and at last carried out his bat for an excellent not out innings of sixty-five.

Thus the score was brought up to 231. For the visitors Oram and Mr. Matthews bowled well, and for the M.C.C. Mr. Gardner and Scurr.

The score is subjoined:—

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

PANMURE LODGE (No. 720).—A regular meeting of this lodge was held at the Balham Hotel, Balham, on Monday, the 17th inst., and was fully attended. The lodge was opened by the W.M., Bro. Daniel Trusler, and the following officers and brethren were present, viz., Bros. C. P. McKay, S.W.; W. R. Sheadd, J.W.; James Stevens, P.M.; Thos. Poore, P.M. and Sec.; W. Smith, J.D.; W. McMurray, I.G.; E. Mitchell, W.S.; W. Steedman, Tyler; also Bros. Blogg, Whittaker, Lilley, Lambert, Pascall, King, Richardson, Green, Ash, Treves, Wiltshire, Sanders, Kerr, &c., and visitors from Kurrachee, India; Bros. R. Duncan, P.M. Hope Lodge, 350, and John Berrie, P.M., Harmony Lodge, 485. Minutes of previous lodge and emergency having been confirmed, the W.M. announced the resignation of the Senior Deacon, and appointed and invested Bros. W. Smith, S.D.; McMurray, J.D.; E. Mitchell, I.G.; C. A. Blogg, Organist; and G. Lambert, Steward. Mr. George Mulley was introduced and initiated into the Order. Bro. Ash was passed to the Second Degree. Propositions of candidates for initiation were taken, and motions were carried unanimously in favour of the reporting of lodge proceedings from time to time; of thanks to the J.W. for restoration of the lodge jewels and ornaments, and of an outlay for more effectively providing musical accompaniment for the ceremonies. The distinguished visitors from India having expressed their satisfaction with the only English working they had yet seen, and complimented the lodge on its proficiency, the lodge was closed in due form, and a frugal repast followed the labours of the evening.

WANDSWORTH LODGE (No. 1044).—A meeting of this prosperous lodge was held at the Spread Eagle Hotel, Wandsworth, on the 19th inst. Considering that this was the most important meeting of the year, the installation of Bro. H. R. Jones as W.M., the attendance of brethren and visitors was not so numerous as might have been expected. The following were present: Bros. H. R. Jones, S.W.; W. A. Morgan, J.W.; H. Wilson, Treas.; J. Frost, Sec.; A. N. Newens, S.D.; A. B. Walker, J.D.; F. W. Wardroper, D.C.; W. J. Huntley, I.G.; and J. J. Holland, W.S.; R. Walker, S. C. Landon, R. Neal, F. Knippter, W. Springett, G. Clark, G. H. Smith, and A. A. Denham. Amongst the Past Masters were Bros. Boddy, F. H. Newens, G. Howick, J. G. Carter, J. G. Kewney, and C. W. Gray. The visitors were Bros. C. Digby, No. 933; Dr. Hugh Mackintosh, No. 4; and F. Reed. The minutes of the previous meeting having been confirmed, Bro. R. Walker was passed to the degree of Fellow Craft, Bro. Boddy being in the W.M.'s chair, while the other positions in the lodge were filled by Bros. H. R. Jones, S.W.; J. G. Kewney, J.W.; A. N. Newens, S.D.; and A. B. Walker as J.D. Bro. H. Jones was then impressively installed into the chair of W.M., Bro. Past Master Boddy, as Installing Master, calling forth the admiration of the brethren by the manner in which he performed the elaborate and solemn ritual. The W.M. then invested his officers as follows: Bros. H. Wilson, Treas.; John Frost, Sec.; W. A. Morgan, S.W.; A. N. Newens, J.W.; A. B. Walker, S.D.; W. J. Huntley, J.D.; J. J. Holland, I.G.; F. W. Wardroper, W.S.; S. C. Landon, D.C.; and S. Stead, Tyler. The Secretary read a letter from Bro. P. Cooke, the retiring W.M., regretting his absence on account of illness, and congratulating the W.M. elect. A letter was also read from Bro. J. J. Limebeer, Sec. to Mount Edgcombe, No. 1446, and stating that Bro. A. A. Denham was duly raised to the degree of M.M. at that lodge on June 9. Bro. Gray said he thought that a vote of thanks was certainly due to Bro. Boddy for the efficient way in which he had carried out the ceremony of installing Bro. Jones into the chair. He should move that a vote of thanks be accorded Bro. Boddy, and that it be entered upon the minutes. Bro. J. G. Carter, P.M., seconded the motion, which was unanimously carried. Bro. Wilson gave notice of motion of an alteration in No. 3 bye-law, and Bro. C. W. Gray also said that he should move at the next meeting "That the consent of the Wandsworth, 1044, be given to the formation of a Royal Arch Chapter, to be attached to the lodge." The brethren then retired to the banquet, which was served in elaborate style by the host, Bro. Dougherty. The cloth having been removed, the W.M. proposed "The Queen and the Craft," remarking that the loyalty of Masons was founded on a just appreciation of Her Majesty's virtues and moral qualities; and he could assert, without fear of contradiction, that no one had greater respect and love for the Queen than Masonic brethren. (Hear, hear.) He trusted they would have the pleasure of drinking her health for many, many years. (Applause.) The toast was drunk with enthusiasm. The W.M. then proposed "The Health of the M.W.G.M., His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales," together with "The Deputy Grand Master." The W.M. spoke of the advantage that accrued to Masonry from having so generous a brother—and there was not one kinder hearted—as the Prince of Wales. That he possessed many amiable and excellent qualities no one could deny. (Hear, hear.) The toast was heartily drunk with Masonic honours. Other toasts having been given and responded to (including that of "The Installing Master, Bro. Boddy"), the W.M. proposed "The Visitors," coupling with it the name of Bro. Charles Digby. Bro. Digby replied in appropriate terms, thanking the brethren for the hearty way in which the health of the visitors had been received. He was sure that with Bro. Jones as W.M., the "working" of the Wandsworth, 1044, will excite the admiration of all true brethren of the Craft. (Applause.) The brethren soon afterwards separated, having enjoyed a thoroughly happy evening.

EARL OF CARNARVON LODGE (No. 1489).—The regular meeting of this lodge took place on Thursday, the 20th inst., at Ladbroke Hall, Notting-hill. There were present Bros. W. J. Murlis, W.M.; S. Smout, sen., acting S.W.; S. Parkhouse, J.W.; Rev. D. Reade, Chap.; W. Stephens, Treas.; J. Rushman, Sec.; Savage, acting S.D.; Michael, J.D.; Smout, jun., I.G. Visitors: Bros. H. G. Buss, Asst. Grand Secretary; Colonel Ratcliffe, P.G. Steward; Lott, P. Prov. G.S.W. Jersey; Watts, P.M. 194; Baron Tottenborne, 943; Handover, P.M. 144; Sir C. Dilke, 834; Webster, 507; Kelly, 834; Dowling, 167; Thompson, P.M. 834. The lodge was opened by the W.M., and the minutes of the last regular meeting and of the emergency read and confirmed. Bros. Collett, Newland, Whittaker, Lander, and Lichwits were then severally raised to the Third Degree by P.M. W. Stephens. The candidates for passing and initiation, like many of the officers, were absent from town, and, therefore, these ceremonies were dispensed with. This being the annual meeting for election, Bro. George Penn, S.W., was unanimously elected W.M. for the ensuing year; Bro. W. Stephens re-elected Treasurer; and Schofield, Tyler. An Audit Committee was appointed, and the brethren adjourned to an excellent banquet, provided by Bro. Linscott, at which the W.M. presided in his usual genial manner. The loyal and Masonic toasts were given. Bro. Buss responded for "The Grand Officers," Sir Charles Dilke, Colonel Ratcliffe, and others for "The Visitors," that of "The W.M." was proposed by P.M. Stephens, and most enthusiastically received. Bro. Murlis, in response, took the opportunity to thank the officers for their valuable support during his year of office. It was his last time to preside at the banquet table, and he could not leave without drawing their attention to the unusual and gratifying position of the lodge at the present time; all debts and charges were paid, and £50 remained in the Treasurer's hands. This augurs well for the future prosperity of the lodge. They were much indebted to one of their members who had been most indefatigable and painstaking in connection with the inauguration and organisation of the lodge, and certainly deserved great credit for a large share of its success. The Rev. Darby Reade, Chaplain; W. Stephens, Treasurer; and Pushman, Secretary, replied for "The Officers," and the Rev. P.M. Holden for "The Honorary Members." This very pleasant meeting was then brought to a close with the usual Tyler's toast.

WEST SMITHFIELD LODGE (No. 1623).—The first installation meeting of this lodge since its consecration was held at the New Market Hotel, King-street, Snow Hill, (Bro. Butt's), on the 20th inst., Bro. Joseph Smith, P.G.P., W.M., presiding. The W.M. raised Bros. E. E. Crombie, W. C. Watts, J. Bartlett, and G. Whitcombe. He also passed Bros. S. Craddock, H. Roffey, 1326, and R. R. Pooley, 1326, and initiated Messrs. Wm. McCluer Butt (son of Bro. Butt, the proprietor of the hotel), C. O. Pook (son of the late Bro. H. Pook), J. Chapman, and C. Goodwin. Afterwards Bro. Smith installed Bro. Thos. Wm. Adams, S.W. and W.M. elect, as W.M. of the lodge for the ensuing year. The officers appointed were G. S. Elliott, S.W.; J. J. Howes, P.M.; J. W. Joseph Smith, P.G.P., P.M., Treasurer; F. Walters, P.G.D. Middlesex, P.M., Secretary; J. Johnson, S.D.; G. S. Wintle, P.M.; J. D. A. Black, W.M. 1867, I.G.; W. Pennefather, P.M.D.C.; W. Malkhouse, W.S.; T. McCluer Butt, Steward; and J. Gilbert, P.G.T. Middlesex, Tyler. The brethren afterwards adjourned to a very nice banquet provided by Bro. Butt, and besides the brethren named above the following brethren partook of the hospitality of the lodge:—Hyde Pullen, P.G.S.B.; (W. Ough, P.G.P., is a member) J. Mason, P.G.S.D. Middlesex; R. W. Williams, P.P.G. Organist Middlesex, W.M. 1275; J. W. Baldwin, P.A.G.P. Middlesex, P.M. 1423; H. F. Green, P.M. 1273, &c.; Louis Beck, W.M. 1687, &c.; H. Roberts, P.M. 79; E. Gilbert, P.M. 1326; C. W. Fox, W.M. 1326; H. Massey, P.M. 619 (Freemason); M. Clark, 1423; J. H. Pearson, 1423; A. M. Thomas, P.M. 1446; W. Howard, 49; R. Paige, S.W. 421, and some few others. When the banquet had been disposed of, grace having been read, the usual toasts were proposed, those of "The Queen," "The Grand Master," "The Pro Grand Master," &c., receiving the customary hearty reception. Bro. Hyde Pullen responding for the Grand Officers, Bro. Joseph Smith proposed "The W.M." In the course of his remarks he said he had had the pleasure and gratification of installing Bro. Adams in the chair, who as a young Mason was not in the position of some of the old stagers present who had occupied that post before. The brethren would make every allowance for a W.M. who occupied the chair for the first time, who generally was rather bashful. When a W.M. was going out of the chair it usually happened that he was just getting used to his work and would like to carry it on a little longer. It was so with himself, but he had the honour of being elected a second year; but then that was at a time when there was not so much talent to be found in the ranks of Freemasonry as was the case now. They did not hear of such a thing now as a Master being elected two years in succession, and it was a good thing that it was so. Installation day was a great day of the year in Freemasonry. It was like Lord Mayor's day, the great epoch in the W.M.'s life. It was a happy thing that the W.M. gained his position by the unanimous vote of the brethren. But the brethren must remember that one other thing was wanted by the W.M.: their cordial support while he was in the chair, and if he had it he would have a very happy year. It was in the brethren's power to make it so. Some Masters said at the end of their year that they were happy that their year was over. When such an occurrence took place he (Bro. Smith), always said that those Masters had not done their duty. Good Masters were sorry to leave the chair, although at the same time they were glad to see another brother exalted to the position which they had occupied. The W.M. of the West Smithfield Lodge was very anxious to do his duty; he did not believe any brother was more anxious in that respect. As far as his ability went he would not fail, though he might be a little nervous. Let the brethren supporting him take him by the right hand and work harmoniously together. As far as he (Bro. Smith), was concerned, nothing would be wanting on his part to give him assistance. (Hear, hear.) The W.M. replied. The advancement to the W.M. chair was a great honour, and he was extremely obliged to the brethren for having advanced him to that position. He would never abuse the trust reposed in him, but would be a faithful Master of the lodge. He was only a young Mason and was not perfect; but he trusted that the brethren would pass over any defect on his part, and assist him as much as they could. At the end of the year he trusted he should have the pleasure of hearing that the brethren had worked with love and harmony, and made it a happy year. The W.M. then proposed "The Health of the Installing Master, Bro. Joseph Smith," and called the brethren's attention to the fact that at the last meeting a sum of 30 guineas was voted to present Bro. Smith with a testimonial of their admiration of his performance of his duties. That testimonial had taken the form of a diamond ring, and it was that testimonial which he (the W.M.) now had the pleasure of presenting to Bro. Smith. (Cheers.) Bro. Joseph Smith, in acknowledging the toast and testimonial, said it had been a great pleasure to him to be the first W.M. of the West Smithfield Lodge. He had done his best for its prosperity, and he was proud to say the lodge had been a very great success. He could not at the moment say how many Masons they had made in the course of 12 months; but this was the ninth lodge of which he had been the first W.M., and every one of those lodges was doing well. This was very gratifying to him, because it showed that he had not been wrong in taking the part he had taken in the formation of those lodges. He would tell the brethren why he was anxious for new lodges. They knew well that if men were initiated in large lodges they could not possibly get to the chair until they had been some seven years a Mason. Very often in that time their zeal got cold, and he did not like the seal of ambitious Masons to get cold. Old Masons then should take the ambitious young Masons by the hand, and if they found they could be useful in starting new lodges, they should do so. When he entered Masonry, forty years ago, it was in a very different position to what it was in now. Almost every respectable gentleman in the outer world now desired to be a Mason. Masonry was progressing, and it would progress while Grand Lodge voted such large sums of money for benevolent purposes. Look at the last Grand Lodge. £1365 was voted towards the Indian Famine Fund and other funds not connected with the Craft. When that was done it was clear that Masonry was something more than a name. Hence it was the outer world thought there was more in it than they understood. Passing from this, the position of the West Smithfield Lodge, he must say, was a very happy one. The compliment which had been paid to him, showed that in the brethren's view he had done his duty. He hoped that as long as he should be spared the brethren would find him in his position the same as if he was the W.M. It would be his pleasure as well as his object to render every assistance he could to the Master and to all the officers. They would not go wrong if they acted upon his advice. One other point. He was the father of this lodge, and he would be pleased and not affronted if they called him the "Old Governor." But let them take the old Governor's advice. Masonry was progressing very fast. With the increase in Masonry they were increasing their responsibility. It was very natural for young Masters to make all the Masons they could. He had often heard Masters asked how many Masons they made in their years of office. Now, it was a great horror to him to hear such a question, because he was afraid it showed that they did not look so much to the quality as to the quantity. His advice was—Do not introduce any gentleman into this lodge whose antecedents they were not thoroughly acquainted with, for if they did they would bring discredit on the whole body. They should not look so much to numbers as to the position in society of the men they introduced. He had heard an old Mason say in Grand Lodge, that Masonry was a luxury, and no man ought to go into Masonry unless he was able to carry it out. They were not bound to go into it, but there was no society they could go into where they met such a respectable body. A son of Sir Sydney Waterlow wanted to become a Mason, but his father objected to it. The son went abroad, and he very much regretted that he was not a Mason. The moment he came home he was made a Mason, and the reason he did so was that he saw when abroad how Masonry was carried out there. If a man only showed he was an English Mason he was received with open arms, and was introduced into society which he was not likely to enter otherwise. Bro. Smith concluded by showing that Masonry was not a benefit society, and impressing upon the brethren the duty of setting their faces against any such incorrect notion. The toast of "The Visitors" and "The Officers" having been duly honoured and responded to, Bro. Joseph Smith gave "The Secretary (Bro. Walters), the Host (Bro. Butt), and the Press (Bro. Massey)." He eulogised Bro. Walters for his efforts on behalf of Freemasonry, and stated that he always felt a pleasure in taking the office of Treasurer when he found Bro. Walters was the Secretary. Of the host, Bro. Butt, he said the brethren were very fortunate in meeting under his roof, because Bro. Butt was always most anxious to do the best he could for them, and was not governed by the principle of seeing how much he could get out of them. Concerning the press, Bro. Smith said he was as a rule opposed to the presence of reporters, more particularly in Masonry; but he had always felt a pleasure in seeing the Freemason represented, because the brethren who reported for that publication observed a discretion in their reports which rendered their work satisfactory to the Craft. Bros. F. Walters, Butt, and Massey replied, and shortly afterwards the Tyler's toast was given, and the brethren separated.

HENRY MUGGERIDGE LODGE (No. 1679).—The third regular meeting of this prosperous new lodge was held on Saturday, the 22nd inst., at the Prince George Hotel, Park-road, Dalston. Officers present:—Bros. H. Muggeridge, W.M.; F. Fellows, S.W.; E. F. Storr, J.W.; J. Lorkin, S.D.; H. Johns, J.D.; and the following brethren:—Bros. Sack, Dyer, Clark, Crichton, Brown, Stampfer, Haines, Arnold, and others. The visitors were Bros. Thomas White, P.M. 22; C. Lorkin (Duke of Connaught Lodge); W. M. Wilmshurst, P.M. 81; P. Prov. G.S.B. Suffolk; Geo. Brown, W.M. Upton 1227; and others. The lodge was opened in due form, and Bros. Sack, Dyer, and Brown were raised to the Sublime Degree of M.M.'s, after which Bros. Clark, Stampfer, Haines, and Arnold were passed. The W.M. appointed Bro. A. Sack Secretary. The lodge was closed, and the members partook of a supper, well served by the worthy host, Bro. Crichton. We were very pleased to see such brotherly love; all seemed to desire to please, and the result was a very jolly evening. The veteran Bro. Henry Muggeridge was as proficient as ever, not only in his working of the lodge, but in his short but effective speech at the table. In response to the toast, of W.M., Bro. Muggeridge gave some excellent advice to young Masons as to the necessity of attention to Masonic duties, advising that a Mason should not take office without he determined to endeavour to carry out the duties to the best of his ability. He advocated that officers should go on by rotation, without some good cause should be shown for deviating from the rule. All Masons could not be stars of first magnitude. Men do not excel in all things, they have different talents—some are clever thinkers and not talkers, and therefore if a Mason is a good man (as he should be) he ought not to be passed over because he cannot work so well as his predecessor. Bro. Muggeridge advised that great care should be taken in the introduction of candidates for Masonry, and no man should be proposed without his worth being known to his introducer and seconder, and then he should be proposed only in open lodge. Bro. Muggeridge said: I also wish to advise young Masons to bear in mind one thing. Lodges are for Masonic duties only, therefore always prevent the lodge becoming a debating club; introduction of other than Masonic subjects for discussion is very wrong. It is done in French lodges, but I trust it will never be allowed in England. I thank Bro. White for speaking so kindly of me in proposing my health, and you, brethren, for the cordial manner in which you received it. If I may be allowed I will say how pleased I felt on the opening of the "Stability Lodge of Instruction" at Guildhall Tavern (where we meet every Friday at 6 o'clock precisely), in seeing the majority of the members of the Henry Muggeridge Lodge present for the purpose of joining. I will tell you I was initiated in the Lion and Lamb Lodge in 1839—therefore you will know I have great experience in the working of Masonry. My son (alas! I have no son now) was also initiated in the lodge, and was a past J.W. I little thought that at my time of life I should again be W.M. of a lodge, and that lodge bearing my name. Bro. Francis Fellows was really the founder of the lodge, and entitled to the position of W.M., but that brother would insist on my being the first Master. In conclusion, I can only say that I am grateful for the honours conferred upon me; first, in the lodge bearing my name, and secondly, in being the first Master. I am an old man, in the sere and yellow leaf, and cannot be expected to render much service, but I trust and feel assured the lodge will be a great success and live long after my departure. Let the W.M. look to the comfort of all members, and if anything happens to displease a member let him come at once to me or my successor, and get the matter put right—no petty pique, let us be brothers indeed. You all know Bro. Fellows, who in the ordinary way will be my successor, and what an active Mason he is; therefore the interest of the lodge will be perfectly safe in his hands, and he shall have every assistance from me. The other toasts were given and responded to, and the brethren departed about 11 o'clock, expressing hearty good wishes to each other.

LIVERPOOL.—Ancient Union Lodge (No. 203).—The usual monthly meeting of this lodge was held on Thursday evening, the 20th inst., at the Masonic Hall. Present: Bros. Julius Frank, W.M., in the chair, Jas. Winsor, I.P.M., acting as S.W.; Alexander Barton, J.W.; John Parsons, P.M.; Edw. Johnstone, P.M.; Thos. Sargeant, P.M.; C. Bromley, P.M., Treas.; and about 50 brethren and visitors. The lodge was opened by the W.M. in solemn form, when three brethren were raised, in a very able manner. A notice of motion was given by Bro. Sergeant, P.M., that this lodge subscribe the sum of £10 towards the Indian Famine Fund. Likewise a notice of motion was given by Bro. J. Winsor, I.P.M., that By-law 7 be altered, and the W.M. and Treasurer in future be elected in December instead as hitherto in February. Two cases from Lodges 1035 and 1320 were then attended to and relieved. The lodge was then closed with solemn prayer. Refreshments were served in the large banqueting room, where the usual toasts were duly proposed and honoured.

BIRKENHEAD.—Zetland Lodge (No. 537).—The first meeting of the winter session of this lodge was held at the Masonic Rooms, Argyle-street, Birkenhead, on Wednesday, 19th inst., under the presidency of Bro. W. S. Sutton, W.M., when Bro. H. R. C. Dawson was raised to the Sublime Degree of a M.M. Three gentlemen were also proposed as candidates for initiation at the next meeting in October, and the sum of 20 guineas was devoted to the Liverpool fund for the relief of the sufferers by the Indian Famine. Among the guests present at the lodge and banquet were Bros. W. Horner, P.G.S.W. of West Lancashire; E. H. Griffiths, P.G. Secretary; C. Dutton, P.P.S.G.W. Cheshire, Schultz, &c., &c.

WHITEHAVEN.—Lewins Lodge (No. 872).—The first meeting of this lodge after the summer vacation was held on Monday, the 17th instant. The Third Degree was gone through in a masterly style by the worthy W.M., Bro. W. B. Cowan, in raising Bro. Hogaith, after which Bro. Bell, S.W., presented to the lodge a life-sized portrait of Bro. Salisbury, P.M., who is held in the highest esteem by every member of the lodge for his extreme usefulness, and willingness to assist in all that concerns the welfare of the lodge. Bro. Salisbury, who has past the allotted span of life, is a wonderful man for activity, holding a position which demands his attention from 4 a.m. till late in the evening, which he accomplishes with perfect ease and without the least sign of fatigue, although exposed to all weathers. Bro. Salisbury thoroughly appreciates the honour conferred by placing his portrait in a conspicuous part of the lodge-room, and feelingly replied to the kind expressions of several brethren. The portrait was executed by Bro. Brunton, P.M., of Whitehaven, and was elaborately framed. The lodge was well attended. After labour all adjourned to the banquet-room, and there spent a jovial two hours, which will not be forgotten for some time.

COCKERMOUTH.—Skiddaw Lodge (No. 1002).—An emergency meeting of this lodge was held on Monday evening, the 24th inst. There were present Bros. W. F. Lamonby, P.M. and Secretary (Freemason), in the chair; W. Shilton, P.M., as S.W.; A. Taylor, P.M. 310, Carlisle, as J.W.; R. Robinson, P.M. and Treasurer; W. H. Lewthwaite, P.M. and Organist; Dr. Dodgson, P.M., as S.D.; G. Brash, J.D.; W. M'Quhae, Steward; F. R. Sewell, T. Bird, W. Rule, J. Evening, T. C. Robinson, H. Peacock, the Rev. Canon Hoskins, M.A., W. Potts (Tyler), and Dr. Fox, from Lodge 371, Maryport. The lodge having been opened in form, Bro. the Rev. Canon Hoskins, M.A., gave proof of his proficiency, was intrusted, and retired, when the lodge was opened in the Second Degree, and Bro. Hoskins, being re-admitted, was passed to the Degree of F.C. by the W.M. in the chair. Bro. Robinson, P.M., subsequently explained the tracing board, and also delivered the lecture appertaining to the degree, after which the lodge was closed in form.

WALTHAM.—King Harold Lodge (No. 1327).—The monthly meeting of the above lodge was held at the Britannia Hotel, Waltham New Town, Herts, on Thursday, the 20th September, 1877; Bro. Thomas Reilly, P.P.G.P. Herts, the W.M., in the chair, supported by Bros. Joseph Tydemann, P.M., P.P.A.G.P. Essex, S.W.; Andrew Malcolm, P.P.G.S. Herts, J.W.; Edward West, P.M., P.P.G.S.D. Herts, Treasurer; J. K. Young, P.P.A., G.D.C. Herts, P.M. and Secretary; William Gilbert, I.P.M., P.P.G.J.W. Herts; Edward Parker, P.M., P.P.G.P. Herts; Joseph Gaskell, P.M. 1076; Jacobs, S.D.; Knight, J.D.; Noyes, I.G.; W. Bradstock, W.S.; J. Robinson, W.S.; Steadman, Tyler; W. C. Bradstock, W. F. Cox, J. Kent, J. Sheldon, W. A. Rogers, S. J. Woolley, and M. J. O'Flanagan. Visitor: Bro. Osgathorp. The lodge was opened, and the minutes of last meeting confirmed. Mr. George Holdsworth was initiated, and Bros. O'Flanagan and Woolley were raised. Bro. Joseph Tydemann, the S.W., was unanimously elected W.M. for the ensuing year. Bro. Tydemann thanked the brethren in suitable terms for the honour they had conferred upon him. Bro. Edward West, P.M., &c., was unanimously re-elected Treasurer, and Bro. W. Steadman re-elected Tyler. It was proposed, seconded, and unanimously carried, that a P.M.'s jewel be presented to Bro. Reilly, the W.M., on his retiring from office in October, for the able manner in which he has filled the office during the past year. Bro. Reilly returned thanks to the lodge in suitable terms for the great kindness that had been shown to him during his year of office. The business of the evening was now brought to a close, and the brethren retired for refreshment. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given and duly honoured, and the brethren broke up after spending a very pleasant evening. The installation meeting will be held on Thursday, the 18th proximo.

STAINES.—Musgrave Lodge (No. 1597).—The last regular meeting of the year of this prosperous young lodge was held on the 15th inst., at the Angel and Crown Hotel, Staines. The members present were Bros. F. Kelly, P.P.G. Treas. Middlesex, W.M.; E. Amphlett, S.W.; W. H. Stevens, acting J.W.; J. G. Dunn, S.D.; G. P. Gillard, J.D.; H. F. Bing, I.G.; J. Gilbert, Tyler; F. G. Hubbard, A. S. Paterson, J. Wilson, E. Fairlie. Visitors: Bros. C. D. Hume, W.M. 209; P. Bullock, 214; R. Roberts, W.M. 742; and E. Cobbett, 1293. Lodge was opened punctually at three o'clock, and after the minutes of the previous meeting had been read and confirmed the ballot was taken for Mr. William Cock, with a favourable result, and that gentleman being in attendance he was duly admitted to the light of Freemasonry. Bro. F. G. Hubbard underwent his examination in a most satisfactory manner, and was advanced to the Second Degree. The time having arrived for the election of the W.M., Treasurer, and Tyler for the ensuing year, the ballot was declared unanimous in favour of Bro. E. Amphlett, as W.M., J. M. Levick, P.M., as Treasurer, and J. Gilbert, as Tyler. A vote was then passed for the usual P.M.'s jewel to the W.M., Bro. Kelly, and was supplemented by a proposition to present that esteemed brother with a ring, in recognition of his great and valuable services towards the prosperity of the lodge since its consecration. All business being ended, the lodge was closed according to ancient custom with solemn prayer. The usual banquet followed, after which the brethren separated until the next (installation) meeting in March, 1878.

Royal Arch.

ASHBY-DE-LA-ZOUCH.—St. Augustine's Chapter (No. 779).—The convocation of this chapter was held at the Town Hall, on the 13th inst. Among those present were Comps. W. Kelly, P.G. Superintendent; Rev. John Denton and H. Etherington Smith, J.P., P.Z.'s; Edward D. Mammatt, H.; W. Carrick Crofts, J.; Walter T. Allen, E.; Edward Faulkner, N.; Henry Blood, A.S., and others. The chapter having been opened, the first business was to install the Principals, the following being the officers elected for the ensuing year: Comps. Mammatt, M.E.Z.; Crofts, H.; Faulkner, J.; Allen, E. and Treasurer; Rev. John Denton (P.Z.), N.; Blood, P.S. The ceremony of installation was performed by the Grand Superintendent, Comp. Kelly, the Senior P.Z. of the chapter. A ballot having been taken for two candidates, who were duly elected, and one of whom, Bro. Balmforth, of Lodge No. 779, being in attendance, he was duly exalted, the newly appointed P.S., Comp. Blood, discharging his duties very efficiently, and the other ceremony and lectures of the Order being given by M.E. Comp. Kelly, to whom a vote of thanks was accorded for his presence and services on the occasion. A vote of condolence with the family of the I.P.Z. of the chapter, Comp. Love, on his recent lamented decease, was adopted, and a copy of which was ordered to be transmitted to the family, he having been a man greatly respected, a very zealous Mason and P.P.G.S.W. The chapter was then closed.

Knights Templar.

PROVINCIAL PRIORY OF WEST YORKSHIRE. The De Furnival Preceptory met on Friday, the 21st inst., at four o'clock p.m., in the Freemasons' Hall, Sheffield, when there were present Sir Knights W. Roddewig, P.P., as Preceptor; S. B. Ellis, Marshal; H. J. Garnett, P.P., Treas. and Registrar; T. Collinson, as Captain of the Lines; P. P's. Sir Knights E. Drury, R. Arnison, and W. H. Brittain, and several other Sir Knights. Comp. the Rev. Fielding Arthur Wolfe Hamilton Gell, M.A., Mus. Bac., was admitted and duly installed a Knight of the Order. Sir Knight S. B. Ellis was duly elected as Em. Preceptor for the ensuing year; Sir Knight Garnett was re-elected Treasurer; Comp. George Wilkinson was re-elected Serving Frater. The Provincial Prior of West Yorkshire, V.E. Sir Knight John Fisher, and his officers were then received under the Arch of Steel, when the Provincial Priory of West Yorkshire was duly opened in ample form. The muster roll was called. Amongst those present we noticed the following Sir Knights—Thos. Hill, Sub-Prior of West Yorkshire; Isaac Booth, Prov. Chancellor; Thos. Perkinson, and many others. The minutes of the Provincial Priory held at Bradford were taken as read (having been printed and circulated), and were confirmed. Sir Knight R. Arnison, of Sheffield, was elected Prov. G. Treasurer. The Provincial Prior then proceeded to appoint and invest his Prov. G. Officers for the ensuing year. The reports of the bye-laws and clothing committee were adjourned until the next provincial meeting, to be held in Leeds in February, 1878. The Provincial Priory was then duly closed. The De Furnival Preceptory was also duly closed. The Sir Knights then adjourned to the banqueting-room, where they partook of tea à la fourchette and other refreshments, to which they were entertained by the members of the De Furnival Preceptory. The usual toasts were given and duly honoured, there was some capital singing, and a most enjoyable evening was spent. The meeting was altogether a most enthusiastic one, and promises well for the future of the Order of the Temple in West Yorkshire. The new hall, and appointments of the Sheffield brethren were much admired. The Provincial Grand (Craft) Lodge met in Sheffield last July, and we understand that the Sheffield brethren have invited the Provincial Grand Royal Arch Chapter and the Provincial Grand Mark Lodge to hold early meetings in their new hall, and so go the round of all the Provincial Grand Bodies of West Yorkshire. Their invitation to the Provincial Priory (Knights Templar) seems to have had a very salutary effect on that august body, and we trust that the impetus that has been given may be maintained, in which case the Order of the Temple in West Yorkshire has indeed a brilliant future, for the energy and thoroughness of West Yorkshire Masonry is too well known to require any further comment at our hands. The arrangements of the Sheffield Sir Knights were complete, and deservedly ensured one of the most successful meetings it has ever been our pleasure to record.

INSTRUCTION.

LONDON MASONIC CLUB LODGE OF INSTRUCTION, held at (The Club), 101, Queen Victoria-street, E.C., met on Monday, the 24th inst., at 6 o'clock, p.m., after the summer vacation. Present Bros. Nelson Reed, W.M.; H. Wood, S.W.; J. A. Reed, J.W.; C. E. Smith, S.D.; W. J. Banman, J.D.; W. Beard, I.G.; C. J. Hogg, Treas.; J. E. Shand, Sec.; also Bros. Edell, 108; E. S. Scott, 1563, acting Preceptor; C. Ward, 1563; Walters, 538; Swaagman, 1563; and other members of lodge and club. The lodge was opened in due form, and the ceremony of initiation rehearsed. Bro. Ward answered the usual questions, and lodge opened in the Second Degree, and passing rehearsed. Lodge was opened in the Third Degree, and after the usual questions had been answered, Bro. Shand was raised to the Third Degree. Lodge was then closed down to the First Degree. Bro. Wood was unanimously elected W.M. for next meeting. Three members of the club were unanimously elected members of Lodge of Instruction. Lodge was then closed in the usual manner, and adjourned until Monday, 8th October, at 6 o'clock p.m.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF CHESHIRE.

Masonry in this ancient Masonic division of the kingdom seems to flourish like the green bay tree, judging from the very large and influential gathering on Thursday, the 20th inst. By command of Bro. the Right Honourable Lord de Tabley, Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Master, the annual Provincial Grand Lodge of Cheshire was held on that date at the Wallacey Concert Hall, Liscard, near Egremont and Birkenhead, to which all P.G. Officers, W.M.'s, P.M.'s, Officers, and M.M.'s in the province were invited. The response was hearty and significant. There was, as is usual on these annually recurring gatherings, a very large assembly of the fraternity to support the P.G.M., who is deservedly popular throughout the length and breadth of the Province of Cheshire.

The day was evidently reckoned quite a gala occasion by the inhabitants of the usually quiet village of Liscard, as there was a profuse display of flags and bunting at various points, and large crowds gathered to witness the unusual display made in connection with the meeting. The P.G. Lodge met under the banner of the Combermere Lodge, No. 605, which meets at Seacombe, and the Warren Lodge, No. 1276, meeting at Egremont. No better or more convenient place could have been found than the Concert Hall. Thanks to the liberality of Bro. S. Williams, the staircases of the hall were beautifully decked with evergreens, and the interior of the large concert room, where the P.G. Lodge met, presented a most striking appearance by reason of a plentiful display of bannerets, crimson cloth, &c., which were tastefully grouped and arranged at various parts of the room. The gathering was probably the largest which has yet been witnessed in connection with the Cheshire Provincial Grand Lodge, and the attendance included a great array of P.G. Officers, Masters, and officers from various parts of the province. The total attendance numbered about 420, the whole of the 39 lodges in the division being represented with one exception (the Southam Lodge, Wilmslow, No. 1054). Some were very numerous, amongst the foremost being the Mersey Lodge, Birkenhead, which sent 63; the Combermere Lodge, Seacombe, 25; the Warren Lodge, Egremont, 52; the Ellesmere Lodge, Runcorn, 14; and the Cestrian Lodge, Chester, 14.

The brethren were summoned to attend at noon, but owing to certain delays connected with the preliminary business, it was about half-past one o'clock before Bro. Lord De Tabley, P.G.M., accompanied by a brilliant array of P.G. Officers, entered and took his seat on the throne. Amongst those who supported Lord De Tabley were Bros. H. S. Alpass, P. G. Secretary W. Lancashire; E. Friend, P.P.G.J.D.; J. Salmon, P.P.G.S.D.; J. Skeaf, P.G.O. W. Lancashire; Henry Bulley, Past G.S.B. England; Aeneas J. McIntyre, Q.C., G. Registrar, England; R. Worrall, P.P.G.S.B.; Francis Smith, P.G.S. of W.; Jesse Banning, P.P.G.O., Cumberland and Westmoreland; Major Geo. Turner, P. G. Treasurer West Lancashire; W. Goodacre, P.P.G.P.; J. Pemberton, P.G.S. of W. W.L.; R. C. Mellor, P.P.G.J.D. N. Wales and Shropshire, J. A. Birch, P.P.G.S.D.; E. Simpson, P.G.S.D.; W. Greatrix, P.P.G.P.; P. Macmildrow, P.G.P. W.L.; E. H. Griffiths, P.G. Sec.; H. Lloyd, P.P.G.S.W.; T. Marwood, P.G.J.W.; the Hon. Wilbraham Egerton, P.P.G.S.W.; E. Ashworth, P.G.S.W.E.L.; R. Beales, P.P.G.J.W.; G. J. Howard, P.P.G.J.D.; C. Dutton, P.P.G.S.W.; Rev. R. Hodgson, P.P.G. Chaplain; Rev. C. W. Spencer Stanhope, P.P.G. Chaplain; Rev. J. W. Newell Tanner, P.P.G. Chaplain; G. Barlow, P.P.G.O.; E. Cuzner, P.G.O.; F. Jackson, P.G. Treas.; G. Burrows, P.P.G.J.D.; T. Johnson, P.P.G.S.B.; T. Bowers, P.P.G.A.D.C.; R. Cooper, P.P.G.P.; J. Siddely, P.G.J.D.; James T. Lea, P.P.G.S. of W.; S. Spratly, P.P.G.S.D.; T. Platt, P.P.G.J.D.; J. P. Platt, P.P.G.J.W.; J. Driscoll, P.G.P. Middlesex; H. Williams, P.P.G.S.B.W.L.; T. Wainwright, P.P.G.S.D.; W. R. Bainbridge, P.M., and P.H., 721, P.M. and D.C. 1276; J. Wood, Treas. 1094, W.L. (Freemason); T. Leighton, P.M. and Sec. 605; J. Beech, P.G.P.; S. F. Gosling, P.G.S.; W. Bennett, J.D. 477; J. W. McGee, P.G.A.D.C.; J. Andrews, 1213; J. Clayton, P.M. 89; A. Ogden, P.M. 89; D. The P.G.M. opened the P.G. Lodge according to ancient form, Bro. Horatio Lloyd acting as D.P.G.M., Bro. the Hon. W. Egerton, P.G.S.W., and Bro. T. Marwood, P.G.J.W., prayer being offered by Bro. the Rev. Richd. Hodgson, P.P.G.C. Apologies for non-attendance had been received from various P.G. Officers in Cheshire and West Lancashire, and Bro. E. H. Griffiths, P.G. Sec., then read the minutes of the last annual Provincial Grand Lodge held at Knutsford.

The P.G.M. (Lord De Tabley) then said it had been his habit at these annual meetings of his Provincial Grand Lodge to address a few words to the brethren on the past, present, and future aspects of Masonry in that province. He could not begin his remarks without expressing his gratitude to the Great Architect of the Universe for permitting him to meet his brethren again in the Provincial Grand Lodge. (Applause.) He considered the position in which he stood to them as their P.G.M., looking at the magnificent assembly before him, as one of the proudest which any man could obtain in the Craft. (Applause.) Every lodge, with one exception, was represented, and this showed that the brethren were determined to uphold the sacred principles of the Order. Their attendance that day proved that they felt he was resolved to rule over the Craft fairly, fearlessly, and to the best of his power. (Loud cheers.) It had been said "Happy is the country which has no history," and if such were the case then Masonry in the province of Cheshire was peculiarly happy, because there were very few events of any moment to record as having occurred during the past year. Twelve months since he alluded to the fact that death had taken from their ranks many worthy and good brethren; and he had now to refer to the death of another excellent brother, who had for some time filled the chair of Deputy-Provincial Grand Master—Bro. George Cornwall Leigh, who had always taken the greatest interest in the Craft. The lodges in the province had during the year worked in perfect harmony, with two exceptions. As there must be spots on the sun's face, so in Masonry they could not expect to be quite free from differences. Committees had been appointed to investigate the circumstances connected with the management of these two lodges, and he (the P.G.M.) hoped that peace and harmony would prevail in future. His lordship referred with satisfaction to the fact that they had succeeded in securing the election of both their candidates at the May election in connection with the Institution for Aged Freemasons, and concluded by congratulating the brethren on the flourishing state of Masonry throughout the world, and thanking them for the continued support he received at their hands. (Loud applause.)

The P.G.M. presented Bro. Milner, S.W., No. 537, with a charity jewel (by proxy); Bro. Marwood, P.G.J.W., and Bro. Sutton, W.M. 537, each with bars, in recognition of their services as Stewards at the charity festivals in London.

Bro. Smith, P.G.S. of Works, then presented the Prov. G. Lodge with a very handsome banner for use at the annual meetings, which the P.G. Master received and acknowledged in the name of the brethren—On the motion of the P.G.M., seconded by Bro. H. Lloyd, P.P.G.S.W., a vote of thanks to Bro. Smith was ordered to be recorded on the minutes of the Prov. Grand Lodge for the gift of the banner.

Bro. Lord De Tabley next moved that the sum of £100 be voted from the funds of the Prov. Grand Lodge in aid of the Indian Famine Relief Fund, and in doing so he said he was sure that Freemasons generally would not be behind their fellow-countrymen in trying to relieve the necessities of their fellow subjects in India. (Hear, hear, and applause.)

Bro. G. W. Latham, P.P.G.S.W., in seconding the motion, expressed a hope that their example would be followed by all the Prov. Grand and private Lodges in the country, thereby showing their brethren in India that they were not forgotten in their time of need by the members of the fraternity in England.

The motion was carried unanimously and by acclamation.

The P.G. Treasurer (Bro. F. Jackson) read the statement of accounts, from which it appeared that there was a balance in favour of the Prov. G. Lodge of £453 12s. 5d., and in favour of the fund of benevolence of £581 6s. 1d. On the motion of the P.G.M., seconded by Bro. McIntyre the accounts were passed, and Bro. Jackson was re-appointed P.G. Treasurer.

The R.W.P.G.M. then appointed the Hon. Wilbraham Egerton, M.P., as the Deputy Provincial Grand Master (in room of the late Bro. G. Cornwall Leigh), and after being obligated he took his place in the Prov. G. Lodge in that capacity.

Lord De Tabley appointed and invested the following as his officers for the ensuing year:—

Aeneas J. McIntyre, Q.C., G. Registrar of England ..... Prov. G.S.W.
T. Marwood (re-appointed) ..... Prov. G.J.W.
Rev. C. E. Graham Jones, M.A. .... Prov. G. Chap.
F. Jackson (re-elected) ..... Prov. G. Treas.
C. H. Hinde ..... Prov. G. Reg.
E. H. Griffiths (re-appointed) ..... Prov. G. Sec.
R. Gracie ..... Prov. G.S.D.
J. Sillitoe ..... Prov. G.J.D.

T. M. Lockwood ..... Prov. G.S. of W.
T. Matthews ..... Prov. G.A.D.C.
Capt. A. Terry ..... Prov. G.S.B.
E. Cuzner ..... Prov. G. Org.
J. Ridehalgh ..... Prov. G. Purs.
M. McNerney, H. Matthews, S. Williams, J. G. Parker, G. J. Davies, W. Jones ..... Prov. G. Stwds.

Holloway ..... Prov. G. Tyler.
Bro. Captain Cope was appointed Chairman of the Fund of benevolence. The P.G.M. intimated that he would hold his next lodge at Nantwich.

On the motion of the P.G.S.W., seconded by the Rev. J. W. Tanner, P.P.G.C., a vote of thanks was passed to the Rev. T. Preston Ball, M.A., for granting the use of St John's Church for the afternoon service. The Prov. Grand Lodge was closed in due form, and with solemn prayer, offered by the newly-appointed P.G. Chaplain.

At the close of business the brethren marched in procession to St. John's Church for Divine service.

The sermon was preached by Bro. C. E. Graham Jones, M.A., P.G. Chaplain, who took his text from 2nd Samuel, 1st chap, verse 26: "Thy love to me was wonderful, passing the love of women." The musical service was under the direction of Bro. E. Cuzner, P.G.O., who presided at the organ, and was assisted by Master W. E. Cuzner, Master T. Griffith (choristers of Chester Cathedral), Misses Florence and Alice Cuzner, Bros. Humphries, T. Knowles, and Cottingham, and Messrs. Orme and H. Cuzner. The responses were Tallis's, the chants by Buck and Whittington, and the anthem was Webb's, "The Lord is the portion of the just." A collection, amounting to about £18, was made at the close of the service in aid of the Provincial Fund of Benevolence and the Wallacey and Seacombe Cottage Hospital and Dispensary.

The brethren then returned to the Concert Hall, where a capital banquet was served by Bro. C. H. Berry, No. 477, of the Kanelagh Hotel, Birkenhead, whose catering gave universal satisfaction. Lord De Tabley, P.G.M., presided, supported by a large number of P.G. officers. There were altogether about 200 brethren present.

The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given by his lordship, "The Earl of Carnarvon, Pro G.M., and the Officers of the G.L." being responded to by Bro. Aeneas McIntyre, G. Reg., P.G.S.W., who said they must all be delighted to find that amongst those entrusted with the guidance of the affairs of the nation there were so many representatives of Freemasonry, showing that the great principles of the Craft exercised undoubted influence.

Bro. McIntyre then gave "The Right Honourable Lord De Tabley, R.W.P.G.M.," who in acknowledging the toast said he was very proud of the progress which Masonry had made in the Province, and he hoped that during the few remaining years he might rule over them he would still enjoy the same loyalty and attachment of his brethren. (Applause.) He urged a larger charity towards their fellow-creatures—not the charity of mere giving, but the giving of sympathy where sympathy was needed, and acting the part of a friend to all who might require help. That was the charity which Freemasons ought to practise. His lordship concluded by urging upon the brethren the necessity of looking after the respectability and good character of candidates proposed for admission into the Order rather than the seeking for mere numbers.

Bro. T. Marwood, P.G.J.W., acknowledged the toast of "The Hon. W. Egerton, M.P., D.P.G.M., and the other P.G. Officers." "The visiting P.G. Masters and Officers," given by Bro. Latham, P.P.G.S.W., was acknowledged by Bro. Salmon, P.G.J.W. North Wales and Shropshire. Lord De Tabley gave "The W.M.'s of the Combermere and Warren Lodges, 605 and 1276," which was responded to by Bro. T. Shaw, W.M. 605, and Bro. J. Taylor, W.M. 1276. "The Prov. G. Stewards," also proposed by the P.G.M., was acknowledged by Bro. McNerney, P.M., P.G.S. The Tyler's toast closed the after-banquet proceedings. An excellent musical programme was given by the party which rendered the service at the church.

THE GRAND ENCAMPMENT OF THE UNITED STATES.

GRAND ENCAMPMENT.—The great event of the twentieth triennial session of this Grand Body culminated in one of the finest spectacles that has ever yet been witnessed in the United States. Cleveland, Ohio, where the session was held, has been one constant scene of excitement since the session began, and to use the expression of the local of that city, the Cleveland Leader, "the city gives itself up to the occasion," which, with flowers, flags, and music, speeches and responses, and evening gatherings, presented a programme that is not seen even in a lifetime by the oldest of us. Speaking of the procession on Tuesday, it says:—

"The city made it a grand holiday, shut up its workshops, banks, and stores during the forenoon, and at an early hour began to pour into the down-town streets. Thousands of people from the country came in for the day, and, all in all, it was one of the grandest occasions ever seen in the Forest City.

The various commanderies formed in their appointed places at the proper hour, in response to the signal guns agreed upon. They got started on the proper time, and how they went and were received will be found recorded in its proper place further on.

THE PROCESSION.

"There they come!" Clear and sharp on the air rung the signal from some wide-awake watcher who stood on an elevated point of advantage, and sighted the first plume as it fluttered in sight by the big National Bank building. It was caught on the vocal bound, as it were, by the concourse of eager people who were packed up between the curb and the buildings as close as herrings in a box. There was a rush to the front, an eager wave forward of the mass of people, and an elongating of necks to catch the first glimpse of the column.

A single wild note rung out, and after it a long roll, as though fifty drums had joined in their voices together, by which the mighty host might keep step as a man. Then a score of gaily caparisoned steeds danced into sight, carrying proudly as many Knights, gay in gold and white and crimson. A band in gray next filled the vision, and close behind them marched the first column of Knights, whose rich uniforms caught the dazzle of the sun as it touched the edge of their burnished swords. Four milk-white steeds drew next a carriage, which in turn was followed by other carriages in which rode the honoured officers and members of the Grand Encampment.

They were a fine body of men, and it did one good to look at them. On some sat age and dignity, while on a few the traces of early manhood were yet distinctly marked. They were representative American citizens, and represented the wealth and the manliness and the intelligence of two dozen States.

Along behind, after an interval of some moments, a wide line of policemen came marching up, almost filling the street from curb to curb and keeping the crowd of spectators in its proper place. Then came half a score of aids on horseback, and after them another band that set every pulse to beating in time with a stirring march. The Cleveland Greys in full dress uniform, with the even precision of the veteran, and with their polished bayonets shining in the sun like points of lights, held the next position in the line of advance. Then Oriental Commandery, which certainly needs no introduction to Cleveland, came in regular order, and held their own in appearance and drill with any body in the procession.

To attempt any description of the column would of course be impossible, or to give in detail the points that caught the eye as they marched past. It was a glittering pageant, set to music, from one end of the line to the other, and one band hardly began to fill the ear of the listener before its notes blended in with the music from another band that was close upon its heels. All was light, and sound, and motion. Here came a long line of Knights in white and black; then a band in blue, with facings of red over white; then a banner of silk, with the words "Toledo, No. 7," in green on a ground of black or "Tiffin," set off by the picture of a solitary Knight on horseback; then "Massillon," in gold on a blue ground; "Reed," of Dayton, backed by a large red cross set in edgings of gold; and then other bands and other Knights, and other music, until everything seemed lost in the rush of excitement.

Then came more aids on horseback, and "Hanselmann" shining out in conspicuous letters on a silken banner. Close upon its heels marched the Seventh Regiment Band, in deep blue, of regulation cut. Then Youngstown, Sandusky, Conneaut and other Ohio commanderies followed in such quick succession that it was almost impossible to read the names on the banners as they passed.

New York and Kentucky followed next with numerous commanderies; then Rapier, of Indianapolis, that gave some fancy drilling; then Louisiana, No. 2, the distinctive features of which were six men clothed in long white robes and red cowls—the meaning and intent of which is unintelligible to the non-Masonic lookers-on.

On they go, in seemingly endless column. Philadelphia, Pittsburg, Detroit, far-off Kansas, Texas, the "Lone Star" of Masonry, all added their contributions of stalwart men and fancy uniforms.

At last a deep roll of drums—seemingly endless—was heard, and a new interest revived, as the heads went higher to see what was coming next. A drum corps, perfect in precision, came into sight, and after it a band with silver instruments, and clothed in uniforms of blue and red.

After it marched Apollo Commandery, of Chicago, a body of men hard to equal in appearance and style, and such as always reflect credit upon the place from which they hail.

Next came St. Louis, hardly less attractive in appearance and style. After them on swept the line, the extent of which can only be judged by the list participating, as given below, and the beauty of which can only be known by those who were able to see it.

The Grand Encampment, in carriages, passed through the Public Square to a point in Superior-street, in front of the City Hall, where they halted, while the chief officers took their places in the stand which had been provided them on the south side of the street just opposite the Hall. Here they stood and reviewed the columns as they passed.

The line was just one hour and a half—taking out three minutes for halts—in passing the Leader office, and that on a good steady business gait. When the last of the line had passed the reviewing stand, the carriages of the Grand Encampment again fell into line, and marched over the given course with the procession of Knights.

When the last of the line had passed Euclid-avenue on Erie-street, the head of the column was resting on Euclid, a little below Perry-street—a fact which will give any one acquainted with the territory some idea of the size.

Crowds of people literally packed the pavements on either hand, the whole extent of the route. Innumerable residences along the whole line were decorated in beautiful style, and in front of many stood men with pails and pitchers of water, which was a godsend to the tired Knights. The only drawback was the heat, which was much greater than on the average summer day in Cleveland. Several men gave out, and were obliged to retire from the ranks, but, fortunately, no serious prostration was recorded.

When the head of the column had reached a point on Euclid-avenue, a halt was ordered of each commandery as it came up. The hot and tired men were marched to the cooling shade on the north side of the street, and along back on Willson and Prospect, while the officers and members of the Grand Encampment passed by in review. The procession then re-formed and marched straight down to the square. The Grand Encampment proceeded direct to the Criminal Court Room, where the sessions were to be held, while the various commanderies marched to their various places of stoppage.

The full list of commanderies participating, as prepared by Captain General Lytle, is as follows:

FIRST DIVISION.—Sir J. Burton Parsons, commanding. Aids, Sirs F. W. Pelton and H. C. Monfort. Cleveland Greys, with band, followed by Oriental Commandery, escorting the Grand Commandery of Ohio. In all, 300 swords.

SECOND DIVISION.—Sir George W. Short, commanding. Aids, Sirs C. H. Flack, and Seth M. Laird. Band, and twelve commanderies of Ohio, numbering 716 swords.

THIRD DIVISION.—Sir James Gordon, commanding. Aids, George H. Willis and William S. Forshee. Band, and twelve commanderies of the State of Ohio, numbering 880 swords.

FOURTH DIVISION.—Sir E. F. Brown, commanding. Aids, Isaac Reynolds and John C. Mackintosh, followed by eight commanderies of New York, 558 swords, and seven commanderies of Kentucky, 288 swords.

FIFTH DIVISION.—David R. Hunt, commanding. Aids, S. Sickles and C. P. Chapman. Band, thirteen commanderies of Indiana, two of Washington, D.C., one of Vermont, one of Maine, and seven of Canada. In all, 976 swords.

SIXTH DIVISION.—De Witt C. Carroll, commanding. Aids, F. Lynch and W. A. Rupert. Band, and eight commanderies of Pennsylvania and one of Delaware. 549 swords.

SEVENTH DIVISION.—C. Laing, commanding. Aids, W. H. Huntington and T. T. Hoffman. Band, with seven commanderies from Pennsylvania, three from Texas and one from Mississippi. In all, 864 swords.

GLOBE THEATRE.

Whilst very nearly all around the theatrical world is aglow with novelties, this house continues to draw, with comparatively old stock, a large share of public support. With "Stolen Kisses" at eight o'clock, and "The Lion's Tail" at ten, Mr. Righton presents a bill of fare both palatable and digestible. Mr. Merritt's homely little drama, if not overflowing with smart dialogue, lacks not interest of plot and incident, and from the rising to the fall of the curtain, the attention of the audience is fairly held by the action of the piece. Change of cast having been effected since its first production, Mr. Macklin now effectively supplies the place of Mr. Leather, and Miss Rachel Sanger has slipped into the shoes of Miss Lydia Foote, the latter lady with that fickleness peculiar to her charming sex, having abandoned sweet "Stolen Kisses," for showy "Aluminium Gold." Of the burlesque that follows enough has already been said as to the blemishes of this trifle, but whether good, bad or indifferent it pleases, a fact fully testified by the merriment it provokes, and the "long run" it has already enjoyed. Thanks to the exertions of that "naughty boy" Mr. Righton, the "Lion's Tail" now wags with a joyous vitality that is astonishing, considering the depression and limpness it displayed when first presented to the view of a critical audience.

ROYAL PARK THEATRE.

Since this very comfortable Theatre has been under the management of Madam St. Claire, play-goers, whether residing in the immediate neighbourhood or not, have had much to be thankful for.

"Arrah-Na-Pogue" has within the last fortnight been substituted for "The Rake's Progress," and what with the excellence of this favourite play and the powerful acting of Mr. Shiel Barry, and Mr. and Mrs. Sullivan, a most enjoyable evening may be passed.

Romeo and Juliet are again to figure on the stage, this time in a French opera, "Les Amants de Vérone," by the Marquis d'Ivry, which is to be played this winter at the Patis Lyrique. Twelve composers have already set the Shakespearean libretto, beginning with Benda in 1772; and ending with Gounod in 1867; but not one of the operas has been a lasting success. Will the unfortunate "thirteenth" belie its character?

MASONIC SONGS.—A selection of Masonic Songs set to popular airs, written by Bro. E. P. Philpots, M.D., F.R.G.S., is now ready, forming a handsome volume, bound in cloth, with gilt edges, 3s. Sent post free from the office of this paper on receipt of stamps or post-office order value 3s. 2d.—Adv.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Old Wounds Sores, and Ulcers.—Daily experience confirms the fact which has triumphed over opposition for thirty years—viz., that no means are known equal to Holloway's remedies for curing bad legs, sores, wounds, diseases of the skin, erysipelas, abscesses, burns, scalds, and in truth all cases where the skin is broken. To cure these infirmities quickly is of primary importance, as the compulsory confinement indoors weakens the general health. The ready means of cure are found in Holloway's Ointment and Pills, which heal the sores and expel their cause. In the very worst cases the Ointment has succeeded in effecting a perfect cure, after every other means had failed of giving any relief. Desperate cases best display its virtues.—(Adv.)

SKETCHES OF MASONIC CHARACTER

No. VI.

BRO. WALKINGTON IN THE TYROL.

Though Bro. Walkington is not a shining candlestick, he is emphatically a "brick" in the great building of Masonry. He is still only Bro. Walkington, and though not distinguished by mysterious initials or decorated with gorgeous jewels, he is a worthy man and a zealous member of his lodge, the "Alexandra." A true friend, an agreeable companion, and an intelligent and cultivated Mason, he forms part of that mass of untitled brethren who are always good work, and not averse to refreshment, and who, keeping the golden mean "moderation" as between two extremes, are ornaments to Freemasonry, and do good service to humanity. Though it is more than possible that Bro. Walkington will never be a W.M., (for there are both luck as well as fashion in such things), few stand higher Masonically than Bro. Walter Walkington on the long roll of our brethren. Though not a dignitary he is looked up to, and often quoted, and more than one pleasant gathering and more than one agreeable reunion owes its success to the zealous if unrewarded labours of our good brother.

In one point he has always been distinguished, he has always been a persistent advocate of Women's Rights, in respect of our Masonic assemblies, and his well-known lodge, the "Alexandra," is famed for the amiability and empressment with which it welcomes its lady guests, and dispenses "charming hospitality," as a French brother puts it. Indeed, Miss Jones said in our hearing, that "she had never spent a jollier day," but as she was talking earnestly to a very good-looking young man, we think that might have something to do with the serene contentment of our charming sister.

Well, Walkington and his chum, Bro. Bolsover, have started for a walking tour in the Tyrol, and having made a most successful journey, have returned to the metropolis, to delight the society they live in, and to cheer up the wives of their boroms, for neither, wisely enough, would take his wife with him. First of all Walkington said "my wife don't like walking, and I shall always have to be getting her a carriage," and then Bolsover added "mine can't travel without seven large boxes, and so I vote we leave them at home; we shall get on better without them."

But our fair sisters have in the meantime been down at Broadstairs with their children and nurses, they have done very well, for not only can women take care of themselves, but we believe they like every now and then to be left to themselves, and to be quit of the lords of the creation. Some people do aver that under such circumstances they become quite natural, put off all acting and masquerade, and speak the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth one to another, though we hold, however, that this is a scandal on that excellent, and reliable, and suffering, and angelic sex.

Walkington says, Bolsover agrees, and we believe, the assurance that they have never enjoyed themselves more, never were better in health or travelled more quietly and satisfactorily. In fact Bro. Jones declares "that if a man wants to travel with satisfaction to himself he must leave his women at home." Jones, no doubt speaks feelingly, but we have known "women," as they term them, who were the best and cheeriest of fellow voyagers, who made light of every difficulty, and added greatly to the zest of everything. In fact women often make better travellers than men, for they never grumble and are always pleased.

However our two friends departed, and a most prosperous time they had of it. They saw Innsbruck and Meran and Bozen. They looked with admiring gaze on those "everlasting hills," they learned to appreciate the simple and loyal character of the Tyrolese, they beheld one or two gray headed survivors of those who fought with Andreas Hofer in great days of old. They conversed with not a few who had seen "Vater Radetzky" and followed their old leader exultingly to certain victory. They have fished in Tyrolean streams, loitered amid Tyrolean passes, stood reverently within Tyrolean Churches, and watched the contrasted glory of the varying shades of hill and dale, and woods and trees, and mountain rivulets. Nay, they have even taken part in a "Schutzen Fest." In fact, they have come back, enthusiastic about "Tyrol" and the Tyrolese. Bolsover especially, (who ought, as Mrs. Bolsover says, to know better), still talks persistently about a "Tyrolemium" with a short petticoat and a neat ankle, as the Germans say "gut gewachsenes madchen" to whom he lost his heart; (he a married man), at a wayside Tyrolean Inn. "Ah? those married men," says Mrs. Bolsover, "they always behave so ill."

If you meet Walkington and Bolsover at the Alexandra Lodge, you will hear of a most delightful "outing," and a great deal about the Tyrol which is both interesting and true. If any of our good brethren are either depressed or dyspeptic, we would advise them another year to leave all their "impediments" behind them, "safely stored away somewhere," as Jones puts it, and not forgetting their passports, to take, rod in hand, a walking tour in the Tyrol. They will come back, we feel sure, refreshed and strengthened in body and in mind. Time changes many things here below, and ourselves not the least, but the old Tyrolean hills remain the same, telling in their stillness and beauty the wonders of beneficent nature, of the graces of some of the finest scenery in the world, and of the attractive existence of a patriarchal and loyal people. On everything of earth "decay's effacing fingers" and time's ruthless march leave a tell-tale token, but the glories and the marvels of the handiwork of T.G.A.O.T.U. still exist unchanged in inscrutable majesty, to witness of a Divine Original, and to educate and elevate not the least in the Tyrol, the intellectual mind of man.

NOTES ON ART, &amp;c.

THE NILE.—The height of the Nile was telegraphed on Monday last 16 cubits 4 kerats. Thus the retreat of the flood continues, while the average date of the highest point is close at hand. The official statement of the annual height of the river since 1825 is before us, and 19 cubits 4 kerats is the lowest measure recorded. The 31st of August is the earliest date given for the end of the rise, and the 27th of October is the latest on record. But it has generally occurred between the 20th of September and the 10th of October.

The steady progress of works of charity in London may be traced as strongly as ever in the two excellent little volumes, "Low's Hand-book to the Charities of London," (S. Low and Co.), edited and revised to August, 1877, by C. Mackeson, F.S.S.; and "The Royal Guide to the London Charities for 1877-78," by Herbert Fry, (Hardwicke and Bogue).—Even while "War in the East Relief Fund," "Indian Famine Relief Funds," and so forth, are claiming all our superfluous cash, we find from such addenda as an "Invalid's Home Association," or a "Kyrle Society," to supply a collection of sea-weed, shells and artistic objects for poor homes and sick rooms, that domestic benevolence still strikes out new channels for its tranquil flow. We are glad to note in the preface to either hand-book an absence of the antagonism observable last year between the older and smaller charities and certain new and slightly aggressive "organisations." There is clearly room for all to work without doing danger to one another.

Cleopatra's Needle was to start for England either on Thursday or yesterday (Friday), weather permitting, the vessel being christened on Wednesday. The rudder, mast, deck-house, and "bilge pieces," to procure stability, have been fitted to the ship, which is to be towed by the steamer "Olga."

The Castellani Collection of gems, bronzes, marbles &c., which have been exhibited in New York for some time past, and was to have been bought by the Americans, may, after all, come back to the Old World, as only a very small portion of the purchase-money—£60,000—has been obtained. Our British Museum may yet have a chance of securing these treasures.

The Conference of Librarians opens at the London Institution on the 2nd prox., when an exhibition of every kind of literary appliances will be held. Over eighty libraries have joined the movement, and the conference suggests the formation of a "Library Association of the United Kingdom."

THE NEW NATIONAL OPERA HOUSE.—We believe that many of the promoters no longer expect that the partially erected structure on the Thames Embankment will ever be completed as a National Opera-house, and there is some probability that it will eventually fall into the hands of others, and be converted into a grand hotel, for which the site is considered to be exceptionally well adapted. Whatever its ultimate fate may be, it is certain that within the last week or two the unfinished building has been closely examined by surveyors and other experts on behalf of a body of capitalists whose object is to complete it as an hotel. We understand that their opinion is that without disturbing either the external walls of the building or several of those inside, the shell of the building could be adapted to hotel purposes without difficulty, while among other features of the original design the grand and other staircases could be retained. In consequence of this the promoters of the new project are prepared to make an offer to the Opera-house representatives to take over the building in its present condition at a valuation, and then to complete it without further delay as an hotel.—Architect.

ROYAL ACADEMY OF MUSIC.—The competition for the residue of the Stenale Bennett Scholarship (two terms) was held recently, the examiners being Mr. F. R. Cox, Mr. H. C. Lund, Mr. Walter Macfarren, and the Principal (Professor Macfarren). The Scholarship was awarded to Henry J. Cockram, Edwin M. Flavell being commended.

THE BATON IN THE KNAPSACK.—On Sunday week the Duc d'Aumale, in presence of the garrison of Chantmont, handed the order of Grand Officer of the Legion of Honour to General Jeanningros, saying—"Soldiers.—Forty-two years ago Corporal Jeanningros, who, like you, carried his knapsack and musket, received his first wound. Thirty-four years ago I handed to Lieutenant Jeanningros, who was called the Bayard of the Zouaves, the Cross as Knight of the Legion of Honour. To-day I hand to General Jeanningros, six times wounded on the field of battle, the Star of Grand Officer. This order has never decorated a more valiant heart."—Pall Mall Gazette.

While waiting still for that revised version which some fancy will supersede our present almost incomparable Bible, we may welcome at once as a substitute and a preparative the "Revised English Bible" (Eyre and Spottiswoode), presented to us by J. G. is the name of four well-known scholars. Though hardly so bold in all its changes as will be the offspring of the Revising Committee, it does ample justice on the mistranslations (often purely unintelligible) of the poetic books of the Old Testament in the Bible of King James, no less than to the textual changes which modern criticism has rendered necessary in the New. Hardly, indeed, is it too much to say that to ordinary readers the force and drift of chapter upon chapter of ancient prophecy will dawn for the first time after perusal of its renderings. An occasional phrase of modern form where modernising was not necessary to the sense is the one defect—not, however, a slight one—we have noticed.

THE "FREEMASON" INDIAN FAMINE FUND.—Intending subscribers to this fund are earnestly requested to send in their subscriptions, large or small, at as early a date as convenient. Upwards of £100 has already been received, a list of which will appear in the Freemason of October 6th, together with any sums that may reach the office (198, Fleet-street) up to 6 o'clock p.m. on Thursday.

Bro. His Royal Highness Prince Leopold, R.W.P.G.M. Oxon, who for the last few days has been the guest of Sir Coutts Lindsey, at Balcarres, arrived on Tuesday night at Mount Melville, the residence of Bro. J. Whyte Melville, the convener of Fifeshire.

The Marquis of Hartington will, on the 17th of next month pay a visit to Chesterfield, to lay the foundation-stone of a hall which is to be erected in that town to the memory of George Stephenson. The hall will cost about £12,000. It will be used for science and art-teaching and other educational work.

Madame Worrell-Duval announces a Grand Evening Concert to take place at the Horns Assembly Rooms, Kennington, on Thursday, Oct. the 18th, when several well-known artists will appear.

The annual meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Cumberland and Westmoreland was held yesterday (Friday), at Cockermouth, under the banner of the Skiddaw Lodge, No. 1002. A full report of the proceedings will appear in our next.

The first picture provided for the new Town Hall at Manchester, just opened, is one which represents the introduction by Bro. Hyde Clarke of the Corporation of Manchester to the late Sultan of Turkey at Buckingham Palace.—City Press.

The Masonic Hall at North Attleboro, Mass., worth 20,000 dollars, was destroyed by fire, February, the 28th 1877. Many of the records were destroyed. Insurance 14,000 dollars.

Another "oldest Mason" has been discovered in Castleton, Richmond County, New York, in the person of Bro. Elijah Pratt, aged 91 years. He has been a Mason 65 years.

The corner stone of Solomon's Temple, which has been discovered, lies ninety feet below the present surface of the ground. In a niche a Phœnician jar was found.

TURKEY.—There is a Royal Arch Chapter at Constantinople, working under the Irish Constitution, which has been in existence for nine years; and is said to be in a very flourishing condition.

THE HOSPITAL SATURDAY FUND.—The amount collected in the boxes in the streets and large establishments of London on Hospital Saturday was £835, being a slight increase on the sum realised in the same way last year. Of this amount £685 12s. 5d. was contained in the boxes lodged at Messrs. Hoare's Bank up to 11.30 p.m., and was made up as follows:—Gold, £60; Silver, £451 18s. 6d.; Copper, £163 14s. The boxes placed in the steamboats brought in £31 16s. Those kindly put up by Messrs. Spiers and Pond on the counters of their various establishments realised £27 13s. 6d., and those put up by Messrs. Faulkner £1 12s. 11d. The remainder was made up of money deposited in boxes at Covent Garden Theatre, Holborn Restaurant, sundry hospitals, &c.

MANCHESTER.—For the information of the fraternity in Manchester, the publisher begs to state that the Freemason may now be obtained at Overall's, 47, Bridge-street, Manchester, on Saturday morning at 8 o'clock.

LIVERPOOL AS A MILITARY CENTRE.—The Government, it is stated, have resolved to form Liverpool into a military centre in place of Warrington, which is found to be inconvenient and disadvantageous. The barracks at Rupert-lane are to be extended and improved, and additional barracks are to be erected on an adjacent site for the artillery and militia. There was considerable opposition to the proposal for making Liverpool a military centre when it was under consideration some years ago.

In answer to the numerous letters that the publisher has received from brethren in Liverpool, we beg to state that the Freemason is to be obtained in Liverpool on Friday afternoon at 5 o'clock, at the Office, 2, Monument place; at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street; and at the Landing Stage.

Lord Hartington has accepted the invitation of the Liberal Association for the West of Scotland to take part in a gathering in Glasgow in November. His lordship has also accepted similar invitations from Liberal associations in the East and North of Scotland.

Madame Christine Nilsson will, early next month, sing at concerts at Manchester, Liverpool, Birmingham, and Brighton, prior to her departure to fulfil her engagement in Russia.

PERGE MURDER.—On Wednesday Mr. Justice Hawkins continued ably to sum up the evidence. In the course of his remarks having alluded to the momentous issues to be decided, his lordship expressed his belief that the jury would give their verdict without sympathy or prejudice, and regardless of the consequences which might ensue. After a passing tribute of praise to the counsel engaged in the case, the learned Judge elaborately reviewed the testimony adduced, his address lasting ten hours and a half. The jury retired at twenty minutes to ten o'clock, and returned at five minutes past eleven, giving a verdict of "wilful murder" against all the prisoners, but recommending the two women to mercy, especially Alice Rhodes. Sentence of death was then passed amid almost unprecedented excitement.

The consecration of the New Finsbury Park Lodge, No. 1695, took place on Thursday last. A report will appear in our next.

The Pythagorean Lodge of Instruction, and the Pythagorean Chapter of Instruction, No. 79, are about to remove from the Prince of Orange Tavern, Greenwich-road, to the Portland Hotel, London-street, Greenwich. The ceremonies of consecration and installation (Craft) will be there rehearsed on the 10th of October, at 8 o'clock in the evening, by Bro. James Terry Prov. G.D.C. Herts. The Lodge of Instruction meet every Wednesday evening, at 8 o'clock, and the Chapter of Instruction every Friday evening at the same hour Bro. James Shaw. I.P.M. 79, and Bro. H. Roberts, P.M. 79, are the Preceptor and Hon. Secretary respectively of the lodge; and Comp. George K. Lemann, and Comp. James Griffin, Preceptor and S.E. respectively of the chapter.

Bro. A. W. Hume, M.A., of Allison Tower, Dulwich Common, S.E., late Second Senior Assistant Master and School Secretary of Dulwich College, now receives pupils, whom he instructs, with the aid of a competent staff, in all the branches of a liberal education.

The Lord Mayor acknowledges the receipt of £100 from the Provincial Grand Lodge of Cheshire, for the Indian Famine Relief Fund.

The natives of Bombay have made all preparations for the reception of the statue of the Prince of Wales, in commemoration of the visit of H.R.H. Herr Boehm, who is the artist, represents the Prince as a field-marshal, on his Arab, "Aleph," raising his right hand, and holding the bride with his left. The figure was designed from life, and has secured her Majesty's approval. It is being cast at Pimlico.

The ceremony of installation will be worked on Tuesday evening, the 2nd October next, in the Prosperity Lodge of Instruction, No. 65, at 119, Leadenhall-street, E.C. Bro. L. A. Leins, P.M. 65 and 1471, will be the Installing Master. Lodge will open at 7 o'clock precisely, when it is to be hoped there will be a good muster of the brethren there.

The half-yearly meeting of the shareholders of the Crystal Palace District Gas Company was held at the Albion Tavern, Aldersgate-street, on Thursday week, the chair being taken by Bro. Erasmus Wilson, supported by Dr. Hetley, Messrs. H. P. Stephenson, F. L. Linging, G. Livesey, C. L. Wilson, and Bros. J. Glaisher, M. Ohren (sec.), &c. The report for the half-year ending the 30th June showed that the general working of the company had been satisfactory.

The list of brethren present at the Consecration of the All Saints Lodge, No. 1716, had not reached the Office at the time of going to press, Thursday, 10 p.m.

READING.—Kane Lodge, New York City, now possesses a Masonic library of over eight hundred bound volumes, procured at a cost of thirty-five hundred dollars. They are adding to it, and increasing their literary wealth every day. A noble example to the fraternity; "for," says Lord Bacon, "reading makes the full man." A man must always be a dwarf who is not a reading man.

When the impervious qualities of vulcanised india-rubber were first utilised as a protection against rain, all who had business or occupation of any kind in the open air, eagerly availed themselves of the discovery, in the hope that at last it would be possible to laugh to scorn the caprices of our uncertain climate. Soon, however, the wearers of the new material were sharply reminded by Dame Nature that her laws were not to be rashly interfered with. India-rubber, it is true, kept rain out, but it also prevented the evaporation of perspiration, and thus caused colds, coughs, inflammation of the lungs, and diseases innumerable of a worse character than those they guarded against. Consequently, the ingenuity of manufacturers and designers was devoted to the discovery of some methods of ventilation which should obviate the evil. Many plans were tried, but with all there was some drawback, while the garments produced had, without exception, the one grand characteristic of ugliness, until in 1869, Messrs. Cooper, Box, and Co., now of Queen Victoria-street, patented their design of the "Talethes," the only waterproof coat which combines perfect ventilation in all its parts with the appearance of an ordinary frock or great coat, which might be turned out by a first-rate West End tailor. The "Talethes" coat at once became popular, and has remained so. H.R.H. the Prince of Wales was one of its earliest patrons, and for the last seven or eight years has rarely been seen on a race-course, at the meet, at a shooting party, or any similar out-door gathering in doubtful weather, without the protection of a "Talethes." At the present time this coat is more extensively made than ever before, and as the price is very moderate, it will probably continue to be even more generally worn especially as, owing to the rubber being concealed between the outer cloth and inner lining, it presents more the appearance of an ordinary waterproof coat, while, as already said, the ventilation is simply perfect, much better in fact than that of a garment of plain cloth.

An Indian chief lately died in Greenville, Maine; he was known as a faithful Mason. The Masons have erected a memorial tablet over his grave.

Mr. Holman Hunt's well-known picture, "The Light of the World," is to be placed in the library of Keble College, Oxford.

COSMOPOLITAN MASONIC CALENDAR FOR 1878.

W. Masters and Secretaries of Lodges, Chapters, &c., are respectfully informed that in order to ensure complete accuracy in the above, printed forms have been forwarded to them for supplying particulars of time and place of meeting. If such have not yet reached their hands, the Publisher requests that they would kindly call at the meeting place of the lodge &c., and fill up and return the form, in order that the particulars of their meetings may be correctly inserted. All communications in this matter should be addressed at once to the Publisher, 198, Fleet-street, E.C.

IMPORTANT NOTICE.

COLONIAL and FOREIGN SUBSCRIBERS are informed that acknowledgments of remittances received are published in the first number of every month.

It is very necessary for our readers to advise us of all money orders they remit, more especially those from the United States of America and India; otherwise we cannot tell where to credit them.

TO ADVERTISERS.

The FREEMASON has a large circulation in all parts of the Globe, its advantages as an advertising medium can therefore scarcely be overrated.

ADVERTISEMENTS to ensure insertion in current week's issue should reach the Office, 198, Fleet-street, by 12 o'clock on Wednesdays.

TO OUR READERS.

The FREEMASON is a sixteen-page weekly newspaper, price 2d. It is published every Friday morning, and contains the most important, interesting, and useful information relating to Freemasonry in every degree. Annual Subscription in the United Kingdom, Post free, 10/6.

P.O.O.'s to be made payable at the Chief Office, London.

NOTICE.

To prevent delay or miscarriage, it is particularly requested that ALL communications for the FREEMASON, may be addressed to the Office, 198, Fleet-street, London.

THE INDIAN FAMINE FUND.

One or two subscriptions have been received, and we shall deal fully with the subject next week.

Answers to Correspondents.

We have received a very vulgar and anonymous production, signed by "A P.M. of some years' standing." Such a communication only deserves one answer, contempt. But one thing is plain; the writer is not "A P.M. of some years' standing," at least if he is, he is utterly ignorant of gentlemanly feeling and Masonic teaching.

The following stand over:—

The Freemason,

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 29, 1877.

THE GRAND ORIENT OF FRANCE.

We recur to this subject, according to our promise last week, though we confess somewhat unwillingly. The subject in itself is so very unwelcome, and the facts are, as we regard them, so prejudicial to Freemasonry, that we fear the feeling of our readers with regard to this untoward event will be akin to that of our own, namely, one of weariness and distaste combined. For the violent party in France has managed to place the Grand Orient in a very false and anomalous position, which may be termed one of Masonic "Demagogie," to use a French term. Up to the present, though we had to note and report from time to time, many regrettable words and many foolish acts by French lodges and French brethren, they were individual deliverances and proceedings, which in no way compromised or committed the Grand Orient of France. But now what are we to say to Monsigneur Dupanloup? Here is the Grand Orient of France itself fulfilling his prediction, no longer Theistic but Atheistic, positively ashamed of owning the name of the Most High, cringing before a combined attack of "Libre penseurs," Positivists, "Morales Independentistes," and taking out mention of God, for fear, forsooth, of wounding tender consciences and susceptible opinions. Out upon such moral cowardice! As before the Masonic world, the Grand Orient is now itself committed to this most unwise proceeding, and can neither escape from hostile criticism or Masonic animadversion! And further than this, there are three serious questions which must press upon us all who have ever studied the laws and history of French Freemasonry. 1. What is now the position of the Grand Orient? It has no Grand Master; is it legally constituted as a Grand Lodge, claiming and exercising jurisdiction? 2. It has by its last vote cut away the foundation of Cosmopolitan Freemasonry; does not the whole building fall? 3. Is it in any sense a competent or lawful Masonic authority? Without prejudicing the matter, or writing dogmatically on such difficult points of law, we feel bound to express our honest opinion that the position of the Grand Orient of France, owing to its recent regrettable act, is a very questionable and dubious one. It has severed itself from the great Masonic family by its irreverent haste to reject belief of God as a needful pre-requisite of admission. It has repudiated the whole teaching of French Freemasonry by this novel exposition of its principles, and above all, it has weakened its entire position alike to friends and enemies, in that it is now confessed before the world that it bases its principles of teaching and action on a political cry, though professedly non-political, and an anti-religious negation, though professedly proclaiming neutrality. With Bro. Hubert we cannot comprehend how, if the Grand Orient avows morality at all, it can dispense, (except on pure Atheistic teaching), with the only sanction and source of all true morality. But here we stop. The subject is a painful one in itself, and suggesting as it does many evil and dark days for French Freemasonry.

A VULGAR ERROR.

There is an amusing error, just now somewhat prevalent, which crops up every now and then, that Freemasonry is affected by some recent disclosures at Bow-street, and by the foolish or hurtful deeds of Freemasons. Now we wish to point out to-day, that such a theory is a complete fallacy, and is simply a proof of a want of understanding of the province of right reason, of the force of logical argument. To blame any body of men, for the faults of one or several, is always a most objectionable form of proposition, as it is an arguing from a particular to an universal, is never sound and never permissible. Black sheep abound in every profession, for we all are mortal, and such may be found amongst ministers of religion and all classes and sections of society, though it would be wrong to blame the body for the offences of one, for the crimes even of many. Freemasonry is in no way affected, either by the "laches" or the actual folly, the perversity, or the iniquity of certain members of its benevolent brotherhood, inasmuch as the teachings of Freemasonry always protest, openly against illegal acts and immoral lives! If Jobson chooses to get mixed up with a turf fraud, what has Freemasonry to do with it? Jobson has acted not as the Mason, but as the man. If Jiggins has got into trouble at the Old Bailey, how is Freemasonry affected? He has acted "more suo," and not according to the sound morals of our Order. If Popper is taken up before Sir R. Carden, and properly rebuked by that upright magistrate for his very "discreditable behaviour," how does it concern Freemasonry? It concerns Popper very much indeed, but not Popper's brethren. If Slimy figures at Bow-street and Sir James Ingham shakes his head at the seriousness of the case, how does Slimy's slipperiness bear on Masonic laws, always honest and straightforward. If Mr. Newton properly gives Sniffer a piece of his mind, nothing is said by that intelligent magistrate which can in any way reflect on Freemasonry! And therefore, those weak brethren of ours, and those kind critics, who look grave and righteous, and say "how very odd! So many prisoners are Freemasons!" may well remember that Freemasonry cares for none of these things, and certainly has no pity for any such delinquents. As a loyal and patriotic and law-abiding body, it never, even by implication, antagonizes the decrees of the imperial legislature or the laws of the land, and certainly never seeks to interfere with the administration of justice. It has sympathy, no doubt for the innocent and trepanned, it says to all poor mortals, standing at the bar of justice, as of old, "God send you a good deliverance." But if the law of the land clearly condemns those who are members of our Order, Freemasonry, under the all-wise Book of Constitutions, sanctions all those proceedings of private lodges, or the Board of General Purposes which tend to exclude those whom public justice has branded from Freemasonry, as no longer befitting associates of those right-thinking and high-minded men who compose and do honour to our ancient and kindly and upright Craft.

SPECIALTY LODGES.

In the great spread of Freemasonry just now, it is obvious that many new ideas and new principles of development spring up which were unknown to the more quiet and plodding days of our Masonic forefathers. But we may begin by asserting a truism, though many of us have forgotten it, that each age has its peculiarities of thought and work, and that it is not wise or reasonable to act the part of a mere "laudator temporis actis," under all circumstances and question all alteration and deprecate all change. No doubt, as always happens, some changes are decidedly for the worse, and cannot be defended on any grounds of Masonic principle or common sense. We must always be on our guard against the love of change for change sake alone, the resort of little minds and empirical teachers. But some change is advisable and good, in the commonwealth, pro bono publico, and he is the wisest of legislators who adapts this desire of change, which may become hurtful, into a healthy channel of peaceful progress and salutary reform. Among our Masonic movements just now, there has been growing up for some time a desire to form special lodges, that is, lodges of special professions or tastes, or affinities, and to this course objection has been raised. It has been contended that in so doing we are setting up tests unknown to the Book of Constitutions. But the Book of Constitutions only lays down what are absolutely necessary pre-requisites for initiation, namely, that a candidate shall be of full age, (except under dispensation), a free man, and at the time of initiation in reputable circumstances. Beyond this it does not go, and this enactment does not prevent a lodge in its bye-laws, limiting the number or point out the class of its members. There is nothing in the Book of Constitutions to prevent a lodge stating in its bye laws, "this lodge shall be composed of military men, or naval officers, or merchants, or clergymen, &c.," and there is, as far as we are aware, no legal difficulty in the way. Such a proceeding is clearly within the provisions of the Book of Constitutions. Then it is asserted that special lodges tend to the formation of a caste in Freemasonry. There is no doubt something to be said on this head, though we apprehend that the objection is based more on sentiment than anything else, and we must not close our eyes to a grave truth, that one of the present and prevailing evils of Freemasonry is an indiscriminate admission of members. We have always held, and always shall hold, that the lodge is a family of brethren, and that we have no right to admit into it those whom we do not, and cannot invite into our own family circles. It is idle for any one to say that by such a proceeding we exclude many good and honest men from Freemasonry, because though it be true that they cannot procure admission in a particular lodge, there are plenty of other lodges open to them, where, too, they will be well received. We cannot then agree with the objection of some good brethren to speciality lodges, we think, on the contrary, that they represent the feeling of the Order, happily a growing one, against indiscriminate admission, and the desire to make the lodge still more a privilege and not a right. For it must be remembered that into half of our lodge life the Book of Constitutions does not enter at all, we mean its social phasis. The lodge work, etc., is under the provisions of the Book of Constitutions, and all duly qualified Masons, on a proper voucher, have a right to admission to the work. But with the social circle the Book of Constitutions does not profess to deal, as that is purely a private arrangement of the lodge, and no brother can claim admission to refreshment unless invited by the lodge. Hence then it becomes most important, if the lodge gatherings are to be agreeable and edifying, that they be composed of congenial elements and sympathetic minds, and in thus somewhat limiting the area of lodge admissibility, we are inclined to think that we are but meeting a need of the hour, and not in any way infringing upon the laws and customs of the Order. On the contrary we hold that special lodges, under careful supervision, are worthy of the approval and confidence of the Craft.

THE DISCRETION OF THE PRESS.

One of the hardest duties, and perhaps the greatest responsibilities of journalism consists in the decision what, and what not to publish. This is true of all editorial labours, and most especially is it the fact as regards the Masonic Press, as curiously enough, in nothing do we as Masons all fail so much as in the amenities of polite letter writing. If we were to print all the letters we receive, as we receive them, our Masonic literature would simply be unreadable, unworthy the title of Masonic journalism, and a lasting burlesque as well as a discredit on every profession of Masonry, often by the way, loudly made and glibly enounced. In Freemasonry, as we hold, the greatest discretion is required in the paragraphs which fill our columns, for we often see articles and letters which, in our humble opinion, ought not properly to appear at all, which do no good to Freemasonry, and serve only to attract the scorn of the critical and the contempt of the anti-Masonic. Happily, the Freemason, thanks to our publisher and careful editing, has maintained at home and abroad the highest character in this respect, as its weekly issues evince, and read alike by Masons and non-Masons, it strives sedulously to keep the golden mean between the dryness of abstract disquisitions and the sensationalism of the morbid tastes of the hour. And above all, it holds itself clear from personality. Of course, often, in the heat of discussion and with the "currente calamo," of the ready writer, appear those little excrescences, which mark all human controversies, whether as represented by the use of violent assertion or the ornamentation of hostile vituperation! For personality is not merely confined to the person, it may be concealed in the sarcasm, as well as expressed by invective. We are glad, then, to remind our readers to-day, alike how cautious and how careful are the columns of the Freemason, and how we unceasingly watch against some great evils, attendant often on the press, the license of individual utterance, the tendency to deliberate personality, and the craving for an idle sensationalism, as regards scandals and untoward occurrences. Many discreditable scenes in lodge life, many outpourings of Masonic scandal, (for some Masons are very scandalous often), should never receive the benefit of the printer's preserving type, but should be relegated, (where all worthless things should go to), to the oblivion and contempt of us all. The Freemason only sets before its many readers that which it deems consonant with the dignity of the Craft and likely to advance the "prestige" of the Order, as well as the peace and prosperity, the honour and concord of "our brethren all." There is one point to which however, we shall deem it our duty to call the attention of our brethren at length next week, namely, anonymous letters, evidently written for the purpose of personal annoyance, which we should have thought no true Mason would ever put his hand to. But in this, as in all other things, profession and practice are very different matters. We shall recur to this subject we repeat next week.

Original Correspondence.

THE INSTALLATION ENGRAVING.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Since my letter appeared in the Freemason last week I have had the plate proved and examined here by Messrs. McQueen, and one of the most eminent engravers in London, and we find that the portraiture is most successful indeed, and that the plate now only requires a little extra "toning," which will take about six weeks to accomplish, and which is now being proceeded with without a day's delay.

Yours fraternally,

E. J. HARTY.

[We have seen the plate to which Bro. Harty calls attention, and can quite confirm the opinion of the "experts" whom he mentions.

The engraving promises to be a great success, and any little additional delay in the delivery will be compensated to the subscribers by its greater artistic finish and perfection.

Bro. Harty will be glad to show the "proof" to any brother who likes to call at 213, Regent-street.—Ed.]

THE GRAND ORIENT OF FRANCE.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Bro. Kenning,—

As I ventured to point out last week, another event has supervened, as I thought it probably would, which has rendered the position of the Grand Orient of France, already of doubtful legality, still more questionable and unsatisfactory. For the Grand Orient, by a large majority, has determined to erase from the Book of Constitutions, the mention of "Belief in God," and to substitute for it, (almost as if in pitiless irony), "la solidarité humaine." This phrase, of dubious parentage, and objectionable antecedents, may have a magnificent meaning for foreign Freemasons, but to say the truth, in all politeness to them, it sounds to English ears as something most unmeaning, if not utter rubbish. Thus at the present moment, the official representation of French Masonic principles rests on a political cry, and an admitted negation of God, for toleration's sake. Can the force of bathos further go?

People often talk of the "credulité des incrédules," but what can we say of that "intolerance du tolerantisme" which, mocking the sacred principle of toleration, strikes out from the French Masonic Constitutions the name of God on such a plea?

As history always repeats itself, so we see day by day how Ultramontanism and hyper-scepticism meet on the same one ground, namely, that of dogmatic defiance of the convictions and conscience of others. No more foolish act, no more perverse proceeding has ever taken place than that recent agitation in French Freemasonry which has culminated in the last deplorable vote of a noisy, and unreasoning, and intolerant majority in the French Grand Orient. The whole proceeding is in fact nothing more than a crowning, so to say, of that ill-omened edifice, which the late Bro. Massol attempted to rear so carefully, so violently, and so defiantly, and which has nothing in common with true Freemasonry, in that it is only a reflex of the worst principles of the darkest days France has ever seen, a substitution of the most childish and illogical of human philosophies for the sacred truth of inspired teaching.

It is in fact an open separation of French Freemasonry from religion, and the declaration of a "morale indépendante" as against the better and older French teaching of morality, based on the recognition of God, and issuing from the law of God!

I do not think it worth while to take any notice now of the report of the "Commission," presided over by Bro. Desmons, for this reason, that it betrays from first to last, not only an "arrière pensée" but a "parti pris." It is in fact a laboured apology to gild the pill for the swallow of the moderate minority. Historically, it may be true that the verbiage of the special clause is not very ancient, but the truth it contains is one which French Freemasonry has always proclaimed in one form or another, though now officially to be proclaimed no more. Neither do I allude to the point whether the Book of Constitutions is the best place for such a declaration, being simply a code of legislation.

Had the reformers simply placed the formula, as with us, among the "credenda et recipienda et bene notanda," no one in England would have objected. But such was not the course of the "mouvement party," and the significance of the erasure is not misunderstood in France, neither can it be misunderstood by any who are acquainted with the state of parties in French Freemasonry, or the real "dessus des cartes." It is an act for which no explanation is possible, and for which no apology is available. It is in my opinion, the absolute degradation of French Freemasonry to the level of a political faction, and an anti-religious coterie. For the only effect of this last "extravagance" will be to shock all religious and reverent Freemasons, in France and out of France, and to raise more than one inconvenient and burning question which it will be difficult for the Grand Orient to answer or to tranquillize.

So far it is but fair to the Grand Orient to remark that it has always kept itself separate from the perverse proceedings of lodges, or the absurd "dicta" of individuals. Up to the present time the Grand Orient has also repudiated all movements or teachings connected with political associations, though it has allowed discussions on many subjects, in my opinion, alike unfitting and unreasonable, which have nothing to do with Freemasonry, and can only tend to create a bad impression, whether as regards French Freemasons, or the common sense, or the utility and work of French Freemasonry.

But in all its official acts the Grand Orient has repudiated political and religious controversy.

But what will the State say now? What can Freemasons say now? It is a secret society, remember, and as such is bound to abstain from all political sympathies. But following the advice of an extreme party, well known for its strong political and anti-religious views, it bases its principles on a political cry, and the assertion of religious nihilism, so that even Atheists, as well as any one else, can be admitted into the Order. It is therefore inevitable that, sooner or later, serious questions will arise with the authorities in France, who are not likely to permit a secret society, with such an unmistakable bias, and with such on open profession of baneful principles, to meet and discuss affairs of State, much less pass political resolutions.

And besides this there comes in another very serious consideration. The lodges in France and Belgium seem to be bent on forming a "propagandism" of opinions on matters of state and the truths of religion, which are most distasteful to large masses of Freemasons, apart from all Masonic teaching which will be at once repudiated by all Anglo-Saxon Freemasons. For them this last act severs all possible "fraternization," as the Grand Orient of France, by its recent decrees, has struck a blow at everything, which, as Freemasons, they are bid to uphold, or taught to revere.

I will conclude my remarks next week.

Yours fraternally,

MASKELYNE.

THE PAST MASTER'S JEWEL.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I read (Freemason Vol. 10, p. 342) the remarks of "A Member" in reference to the presentation, as of course of a Past Master's jewel to each outgoing W.M., (I will not call it appropriation to themselves), and heartily wish the Book of Constitutions contained some such law as this. "No jewel other than of silver or of silver and enamel shall be worn as a mark of having served any office in lodge by a brother under the rank of an I.M. nor even then if from want of knowledge on his part he shall not have himself performed all the work (including that of installing his successor) that shall have fallen to his lot during his first year of office as W.M." I have no care now to wear my jewel. It looks pretty, but what of that? It is no mark of work done, and consequently no credit to me, although I have done work. The Volunteer is proud of all his badges, and rightly so, and with reason, as each tells its own tale, either of a prize won or of efficiency, this latter by being now, and all honour to them, so common, has lost not one iota of its value, but is thereby the greater means of inducing all to attain the right to wear it. Would our jewel were as common among us and as honourable to the wearer.

With regard to his letter generally, I must admit I think, it were better it had never been written, much more printed and published.

Lodges may adopt a remedy thus:—let every Past Master's Jewel presented to a brother who installed his first successor have on the ribbon the letters or monogram in metal I.S. and let every brother who has installed his first successor and wears a Past Master's Jewel have them added to his ribbon, or only the letter I, if he has installed a W.M. other than his first successor. If leading lodges and brethren would only adopt this it would soon be the acknowledged practice. Of course a brother who would have fulfilled either of the above conditions had he not at last been prevented by sickness or other compelling cause, would be entitled to wear the respective distinction.

Yours fraternally,

P.P.G.B.S.X.

WHAT CONSTITUTES A CONSECRATED LODGE? To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,

Can any brother inform me what constitutes a consecrated "lodge of Freemasons." Is it the billiard-room that is consecrated, in which between the intervals of the "lodge meetings" is used both swearing and other unpolite languages; or, is it certain members of the Craft, who are "constituted" into a "lodge of Freemasons" that the consecration alludes to.

ENQUIRER.

PURELY MASONIC PURPOSES. To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Kindly inform me whether a proposition to vote a sum of money out of the funds of the lodge towards the Indian Famine Fund, may be carried by the lodge, although its bye-laws state that all monies shall be applied to "Purely Masonic Purposes."

INQUIRER.

[In our opinion the words "Purely Masonic Purposes" do not cover the Indian Famine Fund. Such a bye-law is very unwise, as the appropriation of the lodge funds may be fairly left to the good sense of the members.]

Reviews.

"Night and Day;" Edited by DR. BERNARDO. Houghton and Co., Paternoster-row.

This is a monthly record of a home mission work, carried on among the homeless and destitute boys of London, which must have much interest for the philanthropist and the Freemason. For all work is good work, missionary work, which takes part in a crusade against the many sufferings and absolute wretchedness existing in this world of ours.

One little story has touched us, as we think it will touch all our readers much. Having out of twenty boys, sleeping in old barrels, selected five for the home, Dr. Bernardo was asked by a red-headed little boy, called "Carrots," earnestly to receive him also. But the home was full, and poor little "Carrots" had to creep back into the cask. A few mornings afterwards poor little Diogenes was taken out of his tub, stone dead!

On a certain great day yet to be, if some of us may still repeat, like parrots, "Am I my brother's keeper?" a sterner voice may ask, "Where is Abel, thy brother?"

"Karten und Pläne zur Topographie des Alten Jerusalem." Basel, Bohnmaier Verlag.

This useful little pamphlet, by Dr. Carl Zimmerman, the head of a gymnasium at Basel (Basle), merits the attention of all for whom the topography of the Holy City has an abiding interest. It is still a matter of much perplexity; though on the whole we adhere to the lucid and elaborate explanation of the localities given some years ago by the Rev. Geo. Williams.

"The Craftsman."

Our Canadian Contemporary, ably edited, has much interest for us English Masons. We should be glad to think that it was more duly appreciated and more widely perused. It well deserves the support of the Craft.

"The Masonic Eclectic." G. H. Ramey, Washington, U.S.

We always open with interest its valuable and truly Masonic pages, and can only trust that it receives among American Masons, that support and encouragement, which it so justly deserves. It is admirably printed, and is a credit to Masonic Journalism.

"Eloge de Voltaire; Centenaire de Voltaire."

This is a publication, we believe, by M. Boué de Villiers, and which is another tribute, alike French and Masonic, to the memory of Voltaire. We hear continually just now of such celebrations, and all such discourses have for English Masonry, too much the appearance of political disquisitions, to be either acceptable or appropriate, for English Freemasons who absolutely keep clear of the region of politics, and there is a neutral zone which they do not allow to be impinged upon by one idea or the other, by one party or the other.

To those who admire forcible French writing, marked by a fervid democratic spirit, the "Eloge de Voltaire," an oration by Bro. Boué de Villiers, will appear to be of much merit. But we should like to see a little more of Masonry and much less of politics in all similar French addresses. If ever the advice of our Royal Grand Master was needed by any body of Masons, it is by our brethren of "Outre Manche," and "Keep Clear of Politics," should be for some time to come, the motto of French Freemasonry, if it is safely to emerge from the dangers which threaten to destroy it utterly.

Constitutions of the Ancient Fraternity of Free and Accepted Masons, containing the Charges, Regulations, E.A. Song, &c. A copy should be in the possession of every brother. It may be obtained for 2s. at the office of the Freemason, or will be sent post free to any part of the United Kingdom on receipt of twenty-five penny stamps. #### CONSECRATION OF ALL SAINTS LODGE, No. 1718.

On Friday, the 21st inst., a new lodge for the parish of All Saints, Poplar, was consecrated at the Town Hall, Poplar, by Bro. John Hervey, Grand Secretary. Bro. Hervey was assisted by Bro. H. G. Buss, Assistant Grand Secretary, who took the office of Director of Ceremonies, and Bro. James Terry, Provincial Grand Director of Ceremonies of Herts, who performed the duties of Chaplain.

After the lodge had been formally opened, Bro. Hervey, addressing the brethren, said: My sentiments upon Freemasonry are so universally known that I feel it scarcely necessary to address you upon the present occasion; but you know that it is at all times my anxious wish, and I very frequently have impressed upon the brethren upon such occasions as the present the necessity of looking well to those whom they introduce into Masonry, and never using a black ball other than for legitimate purposes; and I trust that in this lodge which we are about to open to-day that no such thing will ever be used to annoy either the Master or any other brother of the lodge, by those who may be dissatisfied with something which may have occurred in the lodge, and in which they may think themselves not perhaps so well treated as they might be. I simply throw that out again and repeat it because I have no doubt it cannot be too often or too strongly impressed upon the minds of those who are about to enter upon the government of a new lodge. Now, brethren, there is another little matter. It is a trifle, which I would also impress upon the members of this lodge; and I think that whoever is about to be the Treasurer of this lodge will thank me for doing so. It is very frequently the habit of brethren to say "Oh, I shall not pay to-night, or at the end of the year," whichever it may be that the subscription extends to. Well now, nothing can be more annoying to a Treasurer or more inconvenient to the government of a lodge than postponing the payments. If a brother wishes that his lodge should stand in good credit of course he must wish that the Treasurer discharge all the bills which are brought before him at once; and how is that to be done unless the brethren pay their subscriptions in advance? If the Treasurer likes of course he can pay them out of his own funds; but I think that that is not quite a healthy state of things. I think that when the brethren sit down to a banquet they may justly be expected to contribute the money towards it which is required to pay for it; and I should earnestly beg not only the brethren who are in this lodge, but brethren who may hear me generally, and I would ask them to impress upon those whom they know, the propriety of paying their subscriptions when they become due. A subscription becomes due from the time that the first meeting takes place—the first meeting in the year, whether it be January or February—be it the September or the June meeting—it is but fair that the Treasurer should be put in funds to pay his way, and not be called up to pay from his own resources that which ought to be supplied from others. It is a trifle perhaps you will say, but I am sure the Treasurer, whoever he may be whom you may elect this day, will thank me for giving you a hint that such a course is desirable. I happen, brethren, to be the Treasurer of one or two lodges myself; I happen also to be the Secretary of one, where certainly the brethren are not too prompt in their payments. (Bro. Hervey then gave an instance within his own knowledge where a brother, although he could well afford to pay immediately, allowed his subscription to accumulate for 5 or 6 years before paying.) Such a thing, he said, would not be tolerated in other lodges, but the member would be written off long ago. I am sure, he continued, you must be almost tired with my exhortations about blackballing, and one thing and another, and therefore I can only hope that, as I said before, such a black ball will never be put into the box but under legitimate circumstances; and I do trust that the members of this lodge will never find an uncomfortable brother make his way among them; because when once a man is member of a lodge it is very difficult to get rid of him; that you all know around this room—you know that a man cannot be compelled to resign, although he may make himself disagreeable to everybody in the lodge; he cannot be compelled to resign unless he infringes some rule of Grand Lodge. I will only hope that what I have said may be some slight hint to those around the room, and that you may go on in a manner to command the good wishes and I may say the thanks of the whole Craft.

The oration was delivered by Bro. Terry, who explained the origin of Freemasonry, the formation of a Freemasons' Lodge, the duties inculcated by the Order, and the application of its principles to the every day life of man.

The ceremony of consecration was afterwards proceeded with, Bros. F. H. Cozen, G. T. Carter and Theodore Distin rendering the musical portions in splendid style. When the consecration was completed, Bro. Hervey installed Bro. W. H. Farnfield as Master of the lodge. The following brethren were appointed officers:—Bros. Dennis, S.W.; Payne, J.W. (Bro. White invested for him in his absence); N. Fenner, Treasurer; Bracebridge, Secretary; Coleman, S.D.; Potts, J.D.; and Harrison, Tyler. On the motion of the W.M., seconded by the Treasurer, Bros. Hervey, Buss, and Terry were elected honorary members of the lodge, the W.M. stating when proposing the compliment that the brethren had had a treat which they did not often experience at the consecration of lodges. Bro. Hervey acknowledging the compliment, said that as union was strength it was with the assistance of Bros. Buss and Terry that the ceremony had gone off so well. It was very gratifying to him to know that the brethren were so much pleased, and it was additionally gratifying to him and the two brethren associated in the compliment that what they had done met with the approbation of the lodge. The S.W. proposed and the J.D. seconded a vote of thanks to Mrs. Farnfield, the wife of the W.M., for her handsome present to the lodge of the cushion on the W.M. pedestal and the volume of the Sacred Law. The vote having been carried unanimously, the W.M. thanked the brethren for the vote, and stated that the heart of Mrs. Farnfield was in Masonry. Propositions for initiation and joining were then read out, and afterwards the lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to banquet, which was admirably supplied by Bro. Grist. At the termination of the banquet the musical brethren sang grace, and the W.M. proceeded with the toasts. The loyal toasts having been honoured,

Bro. Buss replied for the Grand Officers. He said that the Craft was never better Grand Officered than at present, and both the Grand Secretary, himself, and Bro. Payne (G.Tyler) felt the compliment which had been paid them. On behalf of himself he might say that he never felt greater interest in the welfare of a lodge than he did in the present. Nearly a quarter of a century ago he was placed at a desk by the side of the father of Bro. Farnfield. He had known that brother 23 years, from his early youth, and it was highly gratifying to see him now first W.M. of a lodge in the parish of All Saints, Poplar. Bro. Farnfield had now established for himself a home for the rest of his life among Poplar men, and he hoped in that position he would be happy.

Bro. Hervey proposed "The Health of the W.M. and Success to the All Saints Lodge." Like Bro. Buss he had known Bro. Farnfield a good many years. He had also known Bro. Farnfield's father a great many years. He was a dear friend of his for more than 30 years. He was associated with him in one lodge, and therefore when the W.M. applied to him to consecrate All Saints Lodge he said at once that it would give him great pleasure to do so. He had come down that day to perform a small office for the son of one whom he deeply respected; one who was very generally respected by the Craft, and who was looked up to, and whose name would not readily pass away from Masons of the present day. He hoped that the W.M. of All Saints Lodge would make alike mark in his year not only as a Freemason but as Master of his lodge, as his father did before him in the Lodge of Unions and in other lodges, that the name of Farnfield might be still perpetuated in Masonic annals and spoken of with the same respect and veneration as it had been during the last 50 years. He (Bro. Hervey) had a high respect for Bro. Farnfield's abilities, and he was sure they would be exerted for the benefit of the lodge at whose head he was placed; that he would conduct the work in a manner to merit the good feelings and command the admiration of the members. He was convinced that the lodge had a great future before it; for there was still room for a lodge of this description in the locality of Poplar.

The W.M., acknowledging the toast, said, when Bro. Hervey talked about the fifty years that his (the W.M.'s) father was a member of the Craft, it made him, who was only fifteen years a Mason, feel very young indeed. Bro. Buss first and Bro. Hervey afterwards seemed to say that he (the W.M.) had done something good in the Craft, and he hoped by taking the first Mastership of the All Saints Lodge to do something more. Now he might inform the brethren that he was born in Masonry; he was brought up in Masonry; he was made a Mason almost when quite a little boy, at all events when he was quite a young man; and he had been Master of a lodge twelve years ago. He consequently knew Masonry and its beauties; he knew what it was to meet a brother in Masonry, and to trust him in Masonry; and he was glad to be received by Masons in Poplar, as he had been received in the All Saints Lodge. Bro. Hervey had prognosticated that there was a great future before the All Saints Lodge, that it was to be a shining light in the Craft; and as W.M. he was looking forward to the S.W., Bro. Dennis, as Master, who, he ventured to say, would not be anting in his efforts to make the lodge a first rate lodge. They were going to meet in the Town Hall, Poplar, on purely Masonic principles, to receive men who were true Masons, and would work and see what Masonry could do. He (the W.M.) was going on principles derived from his father, who had had fifty years' experience. He hoped that All Saints Lodge would show to the whole of the metropolis and to the country what could be done in a small lodge in a small way, and as far as his own small powers were concerned, backed up by Bro. Dennis, every endeavour would be used to make the All Saints Lodge the lodge of the season. He hoped that some years hence the name of Bro. Farnfield would be remembered in connection with Masonry in the East End of London.

The W.M. having proposed "The Consecrating Officers,"

Bro. Hervey said he had told the brethren in lodge all that he could tell them. He could only thank the two brethren who supported him in lodge, and the more especially so because they had executive duties to perform. Without their services he was afraid his own would have fallen very short, and the ceremony of that day would have been very flat. He wished to acknowledge those services now, and the obligations he was under to Bros. Buss and Terry, who at all times, and whenever they were asked, were ready to assist him, who were always ready, and always efficient. If the ceremony of the day had gone off well, it was because there had been a combination of interests, and a combination of desire to make it do so. Moreover, there had been a combination of good feeling, and kind-heartedness, and a desire that all the efforts which were made should conduce to one common success. If they had achieved it they were amply repaid for any little labour they had undergone.

The W.M. proposed "Prosperity to the Masonic Charities." He had promised Bro. Terry to take the Stewardship of this lodge for the next festival of the Benevolent Institution. He had been a Governor of the Institution thirty-three years, and had served the office of Steward. They had also the Boys' School and the Girls' School. The girls to his mind were much to be preferred to the boys, for this reason only, that the boys could shift for themselves. He had already served Steward for the Girls and he hoped the brethren who had not already seen the school would go to Wandsworth and view it, and he was sure that when they came back they would give £30 or £50 towards it. But the boys must not be forgotten, and he hoped they would make good Masons in their time. The boys wanted to enlarge their Institution to allow of more candidates being admitted. He trusted the brethren would assist Bro. Binckes, the Secretary, in his laudable desire.

Bro. Terry replied. The toast, he said, was a most important one, as it embraced the welfare and happiness of nearly 700 dependents on the bounty of the Craft. All the brethren knew what great strides had been made by Masonry during the last 4 or 5 years, and perhaps no one had more painful proof of that than the Grand Secretary, because on his shoulders devolved an enormous amount of correspondence and other work far beyond what any brother outside his office could have any conception of. If this was true of the Craft, it was also true of the success of the Masonic Institutions. It was a good thing that it was so, for it would be a bad day for the Craft when the granting of charters for lodges produced an incubus on the Institutions of the Order. He was pleased to say that the new lodges were a great means of support to the Institutions rather than a burden to them. It was his pleasure last year to consecrate 17 lodges. Eleven of these sent Stewards, and they brought up £900 to the Benevolent Institution, so that he might say the granting of warrants last year was beneficial to the charities. He was very pleased to see Bro. Farnfield in the chair that evening. In connection with the Institutions his name was well known. Bro. Farnfield's father was the first Secretary of the Benevolent Institution. He accepted office when the Institution was a mere child, when it was hardly strong enough to run alone, and when it was so feeble that the Grand Master would not allow it to be brought out for a walk except once in 3 years. When he found it a little stronger he allowed it to come out once in 2 years. He then suffered it to come out every year, and the first year it so came out it had such a result that no Grand Master would like to curtail its airings. The first festival produced £800, and the festivals then went on increasing every year till last year it realised as much as £13,670. (Cheers.) The Boys' School had been equally successful; the Girls' School the same; and he could safely say they were all equally deserving of support; it was a mere question of rotation which should be supported. The W.M. had consented to be Steward for the Benevolent Institution next year. His heart must of necessity be with the success of an Institution of which he had been a life governor 33 years. Every member of his family of Farnfield was enrolled as a life governor of that Institution with the exception of one who was abroad. It was his (Bro. Terry's) good fortune for eleven years to be collector of the Benevolent Institution under the Secretaryship of the W.M.'s father, and he gave him (Bro. Terry) a very fair insight into the way in which the duties ought to be performed. In Bro. Farnfield's later years he was not so well able to cope with the growing necessities of the Craft as younger men were, but the funds of the Institution were as much cared for and looked after as if they belonged to him individually. He had the interests of the Institution as much at heart, and looked after them with as jealous care. The last time he (Bro. Terry) saw him, he said, "Ah! It is all very well to go on increasing the Institution; but you will be spending all my savings and running into debt." He was happy to say that that had not been the case. They had not spent the savings, but had added to them. There was not a year that they had not added to them, although they had added to the number of recipients and had also increased the amount of the individual annuities. The men were now getting £40 a year where they formerly got £26; and the women were receiving £32 where they used to get £25. They formerly had 180 annuitants; they now had 283. It was a saying some few years ago what a grand thing it would be if the three institutions could raise £15,000 each in the course of a year. He thought that when December, 1877, arrived, two of the institutions at all events would show they had each received £15,000, and he spoke his own grateful thanks for all that had been done by the Craft during the last 5 or 6 years. The Girls' School at next election was going to admit 35 out of 50 candidates; but the Boys' School would only take in 9 out of 67. Next year they would be laying out £3000 to admit of an additional 23 boys being taken into the school, and that would somewhat clear the list. But it was his experience that if they were to clear the list of all the three institutions to-morrow, within a month they would have as large a number applying for help as they had at the present time. They must not make their elections too easy; they must not think that because the Craft was increasing every one was to be taken into the Institutions. Rely upon it, when they saw a list before them with stars and other marks opposite certain names, and notes appended stating—"has one sister in the Girls' School," "has two sisters in the Girls' School and a third applying for admission;" when they saw this, and knew that there were poor women who could not get into the Benevolent Institution, even though it meant there was but one member of the family applying for help, they must look closely indeed before they gave their votes away, to ascertain that they were not really assisting two or three families to get the whole of their children off their hands, to the detriment of others. He wanted the brethren to look at these facts calmly and dispassionately. He had seen poor women who could not get a child in after 4, 5, or 6 applications, women poorly dressed, hoping against hope every time that some kind friend would come forward; and they had gone away crestfallen; whilst other widows dressed in far better apparel went away smiling, their children having got in the first time. He would strongly advise the brethren not to put 3 children of one family in the schools. Let them distribute their favours more equally and then they would be doing more good. He trusted that this lodge would go on and prosper. Of course the Benevolent Institution could not expect much from them the first year. They had many expenses to meet, and therefore whatever they could spare, be it large or small, would be gratefully received. The Benevolent Institution was, as the W.M. had stated, a great Institution. He did not mean to say that the other Institutions were not equally great; but the brethren had to look to the fact that every year the boys and girls were more and more becoming capable of discharging their duties in life. Children of this day must be educated, they would not be allowed to grow up in ignorance. With the old men and women it was a different thing. They had passed through life and had nothing more to learn. The Benevolent Institution afforded them the means of living. It was not a benefit society; they could not claim its benefits because they had subscribed to it; for out of the 283 persons who were now receiving annuities 260 had never subscribed a penny to it during their days of prosperity. It was a grand thing for the brethren to say that they did not require that people should subscribe to the Benevolent Institution as a condition of their receiving annuities. It was also a grand thing that there was such an Institution to assist the poor people in the declining years of their life, and he hoped that that Institution would continue to prosper, and long might the Boys' and Girls' Schools prosper likewise. Long also might the Craft be the disposers of such a large amount of money as they were in the habit of giving to objects outside the circle of Masonry. During this year £5300 odd had been so given—£4000 to the Life-Boats; £1050 to the India Famine Fund; £210 to the Fire at New Brunswick Fund; and £210 to the fund to alleviate the distress caused by the cataclysm in Peru. Now that was a great thing to say, and he was sure no brother regretted that these sums had been given. He hoped the All Saints Lodge would support the charities, and that it might be a successful lodge. There was another lodge in the neighbourhood which had greatly supported the Institutions—Lodge of Temperance in the East was a non-dining lodge, and during the last year paid no less than £170 to the three Institutions, that redounded very much to its credit. During the last two years from lodges in that quarter the three Institutions had received sums amounting to nearly £3000. He trusted that All Saints Lodge would not be behind the others. He could not, as he had said expect much during the first year, but he had known some lodges give £50 on the night of the consecration, and others large amounts on the same night. Such an accident might take place with this lodge, and if the brethren should feel inclined to place £50 on the W.M.'s list, he (Bro. Terry) was sure the W.M. was not the man to refuse it. (Cheers.)

Bros. Robert Wright, 504, and Reed, 781, responded for the visitors.

Bro. Fenner responded as Treasurer, and Bro. Bracebridge as Secretary. The former as an old Mason said he had been induced by some very old and dear friends, well up in Masonry, to join this lodge, and he was glad he had done so, as it revived very many old and pleasant associations. As Treasurer to the lodge he would never be a party to improperly spending the funds. The charities were always open, ready and necessary recipients of bounty. The first care of the brethren of this lodge would be attention to these charities; and next they would look to their own enjoyment.

Bro. Bracebridge thought a good deal less money should be spent in eating and drinking, and a good deal more in charity. He believed in social meetings and in fostering everything that was kind and good; but he hoped that all the Masonic lodges in the kingdom would spend much less in personal indulgence. Masonry would then be a most powerful body, and its charities would receive ten times more than they did. As Bro. Terry had said, they had done wonders, but they might do much more.

Bro. Dennis, S.W., replying for "The Officers," followed in the same strain, and referred to the fact that the family of Farnfield had made themselves acquainted with the ritual of Freemasonry and had not failed to put their hands in their pockets, and to show their assiduity and perseverance on behalf of the charities. It was intended to carry out both these principles in the All Saints Lodge, —to have correct working, and full support to the charities.

Bros. White, Coleman, and Potts also responded, and the Tyler's toast brought a most agreeable evening to a close.

MOVEMENTS OF OUR ROYAL GRAND MASTER.

During the last week H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, has been the guest of Sir Geo. Wombwell, at Newburgh Hall, where a distinguished party has been assembled to meet him for the purpose of partridge shooting. On Tuesday, the Prince of Wales arrived at Helmsley on a short visit to the Earl and Countess of Feversham. The Prince had been staying with Sir George Wombwell at Newburgh Park since Monday, and on Tuesday travelled by North-Eastern special train from Coxwold to Helmsley, arriving at 1 o'clock. He was accompanied by Sir George and Lady Julia Wombwell, Maria, Marchioness of Ailesbury, Lord and Lady Donchester, Viscount and Viscountess Grey De Wilton, Lord Elthorpe, and others. He was received by the Earl of Feversham at Helmsley Station, where a guard of honour, consisting of the 10th Company and the 9th Battalion of North Yorkshire Rifles, was drawn up to receive his Royal Highness. The town of Helmsley and the station were most profusely decorated, and the Prince was received with much loyalty. Along with Earl Feversham, Sir George Wombwell, and the Marchioness of Ailesbury, his Royal Highness drove off in an open barouche to Duncombe, where they were joined by the rest of the guests, and had luncheon. During the afternoon he paid a visit to Griff Farm to inspect Earl Feversham's splendid breed of shorthorns, some of great value. The Prince also planted a silver fir tree on the garden terrace in commemoration of his visit. Afterwards the Royal party visited the beautiful ruins of Rievaulx Abbey. They took tea in the temple on the far-famed terrace and viewed the magnificent scenery of the district. At 6 o'clock they left Duncombe Park by special train for Newburgh, the Prince having greatly enjoyed his visit to this most lovely district in North Yorkshire.

H.R.H. enjoyed the best of health. He returned to London on Saturday.

H.R.H. the Princess of Wales with the family arrived from the Isle of Wight on Friday, reaching London at 6 o'clock in the evening.

On Tuesday evening the Prince of Wales and his family left London for Abergeldie.

The Prince and Princess of Wales, with the Princes Victor and George Frederick and the members of their family and suite, arrived at Abergeldie about half-past 2 o'clock on Wednesday afternoon, travelling by special train from Perth.

THE QUEEN AND THE ROYAL FAMILY.

The Queen is at Balmoral with the Duke of Connaught and Princess Beatrice. Mr. Cross is the Minister in attendance.

The Duke and Duchess of Edinburgh are expected in London in April or May next.

On Thursday week the Princess Louise went to Carlisle to open a new viaduct and bazaar in aid of the Cumberland Infirmary. Her Royal Highness was received at the latter institution by the Bishop, the Dean, and the Chancellor of the diocese. On Saturday she paid another visit to the city, and went over the cathedral; after which she distributed prizes at the School of Art. It is believed that the bazaar will yield about £3000.

On Friday week Prince Leopold arrived from Taymouth Castle at Balcarras, the seat of Sir Coutts Lindsay.

On Thursday week the Duke of Cambridge returned from Homburg, greatly benefited in health from his stay on the Continent.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

FAITH LODGE (No. 141).—The first meeting of this old lodge since the summer recess was held at Anderson's Hotel, Fleet-street, on the 25th ult., when there were present, amongst others, Bros. M. Davis, W.M.; Mallett, S.W.; Dairy, J.W.; Waygood, I.P.M.; Carter, P.M.; Treasurer; Stuart, P.M.; Secretary; Rumball, S.D.; Morrison, A.W.S., acting J.D.; Whitby, I.G.; Heaphy, D.C.; Walls, P.G.O. of Middlesex, A.D.C.; Past Masters Pevor, Hopwood, P.G.S.B. of Middlesex; Green, Thomas, and Kennett. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, the W.M. passed Bro. Aaron and initiated Mr. Cox with his accustomed ability. The bye-laws having been read, the election of W.M. took place, and resulted unanimously in favour of the S.W., Bro. E. Mallett, who returned thanks for the honour accorded to him in a few well chosen sentences. The Treasurer, Bro. Carter, and the Tyler, Bro. Longstaffe, having been unanimously re-elected, the audit committee, consisting of Bros. Aston, Bacon, Chambers, Titley, and Havard, were appointed to audit the accounts on the 9th instant. The committee of the Benevolent Fund were re-appointed, and Bros. Aston and Titley added to their number. Previously to the closing of the lodge a Past Master's jewel was unanimously voted to the retiring Master. The visitors were Bros. Wilson, P.M. Etonian; Millas, Robert Burns; and the Rev. H. J. Gillespie, 163 and 307, Ireland. At the conclusion of the banquet the customary loyal and Craft toasts were duly honoured. "The Health of the W.M." was proposed by Bro. Waygood, I.P.M., who briefly said that Bro. Davis had gone through the chair most admirably, and had gained the esteem of every member of the lodge for the manner in which he had discharged its hospitality. The W.M. in response thanked the brethren sincerely for the kind way they had always treated him both in and out of lodge, and if he had done the "work" of the chair during his year in office in a satisfactory manner he was amply repaid for the labour he had bestowed. "The Initiate" followed. In the course of his remarks the W.M. said that it was always a pleasing duty to propose the health of a newly-made brother, and from the care and attention evinced by Bro. Cox that evening during his initiation he believed that the "Faith" would have every reason to be proud of him. Bro. Cox in reply merely said that he felt pleased at having been admitted one of their number, and he could only indorse the words of the W.M., that they would find him always a good Mason. "The Health of the Visitors" having been warmly received, Bro. Millas in response said that he felt deeply the kind manner in which the health of the visiting brethren had been proposed by the W.M. It was his first visit, and he could only say that it was really a first-rate lodge in every respect. It was particularly pleasing to mark the great respect paid to the authority of the W.M., and in conclusion he said that the W.M. elect was the right man in the right place. "The Past Masters" followed, and was acknowledged by Bros. Waygood and Hopwood upon behalf of themselves and absent colleagues. In giving "The Officers" the W.M. said that he took that the last opportunity he should have, of returning his thanks for the great assistance he had received from the working staff during his year. The S.W. in reply said that on behalf of himself and his colleagues he thanked the W.M. for the good opinion he had of their humble merits, and he hoped that his year would be equally as successful. Bro. Dairy, the J.W., also acknowledged the compliment paid to him and his brother officers by the W.M. During the evening instrumental, dramatic, and vocal selections were given by Bros. Robinson, Pitt, Mallett, Walls, and Dunnithorne.

WILLIAM PRESTON LODGE (No. 766).—A meeting of this lodge was held at the Cannon Street Hotel, on Thursday, 27th ult., when there were present Bros. W. E. Newton, W.M.; S. D. Ewins, S.W.; Dr. Cutmore, J.W.; E. Kidman, S.D.; W. Drake, J.D.; Capt. Kain, P.M. and Treasurer; W. Worrell, P.M. and Secretary; A. Brown, P.M.; J. Pringle, P.M.; G. Newman, P.M.; W. J. Miller, P.M.; J. R. Williams, F. G. Barnes, J. F. Honey, F. Ince, W. J. Collins, G. Castle, E. B. Broomhall, A. LeGrand, R. Sutcliffe, R. J. Lemon, and numerous other members. Visitors: Bro. George Kenning, P.M. and Treasurer 192, P.G.D. Middlesex; H. E. Frances, P.M. 857, P.G.D. Surrey; W. Hopekirk, W.M. 1286, Treasurer, Manchester Lodge, 179; Sergt. Major A. Andrews, Hon. Artillery Company, Wanderers Lodge, 1604. The business of the evening consisted of the raising of Bros. B. Thompson Lowne, M.D., and J. H. Brookes, and the initiation by Bro. William Worrell, P.M. and Secretary, of his friend, Mr. James Turle Lee, a gentleman well known in the musical profession. The W.M. then resumed his position in the chair, and the election of Worshipful Master for the ensuing year was proceeded with, and which resulted in the unanimous election of Bro. S. D. Ewins, S.W. It is pleasing to note the success that this brother has attained in the lodge in so short a time, considering it was only five years ago that he was initiated in the lodge, and the brethren look forward to a most successful year of office under his able and indefatigable rule. Bro. Capt. Kain was again elected Treasurer, a post that he has held so worthily for many years. Bro. W. Grant was elected Tyler. A jewel was voted to Bro. W. E. Newton, W.M., on his retiring from the chair. All business being concluded, the lodge was duly closed, and the brethren adjourned to a very enjoyable banquet, most ably served under the personal supervision of Bro. E. H. Rand, who, since his appointment as superintendent of the hotel has been most solicitous to secure the satisfaction and approval of the many lodges, chapters, &c., meeting in the house. The alms of the brethren were asked on behalf of the Indian Famine Fund, which resulted in the sum of £3 10s. 2d. being handed to Bro. Kenning, to be added to the list of subscriptions, of which he has consented to be the Treasurer. The W.M. being obliged to leave somewhat early, Bro. William Worrell, P.M. and Secretary, presided during the remainder of the evening.

DUKE OF CONNAUGHT LODGE (No. 1524).—The regular meeting of this flourishing lodge was held on Thursday, the 27th ult., at its new quarters, the Havlock Hotel, Albion-road, Dalston. In consequence of the great progress made by this lodge it became necessary to remove from the house where it was consecrated, and it now meets in one of the most commodious and elegant rooms in the north-east of London. As is usual at this lodge the programme was a lengthy one, and the lodge was opened at an early hour, under the able presidency of Bro. J. B. Shackleton, W.M., supported by Bros. Chapman, P.M., Treasurer; W. H. Lee, P.M., Secretary; Green, S.D.; Brand, I.G.; Johnson, D.C.; Dignam, W.S.; and Young, Organist; the Wardens were unfortunately absent through illness, their places being ably filled by Bros. C. Lorkin as S.W.; and F. Brasted as J.W. The following brethren were also present:—Bros. Stevenson, Reynolds, Stokes, Moon, G. Ferrar, Hill, R. George, Brame, E. Dietrich, Hollingsworth, A. Ferrar, Varney, Polak, Jameson, E. George, Davies, Bonner, Payne, and Beensen. The lodge was honoured by the presence of the following visitors:—Bros. F. Binckes, P.G.S., Sec. R.M.I.B.; C. F. Matier, P.G.W. Greece, P.M. 645; E. Bare, W.M. 1685; W. Sprake, 301; T. Ainsley, 244; W. F. Rogers, 704; and C. A. Birdseye, No. 20, Connecticut, U.S.A. The minutes of the preceding meeting having been read and confirmed, the W.M. raised Bro. Reynolds and passed Bros. Beensen and Jameson. There were no less than six candidates for initiation, all of whom were unanimously elected, and Messrs. C. J. Olley, R. Fisher, A. R. Olley, and T. Norman being in attendance were then regularly initiated into Freemasonry. Five gentlemen were proposed for initiation, after which the lodge was closed and the brethren adjourned to banquet, which was served under the personal superintendence of Bro. George Ferrar. The cloth having been removed, the W.M. proposed the usual loyal and Masonic toasts. Bro. Binckes, as a Past Grand Steward, returned thanks for the Grand Officers. Bro. Chapman, I.P.M., in proposing "The Health of the W.M.," dilated upon the great progress the Lodge had made under Bro. Shackleton's Mastership, and on the zeal and ability with which he had discharged his important duties. The toast was drunk with great cordiality. The W.M. responded, and thanked the brethren for the compliment paid him. "The Health of the Initiates" was drunk and suitably responded to. Bro. Matier responded for "The Visitors," and remarked upon the cosmopolitan character of Freemasonry, under the auspices of which a brother might secure a welcome by the fraternity in all parts of the world. Bro. Birdseye, from U.S.A., also responded, and thanked the brethren for his cordial reception. The W.M. proposed "Prosperity to the Masonic Charities." Bro. Binckes replied. It must be a source of great congratulation to us all that Freemasonry is in such a flourishing condition, but when we considered the rapid strides the Craft had made since the installation of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales as M.W.G.M., we must not forget that the demands upon the resources of our Institutions would be increased in proportion. The Boys' School out of a list of sixty-seven candidates could only admit nine, they were about to lay out £3000 in providing additional accommodation for twenty-seven boys, and he hoped and believed that these efforts would be nobly seconded by the Craft. He had been informed that this lodge had already sent up a Steward for the Girls' School and also for the Benevolent Institution, and he therefore hoped that the lodge would now direct its attention to the claims of the Institution of which he was the representative. In response to this appeal Bro. E. Dietrich volunteered to represent the lodge as a Steward at the next annual festival of the R.M.I. Boys (applause). The health of the P.M.'s (Bro. Lee and Chapman) were then proposed. Bro. Lee in returning thanks for the P.M.'s, referred to the observations which had been made by Bro. Binckes with reference to the Masonic Charities, and reminded the lodge that although it had been nearly three years established, it had not yet contributed anything from the lodge funds towards the support of those Institutions, but he hoped that at the close of the present financial year the funds would be in a position to justify the lodge in placing a substantial amount on the list of Bro. Dietrich. The health of the officers was proposed and drank, after which the Tyler's toast was given, and the brethren separated, having spent a very pleasant evening.

CITY OF WESTMINSTER LODGE (No. 1563).—The first meeting of the lodge after the recess was held at the Regent Masonic Hall, Abchurch-lane, W., on Thursday, 27th ult. Present: Bros. the Rev. P.M. Holden, W.M.; E. White, S.W.; J. E. Shand as J.W.; Turner, S.D.; Hutchinson, as J.D.; Willis, I.G.; B. W. Swallow (G.J.D. Middx.), I.P.M.; E. J. Scott, Sec.; C. A. Cottaburne, Treas.; Bros. Hammond, Townley, Gardner, Tate, Irving, Ward, Eastgate, Decker, and others. Visitors present: J. Crouth, P.G.P., W.M. (Covent Garden Lodge); J. Elliott, W.M. 1348; A. J. Ireton, S.W. 1348; A. Bassington, J.W. 205; L. Beck, W.M. 1687; E. H. Stamwitz, P.M. 435; T. Cooper, S.D. 538; L. Edell, 108, London; J. W. Lakin, 180; C. F. Lewis, 95; T. J. Arnold, 182; E. G. Marner, 1673. Bros. Clarke and Taylor were passed, and Bros. Jones, Lee, Eastgate and Ward were duly and very impressively raised by the W.M. to the Sublime Degree. Bro. S. W. White was unanimously elected W.M. for the ensuing year, and will be installed in November. Bro. Cottaburne was re-elected Treas.; Potter, Tyler. A jewel value £10 10s. was voted to the W.M., also a P.M.'s collar and jewel attached, for his efficient and valuable services. The bye-laws were read, and several propositions for initiation at next meeting. A letter was read from Bro. Parsons, whose resignation was received with regret. A letter was received from Bro. Riley, who had gone to Ireland, asking permission to be a country member, also asking the W.M. to receive for lodge and place upon dinner table a haunch of fine venison, which he had the pleasure to forward, and which later in the evening was found delicious. Lodge was then closed, and about 45 in number sat down to an excellent repast by Bro. Nichol, when the usual loyal and Masonic toasts followed, Bros. Beck, Eastgate, &c., contributing to the harmony. A suggestion made by Bro. Scott (Sec.), towards the close of evening for the lodge, to have a ball in January next met with great enthusiasm, and a guarantee fund was at once started, and among the brethren present about £40 was collected.

MILPAH LODGE (No. 1671).—This lodge held an emergency meeting on Saturday, the 29th of Sept., at the Albion Hotel. Present: Bros. Nelson Read, W.M.; David R. Scill, S.W.; Walter Medcalf, J.W.; J. J. Avery, Treas.; W. Vilven, S.D.; J. Berryman, J.D.; F. Morgan, 1572, Acting I.G.; H. Shaw, Tyler; Lissons, Wiles, Warden, Morgan, Wright, Coppard, Lewis and Wells. Visitors: Bros. Whitaker, W.M., 1572; J. Chaney, 180; Birkett, 970. Lodge opened at 2.30. Lodge opened in the Second Degree, Bros. Morgan, Wright, Coppard, Lewis and Wells, having answered the usual questions were entrusted and withdrew. Lodge opened in the Third Degree, and Bros. Morgan, Wright, Coppard, Lewis and Wells, were separately obligated and raised to the Sublime Degree. Lodge resumed to First Degree, and closed with perfect harmony and solemn prayer at 5 o'clock, and adjourned till the 2nd Saturday in October.

BEDFORD.—Stuart Lodge (No. 540).—The opening meeting for the season was held at the Lodge Rooms, Swan Hotel, on Wednesday evening, Sept. 26. The meeting was a most successful one, both as regards attendance of members, (about thirty being present) and the manner in which the three ceremonies were worked. In the absence of the W.M., Bro. Col. Stuart, P.G.W., (who has not yet returned from America, where he has been during the summer), Bro. Captain Green, I.P.M., occupied the chair and performed the ceremonies of raising, passing, and initiation in an exceptionally praiseworthy manner, in which he was ably assisted by the officers of the lodge, all of them being present. Besides Captain Green there were present:—Bros. the Rev. C. Breton, Chaplain; W. Finlason, P.M., Senior Warden; Cop. Calhorne, J.W.; Combes, S.D.; Allan, I.D.; Thody, I.G.; C. Prior, M.D., P.M. Sec.; Alderman Sergeant, F.M., Treasurer; Alderman J. R. Butt, J.P., P.M., Steward; Piper, Organist; Reynolds, Tyler; also the following Past Masters, J. Tropp, Cuthbert, Billson, G. P. Nash, Whirby, Cookson, and following brethren: Whittaker, Kilpin, Thompson, Roe, Harris, Jarvis, Ayres, H. Young, Warren, &c. The lodge having been opened in due form, the minutes of the former lodge were read and confirmed, a ballot was then taken for Mr. A. H. Allen, who being declared unanimously elected, was then initiated. Bro. H. Young was duly passed to the Second, and Bro. R. P. Jarvis, raised to the Third Degree. At the conclusion of the ceremonies it was unanimously agreed that the brethren belonging to the lodge should be solicited to pay whatever subscription they thought of giving towards the Indian Famine Relief Fund into the Stuart Lodge fund for that object, and a sum of ten pounds was voted from the lodge funds for the same. The votes for the Masonic Schools were then disposed of by the brethren present, and other routine business transacted. On the motion of Bro. P.M. Bull, a brother lately come to reside in Bedford was proposed as a joining member; after which the lodge being closed, the brethren, to the number of twenty-seven, adjourned to refreshment after a period of incessant labour which had as much earned them this reward as it had disposed them to enjoy it. The usual toasts were duly proposed and fully honoured, and the brethren separated, delighted to get to earnest work again after their long separation of the summer vacation.

LIVERPOOL.—Downshire Lodge (No. 594).—The usual monthly meeting of the "Old Downshire" was held at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street, on Thursday evening, the 27th of September, when there was a very large muster of members. Bro. John Lecomber, W.M., was in his place, and he was supported by Bros. R. P. France, I.P.M.; P. M. Larsen, P.M.; T. Dilcock, P.M.; H. Hunt, P.M.; S. E. Ibbis, P.M., P.P.G.S.B., D.C.; J. L. Moughton, S.W.; T. Boswell, J.W.; R. Ing, P.M., Treasurer; Adolph Pedersen, Secretary; J. N. Birch,

S.D.; J. Glitherow, J.D.; W. H. Veevers, I.G.; R. J. Wilkinson, S.; P. Maddox, S.; and J. Yapp, Org. There were about 40 brethren present, and a number of visitors. Mr. W. E. L. Hambley was unanimously elected for the benefits of initiation, but he had gone to sea since his proposition. The lecture on the first tracing board was, under these circumstances, given by Bro. R. P. France, P.M., whose excellent and fluent delivery was greatly admired and appreciated. A vote of thanks, on the motion of Bro. P.M. Dilcock, seconded by Bro. P.M. Hunt, was ordered to be recorded on the minutes to Bro. France for the Masonic treat realised by his lecture. The sum of eight guineas was asked from the funds to help a widow and two distressed brethren, and on the motion of Bro. P.M. France, seconded by Bro. P.M. Dilcock, it was unanimously resolved to donate five guineas to the Indian Famine Relief Fund. (This amount was subsequently supplemented by three guineas, subscribed by the individual members, making the donation eight guineas.) After four propositions for initiation and two for joining, the lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned for refreshments.

LIVERPOOL.—Liverpool Dramatic Lodge (No. 1609).—The first annual installation meeting, after consecration, of the members of this prosperous lodge, (which was instituted in June, 1876, for the convenience of dramatic, musical, literary, and other representatives of professional pursuits), was held on Tuesday, the 25th ult., at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street, Liverpool, where there was one of the most influential and numerous attendances seen at any installation for a considerable time. It may be stated that the date of installation was altered, by special resolution, from June till September, to suit the engagements of the professional brethren, whose engagements took them from town during the summer months. It is also an almost unprecedented fact that Bro. Joseph Bell, the first W.M., one of the most respected Masons in Liverpool, not only occupied the chair for 15 months, but held the same position in the De Grey and Ripon Lodge, No. 1356, so that his term of tenure of office as W.M., extended over a period of two years and three months. That the petitioning brethren acted wisely in choosing Bro. Bell as the first Master is abundantly proved by the present financial position of the lodge, the excellent reputation it has deservedly secured for correct and high-class working, and the perfect harmony which had characterised the whole of its proceedings since the consecration. Not only is the "Dramatic," now numerically strong, but careful attention has also been paid to the all-important rule of quality, and not mere quantity of membership, thereby exhibiting a carefulness which is well worthy of general imitation. Within a very few weeks after consecration every farthing of liability was cleared off, and at the end of the first 15 months of its existence the balance sheet shows that the total worth of the lodge is about £200. The subjoined account of the interesting and most successful installation proceedings also shows that charity is not forgotten as the chief gem in the symbolic jewels of Freemasonry, and there is every reason to believe that with increasing prosperity in the future there will be shown a proportionate increase in the distinguishing virtue of the Craft. The formation of a Fund of Benevolence is amongst the earliest schemes which will be considered during the current year, and from the interest already manifested in the proposal there seems every prospect that the scheme will be completely successful. The brethren were summoned to meet at 12.30, and punctually at that hour, Bro. Joseph Bell, the W.M., took his place in the chair, and proceeded without delay with the business of the day. The officers were all in their places, and there was a numerous attendance of distinguished brethren as visitors. The lodge having been opened in due form, and with solemn prayer, the minutes of the previous meeting were read and unanimously confirmed. The ballot was then taken for two initiates and one joining member, after which the balance-sheet, which was taken as read, was passed by acclamation. Bro. Walter James Chapman, S.W., the W.M. elect, was then presented for the benefit of installation by Bro. R. Brown, P.M., 241, and Bro. Dr. J. Kellett Smith, P.P.G. Registrar. The ceremony of installing Bro. Chapman was most ably and impressively performed by Bro. J. Bell, the retiring W.M., who thus most honourably closed a memorable term of service in the chair. After the newly-chaired W.M. had been saluted, according to time immemorial custom, the following officers were invested for the ensuing year. Bro. J. Bell, I.P.M.; Bro. B. B. Marson, P.M., D.C.; Bro. Lind's Courtenay, S.W.; Bro. J. McKenzie, J.W.; Bro. A. Woolrich, Treasurer (re-elected); Bro. J. Atkinson, Secretary; Bro. W. Sandbrook, S.D.; Bro. Fred. Wilkinson, J.D.; Bro. Frank Emery, I.G.; Bro. J. Pye, S.S.; Bro. W. Savage, jun., J.S.; Bro. J. Skeaf, P.G.O. and Bro. R. Burgess, Organists; and Bro. W. H. Ball was unanimously re-elected Tyler. The closing charges to the W.M., Wardens, and brethren, were very effectively delivered by Bro. R. Brown, P.M. 241. Mr. Arthur Weston, (professionally known as "Boz," the clever conjuror) and Mr. John Charles Duckworth, journalist, having been previously unanimously elected, and being now in attendance, were duly initiated into the Order by Bro. W. J. Chapman, W.M., in a most impressive manner, all the new officers doing their work in a highly satisfactory manner. On the motion of Bro. Atkinson, Sec., it was agreed that the expenses of the officers in attending the P.G. Lodge meeting at Southport should be defrayed from the funds of the lodge, and the W.M. expressed a hope that there would be a numerous representation of the members to support him and his Wardens on that occasion. After a proposition for joining had been made, the brethren were called off from labour to refreshment. A recherche banquet was served to about seventy, in the large dining room of the hall by Bro. Ball, P.G. Tyler. Bro. Chapman, W.M., presided at the banquet table, supported, right and left, by a brilliant array of P.G. Officers. When dessert had been placed on the table, the W.M. gave the first toast of the evening—"The Queen"—which was honoured with immense enthusiasm. The W.M. next proposed "The M.W. Grand Master. Bro. H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, the Princess of Wales, and the rest of the Royal Family." He said—The Prince of Wales, I dare say, is one of the most popular men in the country (hear), and his position as a Freemason—his position as M.W.G.M. of the Order.—will doubtless form one of the brightest jewels in the crown he is destined to wear, thereby making his influence the greatest in the whole world. (Applause.) Brethren, I ask you to drink the health of our G.M., his amiable consort, the Princess of Wales, and the rest of the Royal Family. The toast was received most cordially. "God bless the Prince of Wales," was then sung by Bro. Woolrich and company. The next toast, "The M.W. Pro Grand Master, Bro. the Rt. Hon. the Earl of Carnarvon," was proposed, in eulogistic terms, by Bro. H. S. Alpess, P.G. Sec. The next toast was "The R.W. Deputy Grand Master, and R.W.P.G.M. of West Lancashire, Bro. the Rt. Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, and the Officers of Prov. G. Lodge, Past and Present." The W.M., in submitting the toast, said they were fortunate in West Lancashire in having a popular brother like Lord Skelmersdale at their head. He took a great interest in the Craft, and was readily accessible on all occasions, thereby rendering himself highly popular amongst the brethren. Bro. H. S. Alpess, in acknowledging the toast, said it gave him very great pleasure to be present at the installation that day, and to witness the undoubted success which the lodge had secured after fifteen months' existence. He thought that the success of the Dramatic Lodge since its consecration would clearly show that Lord Skelmersdale, their P.G. Master, was perfectly justified in his recommendation to the G. Master that a warrant of constitution should be granted. (Cheers.) In all his (the P.G. Sec's.) experience he did not know any lodge which had been so successful as the "Dramatic" in carrying out the objects for which it was instituted, and in carrying them out so harmoniously and creditably. In the first place, the object of the promoters in establishing this lodge—as precedent for which they had doubtless witnessed in London, was to suit the convenience of those professional brethren who, while desirous of becoming Freemasons were prevented from doing so by their professional avocations. Some thirty years ago, Bro. Raymond, lessee of the Liverpool Theatre, in Church-street, appeared to have taken a very great interest in Masonry, giving a benefit at his theatre for some Masonic charity; and associated with him was Bro. W. J. Hammond, not unknown in the present generation, whose son was now well recognised as a worthy Mason. Moreover, not only had the Dramatic Lodge been successful, but it had maintained its professional status, and he was pleased to find from the returns that it was really a dramatic lodge, the majority of the brethren being connected with the stage, as well as musical and literary pursuits. Everyone that visited it must feel that an evening with the "Dramatic" was one of the most enjoyable and profitable they could have. The members certainly showed the fine spirit of brotherhood, and although it was said that jealousy prevailed greatly in the profession they had chosen, that was not so in Masonry—that whatever must be the case on the public stage it did not exist on the Masonic stage. (Hear.) They had that afternoon seen Bro. Chapman installed W.M. of the lodge and they must all be congratulating themselves on securing the services of one who was really entitled and fitted to be a ruler in the Craft. Bro. Chapman had given the First Degree that evening, and all who were present must agree with him, (Bro. Alpess) that he (the W.M.) thoroughly understood the meaning of the solemn ceremony and had required no mere parrot power of repetition. (Hear, hear.) Lord Skelmersdale was greatly esteemed in Masonry,—so much so, that it seemed if things went on as they were now doing Masonry would soon take up all his lordship's time, leaving him none for the performance of his legislative duties. Again referring to the excellent working of the Dramatic Lodge, Bro. Alpess said he could see that for the next three years, at least, they had a class of officers who would maintain the proud position and secure its success with the literary and dramatic professions. The newspapers told us the right way in which to do things, and if they did not do right they might rest assured the representatives of that mighty engine, the Fourth Estate, would be down on them "like a thousand of bricks." Bro. Joseph Bell, I.P.M., next gave "The Worshipful Master," saying he was sure the toast would be received with the enthusiasm it deserved. Bro. Chapman was well known to them as an excellent Mason, and he had the interest of the lodge at heart. The W.M. said he hardly knew how to thank the brethren for the honour conferred on him. Only three years ago he was initiated into Masonry, and now he occupied the proud position of W.M. of the Dramatic Lodge. He only hoped he would be able to repay the confidence which the members had reposed in him. That would be his object, and his greatest reward at the end of the year would be to know he had secured the same sincere respect as Bro. Bell had during his time in the chair. (Hear, hear.) The W.M. then proposed "The I.P.M., and Installing Master" (Bro. Bell), and in doing so referred to the fine brotherly spirit which he had displayed and the warm interest he had taken in the welfare of the lodge since its consecration. The W.M. then presented Bro. Bell with a most exquisitely designed and unique P.M.'s jewel which had been unanimously voted from the funds of the lodge and also with a splendid chain and locket (with square and compasses set with diamonds on one side and Bro. Bell's inlaid monogram on the other) which had been subscribed by the individual members of the lodge as a mark of the affection and esteem in which he was held by all. Bro. Bell, I.P.M., in acknowledging the splendid gifts, said he looked upon that as the splendidest and happiest moment of his life, not only because, of these handsome presents, but because the generosity and kindness the brethren had shown, that he had given them satisfaction by the manner in which he had fulfilled the duties of the chair. Some other toasts were given, which closed the refreshment proceedings. The general enjoyment of every one was greatly promoted by the excellent songs and recitations given by Bros. G. W. Anson, J. Bushfield, D. Saunders, John Hill, A. Weston, A. Woolrich, Treas.; W. S. Cooke, L. Courtenay, S.W., and others, the piano accompaniments being artistically played by Bros. Skeaf and Burgess. On resuming labour it was resolved, on the motion of Bro. Bell, seconded by Bro. Marson, that a letter of condolence should be written to the family of the late Bro. Dr. A. Whittle, a member of the lodge, who had died very suddenly. Bro. Bell then moved that the sum of 15 guineas should be voted from the funds of the lodge to endow the chairs of the W.M., the I.P.M., and S.W. with life governorships of the West Lancashire Masonic Educational Institution. The motion was seconded by Bro. Isaac de Freece, and carried by acclamation. Bro. R. Brown briefly acknowledged the generous vote. Bro. Marson next proposed that the sum of 3 guineas should be voted from the funds of the lodge to endow the chairs of the W.M., S.W., and J.W. with life governorships of the Hamer Benevolent Fund. This motion was seconded by Bro. Bell, and was likewise carried unanimously. The lodge was then closed in perfect harmony, and in accordance with ancient form.

INSTRUCTION.

METROPOLITAN LODGE (No. 1056).—Friday the 28th Sept., being the day appointed by the bye-laws of this lodge for working the ceremony of installation, the chair was occupied by Bro. Whittaker, W.M. of the Carnarvon Lodge, who had undertaken the duties of Installing Master and he was ably supported by Bros. Reed and Dwarber, whom he had appointed as his Senior and Junior Wardens. The lodge having been opened in the Three Degrees and the sections worked by Bros. Woods and Reed in the Second Degree, Bro. Creak was presented by the Preceptor of the lodge, Bro. Stacey, to the W.M. as a fit person to receive the benefit of installation, and having assented to abide by the ancient charges as read by the Secretary, Bro. Snelling, took the office of W.M. elect, and withdrew. The lodge was then opened in the Three Degrees, and a Board of Installed Masters having been formed, Bro. Vincent was ably installed as W.M. of the lodge, and was afterwards saluted by the brethren in the Three Degrees, according to ancient custom. Bro. Vincent afterwards appointed and invested his officers. The following brethren were then elected members of the lodge:—Bros. Tucker, Kearney, Willett, Marion, Lockhead, and Cranwell, and a vote of thanks was directed to be recorded on the minutes of the lodge to Bro. Whitaker for his services as Installing Master, and he was afterwards, by the unanimous vote of the brethren, made honorary member of the lodge. There was a large attendance of Past Masters and members of the lodge, and much satisfaction was expressed by them at the manner in which Bro. Whitaker had performed the duties of Installing Master.

FINSBURY PARK LODGE (No. 1288).—This lodge held its weekly meeting on Wednesday, the 26th, of September, at the Finsbury Park Tavern, Seven Sisters' Road, Holloway, N. Present: Bros. P. Dickinson, Preceptor; I. Walker, W.M., Egyptian, No. 27; Campbell, S.W.; Press, J.W.; H. B. D. Dunn, Sec.; Pigot, P.M.; Treasurer; John Eldridge, W.M. 167, S.D.; Rothschild, J.D.; Baldwin, I.G. The lodge having been opened the minutes were read and confirmed. The ceremony of passing and initiation were rehearsed. Bro. Dickinson worked First and Second Sections of Lecture. Bro. Campbell was elected W.M. for ensuing fortnight, and the annual supper of the lodge was fixed for the 3rd inst.

THE GREAT CITY LODGE (No. 1426).—A meeting of this lodge was held at the Masons' Arms, Basinghall-street, on Thursday, 27th ult. Bros. Stanway: W.M., Spiegel, S.W.; Freeman, J.W.; Soul, I.G. Bros. Poore, Preceptor; Blackey, Sec.; Colmer, Treas.; and about 25 brethren attended. This being the fourth Thursday in the month, according to the bye-laws, the Installation ceremony was rehearsed, and Bro. Barry being appointed Installing Master.

DUKE OF CONNAUGHT LODGE (No. 1524).—This lodge held its annual meeting at the Havelock Tavern, on Wednesday evening, 27th ult., at 8 p.m. Present: Bros. J. Larkin, W.M.; Brasted, S.W.; McMillan, J.W.; Maples, S.D.; Brown, J.D.; Woolley, I.G.; Fieldwick, Preceptor; E. Dietrich, Secretary; and J. B. Shackleton, Lee, Gilchrist, Symes, F. Beensen, Hodgkinson, Moore, Little, Spencer, G. Ferrar, E. George, Polack, Marsh, C. Larkin, Streeton, &c. The lodge was opened in ancient form, and the minutes of the last meeting read and confirmed. The ceremony of initiation was then rehearsed by the W.M. in a very able manner, Bro. F. Beensen being the candidate. After the lodge being called from labour to refreshment, and refreshment to labour, Bros. Lee and Gilchrist worked the sections of the lectures, assisted by the brethren. Bro. E. P. Hodgkinson was elected as a joining member. Bro. Brasted was appointed W.M. for next meeting.

Mark Masonry.

GUILDFORD.—Percy Lodge (No. 114).—The installation meeting of this lodge was held at the Angel

Hotel, on Thursday, Sept. 20. The attendance of brethren was not so numerous as usual, owing to distant engagements of several members, who however, forwarded their apologies for absence. Amongst these were Bros. the R.W. Major General Brownrigg, C.B., Prov. G.M. of Surrey; the V.W. F. W. Harrison, Prov. D.G. Master of Surrey; the W. W. Smallpiece, Col. Martin, Dr. La-Fargue, R. Eve, T. Tyler, &c. The lodge was opened by the W.M., Bro. W. Wells, who was supported by Bro. W. M. Piggott, S.W.; Charrington, J.W.; Edgar Drewitt, P.M.; Davies, Michaux, Nealds, Seymour and others. By request of the W.M., the V.W. Bro. James Stevens, P.M., P.G.J.O. advanced into the Degree, Bro C. D. Onslow, M.P., and subsequently installed the W.M. Elect, Bro. W. M. Piggott into the chair of A., both ceremonies being worked in extenso, and the addresses to the Master and Officers impressively delivered. The officers appointed for the ensuing year were Bros. Charrington, S.W.; Mason, J.W.; Eve, M.O.; Bothing, S.O.; Davies, J.O.; Michaux R.M.; W. Smallpiece, P.M., Treasurer; Drewitt, P.M., D.C.; Piggott, Secretary; Seymour, I.G.; Neate, Tyler. The Deacons' Offices were left open for ensuing meeting. The lodge unanimously voted the sum of two guineas to the Indian famine fund, and transacted necessary routine business. On the proposition of the I.P.M., Bro. Wells, supported by the newly-installed W.M., Bro. Piggott, the thanks of the lodge to the V.W. Bro. James Stevens for his services on this and former occasions were unanimously voted, and he was requested to accept Honorary Membership in token thereof. Bro. Stevens briefly responded and expressed the pleasure he felt in receiving so honourable a mark of approval, and his desire to be in the future as he had been in the past, of service to the brethren generally and to the lodge in particular. The lodge was then closed, and after attending the meeting of the Percy Craft Lodge, which was opened immediately subsequent, the brethren re-united at the banquet table under the presidency of Bro. Davies, W.M. of the Craft Lodge, Bro. Piggott, the W.M. of this Mark Lodge occupying the position of S.W.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF CUMBERLAND AND WESTMORELAND.

The annual festival of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Cumberland and Westmoreland was held at Cockermouth, under the banner of Skiddaw Lodge, No. 1002, on Friday, the 28th ult. It being twelve years since the meeting was held at Cockermouth, when the late Bro. F. L. B. Dykes was Provincial Grand Master, the brethren of Skiddaw Lodge put forward their utmost energies to render the event as successful as on the previous occasion. The proceedings were opened in the spacious premises of the "Auctioneering and Estate Agency Company," which were admirably suited for the business of the day. The large dining hall was transformed into a well-appointed lodge-room, under the able supervision and decorative ability of Bro. W. Shilton, P.M., and the elaborate furniture of Skiddaw Lodge, the gift of the late lamented Bro. H. F. Faithfull, P.M., P.P.G.J.W., aided by various materials kindly lent by Bro. W. M'Quhae, assisted to make the hall a handsome temple. Rooms were also provided for the Provincial Officers and Charity Committee, whilst the bulk of the brethren, making altogether about 220, were accommodated in the large sale ring, where Bro. Peacock, of the Rampant Bull Hotel, provided excellent refreshments in the shape of luncheon, the dispensing of which could not have been in better hands than the two Stewards of Skiddaw Lodge, Bros. M'Quhae and Dent. The morning broke dull, but the sun speedily made his appearance, and smiled brilliantly on the festival all day. The brethren from a distance began to arrive at half-past eleven, and shortly after twelve o'clock the whole had entered the building. There are nineteen lodges altogether in the province, and all were represented but two, Eden Valley, No. 812, Appleby; and Solway, No. 1220, Silloth. As very few signed their names in the Tyler's books, a full list of those present is impossible, and we can only trust to memory. The owners of any names omitted, will therefore understand the reason thereof. It was fully expected the Earl of Bective, M.P., R.W. Provincial Grand Master, would have been present—in fact, intimation was received of his lordship's intention to be present; but a telegram from Lowther Castle, conveyed the fact of the inability of Lord Bective to attend, to the sincere regret of every one. The following were present:—Bros. Colonel Whitwell, M.P., P.M. 129, Deputy Provincial Grand Master, P. Grand Warden of England; W. Kirkbride, P.M. 339, Senior Grand Warden; J. Bowes, P.M. 129 and 148, Junior Grand Warden; Rev. C. H. Gem, 327, Grand Chaplain; Rev. H. V. Thompson, 1074, Assistant Grand Chaplain; J. Lemon, P.M. 327, P.P.S.G.W., Grand Treasurer; J. M'Kelvie, P.M. 119, P.P.G.J.D., as Grand Secretary (in the unavoidable absence of Bro. W. B. Gibson, P.M. 119, P.P.G.S.W., Grand Secretary, who was attending the funeral of a relative the same day); W. Armstrong, P.M. 371, Grand Director of Ceremonies; J. Atkinson, P.M. 872, Assistant Director of Ceremonies; J. J. Beattie, P.M. 962, Grand Superintendent of Works; A. Walters, P.M. 371, Grand Sword Bearer; Jos. Nicholson, P.M. 371, P.P.G.S.W.; J. R. Tickle, P.M. 371, P.P.G. Purst.; J. R. Bain, P.M. 1400, P.P.G. Supt. of Works; Thos. Anderson, 1074, Grand Tyler; W. Prattchitt, P.M. 310, Senior Grand Deacon; J. Cook, P.M. 1532, Junior Grand Deacon; J. Gate, P.M. 327, P.P.G.S.B.; J. Bintley, P.M. 129, P.P.G. Supt. of Works; J. Mills, P.M. 1390, P.P.G. Purst.; W. Lamony, 1073, P.P.G. Tyler; J. Holme, P.M. 1074, P.P.G.J.W.; J. Talbot, P.M. 129, P.P.G.J.W.; Jos. Frears, 119, Grand Organist; W. Alsop, P.M. 119, P.P.G. Purst.; C. Morton, P.M. 827, 1002, 1267, W.M. 1660, P.P.G.S.W.; J. A. Wheatley, P.M. 310; R. Robinson, P.M., Treasurer 1002, P.P.G.S.D.; J. Pearson, P.M. 1002, P.P.G.S.D.; Dr. Dodgson, P.M. 1002, P.P.G.J.D.; A. Taylor, P.M. 310, P.P.G.S.B.; W.

Shilton, P.M. 1002, P.P.G.S.B.; J. L. Paitson, W.M. 119; E. Tyson, 119; G. Fitzgerald, Tyler 119; J. Abbott, 119; J. Rothery, 119; J. M'Kay, 129; J. Webster, 310; J. Bewes, P.M. 327; J. Pearson, P.M. 327; T. Carey, W.M. 371; J. R. Banks, S.W. 371; T. Mandle, P.M. 371; J. H. Banks, 371; D. Bell, 371; W. Skelton, 371; W. Jobling, W.M. 412; W. Cowman, W.M. 872; R. Twentyman, W. Holloway, and T. Ellwood, 872; J. J. Robinson, P.M. 872; J. Wood, W.M. 962; G. B. M'Mullin, J.W. 962; Jos. Tronhear, J.D. 962; W. Whitehead, J. Little, W. Wagg, C. A. Bradbury, T. B. Roxby, J. Blackburn, J. Johnston, and J. J. Coverdale, 962; H. Wearing, I.G. 1073; W. Wilson, 1073; E. Clark, P.M. 1267; J. W. Young, P.M. and Secretary, 1400; T. A. Wigham, 1400; G. Potter, W.M. 1532; J. Glendinning, 1532; W. Martin, J.W. 1660, 1002; J. W. Ockenden, 1512 and 1656; Hampton; G. Nelson, 1021, Barrow-in-Furness; A. Leitch, 116, Rutherglen, S.C. The other members of Skiddaw Lodge, besides those already enumerated were Bros. W. Taylor, W.M.; I. Evening, S.W.; Joskew, J.W.; Rev. E. M. Rice, M.A., P.M., and Chaplain; W. F. Lamony, P.M. and Secretary, (Freemason); W. H. Leuthwaite, P.M. and Organist; T. Bird, S.D.; G. Brash, J.D.; C. Gibson, I.G.; N. M'Quhae and H. Dent, Stewards; W. Potts, Tyler; J. Robinson, J. Thompson, S. Ferguson, J. Pearson, H. Moncrieff, R. Bailey, Jas. Bolton, Jos. Allison, F. R. Sewell, J. Hallows, Jas. Black, J. Raine, Jos. Straughton, T. C. Robinson, H. Peacock, W. Rule, and the Rev. Canon Hoskins, M.A.

The Craft lodge was opened in form at half-past twelve by Bro. Lamony, P.M., and the Provincial Grand Lodge in due form about half an hour later by Colonel Whitwell, M.P., as Provincial Grand Master, Bro. Lemon, Grand Treasurer, acting as Deputy Provincial Grand Master. The dais was crowded with Provincial officers, past and present. The minutes of the April meeting, held at Penrith, having been read and confirmed.

Bro. Lemon presented his annual statement of accounts up to June 30th, 1877, which was highly satisfactory, and showed the handsome balance of £273 7s. 8d. in hand. The report was adopted unanimously.

Bro. Holme, P.P.G.J.W., then moved, and Bro. Nicholson, P.P.G.S.W., seconded the re-election of Bro. Lemon as Provincial Treasurer, which was heartily agreed to, as a matter of course.

Bro. Lemon, in returning thanks, congratulated the Provincial Grand Lodge in being in a better financial position than they ever were, and he hoped they would be in a still better position next year.

Bro. Morton, P.P.G.S.W., next proposed, and Bro. T. Atkinson, P.G.A.D.C., seconded, Bro. J. J. Robinson, P.M. 872, as Provincial Grand Tyler, which was carried unanimously.

The Provincial Grand Master in the chair, before proceeding to the investiture of officers, said he deeply regretted being in the position of presiding officer that day, as he fully expected the Earl of Bective would have been present—indeed, had anticipated meeting his lordship on the road to Cockermouth. Since arriving, however, he had received a telegram from their R.W. Grand Master, expressing his inability to attend, and it must have been some very important and pressing business that detained his lordship at the last moment. The following officers for the year were then invested, two or three, however, being absent:—

Sir R. C. Musgrave, P.M. 339	Prov. G.S.W.
J. A. Wheatley, P.M. 310	Prov. G.J.W.
Rev. J. Thompson, 1074	Prov. G. Chap.
Rev. W. E. Strickland, 1267	Prov. G. A. Chap.
J. Lemon, P.M. 327	Prov. G. Treas.
W. B. Gibson, P.M. 119	Prov. G. Sec.
W. F. Lamony, P.M. 1002	Prov. G. Reg.
J. R. Bain, P.M. 1400	Prov. G.S.D.
J. Lindow Burns-Lindow, W.M. 1267	Prov. G.J.D.
Godfrey, W.M. 1074	Prov. G.S.W.
T. Atkinson, P.M. 872	Prov. G.D.C.
M'Kay, 129	Prov. G.A.D.C.
J. L. Paitson, W.M. 119	Prov. G.S.B.
W. H. Leuthwaite, P.M. 1002	Prov. G.O.
J. W. Young, P.M. 1400	Prov. G. Purst.
Moffatt, 1660	Prov. G. Steward.
Nelson, W.M. 129	Prov. G. Steward.
Jobling, W.M. 412	Prov. G. Steward.
Brough, 812	Prov. G. Steward.
E. Clarke, P.M. 1267	Prov. G. Steward.
Salisbury, P.M. 872	Prov. G. Steward.
J. J. Robinson, P.M. 872	Prov. G. Tyler.

The Charity Committee's report was next submitted and adopted. Amongst the recommendations was the sum of £5 to the aged widow of a brother of Lodge 119; and it was recommended to devote the votes of the province towards furthering the election of a widow of a brother of Lodge 412 into the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution. In the report was also a recommendation from Bro. Gibson, the Prov. G. Secretary, for the appointment of Bro. M'Kay, of Kendal, as Assistant Secretary to the Charity Committee.

The Provincial Grand Master in the chair then brought forward the subject of the offertory to be made that day at church, and the object it should be devoted to. He remarked that a vote was passed by Provincial Grand Lodge, some years since, by which the sum of five guineas was given to purchase a rule in perpetuity for one of the institutions, such vote to be presented to the lodge vote, under whose banner the festival is held, the remainder of the collection to be at the disposal of the Provincial Grand Lodge.

Bro. Lamony, as Secretary of Skiddaw Lodge, intimated it was the wish of the vicar of All Saints' Church, that the offertory should be given to the Indian Famine Relief Fund. Not knowing there was such a standing rule in existence as that mentioned by the Provincial Grand Master in the chair, and considering the Famine Fund to be a really Masonic object, the announcement was made that the collection would be devoted to that object, and this was generally known through the town.

After some discussion, Bro. Holme, P.P.G.J.W., moved, and Bro. Bentley, P.P.G. S. of W., seconded, that the sum of £20 be subscribed from the funds of the Provincial Grand Lodge in aid of the "Indian Famine Relief Fund."

This was heartily agreed to, and it was understood that the whole of the church offertory, less five guineas for a vote, as before referred to, be given to the "Indian Famine Relief Fund."

This was all the business.

The Provincial Grand Master in the chair said, before closing, he must express his warm thanks, which he knew would be heartily endorsed by all present, for the excellent arrangements made by the brethren of Skiddaw Lodge for the reception of Provincial Grand Lodge, and for the hospitality which had been shown by them that day. (Applause.)

The Provincial Grand Lodge was then closed in due form.

The brethren having been arranged under their respective banners, were marshalled in order of procession to All Saints' Church.

The line of procession was thickly lined with spectators, there being above 200 Masons present, attired in the full clothing and insignia of their respective offices, and the delightfully fine day no doubt contributed to the attractiveness of the spectacle. Excellent order was maintained by the police, under the command of Bro. Supt. Taylor, P.M. 310, P.P.G.S.B. The route taken was down Station-street, and round the statue of Lord Mayo, who was a member of Skiddaw Lodge up to the date of his tragic death. Here the band ceased playing, till clear of the statue, and the procession then was directed up Kirkgate to the south entrance of All Saints'. There was a full congregation, independently of the Masons. A very appropriate sermon was preached by Bro. the Rev. C. H. Gem, P.P. Grand Chaplain, from I. Corinthians, c. iii., v. 16—"The Temple of God." The service was intoned by Bro. the Rev. Canon Hoskins, M.A., assisted by the choir, who kindly gave their services. Miss Cooper presided at the organ. The opening anthem was "Behold, how good and joyful." After the sermon a collection was made, amounting to over £18.

After church service, the procession was re-formed in inverted order to the New Market Hall, where an excellent banquet was served by Bro. Stephen Thwaite, Old Hall Inn, assisted by many of the wives, daughters, and sisters of the members of Skiddaw Lodge, who cheerfully gave their services, as waitresses. The hall was beautifully decorated and fitted up, but proved totally unsuited for the purposes of a large dinner, the excessively bad sounding properties of the place rendering speechifying and singing most difficult tasks.

Colonel Whitwell, M.P., presided, and proposed in succession, "The Queen, the Patroness of Masonry;" "The Princess of Wales, and the rest of the Royal Family;" "The Army, Navy, and Auxiliary Forces," responded to by Bro. Captain Sewell and Captain Dodgson; Skiddaw Lodge, 1002; and "The Bishop and Clergy of the Diocese," which was acknowledged by the Rev. J. Thompson and Rev. C. H. Gem.

The R.W. Chairman then proposed "H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, M.W. Grand Master of England." He referred to the great strides made in the Order since the Prince of Wales became Grand Master. His Royal Highness was moreover a zealous working Mason, and took the deepest interest in all that appertained to the well-being and prosperity of the Craft. Another pleasing circumstance of interest evinced in Masonry by the Royal Family was the fact of the Prince of Wales's two brothers holding high offices in Grand Lodge. One of them, H.R.H. Prince Leopold, had been a most active Master of a lodge, and was now Provincial Grand Master of Oxfordshire. (Cheers.) The toast was drunk with much enthusiasm.

Bro. Morton next gave "The Earl of Carnarvon, M.W. Pro Grand Master, Lord Skelmersdale, R.W. Deputy Grand Master, and the rest of the Officers of the Grand Lodge," which he coupled with the name of the Chairman, who was a Past Grand Warden of England.

The Chairman, in response, advised all brethren who were qualified to sit in Grand Lodge never to lose the opportunity of attending the Quarterly Communications, whenever they happened to be in London. He alluded to the fact that metropolitan lodges were increasing more than provincial lodges, and remarked that it was a serious matter. They should be careful whom they admitted in their midst, and not strive merely to grow in numbers. (Cheers.)

The Chairman then proposed "The Earl of Bective, M.P., R.W. Provincial Grand Master of Cumberland and Westmoreland," which was received with loud applause. He (the Chairman) felt himself under a cloud of disappointment, inasmuch as he knew how much gratification would have been felt by the brethren generally had their Provincial Grand Master been present that day. (Hear, hear.) He should, however, have the greatest pleasure in telling his lordship the enthusiastic way in which his name had been received by the Masons of Cumberland and Westmoreland, over whom he was so proud to hold sway. They all would have pleasurable recollections for many a long year of the princely way in which their Provincial Grand Master received them at Kirkby Lonsdale last year. (Applause.) He hoped that Lord Bective would long have the health to preside over that province. (Loud cheers.)

Bro. Lemon gave, in graceful and complimentary terms, "The Health of the Chairman," which was drunk with much warmth.

The Chairman having briefly replied, proposed "The Masonic Charities." When he heard their Provincial Treasurer was really rich that morning he (the chairman) began to think whether the province could not afford something for the charities. He hoped that some brother would bring the matter before Provincial Grand Lodge at their next meeting. It was no good keeping their money lying idle, when it might be used for charitable purposes. (Hear, hear.) He coupled the toast with the name of Bro. Holme, who acknowledged the compliment.

Bro. M'Kelvie next proposed "The W.M. and Past Masters of Skiddaw Lodge," and in doing so expressed his gratification at the handsome way in which they had been received. This was the second time he had been at Cockermouth on a similar occasion, and he was sure that the brethren from other lodges would express their thanks most heartily to the Cockermouth brethren for their kind reception. He coupled with the toast the name of Bro. W. Taylor, W.M. of Skiddaw Lodge. The toast was drunk with much warmth.

Bro. Lamonby, P.M. and Secretary, responded, in the unexplained absence of Bro. Taylor, saying he did not know whether it was the innate modesty of the brother, or terror for what was looking him in the face on the toast list; but at all events, he was non est, without any explanation. He remarked it was twelve years since Provincial Grand Lodge was at Cockermouth, when he (Bro. Lamonby) was a very young Mason, some three months old, and when his mother, Skiddaw, was but sixteen or seventeen months old. (Laughter.) Since then Masonry had increased to a wonderful extent in Cumberland and Westmoreland, the lodges having almost doubled, and he hoped that when the time came round for the Provincial Grand Lodge to again visit Cockermouth the increase would be still further marked. He thanked the members of the different lodges for coming to Cockermouth in such large numbers that day, and that fact was ample compensation for any little hospitality the brethren of Skiddaw Lodge had extended to their visitors. (Applause.)

Bro. Talbot then proposed "The Worshipful Masters of Lodges in the Province," coupled with the name of Bro. Paitson, W.M. Lodge 119, Whitehaven, who briefly acknowledged the compliment.

Bro. R. Robinson, P.M. Skiddaw, then gave "The Visiting Brethren," in a very long speech, scarcely a word of which was audible. He coupled it with the name of Bro. Ockenden, Lodges 1512 and 1656, Hampton, Middlesex.

Bro. Ockenden, in reply, expressed the gratification it had afforded him to be present. Whether it was the excellent working in their Provincial Grand Lodge, the fine procession, the admirable sermon he had listened to, or the capital banquet placed before him that day, he had enjoyed himself beyond measure, and hoped to be present on such another auspicious occasion. (Applause.)

The Chairman, in proposing the last toast on the list, "To all Poor and Distressed Masons," expressed the pleasure it had given him to be present in Cockermouth. He had been amongst Cockermouth brethren previously, and therefore took much interest in their prosperity. He was glad to know they had built themselves a new lodge room, and whenever they opened it he should be most happy to visit them. (Applause.) Referring to the procession, they could not but inwardly feel a pang as they passed by the beautiful statue of their departed brother, Lord Mayo, who was a Mason, every inch of him, so far as kindness of heart and uprightness of character went. (Hear, hear.) Then, again, much of the success of the day's proceedings had been due to the charming weather, and he thought the Cockermouth brethren must have consulted and got round the clerk of the weather. (Laughter.) He hoped they all had enjoyed the excellent banquet they had partaken of; but amidst all this happiness he enjoined them to remember their poor and distressed brethren, and they should never forget that as Masons they were called upon to relieve them, according to the proportion of how good God had been to them in the dispensation of his privileges and blessings.

The toast was drunk in silence, and the proceedings were brought to a close at a little before six o'clock.

Bro. Frears, of Whitehaven, P.P. Grand Organist, presided at the pianoforte, and the following glees and part songs were sung by several of the Cockermouth and Carlisle brethren:—"God bless the Prince of Wales" (Masonic version); "Hail mysterious, glorious Science," "Oh, who would not a Mason be?" "Three Cheers, Brothers all, for the Craft we adore," "Brothers all, of every Nation," &c., the last three being from Bro. E. P. Philpot's (M.D.), new work.

CONSECRATION OF THE NEW BUXTON LODGE, No. 1688.

On Wednesday, the 12th September, 1877, the R.W. D.P.G.M., Bro. H. C. Okover, P.G.J.W., England, consecrated the Buxton Lodge, No. 1688. Bro. Darwin, P.P. G.W. Derbyshire, installed the W.M., and the officers were duly appointed, viz.:—Bros. F. K. Dickson, M.D., W.M.; W. Skinner, M.D., S.W.; W. C. Moore, J.W.; A. A. Bagshawe, M.A., Chap., and I.P.M.; R. R. Duke, P.M., S.D. and Treas.; F. Turner, J.D.; J. Taylor, P.M., Sec.; W. Smith, P.M., Org. and I.G.

Several P.G. Officers most kindly attended the lodge and an oration was delivered by the Rev. J. F. N. Eyre, LL.D., P.G. Chap.

After the consecration a very agreeable banquet was given by the brethren of the lodge at the Palace Hotel, Buxton, where the lodge is held on the last Monday in the month.

The first meeting of the lodge was held last Monday, when £6 was contributed by the brethren to the Indian Relief Fund.

CONSECRATION OF THE NEW FINSBURY PARK LODGE, NO. 1695.

On the 27th of last month the New Finsbury Park Lodge was consecrated by Bro. John Hervey, Grand Secretary, at the Finsbury Park Tavern. In the performance of the ceremony he had the assistance of Bro. H. G. Buss, Assistant Grand Secretary, who acted as D.C., Bro. Thomas Cubitt, Past Grand Pursuivant, as S.W., Bro. Dickinson as J.W., Bro. Davis as I.G., and Bro. Berry as Secretary. The other brethren who took an active part in the ceremonies of the day were the musical brethren, Bros. Ashton, Meen, and Hubbard, under the direction of the English Glee Union, who rendered the chants and anthems in beautiful style. These brethren also rendered very effective aid after the banquet, which followed, by singing some delightful glees and solos. There was no Chaplain present at the consecration, and consequently the whole of that ceremony was performed by Bro. Hervey. After the lodge had been opened Bro. Hervey, in addressing the brethren at the time the oration is usually delivered, said that it was the misfortune of the brethren that they had no Chaplain present to speak to them on the nature and principles of Masonry. That nature and those principles were however well known to most of the brethren, and they appeared also to be well known to the outer world, inasmuch as no new lodge was now opened without there being a flood of candidates for initiation therein. Whether this was an unmixed benefit was to his mind a question. Whether they also got the best men for initiates was also a question, and, as was generally his wont at consecrations, he would impress upon the brethren of this lodge the duty of being extremely careful in respect to those gentlemen they introduced. It was not only for the benefit of the Order he said this but for that of the lodge, because if they once got, to use a familiar phrase, "a black sheep" into the lodge it was very difficult to get rid of him. He might not be absolutely a bad man, but he might make himself so disagreeable to all his fellows that the lodge might be spoilt as far as its comfort went, and they might find when it was too late that he just kept within the pale of the Constitutions and so could not be ejected. To pass for the moment from this subject to that of the increase in the Order, he would give the brethren now a few statistics which he submitted at a consecration some few months ago at which he thought many of the brethren now before him were not present. In 1812 the number of lodges under what was then termed "The Prince's side," on account of the Grand Lodge being under the Grand Mastership of the then Prince of Wales, was 640. Yet when in 1815, "The Atholl side," as it was then termed, on account of the other Grand Lodge being ruled by the Duke of Atholl, the two were joined, they could only muster 647 lodges between them, certain lodges on both sides having been struck out. The money receipts in 1811 were £917 to the Fund of Benevolence, and £1550 to the Fund of General Purposes. In 1832 the numbers were again closed up, and there then appeared to be 865 lodges, or an increase of 218; but as the new numbering began with 594 it appeared that there were 53 lodges deducted since 1814. The receipts in 1832 were, Benevolence £1189, and General Purposes £2209. He would call attention to the Fund of Benevolence at the present time. It was not now unusual for the Lodge of Benevolence to vote away £600 or £700 in a night; and therefore he was afraid that if they had no more funds than they had in the old times he had alluded to the grants must be much smaller than they were now. In 1863 the numbers were again closed up, and the number of lodges was 1267, or an increase of 673 in 31 years. Canada had in the meantime declared itself independent. The receipts of the Fund of Benevolence were £3081, or nearly four times what they were in 1812. The present year began with a numerical list of 1662 lodges. 1663 was the first number this year, and the last one was 1725, or an increase in 9 months of 63 lodges; deducting New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, and other places which had established Grand Lodges of their own, and some others that had fallen out, to the number of above 120, that would still leave a gross total of 1603 English lodges. The funds had proportionately increased. In the face of these facts he thought the brethren would agree with him that they should be careful how they increased the lodges, because, although it was a present increase in funds, some day or other as the lodges increased the claims upon the funds must increase. They saw this every 6 months, when the applicants for the benefits of the Masonic Schools became greater in number to an amazing extent. Where there were formerly 20 or 30 applicants, 60 or 70 were now to be found. At the forthcoming election of the Boys' School he thought there were 70. This was another reason why he thought they should be careful, and he said so because he believed a good many men came into Masonry simply with the idea that they could get some good out of it. Circumstances which had arisen of recent years had caused Masons to give away large sums of money, and people had derived from that fact the idea that Freemasonry was very wealthy. From this they concluded that if they became Masons and fell into distress they could get their children educated, and come themselves on the Fund of Benevolence for assistance. Such being the state of Masonry derived from statistics, he would now say a word to the officers of the lodge. He would recommend them to be attentive to their duties, punctual in time, and efficient in ritual, able and willing to support the Master in the work which he had to perform. It was at all times very desirable that the work of the lodge should be well performed, for there was nothing more humiliating to an officer than not to know his work. He hoped that the officers who were to be appointed that evening would so make themselves masters of their work that the Master himself should never be at a loss for a good man, and it would be well indeed if, from some accidental circumstance, a senior officer was absent, the next in rotation could take his place. Bro. Hervey, after expressing his regret again that a Chaplain was not present, adverted to the blackballing of candidates, and repeated the cautions he had so constantly addressed to lodges on this subject which have appeared several times in the columns of the Freemason. Unfortunately, he said, these matters came before Grand Secretary officially, and it was difficult to know how to deal with them. He knew one London lodge, a very flourishing one, where two or three members joined together, and blackballed every candidate, and the lodge was nearly broken up in consequence. He said that he looked upon it as a most wicked and uncharitable thing so to act, to stab a man behind his back—an eligible man who the blackballers would say they would admit if he had come under the ordinary circumstances, but because they had a difference with some one respecting the affairs of the lodge they vented their feelings on a candidate. Bro. Hervey having apologised for detaining the brethren so long then proceeded with and concluded the ceremony of consecration.

When the lodge had been formally consecrated and dedicated, Bro. Hervey installed Bro. W. T. Purkess as W.M. The following brethren were appointed officers:—Bros. J. H. Stacey, S.W.; T. Press, J.W.; Davis, Treas.; Berry, Sec.; Dunn, S.D.; Crampton, J.D.; A. Haynam, I.G., pro tem; and Verry, Tyler.

A long list of names was proposed for initiation and joining, and Bros. Hervey and Buss were elected honorary members of the lodge.

Bro. Hervey having acknowledged the compliment, lodge was closed, and the brethren partook of banquet. The toasts were proposed in due course. "The Queen and the Craft," "The M.W.G.M.," "The Pro Grand Master, the Deputy Grand Master, and the rest of the Grand Officers," having been disposed of, Bro. Hervey replied for the Grand Officers, and then proposed "The Health of the W.M., and Success to the New Finsbury Park Lodge." This was, he said, the first appearance of Bro. Purkess in the Master's chair, and as far as his performance had that day gone it proved that the brethren had shown a wise discretion in recommending him to the Grand Master for that office. It was an honour to fill that post, for it showed how much the brother so recommended was appreciated by the brethren, the full trust they had in him; that he would perform his duties well, and their confidence that in putting their new barque under his control they would not regret the choice they had made. He wished success to the New Finsbury Park Lodge, and he wished the W.M. success for his year of office.

The W.M. responded, and said he was not prepared for this toast, although he found it on the list. He had not been prepared for being spoken of in such glowing terms as Bro. Hervey had used. He had overlooked many of his faults, among them being that he was rather backward as a Mason. But for all that he would do his best to perform his duties as Master of the lodge, and he would endeavour to keep it, as its founders originally intended it should be—a select lodge. They were not going in for numbers; and they would endeavour to have a lodge of about forty members. When they arrived at that number, they expected to be such a fine lodge that the brethren would scarcely be able to look at them. (Laughter.) When his year of office was over he hoped the brethren would be of opinion that he had done his duty properly.

The W.M. then proposed "The Health of the Consecrating Officers," a toast which he said he should never have the opportunity of proposing again.

Bro. Hervey replied in very few words, thanking the brethren most cordially for their kind reception, and informing them that if what he had done had gratified the brethren, that was a great gratification to him.

Bro. Buss also replied. The brethren had exercised a wise discretion in selecting Bro. Purkess as W.M., a brother whom he had known some time, more particularly the last year or two. He was sure Bro. Purkess would keep the lodge in good order. It gave him (Bro. Buss) great pleasure to be present. Masonry was making rapid strides, but not so much in the north as in the south of London. Therefore he was very happy to hear of the starting of this new lodge, and he hoped it would not be the last, or the least successful. There were many inconveniences to be encountered by lodges meeting in the outskirts of London, but he was quite sure at the house where this lodge was located would be found every convenience the brethren could desire.

Bro. Legg replied for "The Officers," and expressed the high gratification he felt at witnessing the W.M. placed in the chair, without having passed through the preliminary chairs. Having been many years in Masonry the W.M. had saved himself a great deal of trouble by being the first Master of a lodge without having had the offices of Junior and Senior Warden conferred on him. The meeting had been most enjoyable, and he hoped he should have the opportunity of again joining the brethren at such a sociable gathering.

Bro. Davis (Treasurer) replied for "The Officers," all of whom through him thanked the W.M. most cordially for having expressed in proposing the toast the confidence he felt in their ability to assist him with efficiency in the discharge of his duties. The W.M. would not be disappointed with them, and they would not be disappointed with the W.M.

Bro. James Terry replied for "The Charities," and repeated many of the excellent remarks he made at the consecration of All Saints Lodge, reported in the Freemason last week. He concluded by informing the brethren that the W.M. had authorised him to use his name as a Steward for the Benevolent Institution.

The evening was shortly afterwards brought to a close.

NOTES ON ART, &amp;c.

QUADRUPLIX TELEGRAPHY.—Some novel American telegraphic appliances are now being tried between London and Liverpool, the first trial having been made on Tuesday night with satisfactory results. The system is known as the quadruplex, and by its means four messages may be sent along one wire simultaneously. At either end there are two "sounders" and two keys, with four clerks, two to send and two to receive; and by an ingenious arrangement a conflict of currents is prevented. Thus by the aid of this invention one wire may be made to do as much as four worked on the ordinary system. The duplex principle is a valuable contrivance, but the quadruplex is twice as valuable.

The Channel Tunnel has been fairly begun in France, where several pits have been sunk to the depth of 110 yards. The French and English companies formed for its construction will each possess one half, and will respectively supply the funds for each portion, while the excavation will be done in France by the Great Northern Railway, and in England by the South-Eastern and Chatham and Dover lines. The materials of the French and English lines will pass through the tunnel in order to avoid delay and expense of transshipment, and as soon as the tunnel is completed the companies will endeavour to arrange for a similar exchange with other Continental lines. At the end of thirty years the tunnel will be ceded to the two Governments under certain conditions.

The coming Fine Art Exhibition at Dundee bids fair to be the best ever held north of the Tweed. Loans will be sent from several of the London museums, English artists will contribute largely, and the Queen has lent a valuable picture for exhibition.

CAMBRIDGE UNIVERSITY LOCAL EXAMINATIONS.—These examinations commence on Monday, December 17th, at 82 centres for boys and 64 for girls. Lists of the centres of examination and the addresses of the local secretaries at the centres may be obtained from the Rev. G. F. Browne, St. Catharine's College, Cambridge. The forms of entry for candidates are now in the hands of the local secretaries, to whom application for them must be made. The forms are to be returned to the same local secretaries on or before October 10th, 1877. The certificates obtained in these examinations excuse the holders, under various conditions, from the Cambridge previous examination and the preliminary examination for the legal and medical professions, and for musical degrees in Cambridge.

M. Offenbach's new three-act opera, "Les Contes d'Hoffmann," is to be produced this winter at the Paris Lyrique.

GENERAL GRANT.—General Grant visited Stratford-on-Avon on Friday last, and was received by the Mayor and Corporation with every demonstration of respect. The General and Mrs. Grant proceeded to inspect the house where Shakespeare was born, the Grammar School which the poet is said to have attended, the Shakespeare memorial now in course of erection, the church in which his ashes repose, and the cottage where Ann Hathaway lived. Afterwards the Mayor entertained the General and a distinguished party. In responding to the toast of his health, General Grant observed that in his country the memory of Shakespeare was honoured as with us, and there were societies which cultivated the study of his works as there were here. The address of the Corporation was contained in a casket made from the wood of the mulberry tree said to have been planted by Shakespeare.

THE INDIAN FAMINE.—Mr. James Wylde, of Charing Cross and the Royal Exchange, has just published a small map of India, showing in colours the districts affected by the various famines of late years, especially that from which the peninsula is now suffering. A sketch map is also appended, showing the average rainfall of various parts of the country.

MARLBOROUGH HOUSE.—In consequence of the recent illness of the Prince of Wales's son, all the drains at Marlborough House have been undergoing repairs, which has necessitated their Royal Highnesses the Prince and Princess of Wales taking up their residence at Clarence House on their way through London.—Family Fair.

TELEGRAPHIC COMMUNICATION WITH AUSTRALIA.—We understand that steps have been taken by the Agents-General for Victoria and New Zealand, in combination with the other Australian colonies, for the purchase from the Eastern Extension and China Telegraph Company of the submarine cable from India to Australia. The details of this scheme of purchase have been settled by Sir Julius Vogel, as representative of the New Zealand Government, in conjunction with Mr. Michel, Agent-General for Victoria. The Australian colonies may be heartily congratulated on this proof of unity and enterprise.

A LIFE RAFT.—On Wednesday last at the St. Pancras Baths, King-street, Camden Town, Sexton's patent life-preserving mattress was exhibited in action, the Rev. Arthur Hall being the operator in the water. The mattress is not wholly an air one, but without air, and of its own buoyancy, will support four persons on it, and many more, if they are merely clinging to it. It is so made as to form a mattress on board ship, either as a bed in the berth or as a lounging mattress on deck, and is always ready for service. Pillows are made of the same material, and uninflated will keep afloat one person. The valves by which the mattress and pillow can be inflated to a higher degree of buoyancy are so constructed that, without any disjoining, the filling with air is readily done, and there are no stoppers to be lost. On Thursday the mattress was thus filled while afloat. The air was let out, and then three lads of good size failed to press the mattress under water. The manufacturers are Messrs. Hutchinson, of London, Paris, and Mannheim.

Masonic and General Tidings.

THE "FREEMASON" INDIAN FAMINE FUND.—Intending subscribers (lodges or individual members) to this fund are earnestly requested to send in their subscriptions, large or small, at as early a date as convenient. Upwards of £100 has already been received, a list of which appears in the Freemason of this date. A list will be published each week of all amounts received at the Office, (198, Fleet-street), up to 6 o'clock, p.m., on Thursdays.

The Provincial Grand Lodge of West Lancashire held its annual meeting at Southport last Wednesday, the 3rd inst. A full report of the proceedings will appear next week, as well as details of the consecration of the Wilbraham Lodge at Walton, near Liverpool, this (Saturday) afternoon, at which Bro. Lord Skelmersdale, D.G.M. and P.G.M., is expected to be the consecrating officer.

The Installation Meeting of the Marquess of Ripon Lodge, No. 1489, took place on Friday, the 5th inst., Bro. J. E. Wallford, C.C., P.M. 117, being installed W.M. A full report will appear in our next.

CONFIDENCE LODGE OF INSTRUCTION, No. 193.—The future meetings of this flourishing instruction lodge will be held at the Greyhound Tavern, Milton-st., Cripplegate, on Wednesday evenings at 7 p.m.

THE "NEW CONCORD" ROYAL ARCH CHAPTER, No. 813.—This new chapter was consecrated on Thursday week by Comp. James Terry, P.Z., &c., assisted by Comps. Wm. Smeed, and Brasier. Comp. A. Wootton was an able D. of C. and the music was contributed by Comps. Seymour Smith and F. H. Cozens. The ceremonies of consecration and installation were impressively performed by Comp. Terry. M.E. Comp. J. R. Gallant, was the Principal installed. A full report in our next.

A Meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Glasgow was held on Thursday last, in the Queen's Rooms, Glasgow, the business consisting in the consecration of the Princes Lodge, No. 607, and installation of Office-bearers. A full report will appear in our next.

A Grand Council of the Illustrious Knights K.H. 30°, will be held at the Masonic Hall, 33, Golden Square, on Wednesday next, at 4.45 p.m.

A Dramatic performance will be given in the Free Trade Hall, Manchester, on Wednesday, the 10th inst., in aid of the Manchester and Salford Indian Famine Relief Fund, by the members of the De Trafford Club. The band of the 1st Kings Dragoon Guards will be in attendance, by kind permission of Lieut.-Col. Alexander. Several eminent brethren are on the Committee.

The installation meeting of the King Harold Lodge, No. 1327, takes place on the 18th inst., and not the 11th, as stated in a previous impression.

NEW SOUTH WALES.—The brethren who have experienced so much difficulty in procuring the Freemason in this distant colony, will be pleased to learn that owing to arrangements made with Messrs. T. J. Jones and Son, "The Four Masonic Publications" may now be obtained at their offices, No. 330, George-street, Sydney, on the arrival of the Mail.

ACCIDENT TO A DISTINGUISHED LIVERPOOL BROTHER.—On Wednesday, the 26th inst., Bro. Dr. J. Kellett Smith, P.P.G. Registrar, West Lancashire, of Russell-street, Liverpool, travelled by the L. and N.W. Railway to Holyhead, for the purpose of visiting a patient at Pantasagh, which is situated a short distance from Holyhead. In driving back to the station in a vehicle the horse took fright, and bolted at a furious rate, pitching Bro. Smith out with great violence. He alighted on his head, sustaining severe injuries, and spraining his right ankle. He laid in an insensible condition in the road for a short period, but subsequently recovered. The horse was stopped and brought back to the spot, and as the doctor was unable to walk he had again to get into the vehicle. The horse ran off a second time before getting to Holyhead, but fortunately Bro. Smith escaped without further injury in this instance. He is progressing favourably at the time of writing. One or two gentlemen who were with him also sustained injuries and severe shocks.

On dit, that Bro. the Hon. F. Stanley, R.W.D.P.G.M., for West Lancashire, is engaged in writing a life of his father, the late Earl of Derby, a preface being promised by Earl Beaconsfield.

The Mansion House Indian Famine Fund had on Thursday evening reached over £300,000, of which a quarter of a million has been remitted to India.

It is stated that the New Zealand Government will reward the Portland boatmen who saved the lives of the crews of "Avalanche" and the "Forest."

BRO. COMMANDER CHEYNE.—Hitherto unaided, but with his heart in the noble cause, and with an indomitable energy and perseverance, has Commander Cheyne worked for the last ten months, in organising Arctic Committees throughout the length and breadth of Great Britain, for the equipment—by means of public subscriptions—of a single steamer, to be stored and provisioned for three years, destined for the discovery of the North Pole. From Plymouth to Dover, from Dover to Aberdeen, has this officer, by means of his interesting and beautifully-illustrated Arctic lectures, sensibly impressed upon the public mind the fact that we are only baffled, not beaten. Responding to his truthful and energetic statements and appeals, he has rallied round him, on his committees, mayors, press proprietors and editors, ship-owners, merchants, clergy of different denominations, members of the medical profession, naval and military men; and last, but not least, ladies have notably joined the movement.

The Lord Mayor acknowledges the receipt of £3 10s., in aid of the Indian Famine Fund, from the De Shurland Lodge, No. 1089, Sheerness.

Bro. the Rt. Hon. the Earl of Carnarvon, has returned from Bretby Park, to his Hampshire Estate, Highclere Castle, near Newbury, where he will probably stay for some time for the shooting.

A new church, built at the sole expense of Lord Skelmersdale, R.W. Deputy Grand Master, and at a cost of between £5000 and £6000, was opened on Saturday, at Dalton, near Wigan. At the subsequent luncheon Lord Skelmersdale said he wished it to be understood that all the sittings in the church were free and open for ever.

The Installation meeting of the Faith Lodge, No. 141, will be held on the 30th inst., at Anderton's Hotel, when Bro. E. Mallett will be installed W.M. for the ensuing year.

The marriage of Mr. John Shaw, general manager of the South-Eastern Railway, with Miss Spencer, daughter of the late Bro. Sidney Spencer, will take place at the church of St. Mary Aldermary, on the 13th inst.

A biography of Mr. Compton, the comedian, is in course of preparation by one of his sons.

A provincial actor, a Mr. Burnham, was playing the role of Matthias, in "The Bells," in a little theatre at Blackpool, in Lancashire, the other night, when who should he spy among the audience but Mr. Henry Irving. The sight was enough to make the stoutest heart quail. The creator of the character, who had come to the little watering place for a day or two on the quiet, had evidently been attracted by the graphic announcements on the walls, and was present, "for the fun of the thing," to see his favourite character hurled. Mr. Burnham is said to have evinced the greatest trepidation at the sudden and awful discovery; but luckily the audience seemed to set down the actor's first start and pallor to the jingling of those accursed sledge bells in the ears of Matthias, and Mr. Irving is reported to have expressed a fair approbation of the piece as a whole.—Mayfair.

LIVERPOOL.—In answer to the numerous letters that the publisher has received from brethren in Liverpool, we beg to state that the Freemason is to be obtained in Liverpool on Friday afternoon at 5 o'clock, at the Office, 2, Monument place; at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street; and at the Landing Stage.

The World states that in the death of Mr. R. J. Spiers, not only have the Freemasons lost a conspicuous and energetic "brother," but many persons have to mourn an erudite and pleasant companion. To the world at large Mr. Spiers was known as an enterprising Oxford tradesman; but he was much more than that—he had a quaint store of archæological and antiquarian lore; and in the days of his prosperity, literary men of all opinions were made welcome to his beautiful house in Oxford, and found an admirable cicerone in their generous host.

A Proposal having been made to the Prince of Wales to consider practical measures for preventing wrecks and loss of life at the Scilly Islands, which are embraced in the Dukedom, His Royal Highness has directed the correspondence to be laid before the Duchy of Cornwall Council at their next meeting.

MANCHESTER.—For the information of the fraternity in Manchester, the publisher begs to state that the Freemason may now be obtained at Overall's, 47, Bridge-street, Manchester, on Saturday morning at 8 o'clock.

CLEOPATRA'S NEEDLE.—A telegram received at Lloyds from Liverpool, states that the Olga, steamer, having in tow the Cleopatra Obelisk, has put into Algiers for coal.

A quarterly convocation of the Metropolitan College of the Rosicrucian Society will be held at the Royal Masonic Hall, 8, Air-street, Regent-street, on Thursday next, at half-past 5.

THE QUEEN AND THE ROYAL FAMILY.

The Queen and Court are at Balmoral. Prince Leopold is also there.

H.R.H. the Prince and Princess of Wales have been staying at Aberfeldie.

THE DUKE OF EDINBURGH.—Some of our contemporaries have been premature in announcing that his Royal Highness the Duke of Edinburgh is about to be relieved from his present command. The Osborne goes to Marseilles to convey the Duchess to Malta, and the Sultan has been ordered to convey her, after which duty the Sultan, with the Duke of Edinburgh, will rejoin the flag of Admiral Hornby.—Army and Navy Gazette.

The Princess Louise and the Marquis of Lorne have gone to Inverary Castle.

The Duchess of Edinburgh is about to proceed with the Royal children to Malta, where she will meet the Duke. She intends to stay at Malta for the winter.

The Duke of Cambridge has been inspecting the Royal Artillery at Woolwich.

Constitutions of the Ancient Fraternity of Free and Accepted Masons, containing the Charges, Regulations, E.A. Song, &c. A copy should be in the possession of every brother. It may be obtained for 2s. at the office of the Freemason, or will be sent post free to any part of the United Kingdom on receipt of twenty-five penny stamps. Address, Publisher, 198, Fleet-street, London.—ADVT.

The Freemason,

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 6, 1877.

IMPORTANT NOTICE.
ENLARGEMENT.OF
"The Freemason."

The Proprietor has much pleasure in announcing his intention of enlarging the Freemason to 20 pages, during the London Masonic Season.

This improvement will commence with the issue for Oct. 13th.

All communications to ensure insertion in the current number should reach the Office, on Wednesdays, by 5 p.m.

THE INDIAN FAMINE FUND.

It will be seen in another column that an Indian Famine Fund has been started, under the auspices of the Freemason, our publisher, with his wonted liberality, heading the list with the handsome sum of £100. One or two Lodge and individual subscriptions are also announced, and we doubt not, that each succeeding week will witness an increase to this much-needed Fund. Already the amount realised by the Lord Mayor's Fund has reached so far the noble total of over £302,000, of which £250,000 has been forwarded to India. Her Gracious Majesty the Queen has, in the following communication to the Lord Mayor, expressed her warm approval of his most benevolent efforts and her heartfelt appreciation of the liberality of her people. We give the letter in extenso, which was sent by telegram by the Home Secretary from Balmoral.

"Balmoral, 9.15 a.m.

"I am desired by Her Majesty the Queen to thank your Lordship for your telegram stating that the Indian Famine Fund now being raised at the Mansion-house already exceeds a quarter of a million sterling, and that your Lordship hopes and believes that it will largely increase. Her Majesty feels deeply the readiness with which the sufferings of her people in India have touched the hearts of her people at home."

It would seem needless to commend the matter to every Lodge of Freemasons, and we trust that each hebdomadal Freemason will demonstrate that our good brethren are still as ever, most susceptible to a proper claim on their warm beneficence and undoubted if unostentatious charity.

THE BALANCE SHEET OF THE GIRLS' SCHOOL.

We have studied this with some interest and carefulness, and we think it well to impart the result of our studious efforts to our readers, as they will be equally interested with us in the welfare and prosperity of that noble Institution of ours, the Girls' School. The year's accounts open with a balance of £2206 18s. 3d. and £70 in petty cash, in all £2276 18s. 3d. Grand Lodge and Grand Chapter give a donation of £160 10s. The subscriptions of individual brethren in the Metropolis amount to £5045 4s. 3d., and Metropolitan Lodges and Chapters send up £856 10s. Metropolitan Lodges of Instruction £73 10s. The Metropolitan High Grade Chapters, £66 3s. Provincial brethren (individually) contribute £2046 16s. Provincial Lodges and Chapters, £1731 9s., and Provincial High Grade Chapters £31 10s. Ireland, Scotland, and the Colonies return £133, and there is a special donation from London of £16 16s., Legacies reach £55 10s. The dividends on stock are £1162 3s. 11d. The fees for musical instruction amount to £124 19s.; though the cost of tuning, &c., reaches £81 6s. 7d.; which another year had better appear, we think, distinctly on the debit side. There are other small items, amounting to £5 4s., so that the whole receipts of the Institution are £13,705 2s. 10d. On the per contra side, the expenses of the new building are put down at £3132 15s., and special repairs to £25

17s. Ordinary expenses are £5572 9s. Pensions and Gratuities, £249 12s. 9d. Special grants to invalid girls £36 10s. Stewards' certificates for three years £71 16s. Prizes and rewards, £32 3s. Gratuities and outfits to girls, £28 10s. Recreation of girls and University examination fees £36 5s. 11d. After the Christmas accounts were paid, there was a balance at the close of 1876 of £2147 4s. There were in the Bankers' hands, Dec. 31st 1876, £371 19s. 8d.; in Secretary's hands, £50; in Matrons' hands, £20. And when we remember that in 1877 the annual festival was most successful, bringing in the goodly amount of £10,000, we see that the Girls' School is in "very good case." But we must not forget that the fresh pupils the new buildings will accommodate will constitute an additional charge upon the funds of the Institution, which our good brethren will do well not to forget. We think it reflects no little credit on the authorities that they have executed all the needful contracts for enlargement without running the school into debt, and we feel sure that the good management and economical administration which have marked the Girls' School in past years, and so conspicuously in the present, will continue to be its distinguishing and praiseworthy characteristic in the future. We congratulate Bro. Little on the success of his many arduous labours, and we are anxious to express our humble and earnest sense at the happy results, both Masonically and architecturally, which have attended the judicious and needful improvements organised and carried out by our excellent and esteemed Bro. Col. Creaton.

THE POSITION OF FREEMASONRY IN FRANCE AND BELGIUM.

We cannot shut our eyes if we would, and we ought not if we could, to the anomalous and unjust position in which Anglo-Saxon Masons are placed in France and Belgium by some recent and untoward proceedings, and a most regrettable decision. For they are unable now to enter French and Belgium Lodges on their Masonic principles, and for this reason, the labours of those two jurisdictions are both un-Masonic and unhallowed. They neither begin nor end with prayer. The Bible is taken out of every lodge, and there is nothing to prevent positive unbelievers from being admitted members of the Masonic Order. This, to use a French expression, is a "changement des decorations," as undesirable as it is unfitting. Cosmopolitan Freemasonry has always rested on a great Theistic principle of reverence and religion, and now all of a sudden "nous avons changé tout cela" and the name of God is neither acknowledged, nor is his blessing invoked on the labours and the undertakings of Freemasonry in those countries. This in common parlance, "turning the tables" with a vengeance, and no Anglo-Saxon Freemason can witness such a result or hear of such proceedings without heartfelt concern and fraternal disapproval. Is it not possible that under the sad and actual circumstances of the case, on the petition of respectable brethren, warrants might be granted as well by American Grand Lodges as our English Grand Lodges, for English and American Masons to meet "more majorum" alike in France and Belgium? The recent proceedings of the two Grand Orients have placed them, as we regard the matter, outside the "ægis" of legal protection, and any rights they may have had as governing bodies, are now merged in the serious departure they manifest, from ancient precedent and Masonic usage. They may be still Masonic bodies, but they have no longer exclusive jurisdiction, inasmuch as by the "comity" of Grand Lodges, and the constant provisions of international Masonic law, they have departed from our "Ancient Landmarks," and can neither claim obedience or recognition, except at the hands of those who admit their authority, and approve of their proceedings. In writing this we feel the responsibility of the position and, above all, of our own words. But as we think that nothing is gained by "mealy-mouthedness," by the "suppressio veri," or by the "suggestio falsi," by daubing the walls with untempered mortar, we deem it better, to speak openly and plainly, as well for the benefit of French Freemasons, as for the edification of our many readers. Some time ago our own authorities declined an application for a warrant for English Masons to form a lodge in Belgium, on the ground that there was a lawful Grand Orient already there. But under this unprecedented and altered state of affairs, with the utter impossibility now any longer of English Masons visiting Belgian and French lodges, we are inclined to think, though we speak without the slightest authority and simply as independent journalists, that a fresh application, (on the grounds we have above stated especially), might be crowned with greater success. In fact if such should be the case it would only be history repeating itself, as all French and Belgian Freemasons originally drew their vital breath, and their now discarded principles, from English Freemasonry and the English Grand Lodge.

ANONYMOUS MASONIC LETTER-WRITING.

As a fact in itself, we should prima facie be prepared to deny the possibility of such an occurrence, or of such a piteous forgetfulness of Masonic duty. Anonymous letters have been in all times the resort of the cowardly and the contemptible, the weapon of malignant falsehood, a vehicle for treachery, the distinguishing token of the hypocrite, the traducer, and the knave. A sensible person treats such a production always with contempt, and never allows the debasing and shameful influence of such malignancy to affect his mind or shape his proceedings. He dismisses the odious allegation or the vile insinuation, with the just indignation of a man of honour, properly ruled by justice and guided by uprightness. In the history of family life, more than one happy circle has been rendered divided and miserable for ever, by the advent of the shameful missive of anonymous vulgarity and hate. But what shall we say of the Masonic anonymous writer? In so acting he transgresses every principle of the Order to which he belongs, he slanders a brother behind his back, he stabs him in the dark, unable or not daring to meet him face to face, he seeks by an anonymous letter to inflict as much pain as possible, "willing to wound" covertly, but "afraid to strike" openly. Whether it be by the careful compilation of "printed extracts," or by a MS., which seems to be flavoured with "gin and water" in every line; whether by writing which marks the shakiness of his hand, and the "bassesse" of his moral code, to say nothing of the iaroads of "delicious trimmings," the poor anonymous Masonic libeller is a subject for pity rather than for anger, for unmitigated contempt, rather than for indignant oburgation. It is our lot sometimes to receive such epistles, and we think it right, in the best interests of Freemasonry to mention them openly, and to denounce them calmly to day. They are not worth, it is true, any serious thought, and certainly merit no resentment. They are hardly worth the expenditure of printers' type and ink upon them, but as they betray a serious malady mental or otherwise, as they point to a state of Masonic disease which at times become infectious, we deem it but fair to ourselves and to our Order, openly to reprobate and repel such thoroughly unmasonic proceedings, by whomsoever suggested or carried through. In a recent case a brother signs himself, in a letter written for some purpose of personal impertinence "A P.M. of Many Years' Standing," which we feel sure is an absolute falsehood in itself, and is a fitting commentary on the act of an anonymous libeller. We think it well, we repeat, as Freemasons, always to mention the subject in our columns, but we shall treat such worthless production with the Masonic exercise of laughter and unconcern.

THE FRENCH GRAND ORIENT.

Dear Bro. Kenning,—

I propose in this my last communication on the subject to deal with one or two "statements of defence" which some writers have put forward, and to show, I hope their utter fallacy.

1. It is gravely contended that this great change has been effected for toleration's sake. For toleration's sake, forsooth! What, then, is toleration? Toleration implies the endurance of the views of others from whom we differ, or rather, it is the abnegation of that self-opinionatedness which holds that we alone are in possession of the truth, and that all others are in error; that we in fact are right and everybody else is wrong. And who are they that have clamoured for and have brought about this mighty change? Certainly not the peaceful and truly tolerant minority! But simply the "Têtes exaltées," the "Libre Penseurs," the "Positivistes," and the "Fautors" of the "Morale Indépendante," and no one else. There is a large intelligent, educated minority, which deprecates alike the rashness and the "betise" of the change. Of course, to all such thinkers as the majority the "formula" (now erased) was objectionable and antagonistic.

Now, as I have pointed out, I do not mean to contend that the old formula was absolutely in its right place. I prefer always the ancient adage, "Similia Similibus." It probably is true, as an objection, that an expression of belief was out of place in a code of legislation, and in our own excellent "Book of Constitutions" the "Charges" are separate from the "Enactments," and therefore had the change only proceeded on the principle of putting things into their proper places, I should have found no fault, and uttered no complaint. But there was no endeavour or wish to do anything of the kind. It was not improvement or emendation that was sought for, but "change for change's sake," revolution, a violent, sweeping and radical alteration in the enunciation of French Masonic principles. For what has taken place actually? "La Solidarité humaine," (ridiculous mockery of the word toleration), has taken the place of "Belief in God," and the assertion of French Masonic principles, once in entire accordance with Anglo-Saxon and Cosmopolitan Freemasonry, rests on an expression of human infallibility and on the surrender of the belief in God to gratify the idle unbelief of the hour. And here it is so, that, as it seems to me, the plea of toleration is alike jesuitical and absurd on the face of it, as the act of the Grand Orient is nothing but an "outcome" of sceptical intolerance.

It is quite clear that, on every abstract principle of true toleration, the believers in God have as much right to have their feelings and opinions consulted, as the disbelievers, and whereas the old formula is said to keep out the latter, it may happen that the new verbiage will repel the former. Where, then, is the toleration?

It seems strange to Anglo-Saxon Masons, to hear it gravely asserted, that a profession of belief in God is a proof of intolerance, for that world-wide dogma of Freemasonry has up to the present never been questioned and has always been accepted. No doubt some allowance must be made for the state of men's minds in France and elsewhere, to some extent arising from the higher-superstition of an unreasoning Ultramontanism, but we can not but regret deeply, in this Nineteenth Century, to find that the great free conscience-fight is to be fought on such false grounds and such indefensible propositions as those of French and Belgian Freemasons.

In fact, this violent change has been brought about to meet the noisy demands of an extreme school, which seeks apparently to restore everything to the darkness of human irrationalism, abjuring those great fundamental truths which lend force to reason, grace to civilisation, grandeur to science, and reality to humanity.

I must therefore absolutely reject the plea of toleration advanced by the advocates of this unwise change, and must proclaim it to be, in my humble opinion, an insult, so to say, to the reverential belief of thousands upon thousands of firm Masonic believers in God.

2. Again, it is said that it is within the competence of the Grand Orient of France to pass such a resolution, and to amend its own laws. I do not deny its competence to do anything which a majority pleases, but I do protest against the utter severance from Cosmopolitan Freemasonry which this last deplorable decision has created.

3. And then, what of the future? How the Grand Orient is to stem the tide in coming years I do not profess to understand. Its position is now of more than questionable legality, its jurisdiction most undoubtedly defective, and as it has "sown," so it will have to "reap."

It may be true that as in this world of ours, in the Providence of T.G.A.O.T.U., evermore, good comes out of evil, so this hasty and undigested declaration of an unsound Masonic teaching may be productive of the creation of lodges, under other Grand Lodges, in which the great landmarks of the Order are carefully preserved, and by which the Cosmopolitan teaching of Freemasonry is manfully upheld.

Be this as it may, the present page of French Masonic history offers but a sorry contemplation for the true Freemason, and I can only hope a better fate for French Freemasonry than present facts, stern and unpalatable, seem to render either possible or probable.

I am, yours fraternally,

MASKELYNE.

TEACH THEM TO SWIM.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Another summer has passed from us without any intimation from the School Committee that steps have been taken to teach swimming to the boys at Wood Green.

There are many who, like myself, highly appreciate the teaching of the Freemasons' boys in most respects, but who will never admit that the Committee are fully discharging their duties to the school until swimming is added to the accomplishments of the boys. At the risk of being termed an enthusiast I would say that no man should be eligible for the committee of any school for boys, who did not recognise that it was an essential part of education to TEACH THEM TO SWIM.

"CLOSE TYLED."

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

As the recognised and only means open to me for the rectification of what is amiss, or capable of improvement in Masonic arrangements, I take leave to address you in the hope that some of our highly placed brothers in whose hands such matters lie, may not only see the need but at once take steps to inaugurate a change, which I cannot but think all will at once admit to be desirable as soon as attention is called to the evil.

The question is, cannot, and ought not some more effective means than are at present in use be adopted, some practical plan be formed to test the right of entry of those who are unknown seeking to enter the large Metropolitan meetings of some of the Orders in Masonry. At present men are allowed to enter unchallenged practically many great meetings, such for instance as Great Priory, Convent General, and Grand Lodge. I humbly submit that under existing arrangements no safeguard or test whatever is in use against the admission of unauthorised persons supposing such tendered themselves for admission, as it appears to me, nothing further is required to gain admission to the large Masonic gatherings than the capability to write and the possession of the requisite costume. Being able to sign a name in a book, and appearing properly clothed, any man may enter and participate if he pleases in our secret meetings.

This evil has been forcibly presented to my attention by what happened to myself on a recent occasion, and I think a short statement of the circumstances will both more strongly prove the existence of the evil and the urgent necessity there is for amendment than any argument or appeal of mine can do. I must premise that I am a Freemason and a Knight of the Order in which the case I am stating arose. Knowing that on a certain afternoon a meeting of the Order was appointed to take place I appeared at the place of meeting and the Tyler having often seen me there before in other Orders, on my asking if a meeting of the Order in question was to be held, replied "Yes Sir" and admitted me. Having clothed I passed in due time into the lodge room. From first to last no one said a word to me or suggested any test or the production of any certificate to show that I had any right to be present. In due course after the ceremony was over I signed the attendance book (when my name appeared for the first time, for the reason to be presently stated.) Even then nothing was said in the way of enquiry as to my right to be present and I passed out. There were several Sir Knights present, who probably had seen and known me as a member of some of the other Orders meeting at the same place, but never could have known me as belonging to that Knightly Order, because I had only been admitted into it a very short time before at head quarters. This I think shows a very regrettable laxity in the admission of persons to our meetings, when on the contrary the greatest care ought to be exercised to prevent intrusion, and should not be admitted to exist for a single day longer. I make no accusation of neglect against any one, still less do I charge any with having intruded himself into any of our meetings without having the right to do so. But what I do say, is it right for it to be possible (as I have shewn it is under the existing arrangements) for any one to gain, unchallenged, admission to any of our meetings. I remember in our early K.T. meetings, in Bedford Row, there was some attempt to guard our Encampment from intrusion by the unqualified (whether effectual or not I will not say) but of later years I have noticed that even these have gotten into disuse, and now practically the entry into the meeting of that Order is as open and unguarded as the most inveterate coward can desire. Attention having been called to the important subject, improvement ought at once to follow, and in order to that result I have troubled you with this communication.

Yours right fraternally, J.C.G.L.

AN APPEAL.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

May I be permitted to again bring before your readers the name of George Samuel Cox, who is a candidate at the forthcoming election of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys. If the poor boy is not successful on the 15th inst., he will be unable, on account of age, to again offer himself for election.

The case is a most deserving one, and is strongly recommended by, amongst others, the Rev. J. Huyshe, P.G.M. Deyon, Vice Patron; Bro. L. P. Metham, P.G.D., D.P.G.M. Deyon; Bro. the Rev. C. J. Martyn, P.G.D.C., D.P.G.M. Suffolk, Vice Patron, Long Melford, Suffolk; Bro. Hughan, P.G.D., Vice Patron, Truro, Cornwall; Bro. the Rev. Dr. Ace, P.P.G.C. Lincolnshire, Laughton, near Gainsborough; Bro. Rodda, P.P.G. Reg. Devon, East Stonehouse, Devon; Bro. W. M. St Aubyn, 1, Brick Court Temple, E.C.; and the Charity Committee of the Province of Devon.

Prayers will be thankfully received by any of the brethren whose names are marked thus, or by yours fraternally,

J. EDWARD CURTIS,

P.M. 189, P. Prov. S.G.W. Devon,

Vice President of the Institution.

St. George's Hall, East Stonehouse, Devon,
3rd October, 1877.

SKETCHES OF MASONIC CHARACTER. No. VII.

BRO. RICKETTS AT KISSENGEN.

Some of us may have heard of Kissengen. Though known to the Romans, and of medieval reputation, it was only towards the beginning of this century that it came, so to say, into European celebrity. Our countryman and Bro. Dr. Granville, a Past Grand Officer, first brought its great merits before our English travelling and valetudinarian public, and to the last hour of his long career he was a firm believer in its curative and sanative gifts. As some of our readers may also know, it is in Bavaria, and lies in a low valley, bordered by hills, contiguous to the River Saal, and during the height of the season is filled with a most numerous, if often motley crowd of health-seekers, water-imbibers at the meritorious and effective sources of the "Ragotzi," "Pandur," and "Mazbrunnen."

The sojourn there in successive years of princes and potentates, of dons and diplomatists, has added greatly to its reputation, while the repeated visits of crowned heads have extended its "high praise far and wide." For several years the Empress of Austria paid a visit to Kissengen, much to the delight of all its visitors, and whereas when the locale was first made known to Englishmen and Englishwomen in Dr. Granville's work on "The Spas of Germany," it was an insignificant little village, practically it has now become a very large town, (still increasing), suited to the wants of thousands of the "Badegäste" who throng to it from all parts, from May to September, year by year.

Our friend, Bro. Ricketts, the worthy Secretary of the "Calliope" Lodge, has recently been a great sufferer from indigestion, and was ordered to Kissengen. Some of his friends do say, indeed, that despite the complaints of an indulgent wife, Bro. Ricketts is a little too fond of a good dinner and late hours, and that, as he himself observes, being a "free citizen, fond of society, and immersed in the vortex of fashionable life," he has suffered accordingly. Whether this be true or no, we are not in a position to say here, but we do know him to be a very warm-hearted and kind-hearted friend, a zealous Mason, one who, like Master Shallow, has had his "lawsuits," and yet is a vice-president of all our charities. He is very popular, both in the lodge and in the family circle, where an agreeable wife, and some merry girls of daughters, form a great centre of attraction to Masonic and non-Masonic bachelors.

Well, Bro. Ricketts has just come back from Kissengen, which he duly reached, via the good city of Frankfurt-on-the-Main, where he took the railway to his destination. Alas, Time, inexorable time, takes us back to a season when, in an "Eilwagen," it took seventeen long hours to reach Kissengen. Of that once happy party how few remain! Sad, often, are the memories of old age!

Bro. Ricketts, who is a sensible fellow, tells us that not only has he returned, "wonderfully set-up," but that the "water" has made a new man of him. He complains of "the early rising, light breakfasts, lighter dinners, and nothing at all for supper, incessant exercise, and the sameness of daily life." But he adds philosophically "When a man is really out of sorts, he ought to go to his doctor and look out for himself, and I have no doubt that I am undoubtedly better for Kissengen." The truth is that much of the "Kur" at Kissengen, in addition to its "life-giving streams," is to be attributed to early hours, light food, and regular exercise. When we consider the heavy meals, and retardation of those meals, belonging to modern English life, it is only a wonder that anybody's constitution can stand the wear and tear upon it. A heavy breakfast, a heavy luncheon, a late and heavy dinner, to say nothing of intervening "tea" and continuous "nips," render the modern Englishman and Mason's life a constant trial to all the digestive powers of the human frame. The simple fare and healthy exercise, and the early hours at Kissengen, even the "Bouilli," so much denounced, and the "Gerstenkleimer" so unjustly depreciated, are an admirable change for John Bull, who following the traditions of Bulldog, does not object to turtle soup and a fine haunch of mutton, who turns up his nose at lighter entrees, and sticks heroically to "the Roast Beef of Old England, Sir." But Bro. Ricketts, being a man of enlightened views, and kindly sympathies, wishes through the Freemason, to make known to some suffering brethren, who about June always wears a yellow and careworn look, that for them he knows of no more health-reviving, care-dispelling, liver-amending spot than Kissengen on the Saal, in Bavaria. And if the voyager is sentimental as well as dyspeptic, he can take a look at Würzburg, and Augsburg, and Nuremberg, he can enjoy a very lovely country, and come home, (not at a great cost), with health in his looks, and elasticity in his limbs, and no longer gouty or grumbling, heavy, or asthmatic, he has once again, by the mediation of kindly nature, recovered the inestimable blessing of health. Like a good true Freemason, and a better citizen of this world, he has also learnt the ever valuable lesson, that we are never to despise the contrasted habits and manners of other nations, but on the contrary that we are to study and be willing to admire them, one and all, ready to "take a leaf out of their books" conscious of the unchanging truth, that no one people in the wide world has the monopoly of comfort, or convenience, or happiness, or enjoyment, or good food, or anything else.

Multum in Parbo; or Masonic Notes and Queries.

R.W. BRO. COLONEL J. B. MACLEOD MOORE AND THE KNIGHTS TEMPLAR.

I have had my attention particularly directed to the two last addresses of that able Bro. Colonel Moore, before the Great Priory of Canaan. Much of the addresses must prove a welcome boon to the fratres of the Order, and will be the means of spreading abroad reasonable views of the character and scope of the society. Historically, however, the last address especially requires revision, especially as to the Masonic portion. It is not correct that the Earl of Eglington granted a warrant to work the Knights Templar Degree in Ireland, by authority of the "Mother Lodge Kilwinning," Scotland. My friend, the R.W. Bro. J. H. Neilson, has fully exploded such a notion in the columns of the Freemason (having discovered the records of the body in question), and proved to the satisfaction of all concerned that the warrant was only granted for the Craft Degrees, though the members did work without authority some of the Hautes Grades. The text of the warrant alone dispels any idea of the connection of the ancient "Mother Lodge Kilwinning" with Templar or any other degree above the Third, and our learned Bro. Lyon (G. Sec. of Scotland), in his grand "History of the Lodge of Edinburgh," abundantly confirms the fact that Kilwinning never had aught to do with the Hautes Grades, and is never likely to do so, being solely a Craft lodge. Masonically speaking, if the Templars sever themselves from Masonry, or ignore such alliance, they will have no status, and be without the only reason that can be offered for their continuance.

WM. J. HUGHAN.

Reviews.

"The Masonic Magazine." Vol. IV. George Kenning, 198, Fleet-street.

We have been greatly pleased with Vol. IV of this now flourishing Magazine. It makes a very goodly volume, and is very pleasant reading. It reflects all credit on its publisher, that at a time when Masonic literature was at a discount, and English Freemasonry had no serial representative, he manfully came forward, and as we say, "put his hand in his pocket" to supply the deficiency, and to meet the want. We therefore cordially congratulate him on the Fourth Volume, and equally wish success to Vol. V., now in course of completion. We feel some little natural delicacy in saying too much in praise of the volume itself, as some might fancy that we were praising ourselves. But this we can fairly assert, that we know of no other Magazine which offers more "value received" to its subscribers, and we can conscientiously recommend all our readers, not only to become subscribers, but to purchase the four volumes now available for all our brotherhood. We consider that they make a good investment for their money.

"Garden Requisites and Horticultural Decorations." Dick Radcliffe & Co., 129, High Holborn.

We have more than once alluded to the catalogues of this enterprising firm, and we are very glad to praise and call attention to the merits of their last interesting catalogue. For all who have a garden, or like flowers (no better taste can be) this little handbook will be both of great aid and much utility.

ADMIRAL ROUS.—A bust of the late Admiral Rous, executed by Mr. Richard Belt, is now being exhibited at the Jockey Club, Newmarket.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—Comfort for everyone. It is essential for health that every organ of the body be fully competent and duly prepared for the natural execution of its appropriate function, which cannot be the case under great transitions of temperature, unless some corrective medicine be taken occasionally. When the chilling winds of spring are succeeded by summer heat, and this again gives place to autumnal chills, the liver and skin can only be maintained in efficient action by some such alterative medicine as Holloway's noted Pills, which regulate the circulation, cool the system, and fortify the nerves. In our variable climate, and in marshy districts, occasional doses of these purifying cooling and aperient pills will prove most efficient preservers of health. —[APR.]

GRAND ENCAMPMENT OF THE UNITED STATES.

EIGHTH DIVISION.—O. L. Spaulding, commanding. Aids, George W. Howe and C. Aikman. Band, 15 commanderies of Michigan: 6; 2 swords.

NINTH DIVISION.—C. M. Morse, commanding. Aids, E. B. Myers and H. W. Davis. Nine commanderies of Illinois; 763 swords.

TENTH DIVISION.—J. T. Henderson, commanding. Aids, C. G. Pickering and S. Arnan. Band: twelve commanderies of Illinois and four of Wisconsin; in all 649 swords.

ELEVENTH DIVISION.—John S. Casement, commanding. Aid, Isaac F. Mack. Band; four commanderies of New Jersey, 200 swords; twelve of Missouri, 480 swords one of Alabama, Georgia, Florida, North and South Carolina; in all, 841 swords.

TWELFTH DIVISION.—H. W. Bigelow, commanding. Aids, E. T. Waite and T. T. Simpson. Band; seven commanderies of Iowa; band; two of Minnesota; band; nine of Kansas, three of Arkansas, two of W. Virginia, one of Nebraska and Colorado. In all, 1260 swords.

THIRTEENTH DIVISION.—W. N. Riddle, commanding. Aids, J. A. Norton and Benjamin F. Provost. Band; Tancered Commandery, of Pittsburgh, Pa., escorting the Grand Master and the Grand Encampment, 187 swords. The total number of swords in line, 19,109.

On the arrival of the procession at the Court-rooms it was dissolved, and the session of the Grand Encampment was commenced by welcome addresses from Grand Master Enoch F. Carson and Grand Commander R.E. Sir C. A. Woodward, which with the response of M.E. Sir James H. Hopkins, were models in brevity and eloquence, as well as spicy and instructive.

The report of the Committee on Credentials being disposed of, the Grand Master then delivered his address. The following is a synopsis:

Sir Knights: I have the honour to submit a report of my official acts, as Grand Master, during the past three years, together with some recommendations intended to promote the prosperity and increase the efficiency of the institution which has been committed to my care.

Soon after the close of the last session of the Grand Encampment, and in compliance with its resolution, charters were issued to De Molay (mounted) Commandery, No. 4, at Washington City, D.C.; Wyoming Commandery, No. 1, at Cheyenne, W.T.; Pueblo Commandery, No. 3, at Pueblo, Colorado; Utah Commandery, No. 1, at Salt Lake City, Utah; Baron Commandery, No. 3, at Key West, Florida. The first named commandery was constituted, and its officers installed by me in person; a service I would gladly have performed for the others had not the distance to each been so great. Unwilling to require any of the Grand Officers to undertake such long journeys, I availed myself of the kind services of Sir Knights residing in the several localities named.

I recognise Good Friday as a day especially worthy of commemoration, by the members of an Order whose vital principles rest upon the Divine tragedy enacted upon that day, and which, with its resultant truths, is constantly impressed upon us in all our ceremonies.

Hence, on April 17th, 1877, I gave permission to Washington Commandery, Washington City, to attend church as Templars on Ascension Day—arrangements having been made for a special sermon to them.

April 10th, 1875, permission was given to Columbia Commandery, No. 2, to attend the dedication of the Masonic Temple in New York.

February 5th, 1876, permission was granted to Baron Commandery, No. 3, Key West, Florida, to parade at the unveiling of a monument, erected by the commandery to its late eminent commander.

October 3rd, 1876, permission to Utah Commandery, No. 1, to parade at the dedication of the Masonic Hall at Salt Lake City.

I have three times granted permission to De Molay (mounted) Commandery, No. 4, of Washington City, to appear in public for inspection and drill. This commandery was chartered as a mounted commandery, and I can conceive of no way in which they could be inspected or be exercised in the tactics, except in public. Their by-laws provide for an annual out-door drill, inspection, and review, and having been approved by the Grand Encampment, might render the consent of the Grand Master unnecessary. However this may be, the necessity for out-door drill, &c., for a mounted commandery is inevitable.

On June 3rd, 1876, I gave permission to Virginia City Commandery, No. 1, and to Helena Commandery, No. 2, both of Montana, to parade on the 4th of July. Pro Deo et Patria is an ancient motto of our Order, and during the Centennial year of our country, it seemed but right that Templars should unite in patriotic demonstrations.

On February 16th, 1877, I received a request from Cheyenne Commandery, No. 1, for "permission to appear at an evening party in full dress on Washington's birthday." I replied, consenting, if the assembly was to be Masonic, and within the rooms of the Fraternity, but declining, if it was to be a promiscuous party held elsewhere.

June 26, 1877, I gave permission to Washington and Columbia Commanderies, Washington City, to act as an escort to Grand Lodge at the laying of a corner stone.

March 18, 1875, I declined to give consent to Washington Commandery, No. 1, Washington City, to appear in public on Good Friday for mere parade.

I am impressed with the belief that the establishment of a fixed and permanent place for holding the business sessions of the Grand Encampment would be a wise and salutary measure. The archives and property could be more securely kept; the risk of loss or damage by frequent transmission from place to place would be avoided; there would be more certainty of having all needful facilities for the transaction of business; the legislation would be calmly considered; the expenses would probably be more lessened; certainly there would be relief from the burden of entertaining felt by every city in which we meet under the migratory rule. It is true, such expenditures are self-imposed, but it is impossible to ignore the fact that they are often burdensome.

In making this suggestion, I do not forget the generous welcomes and bounteous hospitality which have always greeted us. Nor do I forget the stimulating effect upon commanderies meeting in fraternal rivalry upon these occasions, nor the interest which is thus awakened in the uninitiated, and which fills our ranks and gives to our Order whatever of prosperity and power that may convey.

The financial condition and prospects of this Grand Encampment have been discussed by at least two of my predecessors. And yet it becomes my duty to again press this subject upon your attention. Some of the sources of revenue are drying up, and no serious effort has been made to check the outflow. We must increase our receipts or reduce our expenses, or both, if we do not wish to see an empty treasury, and the consequent humiliation and curtailment of the influence and efforts of the Grand Encampment. There is no doubt that our expenses can be curtailed without parsimony, and that being possible, becomes a duty.

In the early ages of the Order of the Temple, each nationality had its distinctive head; but all were united in one organisation and governed by one Grand Master. Those were years of wealth and power and glory of the Order. When the envy and avarice of civil and ecclesiastical potentates combined in the persecution and disruption of the Order, its scattered votaries preserved their faith and fidelity, and practised their ceremonies in secret. The golden chain was broken, but not all of its links were destroyed. And so, when the night passed away, skilful artificers commenced to burnish off the rust and forge them together again. But the progress of time and the changes of civilisation rendered the original form of administration inexpedient, if not impossible. Still, in whatever clime, under whatever government, of whatever nationality, belonging to whatever Christian sect, Knights Templar are drawn together by a natural and inevitable sympathy. Their signs and symbols are the same; their emotions, their aspirations, their ceremonials are analogous, and there is a universal recognition of their fraternity.

There can be no reason against, and there are many cogent ones in favour of a closer and more intimate fellowship, especially between the English-speaking branches of the Order. The separate and independent governing bodies in England and Ireland have united in the Convent General, exercising jurisdiction over both countries, and also over Canada; each, however, retaining a limited autonomy. Scotland has not yet joined the coalition, but hopes are entertained that she will not long refuse. And thus all the Templars in the British Empire will recognise one Grand Master.

Sir Knights: My official report is ended. The great and varied interest of this vast jurisdiction must be the apology for so lengthy an address. Your patient attention has only been in keeping with the characteristic consideration and kindness I have always received at your hands, and for all which I am profoundly grateful. Proud of our illustrious Order, proud of the great office committed to my hands, my labours have been lightened by the earnest wish to advance the interests of this fraternity of Knights. The result is submitted to your generous judgment.

With a full heart I congratulate you upon the fact that fifty thousand swords are mustered under our historic banners; that fifty thousand brave men have vowed to wield them in the cause of justice, purity, and truth. I ask you to join with me in the fervent prayer, that every one of us may live fully up to the high standard of Christian Knighthood; and the world having been made better and brighter and happier thereby, that we may cheerfully and unitedly exclaim, "Non nobis domine, non nobis, sed nomine tua da gloriam."

I now invite your calm, patient, and earnest attention to the important duties before us, invoking the fullest exercise of all those qualities of mind and heart which are befitting the National Legislature of our Order, and devoutly praying that Divine wisdom may direct us in all things, and Divine mercy may surround us now and for ever.

The encampment then adjourned to meet at 9.0 a.m. next morning.

The evening was but a repetition of the day, as far as the crush of numbers upon the streets and the omnipresent band music were concerned. The main feature, of course, was the grand reception concert tendered the citizens of Cleveland and visiting Knights, on the part of Apollo Commandery, of Chicago. It was a brilliant affair viewed from any standpoint, and crowned with laurels the commandery which conceived and carried it out.

Men had been busy for over a week in decorating the large ware-room of Sterling and Co., formerly known as the old rink, in anticipation of the great event.

Apollo Commandery, in connection with Oriental, of this city, two of the wealthiest and most powerful organisations in the Order of Knights Templar, had undertaken the work with the intention of making such a display as is rarely seen on such occasions. No expense was spared where it could be advantageously expended.

The spectacle presented on entering the room was something that the pen cannot adequately describe. Looking up from the entrance to the high roof the view is obscured by countless flags and devices, some large and some small; in every conceivable spot appears some colour contrasting and blending with another, the evergreen filling up the interstices to the advantage of the whole. The large festoons so gracefully arranged in the form of billows, leads the eye along to the far end of the vast room, where just above the stage is a large banner stretching across the entire end of the room. "Apollo Commandery, No. 1, Chicago, Illinois, extends their knightly courtesies to the citizens of Cleveland, O." This is so executed as to leave space in the centre, which is taken up by a large red cross and golden crown. Above all this two large national flags are placed so as to fill all the intervening space to the roof, and at either side two flags of smaller size complete the design.

Twelve thousand invitations had been issued to Knights and citizens, who up to 8.30 o'clock kept up a steady stream of visitation. At that hour Apollo Commandery entered the building. Following the entrance of the commandery came the Orientals, Cleveland, marching in fine style, their splendid appearance attracting attention on all hands. At this point a beautiful selection was executed by Neving and Krejow's celebrated military band, of Chicago, after which Sir D. B. Babcock, of the Oriental Commandery, expressed a few words of hearty welcome. Then Sir Norman T. Gassette, Commander of Apollo Commandery, delivered a short address of a happy turn. Rev. J. W. Brown, Chaplain of Oriental Commandery, made a happy and eloquent speech.

The band then admirably presented a musical programme. Following the music the floor was cleared, and the portion of the programme introduced for which many had been waiting—the dancing. It was a success—a grand success—and will always be counted a golden link of brotherly love between Cleveland and Chicago, two sister cities of the West.

Wednesday's programme was as follows: Tournament on the Fair grounds, beginning at 2.30 a.m., the following named commanderies participating:

Rapier, No. 1, Indianapolis, Ind., Henry C. Adams commanding. Monroe, No. 22, Rochester, N.Y., George P. Loder commanding. St. Louis Battalion, St. Louis, Mo., John C. Bloomfield commanding. Cincinnati, No. 3, Cincinnati, O., H. H. Tateva commanding. Damascus, No. 1, St. Paul, Minn., D. A. Monfort commanding. Hanselmann, No. 10, Cincinnati, O., O. J. W. Foot commanding. St. Bernard, No. 35, Chicago, Ill., W. M. Rurbank commanding. Columbia, No. 2, Washington, D.C., Robert commanding. Ball, No. 1, Detroit, Mich., J. E. Saxton commanding. Hugh de Payena, No. 30, Buffalo, N.Y., Christopher G. Fox commanding. At the conclusion of this drill, the Illinois commanderies gave a dress parade and review. The premiums awarded consisted of a magnificent standard or banner, a beautiful piece of artistic work; a libation service, consisting of twenty-six pieces, embracing tankard, silver goblet, and candlestick; and an elegant set of commandery jewels. St. Louis Battalion was ruled out on account of its not being named as a distinct commandery. Each commandery was allowed thirty minutes to drill, which resulted in Detroit, No. 1, winning the first prize; Rapier, No. 1, of Indianapolis, second prize; and Monroe, No. 12, of Rochester, N.Y., the third prize.—New York Dispatch.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF WARWICKSHIRE.

On Wednesday the 26th ult., the annual meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Warwickshire was held at Rugby, under the presidency of the Provincial Grand Master, the Right Hon. and Right Worshipful Lord Leigh. The Town Hall was fitted up for the occasion, the Court-room for the Provincial Lodge, and the large Assembly-room for the Lodge of Rectitude (Rugby). There was a strong muster of the brotherhood, the whole of the lodges in the province being more or less strongly represented—which, we are given to understand, is of somewhat rare occurrence.

The Lodge of Rectitude having been opened in due and ancient form, and the visiting brethren ranged under their respective banners, the ceremony of receiving the Provincial Grand Master and his officers and lodge was gone through.

A long array of high officials and dignitaries entered the lodge-room; last of all the Very Worshipful Deputy Provincial Grand Master, preceded by two Pursuivants.

The W.M. of the Lodge of Rectitude thereupon vacated the dais, which his lordship occupied, surrounded by his officers.

The business transacted was as follows:

The Provincial Grand Lodge opened in the Lodge of Rectitude.—The roll of the P.G. officers called.—The roll of Worshipful Masters and Wardens of Lodges in the province called.—The minutes of the P.G. Lodge held at the Guy's Lodge, Leamington, on the 3rd of April, 1877, and on the occasion of laying the foundation-stone of the Shakespeare Memorial Buildings at Stratford-on-Avon on the 23rd of April last, were read and confirmed.—The Report of the Audit Committee was received.—The Reports of the different Charity and Benevolent Committees were received.—The Reports from the Worshipful Masters, on the state of their respective lodges, were received.—The publication of the Masonic Calendar for the year 1878 was considered and determined upon.—The P.G. Treasurer was re-elected for the ensuing year.—The Tyler was also re-elected for the year.—The Right Worshipful the P.G. Master then appointed and invested his officers for the ensuing year, with the usual ceremonies.

The business having been so far concluded, an adjournment was called, to attend divine service. The whole body proceeded, in double rank, juniors first, to Trinity Church, which had been placed at their disposal by the rector for the occasion. On arriving at the Church, the ranks were opened, the Prov. Grand Master and officers advancing up the aisle to the front seats. The two centre rows were reserved for the brethren; the congregation beside was rather limited. The service was a choral one, the prayers being intoned by the Rev. R. Llewellyn. The lessons of the day were read by the Rev. T. Northcote Smith.

An eloquent sermon was preached by the Prov. Grand Chaplain, the Rev. T. N. Rigby, of Birchfield, Birmingham, who took for his text Malachi, chap. ii, 10 verse: "Have we not all one Father; hath not God created us?" The discourse was a most eloquent exposition of the principles of the Order, and was delivered with much earnestness of tone and manner.

After the Old Hundredth Psalm had been sung, and a collection taken up for the Masonic Charities, the brethren returned to the lodge-room at the Town Hall, where the concluding business was transacted—including a unanimous vote of thanks to the P.G. Chaplain for his excellent sermon; also to the Rector of Rugby, for so courteously giving the use of Trinity Church, and a grant of five pounds to the Trinity Schools, Rugby. The Right Worshipful the P.G. Master and his officers then retired in procession as they had come, and the Lodge of Rectitude was closed by the W.M. in due and ancient form.

The banquet was held in the Assembly Room at the Eagle Hotel, which had been tastefully and profusely decorated for the occasion, and presented a charming appearance. The Prov. Grand Master presided, supported right and left by the Deputy Prov. Grand Master, Col. Machen and Bro. Brooks, Worshipful Master of the Lodge of Rectitude, Rugby; the company numbering about 80. The menu—under the direction of Bro. Hards, of the Royal George Hotel, was in the highest style of the gastronomic art. The toast-list was as follows:—1. The Queen and the Craft.—2. The Most Worshipful the Grand Master of England, Bro. H.R.H. the Prince of Wales; Bro. H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught; Bro. H.R.H. Prince Leopold; Bro. H.R.H. the Imperial Prince of Germany; and the rest of the Royal Family.—3. The Most Worshipful the Pro Grand Master, Bro. the Earl of Carnarvon; the Right Worshipful the Deputy-Grand Master, Bro. the Earl of Skelmersdale; and the Grand Lodge of England.—4. The Right Hon. and Right Worshipful the Provincial Grand Master, Bro. Lord Leigh.—5. The Very Worshipful the Deputy-Provincial Grand Master, Bro. Lieut.-Colonel Machen, and the Provincial Grand Lodge of Warwickshire.—6. The Worshipful Master of the Lodge of Rectitude; and Success to his Lodge.—7. The Visitors.—8. The Masonic Charities.—9. The Tyler's Toast ("To all poor and distressed Masons.") The company separated at an early hour.

Obituary.

BRO. R. J. SPIERS, P.G.S.B., PAST DEPUTY GRAND MASTER OXON, F.S.A., and F.R.C.S.

The fraternity in general, but the brethren of the province of Oxfordshire in particular, have learnt with the deepest regret of the unexpected death of Bro. Richard J. Spiers, Past Grand Sword-Bearer of England, Past Deputy Grand Master of Oxfordshire, intelligence of which reached us by special telegram on Friday. Bro. Spiers was initiated in the Alfred Lodge, No. 340, on the 28th of May, 1844, so that at the time of his death he had been a Mason upwards of 33 years. In December of the same year he became Junior Warden, afterwards serving as Senior Warden. He was unanimously elected and installed Worshipful Master of the Alfred Lodge on December the 20th, 1846. Bro. Spiers took the Royal Arch degree on the 16th of July, 1845, in the Chapter attached to his mother lodge, and was in the year 1850 appointed M.E.Z. Bro. Spiers was, at an early stage in his Masonic career, favoured with Prov. Grand Lodge honours, being appointed P.G.D. of C., and, after serving the offices of Senior Grand Deacon, Grand Registrar, Junior and Senior Grand Warden, he was ultimately appointed to the distinguished and envied position of Deputy Grand Master of Oxfordshire, which honour was conferred upon him in the year 1855. This office he resigned in favour of Bro. Reginald Bird, in 1876. It may be remembered that on the occasion of Prince Leopold's installation as R.W. Grand Master for Oxfordshire, H.R.H. presented Bro. Spiers with a massive silver inkstand, a purse of 500 guineas, and an elegant album, containing the names of the subscribers, as a token of esteem and regard for his great zeal and energy on behalf of Freemasonry, Prince Leopold accompanying the presentation with some very kind remarks. Our late brother was also connected with the Mark Degree, the Knights Templar, Rose Croix, Royal Order of Scotland, the 30°, 31°, 32°, the latter of which he was the senior member. In 1850 he was one of the founders of the Cœur de Lion K.T. Encampment, and First Eminent Commander. Bro. Spiers was a member of the following lodges, Nos. 10, 340, 478, 599, 945, 1036, and 1515. He served Stewardships to the three Institutions, the Benevolent in 1847, the Girls' School in the same year, the Boys' School in 1848, and the Benevolent again in 1850.

Several civic dignities were conferred upon our late distinguished brother. He was a Town Councillor in 1847, Sheriff and Alderman in 1851 and Mayor of Oxford in 1853. In 1856, Bro. Spiers was appointed a Justice of the Peace. At the expiration of his year of office as Mayor, the citizens of Oxford, presented him with a service of plate of the value of 500 guineas, also an album containing contributions from upwards of 100 artists and literary friends.

THE LATE BRO. DR. WHITTLE.

Bro. Alfred Whittle, M.D., aged 54, a member of the Liverpool Dramatic Lodge, No. 1609, died suddenly at his residence, 155, Islington, Liverpool, on the 20th ult., his wife having only died eleven days before, at the age of 49. Bro. Whittle's funeral took place on Monday, the 24th, at St. Mary's Cemetery, Kirkdale, where there were several Masonic brethren present. The members of the Liverpool Dramatic Lodge were especially asked to be present, and there was a very general response. Besides the relatives of deceased, there were present Bros. Dr. J. K. Smith, P.P.G. Registrar; Dr. Costive, S.D. 216; Dr. Sheldon, P.M. 1094; Dr. Spleen, Dr. Williams, W. Vines, W.M. 1299; J. E. Bennett; and the members of the Dramatic present were Bros. J. Bell, W.M.; W. J. Chapman, S.W.; J. Atkinson, Acting Sec.; F. Wilkinson, J. H. Ray, A. Woolrich, Treasurer; P. Lowndse, &c.

TO WORSHIPFUL MASTERS.

The attention of Worshipful Masters is specially directed to the following advertisement, with a suggestion from the Publisher that they should cause a proposition to be made that their Lodges should become subscribers to

THE FOUR MASONIC PUBLICATIONS.

It is doubtless desirable that every Mason should have a knowledge of the proceedings at the Quarterly Communications of Grand Lodge, and it is especially the duty of the Worshipful Master to be well posted up in such matters, and as there is no better means of obtaining such information than the columns of the Freemason, which gives verbatim reports of the Grand Lodge proceedings, and a full account of all the meetings of the Board of Benevolence, and the various Committees of our Great Masonic Charities, the Publisher feels justified in making this recommendation, with the full assurance that such an investment of a small portion of the lodge funds will be productive of beneficial results.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

LION AND LAMB LODGE (No. 192).—The October meeting of the above lodge was held on Thursday, the 4th inst., at the Cannon-street Hotel. Brethren present: Bros. Edward Jones, W.M.; Henry Legge, S.W.; Frank Fellows, J.W.; George Kenning, P.M., Treasurer; J. G. Marsh, P.M. Secretary; W. T. Rickwood, S.D.; Henry Child, I.G.; E. J. Kellaway, D.C.; George Newman, P.M.; Thomas Cohu, P.M.; George Abbott, P.M.; W. F. Bates, Thomas Agutter, W. Darnell, R. J. Dart, C. Gale Sparrow, J. Copelin, H. A. Pratt, W. F. Poukon, George Taylor, W. Figs, Thomas Fisher, Charles Cann, H. A. Canter, J. Cook, B. Perkins, W. Allhat, G. Borer, R. H. Goddard, E. Hunter, J. G. Chillingworth, J. Lorkin, W. Waring, R. J. Sutherland, John Kent, and others. Visitors: Bros. W. E. Newton, W.M. William Preston Lodge; Worrell, P.M. and Sec. William Preston Lodge; Watkins, P.M.; J. B. Huxtable, 1135; J. B. Lee, 1328; G. W. Chapman, 1328; A. Rowley, W.M. 917; W. Jobson, 147; R. Rimpont, 77; T. W. Farthing, and others. The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed. Bro. W. H. L. Davies was raised to the Sublime Degree of a Master Mason. It was proposed by the Treasurer and seconded by the J.W., that £10 10s. be paid out of the lodge funds to the Muggeridge Testimonial,—carried unanimously. It was proposed by the Treasurer and seconded by Bro. George Newman, P.M., that £10 10s. be voted to Mrs Allatson, widow of the late Bro. Allatson, a member of the lodge, carried unanimously. It was proposed by the Treasurer, and seconded by Bro. George Abbott, P.M., that £10 be voted to the funds of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution,—carried unanimously. It was proposed by Bro. George Newman, and seconded by Bro. George Abbott, P.M., that the bye-laws be revised, printed, and circulated among the members of the lodge—carried unanimously. Four gentlemen were proposed for initiation at the next meeting. The lodge was then closed in due form, and the brethren numbering about 40 then adjourned to a well-served banquet, under the able superintendence of Bro. E. H. Rand. The usual toasts were ably given by the W.M., and heartily responded to by the brethren. Bros. Newton, Worrell, Farthing, and Watkin, replied for "The Visitors." The W.M. made an earnest appeal to the brethren on behalf of the Indian Famine Fund, resulting in the collection of £4, which was handed to the Treasurer of the Freemason Fund.

MARQUESS OF RIPON LODGE (No. 1489).—The installation meeting of this lodge was held on Friday, the 5th inst., at the hall of the Metropolitan Benefit Societies' Asylum, Ball's-pond-road. The lodge was summoned for four o'clock, and shortly after that hour Bro. William Stephens, P.M., in the absence of Bro. Thomas Edward Jessett, W.M., opened the lodge. The minutes were first confirmed. The Audit Committee's report, showing receipts for past year of £139 0s. 9d., and a balance in the hands of the Treasurer of £37 15s. 7d., was read by Bro. Murlis, the Secretary, and adopted. Bro. John Edward Walford, C.C., S.W. and W.M. elect, P.M. 177, and P.Z. 145, was then presented to Bro. William Stephens, and by him formally installed in the chair of the lodge for the ensuing year. The officers invested were Bros. Dr. John Symonds, S.W.; John High, J.W.; W. Stephens, P.M., Treasurer; W. J. Murlis, P.M., Secretary; T. Hastings Miller, P.G. Organist, Middlesex, S.D.; J. Glaskin, J.D.; W. Grist, I.G.; Charles Smith, D.C.; A. J. Stanton, W.S.; John Tovell, Assistant W.S.; P. A. Coard, Organist, and W. Gilchrist, Tyler. Bro. Stephens afterwards delivered the charges, and completed a very able performance of the ceremonies amidst the hearty cheers of the brethren. A vote of thanks was subsequently passed to him for his performance, and in returning his acknowledgments for the vote Bro. Stephens said he was proud to be the father of the lodge, although it was not an old lodge, and he trusted he would be spared for many years to be amongst the brethren. Lodge was then closed, and the brethren partook of a choice banquet, supplied in Bro. Grist's best style. After the dinner had been disposed of, and grace said, the W.M. proposed the usual toasts. In proposing "The Earl of Carnarvon," &c., the W.M. said it was very pleasing to him to know that several of the Grand Officers had honoured him with a visit that evening, and he thanked them on behalf of the lodge for their kindness and consideration in coming. Bro. John Boyd, P.G.P., replied. He said he was present when the lodge was consecrated, and he was much pleased at the way in which Bro. Stephens had performed the installation ceremony in inducting Bro. Walford in the chair. There was a large amount of credit due to Bro. Stephens for doing so. There were in some lodges men who took a lead, and those men were looked up to, and he advised the brethren to look up to such brethren if they were capable of imparting instruction and to be guided by them. In Bro. Stephens they had a brother whom they could look up to and be guided by. (Hear, hear.) Bro. Boyd concluded by passing a high compliment to the lodge on the manner in which the banquet had been placed on the table. The W.M. next proposed "The Health of the Visitors," offering them a hearty welcome to the lodge and thanking them very sincerely for the honour they had done him by coming among the brethren to witness his installation. He was very pleased to see Bro. Michael Haydon present, who saw him installed in Lodge 177, his mother lodge. Bro. Haydon having said a few words in reply, Bro. Pearson, P.M. 1196, also replied, and said he always felt when he went into a Freemasons' lodge as if he went into a haven of rest. Other brethren no doubt had the same feeling, and would acknowledge that after the great strain there was upon everybody in business it was a great relaxation and a great treat to spend a few hours with the Masonic brotherhood. He had had much pleasure in accepting Bro. Murlis's invitation, and he hoped sincerely that this would not be the last occasion when he might have an opportunity of witnessing the working. He felt sure that the W.M. would have a pleasant year of office. Bro. Stephens proposed "The Health of the W.M." Bro. Walford, he said, was an old Past Master of a very old lodge, which he believed was the most numerous as to members of any of the lodges on the roll of Grand Lodge. He had occupied the position of W.M. in years gone by; he had ably fulfilled his duties, and he was quite capable of discharging them again to the satisfaction of the brethren of the Marquess of Ripon Lodge. Bro. Walford was a founder of this lodge, and he had worked through the offices till he had attained the position he now filled. Bro. Walford was well connected with the City of London, and might be looked upon as a future Lord Mayor. (Cheers.) The W.M., in acknowledging the toast, which was most heartily received, said that though Bro. Stephens had spoken of him in far too flattering terms, he hoped at the end of the year he would be found in a measure deserving of them. Bro. Stephens had said that he (the W.M.) was an old P.M., and this was the real truth; consequently he was acquainted with the way in which lodges should be conducted, and he should ask the brethren to be particularly attentive to the sound of his gavel, and to respond to it as all good Masons should. Having been one of the founders of the lodge, it was his ambition to become its Master and one of the P.M.'s. Twelve months hence he hoped to be enrolled amongst those brethren, should it be the pleasure of Providence to spare him to go through his year of office. He thanked the brethren for having elected him to the high position of W.M., and while he was in possession of the chair he would endeavour to do his duty. He hoped that all matters coming before the lodge would be conducted in a judicial way; that the initiations, passings, and raisings would be performed in such business-like style as to be generally approved of; and that at the termination of his Mastership no brother would have reason to complain. He was not going to extend his remarks; he would simply say he would try to do his duty, and he trusted that the result of the year would show that the brethren had put the right man in the right place, and that he had won their confidence. (Hear, hear.) In proposing "The Health of the P.M.'s," the W.M. regretted the absence of Bro. Jessett, for whom they had a Past Master's jewel for presentation. Bro. Murlis, P.M., having replied, "The Health of Bro. Stephens, P.M., Treasurer, and Installing Master," was proposed by the W.M. Bro. Stephens, in reply, said that although the lodge was not a very old one they had endeavoured to do something for the good of the Craft. During his year they did something. £300 was collected in one year for the Masonic Charities, and he should always look upon that with a great deal of pride. Since then they had done something further, and they had sent up a Steward each year. Next time he hoped to represent the Girls, and having served the other Institutions, he would have reached the climax of his Masonic career. He should call on all the brethren to support him, and he should be satisfied if he took up £100, not like Bro. Murlis, who was not satisfied with less than £300. (Hear, hear.) After proposing the Masonic Press, the W.M. proposed "The Officers," who he felt sure would be zealous in the discharge of their important duties. In appointing the officers he had followed the wish of the lodge, but he had satisfied himself first of all that they were not only capable but anxious, and that they would faithfully and efficiently discharge their duties. He looked upon these brethren as aspiring to the chair to which he had been that night honourably elected and installed, and he could assure them that the only way to attain that dignity was by the efficient performance of the duties of their several offices. He would give the Wardens a word of advice. Let them be attentive and punctual, always at their posts at the commencement of business; and if they were they would be co-operating with the Master, giving pleasure to him, satisfaction to themselves, at the same time that they would be forwarding the interests of the Marquess of Ripon Lodge. Bro. Dr. Symonds, S.W., replied, and the brethren shortly afterwards separated.

ALDERSGATE LODGE (No. 1657).—A meeting of the above lodge was held on Monday last, at the Castle and Falcon, Aldersgate-street. Brethren present: Bros. John Derby Allcroft, W.M.; Dr. Ernest Brette, S.W.; Dr. Charles Hogg, J.W.; George Kenning, Treasurer; P. Saillard, S.D.; Wm. H. Froom, J.D.; Thomas Benskin, D.C.; A. J. Akman, I.G.; W. Landell, S. Benton, E. Jolliffe, W. S. Chapman, Alfred Brookman, John Herve, Grand Secretary; Hyde Pullen, Richard Lee. Visitors: Bros. S. Martel Davies, Fidelity, 231; Henry J. Reynolds, P.M. Temple, 101; A. J. Prothero, Neptune, 22; Ernest W. Ledger, P.M. Moira, 92; G. J. Atkins, P.M. Moira, 92; J. Bergmann, Mizpah, 1671; and W. Steedman, P.M., Tyler. The minutes of the regular meeting, held March 12th, were read and confirmed. The minutes of the lodge of emergency, held May 7th, were read and confirmed. Bro. Alfred Brookman was raised to the Sublime Degree of a Master Mason. Bro. Dr. Samuel Benton was passed to the Second Degree. Bros. Lee, Dr. Smith, and Chapman were elected for the Committee of Finance, after which the lodge was closed and the brethren adjourned to banquet.

LIVERPOOL.—St. John's Lodge (No. 673).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street, Liverpool, on Tuesday the 2nd inst., the attendance of members and visitors numbering about 100. The lodge was opened by the W.M., Bro. Henry Burrows, assisted by the whole of his officers, and a considerable number of P.M.'s. After the minutes had been read and the balloting completed, the W.M. gave the First and Second Degrees in a very effective manner. During the general business a vote of £5 5s. was passed to the Indian Famine Fund, supplemented by private subscriptions, making the sum up to £8 8s. After business, the brethren adjourned to an excellent repast, the usual loyal and Masonic toasts being given and responded to. The most important one of the evening, viz., the I.P.M., Bro. Thomas Roberts, was accompanied by a presentation (subscribed for solely by the members), consisting of a very handsome time-piece and vases, and an illuminated address. The toast and presentation were entrusted to Bro. W. T. Merry, senior, P.M., who, in illustrating the career of Bro. Roberts in Masonry, earnestly pointed out to the younger members the importance of observing the tenets of Masonry, and strictly obeying all its precepts, by which means there was ample scope for obtaining the highest lodge honours that could be conferred. The toast and presentation having been heartily received by the brethren, were felicitously acknowledged by Bro. Roberts. The remaining toasts having been given, the proceedings were closed, and the brethren departed at an early hour.

LANCASTER.—Rowley Lodge (No. 1051).—The regular meeting of the Rowley Lodge was held at the Masonic Rooms, Athenæum, Lancaster, on Monday, 1st October, 1877. There were present: Bros. T. Jackson, W.M.; N. W. Heerne, S.W.; Alfred Sherriff, J.W.; J. Daniel Moore, P.G.S.B. of England; J. T. Jackson, J.D., and others. After the preliminary business had been transacted Bro. Moore delivered a short lecture "On the Ethics of Freemasonry," briefly touching on the more salient points connected with the subject. On the proposition of the S.W., a hearty vote of thanks was awarded to Bro. Moore, accompanied by a request that he would favour the lodge with another short lecture at the next meeting.

CHIPPING SODBURY.—Tyndal Lodge (No. 1363).—The usual monthly meeting was held at the lodge room, Town Hall, on Wednesday, 4th inst., when there were present Bros. Algernon Ludlow, W.M.; J. P. Curtis, S.W.; Wm. Jones, S.D.; T. Thompson, J.D.; W. H. H. Hattley and Wm. Taylor, Stewards; J. D. B. Treufeld, D.C., and P.P.G.S.B.; C. A. Bush, I.P.M., Secretary and P.G.D.C., and a good number of brethren. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, Bro. the Revd. Alfred Scott Thompson was passed to the Second Degree, and Bros. Beaman and Attwood raised. Bro. J. Treufeld was then elected Treasurer, a post ably filled by him for some years. Bro. C. Iles was also again elected Tyler. The W.M. then proceeded with the election of Worshipful Master for the ensuing year, and Bro. James Payne Curtis, S.W., was unanimously elected. The W.M. congratulated Bro. Curtis highly, he having been initiated in the lodge only five years ago. Bro. Sudlow, W.M., was then complimented on the admirable manner in which he had governed the lodge during his year of office. The lodge was then closed in due form.

LIVERPOOL.—Emulation Lodge, (No. 1505).—The annual celebration of St. John's festival, by the brethren of the above lodge, took place on Friday afternoon, the 5th inst., at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street, Liverpool. The attendance was very numerous, and the whole of the pleasant proceedings was greatly enjoyed by both members and visitors. Bro. Henry Morris, the retiring W.M. opened the lodge promptly at the appointed hour, and during the course of business there were present the following officers: Bros. J. T. Callow, P.M.; N. Nelson, P.M.; W. Quale, S.W.; W. H. Corbin, J.W.; J. Hocken, P.M.; Treas.: J. Capell, Sec.; H. Coulson, J.D.; R. Fouts, I.G.; A. McKenzie, S.S.; H. H. Smith, J.S.; J. Skeaf, Org.; and W. H. Ball, Tyler. The members included Bros. W. H. Taubman, R. E. Fulton, E. Thomas, M. Strong, C. Wynne, J. Orford, E. Jones, J. Shelly, P. Thomas, W. H. Chapman, T. Wilson, G. Atkinson, C. Ackman, J. J. Hodges, J. Purvis, M. Drake, W. Parry, H. H. Peter, R. Lytham, A. Child, J. Irving, E. Jarvis, W. Roan, G. Murcott, R. Croft, D. T. Walby, J. Carmichael, &c. The visitors' list contained names of Bros. J. C. Lunt, P.M. 1086; D. Jackson, S.W. 673; R. France, P.M. 594; W. F. May, P.M. 673; J. Bushfield, 216; J. Williams, W.M. 1182; H. Jackson, P.G.A.D.C.; J. A. Mitchell, 1276; J. Ellis, S.W. 667; J. K. Goepel, P.P.G.D.C.; R. Burgess, Organist; 1609; A. Gilfillan, 1393; J. W. Ballard, P.M. 724; H. Burrows, W.M. 673; R. Martin, I.P.M. 1182; H. Ashmore, P.M. 1325; T. Yeats, J.D. 1296; W. H. Hignett, 1547; M. Lighthorn, 1620; J. Thompson, S.W. 1013; J. Morris, 1264; P. W. Oglerby, Sec. 823. After the minutes had been read and unanimously confirmed, the W.M. (Bro. H. Morris) most effectively initiated one brother into the Order. Bro. J. Hocken, P.M., Treasurer, then took the chair, and he proceeded to instal Bro. W. E. Quayle as the W.M. for the ensuing year, the presentation for that purpose being made by Bro. J. T. Callow, P.M., and Bro. R. Martin, jun., P.M. 1182. The ceremony was performed by Bro. Hocken, and the charges to the following officers for 1877-8 were also impressively given:—Bros. H. Morris, I.P.M.; W. H. Corbin, S.W.; J. Capell, J.W.; J. Hocken, P.M., Treas. (re-appointed); J. T. Callow, P.M. D.C.; Rev. G. H. Vernon, P.P.G. Chap., Hon. Chaplain (re-appointed by proxy); H. Coulson, Secretary; R. Foote, S.D.; H. H. Smith, J.D.; R. Lytham, I.G.; M. Strong, S.S.; J. Irving, J.S.; J. Skeaf, P.G.O. Organist; and W. H. Ball, Tyler (re-elected). A cordial vote of thanks was ordered to be recorded on the minutes to Bro. Hocken P.M., for his excellent services as Installing Master. The brethren then unanimously voted the sum of five guineas from the funds of the lodge in aid of the Liverpool Indian Famine Relief Fund, and this was further increased by the private contributions of the brethren to ten guineas. It was also agreed to vote a sum of money for the purchase of a P.M.'s jewel for Bro. H. Morris, I.P.M. The brethren subsequently banqueted in the large dining-room, under the presidency of the W.M., Bro. W. E. Quayle, by whom the usual toasts were given and cordially responded to. The toast of "Bro. the Right Hon. Lord Skelmersdale and his Officers," was responded to by Bro. H. Jackson, P.G.A.D.C.; Bro. J. R. Goepel, P.P.G.D.C.; and Bro. J. Skeaf, P.G.O., Bro. H. Morris, I.P.M., in giving "The Worshipful Master," said there was no better Mason in Liverpool that day than Bro. Quayle, and after having steadily ascended the Masonic ladder he (Bro. Morris) felt that their W.M. would most amply fulfil all the expectations concerning him. The toast was received with great cordiality, and the W.M., in acknowledging it, expressed a hope that harmony and enthusiasm would prevail during his year of office, and that he would be able to fulfil all the obligations which he had that day entered into. Bro. J. T. Callow gave "The I.P.M.," which was suitably responded to by Bro. H. Morris; the W.M. proposed "The Installing Master," acknowledged by Bro. Hocken; and the other toasts were "The Officers of the Lodge," to which the S.W. and J.W. responded. "The West Lancashire Masonic Educational Institution," acknowledged in an interesting speech by Bro. J. R. Goepel, and "The Visitors," with which the names of Bros. Martin, May, H. Ashmore, France, Bushfield, Burrows, and J. McKenzie were coupled. Bro. J. Bushfield introduced a pleasant novelty into the programme in the form of a well played violin solo, besides giving several songs in his usual telling manner. The other musical brethren were Bros. J. Skeaf, P.G.O., and R. Burgess, Organist 1609, the piano accompaniments.

CHISLEHURST.—Chislehurst Lodge (No. 1531).—The last regular meeting for the season of this lodge was held on Saturday week, at the Bull's Head Hotel, Chislehurst, Bro. W. Kipps, W.M., P.G.O. Kent, presiding. There were also present: Bros. Gloster, S.W.;

Mason, J.W.; Goldsmith, Secretary; Griffin, S.D.; Hutchings, J.D.; and Hunt, as I.G. The following brethren also attended: Bros. Masters, Drinkwater, Luck, Dowsett, Behenna, Hollis, Scager, Russell, P.P.G.A.D.C. Kent, Dana, and Ford, the visitors being Bros. Munyon, P.M. 79; Harding, 1526; and Clark 1423. Lodge was opened in due form, and the minutes read and signed. Bro. Bond, of the Sydney Lodge, was then elected a joining member, and several names were submitted for joining and initiation at the next meeting. Bro. Dowsett presented a very handsome charity box, which the W.M. gracefully accepted on behalf of the lodge, and a very cordial vote of thanks was accorded to Bro. Dowsett, and ordered to be entered on the minutes, for his gift, which we need hardly say was fully appreciated. Lodge was then closed and the brethren afterwards partook of refreshments. The customary toasts were proposed and honoured, and it should be stated that Bro. Hutchings, J.D., accepted the office, with the unanimous voice of the lodge, of Steward for the next festival of the Institution for Girls.

MORECAMBE.—Morecambe Lodge (No. 1561).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held at the Masonic Hall, in this favourite watering-place, on Friday, 5th October. The chair was occupied by the W.M., Bro. W. Duff, who was supported by Bro. Dr. Moore, P.G.S.B. of England, as I.P.M.; E. Cardwell as S.W.; Wm. Longmire, J.W.; Brigham, as S.D.; W. W. Wilde, J.D.; W. Stephenson, Sec.; H. W. Johnston, Prov. G.J.D., and a large number of brethren. After the usual business of the lodge had been transacted, a vote of congratulation was unanimously passed to the I.P.M. of the lodge, Bro. Captain C. H. Garnett, on his recent appointment to the office of Prov. G.S.W. of West Lancashire. A handsome chased hall-marked silver square and compasses was presented to the lodge by Bro. H. Longman, P.M., to whom the thanks of the lodge were given. The W.M. then called upon Dr. Moore to deliver a lecture, as announced, "On the duties and privileges of the Master's Chair," which was listened to with great attention by the brethren, and a hearty vote of thanks awarded to the lecturer on its close.

PUTNEY.—Royal Commemoration Lodge (No. 1585).—A meeting of this lodge was held on Wednesday the 3rd inst., at the Star and Garter Hotel. Amongst the officers and brethren present were the following:—Bros. J. W. Robinson, W.M.; J. Wright, I.P.M.; H. Smith, P.M., Sec.; G. Stacey, P.M., Org.; W. T. Morphew, S.W.; F. J. Holland, S.D.; A. Boehr, J.D.; T. Collings, I.G.; and S. Steed, Tyler. The brethren were Bros. J. W. Holland, L. Eykn, S. Parloe, J. Rowe, F. Forss, W. Maddox, H. J. Carter, E. Goodman, R. S. Russell, J. Harrison, A. B. Weston, E. Stokes, and G. Cook. The following were visitors:—Bros. R. T. Whitley, P.P.G.A.D.C. Middx.; W. D. May, P.M. 1638; J. Featherstone, 1656; W. Allan, 1158; S. Fane, 1158; J. Hoey, P.M. 316; R. T. Sumner, 1360; and A. A. Denham, 1044. The minutes of the last meeting having been duly confirmed, Bros. Carter, Maddox, Goodman, and Forss were ably passed to the degree of Fellow Craft, the I.P.M., Bro. J. Wright, being in the chair. The W.M. having now taken the chair, invested Bro. F. Holland as J.W., the Junior Warden appointed at the last meeting having removed to an inconvenient distance from the lodge. The W.M., in an eulogistic speech, proposed Bro. R. T. Whitley, P.P.G.A.D.C. Middlesex, as a joining member; Bro. Past Master Wright seconded, and the ballot proved unanimous. Bro. H. Smith, Sec., read a letter sent to the W.M. from Bro. Slinn, of the Star and Garter Hotel (where the lodge is now held), stating that he found the business of the lodge clashed with his own, and therefore he wished the brethren to change their place of meeting as soon as possible. At the same time he wished the lodge every success and prosperity. The W.M. said he only received that letter after the summons had been issued for convening the present meeting. Of course the brethren did not wish to burden Bro. Slinn by interfering with his own business by having the meetings at his house, but he (the W.M.) would say that £150, in round numbers, had been spent at Bro. Slinn's hotel during the last seven times the lodge had met. (Hear, hear.) He should propose that a committee be formed to consider at what hotel the lodge should be held. Bro. J. Rowe thought there would be a difficulty in finding a suitable place in Putney. There were several houses convenient for holding inquests (laughter), but none suitable for a Masonic rendezvous. Bro. H. Smith, Sec., said he had seen Bro. Slinn that afternoon, and he said he had no wish to hasten the brethren, and was not willing to hurry them away. A committee was then formed to consider the question. Mr. W. Smith, of Upper Norwood, was proposed by Bro. Breach, and seconded by Bro. Past Master Wright, and Mr. W. Court, was also proposed by Bro. Harrison, seconded by Bro. Maddox. The brethren afterwards adjourned to the Half Moon Hotel, where an excellent banquet was served by Bro. E. Stokes. The usual toasts were proposed by the W.M., and received with Masonic honours. That of "The Visitors" was replied to by Bros. Past Masters W. D. May, Whitley, Hoey, and Bros. J. Featherstone, W. Allan, S. Fane, R. T. Sumner, and A. A. Denham. A very pleasant evening was spent.

The Freemasons' Tavern Company have disposed of their interest in the tavern to Mr. Best, of the Horse Shoe Restaurant, who is effecting considerable improvements in the property.

Messrs. Oetzmann and Co. announced an extensive sale for Monday and Tuesday next, the 15th and 16th inst., of Flannels, Calicoes, Serges, &c., under specially advantageous circumstances, and much below the usual prices. These occasional sales are never announced without the goods offered are much under the usual price.

THE MOONS OF MARS.

Our readers have often heard of the "new moon," and seen what is called the "new moon; but now we have a veritable new moon, although as old as the creation of our solar system; but in consequence of its great distance, the insufficiency of telescopic power, and unbelief in Dr. Bedford's prediction, these "new moons" have not been discovered till now.

Up to this time the planet Mars was considered to have no moon, but on August 16th last, Professor Hall, of the Washington Observatory, U.S.A., observed what he took to be a small star following Mars, and made an estimate of its distance; two hours afterward—that is about one on Friday morning—he was surprised to find that the star was still following the planet, and accordingly he made a careful series of measures, and found the supposed "star" to be eighty seconds of arc from Mars. On Friday the notes were submitted to Professor Newcomb, who was so confident as to the character of the object that he congratulated Professor Hall, and calculating roughly the time of revolution at thirty two hours predicted that if the satellite was not seen the same evening (August 17), it would be behind the planet, and would appear on the following morning. The prediction was correct, for about one o'clock in the morning the satellite appeared with a suspected companion. The discovery was then officially reported to Admiral Rogers, the superintendent, and on the following evening, the 18th, several astronomers were present to verify the observation, and the second satellite was seen, but not with sufficient certainty to determine its period of revolution. The first satellite (for we know there are two now) was discovered at 11.42 p.m. on August 16 as a faint object resembling a star of the 13.14 magnitude, but it had been previously observed by Prof. Hall on Aug. 11.

The Americans are justly very proud of this discovery, and our country may justly claim a share of the honour, for Bro. Dr. Bedford, the founder of the "Bedfordian system of Astronomy," has been urging upon astronomers who possess powerful telescopes, for the last twenty-three years, to look for these satellites in the following words (copied from page 13 of his "New Theories of the Universe," published in 1854, bearing date Oct. 17); "The earth having a satellite, and its mass when projected from the sun being less fluid than Mars, and yet capable of projecting her moon, I am confident that such appendage will also be found to Mars; in fact, I should not be surprised if Venus and Mercury completed the uniformity throughout our system of primaries and satellites, although their satellites would be very small." The author of these theories also predicted the discovery of cometic systems—comets revolving around comets years before any telescope discovered them; and among other startling announcements, asserted that our world in its infancy was a comet, and that our solar system was originally a cometic system; and this is now acknowledged by Mr. Lockyer and other eminent astronomers.

FRIARS V. FREEMASONS.

There lately appeared in the Civiltà Cattolica a profession of the principles of Freemasonry, in the form of a creed asserted to have been revealed by a penitent Freemason on his deathbed. It consists of twelve Articles, all the shameful particulars of which, however, may be said to be comprehended in the two last:—

"11. Possumus omnia facere quæ volumus absque levitatem culpâ."

"12. Ergo semper liberi sumus."

If the liberty to commit every possible crime at pleasure is what constitutes the freedom of Freemasonry, what a horrible state of immorality and impiety Freemasonry must be, and what miscreants in theory, if not in practice, are all Freemasons! Freemasonry, at that rate, may well call itself a craft—the worst of all the crafts and snares of the Enemy. Holy Church is quite right in condemning it, and her Popes and her prelates cannot but choose to declare any and everyone of her sons connected with it a heretic, and do, or would do, well to excommunicate him with bell, book, and candle. Of course, Cardina Manning could not possibly suffer the Marquis of Ripon to retain the chair wherein his successor is the Prince of Wales. If, that is—much virtue in an "if"—if the creed above quoted from the Civiltà Cattolica is a bona fide belief; and, if again, it is not a solecism to call fides in connection with such a belief bona. But is that Belief genuine? and, if not, is it a hoax on the Civiltà Cattolica? or is that Journal a comic clerical paper, capable of rather unscrupulous satire? or are its conductors enthusiasts who, on behalf of their religion, don't mind bearing false witness against their neighbours.—Punch.

Reports of the following, received too late for the present publication, will appear in our next:—Royal Cumberland Lodge, 41; St. Luke's Lodge, 144; Etonian Lodge, 209; St. Cybi Lodge, 597; Amherst Lodge, 1213; Kennington Lodge, 1381; Carnarvon Lodge, 1572; Jerusalem Chapter, 185.

We are desired to state that the meetings of the Constitutional Lodge of Instruction, No. 55, will in future be held at the Bedford Hotel, Southampton Buildings, Holborn, on Tuesday evenings, at 7 o'clock.

ANNUAL DINNER OF THE DUKE OF CONNAUGHT LODGE OF INSTRUCTION.

The annual dinner of the members and friends of this, which is fast becoming one of the best lodges of instruction in Hackney, was celebrated on Wednesday evening, at Bro. G. Ferrar's, the Havelock Tavern, Albion Road.

Bro. Shackleton, P.G.P. Middlesex, the present W.M. of the parent lodge, presided, and was supported by Bros. Woolly, as S.W. (of the Wanderers' Lodge); Francis, J.W.; Brasted, S.D.; Dignam, J.D.; Lorkin, I.G.; Preceptor Fieldwick; Ernest Dietrich, Sec.; Geo. Ferrar, Treas.; and a number of brethren.

The lodge having been duly opened in the First Degree, and the sections worked, the brethren adjourned to the banquet-room, where full justice was done to the excellent repast set before them.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF WEST LANCASHIRE.

The greatest gathering of Freemasons connected with the Western Division of Lancashire, which has ever been witnessed was held at Southport on Wednesday, the 3rd inst., where and when the annual Provincial Grand Lodge was held. The weather was most delightful, and the whole of the day's proceedings passed off without the slightest unpleasantness. The Liverpool contingent, numbering between 300 and 400 brethren, started from the Exchange Station about half-past 10 o'clock by special train, while the ordinary trains brought their contribution to the great and striking assembly from every corner of this Masonic division.

The brethren first assembled at the Town Hall for the purpose of robing, and then proceeded to the Cambridge Hall, where the business of the day was to be transacted. Even before the entrance of the members of Grand Lodge the whole floor of the large hall was well filled by the Craft, and many had to seek places in the galleries, it being calculated that there were even then from 700 to 800 brethren present. The total attendance could not have been much fewer than 1000. The Craft Lodge was opened shortly after twelve o'clock, Bro. Spenceley, W.M. 32, occupying the W.M.'s chair, assisted by the following other officers:—Bros. John Vaughan, W.M. 32 (Prescot), P.M.; Cotton, W.M. 113, S.W.; Captain Berry, W.M. 155, J.W.; and Davies, W.M. 216, I.G.

The lodge having been duly opened in the various degrees, the Provincial Grand Lodge was announced, and Bro. the Right Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, Dept. G.M., and the R.W.P.G.M., was saluted with the usual honours. His lordship having taken the chair, the Provincial Grand Lodge was opened, and the business was at once proceeded with, Bro. Horner occupying the chair of the P.G.S.W., and Bro. Sharp that of the P.G.J.W.

Amongst those present, besides the R.W.P.G.M., were Bros. W. Horner, P.G.S.W., W. Sharp, P.G.J.W., the Rev. H. Bethell Jones, M.A., P.G.C.; G. D. Pochin, P.G.R.; H. S. Alpass, P.G. Sec.; E. W. Harding, P.G.S.D.; J. Skeaf, P.G.O.; P. Macmurdrow, P.G.P.; W. S. Vines, P.G.S.; H. Jackson, P.G.S.; B. B. Marson, P.G.S.; J. McKune, P.G.S.; T. W. Serjeant, P.G.S.; Dr. D. Moore, P.G.S.B. England; E. Pierpoint, P.P.G.S.D.; W. Doyle, P.P.G.J.D.; F. B. Fishwick, P.P.G.J.D., E.L.; C. E. N. Beswick-Royds, P.G.S.W.; W. Rigby, P.G.P., Cheshire; R. Wilson, P.P.G.S.D.; G. Cornfield, P.P.G.S.B.; Councilor S. E. Ibbs, P.P.G.S.B.; J. R. Goepel, P.P.G.D.C.; J. Bowes, P.P.G.J.W. Cum. and West; W. Laidlaw, P.P.G.S. of W.; R. C. Mellor, P.P.G.J.D.; W. Bowden, P.P.G.S.B.; G. Turner, P.G. Treas.; T. Armstrong, P.P.G. Treas.; C. J. Smith, P.P.G.S.D.; J. W. Turley, P.P.G.J.D.; J. Pemberton, P.G.S. of W.; J. C. Gillman, P.P.G.S.D.; J. B. Lambert, P.P.G.J.D.; W. C. D. Deeley, P.P.G.J.W.; R. Butterworth, P.P.G.P.; J. Lunt, P.P.G.D.C.; the Rev. Goggin, P.P.G.C.; J. Pickering, P.P.G.J.D.; J. Baxendale, P.P.G.S. of W.; Colonel F. Birchall, P.G.S.D., P.P.G.J.W.; H. W. Johnston, P.G.S.; J. W.; J. Fowler, P.P.G.A.D.C.; W. Leather, P.P.G.A.D.C.; W. Goodacre, P.P.G.P. Cheshire; J. F. Roberts, P.G.A.D.C.; R. Pearson, P.P.G. Reg.; R. Wylie, P.P.G.S.D., E.L.; J. Barker, P.P.G. Treas., E.L.; G. Rennington, P.P.G.J.W.; P. Ball, P.G. Tyler.

There were also present a very numerous assemblage of W. Masters, Past Masters, Officers, and brethren representing the various lodges in the province.

After the P.G. lodge had been opened, the roll of lodges of the province was read by Bro. H. S. Alpass, P.G. Sec., when it appeared that the whole of the 77 lodges in this division were represented, with one exception (the Hesketh Lodge, No. 950, Fleetwood). The minutes of the previous P.G. meeting, held in Liverpool last October, were read by the P.G. Secretary, and unanimously confirmed.

The P.G. Treasurer's statement, which was taken as read, and passed, showed that the total balance from last year in connection with the Charity Fund, Provincial Grand Lodge Fund, and Fund of Benevolence, amounted to £1962 12s. 3d. With the past year's income, the Charity Fund stood at £361 1s. 6d.; Provincial Grand Lodge Fund, £580 2s. 3d.; and Fund of Benevolence, £1187 8s.; total £2728 11s. 8d. The total disbursements amounted to £413 13s. 6d. There were £1700 in the savings bank, and £614 18s. 2d. remained in the hands of the P.G. Treasurer. The amounts also showed that £1776 15s. had been paid to the West Lancashire Masonic Educational Institution up to the close of last year, and during the past year 50 guineas had been expended.

On the motion of Bro. G. Armstrong, P.P.G. Treas., seconded by Bro. R. Wylie, P.P.G.D., Bro. Major Turner was unanimously re-elected P.G. Treasurer. Bro. Turner acknowledged the honour which had been twice conferred on him—an honour which he prized all the more because it was the only one which lay with the brethren of the province to bestow.

The Prov. G.M. then appointed and invested the following brethren as his officers for the ensuing year:—

C. H. Garnett	Prov. G.S.W.
L. Rowbottom	Prov. G.J.W.
Rev. H. Bethell Jones (re-elected)	Prov. G. Chap.
Dr. M'George	Prov. G. Reg.
G. Turner (re-elected)	Prov. G. Treas.
H. S. Alpass (re-appointed)	Prov. G. Sec.
P. Macmurdrow	Prov. G.S.D.
Johnstone	Prov. G.J.D.
W. Tyrer	Prov. G.S.W.
W. S. Vines	Prov. G.D.C.
H. Jackson	Prov. G.A.D.C.
B. B. Marson	Prov. G.S.B.
J. Skeaf (re-appointed)	Prov. G. Org.
T. W. Serjeant	Prov. G. Purs.
E. Simpson, Cooper, H. Pearson, Wells, Wainwright, J. E. Jackson	Prov. G. Stwds.
P. Ball	Prov. G. Tyler.
W. H. Ball	Prov. G.A. Tyler.

The P.G.M. then presented Bro. T. Armstrong, P.P.G. Treas., with a jewel of that office, in recognition of his valuable services to the Prov. G. Lodge while in that position. The gift was briefly acknowledged by Bro. Armstrong.

The sum of 50 guineas was voted for the assistance of six widows and one distressed brother.

Bro. H. S. Alpass, P.G. Sec., submitted his annual report, which stated that since the last annual meeting two new lodges had been consecrated—the Ancient Briton, No. 1675, meeting in Liverpool, and the Arthur John Brogden, meeting at Grange. There had been 15 dispensations issued during the year. The province had been successful in electing two annuitants of the Royal Masonic Institution, and it was matter for regret that the official votes of nine lodges were lost in consequence of their neglecting to pay their Grand Lodge dues. The total number of defaulters in England was 62, and West Lancashire supplied about 14 per cent. of them. Such neglect involved the risk of the warrants of these lodges being recalled. The province had a candidate for the Girls' School on the 13th instant, and voting papers, signed, should be at once sent to him (Bro. Alpass) or to Bro. Wylie, 54, Castle-street. There were already two candidates from this province to be elected annuitants at the next election of the Royal Masonic Boys' School in May, for which purpose all the votes the province was entitled to would be required. After referring to certain breaches of the Book of Constitutions by several lodges, Bro. Alpass further stated that the progress of Masonry in the province was uninterrupted, but he hoped that with an increase of numbers the greatest caution would be exercised in the admission of candidates to the Order. This, however, was not always done, as facts had lately unfortunately proved. The appeal directed to be made to the lodges for funds for the erection of the sedilia in Chester Cathedral produced £466 19s. 1d.—(applause)—which after paying £450 to the Rev. D. L. Deacle, left a balance of £16 19s. 1d., which had been handed to the P.G. Treas. All the lodges, with one exception, had sent in their returns for the year. Since the last meeting, the brethren of the various lodges had to deplore the loss sustained by the death of Bro. T. Wylie, P.P.G. Reg. and P.P.G. Sec. His zeal for the Craft and earnest exertions for the extension of its great principles, brotherly love, relief, and truth, rendered his memory dear to every brother who had the honour of his acquaintance. (Loud applause.)

In the absence of Bro. Dr. J. K. Smith, P. Prov. G. Reg., who had recently met with an accident, (as recorded in the Freemason), which the Prov. G. Sec. said they must all regret, Bro. R. Wylie, P. Prov. G.D., moved, "That all primary applications to the P.G. Lodge of Benevolence may be relieved to the extent of not more than £15, and that all subsequent applications may be relieved to the extent of not more than £10."

Bro. the Rev. J. R. Jenkins, S.W. 216, seconded the resolution, which was carried.

On the motion of Bro. R. Wylie, seconded by Bro. Armstrong, it was resolved that the sum of £1000 of the P.G. Lodge of Benevolence be invested in the bonds of the Mersey Docks and Harbour Board at 4½ per cent.

Bro. R. Brown, P.M. 241, in the absence, through illness, of Bro. Broadridge, P.P.D.G.C., moved that the sum of 100 guineas be voted from the Prov. Grand Lodge Fund to the Indian Famine Fund. The motion was seconded by Bro. J. R. Goepel, P.P.D.G.C., and carried by acclamation. The P.G.M. explained that in thus voting money for the famine fund they were not merely following the example set in Cheshire, as this matter had been previously agreed upon in the Province of West Lancashire. (Hear, hear.)

It was also agreed, on the motion of Bro. Wylie, seconded by Bro. Goepel, that £100 be voted from the charity fund to the R.M. Benevolent Institution for Aged Freemasons and Widows, and that 100 guineas be voted from the same fund to the West Lancashire Educational Institution in the name of the P.G. Master.

P.G.L. next proceeded to consider the business in connection with the Hamer Benevolent Fund. The fourth annual report said there had yet been no application for assistance from the funds of the charity, which was a gratifying fact, as showing to some extent the absence of destitution among the aged brethren of the province. This satisfactory state of matters, however, could not be expected to continue, and as applications would probably be made, the continued support of the brethren for the charity was earnestly solicited. The adoption of the report was moved by Bro. Wylie and seconded by Bro. J. T. Callow, P.M. 673 and 1506, and carried unanimously. Five P.M.'s were nominated as members of the committee, and the auditors, secretary, and treasurer were afterwards appointed.

The Provincial Grand Lodge was then constituted a Court of Governors of the West Lancashire Masonic Educational Institution. The minutes of the meetings were read by Bro. R. Brown, P.M. 241, Hon. Sec. of the Institution, and he incidentally stated that there were now 78 children on the foundation of the Institution. No less a sum than £700 had been voted during the year for the purpose of education.

On the motion of Bro. W. L. Deeley, P. Prov. G.J.W., it was resolved—

That instead of the proceedings of the Court of Governors and General Committee being read in extenso, and in order to save the time of the Provincial Grand Lodge, a report from the honorary secretary, approved by the general committee of the Institution, giving a resumé of the past year's proceedings, shall be presented and read at the annual special court of governors, and a vote taken to confirm the same.

Bro. John Houlding, W.M. 823, moved, and Bro. W. T. May, P.M. 673, seconded the following motion:—

That the sum of £5 per annum be expended by the committee for the education and assistance of each child of deceased or distressed Freemasons who may be placed on the foundation of the West Lancashire Educational Institution.

The motion, after some discussion, was carried, and the officers and committee for the ensuing year were then appointed.

The Prov. G. Lodge and Craft Lodge were then closed in accordance with ancient custom.

At two o'clock the lodge was closed, and the brethren formed into order and marched in fours, by way of East-bank-street, Chapel-street, and Houghton-street, to Holy Trinity Church. There could not have been fewer than 800 present, and it was seen from the official programme that all the lodges in the district were represented, with one exception.

The sight was interesting and attractive to the thousands who lined the streets. First there was the band of the 13th L.R.V., a blaze of colour in their scarlet uniforms, and their brass instruments glittering in the sunshine. Then came the members of the various lodges, headed in some cases by gay banners, and in others by Tylers with drawn swords. The white aprons, the majority edged with light-blue silk and trimmed with silver bullion, the broad blue cuffs, the scarves of the same colour, and the jewels and decorations shewed in striking contrast to the black coats and tall hats which it is considered de rigueur for Masons to wear on such occasions of state. The procession closed with those who hold high office in the Provincial Lodge, and they were distinguished by "imperial purple" in their scarves and aprons. Almost last of all came the Provincial Grand Master, Lord Skelmersdale. The procession attracted a large number of spectators, who lined the streets, and took a lively interest in the proceedings.

Arrived at the church, the brethren opened up right and left to allow the P.G. Master to pass up the centre, he being preceded by the Standard and Sword Bearer. The P.G. Officers and brethren followed in succession from the rear, so as to invert the order of procession.

The prayers were intoned by the rector of North Meols, Bro. the Rev. C. H. Knowliss, and the lessons were read by the Vicar of Holy Trinity, Bro. the Rev. C. S. Hope. The following anthem was admirably sung by the choir: "Remember now thy Creator in the days of thy youth, while the evil days come not, nor the years draw nigh, when thou shalt say, I have no pleasure in them: While the sun, or the light, or the moon, or the stars, be not darkened, nor the clouds return after the rain. In the day when the keepers of the house shall tremble, and the strong men shall bow themselves, and the grinders cease, because they are few, and those that look out of the windows be darkened; and the doors shall be shut in the streets, when the sound of the grinding is low; and he shall rise up at the voice of the bird; and all the daughters of music shall be brought low; then shall the dust return to the earth as it was; and the spirit shall return unto God who gave it. Vanity of vanities, saith the preacher; all is vanity." The hymns were also well chosen.

The Rev. Bethell Jones took for his text the sixth chapter of St. Luke, 36th verse—"Be ye also merciful, as your Father in heaven"—from which text he preached a most eloquent and appropriate sermon.

A collection amounting to £91 10s. was made at the close for the Indian Famine Fund.

On leaving the Church the brethren reversed the order of the procession, with the exception that the band maintained its original position. The line of march was Houghton-street, London-street, and Lord-street, to the Winter Gardens. At the Town Hall, however, there were large desertions from the ranks, indeed, quite one-half the brethren "fell out," and having speedily divested themselves of aprons, cuffs, scarves, and jewels, proceeded to explore the town. Those left in the procession numbered about four hundred, and as soon as they had reached the Winter Gardens, they found Bro. F. F. Baker, manager of the Victoria Hotel Company, had made most excellent preparations for the banquet.

The Pavilion was decorated with flags, and in the course of the evening Bro. Lord Skelmersdale, who presided, and who was supported by a large number of Provincial Grand Officers, spoke in very complimentary terms of it as a dining room for so large a party. The gallery was filled with ladies, and what with the brightness of their dresses, the regalia worn by the brethren, the flags and decorations, the fruit, flowers, plate, and glass so tastefully arranged on the tables, the scene was altogether such as can seldom be witnessed at a Masonic gathering. To add to the enjoyment of the banquet, a glee party, under the direction of Bro. Skeaf, the P.G. Organist, occupied the stage, and during the evening performed in capital style a selection of vocal music. The band played during dinner.

The first toast was the "Health of Her Majesty the Queen," and the R.W.P.G.M. in proposing it spoke of her Majesty as a patron of the Craft.

The noble Chairman next gave "The Health of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, the Princess of Wales, and the other members of the Royal Family." (Applause.) The R.W.P.G.M. said he had before now told them how much he honoured his Royal Highness as their Worshipful Grand Master, and how he looked upon him as a very good Mason. He need not repeat that nor say that his Royal Highness continued so still. He hoped, however, they would join with him in congratulating their Royal Highnesses the Prince and Princess upon the restoration to health of their eldest son. He could assure them that though little had been said of the Prince's illness in the daily papers it had been greatly felt by the Royal parents, and had been the cause of great anxiety. (Hear, hear.)

The health of the "Right Hon. the Earl of Carnarvon and the other officers of the Grand Lodge" was the next given, coupled with the name of Bro. Colonel Birchall, Past G.D.

Bro. Birchall responded, and proposed the "Health of the Right Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, the R.W.P.G.M.," which was received with great enthusiasm.

His Lordship, in responding, said Masonry in his province had grown, was growing, and would continue to grow. It was a great responsibility for any single brother to hold, but he was thankful to say that his work was rendered comparatively pleasant by the harmony which universally prevailed in the province. (Hear, hear, and applause.) Unless this harmony prevailed it would be impossible for him to conduct the 77 lodges which were under his direction. He referred with pleasure to the glorious gathering that day, and announced that the sum granted on that occasion to the Indian famine relief fund would be made up to £200. (Applause.)

"The Provincial Grand Officers, Past and Present" was next given, and was followed by "The Worshipful Masters of the Lodges in the Province," proposed by Bro. H. S. Alpass, Prov. G. Sec.; and responded to by Bro. John Vaughan, W.M. 86 (Present), the oldest lodge in the province represented at the banquet.

The "Charities of the Province," proposed by Bro. Robert Wilson, P.P.G.J.D.; and responded to by Bros. Robert Wylie, P.P.G.S.D.; and Richard Brown, P.M. 241; whose names had been coupled with the toast in a very complimentary manner, was next honoured, and the proceedings were brought to a close with the usual toast—"To all poor and distressed Masons."

A charming variety to the musical programme was furnished by Bro. H. Gill, ro86, whose fairy bell performance was loudly applauded. The musical arrangements were under the direction of Bro. J. Skeaf, P.G.O.; and those who assisted were Bros. C. Haswell, J. P. Bryan, J. T. Pogmire, W. H. Quayle, J. Queen, G. A. W. Phillips, W. Forrester, and R. N. Hobart.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF WEST YORKSHIRE.

On Wednesday the brethren of West Yorkshire assembled in large force in the ancient ecclesiastical diocese of Ripon. Bro. Wm. Paley, M.D., W.M., and officers of the De Grey and Ripon Lodge, (837), opened the preliminary Lodge, after which the Provincial Grand Lodge entered, and was presided over by the Right Hon. Sir. H. Edwards, Bart., Prov. Grand Master of West Yorkshire.

The usual preliminaries having been gone through, the brethren cordially saluted the Right Worshipful Prov. Grand Master in ancient form.

In acknowledging the compliment, Sir Henry Edwards said,

Brethren,—Accept my acknowledgments for the warmth of your salutation and the cordiality of your reception. My address to day must be brief, but there are a few remarks I desire to press upon your attention on the circumstances which have marshalled the Masonic body of West Yorkshire under the banner of the De Grey and Ripon Lodge, and occasioned this meeting in the Town Hall of the capital of the Ecclesiastical Diocese of Ripon. I find the first visit of Provincial Grand Lodge to this city, was in July, 1863, under the presidency of Bro. Bentley Shaw, when the brethren proceeded to Fountain Abbey in Masonic costume. The next visit here, was in October, 1866, when the Marquis of Ripon, then Lord de Grey and Ripon, was the occupant of my chair, and whose retirement from the Craft, which he greatly adorned, we must ever regret. A third visit was paid in July, 1871, and Bro. Bentley Shaw again presided over your deliberations, and the brethren of the province were again entertained at Fountain Abbey through the kindness of the late Provincial Grand Master. Again the fourth time, after an interval of six years, the province has been invited to hold its last quarterly meeting this year, in this romantic and interesting locality. We thank the Worshipful Master, officers, and brethren of the Ripon Lodge, for this day's invitation and oft repeated hospitality. Whilst we acknowledge the gratification in the renewal of our interest with the architectural edifices, ecclesiastical memories and ancient historic associations which the Royal Archaeological Institute of Great Britain brought to our notice in 1874, we are reminded by the presence amongst us of the well travelled Mayor of this city, the Worshipful Master of this lodge, the Chaplain, author of the "Guide to Chambered Barrows and Pre-Historic Monuments." and other members of No. 837, with whom we now claim to a more intimate acquaintance, as well as with their written discoveries in the hidden mysteries of nature and art. As might be expected in a city full of the works of our ancient operative brethren in Masonry, and equally famous in its relations to the ecclesiastical history of Yorkshire, we find amongst its most prominent institutions those relating to charitable endowments. I shall only touch briefly on their merits. There are three on which our operative brethren bestowed some care, and which in constructive skill testify to us of their genius as master builders as well as to their charity. The "Maison de Dieu," an old asylum for eight poor women; "the Hospital of St. Mary Magdalene," for lepers, which Leland asserts, was, in the 12th century, built by our brethren from Rome. The third which interests us to-day is "Jepson's Hospital." On behalf of this charity Bro. the Rev. Canon Burfield, of St. Mark's, Leicester, and Past Provincial Grand Chaplain of this province, has most kindly responded to my invitation to preach, with the sanction of the dean and chapter, in the cathedral, both of our much respected Provincial Grand Chaplains, who were otherwise quite willing to undertake that duty, being prevented by ancient statutes now in force, from occupying the pulpit in Ripon Cathedral on this occasion, being below the dignity of canon. To the Bishop of the Diocese our obligations are due for placing his cathedral at the disposal of the authorities for a special service for this charity. This hospital was founded in 1672, by Zacharias Jepson, a Freemason and apothecary at York, but a native of Ripon. This brother bequeathed to feepees the sum of £3000 to purchase land for the maintenance and education of twenty orphan boys, sons of poor, but respectable freemen of Ripon. These boys were to be admitted at the age of seven years or upwards, and to continue in the hospital until they should be fifteen and a-half years old. This benefactor desired that, as the master of the Free School of Ripon should judge fit, certain boys were to be sent to Cambridge and to have £20 a year for seven years to maintain them, whilst certain others, having been above four years in the hospital, might have £5 to bind each as "an entered apprentice" to a trade in Ripon. You must remember our London Masonic Charities were not in existence in the days of this founder, and I am informed that this first effort of Bro. Zacharias Jepson to establish a hospital of this kind, the want of which was so much felt by the Craft in his time, but now so well endowed as he intended, for upon an inquiry taken on the 1st May, in the 26th year of King Charles the Second, before commissioners it was discovered that "the clear remainder of the testator's personal estate, above his debts discharged and a moiety thereof, which his widow, Isabel Jepson, had taken to herself, amounted to £2275 3s. 9d." which was paid to the trustees. The number of boys in the hospital was consequently reduced to twelve, and the number of scholars to be maintained at the University reduced to one. Owing to injudicious investments of the original trustees, the number of boys was reduced to ten, which is the number at present on the foundation, and it is to enable the present feepees to carry out the original Masonic scheme that the Dean and Chapter, and the De Grey and Ripon Lodge have invited the brethren to day, and will solicit your contributions in the Cathedral this afternoon. Allow me to mention another circumstance in illustration of the charity and benevolence of our Order. The famine in Southern India is a calamity on a scale to which European experience supplies no parallel. The Grand Lodge of England at its last quarterly meeting, believing that one of the principles of Freemasonry is that virtue which never faileth—Charity—and that Freemasons are ever ready to recognise the claims of the poor and distressed, and stay not to inquire as to creed, colour, or clime, and that this fearful famine came within the sphere of their fraternity, made a grant of £1050 to the Indian Relief Fund, £210 towards the relief of the sufferers by fire at St. John's, New Brunswick, and £105 for the sufferers from the cataclysm on the coast of Peru. It gives me pleasure to mention that the Provincial Grand Lodge of Dorset has supplemented the munificence of Grand Lodge by £120, Provincial Grand Lodge of Cheshire by £100, and our own Lodge of Excelsior, Leeds, £25, and Philanthropic £20 to the Indian Relief Fund. During the present year, so far as it has gone, £40,000 have been collected for our London Masonic Charities. The report of our charity committee informs us that this province has one boy for the October election, and I do assure you, brethren, it will take every vote the province can muster to carry him. Let me impress upon the charity representatives of each lodge to place the votes of their lodge without delay of a post, in the hands of the charity committee. Charity towards both combatants fighting in the valley of the Danube must find a response from Freemasons. The savageness of the warfare is fast rivalling in bitterness the thirty years' war. Blood is poured out like water. We must weigh the day that will follow this tremendous struggle. Let us hope that the harvest to be reaped will not be one of intensified mutual hatred and mistrust, that philosophers, diplomats, and statesmen may sow over those now desolated regions, ere we again meet on the advent of a new year, "on earth, peace, and good will towards men." Charity induces Freemasons, at least, to believe that the Turks, out of their great efforts of national defence, will strive after a purer and more earnest spirit of life, which may lead them to assume a respectable place among the nations of the civilized world, and a more hopeful future in which the principles of Freemasonry can have full force, for two portions of the human race to whom has been committed the dominion of so large a share of the earth. I appeal to your sympathies for our suffering and distressed brethren wherever they may be, and that you will give to the Dean and Chapter your cheerful help for this hospital, and to mark to-days' proceedings as a starting point of its increased usefulness.

The Deputy Prov. Grand Master, (Bro. T. W. Tew), after thanking the brethren for their cordial reception of himself, that as the year was fast drawing to a close, the Secretaries of lodges should use all endeavours to make up their return as early as possible, so that a complete statement of the province might be presented at the annual meeting.

The roll of lodges was then called, when it was ascertained that out of 69 lodges in the province all were represented but six, the brethren present numbering about 300.

The brethren were then marshalled in order of procession, and being joined by the Mayor and Corporation of Ripon (in their robes), and headed by the Ripon Volunteer Rifle Band, proceeded to the cathedral, parading on their way round the Market-place, and presenting quite a gay and unusual appearance.

The Rev. Canon Burfield, M.A., vicar of St. Mark's, Leicester, P.P.G. Chaplain of West Yorkshire, was the preacher, and selected for his text 1st Corinthians, xiii. 8. "Charity never faileth: but whether there be prophecies, they shall fail; whether there be tongues, they shall cease; whether there be language, it shall vanish away." It is extremely unusual, (the Rev. Canon said) to find any contrast drawn in the canons of the sacred law between the various gifts and graces which are to distinguish the character of the believer. Every grace should be cultivated, and there should be no envy or regret displayed because of some irregularity in the divine distribution. All have not the same office, and in that Providence whose arrangements none can dare gainsay there is a divinity of order and privilege; to one is given the word of knowledge, to another the word of prophecy, to another divers kinds of tongues; but all worketh that one and the self-same spirit dividing to every one severally as the will. The latter part of the text is of the nature of a contrast. It selects three of the chief gifts of the Almighty, and shows that in one important particular charity infinitely surpasses the rest. Charity never faileth. In the current language of the day our general idea of failure is associated with disaster; but the interpretation put upon the word of the text is that of death. Charity never dieth. After an elaborate argument of this interpretation, and on the grace of charity preponderating in excellence over the other graces, in the course of which the rev. gentlemen made a touching allusion to the late M. Thiers, he said: the channel with which he had ventured to direct the thoughts of his Masonic brethren was not a novel one. Assembled from all parts of the province in this city of Ripon, the very name of which for many years struck the chords of a loyal attachment in every Masonic heart, and of which no Mason, he fancied, even at this moment, thought without sympathies which are most closely allied to a tenderly regret. We shall miss to-day the cherished presence of one whose counsel it was constantly our happiness to follow, and who, without revealing our Masonic secrets could bear witness, if he was allowed, that loyalty to the powers that be, benevolence to man, and reverence to the word of God are among the foundation stones on which every true Masonic edifice must always repose. Not to destroy, but to preserve the temple do they combine. Not to promote disorder but to foster unity and truth are the lodges convened. Following out their noble principles, they had assembled, by permission of the Dean of Ripon, to signalise this unity by a religious service, and to hallow an offering, not to one of their own charities, but for the support of a local charity. The rev. canon then made a stirring appeal for the Jepson's Charity, urging them to place their offering for God's acceptance, under a conviction of its perpetuity; for when the earthly lodges should be closed in harmony for ever, when one greater than Solomon shall reappear, this spirit of charity shall survive.

After service, the procession returned to the Town-hall in reverse order, when the lodge was duly closed.

A banquet, an account of which will appear in our next, held at the Unicorn Hotel, followed the lodge, at which the Dean and Chapter of Ripon were present. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured, and the day was thus brought to a happy close.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.

The General Committee of the Boys' School held their monthly meeting last Saturday, in the Board-room, Freemasons' Hall. Bro. Benjamin Head, V.P., presided; and there were also present Bros. S. Rawson, the Rev. A. F. A. Woodford, S. Rosenthal, John W. Dennison, J. Wm. Dozell, George J. Row, A. P. Lilley, J. G. Chancellor, Wm. Roebuck, W. F. C. Moutrie, John Boyd, Joyce Murray, H. C. Levander, W. Mann, W. Paas, Jesse Turner, H. Massey (Freemason), and F. Binckes (Secretary).

When the minutes were read, those of the House Committee informed the General Committee that a vote of thanks was passed to Bros. Bertram and Roberts for having on the occasion of the late cricket match between the boys of this Institution and those of the Grocers' School, generously admitted all the boys to the Palace and grounds free of expense, and also provided them with a bountiful tea and other refreshments gratuitously.

The report of the Special Committee on increased accommodation was read, received, and adopted, the committee having reported that they had accepted the tender of Mr. C. Prout for the new buildings for £2497. Thirteen tenders were received, viz.: Thomas Brooks, £3768; G. S. Pritchard, £3548; C. Fish, £3526; James Morter, £3280; M. Patrick and Son, £3248; Andrew Killby, £3172; Waldram & Co., £3075; Higgs and Hill, £3040; W. Brass, £2917; M. Larter & Son, £2885; H. A. Wagner, £2749; Mattock Bros. £2671; and Charles Prout, £2497.

One petition for a Grimsby boy was read and accepted; and an outfit of £5 was granted to a boy who had left the Institution and obtained a situation.

The request of Mrs. Cunnah to have her son, who was a successful candidate at the April election, educated out of the school, was after some discussion complied with, and the usual annual grant of £12 for the purpose was ordered to be made.

Bro. W. Roebuck gave notice of motion for the Quarterly Court of next Monday, "That ten boys be elected instead of nine."

Bro. the Rev. A. F. A. Woodford, P.G.C., gave notice of motion to alter Law 30 of the Institution by adding after the words "elect boys," the words "and also shall have power to accept or reject any recommendation of the General Committee." In giving this notice of motion the rev. brother said there were several brethren who were very anxious on the subject which gave rise to his bringing the matter to the notice of the Craft. There was a great blot on the list of candidates for the next election, one case which appeared to him to be a most flagrant breach of the laws of the Institution that had ever occurred, though he felt all pity for the poor orphans. There was one candidate down for election whose late father was supposed to have paid two and a half years' subscription to his lodge, but who was not certified to having paid more than one year; actually, he believed, he then went out of Masonry, remained out of it for five or six years, and then died out of Masonry. The law of the Institution bearing out the subject required that the father of a candidate should have subscribed five years, unless he died before having subscribed so long, or was prevented from subscribing by some accident or infirmity. When a case like the one he was alluding to was before the Quarterly Court Committee, Bro. Symonds took an exception to it in point of law; but Bro. Clabon ruled, and he was no doubt perfectly correct, that by the expression "elect boys," in the 30th rule, the Quarterly Court was stopped from rejecting a boy, and the General Committee having recommended him to the Quarterly Court, they had no power to reject him. He held by this ruling that the action of the General Committee was final, and that the Quarterly Court had nothing to do but to elect. Another Quarterly Court had since been held, and one or two cases had occurred which showed the necessity there was of there being a power of appealing. Facts might come to the knowledge, for instance, of the Committee itself, and circumstances might arise which would alter the position of the candidate and the opinion of the brethren. At present there was no power of rejection which might be desirable under such altered circumstances. As he had said before, on the list for the next Quarterly Court was one case which was in absolute defiance of the laws of the Institution. The rule of the Institution was that the father of a candidate should, except prevented by death, or accident, or affliction, have subscribed five years to his lodge. In this case there was no accident alleged as the cause of the boy's father having been out of Masonry for five or six years, and dying out of Masonry. There was a strong feeling in the Craft with respect to the children of those brethren who died out of Masonry getting into the schools, when the children of those who had died in Masonry could not get in. He thought it was a great abuse, and in order to meet it he proposed in the first instance to amend Law 30 in the manner he had mentioned; other legislation might subsequently be necessary. He was, however, in the hands of the Committee, for it was an important point, and he did not like to make a hasty change in such good rules as those of the Freemasons' Institutions were, without giving due and proper notice thereof to all the brethren. He would however give notice of motion to alter the 30th rule by adding the words "and also shall have power to accept or reject any recommendation of the General Committee." Under such a rule, if between the General Committee meeting and that of the Quarterly Court the Secretary had information given to him which rendered it possible that the case might be a doubtful case, or the members of the Court received information which made them think that they had a little too hastily accepted, a petition, there was power to the Quarterly Court to alter their determination. It would do no harm to any-one, and the Institution would then be really on the same footing as other Institutions. He would however be guided by the views of the Committee whether they thought there was time between now and the meeting of the Quarterly Court for the brethren to consider the matter sufficiently to discuss fairly such an important change at the next Quarterly Court.

Bro. Binckes remarked that the case alluded to was a very unfortunate case, and the subject had been fully discussed by the General Committee before.

Bro. the Rev. A. F. A. Woodford said the case, however unfortunate one, was a very flagrant breach of the rules of the Institution in his humble opinion, which were necessary to prevent abuse. Sentiment was very well, but it was necessary to adhere to laws.

Bro. Binckes observed that two or three brethren bore testimony to the unfortunate nature of the case, which was undoubtedly a very painful one.

Bro. the Rev. A. F. A. Woodford remarked that he was one of those who thought, and there were many brethren who thought with him, that all brethren who died in Masonry had a prior claim to those who died out of Masonry. There were several cases which had occurred lately that had been animadverted upon, where the children of brethren who had died out of Masonry had succeeded in their candidature, while the children of those who had died in Masonry had been unsuccessful.

Bro. W. Roebuck said that putting a child on the list of candidates was not electing him; that remained with the Craft.

Bro. Woodford asked what was the use of having laws if they were not to be acted upon, and they ought not to be governed by sentiment.

In accordance with what seemed to be the acquiescence of many present, Bro. Woodford then gave the formal notice, and with this the meeting of the Committee, after thanks to the chairman, was brought to a close.

ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

The Committee of this Institution held their monthly meeting on Wednesday, at Freemasons' Hall, Col. Creton in the chair. The other brethren present were Bros. S. Rawson, Benjamin Head, Dr. John Hogg, H. G. Warren, A. H. Tattershall, L. Stean, John Constable, W. Hilton, J. Sabine, Thos. White, E. J. Barron, J. A. Stidwell, J. A. Farnfield, W. Stephens, Jas. Brett, J. M. Case, C. A. Cottebrune, John Newton, Raynham W. Stewart, Charles Lacey, Thomas Cubitt, H. Massey, (Freemason); and J. Terry, Secretary.

The minutes having been read and confirmed, Bro. James Terry read the following report of the Finance Committee.

Cheques were ordered to be signed for the Quarter's current expenses.

Bro. Terry reported the death of some annuitants, and named the sum the deceased had received in annuities.

Bro. J. M. Case asked if it was necessary to name the amount received.

The Chairman said it was only done for the information of the Committee. It used not to be done at one time, but he thought this information was now furnished in consequence of a motion made about four years ago by Bro. Hemsworth.

The subject then dropped.

Bro. Terry said the vacant apartments in the Asylum at Croydon had been opened to all the successful candidates at last election in May, and two male annuitants and one female annuitant had accepted the offer. There was still one set of apartments vacant.

Before the Committee separated Bro. John Constable said that at a former meeting the Committee had conferred on him the distinction of honorary Vice President of the Institution. He begged now to thank them for that honour, and he trusted he might many years have the opportunity of assisting the Institution in any way that lay in his power.

The Committee then adjourned.

SURREY MASONIC HALL.—Monday Popular entertainments. An entire change of programme is announced for Monday next.

The executors of the late Mr. James Graham, of No. 11, Cornwall-terrace, Regent's Park, state that the first distribution of the residue of his personal estate, amounting to £100,000, has been made to various schools, Hospitals, &c.

Ireland.

The Duke of Connaught visited Monaghan, on the 5th inst., for the purpose of inaugurating a public fountain erected to the memory of Lord Rossmore, who was killed while riding in a steeplechase at Croydon. His Royal Highness was received with enthusiasm. After luncheon at Rossmore-castle, the ceremony, which was very simple, was witnessed by from 4000 to 5000 people. Among the spectators were Lady Rossmore and Lord Rossmore, brother to the deceased, the Earl of Darley, and other guests at the castle. A silver goblet was handed to his Royal Highness, who took the first draught from the fountain amid the cheers of the assembled people. An account of the circumstance under which it was erected having been read by Mr. Young, J.P., the monument was formally handed over to the Town Commissioners. The Duke of Connaught and the Memorial Committee were afterwards entertained by Colonel Lindsay in the Court-house. The Prince is the guest of Lord Rossmore.

HONOUR TO WHOM HONOUR IS DUE.

We have to congratulate Ill. Bro. Judge Townsend, S.G.C., of the Supreme Council of Ireland, on the very handsome compliment paid him, not only by the honour conferred on him at the meeting held on the 18th ult., of the S.C. of the Northern Jurisdiction of the United States by his election as an Hon. Member of that S.C., but also for the fraternal and most complimentary manner in which our Ill. Bro. Josiah H. Drummond, S.G.C. of that S.E., introduced our Ill. Bro. Townsend's name and proposed that the compliment should be paid him. This is the second honour conferred this year on our Ill. Bro. Townsend, he having within the last few months been appointed as representative to the Supreme Council of Ireland by the S.C. of Scotland. We are glad to be able to state we are informed that ere long other honours will be conferred on our Ill. Bro. We are sure it will interest our Irish readers to know that Ill. Bro. Judge Townsend is now the second (Masonically) oldest Bro. in Ireland. He having been initiated in Lodge 167, I. C., Castle Townsend on the 24th November, 1830, being then only of age, on the 8th July, 1835, our Ill. Bro. was affiliated to Lodge 27, of which lodge he is still an hon. member.

Obituary.

BRO. EDWARD HARRIS.

Our readers will no doubt hear with some surprise the announcement that Bro. Edward Harris, the late collector of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, is dead. Following so closely on his being awarded a pension on his retirement from the active duties of his calling, the event will excite a general feeling of regret among the numerous brethren to whom he was so well known, and by whom he was sincerely and universally respected. On Wednesday morning he quietly breathed his last, the immediate cause of his death being dropsy. Some mention of the circumstance will probably be made at the Quarterly Court of the Boys' School on Monday, and though no notice of a motion expressive of the regret of the brethren has been given the brethren may be excused an informality in their proceedings, if they, before separating agree upon such a motion. Only a few months have passed since they voted Bro. Harris a pension, and it was with warm shakes of the hand that a crowd of them wished him many years of health and strength to enjoy it. At that time he appeared to be strong and vigorous, and it was not from any want of physical power to perform his duties that he relinquished his employment. Although the office of collector to the Institution entails much personal exertion, Bro. Harris was fully capable of undergoing it; but it is no exaggeration to say that some brethren had made a dead set at the payment of commission on subscriptions, and consequent on that a resolution was come to to abolish the office of collector in the Boys' and Girls' Institutions. Under such circumstances it may appear to be irony to follow up this statement with another, the two old and venerated collectors voluntarily tendered their resignation. Bro. Harris was one, and the small pension he was granted has not been enjoyed by him more than nine months. The case of Bro. Harris is by no means a singular one. Retirement from the active duties of every calling of life is frequently followed within a very short period of health, more particularly perhaps among the learned professions; and it constantly gives rise to the observation that office was held too long. It is difficult to persuade any one that his powers are falling, and Gil Blas' Bishop, and Madame Piozzi's farmer, are true types of men in general. Still, Bro. Harris had not the appearance of a feeble man, and it was not on account of feebleness that he retired. It would be difficult to find a brother of whom fewer people could speak ill. "Along the cool sequestered vale of life he kept the noiseless tenor of his way;" he was never obtrusive; was always able to give advice, and always ready to do so when called upon; he was a kind friend, a genial companion, and as honest and straightforward a man as any one would wish to count amongst his acquaintances.

The paragraphs which have appeared in this column during the last two weeks, setting forth Lord Suffolk's intention of temporarily quitting Gunton Hall, reducing his establishment, giving up the harriers, &c., are wholly without foundation. The rumour seems to have arisen from the fact that his lordship has let his shooting for the season; and this, magnified by local gossip, has been ungenerously perverted and unwarrantably commented on. For my share in spreading this report, I take occasion to express unfeigned regret.—The World.

Public Amusements.

DRURY LANE.

That the audiences who nightly crowd what is properly called our National Theatre, should be pleased with the new play, and should demonstrate their pleasure in a way that must be highly gratifying to the author, is no matter for surprise, for the performance is in every way very satisfactory. Nor is there much cause for wonder that the large majority of critics have found fault with Mr. Wills's last drama; they appear to think that an historical drama should be analysed on its historical, not its dramatic merits; the improbable incidents they confound with, or rather declare to be the impossible. They allude to history as if it were a second gospel, and altogether lose sight of the fact that there are no lies more monstrous than the traditional. We regret that this is no great cause for wonder, since the critical mind to-day is for the most part preservative, and to preserve too long is to grow musty, and to lessen in quality and quantity. If Shakespeare's Richard III. is to be judged by the received historical facts, and its power of language, its force in incident, its breadth and depth of character to go for nothing, it would never hold the stage, and in a lesser degree, what does not however, lessen the strength of the argument, the same may be said of Mr. Wills's "England." The late Mr. Hayward in his essay entitled "Pearls and Mock Pearls of History," must have rudely shocked many a lover of this branch of literature, and even to a greater extent must George Lewes Cornwall have done so, when in his satirical but pleasant way he played at historical nine-pins and bowled over so many of our pet facts. What these gentlemen accomplished in essays, is perhaps, what Mr. Wills now essays in drama. From a purely literary point of view "England," is a perfect gem. Mr. Wills never worked in better style, and the little song, admirably sung by Mr. Collard, as Sir Geoffrey Hudson, is almost Shakespearean. From a theatrical point of view the play is a great success, and fulfils all the requirements of Drury Lane. With the exception of the parts of Charles II. and Buckingham, minor parts in the story, the acting was satisfactory, and the scenery being by Mr. W. Beverley, we need not tell our readers that twice two makes four.

OLYMPIC THEATRE.

By far the best domestic drama put up on the stage in modern times is the "Moonstone" of Mr. Wilkie Collins. In novel form "The Moonstone" was regarded by able critics as the best of Mr. Collins many good stories; there was a weird charm surrounding the superstitious mysteries connected with the precious eye of the heathen god that fascinated the reader. Sometimes in spite of himself, there was a strange and powerful interest excited in following the various movements, so to speak, of the wonderful stone which had so great an influence upon the lives and destinies of those in whom the reader was interested, that often thrilled one with an admixture of pleasure and pain, and finally when the book was finished and put on one side with a sigh of relief that all suspense was over, and yet with another and deeper sigh of regret that there were no more such stories to turn to, the impression left upon the mind was one of keen admiration and deep gratitude to the talented author. Much of the weirdness that fascinated and of the interest that excited us in the novel is of necessity lost in the drama, yet such is the dramatic and artistic power of the author that not for one moment is the interest of the audience allowed to flag, nor their sympathies to lie dormant. It has long since passed into a kind of theatrical proverb, "that the better the novel the worse the play;" and if this be so, to Mr. Wilkie Collins must be awarded the exceptional praise of having discovered the exception that somehow or somewhere exists from every rule. Having said so much for the play, it is painful to be compelled to add our conviction that it will not be a monetary success. Mr. Collins has written "over the heads" of most playgoers, and above the level of not a few critics, there is no claptrap "to stricken the ears of the groundlings," no overdoing nor tardiness to "make the unskillful laugh," no feasible abuse for those whose plague it is to be "critical or nothing" to spy in its acting, it is sufficient to say that all the clever actors and actresses engaged did their best, and that their best was excellent. As to Miss Bella Pateman we confess that until we saw her, as Rachel bewilder, we did not think her capable of so much grand and tragic power; in the scene where she accuses her lover of having stolen the diamond, she is simply perfect. We wish Mr. Neville would adopt the excellent example set by the management of "The Gaity," "The Prince of Wales," "The Court," and "The Princesses," of abolishing all fees.

The installation meeting of the Duke of Connaught Lodge, No. 1558, took place on Thursday last, when Bro. Sleep was installed W.M. by Bro. W. Cackett, the outgoing W.M. A report will appear in our next.

At a court of the Needle-makers' Company held on Thursday week, Bro. Dr. Ramsey was elected master of the company, and Bro. Eneas J. McIntyre, Q.C., and Mr. E. B. Webb were elected wardens of the said company for the year ensuing.—City Press.

The Lord Mayor has received a telegram from the Madras Committee, acknowledging the receipt of a further remittance of £50,000 for the Indian Famine Fund, and stating that the committees and agencies are at work all over the presidency with most satisfactory results; that the prospects are improving; and that, should the north-east monsoon, due in a few days, prove good, the famine will end in four months. During that period, however, the relief must continue.

A licence for music and dancing was granted to the Freemasons' Tavern, by the licensing magistrates at the Guildhall, Westminster, on Friday, the 5th inst.

CONSECRATION OF THE PRINCE'S LODGE AT GLASGOW.

The consecration of the new Lodge, No. 607, the "Prince's," for which a charter was granted at the meeting of the Grand Lodge of Scotland in May last, took place on Thursday week in the Pillar Hall of the Queen's Rooms, Glasgow. The Provincial Grand Lodge was opened at six o'clock, when the chair was taken by Col. Walter Montgomerie Neilson, R.W.P.G. Master, who was supported on the dais by Bros. H. Inglis, of Torsonce, R.W. Dep. Grand Master; the Lord Provost; Sheriff Clark; D. M. Neilson, Senior Grand Deacon, &c. The Senior Warden's chair was filled by Dr. McInnes, R.W.M. No. 27, and Bro. John Kinnaird, R.W.M. No. 73, discharged the duties of Junior Warden. Among the other Prov. Office bearers present were Bros. the Rev. J. W. W. Penney, D.D. Chap.; W. H. Bickerton, Secy; J. Morgan, S.D.; Alex. Bain, B.B.; James Balfour, D. of C.; Thomas Halket, D. of M.; J. Robb, Marshal, &c.; and in addition almost every Lodge in the Province was represented. The Lodge having been opened in the E.A. degree and raised to that of the M.M., the ceremony of consecration was proceeded with in the usual form.

Bro. Rev. J. W. W. Penney delivered the oration. He said—The consecration of every new lodge, brethren, is an indication of a desire to spread the principle of brotherly love. The apostle makes this the chief of three graces. Faith will end with the realisation of our hope in the future, but charity shall have no termination in the eternal temple of love. Be it ours, then, in our life and conversation never to lose sight of the distinctive features of that charity which must glow within each Mason's breast. As it "suffereth long," there is no virtue which undergoes greater probation. He who would rightly practice it has indeed much to suffer, long to suffer, for there is hardly an hour which does not bring with it something to ruffle and vex in the outer world, and even at our homes, from our very familiar friends. What a noble attribute is that which checks the angry word, expels the angry thought. If charity is long suffering, we are also told that it is kind. Alike slow at taking and giving offence, it does not return evil for evil, but contrariwise, good—ever anxious to benefit and contribute to the happiness of all. It envieth not the success of others, and how liable are we all to envy prosperity and other blessings denied to us. We must learn to be content in whatever state God has placed us. Charity does not even seek her own. There is, then, ever a self denying spirit in the truly charitable, which may yet be of an unostentatious kind. Another characteristic being humility, in that it vaunteth not itself, is not puffed up. As thinking no evil, a brother's character is held sacred, and slander frowned upon. Finally, charity, in the vulgar sense of the word, must actuate every Mason. If wealthy, there are many channels for benevolence; if not wealthy, there are few who cannot do something to relieve and comfort the distressed. As then, under the all seeing eye of Him unto whom all hearts are open, may brotherly love continue in our midst, with all its hallowing influence.

The Lodge was afterwards again lowered to the E.A. degree, when the Office bearers of the Prince's were installed as follows:—Right Worshipful Master—Sheriff Clark; Deputy Master—The Hon. James Bain, Lord Provost; Substitute Master—W. J. Easton; Senior Warden—Wm. H. Hill; Junior Warden—Councillor J. Salmon; Senior Deacon—Bro. Burnet; Junior Deacon—Bro. Provan; Secretary—William McLean, West George street; Steward—Bro. John Forrester.

Bro. Inglis afterwards addressed the brethren, and in the course of his remarks said that he had worked patiently and waited long for the position he was now placed in. (Applause.) A good many of those present, and especially the elder part of the brilliant assemblage, knew perfectly well that this was not the first time that he had the honour of appearing before his Glasgow brethren, nor would it be his first appearance in the Provincial Grand Lodge. Many of his visits had been very pleasant, while in others sorrow was mingled. He had appeared once, he was sorry to say, at a Funeral Lodge of the Provincial Lodge, held in the City Hall, on the demise of Bro Spiers, and against this he had to set a very pleasant visit when he installed the present Grand Master. (Applause.) The most interesting ceremony, however, was that in which he had just taken part, and he hailed with satisfaction the inauguration of the new Glasgow Lodge, being he thought the 31st in this great province. (Applause.) They all knew their patron was the Prince of Wales, and the lodge called the Prince's he accepted as a hopeful sign of Freemasonry. (Applause.) He was proud to see the Lord Provost present, and the Sheriff of the county, along with the other office bearers, and wished them every prosperity in the new and youngest lodge in the province. (Applause.) He trusted that the principles which had been laid down so well, both by the Provincial Grand Master, while conducting the ceremony, and the other brethren, would be carried out, as they were the basis of Christianity and Freemasonry. He hoped, and he believed that the office bearers would discharge their duties in such a way as to show their sister lodges in the province, by their example, a cordial co-operation that they were worthy of the position they had attained. (Applause.)

Bro. the Lord Provost said he was most struck with the solemnity of, as well as the eloquence, sobriety, and kindly feeling which had characterised all the proceedings. He felt that truly he was among brethren. (Applause.) Freemasonry in Glasgow was a very old institution, and for a long time it was very successful, but since the death of Sir Archibald Allison, though he did not precisely say that it had declined, it had not been so prominent before the public as it might have been. By the assistance of his brethren, and that of the learned Sheriff, he hoped the palmy days of Freemasonry were to be revived, and that Masonry would again rise in Glasgow—(applause.)—and that many of her best citizens—men of character and position—would embrace the opportunity held out to them, and take part in the work. (Applause.) He was comparatively a young brother to speak on such a subject at any length, but he felt proud as Lord Provost to have been received among such a band of gentlemen he was proud to call his brothers. (Loud Applause.)

Sheriff Clark said that since he came among them from Edinburgh, he had not felt so proud of being received in any public meeting such as the one he was then addressing. He had been very fond of Masonry, but his other avocations had prevented him from attending Masonic Lodges in Glasgow. He was also fond of the City of Glasgow and the longer he remained in it, the stronger grew his attachment, so that he almost forgot he had been born outside of its smoke. (Laughter and applause.) He, therefore, saw with keen pleasure that both as a Mason and a Glasgow man he was proud to find himself installed in the way he had been. (Applause.) For this honour he returned his sincere thanks, and hoped that during the time he retained office he would endeavour to do something for Masonry in that great Capital of the West. (Applause.) Scotland, from the beginning of last century had taken a prominent place in regard to Masonry, but sometime afterwards, as had been remarked by Bro. Bain (the Lord Provost), the Craft had not taken the prominent place in Glasgow and the West, which they should like to see it doing. With the aid of those associated with him in this new lodge, and by the aid of their Brethren they hoped to do all they could to make the light blaze out in the West. (Applause.) Masonry was older than he himself believed until recently. When in view of delivering a lecture on the subject (which he should have delivered had it been in his power) he examined into all the most authentic records that he could find as to the ancient history of the Craft. From these he had come to the conclusion that Freemasonry, although not to-day what it was in earlier ages, yet they found it beginning to flourish and take root in Europe immediately after the downfall of the Roman Empire. When that important revolution took place and the Northern hordes were fast destroying art and science, those who wished to preserve the arts of antiquity, and principally the glorious art of architecture, bound up as it was in those days in engineering, from the ruin that was coming over Europe, formed themselves into societies which were undoubtedly forms of the Masonic Craft. It was by the aid of these societies that the arts were carried down through the middle ages, and preserved till dawn of letters. These secrets of architecture and engineering which has come down to our times, link us with the past, and form the true explanation of what Masonry has done for Europe. (Applause.) There were other instances, beyond doubt, which he would have liked to enlarge upon, but he reserved the subject for another occasion. In the course of his investigations he was struck by one instance, that all over Europe, and out in the far East, and other parts of the world, bodies of Masons were to be found, using symbols so similar that there was no doubt whatever that they owed their origin to a common cause and at the same time, he was satisfied that these societies could not have originated within the compass of the present or last century, but must owe their origin to a much earlier period. That similar signs were used in Great Britain, in India, in the Himalaya Mountains, and in America, proved, beyond doubt, the claims to antiquity of our Order. (Loud Applause.) In conclusion, the learned sheriff again returned thanks for the honour conferred upon him.

Bro. Easton returned thanks to the Office Bearers of the Provincial Grand Lodge, for the kind manner in which they had consecrated the lodge, and received and installed the Office Bearers of the Prince's. A similar compliment was paid to the Choir under the conductorship of Bro. Pentland, who rendered the vocal part of the ceremony in a most effective manner.

The Lodge was afterwards closed, and an adjournment made for refreshments, when prosperity to the new lodge was deeply pledged.

At half past eight o'clock labour was resumed, when the Provincial Lodge was again opened by the Grand Master, assisted by the same office bearers. The minutes of the committee meetings were read and approved, after which Brother Sheriff Clarke was installed as D.P.G.M.; Bro. W. J. Easton, S.P.G.M.; Bro. Wm. Kyle, R.W.M. No. 34, P.G.S.W.; and Bro. John Monro, S.W.M. No. 366, P.G.J.W.

Bro. Monro then submitted his motion, to the effect that a test of membership be paid annually to the Provincial Benevolent Fund in the following ratio:—Prov. G.M., £2; Depute and Substitute Masters, Senior and Junior Wardens, Treasurer and Chaplain, £1; other office bearers, 10s. each; Masters of Lodges, 5s; Wardens and Immediate Past Masters, 2s. 6d. each.

Bro. D. McDougal, R.W.M. of Lodge St. Vincent, No. 553, seconded the motion.

Bro. Balfour, seconded by Bro. Gillies, moved as an amendment the previous question, but on a vote being taken 28 declared themselves in favour of the motion and 15 for the previous question. The motion was therefore declared carried.

The Provincial Grand Committee recommended that Lodge Clyde No. 408 should be reinstated to working order, which was agreed to.

The Prov. Grand Master intimated that he would subscribe the sum of £100 to the Provincial Grand Benevolent Fund on condition that each Lodge in the Province would pay the sum of £30 in the course of the next three years to the same fund. The proposal was enthusiastically received, and an indication was given that a strong effort will be made to earn this grant. The Prov. Grand Lodge was then closed in ampie form.

NOTES ON ART, &amp;c.

We have much pleasure in announcing that Bro. G. M. Tweddell's "North of England Illustrated Annual Commercial Almanack and Diary for 1878," will shortly be published, price 3d. It will contain, in addition to the usual information of a good almanack, several original and select pieces on North of England subjects, or by North of England writers, illustrated by a fine steel engraving, and by several good woodcuts. All orders, and books for review, should be sent to George Markham Tweddell, author and publisher, Rose Cottage, Stokesley, Yorkshire.

ART AT WARRINGTON.—On Monday last Lord Wimmarleigh formally presented to the Mayor and Corporation of Warrington Mr. Warrington Wood's colossal statue of St. Michael overcoming Satan, which has been subscribed for at a cost of 1000 guineas, as a monument of this sculptor's genius in his native town. The occasion was also taken to open an art gallery, that has been erected to receive the statue, which is regarded as Mr. Wood's masterpiece. At the same time, Mr. Robson, of Lymm, presented the valuable collection of oil paintings collected by his brother. This collection includes works of Titian, Correggio, Murillo, Gainsborough, and Reynolds. At a luncheon which followed, Lord Wimmarleigh, Sir Gilbert Greenall, M.P., Colonel Blackburne, M.P., Mr. Rylands, M.P., and other gentlemen, addressed the meeting.

The Grosvenor Gallery will re-open with a collection of drawings by old masters in addition to the exhibition of water colours by deceased painters. The Queen will contribute a number of drawings from the Windsor Library.

The Dundee Fine Art Exhibition opened on Monday week. It includes about 1100 pictures, some valuable sculpture with busts of numerous celebrities, and other objects of art. The Queen's contribution is Landseer's painting of "Sir Francis Chantrey's Studio."

A new cooking apparatus has been invented for the Russian troops. It is fitted on a two-wheeled cart, and consists of a cylindrical pot with furnace and chimney, so arranged as to be always upright in spite of the severest joltings. The food is cooked by steam, and a single apparatus, in three hours, will supply a company of 150 men with ample "stchib" and oatmeal soup. As the kitchen only occupies half of the cart, uncooked food, plates, cups, &c., can be carried at the other end. Condensed forage is also supplied by three Russian manufacturers, one at St. Petersburg turning out 30,000 lbs. per diem. The forage is composed of small biscuits of oatmeal, pea flour, rye meal, and ground linseed, and 28 biscuits form a single ration for a horse, containing as much nutriment as 12lb of oats, and being about one-fifth of the bulk.

THE LATE M. LE VERRIER.—We understand that M. Le Verrier's name had been proposed for the Copley medal on the eve of the long vacation, a proceeding by which the Council of the Royal Society manifested their high opinion of the merits of their distinguished foreign member. The instances in which the same medal and that the highest honour in the society's gift, has been twice conferred on the same individual are rare, Stephen Gray, Dr. Desaguliers, who by the way had the medal three times, Sir John Herschel, and Faraday. The Copley medal was awarded to Le Verrier in 1846, and had he lived until the Royal Society's anniversary meeting on St. Andrew's day next, he would have been warmly welcomed to a repetition of the honour.—Athenæum.

Herr Wagner has not lost faith in his Bayreuth performances. He now proposes to found a School of Music at Bayreuth to educate the performers, and a "Patronage Association" has been formed to endow the school with a permanent fund of £5000. Members of this association are to pay a minimum annual subscription of 15s., and will alone have the right of presentation to the school and of participation in the performances. Branch associations are also to be formed.

THE BARNARDO INQUIRY.—The Record says that the arbitrators in this case, Mr. J. B. Maule, Q.C., Canon Miller, D.D., and Mr. W. Graham, held two meetings last week, and agreed upon the substance of their reward. The protracted length of the inquiry, the number and variety of the issues raised, and the vast mass of evidence laid before them; have necessitated long and careful deliberation. The actual terms of the award will now be soon agreed upon, and the documents will be ready to be "taken up" by the parties as soon as possible.

Fresh Relics of Sir John Franklin are reported by the American Consul at St. John's, Newfoundland, who has bought from a sailor lately wrecked in Hudson's Bay two spoons marked "J. G. F." Some Esquimaux living near Repulse Bay had obtained the spoons from a chief, at whose camp their owner, a white man, had died of scurvy.

Cleopatra's Needle may be expected to reach England at the end of next week or the beginning of the following, if the weather prove favourable. The Cleopatra, in tow of the Olga, passed Malta on Thursday week, and was met afterwards by the Poonah, when seven miles east of the Island of Pantellaria. The Olga and her charge subsequently put into Algiers for coals. It is stated that the Cleopatra does not seem to answer her helm well, and will probably roll heavily in a high sea. On reaching Falmouth, she will be taken in charge by a Channel tug.

A NEW COMET.—The Paris Bulletin International of the 4th inst. announces the discovery of a comet by M. Tempel, at Florence, on the 2nd. Right ascension 23h. 5m., declination 10 deg. 19 min., south; diurnal motion in R.A. 5 min., in declination 63 min. both diminishing. It is described as small, bright, and with tail.

NEW LODGE OF INSTRUCTION.—Through the exertions of the W.M., Bro. H. R. Jones, a Lodge of Instruction has been opened in connection with the Wandsworth Lodge, No. 1044. At present it meets every Wednesday evening (the third Wednesday in the month excepted), at the Spread Eagle Hotel, Wandsworth. Bro. J. G. Carter, P.M., and Bro. J. G. Kewney, P.M., occasionally assisted by Bro. Past Master Boddy, are the Preceptors. It is proposed to change the night of meeting for the instruction, as Wednesday is an inconvenient day for several members.

The Provincial Grand Lodge of Hampshire and the Isle of Wight held an Emergency Meeting at Winchester on Wednesday week, under the presidency of the R.W.P.G.M., Bro. W. W. B. Beach, M.P., when £100 was voted to the Mansion House Indian Famine Fund.

It has been officially announced at all the Metropolitan Police-stations that the sanction of Colonel Henderson has been given for the police to contribute towards the Indian Famine Fund. Reports from the superintendents of the different divisions are to be made as to the amounts realised.

Weston, the American pedestrian, appeared in the character of a lecturer at Hull on Saturday. His subject was "Will Power," and he had a crowded audience. In the evening he gave an address on "Some of the results of Temperance."

The largest catch of mackerel known for years at Dawlish was made on Friday, when it was computed that over 100,000 were taken.

Bro. the Earl of Donoughmore, P.G.S.W., left town on Tuesday last for Knocklofty Castle, his seat in Ireland.

The visit of General Grant to Birmingham has been fixed for the 16th and 17th insts. A committee has been formed to give the general a suitable reception, and on the 17th a public dinner to welcome him will take place at the town hall.

The receipts of the Great Western Railway of Canada for the last week show an increase of £2700, and the Brighton an increase of £3200.

CAFÉ MONICO.—The Café Monico, Piccadilly Circus, leaves nothing to be desired. Situated in the most central part of the Metropolis, it offers unusual advantages, whilst the appointments are chaste, perfect, and unequalled. The Grand Café Saloon is most elegant in its fittings and surroundings, and the Grand Billiard Saloon, with its twelve tables, furnished with great taste, is complete in every detail. In addition, there is a very capital Grill Room. Of the excellence of the articles supplied and the careful attention and attendance it is unnecessary to say a word; the Bros. Monico have so long established themselves in the good graces of the public that commendation would be superfluous.

A CENTENARIAN.—Living and in the enjoyment of all her faculties, in the town of Luton, in Bedfordshire, is a woman named Sarah Ward, who is said to have attained the great age of 105 years. She has two daughters, both living in Luton, one being 78, and the other 66, and there were two older. There were three sons, who all entered the Army and died in the service.

The Fifteen Sections will be worked at the Southwark Lodge of Instruction, No. 879, on Wednesday evening, 31st October inst., by Bro. Charles W. Kent, P.M. and Preceptor. Lodge opens at 7 p.m. precisely.

MESSRS. REID AND CO.'S BREWERY.—This stupendous new building, extending from Gray's Inn-road on the west to within a few yards of Farringdon-road to the east, is now drawing near its completion. The fixing of the enormous machinery, prodigious vats, and general plant, which is on a scale of great magnitude, has been already disposed of. The magnificent new thoroughfare from the west to the east of London through Bloomsbury has its most imposing feature thrown open to the eye for nearly half its entire length, and the difficulty hitherto experienced in getting from the West-end to Clerkenwell is now removed. The builders of this great structure are Messrs. Cubitt and Co., of Gray's Inn-road. The whole of the telegraph work at this brewery—embracing as it does ordinary electric communication throughout, a complete system of fire alarms, lightning conductors, indicating instruments, and electric bells for various purposes—has been placed in the hands of the eminent telegraph engineers, Messrs. Francis and Co., of the Eagle Telegraph Works, whose offices are at 52 and 85, Hatton Garden, E.C.

The Broad Arrow states that notice has been given that the distribution of the slave bounty awarded for eight slavers captured on the 25th of October, 1876, by Her Majesty's ship London, will commence on Friday, the 12th inst., in the Prize Branch of the Department of the "Accountant-General of the Navy and Comptroller of Navy Pay, Admiralty, New Street, Spring Gardens, S.W." The following are the shares due to an individual in the several classes.—Flag, £1 1s. 3d.; captain, £3 1s. 9d.; second class, 10s. 2d.; third class, 8s. 8d.; fourth class, 5s. 10d.; fifth class, 3s. 6d.; sixth class, 2s. 11d.; seventh class, 2s. 1d.; eighth class, 1s. 2d.; ninth class, 6d.; tenth class, 3d.

Constitutions of the Ancient Fraternity of Free and Accepted Masons, containing the Charges, Regulations, E.A. Song, &c. A copy should be in the possession of every brother. It may be obtained for 2s. at the office of the Freemason, or will be sent post free to any part of the United Kingdom on receipt of twenty-five penny stamps. Address, Publisher, 198, Fleet-street, London.—ADVT.

STRAND THEATRE.—Under the patronage of the Lord Mayor and Lady Mayoress, a special morning performance will take place on Saturday, the 27th inst., in aid of the Indian Famine Fund, when the members of the company will give their services.

The town of Milton, near Sittingbourne, has suffered considerably from the effects of the extraordinary high tide. Several of the streets in the lower parts of the town were rendered impassable, the houses being inundated and the residents being obliged to take refuge in upper chambers.

A report of the meeting of the West Middlesex Lodge, No. 1612, which takes place this (Saturday) afternoon, will appear in our next.

We are requested to inform our readers that the meetings of the Islington Lodge of Instruction, hitherto held at the Coopers' Arms, Falcon Square, will, on and after the 9th October, be held at 23, Gresham-street, every Tuesday evening, at 7 o'clock.

NEW SOUTH WALES.—The brethren who have experienced so much difficulty in procuring the Freemason in this distant colony, will be pleased to learn that owing to arrangements made with Messrs. T. J. Jones and Son, "The Four Masonic Publications" may now be obtained at their offices, No. 330, George street, Sydney, on the arrival of the mail.

The Tower of London is to be added to the list of stations at which the Union Jack is ordered to be hoisted daily.

The installation meeting of The Great City Lodge, No. 1426, takes place this day (Saturday), at 3.30 p.m., at the Cannon-street Hotel. A full report will appear in our next.

A convocation of the Frederick Chapter of Unity will be held on Tuesday, the 16th inst., at the Greyhound Hotel, Croydon, at half-past four. The business of the evening will include the installation of Bro. H. E. Francis as M.E.Z.

ECCLESTON LODGE (No. 1624).—The Installation meeting of this young and flourishing lodge will be held on Wednesday next, at the Grosvenor Hall, Ebury-street, Pimlico. The lodge will be opened at five o'clock punctually. Bro. Daniel H. McLeod is the W.M. elect. A full report will appear in our next.

MANCHESTER.—For the information of the fraternity in Manchester, the publisher begs to state that the Freemason may now be obtained at Overall's, 47, Bridge street, Manchester, on Saturday morning at 8 o'clock.

The preparations on board the Britannia, where the two sons of the Prince of Wales are to pass the next three years, are complete. The upper deck for fifty feet from the stern, is screened off by canvas, and within this space are three rooms, one a well furnished sitting-room, another a sleeping-room, in which the Princes will sleep in hammocks suspended in the usual way, and the third a tutor's apartment. There are also a bath-room and offices. The suite communicates by a staircase to the schoolrooms below, as the Princes, with the exception of their apartments, will be treated as other cadets.

HEALTH RESORTS AND HEALTH RESORTERS.—John Jones, clerk in a warehouse, has nasty headaches, liver out of order, wants rest and quiet and bracing atmosphere. Sent to Margate for a week. Treatment:—Rise 9.30 (bed room 6ft. by 4ft.); out for a rum and milk. Breakfast—sausages, tea, and a nip of brandy, shrimps and new bread. Out on jetty. Strong clay pipe. Two hours' billiards. Two cigars. Two pints bitter. Dinner—veal and ham pie, cucumber, jam puffs, pint bitter. Cigars on jetty. Two hours' billiards. Strong clay pipe. Dose in billiard room. Tea and shrimps. Four hours' hot music hall. Brandy cold. Four strong pipes. Toss for liquors. Spree. Home. Bed 1.30 a.m. Returned quite cured in seven days.—Punch.

LIVERPOOL.—In answer to the numerous letters that the publisher has received from brethren in Liverpool, we beg to state that the Freemason is to be obtained in Liverpool on Friday afternoon at 5 o'clock, at the Office, 2, Monument-place; at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street; and at the Landing Stage.

GALE'S WALK.—After walking for six weeks, William Gale completed on Saturday last the self-imposed task of walking 1500 miles in 2000 consecutive hours. Within a few minutes after he left the track he was examined by Mr. Gant, Dr. Farr, and Dr. McOscar. His pulse was then found to be about 88, and corresponded with the action of the heart. There was no murmur at the apex or base. The thermometer placed in the mouth registered a temperature of 106°1'. The expression of the face did not give any signs of fatigue, and he appeared rational and collected. Several varicose veins were noticed on the left leg, but the feet were quite sound, excepting a blister under the ball of the right great toe. On being weighed it was found that he had lost only 14 lbs. in the course of his long and dreary walk.—Medical Examiner.

MASONIC SONGS.—A selection of Masonic Songs set to popular airs, written by Bro. E. P. Philpots, M.D., F.R.G.S., is now ready, forming a handsome volume, bound in cloth, with gilt edges, 3s. Sent post free from the office of this paper on receipt of stamps or post-office order value 3s. 2d.—ADVT.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS are the best, the cheapest and the most popular remedies. At all seasons and under all circumstances they may be used with safety and with the certainty of doing good. Eruptions, rashes, and all descriptions of skin diseases, sores, ulcers, and burns are presently benefited and ultimately cured by these healing, soothing and purifying medicaments. The Ointment rubbed upon the abdomen checks all tendency to irritation of the bowels, and averts dysentery and other disorders of the intestines. Pimples, blotches, inflammations of the skin, muscular pains, neuralgic affections and enlarged glands can be effectively overcome by using Holloway's remedies according to the "Instructions" accompanying each packet.—ADVT.

The Freemason,

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 13, 1877.

IMPORTANT NOTICE. ENLARGEMENT. OF "The Freemason."

The Proprietor has much pleasure in announcing his intention of enlarging the Freemason to 20 pages, during the London Masonic Season.

This improvement commences with the present issue.

All communications to ensure insertion in the current number should reach the Office, on Wednesdays, by 5 p.m.

THE ENLARGEMENT OF THE "FREEMASON."

It will have been noticed in our last impression that our Publisher has made the important announcement that from the 13th inst. the Freemason will be enlarged to twenty pages. This addition to the paper, proposed solely for the convenience of correspondents, whose kind communications weekly, in the "season," overflow our modest limits, and for the convenience of the Order generally, will, we think, be greatly appreciated and approved of by a constantly augmenting and most numerous circle of readers. To that Masonic public of ours, alike critical and yet considerate, Publisher and Editor tender their best thanks once again, for that rapidly increasing patronage, which they believe is unprecedented in the history of Masonic journalism, and beg to assure them that no efforts will be spared in future, as in past and present, to render the Freemason alike worthy of their approbation, their perusal, and their support. It may be interesting to remember to-day the successive stages through which the Freemason has passed, from the time, when at first, like a person learning to bathe, it entered timidly and shrinkingly into the great ocean of journalism, until now it boasts of a place in Anglican and cosmopolitan Masonic literature, which no previous representative of the Masonic press has probably ever enjoyed—thanks to the sound judgement of a discerning Craft, and the zeal of friendly subscribers. The Freemason first began with 8 pages, then it advanced to 12, then it issued 16, and now it announces 20. Each of these episodes in its career marks a step in its progress—honestly arrived at, resolutely attained by much hard work, and careful if toilsome endeavours to merit and retain public approval! Indeed, on this basis,—and this basis alone,—the Publisher has built up all his proposals and all his undertakings. He has always felt that the Freemason, like any other ware, could only retain the "market," if it was both of good material and sound manufacture, warranted to "wear well," and he has never appealed to any other court than that of the public opinion of his Order, to obtain support for his efforts to please, to instruct, to improve his brother Freemasons. If the Freemason was worth reading, it would find both an indulgent and well-disposed circle of readers; if it was not he felt sure it would meet the proper fate of all worthless literary productions. Such has been his unshaken belief, and the result has proved the soundness of his judgment, and the correctness of his anticipations. Never, at any time in the history of Masonic journalism has so much true and spontaneous support been tendered to any serial production as the Freemason, and emboldened by past and present sympathy, The Publisher looks forward confidently (D.V.) to a still more prosperous future. At this moment the Freemason is read and quoted from all over the world, and it has in Great Britain a numerous and intelligent body of continuous subscribers. But still, curiously enough, despite its real and great success, the margin between Freemasons and readers is far too wide and too significant, not to attract observation and suggest amendment. In some towns of England, in some districts, amid our 100,000 brethren, the Freemason is only taken in by two or three, and the large majority of our brethren seem content with a casual glance at it in club rooms and lodge libraries, where such proper adjuncts of Masonic life exist. In order then to increase the usefulness of Masonic literature, and Masonic intellectuality, in order to add a few thousand additional subscribers to our rapidly increasing list, in order to advance, and for the purposes of facilitating further efforts for the improvement and enlargement of the Freemason, we shall be glad to receive from any of our numerous and able correspondents, suggestions for the possible and probable increase of the circulation of the Freemason, in localities where for some cause or another its issue is limited, and its subscribers few. For without saying too much in favour of ourselves, we can at any rate assert this much, that by conscientious reports, and carefully edited pages, we set before our Order a paper in every respect worthy of our ancient brotherhood, and which amid many obstacles, personal antipathies, and childish oppositions, has succeeded in winning the public ear, and maintaining an independent and unprecedented position as a true Masonic journal, before English and Cosmopolitan Freemasonry. All such friendly advice will be received and acknowledged, we need hardly say, with fraternal thankfulness, and we think that much good may arise from such a friendly interchange of opinions to all concerned.

THE BOYS' SCHOOL.

A very important notice was given at the meeting of the General Committee on Saturday to amend Law XXX., so as to give the Quarterly Court the power of accepting or negating any recommendation by the General Committee. At present by the wording of Law XXX. the Quarterly Court is "escopped" from reconsidering any recommendation by the General Committee of a candidate, and must elect, even though the case be technically inadmissible, and recommended by the General Committee under error even. As there is no power of alteration, no possibility of appeal under these circumstances, the amendment seems to be absolutely necessary, to put the Quarterly Court in its proper position, and also for the welfare of the Boys' School itself. One other question was raised, incidentally, on Saturday, namely that which relates to the children of those dying in Freemasonry and out of Freemasonry. But as this is a very large question, and requires careful consideration, we do not deal with it to-day, further than to promise to discuss it, subsequently, but we confine ourselves with expressing a hope that the needful and modest amendment may be unanimously agreed to on Monday next, as a step in the right direction, and a very valuable reform.

LODGE ARREARS.

Our attention having been called to this matter, we think it well to allude to it to-day. It seems that in some lodges there is a habit of allowing arrears to accumulate for some years, to the great discomfort of the Treasurer, and oblivion of the Lodge Bye-laws. A Treasurer to whom the lodge is always in debt, is placed in a very difficult position, as in the first place, all charitable action of the lodge is checked, and in the next the whole aspect of lodge life is changed, its labours impeded, and its objects marred, in a manner more easily conceived than expressed. What, for instance, can be the position of that lodge where the arrears have become so large that they may be counted by hundreds? And when in consequence, any call that is made, practically comes out of the pocket of the Treasurer? We believe that we have only to advert to this topic, to lead to remedial measures, as we feel pretty sure that much of this delay of payment of lodge subscriptions arises more from inadvertence than anything else. We do not wish to seem to lay down too "hard and fast" a line on the subject, much less to dogmatize or venture to denounce. We simply state an evil, and fraternally suggest an amendment. There is a "locus penitentiae" always here for all, even for tardy lodge subscribers, and as it is "never too late to mend." Here below, let us hope and believe, while time and opportunity are ours, so it is always possible for the most backward of members to regain the good opinion and satisfied consideration of the lodge Treasurer. But we have thought it well, just delicately to hint what our Treasurers expect, and we feel sure that we may safely leave the "conclusion of the whole matter" in the hands of those who are principally concerned in these "premises," and who will understand alike, better than any one else, the force of our appeal, and the meaning of our remarks.

"IT'S A QUEER WORLD, MY MASTERS."

It is indeed, and as Mr. Samuel Weller would have condescendingly observed—"werry queer indeed." Between material scepticism and material impropriety just now, things seem going along at a pretty rate. In fact, if affairs proceed at their present "ratio" of impulsive absurdity, as a young friend of ours observes, "there will be no knowing what a fellah is to believe or do!" Let us take these two positions "seriatim," into consideration, with the carefulness which their importance demands, and their "prevailing presence" suggests. First as to material scepticism, if we are to believe some writers, we are on the eve of a great period of material unbelief. Lecturers and essayists on science, many of them mere "wind bags," by the way, full of "bottled moonshine," not to say "bottled Bass," amuse themselves from time to time by startling common-place people, and humble believers, by the assertion of some audacious paradox, some bold enunciation of sceptical aggressiveness. To them, the teachers of "Science," which rests properly on the inductive process of right reason, or the careful authority of proved facts, nothing is apparently so agreeable as to start metaphysical doubts, psychological difficulties, and even, though we should not have expected it, theological controversies. All such theories and reveries, however and by whomsoever put forward, are beyond, we make bold to say, their "proper pale" altogether; and though, on matters of science, in the abstract or in the concrete, we are quite prepared to accept their "dicta," we decline to pay any attention whatever to their "dogmata" on things concerning which they are imperfectly acquainted, and are in no way authorised or able to constitute themselves "doctores doctantium." We had gotten over, we had hoped, the ill-omened egotism of Popes and Popedom, but from all evils, which may afflict us in this nether world may a kind Providence preserve us, namely, scientific, metaphysical, professional Popes of every kind and category. Now we are among those who don't believe in the success of any "coup de main" on the part of material scepticism. We have no fear of Positivism or Voltairianism, of the "Independent Morality" or material immorality. We have not the slightest objection to meet them and confront them one and all, not merely as firm believers in revealed religion, but on the common-sense ground of right reason. We feel assured that any argument which rests on a supposed perfectibility of human nature per se, and on the necessary untruth and unreality of Divine revelation will be short-lived and shattered for ever, on that great Rock of Truth which Divine inspiration has hallowed and which Divine wisdom has sanctioned for the guidance and salvation of mankind! And then what shall we say as regards material impropriety. Evidence abounds on every side of us, as to the laxity of morals which pervades society, literature, the public and private life of many of us all, and without taking the too gloomy line in anything, though we are not "Given to howling"

And deprecating croaking," we yet must fairly admit that there is much in the present position of affairs, to alarm the serious, and render anxious the religious. We take up a popular magazine and we note amid a profusion of luxuriant verbiage and defensive sentiment that one man's wife coolly leaves home and friends, and runs away with a notorious profligate and seducer. This is the "pabulum mentis" for our young generation. We open a much-read novel and we find descriptions so forced, language so sensational, and situations so peculiar, that we can only suppose that the writer, reversing good old Dr. Johnson's dictum, seeks to make virtue blush, and to render vice triumphant, to overcome innocence, and to laud immorality! It is not without deep concern and humiliation that we have to realize daily that "garbage" of the worst description still finds among us a ready sale, in which morality is laughed at, dishonour disregarded, and all those habits which tend to the danger and degradation of society are considered as of no moment, because of habitual occurrence, fashionable, frequent, ever the "order of the day." It is impossible, but that as, honest journalists and believing Freemasons, we must deprecate truly and denounce honestly such a state of things, foreboding as it does, alike national decadence and personal degradation! We shall be met, of course, by the old saw, "things are pretty much as they always were," and no doubt there is great truth in such an axiom, as an answer to unnecessary exaggeration or hyper-alarmist prophecies, and probably we have in the present "cloud," which seems to darken the foreground of society, and humanity, only the return of that gloomier cycle of events and teaching, which in successive ages has always stood in the way of the advance of all true religion in the world! Believing as we do, that John Wesley's apothegm still holds good that "we are to try and leave the world better than we found it," and which axiom, by the way, entirely agrees with all our Masonic teaching, we can only openly express our deep regret, that this nineteenth century of ours has to contend with two such serious and startling obstacles as material scepticism and material impropriety. But though we say this, we do not for one moment credit the success of the one or the other. On the contrary, we hold firmly that they are only some of those mental trials to which "flesh is heir to," as well as bodily complaints, and we have, as we stated above, no apprehension but that revealed religion and Divine Morality will eventually come out "more than conquerors" over all hurtful delusions, and over all opposing foes.

PAST GRAND RANK.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I have heard many brethren of late discussing the question as to whether or not the office of "Provincial Grand Pursuivant" carries with it Past Rank.

I see that the Grand Lodge circular has generally half a dozen names with P.G.P. affixed, and I have always understood that Provincial Grand Lodges follow the Grand Lodge in their rules and regulations as nearly as possible, but still there is no mention of Past Grand Pursuivant in the Book of Constitutions.

If you can give or obtain an authoritative decision on this point, you will oblige many I rethren in the provinces.

Yours fraternally,

P. M.

[The Prov. Grand Pursuivant, like all other Prov. Grand Offices, carries Past Rank.]

LODGES AT TAVERNS.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Can any brother inform me how it happens that so many lodges are held at hotels and taverns? In London and other parts of the country we find many lodges so held. At present many who know nothing of Freemasonry think that the "banquet" is the chief attraction for Masons. Is it not possible, as Freemasonry is acknowledged to be on the increase, to found Masonic Halls, or to rent rooms to be used for Masonic purposes only, so that the Masonic ritual may be used in places solely used and consecrated for Masonic ceremonies?

I am, yours fraternally,

SIGMA.

A QUERY.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Is it quite the G.T. for the Grand Registrar of England to accept (a subordinate) office in a Province?

I see by your report of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Cheshire that Bro. McIntyre has been invested as S.W. of that province.

By your permission one other question, what would be our worthy brother's position should unfortunately a vacancy occur during his year of office in the Provincial Grand Mastership of that particular province? See Book of Constitutions, page 36, paragraph 4.

"The Grand Master may by a written document direct the Grand Registrar to take charge of any province for which there is not a Grand Master, &c., &c., &c."

True the Grand Master might not so appoint, but there being no other provision for a temporary vacancy, a difficulty would in such an event occur; besides has not the acceptance by Bro. McIntyre of the office referred to (which is a retrograde post of honour) possibly deprived some deserving and aspiring brother of advancement in his province from blue to purple?

Yours fraternally,

A LONDON MASON, NOT INTERESTED BUT OF AN INQUIRING MIND

WAR VICTIMS.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Will you give me space to appeal briefly to the Craft for their support in a cause which unhappily has not yet received due advocacy. The cause of more poor creatures, war victims on the side of the Russians, who lie in thousands, wounded, sick and dying, without bare necessities, without attention, and in a condition so deplorable, that it is impossible in any degree to realise their misery and helplessness. I will quote from a letter which I received only a few days ago. "I have had a despairing appeal from the Roumanian ambulance, the poor Princess of Roumania is quite helpless, as all, absolutely all surgeons are at the front, and not one left at Bucharest to receive the 3000 wounded from Grevia; and fresh cases come in every hour. The great cry is 'Surgeons.' The gangrene has already appeared, as the wounded were four days without any dressing."

The Special Correspondent of the Daily News writes from before Plevna, "Great numbers of the wounded are literally rotting and festering, unfed, their wounds undressed, their cleanliness disregarded, with these terrible pictures before them, the public should remember that these poor 'victims' for whom I plead had no hand in bringing about the war, on them no blame can rest, and our common humanity demands that we recognise no difference in those who lie wounded, whether on the side of the Turks or Russians."

If your readers will refer to your advertising columns they will see that an influential committee has been formed under the presidency of the Duke of Westminster. Contributions will be gladly received by members of this committee, by the Honorary Secretaries, by Lady Selina Bidwell, 91, Onslow-square, S.W., or by

Yours faithfully and fraternally,

CHARLES P. SMITH, P.M. 1466.

CLEOPATRA'S NEEDLE.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

If ever there was a time in our own day when Freemasons could appropriately assist in the public application of that excellent working tool, the plumb rule, to try and adjust all uprightness while fixed on their proper basis, such an opportunity is likely soon to be afforded to the members of the Craft in London, when the wonderful monument of ancient Egypt—which towered aloft far up the Nile ere Moses led the children of Israel out of bondage, ere one book of the volume of the Sacred Law was written, when the mysteries of Isis and Osiris were carefully imparted to the chosen initiates sworn to secrecy—and when the point within a circle, the square, the level, the trowel, the triangle, the ladder, the mallet, the chisel, the five-pointed star, and the triple tau, are all said to have had their symbolical as well as their literal meanings for the Masons of that remote era—after having lain as so much rubbish on the sea shore at Alexandria for centuries, is to be erected on the banks of the Thames, through the munificence of our truly worthy Bro. Erasmus Wilson, long known as a Freemason, who really carries his researches into the hidden mysteries of nature and science, our gifted brother will now for ever be equally honoured for his noble public spirit; and I trust that the occasion of the erection of this famous old-world obelisk—would that it could tell us the scenes it has witnessed—will not be allowed to pass over without such an imposing Masonic gathering as has never hitherto taken place in the streets of our great metropolis. It is one of those rare occasions which once missed will never occur again to the present generation, and which not to honour will stamp us with eternal disgrace.

Allow me to suggest too, that every Grand Lodge "that speaks the tongue which Shakspeare spake" should show our gifted and noble-spirited brother some special marks of their favour for his truly Masonic conduct.

I am, dear Sir and Brother, yours very fraternally,

GEORGE MARKHAM TWEDDELL.

Rose Cottage, Stokesley, October 3rd, 1877.

[This interesting letter of Bro. E. Wilson has appeared in the Times.]

Sir,—Lord Harrowby's admirable letter will, I hope, settle the question of site in reference to Cleopatra's Needle. Mr. Dixon I know to be in favour of Parliament-square, and he has convinced me that the obelisk will be thoroughly safe—as safe as London itself—in that situation. After this assurance I should be sorry to see it placed anywhere else. The manes of the Pharaohs, Ptolemies, and Ramesses will, if they are able, feel proud of the honourable position which has been allotted to their monument by an enlightened people; and London will have done herself credit by her appreciation and veneration of so choice a relic of ancient Egyptian art.

I am, Sir, your obedient servant,

October 4.

ERASMUS WILSON.

LONDON ROUGHS.

[The following important but unsigned letter appeared in the Times of Oct. 4. It deserves perusal.—Ed.]

Sir,—I have read with infinite disgust a paragraph in your paper headed "London Roughts," containing a complaint by a lady that a ruffian followed her and spat on her repeatedly, and that a cabman willfully splashed her sister, spoiling a valuable dress. The lady asks what legal redress could be had for these injuries. The answer is this:—

1. As to the spitting, to spit on a person's dress is an assault and battery, the punishment for which, if the offender were proceeded against by indictment, might be a year's imprisonment and hard labour; or, if he is proceeded against in a summary way before a magistrate (the person assaulted being a woman), six months' imprisonment and hard labour, if the magistrate considers the assault aggravated; two months if he does not (see 24 and 25 Vict., c. 100, ss. 47, 43, 42).

2. As to the cabman, he also was guilty of an assault and battery, and, moreover, of "unlawfully and maliciously committing damage, injury, or spoil to personal property," for which last offence he might have been sentenced, on indictment, to two years' imprisonment and hard labour, if the damage exceeded £5, or to two months' imprisonment and hard labour if he were prosecuted in a summary way (24 and 25 Vict., c. 97, ss. 51, 52).

I am, your obedient servant.

CONSECRATION OF THE WILBRAHAM LODGE, No. 1713.

The already long roll of lodges in the Western Division of the County of Lancaster was extended on Saturday last, the 6th inst., when the Wilbraham Lodge of Ancient Free and Accepted Masons, numbered 1713 on the register of the Grand Lodge of England, was solemnly consecrated at the Walton Institute, Sefton-road, Walton, one of the suburbs of Liverpool. The consecration, a ceremony which is always interesting to a Freemason, was rendered more so on this occasion by the presence of Bro. the Rt. Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, D.P.G.M. of England, and R.W.P.G.M. of West Lancashire, who kindly and courteously consented to preside at and perform the ceremony of consecration in connection with the founding of a lodge which bears his honoured family name. The interest evinced by our noble brother in the progress and prosperity of the Craft was thus evinced twice during the week—his presence at the glorious gathering of the fraternity at Southport on the previous Wednesday, and his active labour as the Consecrating Officer of the Wilbraham Lodge. His lordship's attendance on this occasion was certainly an honour to the brethren of the new lodge, an evidence of how much he esteems Freemasonry, even in the midst of pressing Parliamentary duties, and naturally attracted a very large and influential attendance. The brethren present included, besides his lordship, Bros. H. S. Alpess, P.G. Sec.; the Rev. H. Bethell Jones, M.A., P.G. Chap.; R. Wylie, P.P.G.S.D., P.P.G.D.C.; P. Macmurdrow, P.G.S.D.; G. Broadbridge, P.P.G.D.C.; J. R. Goepel, P.P.G.D.C.; J. Skeaf, P.G.O.; J. W. Turley, P.P.G.J.D.; P. Maddox, P.P.G.S.W.; F. J. Pentin, 823; W. Archer, P.M. 1086; E. Smith, 1086; R. C. Yelland, W.M. 1094; W. B. Ackerley, P.M. 680; Rev. T. W. Richardson, W.M. 1380; R. H. Exton, Hon. Sec. 1380; J. Almond, Organist, 1380; F. W. Barnes, S.D. 1380; Richard Brown, P.M. 241; Joseph Wood, Treasurer, 1094, (Freemason); J. Busfield, 216; Richard Burgess, Organist 1609; H. Bigley, 154 (Belfast); J. McKenzie, J.W. 1609; J. F. Cowdell, 1609; W. Hill, 1473; E. Ford, jun., S.W. 1380; J. Winder, 667; R. Dunderdale, 721; S. Tebbutt, 279; R. M. Anderson, 1335; J. Hunter, 823; Wallace Smith, 1380; W. J. Lunt, P.M. 823; R. N. Hobart, 1505; T. Foulkes, Sec. 1325; L. Gore, 667; T. M. Walton, 673; J. R. Kewley, 162; J. P. Bryan, 203 and 1035; W. Wilson, I.P.M. 823; J. Barlow, 440; Robert Price, 1393; R. H. Evans, P.M. 203 and 1393; T. Evans, W.M. 1570, P.M. 1356; Richard Roberts, W.M. 1473; W. Templeton, 1086; C. Sayer, 220; J. J. Rose, P.M. 249; E. E. Swallow, 1547; W. Kersopp, 1547; J. Houlding, W.M. 823; and A. Gilfillan, 1393.

The commencement of the consecration ceremony was fixed for one o'clock, and shortly after that hour the whole of the above named brethren had assembled. The upper room of the Walton Institute, in which the usual meetings will be held, was gaily decorated with flags and banners, and the very handsome furniture and other lodge paraphernalia was the subject of general admiration.

At the opening of the Craft lodge the chair of the W.M. was occupied by Bro. R. Wylie, P.P.G.S.D.; the S.W.'s by Bro. W. B. Ackerley, P.M. 680; the J.W.'s by Bro. R. C. Yelland, W.M. 1094; and the position of I.G. was filled by Bro. F. W. Barnes, S.D. 1380. The Prov. G.M. was then received with his officers, and, after he had taken the throne, he was saluted according to ancient form. His lordship then appointed his officers pro tem. as follows:—Bros. P. Macmurdrow, P.G.S.D., as S.W.; J. W. Turley, P.P.G.J.D., as J.W.; the Rev. H. Bethell Jones, M.A., P.G.C., as P.M. and Chaplain; P. Maddox, P.P.G.S.W., as S.D.; J. R. Goepel, P.P.G.D.C., as J.D.; and G. Broadbridge, P.P.G.D.C., as I.G. Before proceeding with the consecration ceremony, which was most impressively performed throughout, the P.G.M. expressed the great pleasure he felt in attending that day for the purpose of consecrating the new lodge. Masonry, he said, was progressing very rapidly throughout the country, as scarcely a day passed without a warrant for consecration being applied for. He congratulated the brethren on their success in securing their warrant of constitution for the new lodge, and hoped they would have a prosperous future.

Brother the Rev. H. Bethell Jones, P.G.C., delivered an oration in the course of the ceremony of consecration. He said it was usual for the P.G. Chaplain to say a few words on interesting occasions like that. It seemed appropriate that he, a minister of God, should remind them that the first principle in Masonry was belief in the Most High. It would be well for all Masons to remember this, and act in accordance with that belief, never mentioning God's name but with awe and reverence, and looking up to Him in every emergency of life. If the brethren acted thus they would stop the mouths of those who charged Freemasonry as a system which was destitute of religion. He need not tell them that this charge was most unjust and cruel, as in every ceremonial, especially that of consecration, religion was emphatically brought forward as the chief sanction of the whole. Alas! that he should have to tell it that in France an agitation was now going on to eliminate the name of God from all Masonic lodges, and already the volume of the Sacred Law was excluded from some of the lodges there. A noble protest has been borne against this by Bro. Hervey, the Grand Secretary of England, and intimation that such an exclusion will lead to an interruption of the intercourse between Grand Lodge of English Freemasons and the Grand Orient of France. How could the temple of Masonry stand if its foundation—the name of God and His holy law—were removed? Nothing would be so calculated to give a handle to the enemies of Freemasonry, or justify the fulminations of the Pope and others against the order, as a system of political conspiracy and atheism, as conduct like this. Of this charge, thank God! the Masons of England were free; and long may they remain so. Now, a Mason must be either a moral man or a hypocrite. There was no medium between the two. He is enjoined to be exemplary in all his conduct, and by a well-regulated discipline to preserve his bodily and mental faculties in their fullest energy; to be a good citizen, by paying due obedience to the laws of the country in which he resides, and never to forget the loyalty which is due to the land which gave him birth, to practise every domestic as well as public virtue, thereby enabling him to be a good father, husband, brother, and son, and never to forget the pre-eminent virtues of benevolence and charity to the distressed. In one word, a Mason was taught to do good to all mankind, to the honour and glory of God. Founded thus on religion and morality, Freemasonry opened its arms to all varieties of sects and creeds—included men of different habits, professions, nationality, &c.; and while it insists in all cases in a belief in the Most High God of heaven and earth, asks no questions as to the particular mode in which each brother may conduct his worship. It is pure as the mountain breeze, open as the expanse above us, and liberal in its theological tenets as the Bible itself. It allows no controversies on religion or politics, while it insists on love to our country and God. Freemasonry did not conceal from the world the great principles on which it is founded, principles which every Mason was expected to exhibit in his life and conduct; while it demands most inviolable fidelity on the part of its members with respect to those special marks and symbols by means of which Masons, and Masons only, may share the benefits of our ancient society, and discountenance most strongly that reprehensible thoughtlessness which would discourse of matters occurring in the lodge in the ear of the world, and which ought not to go beyond the sacred walls of the lodge room, especially if calculated to hurt the fair fame and name of brother Masons. Those great principles he (the P.G.C.) had so briefly enunciated should be known to every intending Mason before his initiation; for while Masonry was undoubtedly spreading with singular and unprecedented rapidity, this rapid increase itself might carry with it its own danger. All W.M.'s and Masons could not therefore be too cautious in their efforts to admit worthy men—and worthy men alone—within the bounds of our ancient and honourable Order. In conclusion he wished success to the new lodge, and prayed that the whole brotherhood might so live and so die that they might come at last with joy to take their places in the Grand Lodge above, when T.G.A.O.T.U. should summon them from this sublimary scene to the life of rest and peace and joy for evermore.

The various portions of the ceremony were most impressively performed by Bro. Lord Skelmersdale, who was assisted by Bro. H. S. Alpess, P.G. Sec.; Bros. the Rev. H. Bethell Jones, J. R. Goepel, J. W. Turley, P. Macmurdrow, and R. Wylie, who ably fulfilled the duties of D.C. Skeaf's effectively written musical service was rendered during the ceremony with fine spirit by Bros. J. Busfield, 216; A. Gilfillan, 1393; J. P. Bryan, 1035; and R. N. Hobart, 1505. Bro. J. Skeaf, P.G.O., presided at the harmonium.

Immediately after the consecration, Bro. Charles W. Cayzer (presented by Bros. Alpess and Broadbridge) was installed the first W.M. of the Wilbraham Lodge, No. 1713, by Bro. R. Wylie, P.P.G.S.D., under the presidency of Bro. Lord Skelmersdale, P.G.M. The second portion of the ceremony was admirably performed by Bro. R. Brown, P.M. 241. The following officers were appointed and invested:—Bros. F. J. Pentin, S.W.; F. G. Fry, J.W.; Edwin Smith, Treasurer; E. Ford, S.D.; and W. H. Ball, Tyler; the remainder of the appointments being left over till next meeting. A great number of propositions for joining and initiation having been made, and hearty congratulations given by upwards of a dozen representatives of other lodges, the business was brought to a close.

The brethren were afterwards conveyed by special saloon carriage to Liverpool, where a sumptuous banquet was served at the Royal Hotel, to which about fifty sat down. After the usual loyal and Masonic toasts, "The Health of Lord Skelmersdale" was proposed by Bro. R. Wylie, who spoke in eulogistic terms of the devotion to Masonry shown by their P.G.M., and stated that he would have been with them that evening but for the indisposition of Lady Skelmersdale.

Bro. Alpess, in replying, also dwelt on the fact that, notwithstanding the numerous and important duties attached to Lord Skelmersdale's public position, he never was wanting when asked to come forward in any way to promote the interests of Masonry in the province. He spoke very highly of the zeal and discretion of their new W.M., and concluded by giving some excellent advice as to the future conduct of their lodge, reminding them that the very fact of its having been consecrated by the Prov. Grand Master would cause him to regard it with feelings of more than ordinary interest.

"The Health of the Deputy Prov. Grand Master (the Right Hon. F. A. Stanley) and Officers of the Province Past and Present," was proposed by Bro. R. Brown, and responded to by Bros. Maddox and Goepel.

"The Health of the W.M." was proposed by Bro. Pentin, S.W., and enthusiastically received.

In reply, Bro. Cayzer, W.M., said that he fully realised the important trust they had confided to him, and he hoped to hand over the lodge to his successor at the end of his year of office in a prosperous condition.

"The Installing Masters" was given by the W.M., and responded to in suitable terms by Bros. R. Wylie and R. Brown. "The Visiting Brethren" was duly honoured, and coupled with the names of Bros. the Rev. T. W. Richardson, W.M. 1380, and R. Roberts, W.M. 1473, who expressed their hearty good wishes for the success of the Wilbraham Lodge. "The Officers" followed, and was responded to by Bros. Pentin, S.W.; Fry, J.W.; and E. Smith, Treas.

In responding to the "Masonic Charities," Bro. R. Brown, in the course of his remarks, spoke of the responsibility connected with a new lodge, in having to furnish a precedent for those who came after them, and stated that it was a fact that those lodges which were most charitable were most prosperous.

"The Musical Brethren" was acknowledged by Bro. Burgess, 1609, and the "Prov. Grand Organist" by Bro. Skeaf, P.G.O.

Bro. Gill, of Lodge 1086, delighted the whole assembly by his unique and attractive fairy bell performances, and songs were given by Bros. Busfield, Brown, Wylie, E. Smith, Gilfillan, Hobart, Bryan, T. J. Hughes, Forrester, Tebbutt, &c., the pianoforte accompaniments being well played by Bro. R. Burgess, Organist 1609, and Bro. J. Skeaf, P.G.O.

After a most enjoyable evening the brethren separated, wishing the Wilbraham Lodge all prosperity.

CONSECRATION OF THE ALBERT EDWARD LODGE, No. 1714.

This new lodge, which has been established for the convenience of brethren in the neighbourhood of the Royal Military College, Sandhurst, was consecrated on the 2nd inst., at the Duke of York Hotel, York Town, Surrey, by the G.M. of the province, Lieut. General Brownrigg, C.B. The gallant brother was assisted in the performance of his duties by the Rev. C. W. Arnold, Deputy Provincial Grand Master, and several other Grand Officers of the province. Assisting also in the ceremony were nearly eighty brethren, among whom were Bros. Art. Staines, P.M. Shakespeare Lodge, No. 99; H. Freeman, W.M. South Saxon Lodge, 311; J. M. Dormor, M.M., and T. J. Pulley, Alfred Lodge, 340; H. Gerald Leigh, M.M. Apollo Lodge, 357; R. Fisher, M.M., and J. Olds, P.M., Royal Standard Lodge, 398; J. W. Sugg, P.M. Frederick Lodge of Unity, 452; Captain Cooper King, M.M. Zetland, Hong Kong, 525; Richard Eve, P.P.S.G.W. 395, 569, and 723; Colonel Middleton, P.M. Lodge of Auckland; W. Sheldrake, W.M.; W. Snowdon, P.P.G.J.D.; T. Benham, S.W.; G. Godfrey, J.W.; W. Sellwood, M.M.; F. Adnett, M.M.; H. W. J. Mayne, M.M.; C. C. Gold, P.M.; and R. Glasspool, M.M.; Panmure Lodge, 723; W. D. Jones, M.M., Isaac Newton Lodge, 859; Chas. Keen, P.J.G.W.; W. Vine, P.J.G.D.; H. W. Dean, M.M.; and H. J. Taylor, S.W.; St. Andrew's Lodge, 1046; E. Margrett, W.M.; J. Robinson, and H. Creed, M.M.; Grey Friars Lodge, 1101; F. West, P.G.R., Granite Lodge, 1328; John Smith, W.M.; Capt. Richardson, P.P.S.G.D.; Usher Lucas, S.W.; F. Arrow-smith, M.M.; W. Roy, M.M.; J. Abotts, M.M.; W. B. Theobalds, M.M.; W. Kennedy, P.M.; H. Newman, M.M.; G. Douglas, Secretary; and S. Cole, P.M., Aldershot Camp Lodge, 1331; John Webster, P.D.G.J.W.; W. Stacey, S.W.; J. McGowan, J.W.; W. Weller, Sec.; W. Male, M.M.; W. Knight, M.M.; and W. Chapman, M.M.; St. John's Lodge, 1564; J. R. Nicholls, J.W., and S. R. Nicholls, M.M., Elliot Lodge, 1567; W. Parish, W.M.; and James Mount, Wanderer's Lodge, 1604; Capt. S. C. Pratt, M.M.; Compton, D.C.; and F. Compton, J.D. Bayard Lodge, 1615.

At the conclusion of the ceremony of consecration, the Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Master called upon the Deputy Prov. Grand Master, Bro. the Rev. C. W. Arnold, to perform the ceremony of installation, and the Rev. Bro. having assumed the chair, the installation was proceeded with. Bro. Henry Hacker, P.M. Panmure, No. 723, Past Prov. J. G. Deacon Hants and Isle of Wight, was then presented, and in due form installed as W.M. of the Albert Edward Lodge, No. 1714. The new W.M. thereupon appointed Bro. Samuel Gerrard Kirchboffer Past Prov. G.J.D. Cambridgeshire, as his immediate Past Master. The Board of Installed Masters being closed, the brethren below the rank of Installed Masters were admitted, and after the customary salutes in the three degrees, the W.M. invested as officers for the year, Bro. James Mount (Senior Warden), Bro. William Jas. Lendrim (Junior Warden), Bro. Edwin Nicholls (Treasurer), Bro. William McLaughlin (Secretary), Bro. Thomas Jell Pulley (Senior Deacon), Bro. George Henry Martin (Junior Deacon), Bro. Henry John Price (Inner Guard), and Bro. David Payne (Tyler).

On the motion of the W.M., seconded by the I.P.M., a unanimous vote of thanks was passed to the R.W. Prov. Grand Master and Deputy Prov. Grand Master for attending to consecrate the lodge. The vote was acknowledged by Bro. Lieut.-General Brownrigg, C.B., who expressed the pleasure it afforded him to attend, and said it was particularly gratifying to him as an old soldier to see so many military brethren present, and also to see the Senior and Junior Wardens' chairs occupied by military men. The brethren then retired to banquet, which was presided over by the W.M.

After the cloth had been removed grace was rendered, and the toasts were proceeded with. The loyal toasts having been duly honoured, the W.M. proposed "The Health of the Officers of the Grand Lodge of England," and this toast was responded to by the Deputy Prov. Grand Master, the Rev. C. W. Arnold, M.A., Grand Chaplain.

The W.M. then proposed "The Health of Lt.-General Brownrigg, C.B., Prov. Grand Master," and the gallant officer having replied, the W.M. then proposed "The Health of the Deputy Prov. Grand Master."

The Rev. C. W. Arnold, D.P.G.M., in the course of his reply, stated that it afforded him both pleasure and pride to serve under such a distinguished Prov. Grand Master as General Brownrigg.

The Provincial Grand Master proposed "The Health of the W.M. and brethren of the Albert Edward Lodge, 1714," and after reiterating the sentiments he had already expressed, stated that it was exceedingly gratifying to him, as it must be to the W.M., to see such a large and influential assemblage of brethren present that evening, and it augured well for the future of the lodge. In the first place it showed that the W.M. was very popular, and in the next place that the interest which was felt in Freemasonry was widely extended and deep. Therefore, with a popular Master, and an interest in Masonry, the lodge might be expected to prosper. He had the greatest confidence in the ability of Bro. Hacker to rule the lodge, and he felt sure that while he did so with firmness the brethren would find it would be done with urbanity and kindness. He concluded by wishing the lodge every success, and the W.M. health and a prosperous and happy year of office.

The toast having been drunk with all the honours,

Bro. Hacker, in responding, said he could not sufficiently express the pleasure he felt at the manner in which the toast had been proposed by the Prov. G.M., and received by the brethren present. The brethren forming that lodge had tried for years to establish a lodge in that neighbourhood, as from the fact of the nearest lodge being at Aldershot, they were practically debarred from all Masonic enjoyment. He thanked the Prov. Grand Master for the kindly expressions of confidence in his abilities to rule the lodge, and trusted that, with the assistance of the officers who had been appointed, he should at the end of his term of office have proved to have merited their confidence.

The Worshipful Master then proposed "Prosperity to the Masonic Charities," and said it was the custom of many people who knew nothing of Masonry to state that Masons did nothing but eat and drink. The brethren, however, had only to point to those splendid institutions, the Boys and Girls' Schools, and the Institution for Aged Freemasons, and the Widows of Freemasons, which Institutions were voluntarily supported by the brethren last year to the amount of £40,000, to show the fallacy of such statements. He would not take up the time of the brethren by expatiating on the merits of these institutions, as they would be told by the distinguished brethren who represented these institutions the good that was being done. He concluded by proposing the toast, coupling with it the names of Bros. Binckes and Terry.

Bro. Binckes, in responding on behalf of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, said that his was an oft-told tale, and as a rule his mission was a begging one; but to-day he appeared principally at that festive board to express his gratitude for the support he had invariably received at the hands of many of the brethren present. He would tell them briefly that the support given to those glorious institutions was being utilised to the fullest extent, and he would point to the Girls' Institution, which had made such an addition to their establishment as would enable them at the election this month to receive thirty-five additional girls.

Bro. Terry, in a very energetic speech, urged the brethren to support the Masonic Institutions, which were all doing so much good. He hoped that when the brethren had subscribed to the Boys' and Girls' Schools they would not forget those poor old folks who had borne the heat and burden of the day, and then from old age, or other causes, were incapacitated from earning a livelihood. He called upon them to extend to these poor people the same generous support as they accorded to the helpless children, and he concluded by thanking the Province of Surrey for the generous support it had hitherto annually afforded, asking the members of the Albert Edward Lodge to follow the example set by their W.M., who had worked for the benefit of all the Masonic Institutions.

The W.M. next proposed "The Health of the Visitors," expressing the pleasure it had afforded him to see so many brethren present, with most of whom he was well acquainted. He believed that the interchange of hospitalities by lodges was conducive to great good. He concluded by proposing the toast, coupling with it the names of Bros. Colonel Middleton and R. Eve.

Bro. Colonel Middleton, who was the first to respond, stated that the pleasure he felt at being present was enhanced by finding so many of his staff there. He was always glad to meet a military man who was a Freemason. He was sure that the Albert Edward Lodge would prosper, as a lodge in a province under such a distinguished officer and Freemason as Lieutenant General Brownrigg was bound to do.

Bro. R. Eve thanked the W.M. for coupling his name with the toast and the brethren for the manner in which they received it. He spoke in eulogistic terms of Bro. Hacker's ability as a Master, stating that from the manner in which he had seen him perform his duty in the Panmure Lodge he was quite sure that the Albert Edward Lodge would not fail for want of proper instruction.

The Tyler's toast brought the proceedings to a close. Several excellent songs were sung in the course of the evening, by Bros. Eve, Robinson, Hacker, Martin, Mount, Tendrim, Sellwood, Adnett, and others.

The banquet was served in splendid style by Bro. H. Whale.

CONSECRATION OF THE ARTHUR JOHN BROGDEN LODGE, No. 1715.

On Wednesday afternoon, the 26th ult., a new lodge was consecrated at Grange-over-Sands, the want of which has long been felt by the members of the Craft in that locality, as they had no lodge-room nearer than Ulverston or Dalton on the one hand, and Lancaster on the other. The project of instituting a new lodge was discussed amongst those interested, Bro. Arthur John Brogden—himself an ardent Mason, although we believe not belonging to the Province of West Lancashire—entering heartily into the project. There seeming every probability of a successful lodge being established, the necessary steps were taken, and a petition was presented to the Grand Lodge of England praying that a lodge might be formed. The petition was acceded, and a warrant under the sign-manual of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, the Most Worshipful Grand Master of England, was issued authorising the formation of the lodge. The lodge is named the "Arthur John Brogden Lodge"—so called after its first Master—and is No. 1715 on the register of the Grand Lodge of England. The building selected for the lodge-room is situated at the southern side of Grange, on a small plot of land lying between the railway and the bay, and was formerly used, we believe, as a Methodist Chapel. It is a delightfully secluded spot, and has been elaborately furnished and fitted up for the purpose for which it will henceforth be used. Owing to the inability of Lord Skelmersdale, the Provincial Grand Master of West Lancashire, to be present, his lordship deputed Bro. Dr. Moore, of this town, to act as Consecrating Officer.

The ceremony took place in the lodge-room shortly after two o'clock, the following Provincial Grand Officers being present:—Bros. Dr. J. D. Moore, P.G.S.B. of England (Consecrating Officer); H. S. Alpass, Prov. G. Sec.; J. Skeaf, Prov. G. Organist; C. Fryer, P. Prov. G.S.W.; Geo. Remington, P. Prov. G.J.W.; R. Pearson, P. Prov. G. Registrar; R. Wylie, P. Prov. G.S.D. (Grand Director of Ceremonies); R. Dodgson, P. Prov. G.J.D.; John Case, P. Prov. M.E.J.; G. Cornfield, P. Prov. G.S.B.; J. M. Morgan, P. Prov. G. Chaplain; and H. W. Johnson, Prov. G. Steward. In addition to the above the following brethren were also present:—R. Taylor, W.M.; Z. Simpson, P.M.; John Bell, P.M.; J. J. Crookell, J.D.; J. Atkinson, I.G. (Freemason); R. Stanton, T. T. Thompson, Lodge of Fortitude; T. Jackson, W.M.; H. Longman, I.P.M.; Thomas Bell, Rowley Lodge; H. Hartley, J.D.; J. D. Bell, S.S.; and C. A. Beckett, Duke of Lancaster Lodge; W. Duff, W.M.; A. Poole, S.S. Morecambe Lodge; W. Baldwin, P.M.; Francis H. Clark, P.M., Baldwin Lodge; S. Hartley, J.W.; W. Harrison, P.M.; James Robinson, W.M.; John Robinson, J. B. MacQuire, A. Slater, S. C. Affleck, J. R. Casson, S.W., Furness Lodge; D. Smyth, W.M.; G. B. Nalder, S.W., Hindpool Lodge; J. Huartson, W.M.; T. McKnight, S.W.; M. Haslam, P.M. Hartington Lodge; James Sumner, P.M. Preston; R. N. Hobart, Emulation, 1505; Charles Haswell, 203; A. Gilfillan, 1392; G. McKay, S.W. 129; and A. J. Brogden, H. C. Davis, Thomas Ashley, W. Postlethwaite, J. Mossop, T. Westwood, and J. Haworth, members of the new lodge.

The brethren above mentioned having assembled in the lodge-room, the Consecrating Officer (Bro. Moore) took the chair, appointing Bro. Remington, S.W., and Bro. Pearson, J.W. The lodge was then opened in the Three Degrees with the usual formalities, and the brethren of the lodge being ranged in order, the Consecrating Officer addressed the brethren on the nature of the meeting, and called on the Prov. G. Sec. to state their wishes. This being complied with, the P.G.S. read the petition and warrant. The brethren of the new lodge having signified their approval of the officers who were nominated in the warrant to preside over them,

The Rev. J. M. Morgan then delivered a suitable oration as follows: Worshipful Consecrating Master, Provincial Grand Officers, Worshipful Past Masters, and brethren.—Standing on some tall cliffs beside the shores of this lovely bay, I look seaward. Beneath my feet, perhaps, children play; a little further, boats are passing to and fro, the busy fisherman slowly brings to shore what the ebbing tide has left for his share of God's bounty; and yet a little further the trawler sweeps along, seeking, too, his daily bread. On the dim horizon, some tall ship, freighted with merchandise, perchance bound to some distant country, cleaves through bright foam her joyous way, her captain and crew high in hope, and looking forward to a prosperous voyage and a happy return to home and country. I look out again to where sea and sky meet; my vision fails me, and all is dark and void, and yet I know that far beyond the busy world still moves on. On distant shores the children play, the fisherman pursues his craft, tall ships sail on, and yet these things are all hid to my gaze. And yet still I know that scenes like these form a portion of that beautiful world in which we take our part. Worshipful Sir and brethren, we are engaged here this day in adding another link to the golden chain of Masonry which binds the brethren of every clime and race in bonds of fraternal affection. For all we know, perhaps close beside the sea, on India's sunny shore, members of our most ancient and venerable society are engaged as we are this day, in the consecration of a new lodge, to promote the further glory and benefits of Masonry to the human race. Although so far, far away, we cannot see them, but we seem in acts like these to stretch forth the hand of good fellowship across the stormy ocean and the desert, to grasp the hand of a brother, although his race is not ours, nor his mode of life such as we enjoy. Before his eyes there are like scenes with ours. He may look out on to the ocean till sea and sky melt into one; as we cannot see these our brethren, so they cannot see us; and yet there is a chain of love and brotherhood which bridges the ocean and spans the desert, which binds us together in the bonds of sacred, holy friendship. The principles of our Craft soared high in the past—what do I say?—in the long, long past. Masonry flourished 4000 years ago. Mayhap those more advanced in our honourable science could tell you more—that it is older still; but I speak according to my lights, and to what I have learned of the mystic art. In the most glorious days of architecture, our Craft was a pioneer to the student in theory, and a guide to the craftsman who built the work. It inspired the artist with sublime thoughts and raised his very soul. The spirit of poetry was taught, too, in the truths and varied beauties of Masonic lore, and it must be so, as everything that is true and beautiful proceeds from above, from the Father of Light and Great Architect of the Universe. So our glorious science, pointing heavenward, directed the poet's thoughts to the very fountain of all that is lovely, true, and good. The painter, too, owes much to what Masonry teaches. What could he do without the light that descends, as it were, from heaven? The shifting shadow of the landscape were unknown to him; the moonlit lake, the shining ocean, the dream of an autumn day, but for the light would have been unknown and unheeded. Genius, guided by the teachings of our Craft, grasped these beauties as they went, and waned, and they are ours, though the painter has sunk into dust, and perhaps lies unknown in yonder valley. Masonry pointed again upward to Him who said, "Let there be light, and there was light." "I had hope, when violence had ceased, and war on earth, all would have then gone well, peace would have crowned with length of happy days the race of man." No, the world is still the same. War may not, as far as we can see, cease from inflicting on mankind its horrors and its crimes; and here again Masonry comes to the front, and says, "Ye are brethren—forebear, and sin no more. Is it not your brother you are striking at in yonder gory field?" For these, and many, many other reasons, which I may not now enlarge or even touch upon, Masonry of itself commands our highest and noblest regard. Does not Masonry teach us to be faithful to our Queen and our country; to submit cheerfully to the powers that be, which the volume of the Sacred Law tells us are of God, and to live peaceably with all men? Worshipful, Sir—unhappily, brethren may and do transgress; there are bad Masons and bad neighbours to be found, but in our noble Craft they are few in number; nor can any wise man draw any argument from it against our society; for if the wicked lives of men, or their evil deeds, was an argument against the religion they profess, Christianity itself could not be true. Does not then our Craft claim at our hands our greatest esteem? How does it recommend universal benevolence and every virtue which can make one brother dear to another; for Masons are brethren pursuing the same object, and seeking after the same great truths. Hail, then, to the progress of Masonry! Hail to the memory of the Craftsmen of olden days! Hail to our Grand Master and our gracious Sovereign the Queen! Welcome every fresh benefactor to our Craft! Welcome the Arthur John Brogden Lodge to a place in our time-honoured roll! And what more shall I say? May the brethren have peace here, and a happy future hereafter.

An anthem was afterwards sung, which was followed by the consecration prayer, and the remaining portion of the interesting ceremony was gone through in a very impressive manner, the Consecrating Officer finally constituting the lodge in ancient form.

At the conclusion of the ceremony, the presiding officer proceeded to install Bro. Arthur John Brogden as the first Worshipful Master of the new lodge, the Board of Installed Masters numbering twenty-five members. The newly-elected W.M. then appointed his officers as follows:—Henry Champney Davis, S.W.; Thomas Ashley, J.W.; William Postlethwaite, Sec.; J. Mossop, S.D.; Thomas Westwood, J.D.; and Joseph Haworth, Tyler. Several joining members and candidates for initiation were proposed, amongst the former being the Hon. F. A. Stanley, M.P., and A. Brogden, M.P. The musical arrangements of the ceremony were under the direction of Bro. Skeaf (who presided at the harmonium), assisted by Bros. Gilfillan, Hobart, and Haswell, the following anthems being sung in the course of the consecration:—"Psalm cxxii," "Glory be to God on high," and "Hail, universal Lord," as well as several chants, the whole being set to music by Bro. Skeaf.

A banquet was held in the Working Men's Institute, under the presidency of the newly-elected Worshipful Master, Brother Arthur John Brogden, who was supported right and left by the Provincial Grand Officers—about fifty brethren being present altogether.

On the removal of the cloth,

The Chairman proposed in succession the healths of "The Queen," "The M.W.G.M., the Prince of Wales, the Princess of Wales, and the rest of the Royal Family," and "The Earl of Carnarvon, Pro. G.M.; Lord Skelmersdale, D.G.M.; and other Officers of Grand Lodge," which were duly honoured. The last-named toast was coupled with the name of Bro. Moore, who briefly responded.

The Chairman said the next toast he had to submit for their approval was that of "The Provincial Grand Lodge of West Lancashire." (Applause.) It had not been his privilege to have been acquainted with the workings of Masonry for a long time; he was, so to speak, a stranger in the province, but from what he had seen, and from what he had heard, he had never known the working in provinces carried on with such zeal, such accuracy, and with such satisfaction in every way, as in the province of West Lancashire. (Hear, hear.) It was due, no doubt, to its head, Lord Skelmersdale, and in a great measure, not the less so, to the Prov. Grand Secretary, Bro. Alpess. (Applause.) Anybody who was a Mason in that part of the county knew very well what his qualities were—and what attention, zeal, and energy he brought to bear on the duties of his office. He (the Chairman) was sure no better man could be found for his place, because if the principal officers were not seconded in their efforts by men as able in their respective positions as themselves, things could not be carried on as well as they were. They all knew how well Bro. Alpess carried out his portion of the work, and he begged to couple his name with the toast. (Applause.)

Bro. Alpess, in responding, expressed the great pleasure it had been to him to visit that beautiful district for the first time. He had heard people from Liverpool praise it very much, and though he had been past it several times in the train, he had no idea of the beauty of the district till that day. From all he had seen he thought it a most delightful spot. (Applause.) He thought if they only had a building large enough they might have the Grand Lodge meeting there, but he had not seen a place there large enough that day. (Laughter.) Lord Skelmersdale's zeal in the cause of Masonry was known and appreciated in his own county and in London also, for amongst all the Masons in London not one was so popular as Lord Skelmersdale. He had also achieved the same popularity in his own county, where many of them had known him from a boy. (Applause.) His (Bro. Alpess's) duties were very onerous, and took up a great deal of time; but it was a great pleasure to him to do the work, as he had always been a working Mason since he first joined the Craft. It had always been his aim to do his duty in the best manner possible, and next to the approval of his own conscience the approval of the brethren was the greatest reward he would aim at. (Hear, hear.) Bro. Alpess concluded by giving some salutary advice to the brethren as to the admission of new members.

The Chairman said the next toast he had to put before them he wished very much to commend to their notice—their approval, he knew, would follow, as a matter of course, as they could not help approving of it—it was the health of the Consecrating and Installing Officer, Bro. Moore. (Applause.) Many of them had had the pleasure of Bro. Moore's acquaintance much longer than he had, and he only wished to speak of him as he found him. Nothing could have exceeded the admirable, the most perfect manner, in which the whole ceremony had been gone through that day in every particular—in fact, he could not find an adjective appropriate enough to express his own gratification, and he must leave the brethren present to apply their adjective in their own way. On behalf of the members of the lodge and himself he wished express their feeling of gratification that Bro. Moore should have been chosen by the Deputy Grand Master to consecrate their lodge, as he was well known in the district, not only as a Mason, but as a professional gentleman, and when he (the Chairman) received a letter from Bro. Alpess, intimating that he had been appointed Installing Officer, he was exceedingly delighted, as his merits were as well known to them as himself. The Chairman concluded by proposing "The Health of Bro. Dr. Moore, the Consecrating and Installing Officer." (Applause.)

Bro. Moore, who was received with hearty manifestations on rising to respond, said he begged to thank the Chairman for the very flattering way in which he had introduced his name to the meeting, and also the company for the hearty welcome they had accorded to it. He had felt himself conscious of many defects that day, but he certainly looked upon it as a proud honour when he received a letter from the Grand Secretary, asking him to undertake the duties which he had performed that day, and which he had done with very great pleasure. (Applause.) Some little time ago he heard it mentioned that a lodge was very much needed, if they could only find a building and get proper men to take the various offices. Now that idea had become a fact—they had got good men in their various offices, the lodge was formed, and he hoped it would go on prosperously. After referring to the safeguards to be adopted in the admission of members, and alluding to the quiet, secluded spot in which their lodge room was situated, Bro. Moore said that if the brethren found the least difficulty in working the lodge, which must necessarily be found in a new lodge, he had no doubt that brethren in Lancaster could be found who would be very glad to come and give them every assistance they might require. (Hear, hear.) Before he sat down he wished to propose the health of one whom he hoped would ever be remembered in Grange—certainly it would never be forgotten in the Grange Lodge, as it was called after him—and that was their Worshipful Master. (Applause.) Bro. Brogden was obliged to leave them for a short time, but he had no doubt the lodge would be well looked after by its officers during his temporary absence. He begged to give them "The Health of the Worshipful Master of the Grange Lodge, Bro. Arthur John Brogden."

The Chairman on rising to respond was received with loud applause. After thanking them for the way in which the toast had been introduced and received, he said it was now a fact that they had a Masonic lodge in Grange. The idea did not exactly start with him, though he felt when he came to live there that it was just the place for forming a lodge, and when he communicated that idea to other brethren he found they were in the same mind as himself. So they went to work and found others out, and eventually they succeeded in getting sufficient to sign the petition, and the consummation of their labour had been witnessed that day. (Applause.) He did not wish to take all the credit of that work, or for the success that had that day crowned their efforts. There were others as well as himself who would have the gratification of knowing that their zeal and energy had been well spoken of and approved. He referred particularly to Bros. Mossop and Ashley—(hear, hear)—who had taken a great share of the work consequent on forming a new lodge. He was glad to see the successful circumstances under which their new lodge had been opened, but was sorry that temporary absence from home would prevent him working the lodge for a short time. His absence at such a time was much to be regretted, but it was unavoidable. He could, however, rely on his officers to work with zeal and energy during his absence, and was satisfied that the lodge would lose nothing at their hands. In conclusion he begged to thank them once more for the hearty manner in which they had received the mention of his name. (Applause.)

Other toasts followed, the proceedings being enlivened by the harmony of several brethren.

CONSECRATION OF THE NEW CONCORD CHAPTER, No. 813.

On Thursday, the 27th ult., the New Concord Chapter, No. 813, was consecrated by Ex. Comp. James Terry, P.G.D.C., Herts., at the Rosemary Branch Tavern, Southgate-road, Islington. He was assisted by Comp. Wm. Smeed as H., and Comp. Brazier as J., Comp. R. E. Barnes as E., and Comp. A. Wootton as D.C.

A goodly array of visiting companions were present on the occasion.

After the chapter had been opened, the introductory portion of the ceremony performed, Ex. Comp. James Terry delivered an oration, and the ceremony of consecration was then proceeded with, Comps. Seymour Smith and F. H. Cozens performing the musical portion. When the chapter had been duly constituted, Comp. J. R. Gallant was installed M.E.Z.; W. Crawford, H.; J. Wright J.; and T. J. Cusworth, Scribe, E. The whole of the ceremony was most fluently and impressively performed.

At the conclusion of the ceremonies the M.E.Z. proposed that Comps. Jas. Terry, Wm. Smeed, and Brazier be elected hon. members of the chapter. The motion being duly seconded, the M.E.Z. said the chapter was greatly indebted to those companions for having so kindly given their time and evinced their great ability in consecrating the chapter; it was a very small return to elect them honorary members of the chapter and he felt assured the companions wished them every happiness, and hoped as often as they could use their privileges and visit the chapter they would receive a hearty welcome. A vote of thanks was passed to Ex. Comp. James Terry for performing the ceremony of consecration with such distinguished ability. Ex. Comp. Terry, in acknowledging the compliment, said it was a labour of love to him to perform such a work, and he was very much pleased that his efforts had given satisfaction to the companions. Comps. Smeed and Brazier also acknowledged the vote. The M.E.Z. then proposed the names of several brethren as exalters at the next convocation of the chapter. The banquet was then partaken of, after which the M.E.Z. proposed the customary R.A. toasts, viz., "The Queen and the Grand Z., H.R.H. the Prince of Wales." He then proposed "The Health of the Pro Grand Z., the Earl of Carnarvon; Lord Skelmersdale, H.; and Lord de Tabley, J., and the rest of the Grand Officers," which were received with great eclat. Ex. Comp. Terry proposed "The Health of the M.E.Z." (Ex. Comp. J. R. Gallant), and observed that he had run his course thus far very rapidly, and they found him now at the head of a new chapter, which he hoped was destined to play an important part in the Masonic body of the northern part of the metropolis; he had been personally acquainted with the M.E.Z. for some considerable time, and he had given ample proof of his zeal for the Order by constituting himself a Life Governor to the Masonic Charities, and felt assured he would use his utmost endeavours not only to further the interests of the chapter, but for the welfare of the Craft in general.

The M.E.Z. in reply said, for the confidence the companions had shown him he hoped he should prove himself grateful. He trusted he should not abuse that confidence, and that the chapter would even exceed the anticipations which he had entertained of it. They had an excellent example set them by the lodge to which the chapter was attached, and begged to assure the companions that the honour conferred on him would be a stimulus to future exertions.

Several other toasts having been given and responded to, the Jauitor's toast brought to a close the proceedings of an evening agreeably spent.

CONSECRATION OF THE HOLMESDALE CHAPTER, No. 874.

On Monday, the 1st inst., a new Royal Arch Chapter, attached to the Holmesdale Lodge, No. 874, was solemnly dedicated and consecrated at the Sussex Hotel, Tunbridge Wells, by Comp. the Rev. Thomas Robinson, P.Z., Prov. G.J. Kent, P. Prov. G.H. Jamaica; assisted by Comps. J. S. Eastes, P.Z., Prov. G.H. Kent; the Rev. W. A. Hill, and H. Ward, P.Z., Prov. G.H. Wilts, Director of Ceremonies.

After the Chapter had been formally opened, an oration on the principles of the Order was delivered by Comp. W. A. Hill.

A convocation of Installed Principals was then formed, when Comp. the Rev. Thomas Robinson severally installed Comps. B. S. Willson, W. Delves, and W. Stephens, P.Z., into the Third Chair. Comp. W. Stephens, then installed Comps. B. S. Willmott, and W. Delves separately into the Second Chair, after which Comp. B. S. Willmott was installed into the First Principal's Chair, according to ancient and solemn custom.

Upon the admission of the companions the three Principals were duly proclaimed and saluted, and the following brethren were then elected and invested:—Comps. R. W. Delves, Scribe E.; W. Bacon, Scribe N.; H. D. M. Williams, Prin. Soj.; J. Bass, First Asst. Soj.; C. Graham, Second Asst. Soj.; T. H. Spencer, Janitor.

The consecrating officers, as well as Comp. Viscount Holmesdale, Grand Superintendent of Kent, were elected honorary members, and the convocation was closed.

An excellent banquet followed, at which Comp. Willmott presided, and at which the usual loyal and Royal Arch toasts were proposed and duly responded to.

CONSECRATION OF THE ISLINGTON CHAPTER, No. 1471.

The consecration of this new chapter which is attached to the Islington Lodge, No. 1471, meeting at the Cock Tavern, Highbury, took place on Monday last, the 8th inst. The consecrating and installing officer was Comp. J. Terry, P.Z., P.M., &c., G.D.C. Herts. After the ceremony of consecrating had been proceeded with, Comp. Terry installed Comp. E. Bowyer as M.E.Z., who thereupon invested Comp. Mather as H., and T. A. Lewis, J. The banquet followed and a very pleasant evening was spent by the companions present.

SKETCHES OF MASONIC CHARACTER No. VIII.

BRO. SMYTHE AT PARIS.

Bro. Smythe is the well-known W.M. of the Affability Lodge, always one of the pleasantest of assemblies of our brotherhood. His tact and taste are well-known; he does things always so remarkably well, that the gatherings of the "Affability" have been declared to be "feasts of reason and flow of soul," and when you add to this that no more hospitable reception and no more hearty welcome are to be found in any lodge within the Bills of Mortality, or perhaps, more properly, the "area of the Metropolitan Police," you place the excellence of Bro. Smythe's lodge and the good qualities of Bro. Smythe himself on a truly Masonic pedestal beyond the possibility of doubt or dispute.

Bro. Smythe, who has been spending the long vacation in Switzerland, has returned home, via Paris, and as Bro. Smythe, (not Smith), is a bachelor, he left some agreeable artist friends at Lucerne, and went to Paris, via Pontarlier, from Berne, on his homeward journey. So as he is not strong in French, though very good at English, and despite his eloquent speeches at the "Affability," like a great many more of the John Bull genus, he gets very soon fast when speaking French. Despite his "Conversation Book," he soon becomes, "hors de combat," when he has to "trip it" in Parisian accents, and curiously enough he says he never can talk to a French lady without making a dreadful blunder, though, as he observes, they are too polite to laugh at a fellow.

"I was crossing," he says "from the place Vendome," to get into the Rue Rivoli, when as I went across, it was raining, and a lady stepped out of a shop without an umbrella. As a Freemason and a man of the world, accustomed to good society, I thought it only my duty to be civil, and so I said, "Madame, (it is always safe to say Madame in France), Voulez vous preter mon parapluie?" I thought I saw a smile pass over her face, as she replied with the greatest grace in the world, "Oh, Merci, monsieur, mille remerciements," and having seen her into her brougham, and received a most charming bow, I fancy I struck some French people who were looking on, both with the style of my dress, and the way I took off and put on my hat. "It is always advisable" adds Smythe, "especially when you are abroad, to be civil to women, and they tell you all sorts of stories, at Paris, what civility has done for men. I don't think I should do it in Regent-street, for an English woman, because it is not our habit. We leave them to themselves; but abroad, one must always remember the axiom 'you are to do as Rome, as Rome does.' I think that's it, or something like it."

Smythe, it appeared, walked in one evening to "Brent's," also called "Vachette," to order his dinner, and as Bro. Wilkinson, of our lodge, saw the little scene, and heard the little colloquy which followed, I think it well to give them in his own graphic words, for he was an amused spectator, being unknown to Bro. Smythe, and could not help maliciously laughing at the embarrassment of our good friend. Smythe lounged in, and said in a stately way to Jean, "Je vous diner." Jean, always civil to everybody, and always in a great hurry, only replied "Bientôt, Monsieur," but another waiter coming up, Smythe repeated his wish "Je vous diner." So the civil waiter brought him the carte, and after some difficulty Smythe managed to order, Soupe Bisque, Turbot à la Hollandaise, Cotelettes à la Soufflée, Roast Bif Anglaise, Omelette à l'Abriote, Meringues Glacées and some Gruyère Cheese. He ordered a bottle of Champagne and did very well, though the waiter could not understand for some little time what he meant by "Frappé Mote" though at last he realized that it was "Moët Frappé." Bro. Wilkinson assures us that Bro. Smythe, with the best intentions in the world, though the worst French, continued to weary out at last the most complaisant of French waiters, until he said in despair, "parley Anglais, sil vous plait, Monsieur. I understands you better!"

However, Smythe much enjoyed his dinner, but two little episodes deserves recording. He said to the waiter, after Cheese, &c. "Je vous ice." The waiter replied, "Glacé, Monsieur," "No," said Smythe, loftily, "I said ice, not a glass." At length, turning to his "Conversation Book," he found that "Glacé" was "ice." So he said condescendingly, "Ah, I see! You have strange words in France Glass means ice. Oui, du glass."

Smythe, in a letter to a friend, said he liked Paris very much indeed, small blame to him, but that he thought the French used such strange expressions for English words. Had he remembered Theodore Hook's famous lines, he might have quoted them with great effect,

"And chaises they call chairs,
And letters they call billies;
They call their mothers mares,
And all their daughters fillics."

But not remembering them he merely remarked that he could not understand why a knife was called "couteau," or a fork "fourchette," or a spoon "cuiller," (a very hard word), or gloves "gauts," a beer "Bock," or a carriage a "fiacre," and above all a policeman, a "commissaire."

After coffee, the very good-humoured "Napoleon," as he used to be termed, offered him as a chaise, "Fin Champagne." "No," said Smythe almost indignantly, "not at this time of day—a ce point du jour, si je le connais; pas pour Joseph. Je bois seulement Cognac!"

Napoleon, with infinite grace, bowed and smiled, and returned with the "petit verre." Smythe for a long time could not get over "that great mistake of a French waiter at Paris."

Now, why have I told this story, and what do I want to impress upon all our readers—the young ones especially? Only this, that of all the helpless beings abroad, he is the most helpless who does not understand the vernacular of the country in which he is travelling.

I know, and Mrs. Balasso remarks, that while the young men can smoke and nip, and spit and chew,—yes, chew to perfection, they will not take the trouble of studying foreign languages. Some say "English is enough for them;" others they don't care for a "foreign lingo;" others remark that "you can get on with English anywhere now;" and some even declare that it is a "baw." But we would recommend all to apply themselves to foreign languages, as rendering them more of a man, and certainly more of a Mason, inasmuch as no greater amusement, and no better employment can be found by any, than the study of French and German, Italian and Spanish.

A very distinguished diplomatist once said, and we heartily agree with him, "The more languages a man has mastered, the more truly he becomes a useful citizen of the world," and we can only urge, especially on young Freemasons, the advantage and utility of studying foreign languages and mastering them sufficiently for the comfort, of travelling and the interchange of mutual kindness sympathy, and good-will.

THE FOUR MASONIC PUBLICATIONS.

It is doubtless desirable that every Mason should have a knowledge of the proceedings at the Quarterly Communications of Grand Lodge, and it is especially the duty of the Worshipful Master to be well posted up in such matters, and as there is no better means of obtaining such information than the columns of the Freemason, which gives verbatim reports of the Grand Lodge proceedings, and a full account of all the meetings of the Board of Benevolence, and the various Committees of our Great Masonic Charities, the Publisher feels justified in making this recommendation, with the full assurance that such an investment of a small portion of the lodge funds will be productive of beneficial results.

TO THE ELECTORS OF THE WARD OF FARRINGDON WITHOUT.

Gentlemen,—

A vacancy having occurred in the representation of this Ward, through the death of Mr. Howell, I beg to offer myself as a Candidate.

Having had the honour of asking for your esteemed support when comparatively a stranger, and having then received nearly two hundred votes, emboldens me again to solicit your suffrages.

Many years' experience in parochial administration, the departments of which are very similar to those of the Corporation, has, I trust, qualified me for so high and important a position.

In the event of being honoured with your confidence to represent you in the Common Council, I shall devote my best abilities to the discharge of the duties of the office.

Your Obedient Servant,

WILLIAM MALTHOUSE,

West Smithfield Lodge, No. 1623.

Liveryman of the Butchers' Company.

Central Meat Market, Smithfield.

A DISTRESSED MASON requiring help respectfully solicits his Brothers to patronize him by giving him Orders for Meat. He has had 40 years' experience of the markets, and will guarantee first-class quality, full weight, and prompt returns. Orders by Post will be attended to. 1d. per lb. cheaper in every article than any shop in London, and the best that money can buy. Sent by Parcels Delivery Company.—Address A. ANDRADE, 17, Longley Street, Blue Anchor Road, Bermondsey.

A MASON who has been greatly reduced by misfortune will be glad if any Brethren would Buy Shares of him (in a sound and very lucrative Company), at par, to save their being sold at a sacrifice to pay a mortgage. Hundreds would be saved if the shares were bought at par, as the Company having opened fresh capital there is no quotation for the Shares, and if a sale is forced the loss on them would be ruinous.—Address W. HAMILTON, Post-office, Norfolk-terrace, Notting-Hill, W.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE.
THE ORIGINAL AND ONLY GENUINE.

CHLORODYNE is admitted by the Profession to be the most wonderful and valuable remedy ever discovered. CHLORODYNE is the best remedy known for Coughs, Consumption, Bronchitis, Asthma. CHLORODYNE effectually checks and arrests those too often fatal diseases—Diphtheria, Fever, Croup, Ague. CHLORODYNE acts like a charm in Diarrhoea, and is the only specific in Cholera and Dysentery. CHLORODYNE effectually cuts short all attacks of Epilepsy, Hysteria, Palpitation, and Spasms. CHLORODYNE is the only palliative in Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Gout, Cancer, Toothache, Meningitis, &c.

Extract from "INDIAN ECONOMIST."

"We direct the attention of the medical men to a fact observed some years since by ourselves, and corroborated by our subsequent experience, that Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne is in many cases of Low Fever immensely superior to Quinine in curative power. We cannot persuade ourselves that the true value of Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne is yet properly appraised in India."

It may be given with absolute safety even to a child three days old. Were medical men but to make a fair and exhaustive trial of it we are persuaded that it would work a revolution in the treatment of two-thirds of the diseases to which children are subject. Its curative power is simply amazing."

"Earl Russell communicated to the College of Physicians that he had received a despatch from her Majesty's Consul at Manila the effect that Cholera had been raging fearfully, and that the ONLY remedy of any service was CHLORODYNE."—See Lancet Dec. 1, 1864."

From W. VESALIUS PETTIGREW, M.D., Hon. F.R.C.S., England, Formerly Lecturer on Anatomy and Physiology at St. George's School of Medicine.

"I have no hesitation in stating, after a fair trial of Chlorodyne, that I have never met with any medicine so efficacious as an Anti Spasmodic and Sedative. I have tried it in Consumption, Asthma, Diarrhoea, and other diseases, and am most perfectly satisfied with the results."

From Dr. THOMAS SANDIFORD, Passage West, Cork.

"I will thank you to send me a further supply of Chlorodyne. It was the most efficacious remedy I ever used, affording relief in violent attacks of Spasms within a minute after being taken. One patient in particular, who has suffered for years with periodical attacks of Spasms of a most painful nature, and unable to obtain relief from other remedies, such as opium, &c., finds nothing so prompt and efficacious as Chlorodyne."

From JNO. E. GOULSTONE, M.D., late Principal Surgeon to the Steamship Great Eastern.
"I can confidently state that Chlorodyne is an admirable Sedative and Anti-Spasmodic, having used it in Neuralgia, Hyastrial Asthma, and Consumption, with remarkably favourable results. It relieved a fit of Asthma in four minutes, where the patient had suffered eleven years in a most distressing manner, no previous remedy having had so immediate and beneficial an effect."

From Dr. B. J. BOUTON and Co., Newcastle.

"We have made pretty extensive use of Chlorodyne in our practice lately, and look upon it as an excellent Sedative and Anti-Spasmodic. It seems to allay pain and irritation in whatever organ, and from whatever cause. It induces a feeling of comfort and quietude not obtainable by any other remedy, and it seems to possess this great advantage over all other sedatives, that it leaves no unpleasant after-effects."

J. C. BAKER, Esq., M.D., Bideford.

"It is, without doubt, the most valuable and certain Anodyne we have."

CAUTION.—BEWARE OF PIRACY AND IMITATIONS.

CAUTION.—Vice-Chancellor Sir W. PAOR WOOD stated that Dr. J. COLLIS BROWNE was undoubtedly the Inventor of CHLORODYNE; that the story of the Defendant, Freeman, was deliberately untrue, which, he regretted to say, had been sworn to.—See "Times," 13th July, 1864.

Sold in Bottles at 1s. 1d., 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d. each. None is genuine without the words "Dr. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE" on the Government Stamp. Overwhelming Medical Testimony accompanies each Bottle.

From our own Correspondent with the Russian Army:

"Okoun, July 25th, 1877.

"The want of sanitary arrangements in the Russian Camp was dreadful, and had we remained there a few weeks longer, dysentery and typhoid fever would have played more havoc in our ranks than the bombs of the Turks. I myself acquired an unenviable reputation as a doctor owing to my being provided with a small bottle of CHLORODYNE, with which I EFFECTED MIRACULOUS CURES."

"Le Caillon, pres Meung sur Loire, France, June 18th, 1875.

"I hereby attest that the Chlorodyne manufactured by RICHARD FREEMAN, Pharmacist, of London, is the best remedy against CHOLERA and DYSENTERY, and further affirm, as Director of the Anglo-American Ambulances and of French prisoners during the War of 1870 to 1871, that a large number of those under my care were attacked with Dysentery, and that by means of his Chlorodyne they were in a few days perfectly cured.

ST. LUKE'S LODGE (No. 144).—The installation meeting of this lodge took place on Monday, the 1st inst. There was a goodly attendance of members of the lodge, and the following were the visitors: Bros. F. White, 55; Jubal Webb, 55; Yacoub-als Shellabi, Chief of Smaratus; Cates, C. B. Kirke, Crutenden, 503; Cook, 959; Walker, 1044; Hickman, 228; Harvey, 1344; Michelburg, 1425; Kingham, 1517; Grammont, 1559; Pearson, 1567; Hodges, 1706. The installation was very impressively performed by Bro. W.M. Allen. After the Installation about 20 of the brethren of St. Luke's entertained the above visitors at a banquet.

LODGE OF FRIENDSHIP (No. 206).—The lodge held its first meeting for the winter season on Thursday, 11th inst., at the Ship and Turtle, Leadenhall-st. Present: Bros. Thomas Taylor, W.M.; James Stephens, S.W.; Squirel, J.W.; Wm. Ramsey, Treas.; John Ramsey, Sec. the assistant officers and 25 others, 10 of whom were Past Masters. There was a goodly show of work on the summons which, in consequence of the unavoidable absence of Bro. Lessware, and other candidates was necessarily postponed. After the disposal of some Masonic business, amongst which was the recommendation of the petition of a distressed Bro. to the Board of Benevolence, the W.M., Bro. Thos. Taylor, rose to beg the members of the lodge to accept what he termed a trifling present as a memo of his year of office, which proved to be a "Rough and Perfect Ashlar," complete. The former, rough and unhewn, as taken from the quarry, and the perfect, a true die or square, made of the finest marble, without flaw or blemish, and with the handiwork of the real operative mason, fully displayed in its beautiful polish and finish. The shears, tackle, winch-gear, &c., showed the masterly skill of the first artists in metals, the whole forming in a marked degree a delightful combination of Free and Accepted and Operative Masonry, and amid the admiration of the brethren, Bro. Grammont proposed, and Bro. W. Ramsey seconded, that the thanks of the lodge are due, and are hereby given to Bro. Thomas Taylor, W.M., for his valuable and useful present, shewing as it does the great interest now and always evinced by him for the welfare of the Craft, and his mother lodge in particular, as well as his fraternal regard for all its members, and that the same be recorded on the minutes, which was carried by acclamation. The lodge was then closed, and the highly pleased brethren adjourned to the banquet.

GRESHAM LODGE (No. 869).—Bro. Allan C. Wylie, of 84, Cannon-street, E.C., Past Master of the above lodge, was entertained on Saturday, the 13th inst., at a banquet at the Midland Grand Hotel, St. Pancras, on the occasion of his return home after a protracted journey through America, Japan, China and India, a journey necessitated by the death of a near relative, to settle his business affairs. Although the welcome home was in the first place determined upon by his Brother Past Masters, yet it was decided to invite some of his professional friends and gentlemen, with whom he was connected. To this invitation some twenty-five responded, and many more sent very kind letters of congratulation, and expressed their regret that other engagements prevented them being with the company. Amongst those present were: Collin Rae Brown, Esq., a Glasgow journalist, who was the first to inaugurate the cheap daily papers, one of which he published for some years before the duty was taken off at a considerable loss to himself, but with incalculable benefit to his country. There were also Dr. Charles Mackay, LL.D., author of "Cheer Boys Cheer," and many other popular songs. Colonel Brasyer, C.B., Bros. Wm. Layton, Esq., Rector of Kelso High School; Captain Sheppard, Baron Griffiths, Dr. Poulie, M.D., Dr. Bruce, P.M.; and Dr. Smyth, C. J. Anderson, Esq., J. Forsyth, P.M.; J. H. Broom, Esq., F. D. R. Copestick, P.M.; Eugene Renard, Esq., Thomas Perry, Esq., Chief Engineer and Manager of the Government Rifle Factory at Enfield, R. C. Robinson, Esq., W. E. Gompertz, P.M.; David Jarvis, Esq., J. R. Dickie, Esq., &c., &c. After a well served banquet had been enjoyed, and the cloth removed, the usual toasts were given and duly honoured, the President C. R. Brown, Esq., then gave the toast of the evening, "A. C. Wylie," and in a very humorous and spirited speech congratulated him upon his safe return to his home and friends. Bro. Wylie in his reply gave a complete account of his journey, from the time he left Southampton until his arrival home, mentioning the different customs and manners he had noticed in the various commercial centres he had visited, and giving a most encouraging report of the great progress being made both in engineering and paper making, as well as in other branches of manufacture. His remarks, which were interspersed with some amusing anecdotes, of the varied traits of character he had observed in the Celestial City, were listened to with much interest by his friends, other complimentary toasts followed, some capital songs were sung, and a most agreeable evening was passed, all expressing their pleasure at having their kind and genial friend amongst them again, and wishing he may be long spared to his wife and family.

ECLECTIC LODGE (No. 1201).—This lodge met on Friday week at Freemasons' Hall, W. Bro. Edward James Harty, W.M., presiding. Amongst the other brethren present were Bros. Taylor, S.W.; Stul, J.W.; Manders, P.M.; Treas.; W. H. Barber, Sec.; W. Lee, S.D.; Moss, I.G.; Higgs, Org.; Pichen, D.C.; Dr. Watts, Stodd.; J. H. Watts, P.M.; Bros. Botibol, Baven, Rash, Manders, Richardson, Newton, Laws, and Præd; and visitors, Bros. T. E. Talbert Nicholls, P.M. 25; T. W. Sims, 1351; H. M. Mitchell, 1360; E. Payne, 1261; J. Mann, P.G.S.D. Middx.; J. E. Wade, 1475; J. Coutts, P.G.P.; Ireton, S.W. 1348; Smith, P.M. 1260; Robinson, 201; Henton, P.M. 660 (America); J. Morey, P.M. 660 (America); Rab-ck, 109; Griggs, P.M. 228; Mitchell, Royal Arthur; and Kips. The work performed was initiating Messrs. James Stewart, James Amsden, Albert Amsden, and George Edward Travers; passing Bros. Manchester, Dixon, and Bavers; and raising Bro. Hamp. All these ceremonies were performed by the W.M. in faultless style, and the other officers including Bro. Higgs, Organist, were equally efficient in their duties. At the close of these proceedings five guineas were voted to a brother in distress; and the W.M. having expressed his wish that a Royal Arch Chapter should be attached to the lodge, the R.A. Masons who were present signed the petition for a charter. The lodge was then closed and the brethren adjourned to the Holborn Restaurant, where banquet was provided by Bro. Hamp. When this had been disposed of the toasts were proposed, and Bro. John Coutts, P.G.P., replied briefly and effectively for "The Grand Officers." Bro. J. H. Watts, P.M., proposed "The W.M." and said he was sure that all the brethren would agree with him that whatever lodges they had visited they had never seen the ceremonies more ably performed than they had been by the W.M. that evening, and that was not all, for he had taken care that after labour they should have a very sumptuous repast, and they all regretted that he had not a longer period than three months to remain in office. The W.M. responded. He had feared through ill health he would not be able to be among the brethren that evening. However, after consulting Dr. Lloyd, he found himself able to come, and he was glad he had given satisfaction to the brethren. He was one of those who believed that if a man undertook a duty he should perform it thoroughly. He had felt the importance of the position of W.M. long before he went into the chair, and he took the opportunity of going to Lodges of Instruction and making himself well acquainted with the duties of W.M. He considered it a great mistake to place brethren in office by seniority or relationship. The motto in Masonry was "merit and ability," and the due performance of the duties of W.M., who had to initiate brethren and impress them with that universal religion which was displayed by Masonry. A brother who did not appreciate the office by making himself proficient should not have it. He had to mention another matter. He had the honour of wearing Her Majesty's uniform, and his regiment was dining that evening in the same establishment where the brethren were. His colleagues in the regiment were much disappointed that he was not among them, and so, during the dinner he went in and had a glass of wine with them. Bro. Harty next proposed "The Initiates." These brethren had now entered the portals of the great Temple of Masonry and he was sure that from what they had seen that evening they were solemnly impressed with the importance and solemnity of that religion in which they had taken an obligation. He might inform them that this religion was the most universal religion in the world, because it embraced the highest truths that were preached in the Gospel, viz, duty to God and duty to our neighbours. There was nothing in the religion of Masonry incompatible with the highest duties that man owed to the Deity and to their social position in life. Quite the contrary. If a man was a good Mason he was a good citizen in every possible sense of the word; and the more a man practised the truths, precepts and tenets that were laid down in Masonry the better man he would be. Masonry was an allegorical religion. Everything done in it was for a purpose. The initiates were on his right now; but they would find as they went further on they would travel in another direction till, as he hoped, they arrived at the distinguished position he at present occupied. All the initiates responded. The W.M. then proposed "The Visitors," and congratulated the lodge now on entertaining visitors at the banquet table. All the visitors replied. Bro. Babcock, Rochester, U.S.A., said that he and Bro. Morley had lately arrived on Great Britain's shores, and the reception they had met with that evening was quite in keeping with the hospitality they had received all the way through their trip. They had enjoyed it immensely and were delighted with their reception by the Craft. It was not unexpected, for we were all brethren when we met, whether in America or Great Britain. As they had had extended to them the hand of hospitality that evening, if they had an opportunity of reciprocating it they would do so with interest. Bro. John Morey, proprietor Daily Union and Advertiser, Rochester, New York, said he could heartily endorse the observations of Bro. Babcock. He did not think it was ever the fortune of two gentlemen coming so great a distance to receive a kinder reception or more hearty welcome than they had since they arrived on the shores of the fatherland. They came here in a certain sense as children of this great and glorious commonwealth, believing that the same blood that flowed in the English brethren's veins ran in theirs. They came here believing that the English brethren lived under the rule of a glorious Queen, one unequalled, he believed, on the face of the earth, and he might say as an American that that idea ran through and permeated the blood of every true, honest American. He had not risen to make a speech, but he might be allowed to say that Masonry was one of the best institutions on earth. The W.M., who performed his duties as Bro. Harty had, was an honour to the Craft. Masonry, to a very large extent, was good as it was worked well. Its charities were good; and it was based upon faith and charity. It had been well said that faith was everything, and it certainly went a great way. But charity extended beyond the realms of eternity. Charity was everything. We must extend in the home of the individuals to the orphan, the fatherly hand. This was done on the other side of the Atlantic, and the American Masons believed that the English Masons did it too. It was universal; it extended all over the world, the hand of the honest and true Mason was extended to the widow and to the orphan. He would give a little experience of his own, though it might not be pertinent to this meeting. When he and Bro. Babcock left America, one gentleman, who was a perfect stranger to them, placed in their charge his young and beautiful daughter, who was going to Frankfort-on-the-Maine to be educated. As he had said they were perfect strangers to him, but he knew them to be Masons. He placed that child in their hands, and they saw her safe on the English shores, and they left her at the depot safely ticketed for Frankfort-on-the-Maine as they would their own daughter (cheers). Now that was the feeling that should actuate every Mason. Bro. Morley concluded by thanking the W.M. and brethren for their great hospitality. Bro. Watts responded for "The P.M.'s," and Bro. Manders for "The Officers," shortly after which the brethren separated. Some excellent singing was given during the evening by Bros. Watts and Kips. Bro. Higgs presided at the pianoforte.

MACDONALD LODGE (No. 1216).—A regular meeting of this lodge was held at the Head Quarters of the First Surrey Rifles, at Camberwell, on Thursday the 11th inst., and was well attended. The W.M., Bro. Hervey Hammond, presided, and amongst others present were, Bros. T. W. Canell, S.W.; C. Fountain, J.W.; Past Masters, M. S. Larham, James Stevens, S. H. Wagstaff, G. H. Newham Bridges, and W. J. Messenger, Sec.; Harser, Nevill, Woolwich, Golding, Hildreth, Cranch, Edmonstone, Hale, Yonge, Hutchins, Carpenter, Henton, J. J. Curtis, Foster, Scholey, Yongman, Eldridge, H. Bridges, Rugg, &c., and visitor Bro. T. Spiller, of the Domestic Lodge, 177. Business was not heavy, consisting only of the raising of Bro. Scholey to the Third Degree, but several matters relating to notices of motions were dismissed. Amongst these were a proposal to present the late Secretary, Bro. J. J. Curtis, with a testimonial of thanks for past earnest services, and which met with unanimous approval; a proposal to grant Bro. Grant (Tyler), a retiring pension during life, and in recognition of his faithful discharge of his duty during ten years; and a proposition by Bro. Edmiston for a vote in aid of the Indian Famine Fund. In reference to this latter proposal considerable difficulty arose, for whilst the members of the lodge were in full accord, and desirous of voting twenty guineas towards that laudable object, it was shown that the vote could not be legally made, and the money paid over until after the expiration of four months, the ensuing meetings being appointed for December and February, and the usual routine of notice of motion, the vote, and confirmation being required. Much regret was expressed that such delay in dealing with the lodge funds, for the purpose named, should exist, but the position was accepted, and recourse was then had to the Charity Fund of the lodge, in respect of which no such law controlled the wishes of the brethren. It was, therefore, unanimously voted that the sum of ten guineas should be at once paid to the Famine Fund from that source, and that notice of motion should be given for a vote of the lodge for a further sum of ten guineas, should the necessities of the lamentable case further require aid. After the closing of the lodge the brethren adjourned to the canteen, where a plain, but excellent repast, was provided, and a pleasant hour or two spent before separation.

THE GREAT CITY LODGE (No. 1426).—On Saturday evening the installation meeting of this lodge was held at the Cannon Street Hotel, and Bro. John Seex, W.M., installed Bro. Richard Stanway as W.M. of the lodge for the ensuing twelve months. The brethren appointed to office were Bros. John Seex, I.P.M.; Freeman, S.W.; Blackie, J.W.; N. B. Headon, P.M., Treasurer; Edward Moody, P.M., Secretary; Catchpool, S.D.; Hamer, J.D.; Taylor, I.G.; W. H. Kibble, D.C.; Jenkins, Organist; W. H. Hook, Steward; R. Hooker, Steward; the Rev. R. J. Simpson, P.G.D. Chaplain; and W. Steedman, T. A handsome P.M. jewel was presented to Bro. John Seex, after which the lodge was closed; and the brethren to the number of about seventy, adjourned to a most liberal banquet. The visitors present were Bros. C. W. Noehmer, P.M. 186; J. C. Mason, W.M. 1540; W. H. Green, 403; J. R. Williams, 766; J. Painter, P.M. 749; W. L. Partridge, 1445; E. Crolich, P.M. 857; E. Harfield, P.M. 185; W. Medwin, 192; W. Worrell, P.M. 766; J. Hooper, 1515; A. Stone, 889; O. F. Heame, 977; C. J. Grose, P.M. 73; W. Mann, P.M. 186; F. Page, 1414; H. V. Clements, 754; T. W. C. Bush, 185; R. H. Williams, P.M. 1314; G. W. Saul, 1201; O. A. W. Carter, 1216; G. W. Evans, 1632; G. Cordwell, P.M. 3; R. N. Field, P.M. 902; J. Clarkson, P.M. 1457; J. F. Peller, 1329; T. Eastgald, 1563; W. Reid, 55; A. Farey, 1287; J. Walker, W.M. 27; C. T. Nunn, W.M. 889; J. H. Outhwaite, 1187; J. Crossland, 1687; T. P. Staley, 1216; E. W. Candy, 890; B. C. Bathman, 156; J. B. Glenn, 1491; J. Baron, 1287; C. J. Perceval, 1607; H. Massey, P.M. 619; (Freemason) and I. Poore, P.M. 720. The brethren after the banquet had been disposed of, collected ten guineas for the Freemason Indian Famine Fund. The W.M. proposed the usual toasts. In giving "The Prince of Wales," he said the Freemasons of England were particularly fortunate in possessing the Prince of Wales for G.M., who had all those qualifications of birth, education, and position which were desirable in the head of a great body. In giving "The Earl of Carnarvon," &c., he remarked that all the brethren who were privileged to attend Grand Lodge were aware of the quiet, dignified manner in which the Pro Grand Master occupied the chair. He had proved the wisdom of the Prince of Wales in selecting him for that office. The W.M. introduced the subject of the Indian Famine to the brethren's notice, and it was after his appeal that the collection above named was made. Bro. Headon also pleaded the cause of suffering humanity, and urged that the present was a very distressing case. Bro. Seex having proposed "The Health of the W.M." Bro. Stanway replied, and said that this was the most difficult part of his duty. It was a very easy matter to say "I return to you my very sincere thanks for what you have been pleased to do," but it would be a difficult matter for him to express himself in words sufficiently strong to assure the brethren of what his real feelings were. The position in which he was placed as Master of The Great City Lodge was one that he had worked up to from the other offices of the Lodge to which previous W.M.'s had been kind enough to promote him. He had worked up with all the zeal and earnestness of which he was capable, and as far as his health, strength and ability were concerned, the same amount of zeal, earnestness and assiduity would be brought to bear upon the performance of the duties of the chair which he had now the honour to occupy. The I.P.M. had been kind enough to allude to the dignity and character of this lodge, which it had maintained through the exertions of the previous Masters. It certainly had a great character for work and hospitality, a character which he thought was not second to any lodge in Freemasonry. Now, this character did not depend alone on the Master for the time being. With 120 members, of what avail would the exertions of the Master be if they set up their voices against his? If the brethren were desirous for the welfare of the Great City Lodge, they must support the Master, not only in the lodge ceremonies, which embraced some of the finest sentences in our language, but his endeavours to make the banquet agreeable. The business of that evening had been conducted admirably, (he did not mean as far as he himself was concerned), but by other members of the lodge; and it had been a source of great delight to him to perceive the great order which had prevailed. He was very much pleased to see it, and he would say with the greatest confidence that the brethren that evening had thoroughly maintained the character of the lodge they took so deep an interest in. The W.M. then proposed "The Visitors," 46 of whom were present. He said that if there had been 146, the brethren would have given them the same hearty welcome. The Great City Lodge was not noted for doing much in banquets, but when it did give a banquet it gave a banquet; and when it saved its money, it saved its money. It did, in fact, nothing by halves. Whenever they got visitors in their lodge they gave them all they had. In lodge they gave them as good a ceremony as they could witness; and at banquet they provided them with the best—whatever they could. When they had not the money they did not involve themselves. The toast of "The Visitors" was one which he felt himself incapable of dealing with thoroughly; therefore he should be very brief, and simply ask the brethren to drink the toast with the greatest cordiality. Bro. W. Mann, P.M. 186, responded, and observed that though many out of the numerous visitors present could return thanks for this toast much more eloquently than he could, there was no one who could speak to it with greater sincerity than he when acknowledging the splendid hospitality with which the visitors had been entertained. He might inform the brethren that he was present at the consecration of the lodge, and his name appeared on the petition for the warrant. He therefore could say with truth that ever since the consecration, five or six years ago, the visitors to The Great City Lodge had been treated magnificently. The work in the lodge had been magnificent; all the officers were up to their work, and everything had been done to support the lustre of The Great City Lodge. The Great City Lodge had a great name. It had made wonderful progress, and it was known all over the country. He was proud to be among them once more, and to return thanks for "The Visitors." He trusted the lodge would go on and prosper as it had hitherto. This evening's proceedings added another feather to its cap, the brethren having contributed another mite towards the great fund for the relief of distress in India. The Craft had come out very well in this matter. Grand Lodge had contributed a large sum; and private lodges had followed the example. The Great City Lodge would now figure in the list, and he had no doubt it would be an incentive to other lodges to contribute something as well. The W.M. next proposed "The Installing Master, Bro. Seex," and paid a high and well deserved compliment to that brother for the excellence of all his work. His occupation of the chair during the year had well supported the character of the lodge. The way in which a W.M. presided was the keynote to the brethren. It was a position which required great dignity, and the way in which it was fulfilled made an impression on the brethren for good or ill. Bro. Seex's conduct in the chair would long be remembered by the brethren with admiration, and the way in which he had performed the installation was a fitting conclusion to his successful year of office. The W.M. then presented Bro. Seex with a handsome P.M.'s jewel. Bro. Seex in reply, after thanking the W.M. for his encomiums and the brethren for the jewel, said it was one thing to be a W.M. and another thing to satisfy every member of the lodge. There were certain duties which were imperative to a W.M., and if for the sake of conciliating any one member of a lodge a W.M. diverted from the certain, direct straight line of duty he would be sure to come to grief. With a full knowledge of this he entered upon the duties of the chair, and fully made up his mind that he would carry out his duties as best he could to the honour of Masonry and The Great City Lodge. After the expiration of his year of office such an enthusiastic reception he had received justified him in the belief that the brethren approved of what he had done. But he must thank the officers of the lodge who had so nobly supported him. A W.M. however efficient and cognisant of his duties was helpless without good officers; but he had been ably assisted, and he now tendered his best thanks to the officers for their able performance of their duties during his year of office. Bro. James Stevens made a short reply for the "P.M.'s," and expressed his great satisfaction at the bright position taken by The Great City Lodge, of which he was the first W.M. Bro. Headon replied for "The Treasurer," and Bro. E. Moody for "The Secretary," and after "The Masonic Charities," "The Officers," and "Tyler," had been given a special vote of thanks was accorded to Bro. Bertram, under whose directions Bros. Kenningham, Thornton, Thurley, Beale, and H. Frost, and Messrs. W. Frost and Thomas Harper had performed a splendid selection of music.

DUKE OF CONNAUGHT LODGE.—(No 1524).—A lodge of emergency was held on Thursday, the 11th inst., at the Havelock Hotel, Albion-road, Dalston. Present: Bros. J. B. Shackleton, W.M.; W. H. Lee, P.M., Secretary; T. C. Chapman, P.M., Treasurer; Brand, J.D.; Meyer, I.G.; Brasted, and Dignam, Stewards; Young, Organist; also Bros. Polak, Stevenson, A. Ferrar, Brame, C. Olley, A. Olley, Hollingsworth, Norman, Beensen, Moon, Watkins, G. Ferrar, Davies, E. Dietrich, and O. Dietrich. Bro. H. G. Buss, Assistant Grand Secretary, was present, also Bro. E. Somers, P.M. 1602; March, 1326; and Harris, S.D. 1158, visitors. The lodge having been opened in due form, Bro. Hollingsworth was passed to the Second Degree. Ballot was then taken for seven candidates for initiation, which proved unanimous in their favour, and Messrs. Loeffler, Dexter, Beasley, Bell, and Bigg being in attendance, were then regularly admitted into Freemasonry. The lodge was then closed and the brethren adjourned to slight refreshment, after which the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given and responded to. Bro. Buss, A.G. Secretary, returned thanks for the Grand Officers, the initiates responded in appropriate terms, and Bros. Somers and Marsh replied for the visitors.

DUKE OF CONNAUGHT LODGE (No. 1558).—The anniversary and installation meeting of this lodge was held on Thursday evening, the 11th inst., at the Surrey Masonic Hall, Camberwell New Road, and was numerously attended. Bro. Cackett, W.M., presided, and all the officers were present in their proper places. There were several visitors, amongst whom were Bros. G. W.

Wilks, 707; Catling, 144; Larham, P.M. 1216; Bisson, 471; Tobbs, 1425; C. B. Wright, 1319; W. H. Crichton, 1641; Martin, 868; Trenn, 935; Kingston, 1249; H. Thompson, P.M. 177 and 1158 (Freemason), &c. The lodge having been opened in due form, Bro. Dann, the Secretary, read the minutes of the last lodge, which were unanimously confirmed. The report of the Audit Committee was then presented and received. The lodge was then opened in the Second Degree and Bro. T. Sleep, the W.M. elect, was presented by Bro. Larham to receive at the hands of Bro. Cackett, the outgoing Master, the benefit of installation. The customary formalities having been gone through, the lodge was opened in the Third Degree, and all the brethren below the chair were requested to retire, and a Board of Installed Masters having been formed Bro. Sleep was impressively installed into the chair of K.S. according to ancient custom. On the re-admission of the brethren, under the directorship of Bro. Dann, the usual salutes were given by the brethren in the different degrees, after which Bro. Dann delivered addresses to the W. Masters, Wardens, and brethren in a manner which elicited general approbation. Some other formal proceedings having been gone through, the W. Master proceeded to invest his officers for the ensuing year and the manner in which that was done gave the highest satisfaction to all, but more particularly to the older members of Freemasonry. Instead of confining himself to a few common-place words usually employed, he departed from that beaten track and gave each one a thorough and complete explanation of the duties he would have to perform. There were certain parts of these addresses over which as Masons a veil must necessarily be drawn, but there were some parts of them which might advantageously be generally adopted, and with no such restraint. In addressing his newly appointed Treasurer, Bro. Cape, he said, "I trust your regard for the fraternity will prompt you to the faithful discharge of your duties. The cross keys are an emblem of science and secrecy. While the metal key is to preserve the treasures of the lodge, the symbolic key is an emblem of the tongue, whose eloquence should be used to instruct the hearts of the brethren and cause them to dispense their treasures in the cause of charity. By the symbolic key also you are taught to preserve a tongue of good report, and in case you should hear a brother slanderously spoken of you are to defend and vindicate his character, but if unfortunately, that cannot be done with strict honour and propriety you are to preserve that excellent Masonic virtue—silence." Addressing Bro. Dann, P.M., on his re-appointment as Secretary, he said, "our good intentions to Freemasonry in general, and to this lodge in particular, I am sure will prompt you to the faithful discharge of the duties of your office, as by so doing you will merit the esteem and appreciation of your brethren. The cross pens are an emblem of silent admonition that the pen should not be used in the cause of oppression, but the fluid should flow freely from it to defend a brother's character when assailed, and be eloquent in the cause of the destitute and oppressed. In investing Bro. Cackett as Immediate Past Master he said, I have very much pleasure in investing you with the jewel of Immediate Past Master of the Duke of Connaught Lodge, No. 1558. It is an office which it is not in the power of the Worshipful Master to bestow, being yours by right, as having faithfully performed your duty in the Craft. Your jewel is that of the 47th problem of the first book of Euclid. As this figure depends upon several lines, angles, and triangles, which form the whole, so Freemasonry depends upon its several members and the principles upon which the society is established. Some of our brethren, from their station in life, standing as they do on the bases of earthly bliss, are emblematical of the great angle which subtends the right angle. Others blessed with ample means to tread the flowery meads of prosperity and opulence are descriptive of the squares which stand on the sides. Those brethren who enjoy every social comfort and never exceed the bonds of mediocrity symbolise the triangle within the squares, and those who have the satisfaction of administering to the wants of the urgent and industrious may be compared to the triangle which surrounds the figure, whilst the lines which form it may remind us of those brethren who are incapable of providing the necessities of life unless aided by cheerful and ready assistance. These several addresses were greeted with hearty cheering. The following is a complete list of the newly appointed officers:—Bros. Mitchell, S.W.; Runacres, J.W.; Chalk, S.D.; Boyton, J.D.; Dann, P.M., Secretary; Cape, Treasurer; Power, I.G.; Taylor, D.C.; Poutres, W.S. The W. Master said he had a very pleasing duty to perform, which was to present Bro. Cackett with a jewel, which had been voted to him by the brethren on his retirement from the chair, and he wished him long life to wear it. The jewel bore the following inscription:—"Presented by the Duke of Connaught Lodge, No. 1558, to Bro. Cackett, on retiring from the chair, Oct. 11, 1877." Bro. Cackett, I.P.M., returned thanks for the honour conferred upon him. The newly installed W.M. immediately commenced upon the duties of his office, and most ably initiated two gentlemen into the Order. Bro. J. Dixon proposed that a jewel of the value of five guineas should be presented to Bro. W. Dann, Secretary, for the valuable services to the lodge, which was seconded by Bro. Scott, supported by Bro. Cackett, and carried unanimously. The lodge was then closed in due form, and the brethren adjourned for refreshment, which was well served. On the withdrawal of the cloth, the customary loyal and Masonic toasts were given. Bro. Cackett, I.P.M., proposed the health of Bro. Sleep, W.M., and alluded to the excellent specimen the brethren had seen of his working. The W. Master returned thanks for the kind manner in which the brethren had drank his health, and made the pleasing announcement that during his year of office he would never trouble the brethren with long speeches, but should rely upon his officers to rally round him, so as to render the lodge, if not the largest, one of the most prosperous in the Craft. "The Past Masters" was next given, for which Bros. Cackett and Dann sincerely returned thanks. The next toast was that of "The Visitors," for which Bro. Larham, P.M. 1316, returned thanks, and expressed the pleasure he had experienced in seeing the W. Master so ably install his officers; indeed, in so able a manner as was seldom witnessed in any lodge, and he felt sure that he would have a successful year of office. "The Press" was next given, for which Bro. H. Thompson responded, and remarked upon the great benefits which frequently resulted to mankind from its agency. It was the most powerful engine in the state, and it was but rare indeed, that the power it possessed was abused. Some other toasts were given, and the evening was a happy one throughout, a number of the brethren filling up the intervals between the toasts with some choice ballads, which were highly applauded. The brethren separated at about eleven o'clock, in the true spirit of Freemasonry.

ST. JOHN OF WAPPING LODGE.—(No. 1306.)—This lodge held its regular meeting at the Gun Hotel, Wapping, on Wednesday, the 10th inst. Present: William Power, W.M.; Bros. Rae, S.W.; Coleman, J.W.; Hayward, J.D.; Tyer, I.G.; Longstaff, Tyler. The lodge was opened in due form, minutes read and confirmed. The lodge was then raised to Third Degree, and Bro. Frayley was raised to the Sublime Degree of a M.M. by the W.M. in his usual impressive manner. Present: Bros. Pallet, Cox, McDougal, J. W. Coleman, Hartman, and several others.

KENNINGTON LODGE (No. 1381).—The first meeting of the season of this prosperous lodge was held on the 2nd inst. at the Surrey Club House, Kennington Oval, when there were present, amongst others, Bros. H. Higgins, W.M.; H. Reeves, S.W.; T. Walls, P.G.O. Middx., J.W.; Kohler, S.D.; Speedy, J.D.; Webb, I.G.; Robinson, D.C.; Marsden, W.S.; Stokes, A.W.S.; Honeywell, P.M.; Dobie, Asst. Org.; G. Everett, P.M. Domestic, I.P.M.; and Past Masters Warren, Koch, Stuart (Secretary), Drysdale, and Pope. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, the bye-laws were read, and the ballot taken for Bro. Timewell as a joining member, and which proved unanimous. The W.M. stated that since the last meeting of the lodge, in April last, they had lost one of their oldest members, namely, Bro. Sirgood, whose genial and other qualities had endeared him to every member of the lodge, and that he (the W.M.) had upon behalf of the "Kennington," forwarded a letter of condolence to Mrs. Sirgood and family upon their heavy bereavement. Previously to the lodge being closed, Bro. W. Mann, P.M., gave notice of motion for the next meeting—that a Royal Arch Chapter should be founded in connection with No. 1381. The visitors were Bros. Vickins, W.M. 164, P.M. 1329; Downie, 186; Davison, 733; B. Cooper and Taylor, 1441; Burrows and Rayner, 1305; Cox, 1314; and Kohler, 1585. At the conclusion of the banquet the usual Royal and Craft toasts were duly honoured. In proposing "The Health of the W.M.," Bro. Everett said that he considered the subject to be a very pleasing one. Bro. Higgin's whole heart and soul was in the work of Masonry, and he also had the interests of the lodge in sound keeping. He was pleased to see so large and happy a gathering assembled there on the first night after this long recess, which pleasant state of things he hoped would continue to the end of the season. In conclusion, he stated that although the W.M. had had no "work" to do that evening, yet he wished to assure their visitors that no brother was better qualified to carry out the Masonic ceremonies than Bro. Higgins. The W.M. in reply, briefly thanked the I.P.M. for the kind manner in which he had proposed his health, and the brethren for the hearty way that they had received it. His year of office had commenced well, and he believed it would end well, and he felt pleased that so many members and friends had attended that night, and by their genial faces and manner had so enhanced the success of the proceedings. "The Visitors" followed, and it was acknowledged at length by Bros. Vockins and Burrows. In introducing "The Health of the Past Masters," the W.M. took the occasion to remark that the toast embraced not only the actual brethren who had passed the chair of the Kennington, but also those members who had gained past rank in other lodges, and who had rendered very great assistance to the lodge in many ways. This toast having been duly honoured, Bros. Everett, Mann, and Koch responded on behalf of the former, and Bro. W. Pope for the latter. "The Masonic Charities" and "The Officers" followed quickly, and were briefly responded to. During the evening instrumental and other selections were given by Bros. Honeywell, Walls, and Sleight.

MIZPAH LODGE (No. 1671).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held at the Albion Hotel, Aldersgate-street, on Saturday last, when the following brethren were present:—Bros. Nelson Reed, W.M.; D. R. Still, S.W.; W. W. Medcalf, J.W.; J. J. Avery, Treas.; H. G. Buss, Sec.; J. Bergmann, S.D.; F. Morgan, W.S. 1572, acting J.D.; R. A. Morgan, acting I.G.; G. Coppard, D. Wright, C. Sissons, H. H. Wells, W. Klotgen, J. H. Wiles, H. Warden, P. Alpetter, R. Nelson, G. Lewis, H. Shaw, Tyler. Visitors:—Bros. W. S. Whittaker, W.M. 1572; A. Brookman, 1657; C. W. Thompson, W.M. 1601; J. L. Jones, W.M. 1670; Hyde Pullen, I.G.S.B.; C. Sopsett, W.M. elect, 1547; J. Kimpston, 1601; C. Atkins, P.M. 27; W. H. Allen, 619; J. Chaney, 180. The minutes of the regular meeting, held April 14th, were read and confirmed. The minutes of the lodge of emergency, held June 2nd, and September 29th, were read and confirmed. Bros. Alpetter, Nelson, and Warden were passed to the Second Degree. Mr. John Bedford Tidmarsh, having been unanimously elected, was initiated according to ancient custom; two gentlemen were proposed for initiation, after which the lodge was closed, and the brethren then adjourned to a well served banquet, provided by Bro. Jennings, who has made the Albion so famous. The usual toasts were given by the W.M. Bro. Hyde Pullen, P.G.S.B., replied for the Grand Officers; Bros. Whittaker, W.M. 1572; Thompson, W.M. 1601; and J. L. Jones, W.M. 1670, replied for the Visitors. "The Health of the W.M." was given by Bro. H. G. Buss, Asst. G. Sec. The W.M. made an appeal to the brethren present on behalf of the Indian Famine Relief Fund, resulting in the collection of £5, which was handed to the Treasurer to be forwarded to the Lord Mayor. The remaining toasts having been given, the brethren departed at the early hour of 8 o'clock. This is a speciality (early hours) with the Mizpah Lodge. The proceedings were greatly enhanced by the good singing of Bros. Avery, Whittaker, Medcalf, Morgan, Warden, Bergmann, and Alpetter, Bro. Bergmann presiding at the piano-forte very efficiently.

THE CRUSADERS LODGE.—(No. 1677).—The first regular meeting of this new lodge was held on Wednesday, the 10th inst., at St. John's Gate, Clerkenwell, Bro. Jarvis Maples, W.M., presiding, assisted by his officers, Simmonds, S.W.; Dr. Hunter, J.W.; Thomas Goode, S.D.; Frederick Rothschild, S.D.; Dr. D. Fries, Secretary; Samuel Rushton, Organist; and others. The minutes of the previous meeting having been confirmed, the lodge was opened in the Second Degree, and the following brethren having shown their efficiency, were duly passed: W. J. Goode, Frederick Goode, Alfred Goode, Thomas Taylor, James J. Stockall, S. Rushton, Beetham, Jackson, William F. Garrod, and Moorhouse. The lodge was then resumed to the first degree, when the following gentlemen were initiated into the mysteries of the fraternity:—Messrs. Ulric J. Upton, W. H. Jackson, and William W. Chandler. The working, rather exhaustive, was done in a masterly manner, and great credit is due to the Master and officers of the lodge for the efficiency. A handsome carved oak chair was presented to the lodge by the above nine brethren just passed, and by Bro. Thomas M. K. Gilbert. A unanimous vote of thanks was passed for the gift. Bro. Calderwood also presented the lodge with a rare old Crusaders' seal, of some value, and a similar compliment was paid to him by the lodge. The lodge closed in due form, the brethren adjourned to the banquet, prepared by the host, Bro. Gay, in his usual liberal style. The cloth removed, the usual Masonic toasts were observed. Bro. T. Bell replying for the visitors. Some capital singing by Bros. Rushton, Jackson, Millward, and Rothschild brought a happy evening to a close.

BATH.—Royal Cumberland Lodge (No. 41).—The first regular meeting of this ancient lodge since the recess was held at the Masonic Hall, Bath, on Oct. 4th, Bro. F. Wilkinson, W.M., in the chair; Bros. F. J. Brown, I.P.M.; Reeves, P.M., P.Z., &c., kindly officiating at the organ; Ashley, P.M., Treas., and acting as Chaplain, George Falkner, S.W.; Chas. Wilkinson, J.W.; P. Brahan, Sec.; Gummer, S.D.; William Hunt, J.D.; Capt. Robinson and Jacob Smith, Sewards; C. W. Radway, I.G.; Bigwood, Tyler; Bro. T. Moutrie, P.M., &c., acting as Dir. of Ceremonies. The lodge being duly formed and opened at 7.35, the minutes of the lodge of emergency, held on Sept. 13th, and of the last regular lodge, were duly confirmed. After some minor lodge business the candidate for initiation, Mr. W. B. Gregory, was duly admitted and initiated—the working tools were presented by the S.W., the charge being given by Bro. Ashley—after which the lodge was opened in the Second Degree, and Bro. R. Mann was passed to the degree of F.C. in due form, the ceremony being impressively performed by the W.M., assisted by the I.P.M. and Bro. Ashley, P.M., &c., the working tools being again presented by the S.W. The lodge was then closed down to First Degree, and several letters from absent brethren on ordinary subjects were read. Bro. Ashley, P.M., put a motion on the notice paper that in future all officers taking collars should pay a small fee to the lodge, it being the custom in other lodges. The grant of ten guineas to the Indian Famine Fund was duly confirmed by unanimous vote. A new candidate Mr. T. Wilton, jun., well known to the brethren, son of an old P.M. of this lodge, was proposed by Bro. Thos. Ames. —also a proposal for the purchase and use of gauntlets for the W.M. and Wardens was carried unanimously. A question as to inviting Grand Lodge of Somerset to Bath was mooted for further consideration. Members present, Bros. Major Preston, P.M., &c., Baldwin, Davies, Holmes, Rubie, P.M., &c., Peach, Mercer, Stiles, Ames, Clark, P.M., Murlis, and Brewer. Visitors: Bro. Edwards, W.M. Royal Sussex, and others. The brethren all missed the familiar face and impressive tones of Bro. Dr. Hopkins, P.M., &c., who is absent in Warwickshire. An arrangement was made for a Lodge of Instruction to be held on the third Thursday in each month. After some discussions on minor importance the lodge was closed in perfect harmony at 9.50.

WINDSOR.—Etonian Lodge of St. John, (No. 209).—The first meeting of the season was held at the Masonic Hall, Windsor, on Tuesday the 2nd inst. The W.M., Bro. C. D. Hume, P.G.S., presided, supported by Bros. Roberts, P.G.S., S.W.; Schiemann, J.W.; Wilson, P.M., Treasurer; J. O. Carter, P.M., P.P.G.D.C., Secretary; Dick Radclyffe, S.D.; Cousins, I.G.; Tolley, P.M., P.P.G.D., Organist; Evans, Steward; Dixon, P.M., P.P.G.D.C.; McIlwham, P.M.; Hopwood, P.M.; Denne, P.M.; Bryett, P.M., P.G.S.W.; Reid, P.M. There was a large muster of members and visitors, amongst the latter were Bros. Kelly, of 1293, P.P.G. Treas. Middlesex; Cole, 742; Gillard, 657; Nash, P.M. 865; Lyon, J.W. 865; F. H. Johnson, 903; Bingham, P.M. 771; J. Johnson, 771; Ford, 771. The chief duties of the evening were initiating Mr. H. Perks and raising Bro. Crawshaw, both ceremonies were most ably performed by the W.M. to the great satisfaction of the brethren present. One candidate for initiation and two as joining members were proposed. The Secretary announced that the Provincial Grand Master, Bro. Sir D. Gooch, Bart, M.P., had appointed Bro. the Venerable Arthur Percival Percy-Cust, Archdeacon of Buckingham, as Deputy Provincial Grand Master. The sum of five guineas was voted to the testimonial, now being raised in the Province, to be presented to Bro. Biggs, P. Prov. Grand Secretary. After some further business had been transacted the lodge was closed in due form.

HOLYHEAD.—St. Cybi Lodge (No. 597).—A lodge of emergency was held at the Masonic Rooms, Town Hall, on Monday, the 8th of October, for the purpose of forming a procession to attend the funeral of their late Brother, Capt. Robert Williams, of the Liverpool Arms Hotel. In the absence of the W.M., the lodge was opened by P.M., Bro. John Peters, P.P.G.S.W. The following brethren were also present, P.M. William Lewis, M.P.; J. P. Griffiths, S.W.; R. J. Edwards, J.W.; W. P. Elliott, Organist; Parry, I.G.; Jones, Tyler; W. Williams, H. T. Barber, Dr. O. T. Williams, Jas. Wells, Owen Edwards, Thos. Crispin, Wm. J. C. Riva, Wm. Ankers, O. Hughes, W. Roberts, Capt. John Owen, John Hughes, E. Jones, J. D. Joling, &c. The remains were carried from the church gates into the church, and thence to the grave by the P.M.'s and officers of the lodge, after paying this last tribute of respect to their departed brother, the brethren again formed a procession, and returned to their lodge room.

LANCASTER.—Lodge of Fortitude.—(No. 281).—This lodge held its meeting on the 10th inst., in the Masonic Rooms, Athenæum. The W.M., (Bro. R. Taylor), presided, and there was a good attendance of members and visiting brethren. The lodge was opened in the First Degree, with solemn prayer, and the minutes of previous meeting read and confirmed. Bro. John W. Simpson having given proficiency as an Entered Apprentice was entrusted and retired, and the lodge was opened in the Second Degree. Bro. Simpson was then re-admitted, and passed to the Degree of F.C. by the W.M. Bro. Phyzackerley having answered the requisite interrogatories was entrusted and retired, when the lodge was raised to the Third Degree. Bro. Phyzackerley was re-admitted and raised to the Sublime Degree of a M.M., the working being well gone through by Bro. John Hatch, W.M. and Secretary. The lodge was then closed down, and the usual proclamations having been made, the lodge was closed in peace, love, and harmony.

YARBOROUGH LODGE (No. 554).—The reunion of the brethren of this lodge took place on Thursday sennight, at that noted old East End Hostelry the Green Dragon Tavern, Stepney, where for the past twenty years the requirements of the fraternity have ever been cheerfully studied and well-met by Bro. Host Walters. The chair was occupied by the W.M., Bro. W. Allen, and he was ably supported by Bros. H. Cotter, S.W., and F. Taylor, J.W., whilst the responsibilities of the junior positions were well sustained by Bros. E. Walters, S.D.; W. Cross, J.D.; W. Taylor, I.G.; and Levermore, W.S. Amongst the Past Masters were Bros. Berry, Wymes, Stevens, Mosley, Hood, and Hamilton, and a goodly array of visitors, including Bros. Lavrit, 1185; Allen, Dawson, and Snelling, 1174. A numerous assemblage of the brethren attended to greet the W.M. on his return to office, and the never failing salutary effect that the efficient delivery of the ceremony of raising a brother to the degree of M.M., has upon the minds of all worthy brothers in the Craft, was peculiarly noticeable on this occasion, while the rendering of the ritual lost little of its force in the hands of the W.M. and his subordinates. The business of the evening was unfortunately of a painful and prolonged character, mainly arising from the necessities of those who sought in affliction that relief they were themselves unable to obtain, and the question arose, in argument, whether it would not be in such instances better to refer and determine the relative merits of either unknown supplicant, than to rashly relieve or unkindly deny. A member of the Board of Benevolence took exception to any unrepresented case being at all entertained, and remarked how misdirected were the influences oftentimes exerted that caused Masonic charity to flow into channels whence the itinerant Mason oftentimes benefited; and exemplified this idea by a retrospect of the working of the Board of Benevolence whilst he had been privileged to sit at the same, where, in several instances the promptings of the heart outweighed the dictates of prudence, and rather than refuse any, aid was given without sufficient enquiry and discrimination. The opinion prevailed that if such lack of discernment were found at the Board the interests of lodges through their representatives were but ill cared for, if it be possible for the undeserving to prey with success, continually on funds placed at the Board's disposal for the relief only of the too many who are unfortunately reduced to the distressing condition of worthy penury. Bis dat qui cito dat, but be careful lest in rashly distributing bounty nothing remains when the really necessitous apply in their need, for that aid which blest charity so mercifully furnishes. These respective applications having been satisfactorily disposed of, the brethren adjourned to the banquet table, and after the usual loyal toasts had been drunk, Bro. P.M. Jno. Stevens in responding for the charities, remarked that Bro. T. Taylor, who would represent the lodge as Steward at the ensuing festival for the Masonic Institutions, already had upon his list an amount exceeding £60, and that the efforts of the Secretaries of the respective Institutions resulted last year in the accumulation of an amount approaching £40,000. The Tyler's toast was given at ten o'clock, and a generally satisfactory evening terminated.

LANCASTER.—Rowley Lodge (No. 1051).—The monthly meeting of this lodge was held on the 1st inst., in the Masonic Rooms, Athenæum, Bro. T. Jackson, W.M., presiding. There was not a large attendance.

Bro. Dr. Moore, P.G.S.B. of E. gave a short lecture on "The Ethics of Freemasonry," which was listened to with much interest by the members present. At the close, a cordial vote of thanks was accorded to Bro. Moore. The usual proclamation having been made, the lodge was closed in due form.

PLUMSTEAD.—United Military Lodge (No. 1536).—The regular meeting of the above lodge took place on Friday, the 12th inst., at Bro. Plaisted's fine Hall adjoining the "Sir Robert Peel," Anglesea Hill, and was well attended by the brethren and visitors of the district. Bro. G. Spinks, W.M., presided, and was supported by the following officers: Bros. W. Weston, I.P.M.; H. Picken, S.W.; — Show, J.W.; T. Pownall, P.M. and P.G. S.W. Kent, Secretary; I. McCaffery, S.D.; W. Hollyman, I.G.; H. Harding, Organist; J. Lakland, O.G.; Coupland, P.M. 913, and P.P.S.W. Kent, and Bro. Pryce, 913, who are honorary members of the lodge, were also present. Among the visitors were J. E. Randall, P.S.D. 1089; A. Jessop, Treas. 913; D. Capon, 913; W. G. Batchelor, 548; L. J. Russell, 160; G. Hand, 215; W. Menzies, 1531; H. Dana, 1531; W. Keen, 1604; J. Harper, 1604; T. Hassell, 13; G. Fraser, 700; H. Carty, 913; E. Spinks, 158; E. Tappenden 781; W. Wray, 700; A. Upperton, 913; and C. Jolly, (Freemason), 913. The business before the lodge consisted of the ballot for of Sergt. James Steedman, of the Royal Engineers, and after approval that gentleman was initiated into Masonry. Bro. J. P. Earle was then raised to the Sublime Degree, both ceremonies being most impressively rendered by the W.M., who was as well ably assisted by his officers. The W.M.'s report of the proceedings of Prov. Grand Charity Committee was then received with much satisfaction, and it was then proposed and unanimously carried that the sum of five guineas be subscribed towards the testimonial to Bro. the Rev. A. Hill, Prov. G. Chaplin, Kent, and that the W.M. Bro. Spinks, be appointed as a delegate from that lodge to serve upon the Committee formed for the purpose of carrying out the presentation. Bro. Powall, then in most eloquent terms made an appeal on behalf of the widow of a military brother (not a member of the lodge) who was in most adverse circumstances, and the W.M. kindly promised the proceeds of that evening's charity box, which, by-the-by, amounted on the first round to £1 12s., but one of the brethren humorously suggested that now all the silver was in, it might be as well to try for the copper, and the sum was ultimately made up to £2 2s. Before closing the lodge the W.M. called the initiate to the pedestal, and recited the E.A. charge in rare style. The lodge was then duly closed and the brethren took tea of refreshments, honouring the usual loyal Masonic toast as gallant soldiers and true Masons should do. Bro. Coupland briefly returned thanks to the Grand Officers Past and Present observing, that at the present time his light was obscured by the greater brilliancy of Bro. Powall, who had just taken Provincial honours. They would have been pleased had they heard the P.G.M., Lord Holmesdale, compliment their distinguished brother when he was invested with the collar of his office at Erith (cheers). It was an honour to have as a member of the lodge so excellent a man and Mason among them (loud cheers). Bro. Weston in proposing the health of the W.M., said he had shown all the tact and resource of a skilled general in leading his little army, not in the field of battle, but in the search after the hidden mysteries of natural science (applause). Dr. Spinks, in reply, trusted that he should always carry out the duties of his high position in such a manner as to merit their confidence and deserve their esteem (applause). After the health of the initiate had been proposed and responded to, "The Visitors" received a very flattering reception at the hands of the W.M., who said they, as military men, were very liable to be called away at the blast of the bugle to serve their country, to do duty either at home or abroad, and it was a most gratifying reflection for them, both here and when away, to know that between them and all other lodges around them the utmost good feeling prevailed. (Applause.) He looked upon this as the toast of the evening, and one that always was, and he hoped ever would be, highly honoured in the United Military Lodge. No matter what lodge they visited, they were sure to meet military brethren there, and when he saw the many smiling faces around him, and gathered from that that there existed a true bond of good feeling amongst them, he hoped long to see it prevail, for in it was the surest foundation of all good and worthy Masonry. (Loud cheers.) He coupled the toast with the name of Bro. Jessop, of the Pattison Lodge, and Bros. Batchelor, Wray, Hassell, Cobb, and Menzies, who severally returned thanks. The toast of "The Past Masters" followed, and Bro. Weston replied, saying that it would ever be the task of the P.M.'s to promote brotherly love, peace, and harmony in the lodge, as well as earnestly assist any aspiring brother in his upward course. "The Officers" followed, and Bros. McCaffery and Welding replied; and after a "God speed" had been given to Bro. Stevens, who is about proceeding to India with his battery, and a feeling reply from that brother, the Tyler's toast concluded the proceedings.

EALING.—West Middlesex Lodge (No. 1612).

—This lodge, which is now twelve months old, held its first anniversary meeting at the Ealing Institute, Ealing, on Saturday last, Bro. A. Beasley, the first W.M., presiding. This lodge is a bright example of what may be effected in a short space of time by a combination of energy, concord, and skill; and it is a great pleasure to visit a lodge where the machinery is in such perfect working order that the thought at once forces itself on the mind of the visitor that here is a lodge where everyone concerned has caught the true spirit of Masonic association, as each one contributes his quota of work with that precision and ease which so enhances the beauty of the ceremonies, and proves that these are not merely gala day Masons, but that they must have a good lodge of instruction amongst themselves, where each may help the other to become perfect in those duties which they have undertaken. The greatest praise is due to the W.M., Bro. Beasley, the Secretary, Bro. J. Chambers, Roe, P.M. of the Prince of Wales Lodge, to Bro. T. Brown, acting I.P.M. and Treasurer, and, indeed, to all concerned, for the hearty co-operation in bringing a lodge, now only a year old, to its present successful state. The lodge numbers now about forty-three subscribing members, and has initiated eighteen candidates during the first year. There has also been formed in connection with it a lodge of instruction, by the aid of which the working of the lodge has been rendered as perfect as we remember to have seen in any lodge. They have also instituted that most admirable feature in a lodge—a benevolent fund, upon a sure and well defined basis. During the first year they had an income of over £200, which has been well and economically managed, so that after paying for every item of outlay, and contributing to at least one of the Masonic Charities, they commenced their new year with a very handsome balance in hand. All who know Bro. Beasley know well what an excellent worker he is; and we are not surprised that the brethren should have re-elected him to the Master's chair for the ensuing year; for there can be no doubt that a far deeper impression is produced upon a candidate when the Master is not only perfect but also successful in conveying the spirit of the words to the candidate's mind. With such a Master presiding the members of the lodge can bring forward their friends as candidates with the full conviction that the favourable conviction pre-conceived of the institution will not be lowered by the manner in which the ceremonies are worked. On Saturday the business before the lodge was very heavy. After the confirmation of the minutes of the last ordinary lodge meeting, a d. of a lodge of emergency, Bro. T. C. Jenkin was raised to the Sublime Degree of M.M. by the W.M., who afterwards passed Bro. Mung to the degree of Fellow Craft. The W.M. then left the chair, which was taken by Bro. T. Kingston, P.M., S.W., by whom Bro. Jones was passed to the Second Degree. Bro. Kingston then vacated the chair, which was thereupon occupied by Bro. Roe, P.M., Secretary, who conferred the Second Degree on Bro. Clarke. At the conclusion of this ceremony the W.M. returned to the lodge, and resuming the chair, performed the ceremony of passing for Bro. Etienne. Thus four initiates were passed to the Second Degree. The lodge was then resumed in the First Degree, and the ballot was taken for the following candidates: Mr. Richard Henry Day, proposed by Bro. Kasner, J.W., seconded by Bro. Fernee; Mr. William Nye, proposed by Bro. Tucker, seconded by Bro. Beasley, W.M.; and Mr. George Samuel Wright, proposed by Bro. Kasner, J.W., seconded by Bro. Tucker. The ballot having been successful, the candidates were ordered to be prepared, and while the preparation was in progress, the report of the Audit Committee was read, and was of a most satisfactory nature, and it concluded with an encomium upon the admirable manner in which the books had been kept and the business of the lodge conducted by Bro. Roe, the Secretary, and a recommendation by the Audit Committee that Bro. Roe's services should be recognised by a vote of thanks to be entered in the minutes of the lodge. This recommendation was adopted in the heartiest manner, and a vote of thanks ordered to be recorded, a compliment that was acknowledged by Bro. Roe in a few appropriate words. The above mentioned candidates were then initiated by the W.M., each being brought in separately and the ceremony separately worked for each, in order that it might lose none of its impressiveness. As we have already stated Bro. Beasley has been elected W.M. of the lodge for the ensuing year; and therefore after the investiture of the candidates, the lodge was resumed in the Second Degree, and Bro. Beasley vacated the chair in favour of Bro. P.M. Roe as Installing Master, whereupon Bro. Kingston, S.W., presented the W.M. Elect, who, having given his assent to the ancient landmarks of the Order, which were read by Bro. Burr as acting Assistant Secretary, was duly obligated, after which a Board of Installed Masters was formed, to whom he was presented, and afterwards installed into the chair of K.S. It is needless to say that the ceremony lost none of its impressiveness through being worked by Bro. Roe, by whom the orations were admirably delivered. The officers for the year are Bros. Kasner, S.W.; Burr, J.W.; J. Green, S.D.; W. J. Compton, J.D.; Tucker, I.G.; Dyer, D.C.; Bourne, Assistant D.C.; Delavante, Organist; Browne, P.M., Treasurer; Bro. J. Chambers, Roe, P.M., Secretary; and Harrison, Tyler. The heavy labours of the evening being thus concluded, the lodge was closed in due form, and the brethren adjourned to Browne's Hotel, where about fifty sat down to an excellent banquet, to which they did ample justice. Among the visitors were Bro. E. F. Foot, 1260; R. E. Hanners, 771; J. Hamblinton, 1319; J. Fowlings, 780; Harry Barnes, 780; S. S. Phillips, 173; W. Gardner, 780; E. N. Watts, 194; Morgan, 1385; W. Gutteridge, 1305; B. E. Blasby, 780; C. S. Cottleton, 780; T. Prendergast, 563; G. W. Lay, 569; Geo. Wills, 780; G. C. Sparrow, 192; Righten, 23; and Massey, 1297, (Freemason). On the removal of the cloth, the customary loyal and Masonic toasts were proposed by the W.M.; on account of the lateness of the hour the speeches in reference to those toasts were made as brief as possible. On the conclusion of these toasts, acting I.P.M., Bro. Kingston, rose and said:—Brethren, the gavel being in my hand you know the toast that I am about to propose to you, namely our W.M., and I am sure you all coincide with me in congratulating him on being able to preside over us again. I need not say one word upon his excellencies as a Master; in the lodge or out of the lodge you all know we could not have a better to preside over us. Brethren I give "The Health of our W.M." Bro. Beasley in reply said, brethren, I lose no time in responding to the toast which has been so kindly proposed by Bro. Kingston and so cordially responded to. I think Bro. Kingston says I am to be congratulated on being able to preside here this night. Since I presided here last I have gone through a serious—nay, a dangerous illness; but the great Architect of the Universe has thought fit to spare me, and I am able to preside here to night over the West Middlesex Lodge. Brethren, I thank you very much for the compliment you have paid me. The W.M. concluded by proposing "The Health of Bro. Kingston, acting I.P.M., Bro. Browne, P.M., Treasurer, and Bro. Roe, P.M. and Secretary, and Installing Master, all of whom responded. Bro. Beasley in proposing "The Health of the Initiates," said that it did not often fall to a Master's lot to propose the health of seven newly made brethren at one time; that however was his present position. They had with them four brethren who had taken their Second Degree that evening, whose health he had now to propose for the first time, because the lodge did not have a banquet when they were initiated, they had also the three initiates who had just been admitted into Masonry. These were very young Masons, whose experience was of a most limited character, but he hoped that what they had seen might lead them to effect great things in the future. Several other toasts were also drunk, including the "Visitors," and the "Officers of the lodge." These having been responded to the W.M. proposed "Success to the Masonic Press," coupled with the name of Bro. Massey, of the Freemason, who in replying acknowledged the flattering terms in which Bro. Beasley had referred to the paper he represented, and the manner in which pressmen's services were appreciated in the Craft.

INSTRUCTION.

PYTHAGOREAN LODGE (No. 79).—After a few years' sojourn at Bro. C. Wall's, the Prince of Orange, London-street, Greenwich, this well-known Lodge has removed to new quarters, at the Puritan Hotel, in the same street. The occasion of the removal was seized by the brethren to have the Ceremonies of Consecration and Installation rehearsed, and in the person of Bro. Jas. Terry, the courteous Secretary of the R.M.B.I., they were fortunate in obtaining an efficient expounder of those two beautiful ceremonies. On the 10th inst. nearly 80 brethren assembled at the new quarters to take part in the double event. With his proverbial punctuality Bro. Terry ascended the throne at 7 o'clock, and appointed as his officers, Bros. Dr. Goring, as S.W.; C. Nash, P.M. 79; J.W. Macdonald, P.M. 1158; D.C.; Andrews, P.M. 871; I.G.; and Roberts, P.M. 79, as P.M. After the preliminary business had been observed, Bro. Terry delivered a forcible oration on Freemasonry in general and the constitution of a lodge in particular, and then in an unusually impressive manner duly consecrated and dedicated the lodge according to ancient custom. At the conclusion of this ceremony, Bro. J. Shaw, I.P.M. 79 and Prec. of the Lodge of Instruction, was presented by the D.C. and regularly installed by Bro. Terry into the chair of K.S. Having been proclaimed and saluted, the new W.M. appointed and invested his officers as follows: Bro. Gooding S.W., Nash, J.W.; R. Bonney, Treas. Roberts, Sec.; Gibson, S.D.; Partridge, J.D.; Andrews, I.G.; and Macdonald, D.C. The delivery of the charges to the Master, Wardens, and Brethren with Bro. Terry's well known force and eloquence, terminated the business proper. A complimentary vote of thanks was unanimously passed to Bro. Terry for his kindness in officiating as Consecrating Officer, which that worthy brother suitably acknowledged. A large number of the visiting brethren having joined, the lodge was closed and adjourned to the ensuing Wednesday evening. Great credit is due to Bros. Roberts, Sec.; Shaw, Prec. of the Lodge; Macdonald, D.C.; Andrews, I.G.; through whose skilful arrangements the proceedings were carried through without the slightest confusion, notwithstanding the crowded state of the room. The musical arrangements were to have been under the direction of Bro. Kippis, P.G.O. Kent, but domestic affliction preventing his attendance. His place was ably filled (although at very short notice) by Bro. G. Dowsett. After the lodge was closed the brethren partook of a cold collation, which was served by their new host Bro. G. Bonney in a manner that called forth the encomiums of all present. Altogether the proceedings of the evening were eminently successful, and the 10th October, 1877, will long be remembered by those present as a red letter day.

DUKE OF CONNAUGHT LODGE (No. 1524), held at the Havelock Tavern, Albion-road, Dalston E., on Wednesday, 17th inst. Present: Bros. Brasted, W.M.; Maples, S.W.; Dignam, J.W.; C. Larkin, S.D.; Delafons, J.D.; Brown, I.G.; Fieldrouk, Prec. of the Lodge, E. Dietrich, Sec., and Bros. Marsh, G. Ferrar, Poole, Pollack, E. George, Watkins, R. Olley, Lee, Loeffler, Norman, and others. The lodge was opened at 8 p.m. in ancient form, and the minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. The lodge was opened in the Second Degree, and Bro. Marsh answered the usual questions leading from the Second to the Third Degree, when Bro. Marsh was raised to the Degree of M.M. by the W.M. in his usual correct and impressive manner. The lodge was resumed to the First Degree, and Bro. Lee worked the Sections of the Lecture, assisted by the brethren. Bro. Loeffler and Norman became joining members. Bro. Maples was unanimously elected W.M. for the ensuing week.

Royal Arch.

MOUNT LEBANON CHAPTER (No. 78).—A convocation of this chapter was held on Thursday, October 11th, at the Bridge House Hotel. There were present Comps. J. W. Baldwin, M.E.Z.; J. Mason, H.; F. Walters, P.P.G.A.S. Middlesex, P.Z. as J. Apologies were received from absent candidates. A letter of condolence was ordered to be sent to the widow of the late Comp.

Edward Harris, P.Z., who died on the 10th inst. The chapter was then closed. Louis Becklate, 176, was present as a visitor.

JERUSALEM CHAPTER (No. 185).—The first convocation of this old chapter since the recess was held at the Freemasons' Tavern, on the 9th instant. There were present Comps. Elsam, M.E.Z.; Wagner, H.; Robinson, J.; Davage, P.Z., S.E.; Mander, S.N.; Walls, P.S.; Stewart, Second Assistant; Holbrook, P.Z.; Loewenstark, P.Z.; Harfield, P.Z., Treasurer; Whitley and Bentley, Janitors. The minutes of the April convocation having been read and confirmed, two propositions were taken and the companions adjourned to the banquet. Comp. Leah, late of 185 was a visitor. The preliminary toasts having been satisfactorily disposed of "The Health of the M.E.Z." was proposed in fitting terms by Comp. Loewenstark, and having been duly honoured was acknowledged by the First Principal, who stated that he was pleased that notwithstanding their long recess no calamity had befallen any of the members of the old Jerusalem. He felt honoured at occupying that position more especially, and he hoped that they would pardon his egotism—as he had filled all the intermediate offices with the exception of one, and believed he had given every satisfaction in the discharge of his duties to the present time. "The Health of the Visitor" followed, and was responded to by Comp. Leah. In proposing "The Second and Third Principals" the M.E.Z. in the course of his remarks said that both Comps. Wagner and Robinson who held those positions were excellent students of the science of Royal Arch Masonry, and that when their time came to occupy the First Principal's Chair that they would be thoroughly conversant with every detail of its duties. The companions thus honoured in their reply expressed the great interest that they took in the progress of the "Sublime Degree," and that they were determined to spare no efforts to render No. 185 equal to any chapter in the Metropolitan area. As the hour was getting advanced the remaining toasts were given quickly and briefly. They were "The Past Principals," "The Treasurer and Scribes," and "The P. Soj. and Assistant." Companion Loewenstark replied for the former, and Comps. Harfield, Mander, and Walls for the two latter. During the evening the companions were entertained by Comps. Mander, Leah, Robinson, Walls, and others.

LION AND LAMB CHAPTER (No. 192).—A convocation of this Chapter was held on Wednesday, 17th inst. There were present: Comps. Copestick, Z.; Birdseye, H.; Roberts, J.; George Kenning, Treas.; Fellows, S.E.; Phythian, P.S.; Hooton, 1st A.S.; Storr, 2nd A.S.; Child, E. Jones, Chambers, Lorkin, Medwin, Potter, Muggeridge, Kent, Cann, Arkell, Wilson, and Brand. The visitors were Comps. Dr. Pottle, 1056; D. W. Pearce, Camell, 1216. The minutes having been confirmed, Comp. E. Benard was exalted, and the following were elected as officers for the ensuing year: Comps. Birdseye, Z.; Chapman, H.; Hooton, J.; Storr, P.S.; Phythian, S.N.; Fellows, S.E.; Gilbert, J.; Potter and Medwin, Auditors; Harrison, Janitor. The business over, the companions adjourned to the banquet.

Mark Masonry.

ERA LODGE (No. 176).—This Mark lodge met on Friday, the 12th inst., at the Bridge House Hotel. Bro. Rev. Holden, W.M., in an able manner advanced Bro. G. W. Baldwin, P.G.P. Middlesex, P.M. 1423, &c., into Mark Masonry. The W.M. was supported by his officers, Bro. F. Walters, P.P.G.G.D. Middlesex, P.G.I.G., Sec.; F. Horton, J.W.; R. P. Tebb, and several others. Bro. J. Hammond was present as a visitor.

SUPREME COUNCIL 33°.

The half-yearly meeting of the Supreme Council, 33°, was held on Tuesday, 9th October, at the Masonic Hall, 33, Golden-square, W. Ill. Bro. Captain N. G. Phillips, Lieut.-Grand Comdr., 33°, and G. Deacon of England, presided in the absence of M.P. Bro. Lord Skelmersdale, Sov. Grand Comdr., 33°, and Deputy Grand Master of England, caused by the serious illness of Lady Skelmersdale. There were also present Ill. Bros. Major-General Henry Clerk, F.R.S., G. Treasurer-General, 33°; Robert Hamilton, M.D., M.A., Grand Chaplain, 33°, District Grand Master of Jamaica; J. M. Pulteney Montagu, D.L., Grand Chancellor, 33°, P.D.P.G. Master of Dorset; Lieut.-Colonel A. W. Adair, S.G.I.G., 33°, P.P.G.M. of Somerset; H. D. Sandeman, S.G.I.G., 33°, P. A letter was read from M.P. Bro. Lord Skelmersdale, Sov. Grand Comdr., 33°, stating his great regret at being prevented from attending by the serious illness of Lady Skelmersdale.

A circular was read which had been issued to all the Chapters, &c., expressing the loss of the Council by the death of M.P. Bro. Charles John Vigne, J.P., P. Sov. Grand Commander, 33°, who had been connected with the A. and A. Rite for nearly a quarter of a century.

The Grand Treasurer General, Ill. Bro. General Clerk, R.A., 33°, submitted the accounts as audited to 30th June, 1877, showing a balance in favour of the Supreme Council of £1191 1s. 10d., and property valued at £11,739 2s. 9d. The following donations were voted:

One hundred pounds to the Indian Famine Relief Fund, Mansion House.

Fifty guineas to the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys.

Fifty guineas to the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls.

Fifty pounds to the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution for Aged Freemasons and Widows.

These three latter amounts to be placed on the lists of those brethren representing the Friends-in-Council Lodge, 1383, as Stewards.

Ill. Bro. Lieut.-Col. H. S. Somerville Burney, 32°, was appointed and invested as Grand Director of Ceremonies, in the vacancy caused by the death of the much-esteemed and lamented Bro. Henry Dubosc, 32°.

The Supreme Council of the A. and A. Rite, 33°, met at the Masonic Hall, 33, Golden-square, W., on Wednesday, 10th October, for the purpose of conferring degrees on those brethren elected and approved.

Ill. Bro. Captain N. G. Phillips, Lieut. G. Canada, 33°, and P.M.P. Sov. Grand Comdr. presided, and amongst those present were:—Ill. Bros. Major General Clerk, R.A.; Robert Hamilton, M.A., M.D.; Major Shadwell Clerke, R.B.G.; Henry C. Vernon, J. M. P. Montagu, D.L. &c.; Lieut. Colonel Adair, M.A., J.P., and H. D. Sandeman, of the Supreme Council, 33°; Major George Barlow, D.I.G.; Samuel Rawson, D.I.G.; Charles Fendelow, D.I.G.; C. J. Banister, D.I.G.; General Doherty, C.B., D.I.G.; R. W. H. Giddy, D.I.G.; Raphael Costa, D.I.G.; Andrew Hay, D.I.G.; Lieut. General J. Studholme Brownrigg, C.B., and W. Hyde Pullen, 33°. Ill. Bros. Rev. T. F. Ravenshaw, Major Molineux, Rev. C. R. Davy, Charles Horsley, Col. T. Birchall, Thomas Jowitt, David Ross, McCord (of Canada), Captain W. F. Portlock Dadson, George Lambert, and Lieut. Colonel Somerville Burney, 32°. Ill. Bros. Henry Murray, Hugh H. Riach, R. de M. Lawson, Frank Richardson, James Keene, H. C. Leander, Magnus Ohren, H. R. Cooper Smith, Rev. F. G. Beaumont, Thomas Trollope, M.D.; and Rev. Ambrose W. Hall, 31°, W. Bros. John Boyd, Captain Compton, Edward Grisbrook, Rev. Fred King, Captain F. Turner, Walter Spencer, Major F. I. Ricardo, Seaxer, E. B. Webb, C. Edwin Willing, C. H. Driver, William Russell, J. F. Hoffgaard, Rev. T. W. Lemon, Alfred Richards, Robert Stewart, Mark Batt Tauner, M.D., Chevalier C. E. Habicht, E. Ashworth, John Adams, Acton, Thomas Cubitt, Edmund R. Tynims, J. J. Hooper, Wilkins, Daniel Nicols, Rudolph G. Glover, S. S. Partridge, George Higgins, John Gibb Smith, Peter Royle, M.D., Rev. J. Studholme, Brownrigg, S. G. Kirchoffer, Sir Charles J. Bright, John Wood, &c., 30°.

The 33rd Degree was conferred on Ill. Bro. Lieutenant General J. Studholme Brownrigg, C.B.

The 32nd Degree was conferred on Ill. Bros. Lieutenant Col. Augustus H. King, R.A.; George Lambert, and Lieut.-Col. H. S. Somerville Burney.

The 31st Degree was conferred on Ill. Bros. Frank Richardson, the Rev. J. G. Beaumont, M.F.; H. R. Cooper Smith, M.A.; the Rev. Ambrose W. Hall, M.A.; and Thomas Trollope, M.D.

Bros. Sir George Elliot, Bart., M.P.; Charles Hammetton, Major J. R. Pearson, R.A.; and Henry Seebohm, were prevented from attending for the 31st Degree.

Dallin, M.A.; St. Clair F. Hood, and Captain Henry S. Andrews, who had been elected to the 30th Degree, were prevented by various causes from attending on this occasion.

A vote of thanks was given by acclamation to Ill. Bro. Major General H. Clerk, Grand Treasurer General, 33°, for the very able and careful manner in which he rendered the ceremonies, and also for the great care with which he has managed the accounts of the Council.

A vote of welcome expressing the pleasure afforded to the Council by the presence of brethren hailing from sister jurisdictions was unanimously voted to Ill. Bro. Daniel Ross McCord, 32°, of Canada, who returned thanks for the same in eloquent terms.

MASONIC PRESENTATION TO BRO. SIR WATKIN WILLIAMS WYNN.

A meeting of the Grand Officers of the Province of North Wales and Shropshire has been held at Oswestry, to consider what form the commemoration of the R.W. Bro. Sir Watkin's reign of a quarter of a century over the province, should take place, when it was resolved that the P.G.M. should be presented with an illuminated address, congratulating him on the event, and that a Life Presentation to the Boys' Masonic School should be purchased to be called "The Sir Watkin Presentation." It was also agreed that the Worshipful Masters of each lodge in the province should be requested to solicit subscriptions towards this object both from individual members from their lodge funds.

From the illustrated history of the Williams Wynn family, called Wynnstay and the Wynns, we learn that "In 1852 Sir Watkin received the distinguished appointment he holds at the present time, that of Provincial Grand Master of North Wales and Shropshire. The Grand Lodge warrant appointing 'our well-beloved Bro. Sir Watkin Williams Wynn, in the county of Denbigh, baronet; Representative in Parliament for the county of Denbigh; Lieut.-Col. Commandant of the Montgomeryshire Yeomanry Cavalry, and Steward of Her Majesty's Manorial Courts in Denbighshire—Provincial Grand Master for North Wales with the county of Salop added,' is dated January 13, 1852, and is signed 'Zetland, G.M.; Yarborough, D.G.M.; William H. White, G.S.' The ceremony of installation took place at Shrewsbury on the 9th of March, 1852, when Bro. the Right Honorable Lord Combermere, the hero of Bhurtpore, the Right Worshipful the Grand Master for Cheshire, who had taken great interest in Sir Watkin's Masonic movements, was specially deputed by the Grand Master of England, Lord Zetland, to perform the ceremony of installation. Bro. White, Grand Junior Deacon of England, attended with the warrant of appointment, and the direction of the ceremonies devolved upon Bro. Griffiths, G.S. of the Cheshire Province, at Lord Combermere's request. The Rev. Canon Bowles, D.P.G.M. for Herefordshire, acted as Deputy Grand Master, and amongst the brethren who assisted were Lord Dungannon, Sir Andrew V. Corbett, the Rev. J. Osmond Dakeyne, one of the Grand Chaplains of England, &c. Sir Watkin was introduced and presented by Bro. Colonel Burton, C.B., Grand Master for the Province of Bengal.—Oswestry Advertiser.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.

At a dinner, given in connection with this Institution, at Freemasons' Tavern, on Monday evening, Bro. Binckes, the Secretary, in responding to the toast of "The Institution," which was proposed by Bro. Raynham W. Stewart, V.P., referred to the enlargement of the school, which was now in progress, and expressed the hope that in the course of two or three years it would accommodate from 220 to 230 boys. The strong support which the Institution had received from the Craft in general, and from the provinces and London in particular, justified the Committee in giving greater accommodation, and thereby meeting the growing demands of the Craft. With reference to the success of the School, as an educational establishment, it had met with general approval. While the intellectual culture of the children was carefully studied, their physical training was not neglected, and whenever they had entered the lists in bodily or mental tests, they had, as a rule, come out victorious. In their recent cricket match with the pupils of the Grocers' School, at the Alexandra Palace, they scored more than 200 to their opponents' 24, and similar success attended them in football and other matches. With regard to their scholastic acquirements, the large number of successful competitors at the Cambridge Local Examinations was sufficient evidence that their intellectual cultivation was not neglected. A small section of the Craft had taken exception to the cost of the education given by the Institution; but he was happy to say that the general body saw nothing excessive in it; and even if it was a trifle above the cost of the education given at other Institutions (and it was really only a trifle), the results were comparatively so much greater, that this alone was ample justification for incurring the extra expense.

CLEOPATRA'S NEEDLE.

[The following appears in the Times of Thursday.] "Falmouth, Oct. 17.—The Olga, steamer, arrived at 9 p.m. The Cleopatra was abandoned on Sunday night, in lat. 44° 53' N., long 7° 52' W., in a gale from the S.W. (force 7 to 8). The second mate and five hands were lost in endeavouring to save the Cleopatra."

Captain Carter, of the Cleopatra, telegraphs to us from Falmouth the same sad news:—

"The Cleopatra was thrown upon her beam-ends during a heavy gale in the Bay of Biscay, on Sunday night. The ballast broke adrift and the vessel was abandoned on Monday morning, in a hopeless condition, I fear. A boat's crew of six poor men, who came to our assistance from the Olga, have perished. The crew of the Cleopatra are all saved."

Another telegram sent to us from Falmouth says:— "On Sunday night, during the terrible gale from the south-west, the Cleopatra was thrown on her beam-ends. The ballast broke adrift, and all efforts to save her were fruitless. The second mate of the Olga and five men attempted to get alongside the Cleopatra to rescue her crew, but their boat was swamped, and they were all lost."

We also have an earlier telegram from Mr. John Dixon, C.E., dated from the signal station at the Lizard Point. The Olga was then (at 6:30 p.m.) steaming slowly past the Lizard, but nothing was to be seen astern, and it was thought that the Cleopatra might be lashed alongside. We now know that this surmise was unhappily incorrect. Yesterday we reported that Mr. Dixon had such faith in the buoyancy of the Cleopatra, that, even in the event of her breaking adrift, or of the Olga being obliged to cast her off, he thought that she "would but drift slowly and safely to seaward, to be picked up again by the Olga when the weather cleared." Captain Carter, as will be gathered from his telegram, does not share this opinion, and fears that the recovery of the Cleopatra and the obelisk is hopeless.

The strike on the branches of the Great Southern and Western Railway of Ireland has terminated. The discontented men returned to work on Monday.

A meeting has been held in Dundee, at which it was resolved to start a subscription for the erection of a statue of Burns in that town.

THE QUEEN AND THE ROYAL FAMILY.

The Queen and Court are at Balmoral.

H.R.H. the Prince of Wales has brought his two sons to Clarence House.

The Duke of Connaught has been confined to the house at Lord Rossmore's.

The Duke of Cambridge has continued his inspections. His Serene Highness the Duke of Teck, and her Royal Highness the Princess Mary Adelaide (Duchess) arrived at White-lodge, Richmond-park, on Saturday, from Brussels.

NOTES ON ART, &amp;c.

A Congress of Librarians might do some good across the Atlantic, where in the classified index of one library Aristophanes' "Frogs" has been placed under the head of "Reptiles."

Two Birds of Paradise, from New Guinea, are now in the Paris Jardin d'Acclimation, the first living specimens ever brought to France. These birds are very rarely secured alive, as they are specially shy and difficult to approach.

A fresh Arctic Expedition will be undertaken by Sir Allen Young in the "Pandora" next spring. He will probably try the Spitzbergen route, as Smith's Sound has been now so fully explored. Anent Arctic research, Professor Nordenskiöld has decided on his route through the Polar regions next year. The Professor will leave Sweden in July, hoping to reach Nova Zembla in the beginning of August and the Yenisei shortly afterwards, will thence round the most northern point of Asia, called Tscheljuskin, and will arrive in Behring's Straits about the end of September. He will then skirt China and India, and return home by the Suez Canal and the Mediterranean. The Swedish expedition will sail in a specially constructed steamer provisioned for two years, and will consist of a crew of twenty-two men, with a doctor and scientific staff.

A beautiful white Alabaster Pietà has been unearthed at the Parish Church of Breadsall, near Derby, now being restored. The Pietà apparently belongs to the fifteenth century, and is probably of continental workmanship, while it is supposed to have been hidden away from the Puritans. It is about two feet six inches high, and bears traces of colouring and gilding, but unfortunately in the excavation the sculpture was slightly injured, part of the face of the Christ and the head and hands of the Virgin being damaged. The Pietà is, however, to be restored, and placed in the church.

A new Government Filter has been invented which will reduce strong tea and infusions of logwood to clear tasteless water. Major Crease is the inventor, and the filter was shown at the recent soirée at Guy's Hospital.

Railway travelling in France is decidedly safer than in our own country, to judge from recent statistics. Thus between the years 1872-5 only one person was killed out of every 41,258,270 travellers on the French lines, and one person injured in 1,024,360, while during the same period in England one traveller was killed in 12,000,000 and one injured of every 336,000.

Mdme. Christine Nilsson left England on Wednesday to fulfil a three months' engagement at Moscow and St. Petersburg. On Monday she sang in one of Mr. Kube's grand concerts at Brighton.—Madme. Adeline Patti has been staying in London, pending the series of concerts for which she is engaged in the "provinces." From England she goes to Milan, and, it is rumoured, will pass the winter in Italy.—Mdme. Annetta Eschhoff, the charming Russian pianist, is taking a holiday at Venice, and intends paying us a visit, either in the winter of this year or the spring of the next; so that, what with Rubinstein, Bülow, &c., we shall have enough to do with foreign pianistic virtuosi for a good time to come.

The Famous German Tragedian, Devrient, has died at Frankfurt.

"Hamlet" has been translated into Portuguese by the King of Portugal, who, however, publishes his work anonymously. The translation is said to be very well done.

Despite announcements to the contrary, Mr. Delane, whose health we are glad to say is greatly improved, is still acting as editor of the Times. He will continue to do so till he can devolve his authority upon a successor who has been prepared by him to exercise it.—Athenæum.

The Academy states that Messrs. C. Kegan Paul and Co. have purchased the publishing business of Messrs. Henry S. King and Co., of 65 Cornhill, and 1, Paternoster-square. The new firm will carry on business at the latter address, Messrs. King's Bank and Indian Agency remaining in Cornhill.

St. Margaret's Westminster.—"A very interesting fact has come to light which corroborates Stow's statement that the great chancel of St. Margaret's was built by the Abbots of Westminster." Upon the string which crosses the east wall the well-known rebus of Abbot Islip has been found. He was elected on October 27, 1500, and died on May 11, 1532. The churchwardens' accounts for the years 1496-1502 mention purchase of rag-stone, Caen stone, Ryegate stone, and free-stone, and also payments to masons, carpenters, and joiners. Sir Thomas Billing (Lord Chief Justice) and his wife built the south aisle, and it was the place of the lady's interment on March 14, 1499. At the second bay from the east in this aisle, the lower door of the staircase and the doorway which opened to a rood loft, stretching from one wall to the other, are still visible. In the north aisle there is a square sepulchral recess, with traces of figures of angels in distemper colour, and the indentations of two small brasses. The image of St. Margaret has been found decapitated and broken in pieces; the robes were painted red and green and covered with a beautiful gold pattern of conventional foliage. There is a notice of gilding her cross-staff in 1515. Some Jacobean texts remain on the east wall, and two apertures for light on either side of the place of the high altar. This noble and, indeed, national church, 130ft. long and 65ft. in breadth, deserves, and will repay, the cost which may be expended on its restoration.

Messrs. Remington have just issued a small volume of poetry bearing the felicitous title of "Pictures in Verse," the matter, however, to be in keeping, should be exceptionally good, for though the title be happy it is ambitious, and is suggestive of no common powers of description.

Masonic and General Tidings.

We learn that overtures have been made to Bro. W. Smaile, of the Emulation Lodge of Instruction, with a view of his becoming Preceptor to the London Masonic Club Lodge of Instruction. In the event of Bro. Smaile accepting the office, which we confidently expect he will, his election will take place on Monday next, when we have no doubt a large number of brethren will attend to support so eminent an instructor. Bros. C. Hogg, and J. E. Shand will be certain to be again elected respectively, Treasurer and Secretary. The lodge meets at the London Masonic Club, 101, Queen Victoria-street, and will open at 6 o'clock p.m. We shall give a report of the meeting in our next.

MASONIC LIBERALITY.—At the last ordinary meeting of the Harmonic Lodge, No. 216, held at the Adelphi Hotel, Liverpool, Bro. D. S. Davies, W.M., in the chair, a sum of £20 was unanimously voted from the funds of the lodge in aid of the noble national effort to relieve the every-day necessities of our perishing fellow creatures in India. This gift is all the more creditable to the "Harmonic," as it is not so very long ago that votes amounting to upwards of £100 were made by the brethren in aid of our own noble Masonic charities.

KILBURN LODGE No. 1608.—The Installation meeting of this lodge will take place on Monday next at the Queen's Arms Hotel, Kilburn. Lodge will be opened at half-past 3 precisely. A full report of the proceedings will appear in our next.

Mr. Thom, whose name was well-known in connection with a previous publication, is about to bring out another, entitled "The County and Borough Magistrates' List and Official Register," which will comprise all Justices of the Peace for every County and Borough in England and Wales, with their Professional and Business Avocations, and the appointments and Offices they hold in each different county or borough; also, all the County and Borough Officials (Legal and Civil), and a complete Parliamentary Directory—about twenty thousand names in all. The publishers are to be Messrs. Butterworth, of London, Her Majesty's Law Publishers.—The Athenæum.

The consecration of the Sub-Urban Lodge, No. 1702, took place on Friday, the 19th inst, Bro. J. Tickle, P.M. 1196, was installed W.M., and Bros. C. E. Hawksley and A. F. Roberts were invested S.W. and J.W. A full report will be given in our next.

The place of meeting of the St. James's Lodge of Instruction has been changed from the New Tanners' Arms, Grange-road, Bermondsey, to the Gregorian Arms, 96, Jamaica-road, where it will meet in future on Friday evenings.

The 15 sections will be worked in the Tredgar Lodge of Instruction, No. 1625, held at Bro. A. Yates, Royal Hotel, Mile End-road, on the second Monday in November (12th proximo). The W.M. on that occasion will be Bro. T. J. Barnes, P.M., P.Z., &c.

We are desired to state that the 15 sections will be worked in the Percy Lodge of Instruction, meeting at No. 113, Southgate-road, N., on Saturday next, the 27th inst.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF MARK MASONS.—The County Palatine of Lancaster Provincial Grand Lodge of Mark Master Masons will be held in the Freemasons' Hall, Church Institute, Bolton, on Monday the 22nd inst., at half-past two o'clock. Bro. the Right Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, R.W. Prov. G.M.M.M., will preside. At the conclusion of the business there will be a banquet, Bro. Lord Skelmersdale in the chair.

MANCHESTER.—For the information of the fraternity in Manchester, the publisher begs to state that the Freemason may now be obtained at 47, Bridge-st., Manchester, on Saturday morning at 8 o'clock.

We learn that a marriage is arranged between the Right Hon. the Lord Mayor, (Bro. Sir Thomas White) and Miss Florence Simpson.

The Members of the Masonic Foot Ball Club play their next match this day (Saturday), with the St. Phillips Rovers at Battersea Park, an account of which we shall give next week.

LIVERPOOL AND THE INDIAN FAMINE FUND.—The contribution from Liverpool to the Indian Famine Relief Fund now amount to the magnificent sum of £30,000.

Constitutions of the Ancient Fraternity of Free and Accepted Masons, containing the Charges, Regulations, E.A. Song, &c. A copy should be in the possession of every brother. It may be obtained for 2s. at the office of the Freemason, or will be sent post free to any part of the United Kingdom on receipt of twenty-five penny stamps. Address, Publisher, 198, Fleet-street, London.—Advt.

ERRATUM.—In the report of the Consecration of the New Finsbury Park Lodge, "Crampton," J.D., was erroneously printed "Frampton."

MASONIC SONGS.—A selection of Masonic Songs set to popular airs, written by Bro. E. P. Philpots, M.D., F.R.G.S., is now ready, forming a handsome volume, bound in cloth, with gilt edges, 3s. Sent post free from the office of this paper on receipt of stamps or post-office order value 3s. 2d.—Advt.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—At the changes of seasons many persons feel oppressed without knowing why they are so; they are aware something within them is wrong, though they cannot detect the defective organ. A few doses of these powerfully purifying and eminently cooling pills will restore regularity to every part of the system, will cast out all impurities lurking in the frame, and will thoroughly expel the last traces of disorder, however hidden the disease may be, however obscure its cause. With Holloway's medicine relief is insured without risk; erroneous action is rectified without disturbing natural regularity, and health is reinstated, and with it the cheerful feelings which unmistakably tell the recent invalid that all within is right again.—Advt.

The consecration or re-consecration of the Hartismere Lodge took place on Wednesday last. The ceremony was performed by Lord Skelmersdale, R.W., Deputy Grand Master, assisted by Lord Donoughmore, P.S.G.W., and Bro. John Hervey, Grand Secretary. Lord Henniker was installed first W.M. A full report will appear in our next.

NEW SOUTH WALES.—The brethren who have experienced so much difficulty in procuring the Freemason in this distant colony, will be pleased to learn that owing to arrangements made with Messrs. T. J. Jones and Son, "The Four Masonic Publications" may now be obtained at their offices, No. 339, George street, Sydney, on the arrival of the mail.

LIVERPOOL.—In answer to the numerous letters that the publisher has received from brethren in Liverpool, we beg to state that the Freemason is to be obtained in Liverpool on Friday afternoon at 5 o'clock, at the Office, 2, Monument-place; at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street; and at the Landing Stage.

The Right Hon. the Earl of Carnarvon is entertaining, at his seat, Highclere Castle, near Newbury, a circle of visitors, including Lord Lyons, the Right Hon. George Selater-Booth, M.P., and Mrs. Booth, Mr. Robert Herbert, Mr. Sheffield, Mr. Jekyll, &c.

A Special Performance of Handel's "Messiah," in support of the Indian Famine Fund, is announced to take place on the 29th inst., at the Surrey Chapel, Blackfriars, under the patronage of the Lord Mayor, Mr. Watney, M.P., Mr. Morgan Howard, Q.C., Sir J. Lawrence, M.P., and other gentlemen of influence.

Bro. P. L. Simmonds has been requested by the Royal Commission for the Paris Exhibition to prepare for the British and French catalogues introductions to all the classes, showing the progress of the nation in arts, industry, and manufactures, in the ten years since the last Paris Exhibition.—City Press.

OLYMPIC THEATRE.—For the convenience of families residing a distance from town, Bro. Henry Neville announces a morning performance of Mr. Wilkie Collins's new drama, "The Moonstone," for Saturday week the 27th inst.

The annual banquet of the Pythagorean Lodge of Instruction, No. 79 will be held at the Portland Hotel, London-street, Greenwich, on Wednesday, 24th October, when Bro. J. R. Dussee, P.M. 79, will preside.

On Tuesday the subject of the return, for the third time, of Sir John Bennett as Alderman for the Ward of Cheap, was taken into consideration at a meeting of the Court of Aldermen, held in the Guildhall, the Lord Mayor in the chair. After great discussion the recorder read the resolutions to which the Court had come after considering the matter. The Court held to its former opinion—that Sir John Bennett was and still continued to be not a fit and proper person for the office, and determined to adjourn for a week, and then to take into consideration the election of a fit and proper person to fill the vacancy. Upon leaving the court Sir John Bennett was loudly cheered.

We are informed that the Lord Mayor of London, accompanied by the Sheriffs, will pay a visit to Brighton, as the guest of the Mayor of Brighton, and that early next week there will be a public reception of General Grant, who will be entertained at a banquet in the Pavilion by the Mayor, Corporation, and inhabitants of the borough.

It was agreed at a special meeting of the Glasgow Corporation, on Thursday, that the freedom of the city should be conferred on Bro. the Right Hon. Lord Hartington R.W.G.M., Derbyshire, on his visit to Scotland next month.

ABBOTT TESTIMONIAL FUND.—At the meeting of the Executive Committee of this fund, held at the Cannon-st. Hotel, it was unanimously resolved that the fund be finally closed on Saturday, December 1st. To those of our readers who recognised the efficient services, uniform courtesy, and marked attention of Bro. George Abbott, during the many years he discharged his duties as station master of the Cannon-street Terminus; we commend this notice, and ask all intending contributors to forward, at their earliest convenience, the amount they desire to subscribe to Messrs. Glynn, Mills, and Co., 67, Lombard-street, E.C. The list of contributions has already reached the sum of £300.

The following reports unavoidably stand over: Amherst Lodge, 1223; Era Lodge, 1423; Lodge of Truth, 1458; Francis Burdett Lodge, 1503; Metropolitan Lodge, 1507; Morecambe Lodge, 1561; Carnarvon Lodge, 1572; Ecclestone Lodge, 1624; Beaconsfield Lodge, 1662; Industry Chapter, 186; Fidelity Chapter, 248; William de la More Encampment.

Now binding, will be ready on the 24th inst., post free, 2s. 1d. The Cosmopolitan Masonic Calendar Diary and Pocket Book for 1878. It contains lists of Lodges, Chapters, Encampments, Conclaves and Grand Councils, with the names of Officers in England, Scotland, Ireland, and all parts of the World. Single copies ordered by letter may be paid for by stamps; orders for more than one to be accompanied by Post Office Order, payable at the Chief Office, London. Address Publisher, 198, Fleet Street, London. (Advt.)

SAFETY OF CLEOPATRA'S NEEDLE.

(LLOYD'S TELEGRAM.)

FERROL, Oct. 18.

The Fitzmaurice, steamer, from Middlesburg for Valencia, fell in with and recovered at sea the Cleopatra's Needle, 90 miles north of Ferrol.

Reviews.

"The New Shakesperian Dictionary of Quotations." By G. SOMERS BELLAMY. Charing Cross Publishing Company.

As Mr. Bellamy very modestly puts it, in his preface, "There is no work more laborious than the compiler's, and none less appreciated," but, nevertheless, in this careful "labour of love," dedicated, by the way, to the Lord Chief Justice, we discern a great measure of utility, and good. It is curious, and amusing to note, how often we quote Shakespeare, (pardon my old spelling), without knowing it, and how many oft repeated "saws," and familiar utterances are literally children of the "Bard of Avon."

Mr. Bellamy, in our opinion, deserves the thanks of all who admire "Honest Will," and of all friends of civilizing sympathies for his very well conceived and admirably executed work. It is quite true that there have been many books of "Shakesperian Quotations;" nay, we believe there is a Concordance of Shakespeare, (a misuse altogether of the word), and as for "Beauties of Shakespeare" and selections of Shakespeare, natural or expurgated, they are also many—too many to remember. We should perhaps, be led to suppose, therefore, that Shakespeare is more read than ever, but we are not quite prepared to concede this fact, qua a fact. Indeed, it is averred by some that Shakespeare, though often talked about, and ingeniously quoted, is less read, like another and better Book, than of old, and that many who appear to be well versed in his "high philosophies" and "gracious conceits," seldom study him carefully, and know little about him truly and spiritually. Be this as it may, and there is, we are inclined to think, some truth in the allegation, we hold Mr. Bellamy's book to be a useful "vade mecum" and "guide book" for the Shakesperian student. For all may avail themselves of the gems of thought he indicates and all may appropriately use the illustrative quotations he has so laboriously collected and collated. The divine, the judge, the lawyer, the student, the merchant, the Freemason may find apt "quips" and suitable quotations in numberless passages of his writings, which seem to be like his genius, "for all time."

We feel sure that in commending Mr. Bellamy's most useful and valuable work to the attention of the educated and intelligent of our great brotherhood we are performing a duty for which they will thank us, we are offering them a most valuable "index," (not "expurgatorius," we beg to observe), to the abounding wealth of Shakesperian thought and the results of Shakesperian wisdom.

We may add that in the work there are no less than 4000 quotations.

"A Connection between the Templars and the Freemasons of the City of York."

We have received and studied with much interest a Paper read before the Members of the Ancient Ebor Preceptory, No. 101, September 11th, 1877, by E. Sir Knt. J. B. Whitehead, E.P., with this heading, and though we cannot conscientiously agree with the views of the writer, yet as they are so ably put forward and so moderately expressed, that we deem the little work worthy of something more than a mere passing perusal. Sir Knt. Whitehead seems to assume as his "petitio principii" that the modern Masonic or non-Masonic Knights Templar are the lineal and actual descendants of the famous chivalry of the Temple, that they retain in some way or other, which "deponent doth not explain," the forms and secret usages of the actual Templars. But Bro. Whitehead, though he traces out quite correctly the history of the Northern English Templars to their absorption in the Northern Convents, under the auspices of Archbishop Greenfield, in 1311, yet can carry historically the annals of the Order no further. His statement that in 1312 they were all relieved from their obligatory confinement is not confirmed by historical documents, as the accounts of the hospitaliers disclose pensions to Knights Templars in the north much later. The truth is that from 1312 to 1780—468 years—nothing more seems heard of the Templars in York. Then the G.S. of the Grand Lodge, who had become a Templar Mason, became a zealous advocate of the higher grades.

Bro. Whitehead can still see the draft in the York Archives of a proposed warrant for a Templar Chapter of "Knights of the Holy Sepulchre of St. John of Jerusalem," with all its erasures and interlineations, showing that up to that time no proper warrant had been issued. What is the evidence of Templar perpetuation during the 468 years? Practically nil. The Charter of Larmenius at Paris is clearly a forgery. The Scottish evidences of Templary under Jacobite leadership are of dubious authority, and there is not the slightest evidence accruing, or Addison would have produced it, that the Southern Templars, after their imprisonment and ill treatment, ever met again as such. Where Dunckerley obtained his Templary from is still a moot point, and he is the Southern reviver of it. The theory that the modern Templars have any historical connection with the old, is, in our opinion, an utter delusion. Every usage is modern, and utterly alien from the real customs of the true Templars. "Encampment" is a modern word, and no "Preceptory" of Templars was ever called after a person, but a place. The "locus in quo" where the Preceptory, was situated, as Bro. Whitehead well knows.

There is not in the Templar ritual any remains of "knightly archaisms," indeed it is notoriously most modern. The very adaptation of the power of granting knighthood, (which by the way does not seem to have been ever given by the Grand Master of the old Templars), is in itself an error. Knighthood can only be granted by the Crown for public services to the Crown or state, and the only exception we know of is the Knights of the Holy Sepulchre at Jerusalem, which knighthood used to be conferred by the Prior of the Franciscan Convent at Jerusalem. In a word, all such societies in England, are skilful adaptations of older and different societies, and nothing more. But when we write history we should seek to write history, authentic, matter of fact, and not colour it by prepossessions, however amiable ideal attributes, however innocuous.

THE CITY COMPANIES.

On Wednesday week, the Lord Mayor and the Lady Mayoress entertained the Masters of the various Guilds of the City of London at dinner in the Egyptian-hall of the Mansion-house. The Companies represented were, giving them in order of seniority—the Mercers, Drapers, Fishmongers, Goldsmiths, Skinners, Merchant Tailors, Haberdashers, Salters, Ironmongers, Vintners, Clothworkers, Leathersellers, Pewterers, Barbers, Cutlers, Bakers, Tallow Chandlers, Armourers and Braziers, Girdlers, Butchers, Saddlers, Carpenters, Cordwainers, Painters, Curriers, Masons, Plumbers, Innholders, Founders, Poulterers, Coopers, Cooks, Tilers and Bricklayers, Bowyers, Fletchers, Blacksmiths, Joiners, Weavers, Woolmen, Scriveners, Fruiterers, Plasterers, Stationers, Broderers, Upholders, Turners, Glaziers, Horners, Farriers, Apothecaries, Shipwrights, Clockmakers, Glovers, Feltmakers, Framework Knitters, Watermen, Carmen, Needle-makers, Tinplate-workers, Wheelwrights, Distillers, Glass-sellers, Coach-makers, Gunmakers, Wire-drawers, Playing Card Makers, and Fan-makers, each Master being accompanied by a lady. There were also present a large number of municipal dignitaries.

After dinner the Lord Mayor drank to his guests in a loving cup, which was passed round the board. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts having been duly honoured, the Lord Mayor proposed "The Houses of Lords and Commons," observing that perhaps at no time had there been a more critical period in the history of England than the present, and the two Houses of Legislature had spent many anxious hours in discussing questions fraught with momentous concern to our happiness and prosperity. Mr. Alderman Cotton, M.P., the senior member for the City, who met with a warm reception, remarked, in reply, that the Guilds somewhat resembled the Government of this country. Each had its Master, who was invested like a Sovereign, with limited power; each possessed Wardens or Ministers, a Court and Livery, answering to the two Houses of Parliament, and each had freemen, who were the great electoral body. These points of resemblance might account for the Conservative feeling which pervaded the whole of the Guilds of the City, and which would, he hoped, ever prevent any successful attack on them. The Lord Mayor next proposed "The Guilds of the City of London," and took occasion, first of all, to allude to the great help which those Guilds had rendered to him in his work of raising funds for the relief of the sufferers by the Indian Famine. He next referred to their great value as the means of affording education and to the great interest they took in technical studies, exemplified appropriately by the excellent exhibition of turnery now being held in the Mansion-house. He wished them every prosperity and a long continuance of their work and influence. Mr. Aston, the Master of the Mercers' Company, the oldest Guild in the City, replied very briefly, tendering to the Lord Mayor the warmest thanks of the Companies for the honour he had done them by entertaining them that evening, and expressing a wish that the friendship existing between the Corporation and the Guilds might continue as firm as hitherto. The Lord Mayor next gave "The Corporation of London," observing that it was important that none but men of character and position should become Aldermen or hold any public office within the City. This sentiment was loudly cheered, and Sir Robert Carden, who replied, taking up the subject, remarked that unlike country towns, where Aldermen had to be periodically re-elected or rejected, the Aldermen of London were chosen for life, and it therefore behoved the citizens, and especially those who had the power of veto, to see that none but fit and proper men, in every sense of the word, should be selected. The City magistrates, he added, were, as the public had seen, in earnest in their determination to discharge their duties in that respect. The Master of the Drapers' Company proposed, in complimentary terms, "The Lord Mayor's Health," which was warmly received. His Lordship returned thanks, and then gave "The Health of the Sheriffs," to which Mr. Alderman and Sheriff Staples replied. Mr. F. J. Bramwell, F.R.S., the Prime Warden of the Goldsmiths' Company, proposed "The Health of the Lady Mayoress" (Mrs. Cecil Price), with which the entertainment came to a close. The company separated about half-past 10 o'clock. The dinner was served from the establishment of Messrs. Ring and Brymer. Mr. Taylor acted as toastmaster; and Mr. Gate's quadrille band from Brighton played during dinner a choice selection of music.

TESTIMONIAL TO BROTHER CAPT. SEWELL, P.M. 21., P.G.S.B..

At the Guildhall Tavern, on Thursday week, Bro. T. D. Sewell was presented with a testimonial, consisting of a purse of 100 guineas and a massive silver salver. The inscription on the piece of plate indicates the object of the testimonial. It is as follows:—"Presented to Captain T. Sewell, together with a purse of 100 guineas, by nearly 100 members of the Worshipful Company of Shipwrights, to record their personal appreciation of his valuable services as clerk of the Company, especially in connexion with the competitive exhibition of models and designs for improvements in ship-building, 1877." There was a large attendance of gentlemen present, and thus the compliment to Bro. Sewell was enhanced. The Master (Mr. W. Broomham) presided. In making the presentation, Mr. Ex-Under-Sheriff Baxter made a very eloquent address, in which he succinctly and forcibly pointed out the reasons of the presentation.

Bro. Capt. Sewell replied as follows:—"Mr. ex-Under-Sheriff, Mr. Master, Mr. Warden Marshall, Lord John Manners, and Gentlemen,—I am at a loss for words to adequately acknowledge the very handsome gift which you have so generously presented to me to-day, but feel sure you will afford me a generous criticism whilst expressing my warmest thanks for this substantial token of good will, and your satisfaction at the manner in which I have humbly endeavoured to promote the interests of the worshipful Company of Shipwrights. Allow me to assure you, gentlemen, that such efforts as I have been able to make on behalf of the company, and more especially in promoting the success of the recent exhibition, have been to me a labour of love, and I have esteemed it a high privilege to have been associated with so many gentlemen of standing who have devoted their best energies to the work of organising and carrying through the details of the exhibition. Without such powerful aid any effort I may have made would have been almost thrown away. I must therefore be pardoned for congratulating the members of your court and of the able committee of practical shipwrights appointed from its midst, as also, the hon. Secretary, Mr. A. Sedgwick Woolley, upon the successful result of their labours, which has been to place the company in a foremost position amongst those guilds which have been of late reasserting their important influence upon their respective crafts, and by endeavouring to purify and elevate the taste of our artisans, and encouraging good workmanship and design, have made an important step towards the improvement of the manufactures and industries of this great commercial country. In the course of our mutual labours the foundations have, I trust, been laid of a lasting friendship with many gentlemen here present, and I regard it as a proud moment in my life to receive this public testimony of your approbation. This handsome salver I shall always hold amongst my most valued treasures, and it will ever recall to me the happy memory of this occasion, which I feel that I have but too faintly expressed in these few poor words. Allow me further, and in conclusion, gentlemen, to thank you individually for honouring me with your presence on this occasion, and to assure you that the recollection of your kindness will remain with me as long as I live.

MASONIC FOOTBALL CLUB v. COWLEY HOUSE F.C.

The above clubs met for the first time this season on the ground of the home team, on Wednesday, the 10th inst., in weather decidedly warm for football. Cowley won the toss, and kicked off against the wind at 3 p.m., the ball however, was quickly returned and brought uncomfortably near the Cowley House goal, and in fact was kept there all the whole game, through the excellent play and packing of the forwards, among whom Godsmark was especially conspicuous. The ball was run in no less than 14 times, chiefly by Parker, Ellis, and Godsmark, resulting in 9 goals, (all kicked by Scurr), 5 ties, and 3 touch-downs to nil.

The match throughout was a most hollow affair, as the Cowley House were literally driven all over the ground by the Masonic forwards, the former seeming to be in happy ignorance of the art of collaring.

Masonic Team:—Sparks, Howard, Molineaux, Hart, Whiteley, Nutt, H. Wood, Ed. Wood, Eastland and Godsmark, (Captain). Forwards:—Parker and Ellis (4 backs); Scurr and Davies, (4 backs); Phillips, (back).

FOOTBALL.—MASONIC F.C. v. VICTORIA F.C.

The above clubs played on the Masonic ground, on Saturday the 13th inst., resulting in a victory for the Victoria's by 1 goal and a try to nil. This match presents a striking contrast to the last, being throughout an excellently contested affair, the Masonic forwards again showing their superiority, although the Victoria's were a decidedly heavy team. For the losing team, Mr. Brocklehurst, Mr. Humphrey and Parker played in very good form.

Masonic Team:—Godsmark, Sparkes, Howard, Molineaux, Barrett, Davies, Hart, Ed. Wood, H. Wood and Eastland. Forwards:—Parker, and Ellis, (4 back); Mr. Brocklehurst and Scurr, (4 backs); Mr. Humphrey, (back).

Victoria:—T. Hewitt, (Captain); H. Michel, (4 back); R. D. Batten, (4 back); Frazar and Russell (backs). J. Coke, H. Smith, V. Lann, E. Smith, F. Baldwin, Burton, H. A. Booty, Friar, V. Baker, J. de Courcy.

BRO. ZACHARIAS JEPSON.

I see that the esteemed Provincial Grand Master of West Yorkshire states, in his able address to the Provincial Grand Lodge of West Yorkshire that Zacharias Jepson was a Freemason and Apothecary of York, and that he founded the hospital in 1672. Can any other archaeological brother in West Yorkshire tell us what is the actual evidence that Zacharias Jepson was a Freemason and Apothecary at that date? It would be a very important fact in itself, and I am sure Bro. W. J. Hughan will agree with me.

FRIARS AND FREEMASONS.

Our worthy contemporary Punch, under the above heading, gives us a little "Morceau" which we quoted last week, commenting upon it "more suo," and is good enough to express its innocent doubts as to the reality of a fact recorded by a facetious Ultramontane scribe, who has a keen perception both of a "canard" and a good joke. For it appears that the Civita Cattolica, an Ultramontane Italian paper, recently edified its readers with a profession of a moribund Freemason in twelve striking articles, apparently drawn up and uttered "in articulo mortis." Our facetious confrere only gives us two of the twelve articles and we note that they are both in Latin. This will strike all our readers as it struck us. For is it not a fact indisputable and undoubted, how very commonly Freemasons in all countries write in Latin, and express themselves in Latin, in life, and above all make death-bed confessions in Latin? Does not this authentic narrative in its initial announcement appeal to all our prima facie sense of truthfulness and reality? From what we all know of the ideas and habits of our Order generally, may we not assume it as incontestable, that this extract from the Civita Cattolica is a faithful and truthful report of what actually took place, from the pen too of a specially well-informed and accurate scribe? Listen to the statement, Oh Masons all! "Oh! pater meus" the dying Freemason exclaimed, in confession auricular we suppose, "possumus omnia facere quae volumus absque levi etiam culpa." It will be observed here by the intelligent reader of the Freemason, how entirely different this is from the good old Pope Pius Nono, who keeps saying "Non possumus." Worthless Freemasons are able to declare "Possumus." This is a very striking fact, and still more striking contrast, per se, and then the poor dying Freemason goes on to declare "ergo semper Liberi sumus." Surely we must all feel at once, that this is as awful a confession as any Freemason can make, though whether by the word "Liberi," "Free," it means that we, as Freemasons, are Free lovers, or Free livers, or Free thinkers, or Free-and-easy fellows, or Free anything else, does not so far appear quite clear from the context. Now, if we thought it worth our while to treat such an allegation seriously, we might be inclined to reply to so false an accuser of his and our brethren "mentiris impudentissime;" or we might remind ourselves of many similar undesirable data, of like falsifications, inventions, forgeries of words and documents, to prop up a rotten cause, or to injure an honest adversary. But we prefer rather to laugh at so ridiculous an exhibition of idle Ultramontane anger and perverted Ultramontane ingenuity! Such silly and worthless attacks only prove the utter weakness of our assailants, and they are really powerless to injure the good fair fame of Freemasonry. No such teaching has ever, at any time, under any form, been put forward, by Freemasons, who are accused by some as being "Mere Moralists." We have a remembrance indeed, of somewhat similar casuistry, in "Monita Secreta," and published dicta of many antagonistic Jesuits, but we never before heard or supposed that even in such elegant Latinity such words or theories were patronised or put forward by Freemasons. The truth is that the Church of Rome and the Ultramontane Press just now, as we have often before said, are in a "craze" in respect of Freemasons and Freemasonry, and as true members of our benevolent brotherhood, returning good for evil, we must overlook such absurdities and as freely forgive such hallucinations.

THE PROGRESS OF OUR ENGLISH CRAFT.

It will have struck some of our readers, doubtless, that we have reported the consecration of three new lodges, consecutive on our long roll, 1713, 1714, and 1715, in itself a remarkable coincidence. It is, in fact, a "sign of the times," to be "recorded and made note of." It points to the unmistakeable progress of our Order, and the large growth of our useful and benevolent brotherhood. And "So mote it be!" for some time to come, amid those hurrying and thronging years. For we look most favourably, for various reasons, on this striking increase of our material prosperity, subject, of course, to some needful warnings as to carefulness of admission and the like. We are aware that some of our Order take rather a different view, but we have never seen any reason to change our deliberate opinion that in the interests of toleration, kindly feeling, civilizing influences, and brotherly goodwill, every fresh Masonic lodge is a centre of light and benevolence, an additional bond of unity, amity, and sympathetic appreciation. We have been struck lately with the amount of interest displayed in the consecration of new lodges, by our brethren, old and young, and we feel sure that the more our elaborate and interesting ceremonial is entered into by the members of our Order in all its parts and details, the more it will be admired. We also are glad to note the proceedings of those very distinguished provinces, West Lancashire and West Yorkshire. The most popular of Provincial Grand Masters has received a goodly greeting from a most numerous and distinguished body of Lancashire Freemasons, and the day's proceedings are alike noteworthy and agreeable. The liberal and enlightened grants towards the Sedilia of Chester Cathedral reflect the greatest credit on the large-hearted sympathy of our West Lancashire brethren. In West Yorkshire the proceedings at Ripon have been most successful, and a most admirable sermon was preached by our worthy Bro. Canon Burfield, P. Prov. G. Chaplain. The concurrence of the Dean, Chapter, and the Municipal Authorities in the gathering was as pleasant as it is suggestive, and we, who can recall the state of feeling as regards Freemasonry a quarter of a century ago, in some parts, and amid the clergy especially, must rejoice to think that Time, which softens most prejudices and removes most antipathies, has thrown its protecting shield, so to say, over our honoured and worthy Brotherhood. The idle tales to its discredit are not believed; the doubts as to its utility are gradually melting away, as before the "stubborn facts of the case;" while the voice of detraction and of calumny have long since given way except among the perverse, the irrational, the bigoted, and the obtuse, to a wiser perception of what Freemasonry really is, and what it really does for the welfare of the community, and the happiness of mankind.

SOME SPECIAL DIFFICULTIES OF MASONIC LITERATURE.

All Journalism has its difficulties, and just now, perhaps few are aware of the struggles some portions of the press have to make in order to keep themselves afloat. The Freemason has long been running before a "prosperous trade wind," and is under very easy sail, taking things most complacently, calmly, and prosperously, and our publisher sees clearly to-day how his many efforts have been rewarded, and his honest anticipations fulfilled, in the ready and willing support of an always considerate Craft. But still, it is impossible but that we should be struck, amidst our own prosperity, which is very real, with the sense of how much yet remains to be achieved before Masonic Journalism reaches its proper position, or attains what ought to be its normal prestige. A very large number of Freemasons never look at a Masonic paper of any kind at all. Some dislike Masonic publications, and a large proportion are too busy in secular pursuits, to devote any time to the study or support of Masonic Literature. Once upon a time we remember asking a worthy and distinguished brother Mason had he seen a certain article in the hebdomadal Masonic Journal. "My dear fellow," was his reply, "I never read it; I never open it, and I know nothing at all of what is in it, it remains on my table for a week, and after that time is swept into the waste paper basket." This probably, represents the state of the case as regards some subscribers, still, and if it does, what can we say of those who have so little time, or care so little for Masonic literature that a casual glance at a club is sufficient for them? We remember, some of us, an old story in the Freemason, where a brother at the bookstalls read the Freemason through, advertisements and all, but did not buy it, and as some of our good brethren ignore certain facts as regards Masonic journalism, we think it right gently to hint to them to-day, in no spirit of complaint or fault-finding, but as a simple historic truth that their support is not what it ought fairly to be. As we before observed, a large portion of our Order never troubles itself with Masonic literature, because it has no time to devote to the study, while another portion does not care for Masonic publications, and rather discourages than supports them,—so that Masonic journalism is doubly handicapped for the race. It has to deal with a special class, but that special class does not much care for special literature, and in most cases prefers what is not special. But still Masonic literature has to be kept up, and as no Masonic journal is produced for nothing, a fact sometimes forgotten, as a general rule, the fate of Masonic journalism is not difficult to predicate. We might touch on other topics, but we do not. The Freemason has no cause to complain of either special or public support. It has received from the first most generous encouragement, and is now in the possession of a larger amount of special and public patronage than ever has been accorded in Great Britain to any other Masonic journal. Across the Atlantic, with 700,000 Masons or thereabouts, the same difficulty exists, the same complaints are made, only with a hundredfold intensity, and we are sometimes inclined to reduce to a simple rule of three sum, "if the support of 700,000 Masons in America is so much, what will be that of 100,000 in Great Britain?" Can any arithmetical brethren help us to a solution. In the meantime Publisher and Editor return their best thanks not only for "obliging enquiries," but for very liberal support.

GRAND LODGE OF SPAIN.

We have received with great pleasure from Bro. Juan A. Perez, Grand Master of the Spanish Grand Lodge, a list of all the Symbolical Lodges, and of the High Grades. We beg to thank him most fraternally for forwarding this information to us, and to express all good wishes for the peaceful future of the Grand Lodge of Spain.

"FREEMASON" INDIAN FAMINE FUND.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I have been considerably astonished at the very poor result as yet that you have received in response to your appeal on behalf of the Indian Famine Fund. Various lodges, I am aware, have sent their subscriptions direct to the Lord Mayor, but there are, I know, numerous lodges whose offerings would be perhaps too small by themselves, but when put with others would make no insignificant amount.

The suggestion originally made by Bro. Wm. Cooke, P.M. 1302, and so generously responded to by your worthy self and the proprietor, would I had thought have received the immediate support of the Craft. Bro. Cooke's suggestion was in my opinion a very sensible one, and should be acted upon by the W.M., Treasurer, or Secretary without delay. I think if either of these officers would at the banquet, when the brethren are surrounded with all the luxuries of the table, ask them to think for one moment of our thousands of fellow subjects literally starving in India and that a small sum, say one shilling, from each present, would help to relieve the sufferings of so many, the result would be that a very large sum would be received. Could any brother resist this appeal at so opportune a moment? I think not. I do sincerely trust that this matter will receive the generous and early attention of the Craft, as it so richly deserves.—I remain, dear Sir and Brother, yours fraternally

CHARITY VOTING REFORM, &c.

[The following correspondence has come accidentally into our possession between a vice-patron of the Boys' School, and a leading member of the Charity Voting Reform Association, and we leave it to the careful consideration of all whom it may concern.]

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Please let me have all the votes you can spare for the poor boy—

Yours fraternally,

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I must say I was much taken aback at your canvassing for votes for—considering the strong attacks you, as a prominent member of the Charity Reform Association, have made against all canvassing. I was especially taken aback that you should canvass my votes for the weakest Masonic case that ever came before my notice, and one which, being not eligible according to the laws, was only placed on the list by a mistake of the Committee.

Yours very truly and fraternally,

Dear Sir and Brother,—

You ask me why I am so inconsistent as to canvas.

In the first place I felt that I might answer your invitation to write by doing something quite inconsistent, and which would afford you the opportunity of returning good for evil.

You are quite right! I do very sincerely set my face against the canvassing system, which I think wrong in principle, and calculated to help the least deserving amongst the candidates. But you, that is the Committee, place us outsiders on the horns of a dilemma, and we are thereby driven to employ your own weapons, or rather the only means at our disposal to assist a candidate, otherwise we should probably let in a worse case than that I mentioned to you, and which I now see, for the first time, is a very weak one.

But, surely, the Committee is to blame for permitting sixty-four candidates to scramble for nine vacancies, and on the principle of "God for us all, and the devil take care of the hindmost."

You ought to set to work to reform the abuses of the present system. A list should be sent round giving some idea of the comparative claims and merits of the several candidates, and the brethren should be asked to support the most deserving. Now a large number of children are admitted whose cases are quite as weak as that I have been asked to support by a brother who stands high in the Craft, and who, I suppose, believes the case a deserving one, or he would not have enlisted my sympathies.

Do, pray, try and put a stop to trafficking in votes; buying and selling at the last moment converts the election into a farce, so far as the merits of the case are concerned.

How comes it that the boy whose name stands at the head of the list is up for the eighth time? Is this Masonic charity?

Believe me, I remain yours fraternally,

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF WEST LANCA-SHIRE.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In the report of this distinguished province, in your paper of the 13th inst., an incident occurs which raises in my mind a question of Masonic legality.

What is the authority by which the Provincial Grand Lodge of West Yorkshire resolves itself into a "Court of Governors of the West Lancashire Masonic Educational Institution?"

Having very great doubts as to the constitutional legality of such a proceeding under all circumstances, I venture to ask in your columns for a little light upon the subject.

I am, yours, fraternally,

IN THE DARK,

LODGES AT TAVERNS.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir, and Brother,—

Please permit me in reply to "Sigma's" letter to you in last week's issue, to state that if the inclination of the Craft is adverse (as it ought to be), to holding their lodge meeting at taverns or hotels, there is now every opportunity and facility for their removal to a properly constituted and consecrated building, (in addition to the Surrey Masonic Hall) where Masonic ritual, and ceremonies, also the banquet, if desired, can be enjoyed with greater advantages, and less costs than at hotels and taverns. I refer to the London Masonic Club, advertised in your columns, where also a Lodge of Instruction meets.

The apathy shown by the Craft to Masonic buildings, as for instance the lamentable result of the Surrey Masonic Hall, is the cause of so many resorting to "Pubs."

I am fraternally,

J. E. SHAND, (Member of the Club) and Hon. Sec. L. M. C. L. of Instruction.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Your correspondent "Sigma," in your last issue, raises a question of vital importance in Freemasonry, and consequently of great interest to all Freemasons.

The holding of London Lodges at taverns is unfortunately unavoidable, owing to the want of suitable Masonic buildings in which to hold them, but your correspondent will be glad to be informed that a most successful attempt to remedy this, has already been made. The London Masonic Club was instituted for the purpose (inter alia) of supplying accommodation for lodges. Any lodge desirous of holding their meetings and banquets in a building solely devoted to Masonic purposes should apply to the Secretary of this Club.

The Deputy Grand Master, (Lord Skelmersdale), who presided last year at the opening of the club, stated that the fact of the club offering a place of meeting for lodges, other than at taverns, ought of itself to ensure success.

Yours fraternally,

JOSEPH LANGTON,
Chairman of the Club Committee.

PAST GRAND RANK.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I was very much pleased to see in your last issue a letter signed by "P.M." upon Past Grand Rank. There is no doubt but a deal of misconception arises upon the position of Past Prov. Grand Pursuivants. I am a Past Grand Pursuivant of North Wales and Shropshire, having been appointed to that office in December, 1870, and served as such for two years, but I never now wear the clothing, as I contend that I have no right to do so, because the Prov. Grand Master never grants permission to take past rank and wear the clothing. At every appointment in the Grand Lodge of England I think the Grand Master always orders "that in consideration of the conduct of Bro. A. B. as Grand Pursuivant he has been graciously pleased to order that he ranks as a Past Grand Pursuivant and wear the clothing." Now why is this not done in the Provinces? and why should a Past Pursuivant, whose duties are much more important, be treated differently to the Grand Deacons, Sword and Standard Bearers.

When the present Prov. Grand Bye-laws of Wales, &c., were under revision in the year 1874, I was present at a meeting of P.M.'s held at Wynnstay, and I laid great stress upon the particular point, but was outvoted and the anomaly still continues, and I believe that I am the only Past Pursuivant in the province who does not wear the clothing. I think it would be worth while for the Board of General Purposes to take the question into consideration, and definitely settle the position of Past Pursuivants, who in my opinion are most important officers of Grand or Prov. Grand Lodge, if those holding the appointment thoroughly do their duty.

Yours fraternally,

D. P. OWEN, P.M. and P.Z., '908.

THE ROYAL ORIENTAL ORDER OF SIKHA AND SAT B'HAI.

To the Editor of the "Scottish Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In reply to "Querist," in Scottish Freemason of September 16th, I give the following condensed description from Mackenzie's Masonic Cyclopaedia—"Order of Sikha and Sat B'hai:—This is an Order of Indian origin, and named after a sacred bird of the Hindus, whose flight invariably in sevens, has obtained for the Rite the appellation of the Seven (Sat) Brethren (B'hai). It is divided into seven degrees (but with Sikhas, composed of Sponsors, nine). None but Master Masons can be admitted into the higher degrees of the Order. The principles of the Order are Masonic, and includes the preservation, in its original Archaic purity, of Craft Masonry; the support of duly constituted authority, wherever found; sympathy with all branches of the Aryan race, and the cultivation of a fraternal sentiment—more especially towards the Hindus; and it inculcates the study of Hindu literature and archaeology. The Order is now firmly established in England and Scotland, and has branches in America, Austria and other countries, and its Masonic value is highly appreciated by eminent brethren all over the world."

Yours fraternally,

ONE OF THE ORDER.

DRINK FOR THE THIRSTY.

[The following interesting letter appeared in the Scotsman, of the 4th inst.]

Sir,—Though much good work is being done in the cause of temperance, it is very remarkable that the most important means of all is left almost untouched in this and other large cities.

How can there be sobriety in the working and moving classes of our crowded streets and city approaches unless an abundant supply of pure drinking water be readily accessible to them at all moments of the day?

At present a thirsty wayfarer in our streets and dusty suburban roads has no place to turn to in order to quench his thirst but to the first public-house that comes to hand the drinking-fountain movement harks in its monumental and æsthetic stage. The number of drinking fountains in Edinburgh may probably be counted on the fingers of one hand, whereas when we turn to the Post Office Directory we find four hundred and seventeen public-houses for the supply of intoxicating drinks. The remedy is very simple. Drop the Arcadian title "Drinking Fountain," and establish, in the city and suburbs, a system of "Street Drinking Taps," in number commensurate at least with that of the public-houses. Let the construction be something of the character of the pillar letter-boxes—viz., a cast-iron cylinder of diameter sufficient to contain and protect the pipes, with a small shallow enamel-lined basin under the tap, with overflow pipe and chained enamel lined drinking cup. Let this be the work and duty of the Municipality, just as street lighting, watering, and cleaning are.

There would be nothing to apprehend from obstruction of the streets by crowding—provided the street taps were sufficiently numerous—nor from the playfulness of the city arabs, provided the police were awake. Moreover, after a short time the arab would regard them with the same indifference as he now does the lamp-posts.

Of course it is not supposed that an organisation of this kind would at once eradicate drunkenness, but it would certainly tend materially to diminish and prevent it, and would place within easy reach of all classes of the people a condition which they are entitled to command as being almost as necessary to life as the air they breathe.

I am, &c.,

C. MOREHEAD, M.D.

THE MOONS OF MARS.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,

I have read, as will most Freemasons, throughout the world, with pride and pleasure your article on the Moons of Mars, in your issue of the 13th inst.

Bro. Dr. Bedford has doubtless honoured our Craft. His insight into the mechanism of the heavens is something wonderful, and his position is somewhat similar to the geologist, who, by reason of his knowledge of the particular configuration, and the nature of the strata in any locality, asserts the existence of precious metals and minerals, and sets the mining engineer at work, who is rewarded by the discovery.

We can readily decide which is entitled to the most honour. Twenty-three years before the moons were dug out of the depths of infinite space; Bro. Bedford pointed them out, gave a physical reason for their existence in the locality of the solar system.

I have satisfied myself of the date of Bro. Bedford's predictions. His "New Theories of the Universe" now called the Bedfordian system of Astronomy, was entered at Stationers' Hall, on the 17th of October, 1854, as you have stated in your article, and it is numbered 8610, C. B. Vol. 21 in the library of the British Museum. Bro. Bedford was initiated in the Bank of England Lodge, No. 265, and he is Life-Governor of all our charities.—I am, dear Sir and Brother, yours fraternally,

W. E. GOMPERTZ,
P.M. and Sec. 869 and 1495.

THE BURGLARY SEASON.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Since you have opened the columns of your valuable paper to the all important subject of burglary, I cannot but express my admiration at the fearless and impartial manner in which you treat both with the discipline of the typical "Bill Sykes," and the guardian of the peace; and I trust that through the coming season we shall have a little more attention from our rural constables. Clapham, Dulwich, and Hornsey are by no means the only favoured localities in which burglaries have been committed, for during the past month many cases have been reported in the neighbourhood of Sydenham, one of which was my own, although beyond a few flower pots and some choice plants, no damage was done, or loss sustained, as [having been induced to try electricity as a safeguard, I had the whole of my windows and doors fitted last year with the Electric Burglar Alarm of Francis and Co., and on this occasion they proved highly satisfactory in their working, as on the thieves forcing their way into my library window the large bell poured forth a loud peal, which was soon answered by the presence of myself and man-servant in time to see the fellows decamp without spoil, leaving behind them the instruments, alike useful for forcible entries and breaking skulls. However, robbery and bloodshed were omitted from their programme that night, at least as regarding us, and I shall not fail to recommend the means of security above referred to whenever opportunity offers, as they appear as certain in their action as the ordinary electric house bells, and may be connected with them at trifling cost.

Apologising for thus troubling you, I am Sir, yours truly,

W. R. ROBINSON.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.

The Quarterly Court of the Subscribers and Governors of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys was held on Monday last in the Board Room, Freemasons' Hall. Bro. John Symonds, Vice-Patron, presiding. There were among the brethren present Bros. S. Rawson, H. A. Dubois, H. Browne, Raynham W. Stewart, A. K. Ware, George Wyatt, J. B. Wilson, Joyce Murray, J. E. Le Feuvre, J. Mason, H. Hacker, H. Massey, (Freemason), W. H. Perryman, G. Bolton, J. Merry, Thos. W. White, A. H. Tattershall, O. Durrant, Hon. R. W. H. Giddy, John G. Stevens, Aeneas J. McIntyre, Thomas Randall, C. F. Matier, Alfred H. Diaper, George Jeffrey, Col. Creaton, Col. Henry Basevi, Rev. A. F. A. Woodford, H. S. Massa, J. Edward Curteis, W. Mann, Walter Hopekirk, Benjamin Head, J. J. Berry, J. M. P. Montagu, Frederick Davison, David Roberts, F. G. Baker, Fras. R. Vine, J. A. Birch, J. L. Hine, and F. Binckes, Secretary.

The Secretary, Bro. Binckes, read the minutes of the former Court, and the subsequent meetings of the different Committees, which were put to the brethren and confirmed. The minutes also of the special committee on further accommodation were also read, and Bro. Binckes informed the Committee that the tender of Mr. Prout of Southgate, for the erection of the new buildings, at a cost of £2497, had been accepted, subject to enquiries and approval of sureties. These enquiries had been made, and the result was perfectly satisfactory, and the operations would begin during the current week. Bro. Binckes further stated that Bro. Edward Harris, the late collector of the Institution, to whom the Quarterly Court of last January had awarded a pension of £120 a year on his retirement, died on Thursday of last week.

Bro. Raynham Stewart, V.P., in the absence of Bro. W. Roebuck, moved that ten boys be now elected instead of nine; room for a tenth boy having been created by the mother of the boy Cunah, who was elected in April, having chosen to have him educated out of the Institution.

Col. Creaton, V.P., seconded the proposition, which was then put and carried.

Bro. the Rev. A. F. A. Woodford, P.G.C., having given notice of motion to insert in rule 30, after "to elect boys," "and also shall have power to accept or reject any recommendation of the General Committee," rose and said that since he had given notice of the motion, he had had a communication with Bro. Symonds upon the subject of the proposed alteration in the rules of the Boys' School, and Bro. Symonds had very properly called his attention to certain difficulties which in his (Bro. Symonds's) opinion would inevitably rise on a hasty adoption of the resolution. Of course under all circumstances, knowing the interest Bro. Symonds, who was now presiding as chairman, took in the Institution he should be glad, as in courtesy he was bound to do, to give way. But he felt especially induced to do so, seeing that as the Chairman would remember, on his (the Chairman's) appearance at Sheffield, some twenty years ago, with their late lamented Bro. Hopwood, that great provincial movement was begun which had culminated in such signal success, and which had demonstrated the great interest the brethren in provinces displayed in the Masonic Institutions. The Chairman had pointed out to him that there would be some doubts as to the bearing of the rule respecting the powers of the General Committee and the Quarterly Court, and he also called very properly, his (Bro. Woodford's) attention to the fact, as he had great interest in the question himself, that grave doubts existed as to the ruling of Bro. Clabon on a special point submitted to a former Court. As these doubts existed, and he believed other reasons might be adduced, he thought on the present occasion he had better withdraw his motion. He believed that all the brethren were agreed in this, that on the polling day it was advisable, if possible to keep their discussions as short as could be, and also that it was undesirable to make alterations in the rules of our Institutions without a strict and careful pre-consideration. He would therefore withdraw his motion, reserving to himself his privilege as a Life Governor to give notice of his motion to another General Committee; and if he should think it necessary to bring it forward at the next Quarterly Court he would do so. He would consequently ask the permission of this Quarterly Court to withdraw the motion of which he had given notice, and which stood on the paper in his name; but he had reason to believe that before this was done, Bro. Symonds, who had taken a very active part in the question, was wishful to say a few words upon one or two incidents which had taken place.

The Chairman said he was not aware of the motion of which Bro. Woodford had given notice until last Saturday, when he saw the worthy brother at the Quarterly Court of the Girls' School. He (the Chairman) then ventured to suggest to him that he should withdraw the motion, first, because the wording would require considerable care, and secondly, because no notice had been given of a similar motion to the Girls' School. He thought it would be a great pity to break up the assimilation of the laws which had been effected at considerable trouble, and which had been attended with great advantages. He also gleaned from what he had read in the Freemason of Saturday last, that Bro. Woodford seemed to have been under a misapprehension with regard to Bro. Clabon's ruling at the Court in January, or whether he had given any ruling at all. He (Bro. Symonds) brought under the notice of the Court in January the case of Taylor, No. 32 on the list of to-day; but he had not then seen the petition, and was not aware of the actual circumstances of the case. He could therefore deal with the question only as one of doubt. He had seen a proof of the balloting paper in which it was stated that the father of the boy had subscribed, he believed, only one and a half year, and that he died some years after he had ceased to be a subscribing member of a lodge. He had subsequently seen an amended proof, in which it was stated that since he had subscribed till death. He was not in a position at the time to say which of these statements was correct, and Bro. Clabon thereupon made the suggestion that, treating the question as one of doubt, they should leave the responsibility of its acceptance with the General Committee. Bro. Clabon did not, as Bro. Woodford imagined, rule that it was incompetent for the Quarterly Court to deal with the recommendation of the General Committee, acting upon the well-known principle of law that a lawyer should not go beyond the case that is laid before him. Had he (Bro. Symonds) seen the petition, he could have pointed out to Bro. Clabon that the case on the shewing was clearly not eligible according to the laws of the Institution, and then, no doubt, Bro. Clabon would have ruled that under the regulation by which the Committee made a recommendation to the Quarterly Court, this boy could not be placed on the list. The General Committee had to recommend to the Quarterly Court those boys who were eligible. It seemed to him that that gave power to the Quarterly Court, if they found by accident a case had slipped in upon the list which by the laws was not eligible, to strike it out. At the Court, in July last, a motion was made to strike off the case of Taylor because it was not eligible according to the laws. He (the Chairman) felt bound to rule at that meeting that the time for such a motion had gone by. The case had gone to the Quarterly Court in January, and was placed on the list for election in April. As it had gone on the list there was no power to strike it off. That was how the case stood at present. Bro. Clabon had not ruled that the Court had no power to reject a recommendation. Between this time and the next Quarterly Court he would communicate with Bro. Clabon, and be prepared to make any statement which he might think necessary, unless, as he hoped would be the case, the brethren should have the opportunity of hearing Bro. Clabon himself.

Bro. Walter Hopekirk rose to make some observations on what Bro. Woodford had said.

Bro. Col. Creaton rose to order. He thought he understood that Bro. Woodford withdrew his motion to save any discussion.

Bro. the Rev. A. F. A. Woodford said he thought Bro. Hopekirk was in order, as he had a right to speak on his (Bro. Woodford's) motion to withdraw the motion.

Bro. Col. Creaton repeated that the motion was withdrawn in order that time might be saved.

Bro. Walter Hopekirk again rising,

The Chairman said the could not quite agree with Bro. Woodford. If he had a motion to submit to the brethren they would listen to it.

Bro. Walter Hopekirk said he rose to give an answer in explanation.

Bro. Col. Creaton said that Bro. Hopekirk would have an opportunity of submitting any observations he had to make when the motion came on at the next Quarterly Court.

The motion was then withdrawn, and the brethren proceeded with the election of ten boys out of an approved list of fifty-seven candidates.

At the close of the poll the following was found to be the result:—

The number of votes polled in the course of the day was 28,870.

Bro. Rawson, the Chairman of the Scrutineers, who announced the result of the election, said that there were thirty-seven voting papers, equivalent to 147 votes, lost.

The Chairman having declared the successful candidates,

Bro. Binckes said they would be admitted to the Institution at the House Committee meeting, on the last Friday but one in January next, and the friends of the candidates would have due notice of the date and hour, and whatever articles they would be required to bring with them to the Institution.

Bro. Eberall, P.M. 315, Brighton, P.P.G. Purs., moved and Bro. Thos. Cubitt seconded a vote of thanks to the Scrutineers, which was put and carried unanimously.

Bro. S. Rawson acknowledged the compliment.

Bro. Raynham W. Stewart proposed a vote of thanks to the Chairman, which was seconded and carried.

The Chairman, in replying, said that unless the Building Committee proceeded very slowly, he hoped a larger number of boys would be admitted in April than had just been elected. He would ask Bro. Binckes if he was justified in expressing that hope.

Bro. Binckes said yes.

The Chairman then added that that being the case there would be fewer cases of disappointment than on the present occasion, and that, he assured the brethren, would be very gratifying to their Chairman.

The proceedings then terminated.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

The Quarterly General Court of the Subscribers and Governors of this Institution was held last Saturday at Freemasons' Hall, Colonel Creton, Vice-Patron, in the chair. There were also present Bros. Henry Smith, Capt. John Wordsworth, Raynham W. Stewart, Thomas Hill, W. H. B. Tomlinson, Geo. Jeffery, P. J. Luke, George Wyatt, Alfred Tattershall, Dr. F. Ramsay, W. Browne Kidder, C. F. Matier, S. B. Wilson, S. Rawson, Hyde Pullen, H. A. Dubois, H. Massey, (Freemason) Major E. H. Finney, Rev. A. F. A. Woodford, John Symonds, J. E. Le Feuvre, E. Williams, John G. Stevens, James Terry, James Kindred, George Bolton, W. R. Wontner, John Tyerman, George Page, John Bodenham, Fred. G. Pownall, C. Coupland, J. Mason, Wm. Paas, Joseph Smith, H. Potter, James Dunsford, Jesse Turner, H. Hacker, W. F. C. Moutrie, Thomas J. Sabine, V.P.; Thomas W. White, G. R. Shervill, Wm. Stephens, F. Binckes, A. A. Pendlebury, Joseph Storey, Captain N. G. Philips, Colonel Somerville Burney, J. A. Farnfield, Charles Walter, Edward Cox, E. M. Haigh, F. Davison, E. S. Snell, H. Buss, Benjamin Head, F. R. W. Hedges, and R. W. Little, (Secretary).

After reading and confirmation of the minutes, Bro. C. F. Matier brought on his motion of which he had given notice, "That the rank of Honorary Vice Patron, with its attendant privileges, be awarded to Bro. John Constable, in recognition of his services to this Institution." He said it would be quite unnecessary for him in introducing the motion to detain the brethren with any lengthened speech, as most of them knew the distinguished services of Bro. Constable. But he might tell those of them who did not know, that in three years, Bro. Constable by his personal exertions had realised for the Institutions the large sum of £200. At the last festival of the Boys' School, he took up the enormous sum of £1231, which was the largest personal list ever known. Besides this he had been the Secretary of the Charitable Association connected with the Tranquillity Lodge, which had produced £500; and it was calculated that next year it would produce another £500. In the Boys' School and the Benevolent Institution the rank of Honorary Vice Patron had been conferred on Bro. Constable for his exertions, and he now asked the Governors of the Girls' School to award him similar rank in their Institution. Bro. Matier concluded by reading the motion given above, and submitting it to the meeting for approval.

Bro. Raynham W. Stewart, V.P., said it was with great pleasure that he seconded the motion, for he could speak with a personal knowledge to the great zeal and exertions which had characterised Bro. Constable in working for the benefit of the Institution. No comment was necessary, as the result of his labours was sufficient testimony to their extent.

Bro. H. A. Dubois, who did not desire to oppose the motion, wished to know under what rule of the Institution the rank of Vice Patron was proposed to be given. He could find no rule referring to this rank, though there was one with reference to Vice Presidency.

The Chairman thought there was the rule which related to the conferring of any rank on brethren who had distinguished themselves on behalf of the Institutions.

Bro. H. A. Dubois said there was none having special reference to the particular rank of Vice-Patron.

Bro. Raynham W. Stewart replied that that was because when the rules were framed, the rank of Honorary Vice-Patron was not in existence.

The Chairman believed this was so. However, the rank had been conferred by the other two Institutions, and he presumed it might be done by the Girls' School, though it did not follow as a necessary consequence.

Bro. Joseph Smith, P.G.P., said it had been done before, and therefore there was a precedent for it. Having done it once, the brethren would do it again. He thought if it had been already done that was quite sufficient.

Bro. H. Smith, (West Yorkshire), gave as an instance, the action taken by the Committee of the Boys' School, when they conferred on him the rank of Life-Governor.

Bro. John Symonds, V.P., was inclined to think that on due notice of motion to that effect being given to the Quarterly Court the right of conferring honorary rank was inherent in a General Court without the necessity of its being actually specified by the laws. If notice of motion made it a law and it was not absolutely necessary that it should be stated in the laws that that power existed. The Quarterly Court on notice being given had power to confer honorary rank.

The Chairman asked Bro. Matier before putting the motion to the meeting whether he proposed that Bro. Constable be made Vice-patron, independent of the position he now held as Vice-President.

Bro. Matier said his intention was that promotion should be conferred on Bro. Constable, that he should be made full Vice-Patron from Vice-President.

The Chairman then put the motion, which was carried unanimously.

The next business was the consideration of a motion, notice of which had been given by Bro. Henry Browne, V.P., that in consideration of a legacy of fifty pounds bequeathed to this Institution by the late Bro. Charles John Vigne, his daughter Miss Catherine Ann Vigne, be, and is hereby elected, a Life Governor of the Institution, but Bro. Browne rose and said that since he had come into the room he had been informed that the motion was unnecessary. The money bequeathed by Bro. Vigne had already been paid to the Institution in the name of Miss Vigne, and by that act she was entitled as of right, to the rank of Vice-Patron. He therefore withdrew his motion.

Bro. Henry Browne, V.P., then moved, that a gratuity of twenty-five guineas be awarded to Bro. F. R. W. Hedges, the Senior Clerk in the Secretary's office, in recognition of the attention he has given to the increased duties entailed upon the office, since the abolition of the collectorship. Bro. Hedges had been in the office five years and the manner in which he had conducted himself in that office had been highly satisfactory. He feared no contradiction when he said that Bro. Hedges' conduct had been highly satisfactory to all persons who came in contact with him, since the abolition of the office of collector the receipts of the Institution had been greatly in advance of what they used to be. They had amounted to a very small sum less than £10,000 in the year, and Bro. Hedges had been instrumental in a great degree in getting that large sum in. He had also been very active in his assistance of the Secretary: and at the present moment the brethren were in an excellent position to offer him some reward for his great zeal and ability in discharging his duties to the Institution by granting him this small gratuity. They were all aware that Bro. Hedges came into the Institution shortly after the present Secretary was appointed, and he (Bro. Browne) could appeal with confidence to the Secretary to say that he was highly satisfied with Bro. Hedges, both in the office and in collecting. He need not detain the brethren any longer, because he felt that all the information he had just given the brethren was patent to them. He had therefore great pleasure in asking this court to pass the motion of which he had given notice. He entertained no doubt that if anything was wanted to encourage Bro. Hedges to do his duties still more satisfactorily, the passing of this vote would contribute to it. Every brother must confess that it was greatly to the interest of the Institution that they should have such a valuable officer as Bro. Hedges. (Hear, hear.)

Bro. Henry Smith seconded the motion. He could bear personal testimony to the great and valuable exertions of Bro. Hedges, for he had had a great deal of correspondence with him during the last three or four years. The proposal of Bro. Browne was a very modest one. If it had been fifty guineas he should also have had much pleasure in seconding it. He trusted that the brethren would pass Bro. Browne's motion unanimously.

The Chairman added that before he put the motion he might tell the brethren that he had had repeated reports from the Secretary of the efficiency of Bro. Hedges. Going himself very frequently to the office he always found Bro. Hedges at his post, and all his work was remarkably well done.

The motion was then put and carried nem con.

The Chairman said that Bro. Little would have thanked the brethren on behalf of Bro. Hedges had his voice been in a fit state to do so. He (the Chairman) therefore would thank the brethren for him, and he was sure Bro. Hedges would value the brethren's recognition of his services very much.

The brethren then proceeded with the election of thirty-five girls out of an approved list of fifty candidates. The result will be found in the advertisement on the front page. The names of the unsuccessful candidates will be given in our next.

A vote of thanks to the scrutineers of votes was then passed, to which Br. A. H. Tattershall returned thanks.

A vote of thanks, proposed by Dr. Ramsey, having been accorded to the Chairman, Col. Creton said he thanked the brethren very much for this compliment, which was not the first he had received by a great many. He felt the compliment all the more, because coming from Dr. Ramsey, he was sure it was genuine. He would take this opportunity of stating that the new buildings at the Institution, the large hall and the dormitories were completed, and in January when the children elected to-day would be admitted, everything would be ready for their reception. Nothing now remained to be done but the laundry, and this was virtually completed, as it was only the engineers' work therein which was required to be effected.

Bro. Hy. Smith said as the Chairman had mentioned the new buildings and enlargement, it was a good opportunity for asking when there was a chance of the rooms being enlarged in which these half-yearly elections were conducted. During the announcement just made of the numbers of votes polled by each candidate he had not been able to get a seat and take down the numbers. He did not think the room they were in was a worthy one for the Board of General Purposes to allot for the brethren. There should be larger rooms. Considering the large sums of money that Masons had at their disposal, to which they all had to contribute, he thought they had a right to expect greater accommodation. They had been to a great extent undervalued by the Board of General Purposes, and he thought it was high time that something should be done. Some of them should raise their voices and ask the Board of General Purposes to give more accommodation.

The brethren gave their money freely, they gave it to extraneous objects, such as the Lifeboat Institution, and the Indian Famine Fund. They did it freely and willingly. Then let them have accommodation. He hoped there would be a movement made to accelerate the wheels of the Board of General Purposes at no distant date. He did not think he was guilty of any presumption in making these remarks. He had had the pleasure of attending these elections now eighteen or nineteen years, and he was therefore capable of speaking with something like weight when he said there was very great inconvenience experienced by the brethren in the crowding of the room. He was much obliged to the Chairman for allowing him to make these remarks, and he trusted that those who had so kindly listened to them would not think them out of place. (No, no.)

The brethren then separated.

PROVINCIAL GRAND CHAPTER OF CUMBERLAND AND WESTMORLAND.

On Tuesday last, the 16th inst., a new Royal Arch Province was constituted for the counties of Cumberland and Westmorland, and at the same time a chapter was consecrated in connection with the Underley Lodge, No. 1074, Kirkby Lonsdale. Although there are now seven chapters in the two counties, no move for the formation of a province was made till within a year ago, when the subject was mooted at the installation meetings of one or two chapters in the west. The seven chapters in the province of Cumberland and Westmorland are as follows: Sun Square and Compasses, 119, Whitehaven; Kendal Castle, 129, Kendal; Union, 310, Carlisle; Two St. John's, 327, Wigton; Unanimity, 339, Penrith; Holy Temple, 412, Longtown; and Bective, 1074, Kirkby Lonsdale. It may be mentioned that the charter for the last chapter was granted in November, 1875, but has never been used until to-day on the occasion of the consecration. The movement for the constitution of a Royal Arch Province was jovially set moving at the Provincial Grand Craft Lodge meeting, last April, at Penrith, when a meeting of Royal Arch Masons was improvised, and the result was the convocation, which took place at Kirkby Lonsdale on Tuesday.

There was not by any means a large gathering, for various cogent reasons, the principal of which was the great distance, and indifferent train accommodation, whilst it was Quarter Sessions day at Carlisle, and a market day at Penrith. The companions assembled at the Assembly Rooms, Kirkby Lonsdale, a little before twelve o'clock, when there were present:—Companions Dr. J. D. Moore, P.Z. Fortitude Chapter, 281, Lancaster, P.P.G.H. West Lancashire, P.G. St. Br. England; J. Bowes, P.Z., Lights Chapter, 148, Warrington, P.P.G.S.B. W. Lane., P.P.G.J.W. Cumberland and Westmorland; Colonel Whitwell, M.P., P.Z. Union Chapter, 129, Kendal, P.G.P.S. England, D.P.G.M. Cumberland and Westmorland; the Earl of Bective, M.P., R.W.P.G.M. of Cumberland and Westmorland; W. Dodd, P.Z. Furness Chapter, 995, Ulverston, P.P.G.J.W., Cumberland and Westmorland; J. Talbot, P.P.G.S.W. Cumberland and Westmorland; John Lemon, P.Z., St. John's Chapter, 327, Wigton, P.P.G.S.W. and Treasurer, Cumberland and Westmorland; W. Kirkbride, P.Z. Unanimity Chapter, 339, Penrith, P.P.G.S.W. Cumberland and Westmorland; Rev. Dr. Simpson, P.Z., 129, Chapter, Kendal, P.P.G.S.W. Cumberland and Westmorland; Jesse Binning, Z., Union Chapter, 310, Carlisle, P.P.G.P.S., West Lancashire; Jas. Comet, H. Union Chapter, 310, Carlisle, P.P.G.S.B. Cumberland and Westmorland; H. Bewes, H. St. John's Chapter, 327, Wigton; G. J. McKay, S.E. Castle Chapter, 129, Kendal; G. Murchie, S.E. Union Chapter, 310, Carlisle; R. Godfrey, P.S. Castle Chapter, 129, Kendal, P.G. Supt. of Works, Cumberland and Westmorland; Jas. Crosskill, 1st Assistant Sojourn, Rowley Chapter, 1051, Lancaster; E. Tyson, S.E. Sun, Square, and Compasses Chapter, 119, Whitehaven; W. F. Lamony, P.S. Sun, Square, and Compasses Chapter, 119, Whitehaven, P.G. Registrar Cumberland and Westmorland (Freemason); J. Rothery, 1st Assist. Soj., Sun, Square, and Compasses Chapter, 119, Whitehaven; Dr. D. Page, Castle Chapter 129, Kendal; W. James, Castle Chapter, 129, Kendal; John Banks, Castle Chapter, 129, Kendal; J. R. Barr, N. Unanimity Chapter, 339, Penrith; Thos. Baron, Castle Chapter, 129, Kendal; G. J. Dalton, Union Chapter, 129, Carlisle; A. C. Poole, Rowley Chapter, 1051, Lancaster; J. Henderson, Union Chapter, 310, Carlisle; R. Stanton, Rowley Chapter, 1051, Lancaster; J. Atkinson, Merchants' Chapter, 241, Liverpool.

The chapter of emergency was opened in form by Comp. Bowes as Z, Comp. Bewes as H., and Comp. Comet as J., the other Principals also being present, after which the rest of the companions were admitted, and the presiding officer's position was assumed by the M.E. Comp. J. D. Moore, assisted by M.E. Comp. J. Bowes, as Director of Ceremonies. After the ceremony had been so far proceeded with, the Principals designate of Bective Chapter, No. 1074, were presented to the Consecrating Officers, viz., Lord Bective, M.P., Z., W. Dodd, H., and J. Talbot, J., and thereupon the first members of the new chapter were presented. Next the acting Scribe, E. Comp. McKay, read the petition and charter, the latter of which was signed by Comps. Lord Bective, W. Dodd, J. Talbot, D. Page, R. Godfrey, J. Holme, H. Ruthmeil, (deceased), G. J. McKay, and J. D. Atkinson.

After the companions had signified their approval of the Principals named in the charter, the Consecrating Officer delivered the following oration:—Companions,—It is customary at the consecration of Royal Arch Chapters for an oration to be delivered on some subject connected with the ceremony, or with Masonry in general. I now propose, in obedience to this custom, to offer you a very few words on the subject of the consecrating elements. The use of corn, wine, and oil in Masonic and other consecrations is supported by the highest antiquity. Being all the most important productions of the East, they were looked upon as symbolically representing the greatest riches of the people, and from their very nature were esteemed as the great supports of life, and means of refreshment. Bro. Harris, in a discourse, in aid of a charitable institution, says:—"Wherefore, my brethren, do you carry corn, wine, and oil in your procession, but to remind you that, in the pilgrimage of human life, you are to impart a portion of your bread to feed the hungry, to send a cup of your wine to cheer the sorrowful, and to pour the healing oil of your consolation into the wounds which sickness has made in the bodies, or affliction rent in the heart of your fellow creatures." Our Psalmist David in enumerating the greatest blessings that we enjoy, speaks of them as "Wine that maketh glad the heart of man, and oil to make his face shine, and bread, which strengtheneth man's heart." We are told that the tabernacle in the wilderness, and all the holy vessels were, in obedience to God's express command to Moses, consecrated with an holy anointing oil; and, following the customs of the ancients, those kings, priests, and prophets were thus consecrated. The sovereigns of our own land, at their coronation, are consecrated with an holy oil. Lodges and Royal Arch Chapters, as emblematical of the holy ark, are at their formation solemnly consecrated to the secret purposes of the institution by the strewing of corn, and the pouring of wine and oil. They may be characterised as emblems of health, peace, and plenty, blessings essential to the happiness of an individual and necessary for the success of a chapter. Thus does this mystic ceremony instruct us to be nourished with the hidden manna of righteousness, to be refreshed with the Word of God, and to rejoice with joy unspeakable in the riches of grace. And may all those blessings, which are represented in the corn, wine, and oil of consecration ever found in the chapter.

The remainder of the ceremony was then gone through in the most impressive manner by the two consecrating Principals, the prayers incidental thereto being delivered by the Rev. Dr. Simpson. Finally, the new chapter was dedicated and constituted. The three Principals were next installed, and upon re-admission, the Companions saluted them according to ancient form. The other officers were appointed as follows:—Comps. Dr. D. Page, Scribe E.; R. Godfrey, Scribe N.; W. Tattersall, P.S.; J. Atkinson, First Asst. Soj.; W. James, Second Asst. Soj.; W. James, Treas. The remaining officers stood over for a future meeting.

The M.E. Comps. Moore and Bowes were unanimously elected honorary members of Bective Chapter, 1074, in recognition of their valuable services during the day, and they having returned thanks, Bro. the Rev. H. Vincent Thompson, P.G. Chaplain Cumberland and Westmoreland, was proposed as a candidate for exaltation.

The M.E. Corp. Moore then opened the Prov. Grand Chapter, for the installation of the Earl of Bective M.P., as Provincial Grand Superintendent of Cumberland and Westmoreland.

The Installing Officer having stated the object of the meeting, the roll of the several chapters was called, the Provincial Grand Superintendent designate was announced and sent in his patent, dated June 3rd, 1877.

Afterwards Lord Bective was inducted into the Provincial Chair with the usual formalities, and being obligated, his lordship was invested with the insignia of his office.

The proclamation over, the newly-installed Provincial-Grand Superintendent appointed and obligated the two Principals, or, rather, one was obligated, Comp. W. B. Gibson, Sun, Square, and Compasses Chapter, 119, Whitehaven, P.G. S.C. Cumberland and Westmoreland, being unavoidably absent.

The following is a list of officers appointed and invested by the Provincial Grand Superintendent.

M.E. Coms. Col. Whitwell, M.P., P.G.H.; M.E. Comp. W. B. Gibson, P.Z. 119, P.G.J.; Comp. G. J. McKay, P.G.S.B.; M.E. Comp. J. Bowes, P.G.S.N.; M.E. Comp. J. Lemon, P.G. Reg.; M.E. Comp. W. Kirkbride, P.G.P.S.; M.E. Comp. J. Talbot, P.G. 1st A.S.; Comp. J. Murchie, P.G. 2nd A.S.; Comp. W. F. Lamonty, P.G. S.B.; Comp. W. Court, P.G. St.B.; Comp. J. Godfrey, P.G. D.C.

On the motion of Comp. Col. Whitwell, seconded by Comp. Bowes, Comp. John Barr, P.Z. Sun, Square and Compasses Chapter, 119, Whitehaven, was unanimously chosen as Provincial Grand Treasurer of the chapter. Companion Tyson apologised for the unavoidable absence of Comp. Barr. The next business on the agenda paper was the appointment of a committee to frame bye-laws for the new province, and ultimately it was resolved that the said committee consist of the three Principals and two Scribes. Before the Provincial Grand Chapter was closed, a hearty vote of thanks was accorded to Comps. Moore and Bowes. On the motion of Comp. the Rev. Dr. Simpson, seconded by Comp. Lemon, and the consecrating Comps. having replied, Comp. Dr. Page moved that the cordial thanks of the Provincial Grand Chapter were due to Comp. G. J. McKay, for the great amount of trouble he had taken in the preliminary arrangements of the meeting. This was seconded by Colonel Whitwell, M.P., and agreed to with the greatest unanimity.

The Provincial Grand Chapter being then closed, and the customary proclamations made in the Bective Chapter, Bro. Anderson, Tyler of Underley Lodge, was proposed as a candidate for exaltation as serving companion, and the working proceedings of the day, which throughout had been successful, were brought to a satisfactory conclusion at half-past two o'clock.

Subsequently an elegant banquet was served at the Royal Hotel, presided over by Lord Bective, M.P., the new Provincial Grand Superintendent. The usual toast list was observed, so far as time would admit, and the company broke up in time for the last train north and south from Kirkby Lonsdale, at a few minutes before six o'clock.

The proceedings of the day undoubtedly augurs well for the prosperity of Royal Arch Masonry in Cumberland and Westmoreland, and now that the several Chapters are centralised, a wonderful change will be effected before long in the working, or we are much mistaken.

PROVINCIAL GRAND CHAPTER OF DEVONSHIRE.

The annual Provincial Grand Chapter of the R.A. Masons of the Province of Devon was held on Wednesday at Topsham. The selection of that little township for the holding the Provincial Meeting this year arose from the local Lodge, Brent, No. 1284, desiring to add to its honours that of possessing a Royal Arch Chapter. Topsham, although small in size, has been, and is now, a town of considerable commercial importance in comparison with the number of its population.

After the destruction of the original port of Exeter, Topsham became and remained for a lengthened period the resort of the Exeter shipping trade. The subsequent opening of the Exeter shipping canal has, however, materially interfered with that branch of Topsham's prosperity. In the parish church a fine monument by Chantry is erected to the memory of Sir John Duckworth, a distinguished naval officer, who died at Devonport early in this century, where he was long remembered as Commissioner Duckworth through his eccentricities. He had charge of that arsenal, for there were no Admiral Superintendents then. When standing by to see the seamen flogged, in answer to their screams for mercy, he used to say, "I am sorry for you, my man; remember, it is not me, it is your country that flogs you."

The early Masonic records of Topsham, like that of most other places are obscure. It is known that a warrant was granted for establishing a Craft Lodge there in 1764, but how long that lodge existed in the town, whether it decayed or was removed, is apparently not recorded.

The present lodge was founded in 1869, principally through the exertions of Dr. Brent, who was its first W.M. and whose name it bears. For the accommodation of that Lodge a commodious Hall has been erected in the immediate proximity of the Globe Hotel, one of the principal hostleries in the town. In that Hall the meeting was convened on Wednesday. The interior of the Hall is very handsomely fitted up for Masonic purposes, and contained, appropriately laid out, an elegant suite of Royal Arch furniture and regalia that did great credit to the taste and liberality of the promoters of the new Chapter.

Provincial Grand Chapter was opened in the afternoon. M.E. Comp. the Rev. Jno. Huyshe, M.A., Past G.J., Prov. G. Superintendent, presided, supported by the following officers:—Ex. Comps. W. G. Rogers, P.P.G.J., H. pro tem.; Capt. W. E. Stone, R.N., P.G.I.; J. Stroud Short, P.G.P.S. pro tem.; W. F. Quicke, P.G. 1st A.S. pro tem.; W. Coath, P.G. 2nd A.S.; W. H. Triplett, Treas.; R. M. Andrews, P.G.D.C.; H. B. Stark, P.P.G.C., Organist pro tem.; P. Blanchard, P.G., Janitor. The following Past P.G. and private chapter officers were also among the companions present: Ex. Comps. H. Walrond, P.P.G.P.S.; Samuel Jones, P.P.G.S.N.; W. T. Maynard, P.P.G.P.S.; J. B. Gover, P.P.G.P.S.; P. B. Clemens, P.P.G.A.S.; L. D. Westcott, P.P.G.A.S.; E. Aitken Davies, P.P.G. Reg.; H. Woodgate, P.P.G. Reg.; Jno. Sadler, P.P.G.S.B.; A. Bodley, P.P.G. St. B.; Jos. Page, P.Z. 444. Treas. 112; G. W. Ormerod, P.Z. 303; T. B. Patterson Z. 1125; Saml. Loram, H. 303; F. Horspool, H. 444; I. Latimer, H. 189; T. J. Shapland, H. 251; Geo. Evans, H. 847; W. C. Oliver, J. 251; W. E. Williams, J. 1125; Sydney Templar, J. 303; T. Freeman, J. 106; F. J. Pratt, J. 1138; G. J. Bishop, Z. 106; H. S. Gill, J. elect, 1125. Comps. H. Strawson, P.S. 39; F. Pollard, P.S. 112; Jas. J. rman, S.N. 112; H. Stocker, D.C. 112; T. Higgs, S.E. 106; Geo. Huxham, S.N. 444; C. C. Kendrick, D.C. 444; W. Pidsley, A.S. 444; W. Brodie, 1st. A.S. 444; W. Gregory, A. Huxtable, 112; Benj. Barber, 112, 444; S. Stewart Kersteman, 303; Col. Fitzgerald.

Business commenced with the constitution and consecration of the Brent Chapter. Ex-Comp. G. W. Ormerod, acting as S.E., made the application to the P.G. Superintendent, who ordered the warrant for the constitution of the Chapter granted by Grand Chapter to the promoters of the Chapter to be read. The members of the new Chapter, expressed their approval of the officers named in the warrant.

Ex-Comp. W. G. Rogers, as H., then delivered an oration to the companions on their duties. They were, he said, to admit no candidates to exaltation whom they would scruple to grasp with the right hand of fellowship. They were to keep the membership worthy of the Order that had gone before, and to do nothing that would throw any blame on the fraternity in the future. P.G.S.E. then presented the following companions as the three Principals of the new chapter for the ensuing year, who were duly invested:—J. H. Warren, Z.; F. Horspool, H.; B. Barber, J.

The Principals produced a list of their officers (for the present their investment was deferred):—F. Pollard, S.E.; George Huxham, S.N.; H. Strawson, P.S.; W. Brodie, 1st A.S.; W. Pidsley, 2nd A.S.; W. F. Quicke, P.Z., who was unanimously elected Treasurer; W. Gregory, Chap.; C. C. Kendrick, D.C.; W. Sampson, 1st Steward; W. B. Land, 2nd Steward. The P.G. Superintendent declared the Chapter duly constituted, and the ceremony of its consecration was then proceeded with. At the close of the consecration the P.G. Superintendent congratulated the companions of the new chapter on the promising appearance of their chapter.

The reports of the P.G.S.E. and of the P.G. Treas. were then submitted and adopted. The treasurer's report, together with some payments that had been made that day, shewed an available balance in hand of £34, Ex-Comp. W.G. Rogers proposed that £25 should be subscribed to the Masonic Fund for the relief of the famine in India.—Ex-Comp. Samuel Jones seconded the Proposition, which was carried unanimously, and Most ex-Comp. the Rev. John Huyshe added ten guineas to the donation. Comp. Jones said Masonic donations to the distress in India were very appropriate, as some of the oldest lodges in the world existed there, and it would shew the Indian Masons that their English brethren did not forget them. Comp. Benjamin Barber was unanimously elected as the P.G. Treasurer for the ensuing year, and Ex-Comps. W.H. Triplett and T.S. Bayly appointed the Audit Committee. A letter was read from Ex-Comp. L.P. Metham regretting his inability through illness, to be present, and another from him urging the claims of the Indian Famine Fund to the charity of the province. The following Comps. were appointed the P.G. officers for the ensuing year:—Ex-Comps. W.G. Rogers, 112, H.; H. Walrond, 303, J.; G. W. Ormerod, 303, S.E.; Robert Barwin, 112, S.N.; George Evans, 847, P.S.; J. H. Warren, 1284, 1st A.S.; G. W. Phillips, 202, 2nd A.S.; I. Latimer, 189, Reg.; F. J. Pratt, S.B.; Samuel Loram, 303, 1st St. B.; G. I. Bishop, 106, 2nd St. B.; F. Horspool, 1284 D.C.; R. Pengelly, 70, A.D.C.; F. Pollard O.; J. S. Short, B.B.; P. Blanchard, Janitor. In the evening the companions dined together at the Globe Hotel; the P.G. Superintendent presiding.

MEMORIAL TO STEPHENSON.

There is no name which the industries of this country and the civilized world should hold in more enduring estimation than that of George Stephenson. His life was a history of the progress of locomotion. All that we have been doing in that direction since his first travelling engine was placed on the rails in 1814 has been but a development of his invention. His experience of that date showed that a revolution had been effected in the means of transport, and with the passing of the Bill for the Liverpool and Manchester Railway in 1816 that system of locomotion was inaugurated which has since extended itself, to the glory of England and the immortal honour of George Stephenson. He was born at the Wylam Colliery, near Newcastle, which is far distant from Chesterfield, in Derbyshire; but there is nothing inappropriate in a memorial being raised to George Stephenson by the inhabitants of the latter town. In Derbyshire, amid his birds and his horticultural pursuits, he spent the quiet evening of a laborious life, and in the churchyard of Chesterfield his ashes now repose. It was a happy thought, then, of those who are interesting themselves in the cause of industrial education in Chesterfield to dedicate to the memory of Stephenson the building in which such education is to be afforded.

The ceremony of laying the foundation stone of the memorial was held on Wednesday, and it was conducted in a manner which rendered it in every way a success. It is not easy to impart novelty in the laying of a foundation stone. The thing is of frequent occurrence in these days, and there are certain set proceedings which one expects to see duly gone through whenever a foundation stone is laid. But on this occasion the Freemasons of the Masonic province in which Chesterfield is situated, with Lord Hartington, as Prov. Grand Master, at their head, imparted an imposing grandeur to the ceremony, which raised it far above the ordinary level of "functions" of this kind. It is but justice to the inhabitants of the town and to a large concourse from the surrounding neighbourhood, to say that they did their part in seconding the successful exertions of the Masonic body. Two o'clock was the time appointed for the mustering of the procession which was to take the leading part in the ceremony. Punctually at the appointed hour the excellent band of the 3rd Derbyshire Volunteers was in the Market-place, and to its music various bodies, several of them wearing bright scarves and other emblems of the brotherhood, rapidly fell into their places and got into marching order. There were the friendly societies of Chesterfield, four abreast, the Committee of the Science and Art Classes, the Committee and Members of the Mechanics' Institute, the Committee of the University Extension Classes, the Council and members of the Chesterfield and Derbyshire Institute of Mining, Civil, and Mechanical Engineers, the tradesmen of the town of Chesterfield, the Stephenson Memorial Committee, the contractors, the architect, the Mayor and Corporation of Chesterfield, the borough magistrates, the members for the county, the county magistrates, the local gentry, private Lodges of Freemasons with their respective banners, the officers wearing their collars and jewels, and lastly, the Provincial Grand Lodge of Freemasons, with the Right Worshipful the Marquis of Hartington, Provincial Grand Master of the Province of Derbyshire, all in full Masonic costume. The site of the memorial is on the brow of the hill beneath the church, the spire of which is, in its way, almost as curious an object as the Leaning Tower of Pisa. Owing, it is said, to the warping of the woodwork in its interior, this spire has assumed an extraordinary twist, and leans very decidedly out of the perpendicular, though not, it is to be hoped, at a sufficient angle dangerously to affect its centre of gravity. Arrived at the site of the memorial, the procession halted and formed an avenue, through which the Provincial Grand Master passed to the spot where the foundation-stone was suspended. The officiating brethren took up positions at the four sides of the stone, the Provincial Grand Master standing at one end and the Provincial Grand Chaplain, bearing the Sacred Law on a cushion at the other. An anthem having been chanted by a choir, a silver trowel was presented to Lord Hartington; then a prayer was read by the Provincial Grand Chaplain, and various coins of the present reign having been deposited in the cavity, the noble lord duly laid the stone.

Lord Hartington, in his capacity of Provincial Grand Master, then, according to ancient Masonic custom, addressed the spectators as follows:—Men, women, and children here assembled to-day to behold this ceremony, know all of you that we be lawful Masons, true and faithful to the laws of our country, and established of old in peace and honour in most countries to do good to our brethren, to erect magnificent structures, and to fear God, the great Architect of the Universe. We have among us, concealed from the eyes of all men, secrets which cannot be divulged; but these secrets are lawful and honourable, and not repugnant to the laws of God or man. They were intrusted in peace and honour to the Masons of ancient times, and have been faithfully transmitted to us. It is our duty to convey them unimpaired to the latest posterity. Unless our Craft were good and our calling honourable, we should not have lasted for so many centuries, nor should we have been honoured with the patronage of so many illustrious men in all ages, who have ever shown themselves ready to promote our interest and to defend us against all adversaries. We are assembled here to-day in presence of you all to assist in laying in ancient form the foundation-stone of this Stephenson Memorial Hall, which we pray God to prosper for the promotion of godliness, harmony and brotherly love till time shall be no more.

To this all the brethren replied, "So mote it be." After some further Masonic formalities, Lord Hartington continued,—Mr. Mayor, the ceremony of laying this stone being now finished, I wish before we conclude the proceedings of this forenoon by the singing of the National Anthem, to say just a very few words on behalf of the Masonic body of this Province, expressive on their part and on my own, as their representative, of the pleasure we have felt in assisting in the work which we have here been performing. I hope that the building of which we have laid the first stone to-day, and which, despite the many difficulties which have arisen, has at last made a prosperous beginning, will not only be an ornament to this town of Chesterfield, but will prove also a great and material advantage to the town and neighbourhood. By means of this building an institute which has been at work among you for so many years, and has promoted the progress of those industries which in your district have found so wide a field, will be able to carry out its mission unimpeded by those obstacles which it has hitherto encountered. From that circumstance the community of this neighbourhood will derive very considerable and manifest advantages. In this building there will also be the means of extending to all of you and your children who may be desirous of availing yourselves of them the benefits of a higher education than has been hitherto afforded to you. You are aware under what disadvantages, and yet with what success, the work to which I have alluded has been done, but I trust it will be carried on with greater advantages and with still greater success in the building we have this day inaugurated (cheers). It will be no unworthy memorial of the great man after whom this edifice is to be named, who lived among you during the latter period of his life, and whose bones now lie in the churchyard of your town. I believe this building is rightly to be called after one who did so much, not only for Chesterfield and its neighbourhood, but for this nation and the world at large (cheers). It would be useless, especially as I have to address many of you later in the evening, for me now to detain you longer. I shall, therefore, only express on the part of the Masonic body of this county, of whom I have the honour to be the head, their good wishes for the prosperity of the institution for whose benefit the proposed building is designed.

The ceremony concluded by the singing of a Masonic version of the National Anthem.

SKETCHES OF MASONIC CHARACTER.

No. IX.

BRO. KIMPTON ON THE RHIGI.

Bro. Kimpton is a fixed light in his famous lodge, the "Zodiac," but of which the cabalistic, or rather the astronomical characters he represents, is not quite certain. He is both a learned Mason and a true-hearted man, and is always ready to impart his store of knowledge to his brethren, to diffuse information, and encourage the cultivation of Masonic intellectuality. He is liberal and kindly communicative, and tolerant, and we have often listened to his "Lectures" in the lodge with edification, and hope to do so often again, as Paddy says, "Plaze the Pigs." Bro. Kimpton is emphatically a student of polite literature, as well as an intellectual Mason, and he is not a little scientific in all that concerns the outer world of literature and knowledge. No wonder, then, that he is much looked up to.

He has just returned from the Rhigi Kaltbad, and gives a most amusing account of his experiences and his expedition.

He went from Paris to Geneva, and from Geneva to Berne, and from Berne to the Rhigi. He saw a very charming country, and delighted alike in the Lake Leman and Lake Lucerne. He was able to loiter at Vevey, to look in at Chillon, to breathe fresh air at Chexbres, and to take a peep at Montreux.

He says, (for he is a genuine Briton), "Sir, I breathed the air of liberty, and thought of William Tell and the apple. I don't believe in these doubts about William Tell. They are throwing doubts on everything just now. There are some fellows who believe nothing, and I have not yet reached that state of botheration and bosh! No, Sir, I believe and always shall, more majorum." And a very sensible fellow we venture to think, is Bro. Kimpton.

What a good thing it would be if some of our dilettante sceptics, who are so fond of talking of their "mental difficulties" and boring the sensibilities of the strong, and shaking the faith of the weak, would throw their doubts, (not their physis), "to the dogs," and become rational and believing as of yore. We are sick, positively sick of the "yearnings for solution of difficulties" which are not difficulties at all, which appear amongst our young men just now, who have, however, not the slightest scruple of scepticism in the world, in respect to "cham," a "smoke," a "nip," a "chew," and who have entire faith in billiards and bitters, in Newmarket and B. and S. What can be done with them or for them?

Bro. Kimpton says that much as he likes Switzerland and the Swiss, its glorious scenery, and its wondrous hills, he thinks that he was disappointed at the Rhigi. It was sultry by day and sultrier by night. The mountain air was somewhat warm in August, and it was very hot for walking, and he has a distinct recollection of a good deal of perspiration, and glare, and a wonderful Babel of tongues and nationalities. However, it did him good, at least, so he says. The variation from a busy life, "On Change," was a very pleasant one, amid Swiss hills and Swiss lakes, and he has returned, much to the delight of his friends, with a large collection of Swiss knick-nacks, and a wonderful assortment of sticks and walking poles. "And then," as he says, "travelling, Bro. Toulmin, enlarges the mind. If a man is always living in one spot, he becomes narrow, and prejudiced in his views and sympathies. But travelling expands his horizon and his mental grasp. He returns home, if gladly, sensible of the prevailing excellency of Old England, yet with a kindly recollection of the distant spots he has visited, and the different people he has seen in other days. He is fond of saying:—"Oh! it was in such a year, I went up the Rhigi with old Jones and venerable Trotter, and a very pleasant time we had of it. We saw the sun rise, and we enjoyed the early hours, and we found ourselves among a friendly people, and we were quite sorry when we had to return home. As Freemasons we should always seek to be large-hearted, and tolerant and to emancipate ourselves from absurd antipathies and childish prejudices. Let us all remember that "A man's a man for all that," as Bro. Burns said so well of old, and a "b'other," in Masonry points to something more than a mere profession. The word has a real meaning, and is neither a vapid formulary, nor an insular claim, but is truly a very real thing and a Cosmopolitan obligation.

TO WORSHIPFUL MASTERS.

The attention of Worshipful Masters is specially directed to the following advertisement, with a suggestion from the Publisher that they should cause a proposition to be made that their Lodges should become subscribers to

THE FOUR MASONIC PUBLICATIONS.

It is doubtless desirable that every Mason should have a knowledge of the proceedings at the Quarterly Communications of Grand Lodge, and it is especially the duty of the Worshipful Master to be well posted up in such matters, and as there is no better means of obtaining such information than the columns of the Freemason, which gives verbatim reports of the Grand Lodge proceedings, and a full account of all the meetings of the Board of Benevolence, and the various Committees of our Great Masonic Charities, the Publisher feels justified in making this recommendation, with the full assurance that such an investment of a small portion of the lodge funds will be productive of beneficial results.

LAMPLOUGH'S PYRETIC SALINE.

HAVE IT IN YOUR HOUSES; it gives instant relief in Headaches, Sea or Bilious Sickness, and quickly cures the worst form of Eruptive or Skin Complaints. The various diseases arising from Constipation, the Liver, or Blood Impurities, Inoculation, the results of breathing air infected with FEVERS, MEASLES, or SMALL-POX, are frequently prevented and certainly cured by its use.

Sold by all Chemists, and the Maker, in patent glass-stoppered bottles, at 2s. 6d., 4s. 6d., 11s., and 21s. each. The great reputation of this remedy having called forth spurious imitations, whose only merit is a transposition of the words of my label and wrappers, without any of the health restoring properties, it is needful to observe my name and trade-mark as above, on a BUFF-COLOURED WRAPPER, without which the Saline cannot be genuine.—113, HOLBORN HILL, LONDON, E.C.

He thought it was incumbent on all of them to use their best efforts not only to make the lodge prosperous but to combine the good feelings of hospitality and good fellowship towards one another. The other toasts were then given and the brethren separated.

ST. DUNSTAN'S LODGE (No. 1589).—The last meeting of this lodge was held at Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-street, on the 19th inst., when there were present Bros. Wellsman, P.M. 858, W.M.; Dalwood, S.W.; Dodson, J.W.; Low, W.S., acting S.D.; Woodbridge, J.D.; Manners, I.G.; Dwarber, I.P.M.; Tisley, Secretary; Bull, D.C. The visitors were Bros. the Rev. J. Gregory, P.P.G.C. of Suffolk; Kent, P.M. Domestic; Dodson, P.M. Joppa, Singleton, W.M. 858; Walls, P.G.O. Middlesex, J.W. 1381; Davies, 231, Ottawa, Canada; Sihal, Brussels; Foster, Portsmouth; Leaver, 1194. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, the W.M. passed Bro. Skelton, gave the lecture on the second tracing board, and initiated Mr. Robinson, the whole of the ceremonies being exceedingly well performed. There being no other business before the lodge, it was closed, and the brethren partook of a well served banquet. The Royal and Craft toasts having been duly proposed and honoured, the "Health of the W.M." was given by the I.P.M., who in the course of a very eloquent speech congratulated the lodge upon possessing so excellent a Master as Bro. Wellsman had proved himself to be. The St. Dunstan's, although one of the youngest metropolitan lodges, was not the youngest in point of work, or the last in promulgating one of the most glorious tenets in Freemasonry, namely charity, and their W.M. had done good suit and service in both these great Masonic essentials. He therefore charged them to receive the toast with all due honour and respect. The W.M. in reply briefly said that he scarcely knew how to thank them sufficiently for the manner in which they had responded to his health, so flatteringly proposed by Bro. Dwarber. He should endeavour to follow in the footsteps of the I.P.M., as he believed his example was worthy of being followed, and because he had received great kindness at his hands. There was but one way of discharging the duties of the Master's chair, and that was to earnestly and diligently study the "working," in order that perfect harmony should characterise the whole proceedings of the ceremonials. In conclusion, he conscientiously believed that at the present time No. 1589 could challenge comparison with any lodge in London for its general state of efficiency and prosperity. "The Initiates" followed. In giving this toast the W.M. said that, although he quite endorsed the well-known remark of the Grand Secretary that "quality, and not quantity" was the Masonic desideratum, yet no lodge could hope to go on without the occasional incoming of initiates. However, a certain supervision was necessary, and whilst that continued to be exercised the better it would be for the Craft both now and ultimately. The gentleman they had initiated that evening was in every way worthy of their lodge, and would, he was confident, in time reflect great credit upon it. The Initiates having replied, "The Visitors" followed, coupled with the names of Bros. Gregory, Singleton, Davies, and Sihal as representatives of the London, Provincial, Colonial and Foreign Lodges as present that evening. This toast having been warmly received the brethren thus signalled responded in suitable terms. The next toast in order was "The I.P.M." and which drew from the W.M. a very warm eulogy upon the merits of Bro. Dwarber who he said was ever ready, ever anxious and ever willing to assist in any Masonic work. It was a great support to him as Master to have such an excellent Past Master at his elbow, one who had the interests of the lodge so much at heart that he the W.M., believed that when the time arrived and which day he hoped was far distant for Bro. Dwarber, to be absent in body he would be present in spirit. The I.P.M. in reply, said that he should always do his best not only for the St. Dunstan's Lodge, but for the Craft in general. He then gave a short account of the origin of the lodge, in which he stated that since its foundation three other parishes had formed distinctive lodges which proved the example set by the founders of No. 1589, was found worthy of imitation. In concluding he paid a high compliment to the services rendered him during his year of office by Bro. Moxwell in the honorary character of first Past Master. "The Treasurer and Secretary" in the absence of the former was acknowledged by Bro. Tisley in a neat little speech. "The Health of the Officers" followed and was responded to by Bros. Dalwood, Dodson, and Low. The proceedings were enlivened by Bros. Dodson, Walls, Bedingfield, Clemow, and Sihal.

ECCLESTON LODGE (No. 1624).—The first anniversary meeting of this young lodge was held on Wednesday, 17th inst., at the Grosvenor Hall, Pimlico, and was attended by a very large number of the brethren. Although only twelve months old the lodge numbers nearly sixty subscribing brethren, and from its connection with the club held on the same premises, and its popularity amongst the club members, it is not unlikely that it will number more than a hundred before the close of its second year. Among the visitors were Bros. Thomas Read, 913; G. R. Egerton, 1310; F. F. Davies, 87; C. Goolden, 1706; J. Wyer, 1314; J. F. Callet, 907; T. Simpson, 1178; A. Cameron, 180; R. A. Steel, 1197; R. E. H. Goffin, 1395; L. C. Reman, 186; R. Burleton, 860; T. Peran, 860; T. Hardy, 190; J. B. Swallow, 382; Louis Beck, 1687; Wm. Grant, 126; E. C. Massey, (Freemason), J. Nelson, 1441; J. H. Lane, 1269; T. Holland, 122; J. W. Sedgwick, 180; and A. A. Drew, 890. The lodge was opened by Bro. Henry A. Hunt, W.M., supported by his officers, Bro. D. H. McLeod, S.W.; J. C. Flattely, J.W.; Wm. Vincent, S.D.; Samuel John, J.D.; J. G. Fisher, I.G.; Ed. Powell, D.C., and J. L. Coulter, P.M., and after the confirmation of the minutes and the presentation of the report by the Audit Committee, the W.M. Elect, Bro. D. H. McLeod, late S.W., was presented to the W.M. for the benefit of installation, and having been duly obligated was presented to a Board of Installed Masters, and duly installed into the chair of K.S. This portion of the ceremony was performed by the outgoing Master, Bro. Hunt, but the remainder, including the orations, was performed by Bro. Coulter. The officers appointed for the ensuing year are Bros. Flattely, S.W.; Wm. Vincent, J.W.; Beckham, Secretary; Sam. Jones, S.D.; J. G. Fisher, J.D.; Powell, I.G.; Egerton, Organist; Good and Taylor, D.C.'s; Johnson and Jackson, 2 Wine Stewards, and Bro. Wilson, Assistant Tyler. As soon as the appointment of officers was completed the ballot was taken for three initiates, namely, Mr. Fredk. Arnold, proposed by Bro. Jackson, seconded by Bro. Beckham; Mr. R. Cullingford, proposed by Bro. Beckham, seconded by Bro. McLeod; and Mr. Wm. Henry Bears, proposed by Bro. Isaac, seconded by Bro. Beckham, and being found favourable to their admission, they were duly initiated into the mysteries of the First Degree. This, with the exception of the proposition of three fresh candidates for initiation at a future meeting, completed the business of the evening, and the lodge was therefore closed, and the brethren adjourned to the large room on the ground floor where the banquet-tables were prepared. A good deal of delay, however, took place before the viands were on the table, and it was not until a somewhat late hour that the last course was removed, and the Worshipful Master rose to propose the first toast. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts of course led the way, and a verse of the National Anthem and the scarcely less popular "God Bless the Prince of Wales," were sung. "The Health of the Earl of Carnarvon, M.W., Pro Grand Master," followed by that of "Lord Skelmersdale, R.W. Deputy G. M., and the rest of the Grand Officers" came next, followed respectively by the performance of the Entered Apprentice's song by Bro. C. Taylor, and "We have our brave hearts still," by Bro. J. L. Coulter, P.M. Honour was also done to the toast "Success to the Masonic Charities," coupled with the name of Bro. Coulter, P.M., who replied, and from whose speech it appeared that he had during his time taken up a considerable sum, amounting to some six hundred pounds, to the Masonic Charities. Prior to Bro. Coulter's reply, however, Bro. Daniel McLeod, the newly-installed Master, sang a song, entitled "Our own dear Lodge." It was well sung, and deserved the hearty applause it met with on all sides. Bro. H. A. Hunt, I.P.M., proposed "The Health of the W.M.," in doing which he referred to the great ability and precision with which Bro. McLeod did his work in the ceremonies, which, he said, stamped him as a man who had taken Freemasonry to heart. Bro. McLeod was one of the originators of the Eccleston Lodge—the idea of founding a lodge in connection with the Grosvenor Club originated with him. He had greatly assisted the progress of the lodge, which beginning with eighteen members now numbered about sixty. Bro. D. H. McLeod, W.M. said: Bros. Senior and Junior Wardens and brethren all,—I scarcely know the terms in which I may reply to the eloquence which has fallen from the lips of the W.P.M. Hunt, on the present occasion, nor can I think that I am worthy of the high eulogium he has passed upon me, but nevertheless you have been pleased to elect me, and it is my duty to say that it is an honour I shall cherish to the last hour of my life. The honour that has been conferred upon me to-night I regard as one which can never be excelled in any sphere of life in which I may move. For a number of years I have been mixed up with friendly societies and other societies, but I have always looked upon Freemasonry as the best society in the world. There is nothing stronger in the universe than the bond of Freemasonry, and throughout the whole course of my career I have never experienced such a grasp as the grasp of Freemasonry; it makes us all actual friends. I have heard that it may take a church to hold one's acquaintances, but that the pulpit will suffice to hold one's friends. I have, however, formed more friendships in Freemasonry than in anything else I have been mixed up with. I wish to say one word on behalf of our lodge. I remember the time—scarcely eighteen months ago—when we met in a small room in this building to discuss the proposal of forming a lodge, when indeed we had but small expectation of obtaining a warrant. From that time to the present the most cordial good-will has reigned amongst us, and I must now express the hope that this perfect love and cordiality may continue among us for many years to come; may the spirit of Freemasonry also extend through the hearts of the people, and teach them that in it there is a bond which will unite all creeds, that will survive every shock, that will survive the wreck of ages and the crash of worlds. "The Health of the I.P.M., Bro. Hunt," was then proposed by the Master, who at the same time presented him on behalf of the lodge with a very elegant P.M.'s jewel, in the design of which the portcullis, the armorial sign of the city of Westminster, is introduced with excellent effect. Bro. P.M. Hunt having replied, various other toasts were proposed, including the "Initiates," "Visitors," and "Officers of the Lodge." Nor was the Masonic press forgotten. The W.M. spoke in brief terms of commendation of the Freemason, adding that the well thumbed pages of the copy in their reading-room were the best evidence of the appreciation in which it was held by the members of the Eccleston Lodge. This toast was coupled with the name of Bro. Massey, who responded on behalf of the press in general and of the Freemason in particular. The brethren did not separate till a late hour.

NEW FINSBURY PARK LODGE, (No. 1695).—This new lodge held its first regular meeting on Tuesday, the 16th inst., at the Finsbury Park Tavern. The officers were in full attendance and Messrs. James Hewling Thompson, George David Edmunds, Thomas Crane, and George Benjamin Carey were initiated, the duty being divided between Bros. Past Master Davis and Pigot. Bros. Alfred Ayden, and Thomas Jackson, were accepted as joining members. A banquet followed, which was most admirably served by mine host of "The Tavern." We regret the crowded state of our columns precludes a lengthened report; however, we cannot help remarking that the perfect harmony which exists in this lodge might be well followed by many of the fraternity. The W.M., Bro. W. T. Purkiss is one we are ever pleased to greet, and his kind genial manner and smiling face secure him the universal respect of the brotherhood. The visitors were Bros. W. Wilkinson, 167; J. F. O. Wood, 1288; C. J. G. Wood, 1288; Fred Goode, 1677; Frank Bout, W.M. 1306; and James Cox, 1288.

TORQUAY.—Lodge of St. John's (No. 328).—The first meeting of this lodge, after the summer recess, was held at the Masonic Hall, on Monday, October 1st. A number of members and visiting brethren were present, considerable interest being felt in the business of the evening, the principal event being the initiation into Freemasonry of Mr. Lawrence Hesketh Palk, eldest son and heir of Sir Lawrence Palk, Bart., M.P. for East Devon, and Lord of the Manor of Tormsham, Torquay. The W.M., Bro. S. Burton, presided over the lodge, supported by Bro. Piggot, I.P.M.; Bro. the Rev. R. Bowden, P.P.G.C., Chaplain; Bro. Harland P.M., 328, and P.P.J.D.; Bro. Watson, Sec., and P.M. 328, and P.J.G.D.; Bro. Greenfield, P.M., P.P.J.D.; Bro. Pratt, P.M., P.G. S. of W.; Bro. Warren, P.M., P.G.S.; Bro. Dand, P.M., P.P.G.D., &c.; Bro. Maclean, P.M.; Bro. Robt. Palk, 279, and others. The initiation was ably conducted by the W.M., who called upon Bro. Watson to give the address, and Bro. Harland the charge. Bro. Brooks, the Organist, effectively introduced portions of the musical compositions of Bro. E. J. Crow, of Leicester, and the officers being well acquainted with their duties, the ceremony passed off smoothly and successfully. The sum of five guineas was voted from the lodge funds as a donation to the Indian Famine Relief Fund. After the lodge was closed the brethren retired to the banqueting-room, where a substantial repast was served. After grace, the usual Masonic toasts were honoured, and the expressions of satisfaction at having initiated into the order a brother of the social status, ability, and promise of Bro. Lawrence Hesketh Palk were heartfelt and genuine. It was also pointed out to the newly initiated brother that a great sphere of Masonic influence and usefulness would naturally be within his grasp, and that as he pursued steadily the acquisition of Masonic knowledge and promulgated the genuine tenets and principles of the Order he might justifiably look forward to a future of great Masonic position and honour. Bro. Lawrence Hesketh Palk replied in a heartfelt and genial manner, thanking the brethren for all their good wishes and kind reception of him, and hoped that some of their flattering predictions might be realised, but that having for so short a time been initiated into the light of Freemasonry, he could not be expected to say much on that subject. The members of the lodge and the visiting brethren were all much pleased at the successful opening of the winter session of St. John's, 328, Torquay, Bro. Dand, from Exeter, replying on behalf of the visitors, and complimenting the lodge on its position and prospects.

LIVERPOOL.—Duke of Edinburgh Lodge (No. 1182).—At the last meeting of this prosperous lodge, which was most numerously attended, at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street, Liverpool, the W.M., Bro. John Williams, opened the proceedings, supported by Bro. R. Martin, I.P.M.; W. Woods, P.M.; J. A. Edginton, P.M.; P. K. Thorn, P.M.; J. W. Williams, P.M., and a full staff of officers besides; Bro. May, P.M. 673; D. Jackson, S.W. 673, and several other visitors. There were altogether about 60 brethren present. An unusually large list of candidates appeared on the circular, and out of these six appeared, and were duly initiated most impressively by the W.M. The handsome sum of ten guineas was afterwards voted for the Girls' Institution in London, and five guineas for the Indian Famine Fund, which was subsequently augmented, by the private subscriptions of the brethren, to ten guineas. Relief to distressed widows was also unanimously voted. The brethren then adjourned to refreshment, and after the usual loyal and Masonic toasts the proceedings were brought to a close at an early hour. A lodge of emergency, in connection with the lodge, was held on Thursday, the 18th inst.

LIVERPOOL.—Alliance Lodge (No. 667).—The usual monthly meeting of this excellently worked lodge was held on Tuesday, the 16th inst., at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street, Liverpool. The W.M., Bro. George Stanley Willings, was in his place, supported by Bros. J. E. Jackson, P.M., P.G.S.; W. Doyle, P.M., Treasurer, P.P.J.G.D.; Ellis, S.W.; Henry Firth, J.W.; T. Ockleshaw, P.M.; A. Bucknall, I.G.; S. Bushell, S., and a large body of brethren. Two candidates were initiated and two brethren passed to the degree of F.C. in a most impressive manner by the W.M., who, although suffering from a severe cold, afterwards gave the explanations of the first and second tracing boards with a fluency and elocutionary power which elicited universal commendation. It was unanimously resolved, on the motion of Bro. J. E. Jackson, P.G.S., seconded by Bro. Ellis, S.W., to vote the sum of ten guineas from the funds of the lodge in aid of the Indian Famine Fund. The brethren subsequently supped in the large dining hall, and after the brethren had spent a pleasant evening, during which toast, song, and sentiment prevailed, they separated at a seasonable hour.

LIVERPOOL.—Everton Lodge (No. 823).—On Wednesday evening, the 17th inst., the members of this lodge held their usual monthly meeting at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street, Liverpool. There was a large attendance. After no fewer than seven brethren had been passed to the Second Degree by Bro. John Houlding, W.M., Bro. W. Wilson, I.P.M., delivered a lecture on geometry as applied to Freemasonry, in which he showed that during the past 2400 years the Craft had been the guiding power of all good actions, every line of the working tools of the Order having its mode of teaching men to improve themselves, and that the Great Architect of the Universe had made mankind one mighty brotherhood, with Himself as Mentor.

SOUTHEAST.—Priory Lodge (No. 1000).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held at the Midleton Hotel, Southend, on Thursday, the 11th inst. In the absence of the W.M., Bro. Rev. S. R. Wigram, Past Grand Chaplain, the I.P.M., Bro. Dr. E. E. Phillips, P.M. 359, P.P.G.D., presided, supported by the following officers and brethren:—Bros. A. Lucking, P.M. 160, P.M. and M.E.Z. 1000, Prov. G.D.C., as I.P.M.; W. Chaplin, S.W.; S. Cox, P.M., as J.W.; J. A. Wardell, P.M. 160 and 1000, P.P.G.D., Sec.; J. C. Johnstone, P.M. 20 (I.C.), S.D.; W. Allen, jun., S.W. 160, as J.D.; G. F. Jones, I.G.; Mountain, Tyler; J. C. Hemman, P.M., P.P.G.D.; W. S. Cox, P.M., P.P.G.S.B.; H. Rowley, P.M., P.P.G.D.; W. H. Lockett, J. Girling, W. Waterhouse, H. Hassall, T. Barrett, G. Berry, T. Hales, H. Hicks, W. H. Norman. Visitors: W. Bro. J. Tyrell Leith, P.M. 549 and 1118. W.M. 1709, D.D.G.M. of Bombay; Bros. E. Hicks, 1 (I.C.); Dr. S. W. Fisher, M.D., 379; J. Wilkinson, P.M. 1248, P.P.G.O. N. and E. York; H. W. Hemsworth, P.M. 190 and 1193; H. Beecher, 1360. After the preliminary business, the W.M. raised Bros. A. Cole, E. Birkett, and B. McMay Johnstone to the Third Degree, and the ballot having proved favourable, he afterwards initiated Messrs. O. Benall and W. Griffin into the mysteries of Freemasonry. The lodge having been closed, the brethren adjourned to refreshment; the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given and heartily received, the Tyler's toast bringing the proceedings and a very pleasant evening to a close.

WESTERHAM.—Amherst Lodge (1123).—The last meeting of this lodge for the present season took place on Saturday, the 6th inst., at the King's Arms Hotel. Bro. E. J. Dodd, W.M., presided, supported by Bros. W. C. Banks, J.W.; C. J. Dodd, S.D.; J. Webb, J.D.; H. Jewell, Secretary; Smalman Smith, I.G.; T. J. Baker, D.C.; Owen, Steward; and in the absence of the S.W., Bro. C. C. Petley, P.M., officiated in that capacity. The W.M. was honoured by the attendance of several visiting brethren, among whom we noticed Bro. J. Dawburn, P.M., Perseverance, 213, P.G.S.B. Norfolk; Bro. F. W. Greenville, Royalty, 243, Island of Guernsey; Bro. E. Cox, P.M. Canonbury, 657; Bro. W. Cressell, Enoch, 11; Bro. T. C. Newson, Hervey, 1692; Bro. Damer Cape, Athenaeum, 1491; and several other brethren. The work consisted of passing two brethren, which was performed in good style by the W.M., and Bro. R. N. Newson, P.M., gave an oration on the principles and tenets of the Craft, in his usually terse and forcible language, which was listened to with much attention by the brethren present, after which the lodge was closed in due form, and the brethren adjourned to the banquet-room. After the cloth was cleared, the W.M. proposed the usual loyal and patriotic toasts, and in response to that of the visitors, Bro. Dawburn spoke most warmly of the kind reception he had met with by the brethren of the Amherst Lodge, and especially by the W.M., whom he had known from a little child, and the pleasure it gave him to see the progress he had made in Masonry, and the efficient manner in which he performed his duties. Bros. Greenville, Newson, Cox, Cressell, and Cape also responded, and the harmony and enjoyment of the evening was enhanced by the excellent singing of Bro. Smalman Smith, and the quaint and harmonious songs of Bro. Damer Cape. The Tyler's toast was given, and the brethren separated, after the enjoyment of a very pleasant evening.

MANCHESTER.—Lodge of Truth (No. 1458).—On Saturday, October 6th, the members of this lodge assembled at their private rooms, Newton Heath, at 3.30 p.m. The Master, Bro. James Batchelder, took up his position, supported by his officers; the gavel having been sounded, the business commenced. All having been proved as "true and trusty," the minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. The ballot was then taken for two candidates for initiation, viz., Mr. W. H. Flynn and Mr. J. A. Vincent, and in each case a unanimous election was the result. Mr. James Smith, who was not able to present himself for initiation at the September meeting, was announced and admitted, and received the E.A. Degree from the hands of his proposer, Bro. Batchelder, W.M. Mr. W. H. Flynn was unavoidably absent; and the next business on the circular was therefore proceeded with, it being the initiation of Mr. J. A. Vincent, who was admitted into the mysteries of the First Degree by his friend, Past Master Rogers, of Strangeways Lodge, 1219. Several brethren having been communicated with since the last meeting with regard to their overdue subscriptions, and no response having been given, they were, prior to the closing of the lodge, excluded therefrom, in accordance with notice supplied to them. In passing, we shall not be deemed out of place in commenting upon overdue subscriptions; it is a circumstance unfortunately not uncommon, but we must not charge this negligence to brethren who are Masons at heart. For all who possess Masonry in the hidden spring of life will naturally assist the working of their respective lodges by paying their contributions when due—as we all know doubtless that old adage, "It's money makes the mare to go." Money also is required in Masonic ranks; and if only paid when due it would save Secretaries an enormous amount of trouble, and also assist Treasurers in discharging their respective engagements. Some, however, put off their payments from time to time; the amount increases, and, as a consequence, that desire of "to have and to hold" increases with it; and exclusion is the result. Such a course however, is unnecessary with those who look upon Masonry in that high and exalted manner which its teachings demand, and therefore exclusion may justly be termed the refiner of our Craft, separating the tares from the wheat. Bro. Kleinmann, through unavoidable circumstances, tendered his resignation, which was accepted. Bro. Taylor, J.D., proposed a candidate for initiation. "Hearty good wishes" were given from Lodges 295, 317, 521, 1161, 1219, and Revere Lodge, Boston, U.S.A. Charity was next exercised; after which the lodge was closed according to ancient custom. The brethren then retired to the social board, where the usual Masonic toasts were heartily honoured. In due course came the last toast of the evening, and the brethren separated at 8.45 p.m.

TWICKENHAM.—Francis Burdett Lodge (No. 1503).—A strong gathering of the members of this lodge took place at the Albany Hotel, on the 9th inst. Amongst the principal officers present were Bros. W. H. Saunders, P.G.S. of Middlesex, W.M.; S. H. Knaggs, S.W.; Court J.W.; Wigginton, P.P.G.S. of Works, I.P.M. and Sec.; Tomlinson, P.P.G.D. of Norfolk, Treas.; Taylor, S.D.; Ashley, I.G.; C. Horsley, P.P.G.R. of Middlesex, &c., D.C. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, the W.M. raised Bro. Clarke to the degree of M.M. with his accustomed verve and impressiveness. This being election night, Bro. S. H. Knaggs, S.W., was unanimously elected W.M. for the year ensuing, and Bro. Tomlinson was unanimously re-elected Treasurer. Bro. Harrison was re-appointed Tyler, and the Library Committee re-appointed. The members and visitors then adjourned to a well-served collation. The visitors were Bros. Cama, P.M. Dalhousie Lodge; Pedler, P.M. Dalhousie Lodge; Court, W.M. Phoenix, Hants; King, Dobie Lodge. The preliminary toasts were given from the chair briefly but pertinently. "The D.P.G.M. and the rest of the P. Grand Officers, Past and Present," was acknowledged by Bros. Wigginton, Horsley, and Walls. "The Health of the W.M." followed, and having been warmly received, was immediately responded to. "The Past Masters" met with a response by Bro. Wigginton, I.P.M. "The Health of the Visitors" afforded Bros. Pedler and Court an opportunity of congratulating the lodge upon the excellent "working" manifested that evening, and for the hospitable manner in which they had been received. "The W.M. Elect" came next in order. Bro. Knaggs, in acknowledging the compliment, said it was a very proud moment to him. He was scarcely a Mason of three years' standing, and consequently he was indeed fortunate at being elected to fill so high and responsible a position as Master, but he hoped, with the assistance of the Past Masters, to do credit to the position. "The Officers" followed, and it was acknowledged by Bro. Tomlinson and Ashley.

HAMPTON COURT.—Era Lodge (No. 1423).—The election meeting of this well-established lodge was held at the Island Hotel, on Saturday, the 13th inst. Bro. E. H. Thiellay, P.P.G.S.B. Middx., P.M. 145, W.M., being absent, Bro. H. A. Dubois, P.P.G.D. Middx., P.M., initiated Messrs. Morton and Wheeler, the elections being unanimous. Bro. T. J. Sabine, P.P.G.S.B. Middx., P.M., S.W., W.M. elect; Bros. H. A. Dubois, P.M., Treas. (re-elected); J. Gilbert, P.G. Tyler Middx., Tyler. The usual twelve-guinea Past Master's jewel was voted to Bro. E. H. Thiellay. Bro. T. G. Tagg, 1326, elected joining member. The work was well done. There were present Past Masters Bros. J. W. Baldwin, P.G.P. Middx.; W. Hammond, P.P.G.D. Middx.; F. Walters, P.P.G.D.; Middx., Secretary; the officers, and a large majority of the members. The only visitor was Bro. T. C. Walls, P.G. Org. Middx. Refreshment followed labour.

WALTHAMSTOW.—Beaconsfield Lodge (No. 1662).—A meeting of this lodge was held at the Chequers, Marsh-street, on Saturday, the 6th inst., when there were present Bros. W. J. Christian, W.M.; Groome, S.W.; W. B. Brand, J.W.; J. Purder, P.M.; F. Hallows, Hon. Sec.; T. Franklin, S.D.; J. H. Cambridge, J.D.; W. G. Hallows, acting I.G.; Delvalli, W.S. The lodge was opened in the First Degree, and the minutes of the last regular lodge and emergency meetings were read and confirmed. Bros. Rubery and Stockwell, the candidates for passing, answered the usual questions. The lodge was then opened in the Second Degree, and the above brethren were passed. The lodge was resumed in the First Degree, and the ballot taken for two gentlemen which proved unanimous in their favour. Being present, were initiated into Freemasonry, according to ancient rite. In consequence of a vacancy in the office of S.D. having occurred since the last meeting, the W.M. conferred the collar on the S.D., Bro. T. Franklin, that of J.D. upon Bro. J. Cambridge, and that of W.S. upon Bro. Delvalli. The remaining business having been got through, the lodge was closed in due form, and adjourned until Saturday, the 3rd November.

INSTRUCTION.

LONDON MASONIC CLUB LODGE OF INSTRUCTION.—The above lodge met at 101, Queen Victoria-street (the Club), on Monday, at 6 o'clock p.m. Among a large attendance were Bros. J. A. Reed, 1673, W.M.; Nelson Reed, S.W.; C. E. Smith, J.W.; Barnett, S.D.; M. Turner, 157, J.D.; Triggs, I.G.; Shand, Secretary, also Bros. Jos. Langton, 1673, Langton Lodge; Edell, London, 108; H. Woods, White, Bauman, Woolton, and others. Visitors: Bro. Smallpeice, P.M., Secretary to Emulation Lodge of Improvement; C. Sawyer, 1619; Eastgate, Ward, 1563, and others. Lodge was opened and the minutes of the last meeting read and approved. The ceremony of initiation and the lectures of the degree were worked respectively by the W.M. and Bro. Smallpeice. Bro. Langton proposed and Bro. Edell seconded that Bro. Smallpeice be elected hon. member of the Lodge of Instruction, which was carried. This being the occasion of selecting officers, Bro. Shand proposed that Bro. Smallpeice be elected Preceptor for the ensuing 12 months, which was seconded by Bro. S. W. Nelson Reed, and carried unanimously.

Bro. Reed proposed that Bro. Hogg be re-elected Treasurer, which was duly seconded and carried. Bro. Langton proposed that Bro. J. F. Shand be re-elected Secretary. In doing so he paid compliments for the energy, assiduity, and punctual attendance of Bro. Shand during the past 12 months. Bro. Edell, seconded, with some few well chosen words, expressive of appreciation, for the trouble and attention of the Secretary. Bro. S. W. Reed was elected W.M. for next meeting, and the lodge will close till Monday, Nov. 12th, at 6 p.m.

WELLINGTON LODGE (No. 548).—There was a numerous assemblage of brethren at the White Swan, Deptford, on Monday, the 15th inst., to hear the working of the Fifteen Sections. The duty of Interrogator was undertaken by Bro. Govan Macdonald, P.M. 1158, who appears to have quite recovered from his recent severe illness, while the answers were distributed between Bros. Catterson, Gibson, Waterman, Hutchings, Millburn, Shaw, Gloster, C. Nash, Griffin and Church. This powerful cast is a sufficient guarantee of the excellence of the working, and each brother was warmly applauded at the completion of his task. Bro. Shaw coming in for the lion's share both of work and applause. The usual complimentary vote of thanks to the Interrogator, and a brief reply from Bro. Macdonald, brought an instructive evening to a close.

Royal Arch.

INDUSTRY CHAPTER (No. 186).—On Tuesday, 16th inst., the newly-elected Principals of this successful chapter were installed in their chairs, the ceremony being performed by Comp. Noehmer, P.Z. Chapter was opened by Comps. Tallent, Z.; Seex, H.; and Dyer, J.; after which the two last companions were installed as Z. and H. respectively, and Comp. Black was installed as J. The other companions who received the honour of appointment to office were Comps. G. Kelly, P.Z., Treasurer; W. Mann, P.Z., S.E.; S. E. Poore, S.N.; B. Taylor, P.S.; W. H. Hook, 1st A.S.; Kew, and A.S.; Johnson, D.C.; and Longstaff, Janitor. The chapter was then closed, and the companions adjourned from Freemasons' Hall, where the ceremonies took place, to Freemasons' Tavern, where an elegant banquet was provided. Among the visitors were Comps. E. J. Harty, P.S. 452; E. Wilson, 77; W. Worrell, P.Z. 766; and H. Massey, P.Z. 619 (Freemason). The customary toasts followed the banquet. Comp. Tallent, P.Z., in proposing the toast of "The M.E.Z.," said although he could not do full justice to the toast, he was spared the necessity of giving utterance to his feelings by the companions being as fully aware as he was of the abilities of Comp. Seex. All the companions knew that he would go through his year of office with perfect satisfaction to the chapter, not only to those Royal Arch Masons present, but to all Royal Arch Masons, and bring credit on the degree. Comp. Seex was one of his offspring, and consequently, he was proud of Comp. Seex's attainments. It gave him great pleasure to see one of his own children in Masonry in the chair of M.E.Z., and he was sure when Comp. Seex had completed his year of office the companions would wish to see him in the chair for a still longer period. However, there were other companions to follow him who would equally do honour to the chapter, and the companions while wishing to retain Comp. Seex, would not wish to deprive the other officers of the opportunity of obtaining for themselves that lustre which was sure to be attendant on the working of Comp. Seex. The M.E.Z. responded, and said that it was a convenient position for a First Principal or a W.M. to be placed in to have a Past Principal or a P.M. to sound his praise, because it required very little exertion on the part of the person extolled to return thanks, and the toast was sure of a hearty reception. It relieved a First Principal of a great deal of trouble if he found that his endeavours and his desires to please were thoroughly appreciated by the companions, and that those companions were determined to support him by all the means in their power. Comp. Seex next proposed "The Visitors," and each of those companions was called upon to reply. The M.E. then proposed "The Assistant Chairs, H. and J." He was spared saying much of Comp. Dyer, because the companions had seen his work. Comp. Black, however, was a new Principal; but when they considered the way in which he performed his duties as W.M. of Lodge 186, and also those of the subordinate offices in the chapter, they could feel no doubt that his occupation of the J. chair would be marked by equal efficiency. Both Comp. Dyer and Comp. Black had the confidence of the whole of the chapter, or they would not have been elected to the chairs they now filled. He could not doubt that the ability with which Comp. Noehmer had installed them must have impressed them with the dignity of their offices. Comp. Dyer in reply said he felt that the position in which he was placed was one of very great importance, and which required an immense amount of study fairly to appreciate and also to carry out its duties. The way in which his installation had been worked out had impressed on his mind the mysterious character of Royal Arch Masonry. The degree did possess a mysterious character, as he believed its prototype was the old Jewish inner circle or centre, from which all our belief and aspirations had sprung. There was a great deal more in Arch Masonry than at first sight appeared. As Craft Masons we acquired an appreciation of charity; but when we entered Arch Masonry we reached a higher sphere, and began to understand somewhat of the circumstances surrounding that very great Order of human brotherhood called Masons. He would not enter, or attempt to enter, upon any dissertation on what might be considered to be the characteristics of Freemasonry. It was an Order above nationalities; it was a universal brotherhood, and in this respect he believed it had exercised a great influence on the destinies of mankind.

Comp. Dyer concluded by thanking the companions for electing him, and promising to do his best to render him self worthy of their suffrages when the time came to elect him as Z. of the chapter. Comp. Black, J., also replied. The toast of "The Past Principals" followed, and the M.E.Z. having honoured each of them by informing the companions of the merits of Comp. Tallent, Kelly, Noehmer, and Mann, presented Comp. Tallent with a handsome P.Z. jewel. Comp. Tallent, P.Z., said that when he entered Freemasonry, sixteen years ago, he had no idea he should have attained his present high position, but he went on working in order to obtain it. What he did was accepted in the spirit in which it was meant. He received the jewel just presented to him with the heartiest feelings of thankfulness. Last year he had the very pleasing duty of placing one upon the breast of an old friend whom he had the pride and pleasure of proposing. He now received one from another friend whom he also proposed; and he thought this was a very proud position to be placed in. As Z. of the chapter he had done his best, and he was sorry that at the last meeting he was unable to attend, being ill in bed. Comps. Mann and Noehmer also replied, and Comp. Taylor having responded for "The Officers," the Janitor's toast was given, and the companions separated.

WINDSOR.—Windsor Castle Chapter, (No. 771).—The installation meeting of this chapter was held at the Masonic Hall, on Thursday, 18th inst. The Principals and officers for the ensuing year are as follows: Comps. E. Grisbrook, Z.; G. W. Dixon, H.; G. H. Powell, J.; J. Devereux, P.Z.; Treasurer; W. S. Cantrell, Scribe E.; F. Fleck, Scribe N.; J. O. Carter, P.S.; R. Roberts, 1st Assist. Sec.; Huckvale, 2nd Assist. Sec.; Ashby and J. Johnson, Stewards. The installation ceremony was ably worked by Comp. A. A. Richards, P.Z. Two candidates, Kennedy and Jefferies, were exalted by Comp. J. S. Tolley, P.G.O., the outgoing Z. The Auditors' balance sheet shewed that the chapter was in a sound financial position.

Red Cross of Constantine.

JERSEY.—Concord Conclave (No. 8).—The annual assembly was held on Friday the 28th ult., at the Masonic Temple. The conclave was opened by Sir Knt. E. Martel, M.P.S., being supported by Sir Knts. J. O'Flaherty, V.R.; A. Schmitt, P.S.; K.G.C., Rec.; P. W. Benham, P.S.; J. Oatley, P.S.; W. Metherell, H.P.; C. D. Bishop, S.G.; W. H. Chapman, J.G.; J. Huelin, P.; and others. Sir Knt. H. Cook, Rec. 154, visitor. The report of the previous assembly was read and confirmed. A College of Viceroy was opened, when Sir Knt. J. O'Flaherty, M.P.S., elect, having retired, a Senate of Sovereigns was opened. The M.P.S. was admitted and presented to Sir Knt. Benham for enthronement, which was duly performed. The college was then resumed, when Sir Knt. W. Metherell V.E. elect, was re-admitted by the Rec. The college was then closed, and the conclave resumed. The Recorder invested Sir Knts. C. D. Bishop, as H.P.; W. H. Chapman, S.G.; J. Huelin, J. G.; J. O. LeSeur, Pref.; E. Rivington, S.B.; F. P. Le Marquand, H.; J. Blampied, Treas.; and G. Rogers, Sent. A P. Sov's. jewel was presented to Em. Sir Knt. P. W. Benham, and never has that decoration been more nobly or worthily won than by our good Frater, who returned thanks for the enthusiasm and spontaneity with which the crowded conclave hailed him, as the Recorder attached the jewel on his breast. The Recorder presented also to Sir Knt. E. Martel a P. Sov's. jewel, as a token of fraternal regard and personal appreciation of many and valuable services the recipient has rendered, not only to the conclave, but to the province. The Recorder moved, seconded by Sir Knt. E. Martel, that the Ill. Sir Knt. W. James Hughan, P.G.V.C. be elected an hon. member of the conclave, which was carried by acclamation. The conclave being duly closed, the Sir Knights adjourned to supper.

Reports of Lodges 1276, 1287, 1325, 1327, 1512, 1608; Chapters 228, 248; Mark Lodge 104; Encampment William de la More; Royal Oriental Order of Sikha and B'hai, stand over till next week.

We are pleased to learn that Bro. T. Burdett Yeoman on Wednesday, the 10th inst., was presented with a valuable gold watch, out of respect for his probity and independence of character; also a bronze statuette of Le Chevalier Bayard, in token and regard for a ready willingness to serve any private or public cause—"sans peur, sans reproche."

NEW THEORIES OF THE UNIVERSE.—Our readers will see by our advertisement columns that Dr. Bedford, who has been so successful in his study of the mechanism of the heavens, is about to reprint his new system of astronomy. It has been suggested that the moons of Mars shall be named Bedford and Hall. Bedford, because he pointed these out 23 years before they were found, and gave a philosophic reason for their existence, and Hall, because he was the first to see them; the first seen to be named Bedford, and the second Hall.

Our readers will learn with regret of the loss sustained by Bro. F. Binckes, Secretary Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, in the death of his wife, which sad event took place on Monday last.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—When inclement weather checks to a considerable extent the natural exhalations of the skin, an alternative is required to expel them entirely from the body through some other channel. Holloway's Pills can be confidently recommended as the easiest, surest, and safest means of attaining this desirable end without weakening the most delicate or incommencing the most feeble. When from frequent chills or torpor all the blood becomes foul and the secretions vitiated, these Pills present a ready and efficient means of cleansing the former and correcting the latter. By this salutary proceeding disease is arrested at its outset, its pains and inconveniences averted, and the nervous structures saved from the depressing effects entailed upon them, by an illness.—ADVT.

CONSECRATION OF THE HARTISMERE LODGE, No. 1663.

INSTALLATION OF LORD HENNIKER.

Wednesday, 17th inst., may be marked a red letter day in the Masonic calendar of the Province of Suffolk, it being the day fixed for the interesting ceremony of consecrating the lodge recently formed at Eye under the auspices of Lord Henniker, who was installed as its first Master. The new lodge, being named after his lordship's title, is called the "Hartismere" Lodge. It seems that a lodge, named after "St. Edmund," existed at Eye some 35 years since, but in those days little attention was paid to the mystic Craft, and the lodge was allowed to drop, its title being transferred some years later to Lodge 1008, established at Bury mainly through the exertions of the present P.G. Secretary of the Province, Bro. W. H. Lucia. Consequently the brethren at Eye, on the revival of Freemasonry among them, found it necessary to find another name for their lodge, and they very happily selected that of "Hartismere," which not only represents the hundred in which Eye is situated, but also the title of the noble lord who is its first W.M.

A large gathering of the fraternity took place in the Corn Exchange, which had been prepared in due form. Visitors came from nearly all parts of the province, and additional interest was imparted to the occasion by the fact that the Right Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, Deputy Grand Master of England—a rank in Masonry second only to that held by H.R.H. the Prince of Wales—and other distinguished brethren, would attend to perform the ceremony.

At about two o'clock the R.W. Deputy Grand Master entered the lodge room wearing the full clothing of his exalted rank, accompanied by the Right Hon. the Earl of Donoughmore, Past G.S. Warden, Bro. the Right Hon. Lord Henniker, W.M. designate, Bro. John Hervey, Grand Secretary, &c. The Deputy Grand Master took the chair, but immediately resigned it to Lord Donoughmore, who at once formed the lodge by appointing Bro. T. Phillips, P.G.S.W., as Senior Warden, and Bro. N. Tracy, P.P.G.J.W., as Junior Warden; Bro. W. C. Eltham, P.G.S.D., acting as Senior Deacon; Bro. E. W. Wrightson, P.G.J.D., as Junior Deacon, and Bro. Whitmore, P.G. Pursuivant, as Inner Guard. After the lodge had been opened in the three degrees in an admirable manner by Lord Donoughmore, the B.W.P.G.M. resumed the chair, proceeding with the ceremony of consecration according to due and ancient form, being assisted by the V.W. Bro. Lord Donoughmore, P.G.S.W.; V.W. Bro. John Hervey, Grand Secretary; and the following Prov. G. Officers.—Bro. the Rev. T. J. Hassall, rector of Wattisfield, P.G. Chaplain; Bro. W. H. Lucia, P.G. Secretary; Bro. W. Clark, Director of Ceremonies; Bro. W. Paine, Assistant Director of Ceremonies; and Bro. J. Hedley Bevan, P.P.G.S.W., who ably performed the music incidental to the consecration upon the harmonium. The following brethren were present:—Bros. Geo. Abbott, P.G.S.B.; W. B. Jeffries, P.G. Steward; W. Daking, P.G. Steward; W. Dods, P.G. Steward; W. B. Syer, P.G.T.; J. Hedley Bevan, P.P.G.S.W.; N. Tracey, P.P.G.J.W.; H. Luff, P.P.G.S. of W.; W. G. Ransome, P.P.G.J.D.; W. Armstrong, P.P.G.J.D.; W. S. Westgate, P.P.G.D. of C.; F. B. Strathern, P.P.G.J.W.; F. Long, P.P.D. of C.; J. Hanley, S.D. 51, Essex; W. Pearl; P.G.J.W. Madras; S. H. Wright, P.M. 516, P.B.J.W. Luff; I. B. Aldis, P.P.G.J.D. Norfolk, and a numerous assembly of brethren.

After being saluted, the Deputy Grand Master addressed the brethren as follows:—Brethren, we are met to-day to consecrate a lodge, one of the most solemn ceremonies belonging to our profession. I have come here at the request of my friend and brother, Lord Henniker, to perform this ceremony for you, and it is with great pleasure I find myself able to fulfil my promise. Brethren, it is usual at the consecration of a lodge to say a few words, and mine will be few on this occasion. I wish to impress upon you two things. It is a first principle of Masonry that we should live in love and amity. The first thing to show that we have that love and amity is to be very careful how we exclude any one from our lodges. This is a subject upon which I have often spoken in my own province. My idea of the ballot box is simply that it shall guarantee a man to be well known, of good faith, and fit to be made a Mason, and that it is not to be used for personal pique and spite. I am sorry to say that in some of the provinces of England this cause of sorrow and regret has arisen. I do not say that such has arisen in this province, and I hope it never will. In consecrating a new lodge we ought to look at the purpose for which it is consecrated. In the first place, I hope it is to be used to bring brethren together in this particular district, and not to be used for purposes of mere conviviality; but that it will be used for the truly Masonic purpose of working together for benevolence and charity, for, after all, charity is the great watchword of our Order. In the second place, we all like to see Masons advanced, and advanced regularly, in the mystery of the art. How should they advance, and what should bring them on? Let the Provincial Grand Master watch those who attend and do their work thoroughly, for these are the men who ought to be pushed on in Masonry. (Applause.)

The ceremony was then conducted to its conclusion in the manner prescribed. At its close, the lodge having been properly constituted, a Board of Past Masters installed Bro. Lord Henniker as Worshipful Master of the lodge, and his lordship appointed and invested Bro. Alfred Cracknell as Senior Warden, and Bro. C. J. Fisher as Junior Warden.

The Worshipful Master then said: Before proceeding further with the business of the lodge I should like to make a few remarks. I think you will agree with me that we should thank most heartily my old friend, the Deputy Grand Master of England, Lord Skelmersdale, for his presence here to-day. (Applause.) I am sure his presence in this province will be fully appreciated, for I am glad to see so many brethren from other parts of the county here to-day, and I am sure we of the Hartismere Lodge shall not forget the day on which he consecrated this lodge. (Applause.) We shall feel proud that it has been consecrated by so good and true a Mason as his lordship, and it will be our duty to take extra pains to conduct the work in a proper manner. (Applause.) It is also my pleasing duty to convey our thanks to Brother Hervey, the Grand Secretary of England. (Applause.) It is quite unnecessary for me to dilate upon his good qualities. He is known throughout England as one of the most zealous Masons, and he is respected in every Masonic province within the country. (Applause.) I must also thank my friend Lord Donoughmore, the Past Senior Grand Warden of England, for having come from London to be present here to-day. I have served with him in a lodge in London as a Senior Warden, and I have never seen a lodge so well worked as his is. (Applause.) I must thank you for placing me in the position as Master of your lodge. I feel some diffidence in accepting that post, because it is some years since I was the Master of a lodge, and I find as each year goes on my engagements become more and more pressing; but I feel my labours will be very much lightened by having as my Senior and Junior Wardens Bro. Cracknell and Bro. Fisher, and the other brethren in the various offices, and I trust we shall be able, at the end of each year as it comes by, to say we have done our duty and conducted the work of this lodge in a proper manner; and then, as Bro. Hervey has said, we shall have done honour to the Craft, and can show the warrant with which he has presented us to-day unsullied and unstained as it is at present. (Applause.) His lordship then again thanked Lord Skelmersdale and the other distinguished officials for their attendance, and concluded by promising to do his best to conduct the lodge in a proper manner.

The brethren of the Hartismere Lodge then proceeded to the election of a Treasurer, and Bro. Bowser was unanimously chosen and duly installed in his office; as was also Bro. Woolnough, who was appointed by the W.M. as Secretary. Bro. Gedney was installed as S.D.; Bro. C. J. Fisher as J.D., and Bro. J. Rush as I.G.

The brethren from the various lodges in the province then expressed their congratulations to the Worshipful Master, and the installation ceremony was closed in the accustomed manner.

The brethren then formed a procession, and marched to the parish church, where Divine service was held. The church presented a beautiful appearance, the decorations recently placed there on the occasion of the harvest thanksgiving having been allowed to remain. The service began by singing Hymn 188, after which Bro. W. P. Roberts, vicar of the parish, read the Litany, which was followed by the concluding prayers of the evening service. The sermon was preached by the P.G. Chaplain, the Rev. T. J. Hassall, rector of Wattisfield, from 1st Corinthians, xiii., 13: "The greatest of these is charity."

A collection was afterwards made, and devoted to the Indian Famine Relief Fund.

The banquet took place in the Assembly-room of the White Lion Hotel, under the presidency of the Right Hon. Lord Henniker, who was supported on the right by Bros. the Earl of Donoughmore, W. P. Phillips, J. Hedley Bevan, W. H. Lucia, Prov. G.S., &c., and on his left by the Deputy Grand Master, Bro. Lord Skelmersdale; John Hervey, Grand Secretary; the Rev. T. J. Hassall, Prov. G.C.; the Rev. W. P. Roberts, &c. About sixty brethren sat down. After dinner, the Worshipful Master proposed "The Healths of the Queen and the Prince and Princess of Wales," which was most loyally honoured.

The next toast was that of "The Pro Grand Master of England, Lord Carnarvon," in proposing which the W.M. remarked that there were several brethren present who knew his worth, and knew how little they could do without his services. (Drunk with Masonic honours.)

The W.M. said that now they had got through the toasts of obligation he would propose what he considered the toast of the evening, "The Health of the Deputy Grand Master, Lord Skelmersdale." He was glad to see him in Suffolk. He believed it was the first time he had visited any of the lodges in the province, but he hoped they had given him such a reception that, though they could not expect him often, he might some day visit them again. (Applause.) It was needless to dilate upon his qualities as a Mason. (Hear, hear.) They had seen the way he conducted the ceremony, and he was sure it was a great satisfaction to those who lived in the province to see how well the heads of the Craft were up in the duties of Freemasonry. (Hear, hear.) I can assure you (his lordship continued) that so far as we are concerned—I think I can speak for the brethren of this new lodge—we shall not easily forget the kindness of Lord Skelmersdale in coming down here to perform this ceremony for us. (Applause.) He came at great trouble to himself, all the way from Yorkshire to Suffolk, and on the Great Eastern Railway the journey from Ipswich to Eye is not an easy one. (Laughter.) We Masons in the Province of Suffolk (for I am pleased to see so many Masons here from all parts of the county) fully appreciate visits from those high in office amongst Masons. (Hear, hear.) We, of course, try to the best of our ability to carry on our lodges in the province as well as possible; but it does us good from time to time when some of the principal officers will come down and tell us when we are doing wrong, or that they appreciate the work we are trying to do as well as we can. (Hear, hear.) Lord Skelmersdale has been to the sister county of Norfolk, when my lamented friend, Bro. Walpole, was installed Grand Master, and now that he has visited the Province of Suffolk, I hope he will be able to give a good report of us to the Pro Grand Master of England. I do not wish to detain you long, because to dilate at any great length on a Masonic toast is a great mistake. Amongst Masons, we all know everything we say we mean. I think it most kind of Lord Skelmersdale to come and see us to-night. I am sure he is heartily welcome, and we thank him for his kindness in coming here. (Hear, hear.) I think I may say for other parts of the province that they also thank him for coming amongst us, and are very pleased to welcome him in Suffolk. And if he should think proper to come here again, I think I may promise for this lodge and the province that he will receive the heartiest welcome that we Masons can give him. (Applause.)

The Right Worshipful the Deputy Grand Master, Lord Skelmersdale, returned thanks to Lord Henniker for having proposed his health in such kind terms, and to the brethren for the kind way in which they had received the toast. He had told them in lodge and he wished to affirm it again, that it had been to him a great pleasure to be present to consecrate the lodge and to see how heartily the project for establishing the lodge had been received by the province in general. (Applause.) He had enquired who the brethren present were, and he found they were from all parts of the county, a circumstance which convinced him, if it were necessary to be convinced, how extreme was the pleasure felt by Freemasons throughout the province in having a new lodge added to their number. (Applause.) It showed him that the increase in the popularity of Freemasonry was not confined to Metropolitan and other popular districts, and that it was not the mere flash in the pan that some people had represented the present revival of Masonry to be. Two years ago people said it was a mere flash in the pan, and would soon go down again to the usual hum-drum level, but their worthy Bro. Hervey, the Grand Secretary, would inform them that the increase in the number of lodges was steady, and that the number of Masons was increasing more and more every year. (Applause.) There were now something like 1600 working lodges in the country, and the average number of each lodge ought to be between 40 and 50, which would give a very large number of Masons throughout this country. (Applause.) They could not but reflect what a great and powerful body that must be, all bound together for one or two great causes. (Applause.) The thought of it made him feel that he was not worthy of the position he held amongst so great a number of good men, coming forward in the ranks of Freemasonry to do good as God directed them. His own experience showed that every one who became a Mason gained new strength, and had reason to bless the day he became one. In conclusion, he assured the brethren that if he should be spared to pay them another visit he should look forward to that visit with the greatest pleasure. (Applause.)

Lord Donoughmore, in the course of a humorous reply, said the rev. brother who proposed this toast in a very eloquent speech told them that he felt like a wastrel child who had wandered from the fold of Masonry. (Laughter.) He was sure there was not one in that room who would not welcome his return to the fold. (Laughter and cheers.) It was a very difficult task for a single individual, and especially for one who had not the advantage of long experience—to return thanks for the great ornament of their Order—the Masonic charities. Many could look back to the time when the yearly subscriptions to the charities were much smaller than they were at present. Twenty years ago if anybody had been told that £5000 had been collected at the annual festival of the Boys' School they would have thought it a very large amount, but he asked them to look at the last two years, when the subscriptions were respectively £14,000 and £13,000. (Applause.) That extraordinary augmentation was undoubtedly due to the increase in the members and prosperity of the order; but while the metropolis itself was a large contributor, it was found that the outlying provinces had taken such pains to put their charity schemes upon a proper footing that the sum which had come in from them had very largely increased. This matter of organisation was one that had been under consideration for several years, and had been carried out with signal success; and though no such organisation at present existed in this province, he understood it was in contemplation, and he hoped sincerely, for the sake of the charities, that this contemplated scheme will some time or other be carried into effect. (Hear, hear.) He did not like to sit down without saying a word upon a subject not connected with the toast. The present meeting was not the first Masonic experiment in which he and Lord Henniker had been associated; and because of the great friendship he felt for him, and the interest he took in Masonry, he wished the greatest prosperity and happiness for the new lodge that had been founded that day. (Applause.)

The W.M. said he had next to propose a toast which was one usually known as a toast of obligation, but though it was a toast of obligation it was one which the Masons of Suffolk always drank with the greatest enthusiasm, namely the toast of "The R.W. Provincial Grand Master of Suffolk, Lord Waveney." (Much applause.) His Lordship had taken great interest in this lodge, and he wrote him the kindest of kind letters the other day to express to him his regret that he could not be present on this occasion, not only because he would like to have met the Deputy Grand Master and others, but also because he most heartily wished the "Hartismere" Lodge the greatest possible prosperity. He was sure all the Masons in Suffolk held Lord Waveney in the greatest possible respect, and he hoped that some day or other they might have the pleasure of entertaining him in that lodge. (Hear, hear.) With that toast he should couple the name of his friend the Deputy Provincial Grand Master, Bro. the Rev. C. J. Martyn. (Applause.) He had promised for a long time to be present at the consecration of this lodge. They all knew he took intense interest in all Masonic affairs, and he was one of the most useful Masons in the country. He (the W.M.) had consulted him throughout, and he had taken the greatest interest in the new lodge. There was one tie which when once broken in life could never be replaced—he referred to the loss of a parent. They all knew the respect and affection in which Bro. Martyn's mother was held, therefore it came home to them that night to express to him their most sincere sympathy in his great bereavement. (Hear, hear.) But he had not forgotten them in his grief, for since he (the W.M.) had been present he had received this telegram from him:—"Kindest and heartiest good wishes to you and our good visitors, and all the brethren of the Hartismere Lodge. Please propose my name as a joining member." (Applause.) He certainly should propose Bro. Martyn at the next meeting of the lodge, and he did not think he would get black-balled. (Laughter.) He thought he had said enough to show the great interest the Provincial Grand Officers took in their lodge; it was a great encouragement to the lodge that they had done so, and in the most hearty manner he begged to give the toast he had already proposed. (Applause.)

Lord Skelmersdale proposed "The Health of the W.M. of the Hartismere Lodge." He did so not only as the W.M., but as an old friend of his own. (Applause.) He trusted that his reign of office might be a successful one and that the lodge would have a prosperous future before it. Their W.M. was far better known to them than to those at a distance, and he would not attempt to sing his praises to them. He looked upon him as a hearty Mason, a good brother, and a—(Lord Donoughmore: A jolly good fellow). He thanked his friend for the word. There were times when he was not so glad to see his (Lord Skelmersdale) face as on this occasion. This might be an enigma to them, but they had no doubt heard occasionally of the word "whip." His noble friend did not always respond to it as freely as a good bond should, but he was sure that in future he would repay him (Lord Skelmersdale's) for coming down here, by answering more freely to his whip. (Laughter.)

The toast was received with full Masonic honours, and the W.M. in returning thanks, assured the brethren that he would do his best to attend to his Masonic duties in compliance with his friend Lord Skelmersdale, who was a most efficient and energetic, but a most agreeable whip. Referring to Masonry in Eye he said from some cause or other many years ago the old lodge had been dissolved, but another had now been established, and he hoped it would increase in numbers and prosperity every year. He was happy to know that the officers were old and well-tried friends. He thanked the brethren for being present in such large numbers, and he especially particularised Bro. Lucia, the P.G. Secretary; Brother Clarke, their most indefatigable Director of Ceremonies, without whose aid he did not know what they should have done, as he never saw a man take so much trouble to make the whole arrangements go off properly as he had done that day—(hear, hear); Bro. Bevan for presiding at the organ, and all the brethren who had assisted in making the gathering a success. (Hear, hear.) Perhaps some particulars of the origin of the lodge may be interesting. It was originally called St. Edmund's Lodge from the fact that St. Edmund was shot at an oak at Hoxne. He acknowledged with thanks the present of the square used in the old lodge by Bro. P. Long, and also conveyed his acknowledgments to Bro. Woolnough, the Secretary, for his excellent arrangements for the comfort of the brethren. In conclusion he expressed a determination to use his best endeavours to make this lodge compare favourably with others in the province. (Applause.)

Lord Donoughmore proposed "The Health of the Present and Past Provincial Grand Officers of the Province," and remarked that the very efficient assistance rendered by the P.G. officers at the lodge to-day was but a type of the assistance invariably accorded. He coupled the names of Bro. Tracy and Bro. Wright with the toast.

Bros. Wright and Tracy responded. The latter said he had great pleasure in being present, not only as a past officer, but as a member of the "Perfect Friendship" lodge, for he believed the lodge established at Eye in 1845 was established at the recommendation of that lodge. He trusted that the lodge established that day would have greater prosperity and a longer life than the last one. He had also pleasure in being there because many of the members of this lodge had been initiated in a lodge with which he was closely connected, the "Phoenix," and in which he had had the honour of raising some of the brethren now present.

Bro. Fisher proposed "The Health of the Pro. Grand Chaplain and the Clergy of the Province," and

The P.G. Chaplain, in responding, expressed the great pleasure he felt, as a clergyman of the Church of England, in being a Mason, and in being present on that occasion. He thought if the principles of Masonry were better known (they could not be known without initiation into their mysteries) there would be a larger number of his profession amongst them. But they were forbidden to say what Masonry was, and the only way in which they could induce people to join them was to show by their lives what their principles were—(applause)—and then they would be able to put down calumny, and remove some of the notions that people had about them. He suggested a vote of thanks to Bro. Roberts, the Vicar of Eye, for the use of his church on that occasion. (Hear, hear.)

The W.M. said he had great hopes of persuading the Vicar of Eye to become Chaplain of the Hartismere Lodge. (Applause.)

The Rev. W.P. Roberts returned thanks, and after expressing his wishes for the prosperity of the lodge, said in conclusion, "If the W.M. bids me serve him, my best services shall be at his disposal." (Applause.)

The W.M. next gave "The Stowmarket Lodge," with which this lodge was closely allied, and coupled with the toast the name of Bro. Reddar, who suitably responded.

The Vice-Chairman (Bro. Cracknell) gave "The Visiting Brethren," coupled with the name of Bro. Hervey, the Grand Secretary, which was drunk with full Masonic honours.

Bro. Hervey, in responding, congratulated those present upon the signal success of the day's proceedings, the only subject of regret being the absence of the D.P.G.M., of whom he spoke in the highest terms. Their worthy brother had just received the patent of the P.G. Superintendent of Suffolk, and he ventured to hope that Lord Skelmersdale would at no distant date pay another visit to Suffolk, and instal their good friend Bro. Martyn into an office which he ventured to predict he would fill most efficiently and most admirably. (Applause.) He announced that at the recent election of candidates for the Boys' School young Cox, in whose case Bro. Martyn and the province Suffolk took a great interest, was successful. He thanked them for the cordial manner in which they had received the visitors, and assured them that the brethren generally looked forward to the success of the Hartismere Lodge with great anxiety and with the full assurance that its prosperity was already secured. (Applause.)

Bro. Woolnough, after acknowledging the great assistance the new lodge had received from Bro. W. H. Lucia, the P.G. Secretary, proposed that gentleman's health.

Bro. Lucia briefly responded.

Several other toasts were drunk, and the proceedings were throughout of a most agreeable and harmonious character.

PROVINCIAL GRAND MARK LODGE OF DEVONSHIRE.

The annual meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge of the Mark Masons of Devon was held in the Town Hall of Tavistock. R.W. Bro. Lieut.-Colonel J. Tanner Davy, P.G.M.M., presided. The following were also among the officers present:—W. Bros. J. E. Curties, Past G.J.D. of England, P.P.G.J.W.; J. T. Shapland, P.G.J.W.; J. Matthews, P.P.G.J.W.; the Rev. T. W. Lemon, M.A., P.P.G. Chap.; A. Bodley, P.P.G.J.O.; J. Brewer, P.P.G.J.O.; L. D. Westcott, P.G. Treas.; J. B. Gover, P.P.G.T.; S. Jew, P.P.G.T.; E. Aitken Davies, P.P.G.J.D.; E. Patten, P.P.G.J.D.; J. M. Hifley, P.P.G.J.D.; T. Dand, P.P.G.J.D.; J. Austin, Past G.J.D.; W. Browning, P.P.G.J.D.; J. Y. Avery, P.G.D.C.; J. H. Toms, P.P.G.S.B.; C. Croydon, P.P.S.B.; E. J. Knight, P.P.G.S.B.; J. H. Tonkin, P.P.G.I. of Wks.; R. M. W. Webb, P.P.G.O.; D. Cross, P.P.G.S.B.; A. R. Lethbridge, P.P.G.D.C.; J. P. Phillips, P.P.G.D.C.; E. Browning, P.P.G.I. of Wks.; G. Godtschalk, P.P.G.D.C.; J. Belling, P.G.O.; R. Pengelly, H. Stocker, T. Scarle, P.G. Stds.; J. Rogers, P.G.T.; Dr. H. Woodgates, W.M. 15; T. B. Richards, W.M. 23; Lieutenant W. H. Jolliffe, R.N., P.M. 107; Bros. H. Horton, J.D. 50; W. Allsford, J.W. 16; W. L. Sampson, R.M. 23; J. R. H. Harris, S.O. 91; H. Bridgman, M.O. 91; S. D. Nicholls, S.W. 23; B. B. S. Richards, J.W. 23; D. Stocker, J.W. 15; B. Blight, S.O. 76; W. Stephens, J.D. 23; R. J. B. Woolcock, I.G. 23; George H. Evans, J.O. 35; E. Hawke, S.W. 48; John Turner, M.A. 23; C. Rodda, O. 50; Elliot Square, J.O. 35; T. Smith, Tyler, 50; John Masters, 64; K. B. Twose, 50; W. Thomas, 50; J. D. Johnstone, St. 23; E. Handy, Tyler, 23; J. J. Daw, S.O. 23.

The Secretary reported that all the lodges in the province, with the exception of No. 26, had made their returns; some of which however would have to be corrected. It was with considerable regret he observed that No. 15 had lost so many names of old and valued members. The committee for procuring collars and jewels, after considerable deliberation, had decided to have them manufactured in the province, and entrusted the same to Bro. Clemens, of No. 64, and Bro. Croydon, of No. 35, and confidently left the consideration of the articles to the judgment of those brethren. In obedience to the vote of the Provincial Grand Lodge, the Secretary had gathered all the information he could relative to the grants of money made for charitable purposes, and the result would be found in a statement sent to the members of the Provincial Grand Lodge with the report of the last meeting.

The Treasurer reported that the provincial fees due had all been paid, and the lodge returns and dues all furnished from the various lodges. The receipts were £46 18s. 4d., and expenditure £46 4s. 6d., including £10 to the Masons' Widow's Fund, and £28 6s. 6d. towards the new collars provided for the P.G. Officers. There was a balance in hand of 13s. 10d.

Both reports were received and adopted.

The P.G.M. confirmed all his officers for 1876-7 in past rank, and W. Bros. S. Jew, J. B. Gover, L. D. Westcott, and C. Godtschalk were appointed unanimously the Board of General Purposes. Bro. B. R. Twose was elected the Treasurer for the ensuing year, and the following brothers were invested as officers:—V. W. Bro. the Rev. P. H. Newnham, 35 (re-appointed), D.P.G.M.; Dr. H. Woodgates, 15, P.G.S.W.; W. Bros. Lieut. the Hon. W. H. Jolliffe, 107, P.G.J.W.; J. B. Gover, 50, P.G.M.O.; J. Galliford, 9, P.G.S.O.; T. B. Richards, 23, P.G.J.O.; the Rev. T. King, vicar of South Molton, 9 (re-appointed), P.G. Chap.; R. B. Twose, P.G. Treas.; V. Bird (re-appointed), P.G. Sec.; H. W. Thomas, 66, P.G.S.D.; S. R. Awnis, 76, P.G.J.D.; J. Godfrey Evans, 35, P.G.D.C.; R. Blight, 76, P.G.A.D.C.; John Masters, 64, P.G. of Wks.; W. Allsford, 16, P.G.S.B.; R. G. Bird, 50, P.G.O.; R. Pengelly, 50, P.G. St. B.; T. Scarle, P.G. Pura.; H. Stocker, 15, E. Hawke, 48, and J. H. Stephens, 48, P.G. Stds.; and J. Rogers, P.G. Tyler.

On the proposition of W. Bro. Godtschalk, seconded by W. Bro. J. T. Shapland, R.W. Bro. Lieut.-Col. J. Tanner Davy was unanimously re-elected for the office of P.G.M.M. for the province for the ensuing term.

In the evening a large party of the brethren dined together at the Bedford Hotel.

DINNER TO BRO. H. G. BUSS, A.G.S.

On Thursday evening, the 18th inst., the Past Masters of the Egyptian Lodge, No. 27, met at the Albion Tavern, Aldersgate-street, to entertain at a banquet their much respected and esteemed Bro. H. G. Buss, P.M. and Treas., as a mark of appreciation of his services, and to congratulate him on his appointment to the high position of Assistant Grand Secretary of English Freemasons. The chair was occupied by the present W.M., Bro. John Walker, and Bro. C. Atkins, P.M., filled the vice-chair. After the banquet the usual Masonic toasts were given and responded to with the usual zeal displayed by the brethren. Then came the toast of the evening, proposed from the chair and seconded by the Vice Chairman, "Health and Prosperity to our esteemed Bro. H. G. Buss, P.M. and Treasurer, and wishing him long life and health to wear the honour conferred upon him of Assistant Grand Secretary of Grand Lodge of England." The Chairman in continuation said, "I cannot help speaking of his great kindness and genial nature, and his readiness at all times to help with a kind word of advice, and that in every case of difficulty or advice required it was always customary to say, 'Oh, ask Bro. Buss, he will put you right,' in fact, the whole prosperity of the lodge may fairly be said to be owing to his perseverance and energy, and trusted that many years might be granted him to wear his well-won honours. Bro. Buss replied as follows:—I hardly know how to return thanks for the honour you have done me, and I shall ever remember this occasion with pleasant recollection. My connection with this lodge has extended over a period of 30 years, 25 years as its Secretary and 5 years its Treasurer. When I first joined it was in a very sickly state, and down almost to the lowest ebb, but by gradual perseverance I broke down the old ways, and by degrees brought it up to the proud position it now holds as Vice-Patrons and Vice-Presidents of the several Masonic charities, and in possession of a Benevolent Fund that will yet do still further good. Of course, since I joined Masonry the Order has wonderfully increased, from something like 544 lodges of 25 to 30 members to 1721, with 60 to 100 members, showing the great prosperity of the Order, and the vast increase of labour required to keep things in working order. I am also at present Secretary or Treasurer of as many lodges as there are fingers on my hands, and pleased to say that all are in a flourishing condition. I can only further express my sincere thanks at the honour you have done me, and say that whenever the welfare of the lodge requires consideration, I shall be only too pleased to exercise it. Bro. Buss then proposed "The Health of the Chairman, Bro. John Walker." The Chairman in reply said—I feel the position I hold almost too much for me on this occasion, as I seemed to have failed to do the justice to our honoured guest that he deserves, but all I have said has been from my heart, and if I were to say more it would not increase the personal respect I have for him. Brethren, I thank you. The Chairman then proposed "The Health of the Vice-Chairman, Bro. C. Atkins," which was received with much applause, and in return he said: I shall only be too happy on all occasions to further the welfare of the lodge, and I fully endorse all that has fallen from the Chairman respecting our esteemed friend and brother. The President then proposed "Prosperity to the Egyptian Lodge," which was responded to by Bro. P.M. Hoare with much feeling. The musical arrangements were under the direction of Bro. Stedman, Bro. Parker, P.P.G.O. Middlesex, presiding at the pianoforte. Miss Hoare (pupil of Madam Sainton-Dolby) delighted the brethren with "Marjorie's Almanack," (encored) and "O, bid your faithful Ariel fly," both of which were given with great sweetness of expression by the talented young artist. The "Anchor's Weighed" and the "Moss Trooper" were splendidly sung by Mr. Stanley Smith, and the duet "All's Well" was beautifully rendered by Bro. Stedman and Mr. Stanley Smith.

DINNER TO ILL. BRO. ROBERT HAMILTON, M.D., 33°.

The Supreme Council 33° entertained Ill. Bro. Dr. Hamilton, 33°, District Grand Master of Jamaica, at a banquet at the Café Royal, 68, Regent-street, on the 24th instant, to bid him God-speed on his approaching departure for the West Indies.

The Chairman, in giving the toast of the evening, expressed the great regret felt by all the members of the Supreme Council at the departure from among them of one who had for many years devoted himself with unceasing energy to the advancement of Masonry, and on behalf of the Friends-in-Council Royal Arch Chapter, No. 1383, presented him with a very handsome Past Principal's jewel, he having been the first Z. of the chapter, which now numbers upwards of seventy members, at the same time wishing him a long life to wear it, and expressing the earnest hope that he might be back at the council at some not very distant date. The toast having been drunk with enthusiasm, Dr. Hamilton returned thanks in a few most appropriate and heartfelt sentences. Later in the evening, the Chairman proposed "Health and Prosperity to Ill. Bro. Captain W. Portlock Dadson, 32°," who is about to leave for the West Indies, having received an appointment under the Colonial Office, and in doing so gracefully acknowledged the services rendered to the council during the time he had been Private Secretary to the Grand Secretary General, which was responded to by Captain Dadson.

Ill. Bro. Capt. N. G. Phillips, 33° Grand Deacon, occupied the chair, having the guest of the evening, Ill. Bro. R. Hamilton, M.D., 33°, on his right, and the other members of Supreme Council 33° present were Ill. Bro. Major-General H. Clerk, F.R.S., Grand Treasurer General; Ill. Bro. J. M. ## FOOTBALL.

MASONIC F.C. v. ST. PHILIP'S ROVERS F.C.

These clubs met for the first time this season at Battersea Park, the ground of the Rovers, on Saturday last. The lookers on, seeing that the Masonic were by far the lighter and less formidable team, thought there would be little to interest them, but as soon as the first scrimmage was formed they found that the Masonic carried more weight than a casual observer would at first imagine. Before many minutes were up Mr. Gardner had the ball, and "made off," but was soon collared by that unfortunate jerrey, which soon became the mark for the Rovers to aim at. Hunt then got the ball, and was making his way for the Masonic goal, when he was met by Hart, who collared him in excellent style. At "half-time" the Rovers had two tries to nil. During the second half the Masonic forwards played well, Mr. Humphrey and Godsmark again making themselves conspicuous, while Messrs. Gardner, Brocklehurst, and Ellis not only made some good runs but collared their opponents well. For the Rovers, Hunt got away several times, obtaining no less than four tries. Adkinson, who was most unfortunate in his place kicks for goals, and Jackson played well.

ST. PHILIP'S ROVERS.—Hunt (capt.) and Featherstone (half backs), Sharpool and Daniels (quarter backs), Jackson, Rutter, Meachin, Adkinson, Pearce, Woodard, Tarpless, Dyson, and Grey.

MASONIC.—Hart (back), Gardner and Brocklehurst (half backs), Ellis and Parker (quarter backs), Humphrey, Godsmark (capt.), Scurr, Sparkes, Davies, Barrett, Molineaux, Howard, Wood, and Eastland.

COLLEGE HOUSE F.C. v. MASONIC F.C.

This match was played on the College House ground at Edmonton, on Wednesday last. The fine weather and the excellent play on both sides combined to make this one of the most enjoyable matches of the season. The Masonic having lost the toss kicked off at 3.15. The ball was at once brought back by Mr. Barter, who was collared, and so a scrimmage was formed. During the next twenty minutes a very even game was played, during which time an excellent scrimmage took place, ending in Godsmark obtaining and running in with the ball, which, unfortunately, Mr. Gardner was unable to convert into a goal. Play then went on without anything noticeable occurring for about ten minutes, when Mr. Brocklehurst got the ball, and after a short run had a Maul in goal with two of the College men, but was overpowered, and so only obtained a touch down for his side. The play of the College, who were evidently anxious to cancel what their opponents had gained, became much better at this point, but their efforts, however, were unsuccessful, and when time was called the school were winners by six goals, two tries, and three touch-downs to nil. For the Masonic, Messrs. Gardner, Godsmark, Scurr (who kicked all the goals), and Hart again distinguished themselves; while for College House, Messrs. Barter, Francis, Unwin, and Goodwin played excellently.

MASONIC.—Hart (back), Parker and Ellis (quarter backs), Gardner and Brocklehurst (half backs), Godsmark (capt.), Scurr, Sparkes, Davies, Molineaux, Howard, Barrett, H. Wood, Eastland, and E. Wood.

COLLEGE HOUSE.—Francis and Swain (backs), Barton and Hughes (half backs), Unwin (quarter back), Farmer, C. Smith, Tatton, Young, Staff, George, B. Smith, Cushen, Hancock, and Goodwin.

Masonic and General Tidings.

There appears in the Vienna Friemauser for October a very absurd and unwise article relative to the question of the French Grand Orient, and certain alleged views and words of our distinguished Bro. the Grand Secretary. The statements there made are utterly unfounded, as we shall show clearly in our next impression.

We have much pleasure in announcing that His Grace the Duke of Manchester, Provincial Grand Master for Northamptonshire and Huntingdonshire, has consented to take the chair at the next festival of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, which will be held on the 13th Feby., 1878.

The meeting night of the Mount Edgcombe Lodge of Instruction, No. 1446, has been altered from Wednesday to Tuesday, at 8 o'clock p.m.

In consequence of the severe indisposition of the host, Bro. Seager, the annual banquet of the Star Lodge of Instruction will be held at the White Swan, High-street, Deptford, instead of at the Marquis of Granby, New Cross, as previously announced. The date remains unaltered, viz., October 30th, at 7.30 p.m.

The Union Waterloo Lodge of Instruction, No. 13, meets for the future every Thursday instead of Friday evenings.

We are informed by a correspondent that an especially interesting ceremony took place at St. John's, Adelaide, South Australia, on the 19th of June, being the marriage of Bro. J. H. P. Hender, W.M. 583, D.G.P. The knot was tied by Bro. the Rev. F. Slaney Poole, M.A., Chaplain 583. It does not often fall to the lot of a Chaplain to officiate at the marriage of the Worshipful Master of his lodge, and we doubt not this fact was fully appreciated by the reverend brother. A very pleasing circumstance was that the whole of the guests present, with the exception of one, were Masons, and that all the ladies were wives or daughters of brethren.

DUNMOW FLITCH.—Her Majesty the Queen has been pleased to accept a copy of the "History of the Dunmow Flitch," published by Messrs. W. Tegg and Co. A letter has been sent to the author, Bro. William Andrews, Fellow of the Royal Historical Society, by the Queen's private secretary as follows:—General Sir Thomas M. Bidolph has received the Queen's commands to thank Mr. Andrews for sending a copy of his "History of the Dunmow Flitch," which Her Majesty has been graciously pleased to accept.—Buckingham Palace, October 19, 1877.

Bro. Norris's grill room, 27, Leadenhall-street, is deserving the patronage of all who visit the city of London. He is master of his room, gives good food, unsophisticated drink, and, above all, a cheerful, kindly welcome. It reminds one of old times, when the host looked after his guests.

At a Special Communication of the District Grand Lodge of British Burmah, held at Freemasons' Hall, Rangoon, on Friday, the 17th day of August, Bro. Henry Krauss, who had been constituted and appointed by H.R.H. the M.W.G.M., was duly installed District Grand Master of British Burmah.

It gives us much pleasure to announce, and we are sure our brethren in Wigan especially will be pleased to learn, that the whole length portrait of Bro. Walter Mayhew, Mayor, subscribed for in commemoration of the opening of the New Market Hall, Wigan, is pronounced a most admirable likeness, and reflects the greatest credit on the artist, Bro. Captain Charles Mercier, of the 6th Royal Lancashire Militia. The portrait is to be uncovered on Tuesday next, the 30th.

THE INDIAN FAMINE.—The smallest amount yet received in one day in aid of the Indian Famine Fund was paid on Wednesday into the Mansion House, the whole subscription only amounting to £3300. Mr. C. B. Dowden, of Tuticorin, a member of the Mansion-House Committee, has received a telegram announcing that the arrival of cotton from the districts is completely stopped by the rain, and indicating a bursting of the north-east monsoon.—Miss Amy Sedgwick (Mrs. Pemberton) has kindly volunteered to give a reading and recital in aid of the Famine Fund, and the Lord Mayor has placed the Egyptian Hall of the Mansion House at her disposal for the purpose on the afternoon of Tuesday next, the 30th inst.

LORD MAYOR'S SHOW.—The following we understand is to be the route of the civic procession on Lord Mayor's-day, the 9th of next month, as far as present arranged by the committee, viz:—Leaving Guildhall, to proceed through King-street, Cheapside, St. Martin's-le-Grand, Aldersgate-street, Barbican, Chiswell-street, Finsbury-square, Worship-street, Norton-folgate, Bishopsgate-street, Gracechurch-street, Cannon-street, St. Paul's Churchyard, Ludgate-hill, Fleet-street, Strand, to Westminster; returning by the Thames Embankment. The route is much longer than usual, but custom makes it necessary to perambulate the wards of the Lord Mayor Elect and the Sheriffs—which happen this year to lie in parts of the City widely apart. Contrary to usage, however, the procession does not pass the Mansion House.

BEYOND THE POWER OF THE POLICE.—The Channel rough.—Punch.

The Worshipful Company of Merchant Taylors have given a donation of £21 in aid of the funds of the Royal Albert Orphan Asylum.

The reception given to the Prince of Wales on his recent visit to Devonshire has been acknowledged by a letter from General Probyn, the comptroller of his Highness's household.

SKETCHES OF MASONIC CHARACTER. No. X. BRO. WHITTAKER AT NAPLES.

Bro. Whittaker, who is a very distinguished Mason,—great in fact “in everything and to everybody,” has been spending his holiday time at Naples. He returns home full of Naples and the Corso, Mount Vesuvius and St. Janarius, the Malocchio, and Maccaroni, Herculaneum and Pompeii, the Sybils and the Brigands. Like Lord Alvanley he says he could hardly tear himself away from the “head-quarters of far niente, political apathy, maccaroni, tarantella and sunshine.”

Indeed, he adds that, like his Lordship, he too had “got to think that looking out of the window at the sea, sniffing up the afternoon breeze, driving up and down the Corso at night, and then supping lightly on fish and Lachryma Christi was the perfection of existence, and when a souvenir of more brilliant amusements, more exciting pleasures, and younger and happier days” flashed across his memory, he only “heaved a little quiet sigh,” drank another glass of Lachryma, and relapsed back into the vacancy of thought, from which it had momentarily aroused him.”

As we think Bro. Whittaker wrong in taking this morbid and melancholy view of life, and we disapprove of this sybaritic colouring of ageing epicureanism, we deem it only fair to the readers of the Freemason to mention the fact, and to express our disagreement with Bro. Whittaker.

Bro. Whittaker is an excellent fellow, but he is too much of the “haw-haw school” for us in every department of life, and, however much he does, and he has done Masonically a good deal, he might effect a good deal more, if only he would rouse himself to his duties, and nerve himself to his work. How many lodges there are up and down the land where one such brother “rules the roast,” and his “regime” is not always to the advantage of the lodge. He may be too dictatorial or too downright, too reserved or too matter of fact, too much given to routine, or too much addicted to nepotism—too fond of a clique, or too ready for a nice little job. Like Bro. Whittaker he may also be too languid, too grand to attend to minutiae, to deal with difficulties.

If Bro. Whittaker was a married man, we should have no doubt that Mrs. Whittaker would mend matters, if she was a woman of tact and sense, but as he is a confirmed old bachelor, we have no hope of him in this respect. Such as he is, such he always will be to the end of his days, till his kindly presence is missing, till his well-filled place knows him no more. He is one of those, not a few by the way, who do much, and might do a good deal more, if only he would, for the welfare of his brethren, and for the happiness of mankind. But no! The God that he worships is indifferentism and epicureanism, so he prefers to drowse through life, to saunter through existence, magnificent, patronising and unimpassioned, rather than apply himself earnestly to any one thing in this mortal world of ours.

A. Clough has depicted such a character when he says:—

Heartily you will not take to anything,
Whatever happens—do I see you still,
Living no life at all? Will you go on thus,
Until death end you, if indeed it does?
For what it does none knows. Yet as for you,
You'll hardly have the courage to die outright, You'll somehow halve even it. Methinks I see you
There! evaluating limboes of void time
Twisting and twiddling ineffectively,
And indiscriminately awaying for even.
Is there no teaching in these words for any of our readers,
Nay for ourselves?

PINE'S LIST OF LODGES 1731-3

I am unfortunately at fault just now in my researches respecting the “Origin of Freemasonry in America,” by the absence of any authorised lists of lodges for 1731, 1732, 1733. J. Pine published such annually, beautifully engraved, from A.D. 1723, but alas those of the years named, and several others are missing, and apparently not known to any Masonic student. Should any brother know of the whereabouts of “Pine's Lists of Lodges, 1731-3,” and can purchase them, I shall not mind the cost, and will then make their contents known most gladly to the readers of this paper, our other Masonic publications, as well as be able to decide a point or two, at present in abeyance. I would gladly give five pounds or more for those lists, for without them, there does not appear any probability of clearing up the question finally and positively. Certified transcripts would do, or a perusal of the lists, if they could not be sold.

ZACHARIAS JEPSON AND FREEMASONRY.

I can quite think with “Masonic Student” (whose signature I always hail with pleasure) that if the respected Prov. G.M. of West Yorkshire can furnish evidence of Zacharias Jepson being a Freemason during the Seventeenth Century, “it would be an important fact in itself.” I noticed the statement myself, but considered it “a flight of oratory” at the time, and a guess, rather than a fact. If, however, it can be substantiated, it will be of real value to our annals of the Craft, though not an exceptional record; as Ashmole was initiated in 1646, and many others of position and importance during the period in question. Still, our Masonic records of the last century are very bare indeed as compared with those in Holland (so amply illustrated in my friend Bro. Lyon's Grand History of the Lodge of Edinburgh), that any additional information will be indeed most welcome to the Craft in general and in particular to “Masonic Student” and

Reviews.

“The Cosmopolitan Masonic Calendar.” George Kenning 198, Fleet Street. (Price, Post Free, 2s 3d).

Time, with its revolving chances and changes again announces the appearance among us of this very valuable Masonic Vade Mecum, for the year of light and grace 1878.

At the hazard of being considered egotistical and encomiasts, praising our own wares, puffing our own commodities, we think it well to call the attention of the Craft to the fact, as a fact, and to say a few words in honest criticism and well earned praise, in favour of one of the most modest, most useful, and most important of Masonic literary undertakings. That the “Cosmo” has its utility and value, who can affect really to doubt or venture to deny? Well printed, full of information never before put together, it appeals to all governing bodies, as to all individual brethren, with a sense of completeness and correctness which challenges scrutiny and commands admiration. Never before in the history of Masonic literature have so many invaluable Masonic statistics, so large an amount of otherwise inaccessible Masonic information been put together for the convenience and information of the Craft. The list of contents is very striking in itself, really a study, and takes away one's breath, and strikes one's mind with the feeling of the time and trouble and expense which the preparation of this annual pocket-book has given to all who have had to do with it, and executed their work so carefully and so well.

We never could understand on what grounds any opposition could be offered or any remarks made, by any one, (be the brethren more or less ill-informed) in respect of so unpretending and yet to Freemasons, so valuable a little work.

The “Cosmopolitan Masonic Calendar” stands on its own merits, and the public opinion of a numerous and critical brotherhood. It represents no party; it belongs to no clique; it has nothing to gain, and seeks for no support, except that which is honestly accorded to it, on its own value, as an unerring yearly record of Masonic and High Grade organisations, which until the “Cosmo” appeared, never were well known or accessible even to Masonic Students, to Grand Secretaries, to W. Masters, to the whole officialism, and rank and file of Freemasonry.

As it is, the “Cosmo,” as its name shows, seeks to represent, and does so effectively, from year to year, the whole extent of Craft and High Grade development in the world.

What more need we say of it? What greater praise can be given to it? To find fault with this fair and legitimate enterprise of George Kenning, because it is a great success, is unfraternal, to object to so much supplemental information being liberally provided for Freemasons, which is found in no other official hand-book or Almanac, is unreasonable. So let us hope we have heard the last of carping criticisms and defamatory handbills, and let us hail the re-appearance of the “Cosmo” with pleasure, and give it not only our “heartiest good wishes” but substantial and fraternal support.

“A Portrait of Mr. Gladstone.” Alfred May.

Alfred May's Photograph of Mr. Gladstone at Hawarden, sitting at the foot of a stately oak, in the midst of one of his woodcutting exploits, strikes us as very life-like indeed, and brings before us all effectively the well-known features of a distinguished statesman. It is one of the penalties of fame that every one wishes to know something about the inner life of those who are so much outwardly before the common gaze, and have mounted, with greater or less success, the slippery heights of public popularity and applause. Mr. Gladstone is one of those “individual men,” who seems in his retirement, to have as much interest as when in office for a very large class of Englishmen and Englishwomen. The legislator, who in his active career, was Prime Minister of England, (perhaps the highest of worldly posts), apparently retains amid the amusements of his retreat, at Hawarden, and his leisure hours, as much sympathy with numerous classes of his countrymen and countrywomen, as when he was leading the House of Commons, and directing the affairs of a mighty empire. The admiration and gratitude of us benighted islanders, for those statesmen who as “servants of the Queen,” and representatives of the people, have well served old England, are happily always very great, and we trust will always long continue to be the case in our passing generations. If public life has its trials and dangers, its temptations and troubles, it also has its reward, in the sympathy of confiding citizens, and the honest approval and regards of a true-hearted people. We are glad to call attention to the photograph.

Our well-known contemporary, the Civilian, contains the following note in its issue of the 20th inst., which will no doubt interest our readers in general, and the friends of Bro. Markham Twaddell in particular:—“We understand that H.R.H. Prince Leopold, R.G., President of the Royal Society of Literature, has been graciously pleased to accept a copy of Mr. Emma Holmes's ‘Tales, Poems, and Masonic Papers.’ The Prince, through his courteous secretary, Mr. Collins, also informs Mr. Holmes that, although it is not strictly according to precedent for members of the Royal Family to accept dedications of books, His Royal Highness will, having regard to the charitable object you have in view, be glad to accept the dedication of your new volume.” Our brother civil servant proposes to give the proceeds of his second series to the aged Masonic friend for whose benefit his first book was published, and no doubt Prince Leopold's patronage will greatly add to the success of the new literary venture.

M. Gounod is writing on opera on the story of Abelard and Heloise. It will be called “Maitre Pierre.”

NOTES ON ART, &c.

THE VAN LOON PAINTINGS.—Some erroneous statements have been circulated respecting the sale of the Van Loon collection of paintings at Amsterdam. The facts are that when it became known that this famous gallery was to be in the market, negotiations were begun on behalf of the Dutch Government for the purchase of the whole, in order that it might be retained in Holland, the most desirable thing which could have happened. Owing, it is said, to the tardiness of the national authorities in coming to a decision in the matter and some difference of opinion about the price which might be accepted, the time passed, and the Rothschild family bought the entire collection for four millions of francs. The collection is to be divided into five parts, one of which will fall by lot to each of the branches of the family, who divide the cost equally. One lot consists of the two magnificent Rembrandts, the life-size full-length portraits of M. Daey and his wife, both clad in black. The lady wears a cap, with a falling veil, and holds a black feather fan. The husband, William Daey, magistrate of Alkmaar, is about 28 years of age, and represented in nearly full front view, in a black velvet dress, with a pendent lace ruff, pale gray silk stockings, bows of lace on the front of his dress, and white rosettes in his shoes. His right hand is in his breast. The left hand is extended, as in the act of speaking. It is signed and dated 1634. The lady's portrait is dated 1643. Both portraits are finished to the highest degree. They were purchased of one of the descendants of the family in 1798 by M. R. Princenaar for 4000 florins, and sold in the year following to M. Van Winter for 10,000 florins, or more than £1000. They now cost the fortunate drawer of the lot more than £30,000. The remaining portion of the collection comprises pictures by Van de Velde; with a landscape by Berchem; a fine Dow; a “Garden Scene,” by De Hooche; two small Paul Potters; an Emmanuel de Wit; a “Cow,” by Cuyp; “Lot and his Daughters,” by P. Wouvermans; “A Lady and a Cavalier,” by Terburg; a portrait, and “A Lady and Cavaliers,” by Metsu; “A Peasant Girl,” by N. Maas; four beautiful flower pieces, by Van Huysum; “View of a Church,” by Van der Heyde; a delicately-finished Jan Steen; two pictures by the brothers Wenix; by I. Van Ostade; “A Kermesse,” by A. Van Ostade; a landscape by Berchem; two landscapes by Both; large landscape by Wynants, with figures by Wouvermans; “Rams and Cattle,” by Krel du Jardin; fine Verkolie, “A Drummer, Lady, and Cavalier,” a fine small A. Van de Velde; another, in which this artist worked with Moucheron; a Van Tol; a good Lingelbach; “Anthony and Cleopatra,” by G. de Laissence.—Athenaeum.

A School of Science, Art, and Literature for Ladies has been established at the Alexandra Palace for the convenience of residents in the neighbourhood. Mr. Lindsay Sloper is the director, and the course includes lessons, both public and private, in music and singing, languages, drawing and painting, mathematics, history, geography, &c., from well-known professors. There are three terms, and students are admitted free to the Palace on the days of their lessons, a similar admission being given to the lady who accompanies them.

Driving by electricity is the latest invention across the Channel, according to the Live Stock Journal. An electro-magnet is placed under the coachman's seat, from which one wire is carried along the reins to the horse's bit, and another to the crupper, so that the whole length of the animal's spine forms part of an electric circuit. A sudden shock, which the driver can administer at discretion, will, it is said, arrest the most furious runaway, while a series of small shocks will stimulate a “screw” to marvels of pace and style.

Copies of the photographs taken during the late Arctic Expedition are to be presented to the British and South Kensington Museums, the United Service, Royal Artillery, and Royal Engineer Institutions, and other Government collections. The originals are now being exhibited by the Photographic Society.

The dome of St. Peter's, at Rome, is again causing considerable anxiety for its security, as the fissures and cracks in the upper part of the dome and its supports have much increased of late. A commission from the Russian Academy of Fine Arts has recently examined the dome, and it was found that almost every part of the structure was more or less cracked or dislocated. Bands of iron have been placed round the dome in previous years and marble tablets dove-tailed into the cracks, but numbers of the latter have been broken or torn by the widening of the fissures.

Sir Paul Pindar's house in Bishopsgate-street, now divided into two houses, is shortly to be pulled down. The beautiful ceilings, however, are to be preserved, and one or more will be given to the South Kensington Museum.

A monument to the late Mr. Margary is to be erected at Shanghai. It will consist of a Gothic cross of red and green Ningpo stone on a granite base, supported on a pedestal of granite steps, and ornamented by shields bearing the Margery arms and those of the Municipality.

Journalism is likely to have a patron saint, as the Turin journals, backed by the devout Roman Voce della Verita, propose to petition the Pope to nominate St. Francis de Sales guardian of Catholic writers. “Sales” is an appropriate name for a commercial venture.

The Charing Cross Publishing Company are about to publish a novel by the late Peter Boyle, Esp., compiler of “Boyle's Court Guide.” The novel is entitled “The Red Knight of Germany.”

THE INCREASE OF ACCOMMODATION AT FREEMASONS' HALL.

We are among those who venture to think that the attention of the Board of General Purposes may well be directed to this very important subject, and as soon as possible. Our Metropolitan Charitable Institutions require necessarily more accommodation; it is a want alike overpowering and imperative, to which we are of opinion, honestly, that the Executive of the Order may justly be asked to give friendly consideration and attentive heed. For many reasons, too many to dwell on now, it would be greatly to be deplored, if the Committees of our Metropolitan Charities had to go elsewhere to find a "local habitation" though not a "name." We repeat, it would, in our humble opinion, be greatly to be deprecated in the best interests of Grand Lodge and the Charities themselves if in consequence of not being able to find sitting and standing room in Freemasons' Hall, they should be compelled to obtain a place of their own, for the joint accommodation of their officials and offices. It would be a great blunder, and worse than a blunder, as it would cause a severance which it would take long years to heal over. We think that all will admit that Freemasons' Hall is the most convenient and central spot for the offices of our great Charities. To say nothing of the convenience of all metropolitan and provincial brethren, it would, as matters are, constitute a grave scandal, if the present arrangements had to be broken up, because no accommodation can be obtained at Freemasons' Hall, if the Committees had to go out of Freemasons' Hall and seek those convenient arrangements for official work, which they have a right to expect to have provided for them, (on payment of rent), in Freemasons' Hall, the great centre of English Freemasonry. We feel certain that if such a feeling of abstinence and negation is persisted in in respect of our Charities, it will be alike very unwelcome to the Order at large, and may be productive, sooner or later, of some unpleasantness. There are those amongst us, high in influence, who have shown in times past that they object to all unwise parsimony, and needless difficulties of all kinds, and we feel convinced that if they will only turn their minds to the subject, a plan of increased accommodation might be devised, by which this great want might be remedied and satisfied. We venture then sincerely to express our hope, that this question of increased accommodation at Freemasons' Hall may be considered on its own merits alone, and then we are satisfied what the result must be. Even supposing that some fresh building should be required, we have plenty of money, and the convenience would be so great, "pro bono publico," as to outweigh entirely any question of cost or change. It has indeed been said that we have no room to build on to our Board Room, &c., but why not purchase the building next to Freemasons' Hall and convert it into offices, with a large room on the ground floor and a library above? The present Secretarial offices of the schools can easily be utilized for the G. Secretary's office. With regard to a hall of assembly on polling days, we think, as an immediate amendment of the inconvenience, the Charities had better in future obtain the great dining hall for polling days, which would add greatly to the comfort of the brethren. If our suggestion is carried out as above, the new accommodation would give us a central hall, surrounded by the offices of the Institutions. Of course when we touch upon this question, we feel that we are treading after all only on the fringe of it, so to say, and that behind it all is a far greater question, which will have some day to be taken up. Can we not utilize the tavern for ourselves and disassociate Freemasons' Hall from all connection with a house of entertainment? But the moment we attempt to ask a few that subject, unutterable difficulties bristle on the surface, and we prefer to leave it to wiser heads and more accurate judgments to deal with and decide.

ONE OR TWO FALLACIES ABOUT CHARITY VOTING.

We do not suppose that anything we are about to say, will have any effect on our ardent reformers, because like reformers in general, they do not need arguments, and they do not want logic. They have made up their mind, whether on imperfect data or not matters nothing, and they are in this respect like the infallible Church, "Roma locuta est, Causa finita est." Now we dislike infallibility and Popes of all kinds, and believe rather in right reason and common sense, and so we think it well to deal with one or two curious and striking fallacies to-day, in respect of Charity Voting. It is said, "why should a case come up several times, and if the system be not bad, why is not the candidate elected?" The whole system of voting being governed, so to say, by the unit of individualism, and the great "factor" being personal interest (in the best sense), we cannot possibly lay down any canon of why or wherefore in that respect. Either the case is weak per se, or is weakly supported, or it fails to interest, or it appears not to be so urgent as another case to the individual mind of A. It is utterly hopeless to attempt to reason, as if B's view of the most distressing case ought to be accepted by A, or even that the view of any committee you can name is to dominate the personal appreciation of A, C, D, E, etc. We who have carefully looked into the working of our charities, feel sure of this one great fact, despite much "tall talk," and unreasoning sentiment, that the strong cases on the whole get in, and the weak cases go to the wall, and that if we could only ensure individual conscientiousness on the part of the voters, we should have fewer evils to complain of, and no abuses to redress. Whenever we see a case unsupported, we may be sure of this, that for some reason or other, the friends of the orphan have not been in earnest, or the district has not its sufficient number of votes, and is therefore practically powerless in the struggle. It is idle, and we must add hypocritical, to attack the system when the fault is not in Charity Voting at all, but in the "laches" of individual brethren. By proper organization and needful exertion, no good case need be beaten. Let us remember this, and we say so confidently, after a close observation of Charity Voting, for many years. So too, it is an astounding fallacy to suppose or to assert, that there is any unfairness, because some brethren exert themselves for particular candidates alone. It is in the nature of things that it should be so, and very well it is that it is so. To argue, as some seem to do, that the Committee is to select for you, is in our opinion an aggravation of any existing weakness in the system, and may be productive of the grossest jobbery, against which the only safeguards are public criticism and organized voting. In the last Boys' election, the weakest case positively was one put on in express defiance of the laws of the Institution by a grave blunder of the General Committee, though it received a large amount of individual support, and a repetition of such cases, if successful, would make the Boys' School a "mockery, a delusion and a snare;" in every respect a burlesque on our wise laws, and a reproach and ridicule to the subscribers and to Freemasonry. In saying this, as Masonic duty compels us, we do not wish to interfere with the sad claim of a poor orphan, for whom we feel much sympathy.

BENE NOTANDA.

There is perhaps no Emporium of Masonic literature and trade better known to the Craft and the public than No. 198, Fleet-street. Not only is it historically famous as whilome the abode of honest Izaak Walton, but for many years it has been identified with the familiar name and remarkable enterprise of George Kenning. Thither, as from 1, 2, 3, Little Britain, emerge those packages which convey his æsthetic productions and skilful handiwork to the four quarters of the globe, and brethren of all nationalities and creeds give him their friendly orders and receive from him their valued consignments. No. 198, Fleet-street, is also the headquarters of our English Masonic literature, whence the Freemason and the Masonic Magazine, the Cosmo, and the Rosicrucian, and other works of various kinds minister to Masonic intellectuality and study, amongst our English, nay Cosmopolitan Craft. Many are our good brethren who casually look in, from time to time, at 198, to honour us with their pleasant patronage, and to cheer us with their zealous support. But we were favoured the other day by an unexpected visitant, a young Roman Catholic priest. Whether in the haze of the evening he stepped into 198, Fleet Street, by pure mistake, or whether, like Eve, he was attracted by the Masonic Symbolism in the window, (forbidden fruit), we cannot profess to decide. Sure enough in he came, though none could be more startled primâ facie than ourselves. We quickly supplied his needs and parted in mutual courtesy. "Wonders will never cease," we said to ourselves. We poor Freemasons, excommunicated by popes, anathematized by cardinals, charged by archbishops, denounced by bishops, we yet are not altogether bug-bears to the inferior clergy. Such is the force of truth that it dissipates error and masters prejudice." Well, the object of this little article is not to find fault or scold, but to do a little bit of business and comfortable advertizing at the same time. We beg to announce to the Roman Catholic Clergy and laity, that though we are Freemasons, we shall always be happy to meet their wishes in the way of legitimate trade, as we have often done before, and we venture to think that a visit to our show-rooms at 1, 2, 3, Little Britain, may soften some antagonisms, and remedy many misconceptions. The trade orders of all our customers will always be courteously received and punctually executed, and though as regards our Roman Catholic clients, we have nothing to do with their peculiar tenets, we shall be always most happy to receive their cash payments.

THE OBELISK.

We shall all be glad to hear that the "Cleopatra" is safe, and that the munificent enterprise of our esteemed Bro. Erasmus Wilson will (D.V.) be crowned with success. To that worthy member of our Order, the best thanks of all admirers of antiquity, of all lovers of artistic memorials, are most justly due, and we are pleased to think that to the patriotic and enlightened appreciation of one of our own body, England is indebted mainly, for the acquisition and preservation of this very interesting relic of ages past and gone. We beg to congratulate Bro. Erasmus Wilson sincerely on the happy result of his most commendable and public-spirited undertaking. The one only cause of regret, which so to say, tinges the whole scene with a darker colouring, is the loss, as is much to be feared, of the gallant boat's crew and officer of the "Olga." We shall all deeply deplore so great a calamity in itself, and so deep an affliction to many suffering families and remaining relatives, as we fear that their chance of safety in such a gale and with such a "sea on" is, alas! very slight indeed. We shall most heartily rejoice if our gloomier anticipations as regards the fate of the boat's crew should turn out to be unfounded. We can only hope that thus it may prove to be.

THE USE OF LATIN IN OUR LEADERS.

A worthy correspondent takes us to task courteously both for the use of Latin, and for the non-translation of the words we employ. We apprehend that though, as a general rule, it is not advisable to interlard English with Latin yet that every now and then such quotations relieve the dullness of a disquisition, and improve the monotony of style. We will, however, in future translate the Latin words we employ, except in the case of familiar quotations, though we confess that such a proceeding has the appearance of pandering to ignorance. The last quotation complained of came from Punch, and as Punch did not consider it needful to translate it for its readers, neither did we for ours. There is a good little story in the New York Dispatch, which we "give in," as they say:—"What!" asked a youth, timidly, of an eminent philologist—"what, sir! is the meaning of the phrase,

'modus operandi'?" And the great linguist, whose mind was saturated with the literature of ancient Greece and Rome, replied: "It is Latin for 'How the old thing works'!"

IMPOSSIBLE.

We have seen it stated in a creditable journal, that in a certain large town in England, (name kept back), in a recent case before the Borough Magistrates, a brute of a fellow, who is alleged to have kicked his wife into a state of insensibility, was "bound over to keep the peace towards her and all her Majesty's liege subjects for twelve months." Can any of our kind correspondents throw any light upon this report, which we deem so unlikely and so unjust to the town, that we are inclined to relegate it at once to the "limbo" of live "canards" and large cabbages? There must be some explanation forthcoming of a statement, which if true, would constitute a burlesque on the administration of justice amongst us, and would offer a premium to ruffianism, of which we have just now, in some shape or another, a great deal too much.

ANOTHER DREADFUL COLLIERY EXPLOSION.

One of the most dreadful explosions which has ever occurred in the history of coal-mining, took place on Monday, at Dixon's Colliery, Upper Blantyre, near Glasgow. Of the 219 poor fellows unaccounted for at the time of the explosion, very few indeed, it is feared, can be saved. As Freemasons and humanitarians, we cannot but feel the deepest sympathy for the terrible blow which has fallen on a mining district and the irreparable loss entailed on hundreds of mourning families.

THE BOYS' SCHOOL.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

The motion brought forward by our Bro. the Rev. A. F. A. Woodford, at the last monthly meeting of the Boys' School Committee, is one deserving of the careful consideration of the brethren; and while I have no desire to offer an opinion on the particular case in question, of which I know nothing, perhaps I may be allowed to say a few words on the general principle involved.

The almost daily increase in the number of our lodges consecrated, necessarily brings into our ranks a flood of new members, and while there are doubtless many among them worthy, it cannot be denied that, for the purpose of entitling the new lodge to the (somewhat worn out) title of "young and flourishing," the admission of candidates is rather indiscriminate. I know instances in which persons have joined the Craft simply to call themselves Masons, and for their own ends, and having been raised to the rank of M.M. ceased to subscribe to a lodge or in any way connect themselves with Masonic work or Institutions. We all know of a case which has brought considerable scandal on the Craft in which even the initiation fee itself was refused to be paid. There are few brethren whose remarks on the subject of new members should carry greater weight than those of our respected Grand Secretary, and it would be well for the Craft generally, and rulers of lodges in particular, if more serious attention were paid to the sound advice he gives at the consecration of new lodges, in which he so frequently takes the leading part.

The increase to our ranks during the past three or four years, is such as to cause much anxiety to those who trouble to look forward to the future of our Charitable Institutions. The number of applicants for their benefits most necessarily increase yearly, and I am not losing sight of the great things that have been recently done by the brethren, when I express my fear that the hope of future support, in proportion to our augmented numbers, will be a vain one.

If this view is correct, then Bro. Woodford's motion is an important one for the future of the Craft, for if justice is to be done, it will surely be necessary to reduce the rights of candidature to the narrowest consistent limits, and to give those who have supported the Institutions in the past a prior claim on their benefits.

By simply subscribing to a lodge, a brother (if in no other way), aids the Charities, through the medium of amounts which are voted from the lodge funds for Stewards' Lists; but the means of contributing through Subscription Societies among us are now so convenient that there is little excuse left for such "watery" help.

At the meeting I am referring to, a brother remarked that "putting a child on the list was not electing him, that remained with the Craft." Exactly so, but I would remind him that the Committee is appointed in order to make the necessary investigations into the circumstances of each case, and to submit for final election only those which have a legal right to our support.

I am, yours fraternally, EDW. BLINKHORN, 1471.

THE ROYAL INSTALLATION ENGRAVING.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In answer to several letters I have received from brethren who have subscribed for copies of the engraving of the Grand Installation of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, M.W.G.M., I should like to state that in a letter to me this week Bro. Edward J. Harty, the artist, states most positively that the engraving "will be finally completed by the first week in December. I have the plate in London and two first-rate engravers working on it, ever since I had it proved by Messrs. McQueen—these men are simply adding what is called 'tone' to the plate, namely more effect of light and shade, &c." This work will, of course, be an additional outlay for Bro. Harty, and proves that his anxiety to produce a picture worthy of the great historical and Masonic event it is to commemorate has found its expression in deeds.

In common with my many friends who have subscribed for copies through my recommendation, I am vexed at the long delay, and yet, after all, it appears that when published in December next the work will be accomplished in a very short time indeed, considering the magnitude of the painting, &c.

In that case the error was in promising it so much earlier, and so all we have to do as subscribers is to exercise an important Masonic and general virtue a little longer—viz, patience, and rest assured that we shall be ultimately rewarded on seeing a picture, alike worthy of the subject and the distinguished body of subscribers. Meanwhile the plate may be seen at 213, Regent-street, London, W.

PAST GRAND PURSUIVANTS.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I was much surprised at your editorial note appended to a correspondent's letter in a recent number of your journal in which you state that Prov. Grand Pursuivant carries past rank, as this is quite contrary to my idea of the Book of Constitutions and the practice of Grand Lodge.

In the list of members of our fraternity, at the beginning of our regulations for the government of the Craft although Grand Pursuivant are mentioned I cannot find this title of Past Grand Pursuivants, from which I gather that there is no such title in Grand Lodge, and consequently can be none in Prov. Grand Lodge. This is further carried out by the fact that at the annual appointment of officers the Grand Master (acting under clause 4 of "The Grand Master" in our book of Constitutions) invariably confers past rank specially upon the brother who has served as Grand Pursuivant during the preceding year. The same clause will answer Bro. Owen's question in your last number, as to "Why is this not done in the Provinces?" as it specially states that "nothing therein contained shall empower Provincial Grand Masters to make similar appointments in their respective provinces."

I am, yours fraternally,

V. A. M.

[We do not think that our view is wrong. We will look into the matter carefully and recur to the subject.—Ed.]

CLEOPATRAS NEEDLE.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Now that the little bark "Cleopatra," laden with the famous "needle" has escaped from the jaws of the yawning deep, though not without the sad loss of six brave men's lives, may I be permitted to suggest that the names of these ill-fated mariners together with a representative of the ship in which the treasure was borne should be engraved on the base of the obelisk.

Perhaps Mr. Joseph Bonomi or some other archaeologist would also furnish an appropriate inscription in the hieroglyphic character.

I am, dear Sir and brother,

Yours fraternally,

C. S. 201.

NATIONAL BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

As your columns are so generously placed at the service of brethren advocating the claims of the distressed, allow me to solicit the assistance of my brethren (who are subscribers to the National Benevolent Institution), in securing the election of Miss S. N. Hodgson, in her 70th year, daughter of the late Bro. William Hodgson, an old and esteemed Mason, formerly of Truro. Our noble Masonic charities, valuable and extensive as they are, do not provide for the aged and infirm daughters of deceased Masons, and, therefore, I venture to ask that voting papers filled in for Miss Hodgson, be sent me, or polled on her behalf. The annuity of £25, which the Institution affords, would prove a great boon to her, for she has literally outlived her friends, and the money she managed to save during her vocation as mistress of a small school in Truro, is all but melted away, and when the last sovereign has been used (which must be very soon), I cannot see any prospect before her but the "Big House, with the closed doors," unless successful in this application for the annuity. I shall be happy to reciprocate any aid kindly granted me (for her) by assisting a candidate for either of our Institutions in a similar manner, as I am most anxious to see the poor soul elected, who is, by adoption, a sister of yours.

Fraternally yours,

W. J. HUGHAN, P.G.D.

Truro, Cornwall, Oct. 20th, 1877.

"FREEMASON" INDIAN FAMINE RELIEF FUND.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Kindly permit me to trespass on the space in your columns with the object of furthering your endeavour to enlist the sympathies of the brethren in the above calamitous visitation. I must unite with "1426" in expressing some little disappointment in the fact of your generously-headed list of subscriptions apparently "hanging fire" as it does, but I am inclined to think that perhaps the appeal has appeared after (in the case of many lodges) the first meetings of the season had been held, after which, as we all know, an interval would occur, which may account for the inaction. Again, many brethren will, ere your Fund had commenced, have probably sent their personal assistance through other channels. At the same time there is no doubt but that a very creditable sum ought now to be forthcoming from our body generally, and I applaud very much your action in the matter.

Some week or two since a letter appeared in your columns from Bro. Cooke, indicating a very good plan of co-operation, that of one of the officers of each lodge or chapter to take the initiative and make an all-round collection after lodge, limited to some small stated sum per head. This was done at 1589 Lodge on Friday week, and resulted in the sum of twenty-five shillings. Would that every lodge could do the same. I very much hope to see the "Freemason Famine Fund" acknowledgments show a good bold front in your next. The cause is too well known to need recapitulation.

It may occur to you that I would do well to take action in my own lodge before urging others, but to somewhat justify myself, I may remark that my humble mite was included in one of the sums acknowledged in your first list.

Yours fraternally,

A CONSTANT READER.

CONSECRATION OF THE SUB-URBAN LODGE, No. 1702.

On Friday week a lodge, bearing the title of the Sub-Urban Lodge, and numbered 1702, was consecrated at the Abercorn Arms, Great Stanmore, Middlesex, by Bro. John Hervey, Grand Secretary, who was assisted by Bro. the Rev. P. M. Holden, Prov. Grand Chaplain Middlesex, as Chaplain; Bro. Joshua Nunn, P.G.S.B., as D.C.; Bro. W. T. Howe, G.P., as S.W.; Bro. Frank Green, Grand Steward, as J.W.; and Bro. Sadler, P.M. 147, as I.G.

The Sub-Urban Lodge is to be a summer lodge. Ten years ago the Urban Lodge, 1196, was consecrated at St. John's Gate, London, by Bro. R. Wentworth Little, and the then Grand Secretary of England; Bro. W. Gray Clarke, was one of the spectators. The Urban Lodge derived its title from the Urban Club (a well-known literary and artistic club, meeting at St. John's Gate), which derived its title from "Sylvanus Urban, gent.," of the Gentleman's Magazine, who with a number of the celebrities of a century back, held pleasant evenings at the same rendezvous. The Urban Lodge was intended more particularly as a lodge for literary brethren and for those literati who wished to become brethren in Freemasonry. Dr. J. E. Carpenter was the first Master, and in the course of the ten years' existence of the lodge it has had 100 members. This lodge is a winter lodge, and it was conceived by several of its brethren that a summer lodge in connection with it would be a desirable feature. Hence the Sub-Urban Lodge, for which a petition asked for a warrant, naming Bro. Japheth Tickle, I.P.M. 1196, as the first Master, and Bros. Hawkesley and Roberts, as the first S. and J.W. respectively. The Abercorn Arms, Stanmore, was chosen for the locality, and perhaps a more desirable position could not have been selected, as, in addition to the beautiful landscape round about, and the accommodation afforded by Bro. Veal, the proprietor of the hotel, the neighbourhood abounds in historical associations. The arrangements made by the brethren who had the management of the day's proceedings were perfect, although they entailed a vast amount of care and thought. Bro. Veal did his best to make everyone comfortable; and as the Urban Club and the Urban Lodge have always been celebrated for a quaint though apt bill of fare and list of toasts, Bro. Hawkesley had printed a very choice specimen of these productions for the use of the Sub-Urban Lodge, thus keeping it in perfect harmony with those two celebrated compositions which are preserved with great carefulness by all who have the privilege of joining in the meetings of those two bodies.

The ceremony of consecration commenced shortly after three o'clock, and after the lodge had been opened, Bro. Hervey said he much regretted the absence of Bro. Little for more than one reason. One, and the most cogent, was that his health did not permit him to venture upon a consecration just now. Another was that had he been present, no doubt as connected with the province of Middlesex and being very well known to the Craft in that character, he would naturally be a better exponent of the ceremonies of the day than he (Bro. Hervey). He regretted exceedingly Bro. Little's absence on account of his ill health. Bro. Little had written to him saying he could not attend because he was too unwell to do so, and he requested him to perform the ceremony for him. This was the reason of his (Bro. Hervey's) being now in the chair, and he trusted if there was any little lapse in the course of the ceremony of the day that the brethren would attribute it not to his want of desire to perform the ceremonies in a way which would be satisfactory to the brethren, but to the fact of his being only a substitute for another. Now, he had so many times addressed the brethren on the same subject as he was about to speak upon on the present occasion, and there were so many brethren present who had heard him make the same observations before, that he felt some difficulty in his way. To say anything new he felt to be almost impossible, and it was very disagreeable to those who had attended consecrations before to have constantly the same tale told to them—to be admonished again that it was very desirable that those whom they admitted to their lodges were proper men, and also to be reminded that it was far better that a candidate who was not acceptable to every brother of a lodge should be withdrawn from the list than that blackballing should be put in operation. This was one subject on which he had several times addressed the brethren; and he had also frequently mentioned at these meetings the strong objection there was to such an event occurring as a brother indulging in a petty spite, if he might so term it, and the uncharitableness of blackballing those who might be put forward as candidates for initiation, because being soured by not being put into office when he estimated his own capabilities at a higher rate than the W.M. in the chair estimated them, he resolved that the W.M. should have no work to do during his year of office. Such a step was most undesirable, and it constituted such a meanness on the part of a brother who so acted that he (Bro. Hervey) could not help saying that he could conceive nothing more despicable, uncharitable, or unmasonic. He did not fear anything of the kind being resorted to in this lodge, and he hoped the members ran no risk of having amongst them a brother capable of such conduct. A word to the officers of the lodge, with whom, excepting the Secretary, he had not the pleasure of being acquainted. He would recommend them so to perfect themselves in the duties of their respective offices that the W.M. should have no cause to complain, either with respect to their attendance at the proper time, or the manner in which they carried out their duties. There was a time when probably there might have been some excuse for brethren not performing the duties of their office properly, but there was none now, for there was scarcely a locality around London where there was not a good lodge of instruction; and old Masons were well aware that there was a spirit of emulation now existing among members of the Craft which did not exist twenty-five or thirty years ago. Every member of the Craft now had the opportunity of learning his duties; every member surely could devote sufficient time and attention to make himself, if not perfect, at any rate efficient in the duties of the office that might devolve upon him. It was no very serious effort of memory for a brother to get up the duties of one of the minor offices; and if he had got up such duties, one could readily imagine that he would feel desirous of doing what he could to render himself acceptable to the members of the lodge, with whom his fate, if he might so term it, was bound up, in order that when the period of his own election to the chair came round he might then be unanimously elected. Such a brother would also wish, if a candidate came up for initiation on the day when he was installed, that he might be able without any hesitation to give him his degree, and also give him his other degrees during his year of office. He (Bro. Hervey) said this on account of the W.M., because it was a thing which the W.M. could not so readily say to the officers of his lodge, or say it so boldly as an old member of the Craft like himself (Bro. Hervey), who had gone through various offices, performed many duties, and found himself occasionally with Deacons who did not know the work, and Wardens who did not think it worth their while to perform the duties of their respective chairs. On a recent occasion he made an observation on another subject, a subject which did not interest the Craft generally, though it interested the lodge particularly. He did not know upon whom the duties of Treasurer of this lodge would fall, and he therefore said it on behalf of an unknown brother—that he would recommend the brethren around the room to pay up their subscriptions on the day they fell due. The Treasurer of course was expected to keep his lodge out of debt; and if he wished the lodge respectable he must keep it out of debt. He said this without any disrespect to the members of this lodge. How was he to keep the lodge out of debt and respectable if the brethren did not pay their subscriptions, unless indeed, he paid the money out of his own pocket? If he did not choose to do that the lodge fell into disrepute, and could not command that attention when it met that it otherwise ought to do. There was an amount of difficulty about the whole affair which the members of the lodge might obviate by the very easy method of paying their subscriptions when they fell due. Now the subscriptions of a lodge fell due and were payable on the installation day. It was all very well for a brother to say, "Oh, I shall not pay to-day: I shall pay six months' hence;" but did a brother who said that mean to sit down to the banquet and enjoy himself that day, and intend the Treasurer to pay for him then, and during the period that the subscription remained unpaid? In the interest of the Treasurer and for the well-being of the lodge he hoped the brethren would remember that the dues were payable on the day of installation, that without those dues were paid they were not doing their duty to the lodge, or assisting in keeping it in that position in which it ought to be kept, and they were not fulfilling that kindly feeling to the Treasurer which ought to be manifested by every brother of a lodge towards every other.

The Rev. P.M. Holden, Prov. G. Chaplain Middlesex delivered the oration. He said: The science of Freemasonry of which you are professors was in the first ages of the world undoubtedly a system of pure religion; and when mankind, ever fond of the material in preference to the spiritual, degenerated into idolatry, and fell off from the worship of the Creator to the worship of the creature, "the sun, the moon, the stars, and all the host of heaven," they engrafted upon the ancient principles of the Masonic Order their own crude and perverted notions and practices. In the family of Seth the belief in the goodness and mercy of Jehovah, the doctrine of a future state of rewards and punishments, and the necessity of moral purity as a qualification for eternal happiness, all of which are foundation stories of the Masonic Order, were long maintained. Among the Egyptians and Indians, pompous ceremonial observances very soon shrouded and altogether withheld truth from the uninitiated; but still the religious worship, no matter the form it assumed, was placed on the foundation which Jehovah himself had laid; and thus into whatever part of the globe the descendants of Shem, Ham, and Japheth migrated, they carried with them some notion, some knowledge of the one true God. And if Masonic principles more or less distorted as the degradation of ignorance and licentiousness enwrapped them, this accounts for the science of Freemasonry not being exclusively the possession of any one branch of religion, though indeed the system being a system of ethics and inculcating the purest morality, assimilates so far as I can judge, and it seems to me with no other religion so completely as with Christianity. And if you demand the reason of this assertion I merely reply that both Christianity and Freemasonry inculcate the same grand principles, viz, "to visit the fatherless and widows in their affliction," to do justice, love mercy, practise charity, and walk humbly with our God; for be that, however, as it may, of this thing we may all feel quite certain, that had the superstructure of Freemasonry been erected on any other foundation than "the glory of God and the good of man," had it been instituted merely to exalt human wisdom, or to promote human greatness, it would long since have crumbled into dust and been buried in the archives of the past. This being so, it can excite little surprise or wonder that the authentic records of Freemasonry are to be found in the Sacred Volume alone, and we pronounce this to be Freemasonry's fairest gem; for were its precepts at variance with the precepts of the Sacred Law it ought most decidedly to be rejected at once as unworthy of credit or of the attention of intelligent beings. And let me further say—fearlessly and distinctly say—that no brother can possibly be a good Mason who does not make the Word of God his frequent study, or, to use an expression more familiar to you, who does not diligently use the Sacred writings, which are given as the rule and guide of our faith. For be it remembered, that the true Mason is but a builder whose task it is to build up body, soul, and spirit into a holy temple, acceptable to God; and to accomplish this he must listen to the voice of the Great Architect of the Universe speaking at him from his Holy Book; he must patiently listen to this voice and obey its behests; the chief corner stone of his foundation should be "Holiness to the Lord;" thereon he must lay each stone of his spiritual house, carefully and accurately adjusted by the level and the square, till the whole is completed, and the capstone is brought forth with the exultation of a wise master builder, who at last shall hear the salutation, "Well done, good and faithful servant." Now, in this building all that is most excellent in classical and mediæval art will find its appropriate and proper place. The strength, beauty, and repose which distinguish the classical will be visible in manly bearing and upright dealing, in the absence of any childish spirit, and in a graceful interchange of all kindly offices; whilst the lofty aspirations and the solemn sense of the eternal and the infinite will be no less fully represented by unshrinking devotion to duty, by self-sacrifice, and by the constant communion with the "Great Father of Spirits." In the ceremony of setting apart and consecrating this moral edifice we by-and-by shall use incense, corn, wine, and oil. Each had its meaning. Let our prayers ascend on high in a fragrant incense; may we be thankful for the fruits of the earth, corn, wine, and oil, and temperate in their use. And whilst in the enjoyment of the blessings which they typify and symbolise, may we never forget the distressed. Brethren, the sum and substance, I am well aware, of these remarks has been repeatedly brought before you all in the Masonic teaching you are privileged to enjoy. If, therefore, it is our aim as Masons to promote the glory of God and the good of our fellows we must not only cherish all friendly dispositions and liberal sentiments, but we must embody them in deeds, so as to be clearly felt and acknowledged by all—love to God for His own sake, and love to the brethren for God's sake, being the two grand characteristics of our profession as Masons. And here let me testify with joy and satisfaction to the truth, for it is one, that as a body Masons have not been backward to acquire and carry out into practice the duty of brotherly love. With them, brother helps brother; many up to their ability, and beyond it, have proved by their self-denying liberality that charity is indeed the distinguishing characteristic of a Freemason's heart. Your private and local works of mercy; your General Fund of Benevolence; your noble Institution for Aged Freemasons and the Widows of Masons; your excellent Boys' School; your most admirable Girls' School; your princely grants of assistance from time to time towards the relief of those who are overtaken by sudden calamity and misfortune—these things speak for you as Masons trumpet-tongued, with far greater eloquence than any words of men. And did not these evidences exist, Masons would be utterly unworthy of the grand principles which they profess. But they do exist, and are flourishing still more and more; and if any scornful enquirer asks what may be the practical use and good of Freemasonry, you may reply, with becoming pride and satisfaction, "circumspect." The outside world, in its ignorance, may sometimes ridicule and misunderstand you; but what of that? "Do right, and fear not." And would you strive to obey the Great Architect of the Universe and love one another, forget not the virtues of temperance, fortitude, prudence, and justice; for the state of prosperity, in which Freemasonry now is, is ever a very dangerous one, which makes a man very likely to forget himself in respect to his conduct. Because His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, the heir to the throne of this mighty empire, reigns over you as your Grand Master, with his Royal brothers for his principal officers, because the great and the noble press into your ranks and participate in your mysteries; because your loyalty to your Queen is undoubted, be not elated or "vain in your own conceits." Although the numbers ranged under your banners are increasing with such marvelous rapidity, this, remember, is not necessarily any indication whatever of strength. Numbers, vast numbers, do but indicate weakness and danger when they are unarmed and ill-disciplined; and even one ignorant, or far worse still, one intemperate Mason may do the society to which he obtains accession almost irreparable injury; for men do not, and they will not, pause to discriminate, but they will ascribe to the system the errors of the professor. And remember that a thousand eyes jealously watch you, Argus eyes that will not fail accurately to detect any variance between your profession and your practice. Let us then, as worthy men and Masons, endeavour to apply the principles of our ancient and beautiful Order to our lives, and model our conduct upon the sublime principles which it teaches, inculcates, and enforces. As the poet says:—

"So live that when thy summons comes to join
The innumerable caravan which moves
To that mysterious realm, where each shall take
His chamber in the silent halls of death;
Thou go, not like the quarry slave at night,
Scourged to his dungeon, but, sustained and soothed,
By an unfaltering trust; approach thy grave
Like one who draws the drapery of his couch about him,
And lies down to pleasant dreams."

Before I sit down, allow me to thank you, Worshipful Sir, and all the brethren present, for the very kind and flattering manner in which you have been pleased to listen to this, the humble effort of a very humble individual in the discharge of a most pleasing duty at the consecration of this new lodge. (Great applause.)

The remaining portion of the ceremonial, according to ancient form, was proceeded with after this address, and the petitioners for the warrant were constituted into a regular lodge of Free and Accepted Masons. Bro. Joshua Nunn, P.G.S.B., then presented to Bro. Hervey, Bro. Japheth Tickle, P.M. 1196, who was thereupon installed as Master of the Sub-Urban Lodge, 1702, for the year ensuing. Bro. C. E. Hawkesley was invested as S.W.; Bros. Roberts, J.W.; J. B. D. Wall, Secretary; Wm. Radford, S.D.; Charles Willett, J.D.; J. L. Mather, I.G. (pro tem); H. Llewellyn Winter, Organist; and Bro. Middleton, Tyler. Bro. Hervey delivered the address to the W.M.; Bro. Howe, the address to the Wardens; and the Rev. P. M. Holden that to the brethren. Bros. Hervey, Col. Burdett, Prov. G.M. of Middlesex; Little, D.P.G.M.; the Rev. P.M. Holden, W. T. Howe, Frank Green, J. L. Mather, Preceptor of the Lodge of Instruction founded by the W.M. during his year of office in the Urban Lodge; Dr. J. E. Carpenter, and Winter, Mus. Bac. Cambridge, were elected as honorary members of the lodge.

Dr. Carpenter was among the brethren who returned thanks for the honour of being elected as an honorary member, and in doing so said that though the compliment was unexpected as far as he was concerned, he was vain enough to think it was not altogether undeserved, because he was the founder and first W.M. of the Urban Lodge, out of which the present lodge had sprung. Bro. S.W. whispered that he was the grandfather. Well, he did not mind being called the father, and he hoped he might live to be the grandfather, but that would only be when a lodge arose out of the Sub-Urban, as the Sub-Urban had arisen from the Urban. It was rather a strange coincidence, though not an unpleasant one, that this lodge should be consecrated just ten years all but a day after the Urban Lodge was consecrated, the latter having been consecrated on the 10th October, 1877. In those ten years the Urban Lodge had had close upon one hundred members, and still had over sixty subscribing members. He would hope that the Sub-Urban would be equally prosperous.

Lodge was thereupon closed and the brethren adjourned to a delightful banquet, supplied by "Brethren Chas. Veal, ye Manciple."

Banquet having been disposed of, the W.M. at once proceeded to propose the toasts, and after "The Queen and the Craft" had been honoured, the W.M. in proposing "The M.W.G.M." said that it was to the condescension of his Royal Highness in granting the warrant of the Sub-Urban Lodge that the brethren were indebted for meeting together that evening. If his Royal Highness, who was heir presumptive to the throne of England became as excellent a monarch as he had been a Grand Master he would earn the gratitude of all Englishmen.

Bro. Hervey responded to the toast of "The Pro and Deputy Grand Masters and the rest of the Grand Officers." He said that for nearly twenty-four years past he had been returning thanks for the toast of "The Grand Officers," and he did not find that he was a bit better prepared to do so now than he was when first called upon to undertake the duty. He found a difficulty with the beginning of the toast; he found a difficulty with the middle of it; and he found a difficulty with the end of it; consequently he was always in a difficulty from the beginning to the end. But he could not but appreciate the kindness with which the W.M. had given "The Health of Lord Carnarvon, Lord Skelmersdale, and the Grand Officers, Present and Past," and he was sure if those noblemen were now here they would equally appreciate the kind sentiments which the W.M. had expressed towards them. The other Grand Officers who were now standing up with him and those who were not here were as appreciative of the W.M.'s cordiality. The brethren had met there that day for the purpose of introducing a new lodge into the Craft, and he trusted that by it a new link was formed in the chain of lodges which would shed credit on the Order. Whether such credit was shed upon it must depend upon the brethren during the next year, because it was materially on the way in which the W.M. conducted the business of a lodge in its first year of existence that the question of its being a flourishing and prosperous lodge in after years and an ornament to the Craft rested. When he said "flourishing and prosperous" he trusted the brethren would not imagine that he was wishing to see the lodge numbering a vast concourse of brethren—brethren whom they might not know, but who were brought in merely for the purpose of swelling the ranks and funds. When he spoke of prosperity he looked to the character of the initiated or joining brethren. He was sure that under the rule of the present W.M. there would be a steady superintendence exerted as to what members were brought in. Lodges did not prosper in proportion to their numbers he thought. They might prosper in funds; they might have more to spend on their banquets; but the great thing he looked to was the tone of a lodge, the character of the members, and the feelings which those members entertained one to the other. They ought to be as they professed to be, a band of brothers; they ought to be, if he might venture to use the term, a small family; for a lodge was a family, and it was ruled over as much by the Master and Wardens as a family was ruled over by its father and mother. The brethren should never introduce a man to the lodge whom they could not introduce to their own table. They ought to see that those men they introduced to the Craft were such as they could hail as friends, meet as brothers, and when they parted with them, feel that they parted as those they were sorry to leave, from whose society they felt it difficult to sever themselves, and to whom they could look to in a time of distress, not only for material help, but for that which probably was of much more account, counsel in their afflictions, and sympathy in their sufferings. Those were the men they ought to bring into their lodges, and if they were to confine their ranks to such men the Order of Freemasonry would be looked up to even more than it was now. The brethren would feel they had among them those who would always sympathise with them in distress and always rally round them. He trusted those were the brethren he would find in this lodge when he came again among those who were now present. He sincerely trusted that he should come again, and all the Grand Officers of the Order would be equally rejoiced to find another lodge founded on the basis he had portrayed. (Hear, hear.)

The W.M. then gave "The Right W. Prov. G.M., Col. Burdett," and when this had been enthusiastically received he followed it up with the toast of "The Deputy Prov. G.M., Bro. R. W. Little, and the rest of the Prov. G. Officers." The W.M. said it was with great regret that he found he had to propose Bro. Little's health in that brother's absence. He was respected far and near throughout the Craft, but more especially by those who were constantly in communication with him. He (the W.M.) called upon him on the previous Wednesday to see if his health would permit him to be present; but he then saw that it would be quite impossible, and that it would be a great unkindness to press him. Bro. Little said he regretted that he could not come, more particularly because he had had the honour of consecrating the Urban Lodge, and when he (the W.M.) told him that many of his old friends were sure to be present, he expressed still more regret that he would not be able to attend. At the same time the lodge had Bro. Little's best wishes for its success and prosperity. Although such a notable brother was an absentee that evening, the brethren were honoured by the presence of other well-known brothers, who well and worthily filled his place—Bros. Howe, Green, and Holden, the last of whom had kindly acted as Chaplain, and the other two as Senior and Junior Wardens respectively. Bro. Green had been personally known to him (the W.M.) for some years, and he hoped the brethren would often see him among them. Bro. Howe was not so well known to him, but the brethren were greatly honoured by his presence, and he hoped that that brother also would often come and see them. Bro. Holden was well known, and therefore, did not require any adulation. The solemn and interesting manner in which he undertook the duties of Chaplain left an impression on the brethren which would not easily be effaced. As Bro. Holden would have to reply to another toast, he would not call upon him for a reply to the present.

Bro. Howe, in a very brief speech, said he was quite taken aback when he found himself elected an honorary member of the lodge. He hoped to visit the lodge on a future occasion, and to find it in great prosperity.

Bro. Frank Green said it had afforded him much gratification to see Bro. Tickle installed in the chair of this lodge. He felt that the lodge had started on the high road to fortune, and that it would prosper in the future. Everything depended on a good start in such matters. It very seldom happened in Freemasonry that lodges which started on a good foundation, carried on with real animation and integrity on the part of their founders and first officers, failed. He was convinced that the Sub-Urban would not fail.

The W.M. next said that this was an age of digressions, and he was going to digress from the routine toasts and now propose "The Consecrating Officers," and he did that because he felt he had been guilty of an omission, although it was an involuntary one, and that involved an involuntary injustice to one to whom this lodge was largely indebted for its ability to meet there that evening. They were largely indebted to Bro. Holden, Prov. G. Chaplain, for his condescension in honouring them with his presence. They were also largely indebted to Bro. Hervey for the imposing ceremony they had witnessed. But they were even more largely indebted to Bro. Nunn, because without his valuable counsel, aid, and assistance they might not have been able to meet so successfully and happily as they had met. He (the W.M.) did not know whether he was transgressing or not, but he was anxious to do honour to whom honour was due, and although Bro. Nunn was really one of themselves, it would be idle for them to disguise the fact that they were largely in his debt. He, therefore, had great pleasure in coupling his name as well as that of Bro. Holden with the toast, and he would call upon the brethren to drink the toast with a great deal of fervour and cordiality.

The Rev. P.M. Holden in reply said, he could only say that if he had been of any material assistance he was very glad. He had assisted Bro. Hervey on many occasions, and Bro. Hervey had so thoroughly drilled him that he was very much indebted to him for giving him instruction. If he were a prophet he might venture to say there was a great future before the lodge, as it was composed of the right elements, for he had noticed very great attention to details. It showed that the brethren connected with it were thoughtful men, men with brains, and these were always very thoughtful men to associate with, and they would be certain to insure the success of the lodge. He was very much pleased to be present, as it was one of those occasions when he made very kind and valuable friends, with whom he was always glad to renew an acquaintance.

Bro. Joshua Nunn said he had hardly expected to be called upon, being a member of the lodge. He hoped that the lodge which had so well commenced that evening would increase in prosperity. He felt assured that it would be a successful lodge, and Bro. Holden had struck the right note when he told them that the success of a lodge depended on the elements of strength within it. Instead of the lodge being honoured by what he had done for it, he considered it a great act of condescension on their part to have singled him out as one of those to whom thanks were due. Before sitting down he would propose a toast. On the list of toasts they had the line from Othello, "We cannot all be Masters." That was a very good remark to make on an occasion like the present. It was true we could not all be Masters, but they might all aspire to having that rank some day. If they referred to the programme they would also see on it, "They have sent me such a man as I could have wished for." In the present instance nothing more appropriate could have been said. In the first place they had a gentleman who held a position in society, a leading professional man, one who was anxious about Freemasonry, who was a Past Master of his mother lodge, and who desired to do well in every position in which he might be placed, and who now wished to bring his friends around him in the village of Stanmore in a lodge called the Sub-Urban Lodge. It was a very great pleasure to him (Bro. Nunn) to bring the toast of the W.M. before the brethren, for he was quite sure the brethren could not have a better Master or a brother who could better than he embody in himself all the requirements of W.M.

The W.M. next proposed "The W.M.'s of the Lodges in the Province." Referring to Bro. Vincent, W.M. of the Abercorn Lodge, he said that that lodge recommended the petition of the brethren who sought for a warrant for the Sub-Urban Lodge. He also included Bro. Charles Veal in the toast.

Bro. Osman Vincent thanked the W.M. in the name of the W.M.'s of the lodges of the province. As regarded himself, he was exceedingly pleased to be W. Master of the lodge which signed the petition which had enabled the Sub-Urban Lodge to meet. He congratulated the lodge on having selected the charming retreat of Stanmore for its meetings. Judging by his own experiences in the Abercorn Lodge, they would meet with every assistance from the worthy host of the Abercorn Arms, and it would be their own fault if they were not comfortable. He was sure they would be comfortable. He was sure of one thing, that on the foundation laid that evening they would raise a superstructure perfect in its parts and honourable to the builder.

Bro. Charles Veal said that as he had gone through all the offices of a lodge he felt he would be able to assist the brethren, and as they had favoured him with their patronage he should be most happy to do everything in his power for them.

The W.M., as the time was pressing and the brethren were desirous to get back to town by the last train, next gave "The Visitors."

Bro. Dr. Carpenter said he had been reminded that time, tide, and trains waited for no man, but he would be guilty of great disrespect if he did not reply to this toast. As he had said in the lodge, he felt a very great deal of pleasure and gratification at the unexpected compliment paid to him by electing him an honorary member. He was afraid that to the lodge the compliment would be an expensive one, (laughter), for he had been so highly satisfied with the reception he had met with that he should exercise his prerogative, and frequently come among them. He was quite sure nevertheless that the brethren would be glad to see him. The brethren of 1196, who joined this lodge, felt that they had joined another 1196, which he thought was established for a little extraordinary Masonry, for an outing in the summer, and for the furtherance of the good of the Craft. As the father and founder of 1196 he could say that its members were good boys, and were not going to desert their mother although they joined the Sub-Urban, but would do their duties to her and in due course he hoped become Masters of the Urban Lodge. The W.M., Bro. Tickle, would of course become P.M., and how many other lodges would he become a P.M. of, if he lived to be as old as he (Dr. Carpenter). Bro. Radford and Hawksley he knew would remain in 1196 and become P.M.'s of that lodge, and they would also go through the chair of the Sub-Urban. He was sure that there was nothing but friendship, brotherly love, and true Masonic feeling between all the brethren of the father lodge and the son lodge, and he hoped in due time to be a grandfather.

Bro. J. L. Mather knew the W.M.'s working very well, and was sure that with his gentlemanly manner, his urbanity, and his knowledge of Masonry, the lodge could not do otherwise than prosper. He (Bro. Mather) had to thank him for many kindnesses and courtesies. He was sure that Bro. Hervey's advice as to the admission of members would be duly regarded.

Bros. Maddifer and Taunton having replied, Bro. Titcomb said as an old inhabitant of the place he thought Stanmore ought to be congratulated on the brethren coming there. He thought also that the brethren ought to be congratulated on choosing such a lovely spot. There were many such spots in the neighbourhood, and they had an historical interest. Not far from the house in which the brethren were assembled was the body of Cassibelaunus, and here Boadicea, Queen of the Iceni, was defeated by Suetonius. A little distance below, Villiers, Duke of Buckingham, held his court: and the monument was at the church that the late Queen Dowager lived and died at Stanmore. They had Harrow close by; Whitchurch with Handel's organ; and St. Alban's at no great distance. The brethren would also get a hearty welcome at the Abercorn Arms.

The W.M. then rose to propose "The Officers," but said there had been so much purple and fine linen that evening that he supposed he was so dazzled and puzzled when the Grand Officers departed that he committed a piece of rudeness by neglecting to respond to the toast of his own health, which was so handsomely and undeservedly given by Bro. Joshua Nunn. He felt it a great compliment to preside as the first W.M. of a lodge of such distinguished Masons. Bro. Holden who occupied the high position of Grand Chaplain of the province, came to his side and said that this had been the pleasantest Masonic evening he had ever spent in his life. Now he thought this was the highest compliment that could be paid by one Mason to another. He appreciated most highly not only the efforts of Bro. Hervey, but of the other brethren, as well as of the Wardens and Deacons, for the edification of the visitors. He always felt it a very great difficulty and hardship to respond to this toast, but he thanked the whole of the brethren who had departed and those who were present for the way they had received it (Hear, hear.) The W.M. then proceeded to propose "The Health of the Officers," to whom he was greatly indebted for their co-operation and assistance in the formation of the lodge. Not the least was he indebted to Bro. Hawksley for the handsome and learned literary production which had been placed before the brethren, in the shape of a bill of fare and list of toasts. He had on two occasions visited the Urban Club, which was held at the Old Jerusalem Gate House, out of which club the Urban Lodge sprang. Bro. Hawksley had likewise had the same privilege and honour, and it was the learned programmes which had been placed before them on those occasions which excited in their breasts that emulation which had resulted in the literary production and the beautiful imitation of old style printing by Bro. Hawksley. When he (the W.M.) saw the proof of the programmes he was as much surprised as the brethren were when they saw them on the table. To Bro. Wall, the Secretary, to Bro. W. Radford, and Bro. Chas. Willett, the excellent Wine Steward, who had contributed so much by his exertions to the enjoyment of the evening, he and all the brethren were much indebted. (Hear, hear.) He thought he would not be doing justice unless he asked the brethren to join him in another toast. They knew how a lodge was indebted to a good stoker. An engine, however well constructed, would be a very poor machine unless it had some person who knew how to apply the coals and keep the steam up. Such a brother, he believed, they had, and should have in their kind-hearted, genial, and worthy host, Bro. Veal, and he thought he should have failed in common justice if he had allowed the brethren to separate without drinking his very good health.

Bro. C. E. Hawksley, S.W., in reply said the officers were much flattered by such a recognition of their services prior to the formation of the lodge. He trusted that at the end of the forthcoming season the brethren would be better able to judge of those services. He was a promoter of the lodge; but although promoters of companies were now looked upon as blacklegs it was different with lodges, and he was glad to see that his efforts in promoting this lodge had been brought to a happy consummation. With reference to the W.M.'s observations as to the programmes, he could not claim credit for these personally, although he took the initiative. He had the support of a very worthy brother connected with the Urban Lodge in the production of the menu, and if he might judge from the compliments he had received on all sides it was an uncommon one, and new to Freemasonry. The printing part he had taken some pains with, as he was desirous that things if possible should not fail on his account, and that this meeting should be brought to a happy issue, and that nothing should be lost sight of.

Bro. Veal was happy the brethren had been so well satisfied: those who were now present and those who had already left had equally expressed their satisfaction, and it had afforded him much pleasure. It was rather a bold undertaking in a little village like Stanmore to provide for a lodge, but he hoped the way in which he had done it would bring the brethren there again; and he should be very happy to receive them.

Bro. Winter, Organist, said that music was a great thing to have in a lodge. They must have order; with order they must have harmony; and if they had music they would have both harmony and order.

The brethren then separated.

The following visitors were present at lodge and banquet:—Bros. C. Stuart Barker, W.M. 1632; J. E. Carpenter, P.M. 1196; W. T. Buck, 1196; E. Barge, P.M. 167; I. H. Webb, S.W. 1607; G. Watts, I.P.M. 194; W. Celladaver, J.W. 504; R. H. Pearson, P.M. 1196; G. Tidcombe, jun., S.W. 1549; John Hervey, G.S.; Frank Green, W.M. 1567; Osman Vincent, W.M. 1549; W. F. Taunton, 1762; Charles Daniel, W.M. 65; T. G. Willett, 902; H. L. Winters, Organist 1549; H. F. Middleton, 1549; Frederick Hunt, 889; H. Sadler, P.M. 147; Chas. Veal, P.M. 1549; W. T. Home, A.G.P. of England; H. Massey, P.M. 619, (Freemason); John L. Mather, P.M. 65; Rev. P.M. Holden, P.G.C. Middlesex.

LODGE OF BENEVOLENCE.

The monthly meeting of the Lodge of Benevolence was held on Wednesday evening, at Freemasons' Hall, Bro. Joshua Nunn, P.G.S.B., Senior Vice-President, presided. Bro. James Brett, P.G.P., Junior Vice-President, occupied the Senior Vice-President's chair, and Bro. Henry Murray, Past District G.M. China, in the chair of Junior Vice-President.

Among the other brethren present were Bros. S. Rawson, P.D.G.M., China; Thomas Fenn, P.G.D.; Joseph Smith, P.G.P.; C. A. Cottebrune, P.G.P.; W. Smith, C.E., P. G. Steward, W. Stephens, C. P. Cobham, J. M. Klenck, C. F. Hogard, H. Bartlett, Charles Atkins, P.M. 27; W. Mann, Capt. J. Wordsworth, A. J. Pritchard, Richard Eve, Alfred Sturgeon, Josh. G. Defriez, Geare Adamson, W. C. Holland, C. J. Reed, W. H. Perryman, Fred J. Blake, Chas. Searell, T. L. Green, Henry Sewell, C. J. Poupard, Wm. Russell, A. M. Cohen, Geo. R. Corner, Geo. Spinks, S. R. Speight, C. G. Dille, Samuel Gumman, H. Bishop, William Sugg, John Hervey, G.S.; H. G. Buss, Assistant G.S.; W. Dodd, C. B. Payne, G.T.; and W. Sadler, P.M. 147.

The brethren first confirmed grants made at the last meeting of the lodge to the amount of £110. They afterwards proceeded with the new cases, of which there were twenty-seven on the list. Four of these were deferred and one was dismissed. The remainder were relieved with £550, which was composed of one grant of £100, (£100); two grants of £50 each, (£100); two of £40 each, (£80); four of £30 each, (£120); one of £20, (£20); three of £15 each, (£45); eight of £10 each, (£80); and one of £5, (£5).

The lodge, which sat three hours and a half, was then closed and adjourned.

PUBLIC AMUSEMENTS.

MADAME WORRELL-DUVAL'S CONCERT.—A fashionable audience assembled at the Horns Assembly Rooms, Kennington, on Thursday week, which was not to be wondered at when the strength of the programme was considered, including as it did such well-known names in the musical world as Bro. Turle, and John Harrison, (as conductors), Miss Matilda Roby, Miss Mary Davies, Madame Osborne Williams, Miss Emma Buer, Mr. Stedman, Mr. Henry Guy, Mr. J. L. Wadmore, Mr. C. F. Tinney. Madame Worrell-Duval received an ovation on each appearance. She first sang a new song entitled "In the Twilight," (composed for and dedicated to her by Mr. Milton Wellings), "O Roberto, che adore," "When the heart is young," and also joined in duet and trio with Mr. Guy and Mr. J. L. Wadmore. The concert was in every respect a great success, which was not a little augmented by the manner in which the Stewards, (Bro. Wm. Worrell and Bro. J. R. Williams) looked after the comfort of the audience.

DRURY LANE.—"England" having proved a monetary failure, as we anticipated, "Amy Robsart" has been substituted.

PRINCESS' THEATRE.—"Jane Shore" will shortly take the place of "Guinea Gold" at this Theatre.

HAYMARKET THEATRE.—"Engaged," the new play by W. S. Gilbert, is pronounced a great success. We shall notice it in full next week.

ADELPHI THEATRE.—After enjoying a long run "After Dark" makes room for "Formosa," in which Miss Leighton will sustain the part of the fair but frail one.

PARK THEATRE.—On Monday, the 15th, Madame St. Claire took her benefit at this Theatre. The piece selected was "Romeo and Juliet," Madame St. Claire playing "Romeo" and Miss Lucan, her daughter, attempted "Juliet." Both ladies made their first appearance in the parts named, the latter her first appearance on any stage. Need we say more? The house was full, and the reception cordial.

EGYPTIAN HALL.—Large audiences continue to fill nightly the small but tastefully decorated Hall in which Messrs. Maskelyne and Cook give their truly wondrous entertainment. The entertainment is divided into two parts, in the first, after two or three ingenious tricks, we are introduced to the marvellous automatons "Psycho" and "Zoe," the former plays whist like an old clubman, and the latter sketches the likenesses of celebrities with a facility and accuracy that would not shame the talented artists of Vanity Fair. The secret by which these automatons are worked has puzzled the longest heads of our day, and in truth we cannot foresee the day when the longest head will not be puzzled, especially by the performance of "Zoe." The second part of the entertainment is devoted to an exposition of spiritualism, so called, and we recommend all, whether spiritualists or not, to see it—for sceptics will be confirmed in their scepticism and believers in the imposture be converted.

MOORE AND BURGESS, ST. JAMES'S HALL.—The nature of this entertainment is almost too well known to need comment, it certainly defies criticism. We can only say that the old attractiveness has not fallen off and that the demand for seats is as great as ever, and further, that the anticipation of the audience is fully realised before the entertainment closes.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

A meeting of the General Committee was held on Thursday at Freemasons' Hall, Bro. Colonel J. Creation, presiding. There were present Bros. H. Browne, W. F. C. Moutrie, Major E. H. Finney, C. G. Rushworth, A. H. Diaper, John Boyd, J. A. Rucker, and R. W. Little, (Sec). The minutes of the various committees were read and confirmed. A petition was received and the candidate placed on the list; the Chairman was authorised and requested to sign cheques. The business was of a purely formal character.

SCHOOLBOY PHILANTHROPY.

In connection with the fund now being raised at the Mansion House, on behalf of the sufferers from the Indian Famine, we have much pleasure in giving publicity to a form of effort which if largely imitated could not but be productive of the most satisfactory result. On Wednesday morning six boys, representing the pupils of Finsbury College, were introduced to the Lord Mayor by the Bro. Dr. McAuslane, as the bearers of a contribution from the College. The following little address was read by Master Hill:—

"Finsbury College, 17th Oct., 1877.

"To the Right Honourable Lord Mayor.

"My Lord,—May it please your lordship, we, the pupils of Finsbury College, having had our attention drawn to the disastrous famine now raging in India, are desirous of adding our small contributions to the sums which have been and are being placed in your lordship's hands, for the relief of the suffering arising therefrom.

"An appeal to the College has yielded a sum of £13 1s. 6d., which amount we respectfully desire that your lordship will be pleased to receive and to add to the General Fund now raised for that purpose.

"We have the honour to be your lordship's obedient servant,"

"T. HILL, W. BELLAMY, Secretaries of the College."

His lordship was evidently much struck by the juvenile deputation, and replied as follows—"I have received many deputations, but I have never received one more interesting than this. This act of yours is an evidence of the moral training you receive under Dr. Cave. I am very pleased to see you, and heartily thank you on behalf of your suffering fellow creatures in India." The Lord Mayor very heartily shook hands with the boys as they left. If every middle class school throughout the country would follow the example, a large sum would doubtless be raised, and, better still, a spirit of active benevolence on behalf of suffering would be developed at an age of all others the most susceptible.

LAMPLOUGH'S PYRETIC SALINE.

HAVE IT IN YOUR HOUSES; it gives instant relief in Headaches, Sea or Bilious Sickness, and quickly cures the worst form of Eruptive or Skin Complaints. The various diseases arising from Constipation, the Liver, or Blood Impurities, Inoculation, the results of breathing air infected with FEVERS, MEASLES, or SMALL-POX, are frequently prevented and certainly cured by its use.

Sold by all Chemists, and the Maker, in patent glass-stoppered bottles, at 2s. 6d., 4s. 6d., 11s., and 21s. each.

The great reputation of this remedy having called forth spurious imitations, whose only merit is a transposition of the words of my label and wrappers, without any of the health restoring properties, it is needful to observe my name and trade-mark as above, on a BUFF-COLOURED WRAPPER, without which the Saline cannot be genuine.—113, HOLBORN HILL, LONDON, E.C.

TO WORSHIPFUL MASTERS.

The attention of Worshipful Masters is specially directed to the following advertisement, with a suggestion from the Publisher that they should cause a proposition to be made that their Lodges should become subscribers to

THE FOUR MASONIC PUBLICATIONS.

It is doubtless desirable that every Mason should have a knowledge of the proceedings at the Quarterly Communications of Grand Lodge, and it is especially the duty of the Worshipful Master to be well posted up in such matters, and as there is no better means of obtaining such information than the columns of the Freemason, which gives verbatim reports of the Grand Lodge proceedings, and a full account of all the meetings of the Board of Benevolence, and the various Committees of our Great Masonic Charities, the Publisher feels justified in making this recommendation, with the full assurance that such an investment of a small portion of the lodge funds will be productive of beneficial results.

Craft Masonry.

PHOENIX LODGE (No. 173).—The Phoenix Lodge held its first meeting for the season at Freemasons' Hall, on Saturday last, Bro. S. S. Phillips, W.M., presiding. Present: Bros. Finch, S.W.; Allen, J.W.; Blythe, S.D.; Andrews, J.D.; and Melton, I.G.; in their respective places, besides Bros. Burford, T. Mathews, Treas. and Sec.; and Bro. Colvill, W.S. At the opening of the lodge the W.M., who with his officers appeared with their Masonic emblems in mourning, rose and said, "It is with feelings of deep emotion and fraternal regret that I rise to announce to the brethren the great loss they and I have sustained in the deaths, first of our much-respected and regretted I.P.M., Bro. Massey; and also of our Bro. Waterman. Bro. Massey's death has proved indeed a great and sad blow to myself, when I consider the great experience, the good judgment, and brotherly kindness, the universal attention that was exhibited by Bro. Massey in the chair of this lodge as W.M. last year, and I take the opportunity of expressing to the lodge, how much I personally shall lose in the support, assistance, and brotherly kindness, and experience which our late Bro. Massey would have shown in his advising and helping me to attempt to worthily occupy the chair. I leave it to my brother officers and brethren to express the feelings of the lodge upon this subject, as I have no doubt they will in a resolution conveying the sympathy and condolence of the lodge to the widows of our deceased brethren. Bro. Finch, S.W., then proposed in most feeling and suitable terms a resolution of sympathy and condolence to be furnished to the widows of three brethren, and Bro. Allen in terms equally appropriate seconded the same. Past Master Vine was then invested with the I.P.M. collar, and in returning thanks spoke most feelingly upon the sad losses the lodge had sustained. The lodge was then opened in the Second Degree, and Bros. F. C. Kearling, Fall, and Bennett, were questioned before raising and having acquitted themselves with satisfaction of the brethren retired. The lodge was then opened in the Third Degree, and Bros. Kearling, Fall, and Bennett, were raised the W.M. giving the charges, exhortation and traditional history with much emphasis and feeling. The lodge was then resumed to the First Degree, and Bros. Hutton, New, and Hill, balloted for, elected, and initiated. After some formal business, lodge was closed in due form, and W.M., officers, and brethren adjourned to banquet. After the preliminary toasts had been proposed and honoured, Bro. Vine, P.M., proposed "The Health of the W.M." He said it was peculiarly pleasing for him to do so, because the W.M. being so well up in his duties, the office of I.P.M. had been a complete sinecure. The W.M. required no coaching, and when he performed the ceremonies the brethren derived great benefit from him. He had been correct and perfect, and the brethren were all proud of him. The W.M. in acknowledging the toast said he now came to a more difficult portion of his duties. As regarded his efforts to give the brethren satisfaction and put the lodge in a proper light with respect to the duties of Master he would admit as a fact that he had done his level best. As regarded the result, he must leave that to the brethren's kindly consideration, and that, as a brother just reminded him, was on the square. In returning thanks, he would ask the brethren, that as they had hitherto done so they would in future do—meet him and work week by week together. Perseverance was the genuine article, and would make stability in Masonry. He was glad to follow the example of his P.M., and he hoped the other brethren would do the same and toil away till they got round the table and to the top. If he quitted office to the satisfaction of the brethren he should not mind. If he was not conceited he was considerably proud. One other favour he would ask of the brethren—to unite, to have no jealousy, but as much emulation as possible; without jealousy to work with one another, and for one another; for the good of the Phoenix Lodge; and in such an effort he could promise them they should not find him wanting. The W.M. then proposed "The Health of the P.M.'s," and said he was proud of those who had gone before him. Masonry exhibited itself in many forms; it exhibited itself in the future, which was represented by the initiates, and by what he had seen of those brethren he should say the future was a promising one; the present was represented in himself, and the members of the lodge; and the past was represented by the P.M.'s, who had borne the heat and burden of the day, the hard work of the lodge, and had arrived at an hereditary state of things, which was proverbial, — the otium cum dignitate — dined, thought, looked, criticised, and observed; and in their sublime wisdom, had sufficient forbearance to help the young ones who were coming along. He often thought the P.M. represented the largest of hens, because he was the proudest when covering the largest brood. The P.M. assisted the Master, and the brethren, and the credit and honour of the Master's chair was largely in the hands of the P.M. The P.M. assumed dignity, that dignity which he was told the House of Lords represented, inasmuch as it not only did nothing, but did it well. The P.M.'s of the Phoenix Lodge were called upon to do very little, and there was very good reason why they should be called upon to do very little. (Laughter.) The brethren laughed, but he did not. The reason the P.M.'s were called upon to do very little was that they had set the brethren so glorious an example. The brethren were proud to follow it. They would now see on which side the laughter was. Freemasonry exhibited a history. There would be no history without the P.M.'s, but as Bro. Wilson had suggested to him that the should say no more, he would simply propose "The Health of the Past Masters." Bro. Vine, in reply, said he had, in his position as a P.M., endeavoured to carry out all the duties that fell to his share to fulfil, and he should always endeavour to do so. Bros. Salmon, Wilson, and Griffiths also replied. The W.M., in proposing "The Visitors," said he hoped that those brethren who had honoured the lodge that evening would be able to pass a favourable judgment upon it. Masonry was greatly increasing just now, lodges were growing numerous, and working was becoming good; but he hoped that the Phoenix Lodge would bear a fair comparison with any of them. He also referred to the banqueting arrangements which were now so excellent at Freemasons' Tavern, and said he was happy to find Bro. Best, the proprietor, was among the visitors that evening. Bro. Best and several other brethren replied. The W.M. next proposed "The Masonic Institutions." Bro. James Terry, in reply, said it was a great pleasure to himself to find that the subject of the Masonic Institutions had been so kindly brought before the notice of the brethren by the W.M., who had said that the Institutions were all carefully and well worked and conscientiously overlooked by the executive officers. He was happy to state that that was really the case, and it was very gratifying to hear that said. If they had not been so well looked after, he was certain that the support the Institutions had had during the last five or six years never would have been accorded them. They had only to look back to a period of eight, nine, or ten years to find a great contrast in the support given to the Institutions. Ten years since there were but 110 girls in the Girls' School, whereas now they had 180; ten years ago the Boys' School had eighty-five or eighty-six boys in it, now there were 182; ten years ago the Benevolent Institution had 120 old men and women on the funds, the men receiving £26 a year, and the widows £25. There were now 285 annuitants on the Institution, the men receiving £40 a year, and the widows £32. It was therefore clear that the Institution was now distributing more than double the amount of money it gave away ten years ago. They had to thank the Craft very much for what it had done, and he personally had to thank the Masters of lodges for the time being for their great kindness in accepting the office of Stewards of his own and other Institutions, and voting a portion of their funds away for the benefit of the Institutions. To the W.M.'s of lodges they were particularly indebted, because it was through their kindness the announcement of the festivals was made in open lodge, and the services of the Stewards were secured. The Phoenix Lodge would be represented on the 13th February by Bro. Vine, whose wish it was to take the office of Steward, rendered vacant by the lamented death of the late W.M., Bro. J. D. Massey, whose past energy was so well-known to all the brethren. The legacy which he bequeathed was one which might well be taken up by the members of this lodge, and he (Bro. Terry) was thankful to Bro. Vine for having consented to take the position of the late W.M. Though unaware of what the finances of the lodge were, he was nevertheless informed that they were in a prosperous state, and any balance they might have to spare might be profitably placed in Bro. Vine's list. There was a P.M. of this lodge at present a recipient of an annuity from the Benevolent Institution, and the children of another of the P.M.'s were in the schools. He did not expect that the Institutions would be so successful this next year as they had been during the past, because such enormous sums of money had been contributed to other charities. The Masonic Institutions last year totalled over £39,000, and this year it would be something like £42,000, but he would beg all of the brethren to give what they could, and he did not doubt that a very excellent figure would be the result. The other toasts were then given, and the brethren separated.

BELGRAVE LODGE (No. 749).—On Wednesday evening, the installation meeting of this lodge was held at Anderton's Hotel. The lodge was opened by Bro. Hobbs, W.M., who, in presence of a very full lodge, initiated Mr. William Jones, and passed Bros. Hilliar and Godecke. When these ceremonies were concluded, Bro. J. Hester, P.M., installed Bro. Henry William Greenwood, S.W., and W.M. elect, as W.M. of the lodge for the ensuing year. The brethren appointed to office were Bros. Booker, S.W.; Gardner, J.W.; Runtig, P.M., Treas.; H. Garrod, P.M., Sec.; Coulthard, S.D.; Groves, J.D.; Hall, I.G.; P. Parsons, P.M., Steward; Leach, Asst. Steward; Norton, Org.; and Gilchrist, Treas. Bro. Hobbs announced that he was going to represent the lodge as its Steward at the next festival of the Benevolent Institution, and he solicited the brethren to support him by giving as much as they could afford. The lodge was thereafter closed, and the brethren adjourned to banquet. At the termination of the repast the toasts were duly proposed and drunk. "The Queen and Craft," "The M.W.G.M.," "The Pro G.M., the Dep. G.M., and the rest of the Grand Officers," having been honoured, and accompanied by the singing of the National Anthem, and "God bless the Prince of Wales," the W.M. proposed "The Initiates," and in so doing said a brother had been initiated that evening, whom he thought they would all be proud of at some time. It was highly important that Freemasonry should continually have new blood brought into the ranks; otherwise Freemasonry would very soon become extinct; the brother who had been initiated had been highly recommended, and would no doubt follow the precepts of Freemasonry, brotherly love, relief and truth, and become an ornament to the lodge, and a model for the Craft to imitate. Bro. Jones, in replying, thanked the Master, Wardens, and brethren, for allowing him to become a member of Freemasonry, which appeared to him to be a great Institution. He hoped at some future time to prove to the brethren that he was a good Mason, and he trusted that some day he might occupy the noble position of W.M. The W.M. next proposed "The Visitors," of whom there were 31 present. With such a numerous array of talent he was quite sure the brethren would take it for granted that it would be impossible to speak of the merits of each visitor. Although several brethren would like to respond, with so many being present it would be impossible, but he would call upon Alderman Randall, of Oxford, to reply. Bro. Randall, Prov. G. Treasurer Oxford, said that as an old man from the country, he was extremely surprised that he had been selected to speak to the toast. He took it as a compliment, and he congratulated the lodge on the feeling thus displayed. It had been said there were brethren of considerable eminence present. He must not take a share in that compliment, for there were brethren present more worthy than he to receive such an honour. He had but shown his inclination to obey the impulses of his own life and to carry out thoroughly those principles which he drew in with the light when he was first admitted into Freemasonry, when he attended this lodge for the purpose of supporting a case which had been brought before the lodge that evening. He hoped that they might be successful with that petition, and from the manner in which it had been received he could not doubt that it would be. The W.M. proposed "The Masonic Charities." He did not know that any toast could be more apropos to Freemasonry than that of the charities. Charity was the distinguishing characteristic of a Freemason's heart, and he believed all the brethren would agree with him that the whole system of the Craft was mixed up with objects of charity. He would call upon Bro. Terry to respond, and had no doubt that that brother would give the brethren a valuable digest of the charities, especially the particular one with which he was more immediately connected, the Benevolent Institution, for the next festival of which the I.P.M. was about to be the Steward. He trusted that all the brethren would subscribe something towards so good an object as that of the relief of the aged Freemasons and the widows of Freemasons. Bro. Terry thanked the W.M. for proposing the toast so early in the evening, thinking it a very good plan to propose it at a period of the evening when the whole of the brethren were present. During the past year it could not be said that the Craft had been unmindful of the charities, as £42,000 would be found to have been received on their behalf. That was a very noble and grand sum for such a limited constituency to raise. But they were looking forward now to the future, and he might mention that at the meeting of the committee of his Institution that afternoon, twenty petitions were presented and accepted for the election of as many candidates at the next election in May. This alone would convince the brethren that there was an enormous amount of distress day by day coming before the Craft, and if the Order increased as it had been increasing during the last four or five years, they would have more and more cases before them. The difficulty was how were they to deal with these cases, and he thought it was only by the excellent plan that the P.M. of this lodge had adopted of accepting the office of Steward that the committee would be enabled to carry out their work. For many years past the Benevolent Institution had had Stewards from the Belgrave Lodge, each trying to do his best, and he was certain of this, that the brother who had now accepted the office of Steward was not less mindful of his duty than those who had gone before him. He was also quite certain that the brother would if he could carry up as large an amount as the brethren who had represented the lodge before. He ventured to think that all the brethren would give him their support, and if possible give him a larger list. The brethren should remember it would not be a large sum that was asked of each of them. Five shillings from a member conferred the right of a vote, and no brother who wished to be considered a good and true Mason would refrain from giving that sum. It was not the pounds that helped the Institution, it was the many subscribers. He remembered an observation made by the Marquis of Ripon on one occasion in Grand Lodge, that when he looked through the list of subscribers to the Institution he saw, much to his regret, but yet to his pleasure, that the names of the subscribers were repeated in each of the lists. What he desired to see, and what each desired to see was, that all members of the Craft should enrol themselves as supporters of Masonic Institutions. If they could but enlist the sympathy of every brother in the support of the Institution, and induce him to believe that the Institution depended on his exertions, they would never require to have a festival, or an appeal like that he (Bro. Terry) was then making. The Institution would be able to take in every case of distress when it came before them. If every member would give his 5s., and every lodge its £1. or guinea, no appeal would have to be made. Instead of £42,000 they would raise £50,000 or £60,000. Many members who only attended their lodges did not think it worth their while to support the Institutions. He was sure Bro. Hobbs would enlist the support of the brethren of this lodge. The practical work of Masonry was putting the hand in the pocket, and if the brethren only supported Bro. Hobbs, they would be presenting him with a testimonial of more value than the one he had that evening. By subscribing to his list they would be paying a double compliment, one part to Bro. Hobbs, the I.P.M., and the other to the Institution he represented as Steward. He suggested to the brethren that they should remember the peculiar moment they were received into Freemasonry, and take the opportunity of carrying out the principles they then professed. Now was their chance. Let them give as they would wish others to give to them. A large amount has been subscribed to the Indian Famine Fund, and there was distress in England which would require help. He asked only for 5s., but he hoped the brethren would say the modesty of the Secretary was great; take 10s. On the 13th February, 1878, he hoped it would be his good fortune to announce the highest list yet brought in by the Belgrave Lodge. Remember the lines, "Cast thy bread upon the waters, and you shall find it after many days." They should also remember that "God loveth a cheerful giver." (Cheers.) Bro. Hobbs, I.P.M., proposed "The Health of the W.M." Bro. Greenwood had been installed in a position which he hoped every brother of the lodge would endeavour to reach. It was the summit of every Mason's ambition to be the Master of his mother lodge. Bro. Greenwood was initiated in the lodge, and with the exception of one office had served well and truly every office in the lodge. He had served with ability and zeal, and now that he had arrived at the chair, he would perform the duties of it with the same ability and zeal, and proficiency which had distinguished him in the other offices. Bro. Greenwood was actuated by the true principles of Freemasonry, and had never been applied to to support the charities without complying with the request. This showed the man, and the choice the brethren had made in electing him as their Master, was worthy of the high position of the lodge. (Applause.) The W.M. replied, and said it was true he had performed the duties of the various minor offices in the lodge from that of J.D. He hoped that with the sympathy of the brethren and the help of the P.M., he should be able to perform the duties of Master properly. He did not expect to shine like the great luminaries that had gone before him, but he hoped to receive some of the warmth and lustre which was inherent in them. He also hoped that when he asked the brethren to subscribe to his list as Bro. Hobbs had asked them to subscribe to his list they would come forward and support him. With respect to the ceremonies he hoped to perform them to the brethren's satisfaction. He felt the most enthusiastic gratitude towards Past Master Hester, for the admirable way in which he had performed the installation ceremony, and all the brethren owed Bro. Hester a debt of gratitude. The W.M. proposed "The P.M.'s," and presented Bro. Hobbs with a handsome P.M.'s jewel, a P.M.'s collar, and silver jewel with an inscription. Without wishing to be egotistical, he could say that his mother lodge would stand out well among the other lodges. From its commencement to the present day its affairs had been conducted with ability, zeal, and honesty of purpose by the P.M.'s. The I.P.M. had had a very successful year of office, and he hoped that he (the W.M.) would have a similar one. Bro. Hobbs replied. He had endeavoured as far as his ability went to perform his duties properly, and to uphold the dignity and position of the Belgrave Lodge. In addition to thanking the brethren for those substantial marks of their recognition of his services, the P.M. jewel, and the collar and jewel, he begged to thank the brethren for the kindness and courtesy they had evinced towards him during his year of office. The toast of "The Officers" was then given, to which the S.W. replied, and the Tyler's toast concluded the proceedings. Ninety-two brethren sat down to banquet, and among them were thirty-one visitors. Alderman Randall, Grand Treasurer of Oxford; Bros. Casworth, W.M. 3; E. J. Hart, W.M. 1201; Louis Beck, W.M. 1637; E. Coste, P.G.D. Kent; and H. Massey, (Freemason), were of the number. A beautiful selection of glees and songs were sung by the British Vocal Quartet, Bros. Collins, Upston, Kift, and Tremere.

COSMOPOLITAN LODGE (No. 917).—The brethren of this lodge assembled on Tuesday evening at the Cannon-street Hotel for the installation of the Worshipful Master for the ensuing year. Bro. A. F. Rowley, W.M., presided, and after the opening business of the lodge had been performed, initiated Messrs. James Warner and Herman Van Raalte into the Order, and passed Bros. Gerard Toff and George Kearsey to the Second Degree. The W.M. then installed Bro. Geo. M. Taylor, S.W. and W.M. elect, as Master of the lodge for the year, in the presence of a large Board of Installed Masters. The officers appointed and invested were Bros. La Marque, S.W.; Abbott, J.W.; Jones, P.M.; Treasurer, L. E. Stean; P.M., Secretary, Harris, S.D.; Van Raalte, J.D.; Samuel Corke, I.G.; E. Pitt, D.C.; Corke, P.M., W.S.; and Gallock, Tyler. A motion of Bro. Corke, P.M., was postponed, the lodge having been at work for nearly four hours. Among the visitors present were Bros. E. Somers, W.M. 1643; J. B. Shackleton, W.M. 1524; David Davis, W.M. 141; L. E. Stean, 212; W. H. Lee, W.M. 975; J. Tinsley, 548; J. B. Humphrey, 1509; H. Massey, P.M.

619 (Freemason); and W. F. Poulton, W.M. 1602. After the banquet the toasts were proposed and honoured, but all the speeches were exceedingly short, the hour having become very late. The W.M. in proposing "The I.P.M.," presented a very handsome P.M. jewel to Bro. Rowley, I.P.M., and congratulated the lodge on having had during last year a W.M. whose abilities as a worker could not be excelled, and who having performed all the ceremonies while he was Master, fitly concluded a pre-eminently successful career by installing his successor in the chair. A brother having conducted himself with great ability was hailed by the lodge with the greatest enthusiasm, and Bro. Rowley's year would long be remembered by the brethren of the Cosmopolitan Lodge. Bro. E. Somers, replying for the visitors, said he had experienced much pleasure at this visit to the lodge, and he had witnessed with peculiar feelings of satisfaction the working of the I.P.M. Bro. Corke, P.M., announced that the charity box had produced £5 15s., which would be sent to the brother whose petition to the Lodge of Benevolence had been signed and recommended in open lodge that evening. Bro. L. Stean, replying for the P.M.'s, said that the duty of performing the installation ceremony having been entrusted to his hands solely for many years, he felt very proud at finding that another brother had been found capable of taking his place when he should be called away from this earthly scene. He had been 40 years a Mason, and he had devoted himself to teaching the ceremonies, lectures, and sections in lodges of instruction. It was always a pleasure to do so, and it was gratifying to him to find that the fruits of that work were now being reaped. The toast of "The Officers" having been proposed, all those brethren responded, and the S.D. stated that the present proud position of the Cosmopolitan Lodge was universally acknowledged by the brethren to be due to Past Master Stean. The brethren shortly afterwards retired.

KENNINGTON LODGE (No. 1381).—This lodge held the second meeting of its season at the Surrey Club House, Kennington Oval, on the 6th inst. The officers present were Bros. Higgins, W.M.; Reeves, S.W.; Walls, P.G.O. Midx. J. W.; Page, P.G.S., P.M. Treasurer, Stuart, P.M. 141, Secretary; Kohler, S.D.; Speedy, J.D.; Webb, I.G.; Honeywell, P.M. Dobie, Assis. Organist; Robinson, D.C.; Marsden, W.S.; Stokes, A.W.S.; Drysdale, acting I.P.M.; and Past Masters, Mann Koch, Gardner, and Pope. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, the Secretary reported that he had received communications from the Strong Man and Mount Edgecumbe Lodges to the effect that two members of the Kennington Lodge had been respectively raised and passed in those lodges, namely Bros. Higgins, jun., and Pomeroy. The W.M. with the assistance of his officers then raised the last-named to the degree of a M.M., and initiated Messrs. Pym, Stevenson, and Barry, both ceremonies being carefully performed. Upon the motion of Bro. Mann, and which was seconded by Bro. Page, in the absence of Bro. Everett, it was unanimously resolved that a Royal Arch Chapter should be attached to No. 1381, subject to the approval of Grand Chapter. There being no other business before the lodge it was closed, and the members and visitors adjourned to the banquet. Amongst the latter were Bros. Murch, Egyptian Lodge; Hatton, Robert Burns Lodge; Constantines, 1009; Barsdorf, 1329; Urnster, St. Johannis Lodge. The customary toasts having been duly honoured, Bro. W. Mann proposed "The Health of the W.M." In the course of his speech he stated that Bro. Higgins had been present at every meeting; that his Masonic capabilities had been fully tested during his occupancy of the chair, and he (the speaker) hoped that there would be a continuance of the prosperity that had hitherto characterised the W.M.'s term of office. This toast having been warmly received, the W.M. in response said that in consequence of his physical incapacity to speak loudly, he hoped that the brethren would excuse his making a long speech. He however, wished to say that if he had done his work to their satisfaction he was very pleased, and in future years he should look back to his Mastership of the Kennington Lodge as a very gratifying episode of his Masonic career. "The Initiates" followed, and was responded to by Bros. Stevenson, Pym, and Barry, the former brother's reply being especially apropos and good. In introducing the toast of "The Visitors" the W.M. stated that he was glad to see them there that evening. He believed that visiting other lodges was very necessary, because it not only engendered kindly feelings amongst the brethren, but it gave them an opportunity of improving and perfecting their Masonic knowledge by studying the various "workings." This toast was acknowledged at length by the five visiting brethren. The next toast was "The Past Masters," and gave Bro. Mann an opportunity of indulging in some very wholesome advice to the brethren upon the harm often inflicted upon lodges, and consequently in the end detrimental to the Craft at large, by the indiscriminate initiation of members. Freemasonry was making great progress, and it was very gratifying to mark the numbers that daily flocked to the Masonic standard, but he wished his hearers to understand that the payment of high fees and subscriptions should not constitute the sole qualification for admission; the social and moral status of the candidates should be thoroughly investigated by the members recommending them. He concluded by thanking the brethren upon behalf of his colleagues and himself for the warm manner in which their healths were always proposed and received. "The Treasurer and Secretary," followed. Bro. Page, the father of the lodge, and who occupies the first-named position, having duly acknowledged the compliment paid him, begged to be permitted to say a few words with respect to "The Masonic Charities." He told them that although those valuable institutions were in a flourishing condition, yet in consequence of the great growth of the Craft the applications for the benefits of the charities far exceeded the accommodation and means at the disposal of the governors. The "Kennington" since its foundation had not forgotten the claims of Masonic charity, but he hoped that they would in future strive to do a great deal more; especially as their funds were in a flourishing condition. Bro. Stuart, Secretary, having also replied, the toast of "The Officers" followed, and was acknowledged by Bros. Reeves, Walls, Webb, and Robinson. During the proceedings Bros. Honeywell, Reeves, Barry, and others, instrumentally and otherwise entertained the brethren.

EARL OF CARNARVON LODGE (No. 1642).—This lodge, which was consecrated twelve months ago, held its installation meeting on Thursday week, at the Ladbroke Hall Notting Hill, Bro. William Joseph Murlis, W.M., presiding. The work of the lodge during its year of existence has been very great, many brethren having been introduced into the Order through its instrumentality, and the charities of the Order having benefitted considerably by its establishment. Its prosperity still appears to be on the increase, and its usefulness in a fair way of being maintained. Like many other lodges now working it has no work but the installation on installation day, and also like other successful lodges it had a large number of visitors to witness the ceremony. Among these were Bros. J. Grunbaum, P.M. 1017; E. P. Albert, P.G.P., P.M. 188; C. S. Mallette, 655; J. E. Carpenter, P.M. 284; J. S. Adkins, 733; H. Stuart, 780; F. Pendered, P.M. 33; J. Robbins, D.D., W.M. 1635; E. K. Kendall, 1635; E. Barge, P.M. 167; L. Bryett, P.M. 209; W. Handora, P.M.; E. C. Woodward, W.M. 1637; I. Dosell, P.P.G.D. Surrey; T. B. Linscott, 55; T. Fenn, P.G.D.; E. J. Cave, A. Hendrik, J. Empson, T. D. Spurgin, 1365; J. C. Hambledon, 1319; John Boyd, P.G.P., P.G.S.; J. H. Pearson, Elliot, 1567; J. H. Webb, 834; F. A. Philbrick, P.G.D.; J. Terry, Sec. R.M.B.I.; M. Spiegel, 188; A. McMillan, 1365; John High, 1365; W. F. Savage, P.M. 1425; J. E. Walford, 1489; T. Cubitt, P.G.P.; J. S. Badkin, W.M. 1365; H. Massey, P.M. 619 (Freemason). The musical brethren were Bros. George Musgrave, Arthur Thomas, Edwin Moss, and Burgess Perry, the Masonic quartet. Bro. George Penn, S.W., and W.M. elect, was installed as Master of the lodge. The ceremony of consecration was ably performed by Bro. William Stephens, P.M., Clapton and Marquess of Ripon Lodges, and after the installation the W.M. appointed as his officers Bros. W. J. Murlis, I.P.M. and Sec.; S. H. Parkhouse, S.W.; W. Gordon, M.P., J. W. W. Stephen, Treasurer, F. Clench, S.D.; E. M. Lander, J.D.; S. Smout, I.G.; P. F. Delevanti, Organist; R. Schofield, Tyler; S. Smout, and T. C. Swift, Stewards. Letters of apology for inability to attend were received from Lord Carnarvon, Dr. Erasmus Wilson, Sir Albert Woods, Hyde Pullen, Colonel Radcliffe, John D. Alcroft, Bros. Buss, Rev. —Robinson, Dr. Ray, Bro. Wilmot, Grabham, Dr. Jabez Hogg, the Hon. E. Cuizon, A. E. J. McIntyre, G.C.; and the Rev. —Reade. Lodge was then closed, and the brethren adjourned to banquet. When the toasts were proposed, Bro. Hervey, in replying for "The Deputy Grand Master and Grand Officers," said he was much surprised at what the lodge had done in a short twelvemonth, and one of the proofs of the great success of the lodge was the large number of members and visitors who were round the hospitable board that evening, among whom were many members of the liberal professions, who were well known in the particular localities in which they resided, and to whom Masons might look up, as an example of what Masons must and ought to be. He congratulated the lodge on what it had achieved. That it would be exceeded in the coming year was not to be expected; but reliance might be placed on the position of the lodge being maintained, and he felt much pride in being associated with the lodge as one of its members. Bro. F. A. Philbrick, Q.C., P.G.D., also expressed his delight at seeing the lodge so prosperous, and he earnestly hoped that that prosperity would continue. The career of the lodge had been marked by the practice of true Masonic principles; by its firmness and unity, its thorough bond of brotherhood. In Masonry, as in all other human organisations, great though they might be, and eternal as were the principles on which it was founded, prosperity had its dangers as well as adversity. In adversity we were drawn together; had to fight the fight together; put our shoulders to the wheel; to sink our minor differences. In adversity, therefore, the bond became stronger. In prosperity the sun smiled about us; the bond got a little weaker, and there did not seem the same necessity for effort. Now the Earl of Carnarvon Lodge had no past to live upon. But it had success and youth on its side, and youth bespoke energy, and he was sure it would bespeak thoroughly good working, and a thorough maintenance of the true Masonic principles which made any lodge, young or old, ancient or modern, a true exponent of the principles of the Craft. He was glad to see coming on to office brethren of position, among them being Bro. Gordon, M.P., the J.W. With such prospects from their short past, and with such an augury of the lodge's future, the lodge must "go on prospering and to prosper." Bro. W. J. Murlis, I.P.M., proposed "The Health of the W.M.," to which Bro. Penn replied, and said he felt very deeply the honour the brethren had done him in placing him in the chair. Bro. Fenn, P.G.D., responded for "The Visitors." The W.M., in proposing "The Health of the I.P.M.," said that the brethren desired to express their appreciation of the energy he had used on behalf of the lodge during his very heavy year of office. They felt deeply indebted to him, and they therefore presented him with a Past Master's jewel and a testimonial. Bro. W. Stephens then handed to Bro. Murlis a testimonial in illuminated writing, on vellum, framed and glazed, in the following terms:—"Earl of Carnarvon Lodge, No. 1642. Presented, together with a Past Master's jewel, to Bro. W. J. Murlis, by the brethren of the above lodge, as a mark of the high esteem in which he is held by them, and in recognition of the valuable services he has rendered to the lodge; also in acknowledgment of the courtesy evinced at all times, especially during the year in which he presided as Worshipful Master. (Signed) George Penn, W.M.; Samuel Parkhouse, S.W.; W. Gordon, J.W.; W. Stephens, Treas.; J. Pushman, Hon. Sec." In acknowledging the compliment Bro. Murlis said he had endeavoured to make every one comfortable; he had gone on in a straight path trying to do all he could for Freemasonry. He had striven to make friends and steer clear of enemies. Bros. Stephens and Murlis responded to "The Treasurer and Secretary;" Bros. Parkhouse and Gordon to that of "The Officers;" Bro. Stephens for "The Girls' School;" and Bro. James Terry for "The Benevolent Institution, and the Boys' School." The brethren shortly afterwards separated. The musical quartett before named sang some choice pieces of music between the toasts.

ALDERSGATE LODGE (No. 1657).—On Monday evening, Nov. 12th, the members of this lodge met for labour and refreshment at the Castle and Falcon, Aldersgate-street. The following brethren attended: Bros. John Derby Allcroft, W.M.; Rev. Dr. Ernest Brette, S.W.; Dr. Charles Hogg, J.W.; P. Saillard, S.D.; George Kenning, Treas.; Thomas Benskin, Dir. of Cer.; A. J. Altman, I.G.; Thomas Jones, Hon. Sec.; Rev R. Lee, Head Master of Christ's Hospital; Dr. Alder Smith, Samuel White, E. J. Jolliffe, Alfred Brookman, W. W. Landels, Hyde Pullen, Samuel Benton, W. S. Chapman and the following visitors: Bros. E. F. Storr, W.M. of the Neptune Lodge; and Edward J. Altman, Temple Lodge. Some good work was carried out during lodge, as Bro. Dr. Samuel Pentin was raised, and the lodge received instruction on the Second Tracing Board from that oracle of Masonry, Bro. Hyde Pullen, P.G.S.B. The Worshipful Master for the ensuing year was elected by ballot, when it was found that the Rev. Dr. Ernest Brette, of Christ's Hospital, was unanimously chosen to succeed Bro. John Derby Allcroft; Bro. George Kenning, was unanimously re-elected Treasurer; and W. Steadman, P.M., Tyler. The invitation of Grand Lodge to send a Steward to represent the lodge at the Annual Festival of Aged Freemasons and Widows of Freemasons, was accepted by the W.M., Bro. J. D. Allcroft. During refreshments the usual Masonic and loyal toasts were given and heartily responded to. The burden of the speeches was attachment to the Craft, affection for the Worshipful Master, and a grateful appreciation of his munificence to the lodge. A cordial welcome was given to the W.M. elect and the visitors, with due acknowledgements from Bros. Brette, Storr and Altman. The W.M. expressed his wish that the brethren should meet frequently, once a week, for instruction, and desired the Secretary to confer with him on the subject. There is evidently a determination in "The Aldersgate Lodge," to excel.

BATH.—Royal Cumberland Lodge (No. 41).—The second regular meeting of the season was held at the Masonic Hall, on Thursday, Nov. 1st, presided over by Bro. F. Wilkinson, W.M., assisted by Bros. Brown, I.P.M.; Falkner, S.W.; C. Wilkinson, J.W.; Ashley, P.M. and Treas.; Wilton, P.M. and Dir. of Cer.; Braham, Sec.; Gummer, S.D.; Holmes, as J.D.; Radway, I.G.; Robinson and J. Smith, Stewards; Moutrie, P.M.; Rubie, P.M.; Major Preston, P.M.; Dr. Hopkins, P.M. and P.P.G.S.W. for Warwickshire; as visitors, Bros. Dr. Tunstall, P.M. 53; Reeves, P.M. 906; Gen. Doherty, P.M. 906; Bush, P.M. 1363; and many members. At 7.40 the lodge was opened and the minutes were read and confirmed. A ballot was taken for Mr. E. Wilton, son of the respected D.C., and he was duly initiated by the W.M., the charge being given by Bro. Moutrie. Bros. Cartmell and Gregory were examined, entrusted, and dismissed for preparation, after which the lodge was opened in the Second Degree. On their return they were passed to the rank of F.C. by the W.M., and retired. Bro. R. Mann was examined and entrusted. The lodge was opened in the Third Degree, the candidate was re-admitted, and the W.M. again officiated in raising him as a M.M.; and in all the three degrees the S.W. explained the symbolism of the working tools. Though the ceremonies had occupied the brethren till half-past ten, there was yet another matter which engaged their attention for half an hour longer, namely the death of a highly-respected brother at the advanced age of 80, who had been a member of the Craft about half a century. Bro. Wilton ably and feelingly reminded the brethren of Bro. Cooper's long and efficient services, of the impressiveness of his tones in the delivery of the prayers and charges, to which his efforts had of late years been confined, of his readiness to unite in any good and charitable work, of the consistency he had ever evinced in his endeavours to carry out, in the regulation of his life, the genuine tenets of Freemasonry, of the void that must be felt at seeing his wonted place on the dais empty, which he had punctually occupied to the very last, and from which he had actively co-operated in the labours of the lodge. Bro. Wilton concluded by reading an excellent letter from one of his daughters, soliciting aid with a view to procuring admission into the Masonic School for her youngest brother. A long discussion ensued, in which the W.M., the Wardens, Bros. Dr. Tunstall, Ashley, Radway, Dr. Hopkins, and others joined, all anxious to vie in paying respect to the memory of the deceased brother, and to assist his family under their sad bereavement, to whom the Secretary was directed to address a letter of sincere condolence. Definite measures were deferred until the next meeting, and in the meantime Bros. Ashley, Falkner, and Dr. Hopkins were appointed as a committee to obtain information, with power to act within certain limits. The W.M. reminded the brethren of the presence of Bro. Fuller, as a visitor for the last time during his temporary residence in Bath, as he is about to return to America; adding that he was formerly a subscribing member of this lodge, and concluded by addressing him, and on behalf of those present bidding him God speed, a safe arrival, and success in the land of his adoption. The worthy brother made a suitable acknowledgment of the kind wishes expressed with regard to him. The lodge was closed at 11 o'clock.

MIDDLETON.—Imperial George Lodge (No. 78).—The last meeting of this lodge was held on Thursday, Oct. 25th, at the Ashteton Arms. Bro. G. Bradbury, W.M., presided, and among those present were Bros. J. Percival, S.W.; F. Fothergill, J.W.; H. Heywood, P.M., Treas.; J. Hatton, Sec.; F. Hooper, Org.; W. S. Clarke, I.G.; J. Kent, Tyler. The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed. Bro. Tetlow having answered the questions leading to the Second Degree, was entrusted with the test of merit and passed out. The lodge was raised to the Second Degree, and Bro. Tetlow was passed to the degree of Fellow Craft by the W.M. The charge in the S.E. was given, and the working tools were presented by Bro. D. Reid, I.P.M. Bro. Jowett, having answered the questions leading to the Third Degree, was entrusted with the test of merit. The lodge was opened in the Third Degree, and Bro. Jowett was raised to the Sublime Degree of a Master Mason by the W.M. The lodge having been lowered to the First Degree, the W.M. moved the resolution of which he had given notice, viz., "That the sum of £5 be given by the lodge to the Indian Famine Relief Fund." This was seconded by Bro. H. Heywood, P.M., and carried unanimously. "Hearty good wishes" were recorded from Lodges 163, 325, 1034, and 1458. The lodge was closed in peace and harmony, and the brethren adjourned for refreshment. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured, and the brethren separated.

WINDSOR.—Etonian Lodge of St. John (No. 209).—The usual monthly meeting of this lodge was held at the Masonic Hall, Windsor, on the 6th inst. The W.M., Bro. C. D. Hume, P.G.S., presided, supported by Bros. Roberts, P.G.S., S.W.; Schiemann, J.W.; Wilson, P.M., Treasurer; Carter, P.M., P.P.G.D.C., Sec.; Nichols, S.D.; Pears, J.D.; Cousins, I.G.; Evans, Steward; Reid, P.M.; Long, P.M.; and a large number of other brethren. Visitors: Bros. Ridley, 1101; Gomm, 780; Barnes, 780; Cantrell, P.M. 1501; Fisk, 1471; Johnson, 771; Bolton, Grisebrook, P.M. 771; Lay, 569; Williams, 865. Messrs. Riley, Stollery, and Torton were initiated into Freemasonry, and Bros. Hawkes and Perks passed to the degree of F.C. The ceremonies were performed by the W.M. in an impressive and faultless manner. Two candidates for initiation and one as a joining member having been proposed the lodge was closed in due form.

BATH.—Lodge of Honour (No. 379).—The first meeting of the season was held at the Masonic Hall, on Monday, Nov. 12th. Bro. Gore, W.M., opened the lodge at 8.15, supported by Bros. Dr. H. Hopkins, as I.P.M.; H. C. Hopkins, S.W.; Dickenson, J.W.; Davis, P.M. Sec.; Robinson, as S.D.; Johnson, J.D.; Bush, P.M., as I.G.; and others. Visitors: Bros. Gen. Doherty, P.M. 53, and 906; Col. Ford, P.M. 53; Brown, I.P.M. 41; Edwards, W.M. 53; W. Smith, P.M. and Treas. 53; Falkner, S.W. 41; and many others. The minutes having been read and confirmed, the lodge was opened in the Second Degree. Bro. Dr. Hopkins took the chair, and examined Bro. Rev. Sanderson as to his proficiency. This proving satisfactory, he was entrusted and dismissed for preparation. The lodge was opened in the Third Degree. The candidate was readmitted, raised to the rank of M.M., and the traditional history was communicated to him. Bro. Falkner explained the symbolism of the working tools, and Dr. Hopkins completed the ceremony by giving the charge, at the conclusion of which the brethren signified their approval by hearty applause. Bro. Gore, W.M., again took the chair, and resumed the lodge in the Second, and afterwards in the First Degree. He feelingly laid before the brethren the loss by death of three members during the vacation, of whom he specially referred to the respected I.P.M., Bro. Cook, and concluded by proposing a resolution of sincere regret, which was seconded by the S.W., carried, and ordered to be entered in the minute book, in addition to which the Secretary was directed to send copies, with letters of condolence, to the families of the deceased brethren. Bro. H. C. Hopkins, S.W., was elected W.M. and Bro. Gore Treasurer for the ensuing year. The acting I.P.M. at some length reported a case of extreme distress in the family of a well-known and highly-respected zealous member of No. 41, who had died at the age of 80, leaving no provision for his numerous young children, and solicited help in an endeavour to procure the admission of the youngest son into the Masonic Boys' School. Other business was transacted, and the proceedings were brought to a termination by a vote of thanks to the visitors, and specially to the brother who had worked the ceremony, which was acknowledged by the I.P.M. of No. 41 and the W.M. of No. 53. The lodge was finally closed at 10 o'clock.

GLOUCESTER.—Royal Lebanon Lodge (No. 493).—St. John's Day was celebrated by this lodge on Tuesday, the 6th inst., at the Spread Eagle Hotel, when the Senior Warden, Bro. G. K. Prowse, was installed in the chair of King Solomon as W.M. for the ensuing year, the ceremony being performed in the presence of about a hundred brethren by Bro. Past Master Edwin Browne, of the Gooch Lodge, 1295, whose zeal for Masonry was evinced by the admirable manner in which the varied portions of the ceremony were gone through. The officers appointed by the W.M. were Bros. D. Newman, S.W.; S. Moss, J.W.; Wilson, P.M., Treasurer; Worsley, P.M., Secretary; Rev. H. Layton, Chaplain; Woodward, P.M., Organist; A. V. Hailton, Steward; G. W. Haines, S.D.; R. A. Matthews, J.D.; F. Smith, I.G. Amongst the numerous visitors present were Bros. Col. H. Basevi, P.D.D.G.; J. Walker, P.M. 82; H. Godfrey, W.M. 82; T. Taynton, P.M. 839; R. White, P.M. 839; Vassar Smith, 839; A. Helps, 839; A. Buchanan, 839; J. Bruton, 839; R. S. Helps, 839; T. H. Chance, 839; A. C. Wheeler, 839; A. Slater, 839; H. W. Hall, 839; J. Weston, 839; and C. R. Taynton, 839; R. J. Kerr, W.M. 1067; Cranston Kerr, 1067; R. W. White, P.M. 1295; Ludgate, 1295; Kent, 1295; Haydon, 1295; Philipps, 1295; Powell, 1295; G. Roberts, W.M. 1005; S. Hayward, P.M. 1005; G. Tomes, P.M. 1005; T. Gee, P.M. 1005; W. H. Roberts, Barnett, Dutton, 1005; R. Chandler, W.M. 900; W. Crump, P.M. 900; W. B. Stocker, P.M. 241; Hollich, P.M. 1098; Chapman, P.M. 1057; Hirst, W.M. 338; Haselton, Holman. The lodge being closed in due form, the brethren retired to the banquet room. Grace having been offered by the Chaplain, due justice was rendered to the excellent dinner provided by Bro. W. C. Davis. The preliminary toasts having been given, the W.M. in felicitous terms proposed "The Health of the P.G.M. and P.G.L. of Gloucestershire," which was suitably responded to by Bros. H. Layton, P.G.C., and J. Walker, P.P.S.W. The W.M. then proposed "The Health of Bro. E. Browne, Installing Master, remarking on the great pleasure it gave him to meet his excellent friend and brother in that capacity, the superior way in which the ceremony had been performed proving his choice to be everything he had anticipated, and far exceeding the expectations of the brethren. Bro. Browne, in returning thanks, expressed the pleasure it gave him to visit Lodge 493, which was enhanced by the fact of his knowing the W.M. to be the "right man in the right place," and that the Royal Lebanon Lodge would prosper under his rule. The gavel being entrusted to Bro. Past Master Wilson, "The Health of the W.M." was toasted in an enthusiastic speech during which Bro. Wilson dilated on the wisdom of the choice which the brethren had displayed in selecting for their W.M. a brother of such acknowledged ability, thereby ensuring the prosperity of the lodge in whose interest he had laboured hard for so many years. The W.M., in responding, thanked Bro. Wilson and the brethren for the kind expressions they had made use of, and hoped the distinction they had conferred on him would be to the interest of the lodge; his ambition from the time he first entered the lodge was to fill the chair, and although he felt the great responsibility of the position, he trusted with the kind forbearance of the brethren and the willing assistance of his officers to maintain the proud prestige which the Royal Lebanon Lodge had held in the province for so many years. The next toast was that of "The Masonic Charities." Bro. Col. Basevi (who was called on to respond) observed his satisfaction at being present on such an agreeable occasion. Giving a short but succinct account of the charity organisation of the province, he also expressed the hope that all the lodges would act with one mind for the common weal, so that the strength which comes of union should be productive of the best possible result. The W.M. then proposed the toast of "The Past Masters" Bro. P.M. Wilson as the senior P.M. suitably responded. "Lodges of the Province" was responded to by Bros. P.M. Taynton and Russell Kerr, W.M. 1067. "The Visiting Brethren," responded to by Bro. J. Bruton. With the toasts of "The Officers," responded to by Bro. D. J. Newman, and "The Tyler," the evening was brought to a conclusion, the gathering being looked upon as a most auspicious one in the annals of the Royal Lebanon Lodge.

HUDDERSFIELD.—Lodge of Truth (No. 521).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held on Friday, the 2nd inst. The lodge was opened punctually at seven o'clock by the W.M. (Bro. John W. Hinchliffe). The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, the only business on the circular being to elect the W.M., Treasurer, and Tyler, it was at once proceeded with, and the result was that Bro. Benton, a very old and respected member of the lodge, was duly elected W.M. for the ensuing year, which event will give general satisfaction to the brethren, and be the means of bringing many old members together; therefore, this good old lodge is looking forward to one of its happiest and most prosperous years. Bro. P.M. Geo. Marshall was re-elected Treasurer, and a better could not have been selected, he being the right man in the right place. Bro. Henry Shaw, one of the oldest members of the lodge and a deservedly respected brother, was re-elected Tyler. In consequence of the unfortunate death of a much respected brother, which sad event took place on Wednesday, being the result of an accident, the business was brought to a close after expressing the sympathy of the lodge with the family of the late brother, as also two other families which have been deprived of their head since the last regular meeting, thus showing what sad events may take place in so brief a space of time. Under these painful circumstances the W.M. announced that there would not be any banquet or festive board. The business being concluded the lodge was closed, and many were the expressions of regret at the loss the lodge had sustained by the untimely, and sudden death of two of its members.

LANCASTER.—Rowley Lodge (No. 1051).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held at the Masonic Rooms, Athenæum, on Monday 5th November. The W.M., Bro. T. Jackson, occupied the chair, and was supported by Bros. H. Longman, I.P.M.; N. W. Helme, S.W.; Alfred Sherriff, J.W.; J. Daniel Moore, P.G.S.B. of England; W. J. Sly, P. Prov. G.D.; G. Taylor, S.D.; J. T. Jackson, J.D.; J. J. Crookell, as I.G.; John Hatch, P.M. and Sec. 281; E. Johnson, and a number of other members and visitors. The principal business of the evening was the delivery of a lecture on the "Botany of Freemasonry," by Bro. Dr. Moore. The lecture which was clear, terse, instructive, and highly interesting, was listened to with great attention by all present, and at its close a hearty vote of thanks was awarded by acclamation to the Worshipful lecturer. Two gentlemen were proposed as candidates for initiation, and the lodge was closed in due form. On Wednesday evening, the 7th instant, an emergency meeting was held, when the W.M. initiated Lieut. W. H. Chippindale, of the Royal Engineers, into the mysteries of Freemasonry, the working tools being presented by Bro. Sherriff, J.W., and the charge delivered by Bro. H. Longman, I.P.M.

PAIGNTON.—Torrey Lodge (No. 1358).—The usual monthly meeting of this lodge was held on Tuesday, 30th October. The W.M., Bro. James Greenfield, P.M., P.P.G.J.D., occupied the chair, and was supported by his officers, Bros. J. F. Chinnock, S.W.; F. Palk, J.W.; Rev. N. Platt, P.P.G.C.D.S. and Chaplain; W. E. Warren, P.M., P.G. Org., Sec.; A. W. Palk, J.D.; C. Perrott, I.G.; T. Brooks, R.A.M., Organist. The brethren mustered in strong force, and among the visitors were Bros. G. Huxham, W.M. 1254 (Semper Fidelis), Exeter; S. Burton, W.M. 328 (St. John's, Torquay); Geo. T. Barry, P.M. 248, Brixham, Prov. G. Purs.; B. Fullwood, S.W. 328; W. Taylor, 328; T. S. Bailey, 328; and J. W. Valentine, Sec. 303 (Benevolent), Teignmouth. A candidate, Mr. W. W. Ellis, was installed into the mysteries of the Order by the W.M. Bro. Cooke, passed to the degree of a Fellow Craft by P.M. W. E. Warren, P.G. Org., and Bro. G. T. Bany, Prov. G. Purs. balloted for as a joining member. A pleasing duty devolved upon the W.M., viz., that of presenting the I.P.M., Bro. John Coudrey, with a P.M.'s jewel subscribed for by the brethren. In doing so he alluded in complimentary terms to the manner in which the duties of the office of W.M. had been discharged during the past year, and begged its acceptance as a mark of the esteem and regard of the brethren of the lodge. Bro. Coudrey thanked the W.M. and brethren for this expression of their fraternal feelings towards him, and assured them he felt much honoured. He should ever regard their present as a pleasurable memento of his year of office, and he would wear it with pride as long as he lived. Bro. Huxham, W.M. 1254 (Exeter), said it gave him much gratification at being present that evening as a visitor, and to witness the presentation that had just taken place. The lodge he represented was the mother lodge of the I.P.M., and he was sure when he reported the incident of this evening to the members of Semper Fidelis they would feel as much pleased to hear of the honour done to one of their lodge as he was to witness it. He congratulated the lodge on its good working, and was glad to see so prosperous a lodge at Paignton. The brethren on the closing of the lodge adjourned to their own ante-room for refreshment, and spent a very harmonious and pleasant evening.

MANCHESTER.—Lodge of Truth (No. 1458).—This lodge held its accustomed monthly meeting at Private Rooms, Newton Heath, on Saturday, November 3rd. It being "election day" a goodly number of members presented themselves. At 3.30 p.m. Bro. Batchelder, W.M., proved and opened his lodge, and in due course admitted into "Masonic light" Messrs. W. H. Thynne and A. Thornton. Bro. R. Caldwell, P.M., and D. of C., then passed Bros. Smith and Vincent. Bro. Batchelder, W.M., again took up his position, and election by ballot of a W.M. for the ensuing year was proceeded with, which resulted in a large majority for Bro. G. H. Needle, J.W., Bro. W. J. Kinder, S.W., being the present Master of Lodge 367. The election of Treasurer was allowed to stand over till the next meeting. Bro. Tyers, P.M., who has ably filled this office since the consecration of the lodge in 1873, expressed a desire (much to the regret of the brethren) not to be re-elected—persuasive powers were not available to induce him to continue, as he wished to see some of the younger brethren in harness. The Secretary therefore proposed Bro. Proctor, which was seconded by Bro. G. H. Needle, J.W., Bro. Proctor being absent it was thought prudent to allow the matter to stand over. Bro. Beswick was again unanimously elected Tyler. Bro. R. Caldwell, P.M., and T. Davis, were appointed auditors, the business on the circular was here completed; and two candidates were proposed for initiation, one by Bro. T. Tyers, P.M., and the other by Bro. J. Taylor, J.D. Representatives from Lodges 581, 667, 1011, and 1088, accorded the usual congratulations. Charity was then exercised, and the lodge closed according to ancient custom. The brethren then assembled at the social board, business was there attended to with all propriety, and in due course came the usual toasts, loyal and Masonic. Then came those immediately connected with Lodge 1458. Bro. R. Caldwell, P.M., commencing with "The Health of the W.M. elect," and remarked that he had hoped to have seen him occupying the proud position to which he had that night been elected, before now, but circumstances had prevented it. Bro. G. H. Needle, J.W. and W.M. elect, responded, and intimated that with the assistance of the P.M.'s of the lodge he intended to do his work to the best of his ability. Bro. Batchelder, W.M. next proposed in a neat speech "The Health of the Initiates." During their preparation to reply, Past Master Dumville with his top notes of melody, gave the E. A. Song. After a few words from the initiates, brief but telling, the newly passed brethren were next thought of, who in due course responded. Bro. S. H. Needham having proposed "The health of the W.M.," it was heartily honoured. Bro. Batchelder, W.M., in reply said, that his year of office was nearly completed, he felt that a successful year to any W.M. was in a great measure owing to the abilities of his officers; such he considered in his officers were good, and he felt persuaded that in relinquishing the gavel to the W.M. elect, it was in able hands, and that he would receive that support from the P.M.'s and his officers in a like measure to himself. "The Visiting Brethren" were also thought of, and their companionship again solicited; they responded, and returned the compliment. During the evening, Bros. Dumville, Cox, Nicholson, Hedden, and Hyam, poured forth "inspiring thoughts in vocal strain." Bro. W. H. Thynne also gave a recitation. In due time, 9.20 p.m., came the last toast of the evening, and the brethren separated.

HAMPTON WICK.—Wolsey Lodge (No. 1656).—This recently formed but prosperous provincial lodge held its first meeting of the season at the White Hart Hotel, on Monday, the 5th inst. The officers present were Bros. W. Hammond, P.P.G.D. Midx., P.M. 201, 1326, and 1512, W.M.; B. Sharp, P.G.S. of the Province, P.M., S.W.; Baldwin, P.G.P. of Midx., P.M. Era Lodge, acting J.W.; J. Hammond, P.M. Jordan, W.M. 1512, Hon. I.P.M.; T. W. Ockenden, S.D. 1512, Secretary; J. Hurst, P.M. 1512, J.D.; T. C. Walls, P.G.O. Midx., J.W. 1381, J.D. 1512, I.G.; Honeywell, P.M. Dobie Lodge, Organist; Marvin, D.C.; and Scott, W.S. The visitors were Bros. Crawford, Kelly, Garwood, and Murphy. The minutes of the consecration and subsequent emergency meetings having been read and confirmed, the W.M. initiated Messrs. Ayles, Worthington, and Murray, passed Bros. Duffell and Elphick, and raised Bros. Jackson, Masters, and Piller, the three arduous and impressive ceremonies being rendered by Bro. Hammond most ably. It is a noteworthy circumstance, and which proves that the founding of a lodge in this locality was a Masonic necessity, that the W.M. has never had a "maiden sitting." In fact the number of initiates have been so large that the officers of the lodge have been under the necessity of working from four to five hours consecutively. In this instance the lodge was summoned at half-past five o'clock in the afternoon, and its members and visitors did not sit down to their well-earned and necessary refreshment until the clock of Kingston Church had chimed the three-quarters after nine. The requirements of the licence of Bro. Andrews, mine host of the White Hart Hotel, compelling him to close at eleven, the toasts of the evening were curtailed of their fair proportions, and given pro forma. Bro. Walls responded upon behalf of "The Deputy Provincial Grand Master and the rest of the Prov. Grand Officers, Past and Present." "The Health of the W.M." was proposed by Bro. Bernard Sharp, S.W., who complimented Bro. Hammond upon the great stamina and ability evinced by him that evening in rendering the three ceremonies and discharging the other duties of his position without once "calling off." The W.M. having replied, gave "The Initiates" and "The Visitors" and those important toasts having been responded to, the proceedings terminated.

INSTRUCTION.

THE LONDON MASONIC CLUB.—This Lodge of Instruction met at "the club," 101, Queen Victoria-street, E.C., on Monday last, the 12th inst., when there were present Bros. W. Sharratt, W.M.; J. Langton, S.W.; C. E. Smith, J.W.; C. F. Dobbing, S.D.; C. E. Barnett, J.D.; J. D. Langton, I.G.; W. Smallpiece, Preceptor; C. J. Hogg, Treas.; J. E. Shand, Hon. Sec.; Edell, Rumpff, Rogers, Bauman, and others. Visitors: Bros. C. F. Cooke, Strauss, and H. W. Morgan, jun. The lodge was opened in the usual manner, and the minutes of the last meeting confirmed. The First Ceremony was rehearsed. Bro. Bauman was passed to the degree of F.C. Bro. Smallpiece gave the Lecture on the Tracing Board of the degree. Four brethren were elected members of the lodge. S.W. Joseph Langton was voted to the chair for next meeting. Three brethren were chosen Auditors to examine the accounts of the lodge. The lodge was closed and adjourned until Monday, 26th inst., at 6 o'clock.

SOUTHWARK LODGE (No. 879).—The Fifteen Sections were worked at the above lodge on Wednesday, 31st October, in the presence of a good number of brethren from various lodges, including Past Masters E. Stephens, 879; W. H. Green, 619; J. A. Hudson, 879; Davison, 299; H. Bartlett, 147; and others. Bro. C. W. Kent, P.M., and Preceptor of the lodge, carried out the duties of W.M. for the evening in a most impressive manner, and received a cordial vote of thanks from the brethren for his kindness in presiding. The Sections were worked as follows, viz:—

FIRST LECTURE.
1st Section	Bro. Joseph Bowen, 1310.
2nd "	Bro. George Pulsford, 1593.
3rd "	Bro. W. S. Lugg, 879.

GREAT YARMOUTH.—Friendship Lodge (No. 100).—The first meeting of this lodge was held at the Crown and Anchor Hotel, Great Yarmouth, on Friday, the 9th inst., when there was a fair muster of the brethren. The chair was taken by Bro. Bouffellow, I.P.M. P.G.A.D.C. Norfolk, the other officers being Bros. Captain Dods, S.W.; Howes, P.M., J.W.; Stenbridge, S.D.; Palk, J.D.; A. D. Bennett, I.G.; P. Glover, P.P.G.O. Berks and Bucks, Secretary, pro tem. The ceremony of installation was then rehearsed, Bro. W. Johnson acting as candidate. Afterwards various matters of business were settled, Bro. James Bond, P.M., being appointed Preceptor, and Bro. A. D. Bennett, Secretary and Treasurer. Considering that several brethren were engaged the same evening in connection with the corporation (this being the day of appointing the Mayor of the borough), there was a good attendance, and the meeting was very successful. This new venture, which owes its origin entirely to the indefatigable exertions of Bro. Glover, who is always ready to give a helping hand, we wish every prosperity.

The following reports stand over—Williamson Lodge, 949; Tyndall Lodge, 1363; Pantmure Chapter, 720; Kenard Chapter, 1258. Reminiscences of St. John's Lodge, Kelso, unavoidably crowded out.

Ancient and Accepted Rite.

EASTBOURNE.—Albion Chapter, Rose Croix 18° (No. 56).—The annual installation meeting of the above chapter was held on Friday, the 2nd inst., at Bro. Morris's, Southdown Hotel. Among the members present we noted the Ill. Bro. T. Lane, 33°, M.W.S.; Ex. Bros. Capt. F. H. Huth, 18°, First Gen. and M.W.S. elect; Piddock, 18°, Second Gen.; C. W. Drake, 18°, G.M.; B. Roberts, M.D., Reg.; Ill. Bros. T. Trollope, M.D., 31°, P.M.W.S.; G. Moren, P.M.W.S., and others. The visitors included V. Ill. Bro. S. Rawson, 33°, Insp. Gen. for the South-Eastern District; Ill. Bros. Col. Burdett, 32° (Ireland); John Boyd, 30°, P.M.W.S. Holy Palestine Chapter; Ex. Bro. H. Dicketts, 18°, Registrar, and C. Martin, 18°, both of the same chapter; and last, but not least, Ex. Bro. C. J. Smith, 18°, M.W.S. of the sister chapter in the province, the Eureka, at Brighton. After confirmation of the minutes, and the transaction of other business, including the reading of letters of apology from absent members, the M.W.S. resigned the chair to Ill. Bro. Trollope, 31°, who thereupon proceeded to install Ex. Jno. Capt. F. H. Huth, 18°, into the chair of M.W.S. for the ensuing year. The officers having been appointed, Bro. Briscoe, P.M. South Saxon Lodge, No. 311, who had been balloted for and elected at the preceding meeting, was duly and regularly admitted to the 18°, the intermediate degrees being given and the ceremony performed by Ill. Bro. Trollope, at the request of the M.W.S. The concluding portion of the degree was then given and the chapter duly closed. Previous to this, however, a vote of thanks was accorded to the illustrious visitors who had honoured the chapter with their presence. This was suitably acknowledged by Ill. Bros. S. Rawson and Col. Burdett, who were pleased to signify their approval of the way the ceremonies were conducted. A most elegant little supper followed, which, as is always the case at Bro. Morris's, gave entire satisfaction. The toasts peculiar to the Order were given by the newly-installed M.W.S., Bro. Capt. Huth, in capital form, and most heartily responded to. We must congratulate our Eastbourne brethren on the facilities afforded in their town for the practice of almost every degree in connection with Freemasonry, and visitors to the South Coast who may care to see the beautiful ceremonies of the Rose Croix, or the impressive ritual of the Knights Templar, properly rendered, may do worse than find their way to Bro. Morris's hospitable Southdown mansion, on any of the stated meetings of the Albion Chapter, Rose Croix, or Sussex Preceptory, K.T. (vide "Cosmopolitan Calendar.") The Albion Chapter has had many difficulties to contend with, but, judging from the cordial tone prevailing amongst its members, and the efficient manner in which the ceremonies incidental to the day were performed, we may hope a prosperous future is in store for it.

THE LATE BRO. R. J. SPIERS.

The brethren of the Alfred Lodge, Oxford, have passed the following resolutions with reference to the loss sustained by them in the death of Bro. R. J. Spiers, Past Deputy Prov. G. Master of Oxford, P.G.S.B. "We, the Worshipful Master, Past Masters, Officers and Brethren of the Alfred Lodge of Freemasons, No. 320, assembled in open lodge regularly held and properly dedicated, (the brethren of the lodge room wearing on this occasion the sombre livery of mourning by the express command of the Provincial Grand Master of Oxfordshire, Bro. His Royal Highness Prince Leopold), are desirous of recording our sense of the loss we, as Masons, have sustained by the death of our much valued brother Richard James Spiers. Past Master of this lodge, in which he was initiated, Past Grand Sword-Bearer, of the Grand Lodge of England, and for many years the zealous Deputy Provincial Grand Master of the province of Oxfordshire. We are anxious to place on record the high estimation in which, for more than a quarter of a century, he has been held among us as our instructor and guide in the details of all the forms and ceremonies of Freemasonry, and as a correct expounder of its laws and rules. We are impressed also with a grateful remembrance of the warm-hearted and indefatigable discharge of his duty, and his successful applications of the influence of his high position in Masonry, in connection with the administrations of the Great Masonic Charities, especially affecting the interests of the widow and the fatherless, the aged and the afflicted, having a distinct claim on the sympathy of the brethren of this province. This testimony of our appreciation of his services to us and to Masonry we desire to have recorded in the annals of our lodge, and a copy of it sent to the family of our deceased brother, hoping it may be to them a source of consolation; and we take this opportunity of conveying the expression of our united sympathy and condolence with them under their recent bereavement. With us survives the memory of his widely felt and valued Masonic usefulness. Closing his long and chequered life of sunshine and shade, he has left to each and every member of his large and interesting family, proving its just estimate of its importance and his fatherly care for their best interests in their early years, the priceless possession of an education of no ordinary standard, the fruits of which are evidenced in minds well cultivated and tastes refined. Armed with these efficient means of self-advancement, may it be theirs so to apply them by line and rule to the fulfilment of the duties of active life, as under the blessing of the Great Architect of the Universe to merit and secure honourable and prosperous positions in society. We cannot doubt that the brethren of the Grand Lodge of England, of the Prov. Grand Lodge of Oxfordshire, with all the lodges of this province, and the Craft generally, will heartily echo our prayer, "So mote it be."

CONSECRATION OF THE DOUGLAS LODGE, No. 1725.

One of the most interesting and important ceremonies connected with Freemasonry of late years in the Province of Kent took place on Friday, 9th inst. The growth of the Craft in the county town and its neighbourhood has been so rapid and so extensive, that it has been found necessary to establish a new lodge, the old Belvidere Lodge having been for some time past quite full. The idea of establishing a new lodge, which should assume a position worthy of the county town, when once broached, was eagerly taken up. The petition was signed by several influential brethren, and at a meeting of the founders it was unanimously resolved to call it the "Douglas" Lodge, in honour of Aretas Akers Douglas, Esq., who, since he has taken up his residence at Chilton Park has evinced the warmest interest in all matters appertaining to Masonry in this part of the county. It was also resolved to invite him to become the first Master; which, after some hesitation, on account of his being already Master of the Malling Abbey Lodge, he consented to undertake, provided the necessary dispensation could be obtained from the Grand Lodge in order to allow him to hold both offices. The petition was successful; and the founders were greatly delighted on receiving their warrant. Arrangements were immediately made for the consecration of the new lodge; and that imposing ceremony took place, as we have mentioned, on the 9th inst, in the magnificent lodge room over the gateway of the ancient College at Maidstone. A more appropriate building could not have been possibly secured, and the brethren are much indebted to the gentleman who, by permission of the noble owner, sub-let it to the brethren for the use of the Craft. Some years ago it was used by the Constitutional Association, since then it has been used as a portion of the domestic offices of the College; but now it has been so beautifully and adorned as to be scarcely recognisable by those who only knew it under its former aspect. The Masonic furniture is, as may be supposed, entirely new, and has been made to harmonise exactly with the surroundings of the building.

With these preliminary remarks we must proceed to record the ceremony of consecration. The brethren assembled at the College at 4 o'clock, and when attired in their full Masonic clothing, presented a most imposing array, there being an unusually large attendance of officers of both Grand and Provincial Grand Lodges. They included—Bros. Viscount Holmesdale, M.P., P.G.M.; J. S. Eastes, D. P.G.M.; John B. Monckton, P.G.D., P. Bd. G.P.; P. de L. Long, S.G.D.; Capt. Phillips, S.G.D.; Reginald Bird, D.P.G.M. (Oxon); Rev. E. Moore, P.G.C.; Col. Clerke, P.M. 1383, P.G.S.W. Devon; Aretas Akers Douglas, W.M. Malling Abbey Lodge, Prov. G.S.W. Kent, P.P.G.R. Oxon and P.M. of several other lodges; Rev. W. A. Hill, P.G. Chap.; Alfred Spencer, P.G. Sec.; W. Page, P.G.J.W.; Walter Monckton, P.M.; W. H. Vale, P.G.W. Herefordshire; F. Spencer, P.M.; H. B. Deane, P.P.G.D. of C. Oxfordshire, No. 10; T. Wyles, P.M.; Rev. J. H. Timins, P.M.; Rev. Stuart Robson, J. Hodgson, P.M.; Dr. Spurrell, P.M.; G. Ker, P.P.G.J.D.; H. Monckton, Dr. Davies, R. T. Tatham, R. A. Seymour, J. W. Menzies, F. S. Stenning, E. B. Smith, G. Friend, D. W. Langton, F. Green, P.M.; Dr. Meredith, S. P. Potter, Dr. Ramsey, W. Russell, and others.

The Provincial Grand Master (Viscount Holmesdale) having taken the chair, appointed Bro. J. Braddick Monckton as the Consecrating Master. Bro. Monckton thereupon occupied the chair, and proceeded with the consecration, which he performed in such a masterly manner as to call forth the warmest expressions of satisfaction from the brethren. The Rev. W. A. Hill, as Provincial Grand Chaplain, also carried out his portion of the duties in a most able manner. At the close of the ceremony Bro. Akers Douglas was installed as first Master by Bro. Reginald Bird; and on taking his seat in the Master's chair the newly-elected Master was cordially greeted.

Next followed the appointment of officers as follows:—Bros. H. Monckton, S.W.; Dr. Davies, J.W.; Rev. E. Moore, Chap.; A. Spencer, Treas.; E. B. Smith, Sec.; R. T. Tatham, S.D.; F. S. Stenning, J.D.; Dr. Meredith, I.G.; G. Friend, D.C.; J. W. Menzies, S.

Before separating cordial votes of thanks were given to Bros. J. B. Monckton and R. Bird for their valuable services, and both were elected honorary members of the lodge.

At seven o'clock a banquet was held at the Town Hall, which had been kindly placed at the disposal of the brethren by the Mayor. The W.M., Bro. A. A. Douglas, presided, and the company included those present at the consecration. The large hall was exquisitely decorated, and the arrangements for the comfort of the guests were all that could be desired. Of the banquet itself, which was furnished by Bro. Bates, the proprietor of the Mitre Hotel, it would be impossible to speak too highly. The viands and wines were alike excellent, and were placed upon the table with great taste. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were duly proposed and honoured; and a most enjoyable evening was spent by all present.

Bro. A. F. Rowley, P.M. 917, will represent that lodge as Steward, at the forthcoming festival of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, on the 13th February. Bro. Rowley will be Steward for the Male Fund, and solicits the strong support of the brethren. He has the assistance of his lodge, and of the great bulk of the members.

The Duke of Marlborough was presented on Wednesday with a congratulatory address by the Town Commissioners and Board of Guardians of Ennis, on the occasion of his visit to Dromoland. Lord Inchiquin, as chairman of the board, read the address.

PROVINCIAL GRAND MARK LODGE OF SOMERSETSHIRE.

The annual meeting of this Provincial Grand Lodge was held on the 15th ultimo, at the Masonic Hall, Bath. In the absence of the R.W. Prov. Grand Mark Master, Bro. the Rt. Hon the Earl of Carnarvon, the V.W. Deputy Prov. Grand Mark Master, Bro. Capt. Irwin, presided. Among the visitors present were Bros. R. Carey, Dr. Woodforde, M. Ansaldo, Rev. M. Shackleton, E. T. Payne, W. Cox, R. B. Carter, W. Smith, G. S. Tricks, W. E. Reeves, A. G. Williams, G. Yates, Col. Guyon, E. W. Gordon, Col. J. R. Ford, C. T. Marshall, R. de M. Lawson, J. Dutton, J. W. Murliss, S. Mills, F. Vigard, W. H. Davies, J. P. Curtis, J. Hond, G. F. Tuckey, Dr. Bryant, C. W. Rodway, R. L. Tucker, A. S. Vosper, J. Fry, Dr. R. Wybrants, W. Munro, P. Braham, J. Smith, J. Swanson, T. Wilton, F. W. Dingle, J. G. Mitchell, A. W. Powell, A. W. Scott, E. J. Mercier, S. Bisgood, and many others.

Upon the list of lodges in the province being called it was found that with one exception (Bridgewater) all were represented. The minutes of the last P.G. Mark Lodge held at Keynshaw, having been confirmed, the P.G. Treasurer presented his report shewing a considerable balance in favour of the province. The D.P.G.M. spoke very highly of the services rendered, by Bro. E. T. Payne as Treasurer, and warmly commended his mode of keeping the accounts, and his endeavours to economise the expenditure, that the province might have a large sum to devote to charity. Upon the motion of Bro. Scott, P.P.G.S.W., seconded by Bro. Dr. Bryant, the accounts were passed. The next business being the election of a Treasurer, Bro. Tuckey, P.P.G.S.W., proposed the reelection of Bro. Payne, remarking that he had the pleasure of performing a similar duty last year. They were all grateful to Bro. Payne for the zealous and efficient manner in which he performed his duties. Bro. Col. Wm. Ford seconded the proposition, which was carried by acclamation, the D.P.G.M. in putting it to the vote observing that it would be perfectly impossible to elect any one who would perform the duties better than Bro. Payne. The P.G. Treasurer thanked the brethren for their kind renewal of confidence in him, as well as for their appreciation of his services and for the compliment which had been bestowed upon him. He assured them that it gave him very great pleasure to do all in his power to advance Mark Masonry. He should be very glad to deal with a much larger sum of money, but he hoped that with the increase of lodges in the province the balance in hand would also increase.

Bro. Bond, P.M., P.G. Pursuivant, proposed that a sum of ten guineas be granted out of the Prov. Grand Mark Lodge funds towards an alleviation of the distress caused by the famine amongst our fellow sufferers in India. Bro. Tuckey seconded the motion, which was carried unanimously, the D.P.G.M. remarking that the funds could not be applied to a better or more strictly Masonic purpose, and that he should have great pleasure in adding a guinea. The D.P.G.M. also intimated his approval of a suggestion made by Bro. Munro, that any lodges in the province making donations to the same fund should forward them through the P.G. Treasurer.

The appointment and investment of officers were then proceeded with as follows:—

Col. Guyon, 177.....	P.G.S.W.
R. H. Cater.....	P.G.J.W.
Rev. M. Shackleton.....	P.G.C.
Col. Ford.....	P.G.M.O.
J. Fry.....	P.G.S.O.
J. Leaker.....	P.G.J.O.
E. T. Payne.....	P.G. Treasurer.
R. L. Tucker.....	P.G. R. of M.
W. Cox.....	P.G. Secretary.
G. Nalis.....	Assist. P.G. Sec.
A. W. Powell.....	First G.I.W.
Vosper.....	Assist. First G.I.W.
Wybrants.....	P.G.S.D.
Wood.....	P.G.D.C.
Saunders.....	P.G.A.D.C.
Major Nash.....	P.G. Swd. B.
C. Wilkinson.....	P.G. Std. B.
Braham.....	P.G.O.
S. Mills.....	P.G. Steward
W. Cousins.....	P.G. Tyler.

The D.P.G.M. apologised for the absence of the R.W. P.G.M., the Rt. Hon. the Earl of Carnarvon, who, he said, was prevented by the pressure of official duties from being amongst them that day. He hoped, however, that on a future occasion his lordship would attend and present the collars himself. With reference to the distribution of honours the D.P.G.M. also expressed a hope that in future Masters of lodges would be more prompt in sending in the names of the brethren recommended for P.G. rank, in order that they might be submitted to the P.G.M. The D.P.G.M. mentioned that at the last Prov. Grand Lodge a committee was appointed to prepare a design for a Mark token for adoption in the province, they had entrusted the duty to Bro. Williams, who had prepared a token in gold, silver and bronze. Bro. Williams submitted specimens, which were generally approved, and the D.P.G.M. said it was proposed to substitute a bronze token for the coin now paid upon the advancement of a brother to the Degree of M.M.M.

The D.P.G.M. then closed the P.G. Lodge in due form, after which the brethren adjourned to the Castle Hotel, where a splendid banquet was provided, with all the good things in season, and the tables were arranged in a very tasteful and superior manner, the attention paid by the W.M. and brethren of the Royal Sussex Lodge to their friends, and their evident desire to make all welcome were beyond praise. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were proposed and duly honoured, and the brethren spent a most enjoyable evening.

THE FIRE AT ST. JOHN'S

[We are requested to publish the following.]

Freemasons' Hall, Molesworth-street,
6th November, 1877.

Dear Sir and Brother,

I beg leave, respectfully and earnestly, to solicit the liberal subscription of your lodge to the fund for the relief of our Masonic brethren in St. John, New Brunswick, who are suffering from the effects of the late calamitous fire in that city, on the 20th day of June last. The majority of the inhabitants were rendered homeless, very few of them saving even a portion of their personal or household effects. Some of them saved nothing but the clothes on their backs. In a letter I had recently from the Grand Secretary, he states—"My heart bleeds for those who are reduced to utter want and destitution. No person unless one here on the spot to see and witness for himself, can form the faintest idea of the terrible havoc made on our city and its inhabitants. A General Masonic Board of Relief was immediately organized in St. John, in order to aid and shelter our suffering brethren. This board extends its helping hand to the sufferers of all degrees of Masonry, and insures a regular and systematic mode of dispensing the funds placed at its disposal. The Board is composed of the City Members of the Board of General Purposes of Grand Lodge, and the presiding officers of the Masonic bodies of all grades. The Grand Lodge of New Brunswick has appealed to us for help in this hour of need. The call is loud, and the want is great, particularly as the winter is fast approaching with its rigorous severity. I shall thankfully receive, acknowledge, and forward all contributions from your lodge, and from each member of the lodge who may be disposed to subscribe to so truly a deserving cause, and thus discharge a high and bounden Masonic duty.

I am, dear Sir and Brother, yours fraternally,

WILLIAM THOMAS WILKINSON,

A MASONIC FUNERAL IN AMERICA.

Sunday, October 14, will long be remembered by the Masonic fraternity of Brooklyn. There were no fewer than four funerals of deceased Masons, Cassia Lodge, No. 445, having charge of two of them—Bros. J. Firman Brist, Park-avenue, and William Marler, Clymer-street. Both the deceased brothers were old and distinguished members of the Order, and the unusually large turnout of the "brethren of the mystic tie" and other local organisations proved how wide-felt was the sorrow at their decease. Cassia Lodge formed at an early hour in their lodge-room, and, under the superintendence of their popular and zealous W.M., Horace C. Sawtelle, lately Deputy G.M. of Second District, marched in procession to the late residence of Bro. Brist. There the beautiful and impressive services peculiar to the Order were conducted by Bro. Sawtelle, Bro. Fletcher (Chaplain of Cassia Lodge) assisting at the prayers. During the service, the W.M. introduced some new features into the proceedings not found in the ritual, which were much commented on and admired both by the uninitiated and the Masonic brethren present. The funeral cortege then proceeded to Clymer-street, where similar services were held over the remains of Bro. Marler, and the two funerals wended their way to Cypress Hills Cemetery, followed by the largest concourse of sorrowing friends ever seen in the Eastern District. Cassia Lodge, in regalia, led the procession, followed by Yew-Tree and other local lodges, and were joined by a number of prominent Masons from New York and New Jersey. The Eckford Social Club, numbering over a hundred, had a fine appearance, the members being all dressed in black and wearing mourning badges on their breasts. Typographical Union, No. 6, of New York was also well represented in the procession.

On arriving at the cemetery, the brethren ranged themselves in lines three and four deep around the open grave of Bro. Marler, W.M. Sawtelle conducting the burial service. This finished, the brethren repaired to the grave of Bro. Brist, in the Masonic Cemetery, where the same sad rites were repeated, the Master again officiating for the fourth time. Bro. Sawtelle's extempore oration, after the ritual service, was a masterpiece of diction, and delivered with much feeling and effect. At its close there was not a dry eye in the vast assemblage. When the Master deposited in the grave the lambskin apron—emblem of innocence and purity, and asprig of evergreen, the brethren followed, each one, as he dropped the acacia into the grave, repeating the words; "Alas! my brother." This part of the service was sadly and solemnly effective. Then followed the singing by the brethren of the "Funeral Hymn," and the Benediction by the Chaplain, the proceedings lasting till after six o'clock.—New York Dispatch.

FRATERNITY

To us the great charm of Freemasonry has always been the genuine spirit of fraternity that it engenders and perpetuates. In the profane world, love both blesses and curses; it is the parent of peace and good-will, but also of strife and jealousy. It ruined Troy, and it ruins many a household at the present day, in every part of the world. The bone of contention is the bone that was taken from Adam's side. That bone is forbidden entrance into the lodge, of Freemasonry—a woman cannot be made a Mason. Therefore we have exemplified among us a love that is undefiled, a love that blesses and curses not. A Lear is impossible in Masonry; his field of operation is in the kingdom, or queenhood, of the "Eastern Star." There is even rarely found the smaller jealousy of place, for usually there are honours enough to go round, and rapid rotation in office creates such frequent vacancies that there are sometimes more places than there are competent ambitious brethren to fill them. We are a band of brothers, and we exemplify continually the spirit of true fraternity.

Freemasonry is many sided, but not equilateral. Fraternity is its broadest and longest side. Charity too is a long side, but not the longest. Faith in God is one of the boundaries of the Craft; belief in the immortality of the soul is another. But the most objective, and the most valuable of all, is the spirit of fraternity. The Church teaches, with us, belief in God and the immortality of the soul, but it cannot equal us in diffusing the principles of brotherhood. We are fully persuaded that there is no society in the world, whether of divine or human institution, that so exemplifies the spirit of fraternity as does Freemasonry.

Theory and practice do not always go together in this life. There is more preaching than practising. The two ought never to be divorced, but they are. If the Church had always performed its full duty, we do not know that this would have prevented the institution of Freemasonry, but it would have retarded its growth. Our Craft was not created for moral purposes; it grew out of an operative brotherhood; it built temples before it built men. But as we have said, it is many-sided. It is now moral, religious, charitable, fraternal. It is the champion of symbolism. It is full of legends and history. There is a lifetime's study in it, and it affords the truest pleasure and the largest instruction to the painstaking student. But, back of all its rich possessions, and underlying its past, present and future, is the heart-power that manifests itself in its genuine fraternal spirit. Freemasons are unmistakably brethren.

When you enter a lodge, what is it that is most patent to your vision? Is it not the throng of individuals of differing creeds, politics, nationality and position in society, all, for the time, upon the level, all mystically united into a single family? Do not, at times, hands universally clasped indicate oneness of heart, and that Masons go hand-in-hand together for the accomplishment of all laudable objects?—Does not charity itself spring solely out of brotherhood; do we not help a brother in distress for the same reason that we would help ourselves? Freemasonry puts one brother in another's place most effectively; it unifies all interests; it unifies all hearts.

Suppose that all men were brethren! To our minds the precepts of the Bible and the practice of Masonry, both are striving to achieve this end; and will one day be successful. It is the chief purpose of religion to restore men to their true relation to their Maker; it is the great purpose of Masonry to restore them to their true relation to each other; and when this latter object is accomplished; it will not be difficult to establish the filial one; in other words, when men acknowledge themselves and act towards each other as brethren, they will naturally honour love and obey their common Father.

Freemasonry is the handmaid of religion, in that it teaches the brotherhood of man and the fatherhood of God.

When so much is to be gained in profiting by the spirit of fraternity, it is not surprising that there should be false brethren, as there are in the world and the church wolf in sheep's clothing. We cannot successfully exclude all of the unworthy. The black ball does it work well, but it is not the infallible remedy; yet if we would keep the Fraternity pure in the midst of an impure world, we must scrutinize most closely the character of every applicant for initiation. If the mystic tie encircle false brethren, the very brotherhood itself is imperilled. A weak link in the fraternal chain endangers the whole. Selfish greed or lack of moral principle, introduced through individuals into the Craft, may come in ever so easily, but it exercises an influence as baneful as it is powerful, and once in, it is difficult to eliminate. We can best exhibit our regard for the master-spirit of fraternity that distinguishes Freemasonry, above every other institution among men, by rigidly excluding all unworthy persons from sharing in its blessings.—Masonic Eclectic.

Among the many different annuals published is the Cosmopolitan Masonic Calendar. Few persons are cognizant of the difficulties attending the compilation of a work of this kind. What with the frequent changes in the times of meetings of lodges, chapters, &c., and the indifference manifested by Secretaries in furnishing information, much anxiety is occasioned in the task. The present volume contains, we are pleased to find, copious and reliable information, and deserves all the support that can be awarded it by the Masonic body.—Sunday Times.—Post free to any part of the United Kingdom on receipt of stamps or P.O.O. value 2s. Bro. Alderman D. H. Stone, was on Wednesday elected treasurer of St. Thomas's Hospital.

Masonic and General Tidings.

On Tuesday, the 6th inst., at the drill-room, Preston, Bro. Major Turner, P.G. Treas., West Lancashire, distributed the prizes won by members of the 48th (Preston) L.R.V., at the competition which took place last September at the Altcar prize meeting.

KNIGHTHOOD FOR THE EX-MAYOR OF LIVERPOOL.—An official announcement has been made that her Majesty has been graciously pleased to confer the honour of knighthood on Andrew Barclay Walker, Esq., the ex-Mayor of Liverpool. At present he has received no intimation from the Privy Council that this honour has been conferred upon him, but there is no doubt of the fact that his worship will be known in future as Sir Andrew Barclay Walker, Knight. Few men, during a brief career of public life, have done so much for the people of Liverpool as his worship. The Walker Art Gallery is a monument of princely liberality, and a desire to elevate the taste and advance the moral condition of the people; and the inhabitants of the town generally will concur in congratulating him upon this well-earned mark of distinction conferred by our Sovereign. As the crowning act of his two years' office as chief magistrate, Mr. Alderman Walker gave a fancy dress ball, at the Town Hall, on Wednesday, the 7th inst., which was attended by about 1000 guests. The gathering was probably the most brilliant ever witnessed at the Town Hall.

The Ceremony of Installation will be rehearsed in the Wellington Lodge of Instruction, at the White Swan, High-street, Deptford, on Monday next, the 19th inst., by Bro. John Shaw, P.M. 79. Lodge will be opened at 8 o'clock precisely.

The first annual banquet of the London Masonic Club Lodge of Instruction is to be held on Thursday, the 20th inst., at the Club, 101, Queen Victoria-street. Bro. C. J. Hogg, Past Grand Steward, will take the chair at 6.30 p.m. Brethren desirous of attending should communicate with Bro. J. E. Shand, 101, Queen Victoria-street, City.

The Christmas number of the Masonic Magazine will be ready on or about the 15th of December, and will consist of 96 pp. of letter-press, in addition to a handsome illuminated wrapper. The contributors to this special number include the names of many of the most celebrated Masonic writers of the present day. Full particulars, with table of contents and list of contributors will duly appear. Orders should be given at once. Price to non-subscribers One Shilling.

The annual festival of the Emulation Lodge of Improvement will take place at Freemason's Hall, on Friday evening, November 23rd, on which occasion Bro. the Right Hon. the Earl of Donoughmore, R.W. Past Senior Grand Warden, has kindly consented to preside. Bro. C. A. Merton, Past Grand D.Aron, will take the chair of the lodge, which will be opened in the Grand Hall, at six o'clock precisely.

The "Gossips' Bowl" is the title of the Christmas number of the Illustrated Sporting and Dramatic News. Miss Braddon writes the leading story, entitled "Thou Art the Man." The illustrations will include a colour-printed double-page supplement, from a painting by J. T. Lucas, entitled "Chips of the Old Block," and engravings after works (specially provided for this number), by P. R. Morris, A.R.A.; Walter Oulless, A.R.A.; Fred Barnard, George Holmes (painter of "Can't You Talk?"), John Sturges, and other artists.

LITERARY PENSION.—Dr. George Macdonald, the author of "Alec Forbes" and many novels and poems, has been awarded a pension of £100 a year on the Civil List.

The Fifteen Sections will be worked in the Southern Star Lodge of Instruction, No. 1158, on Thursday, the 22nd inst., at seven p.m.

The numerous Masonic and other friends of Bro. W. J. Ashcroft, a member of the Upton Lodge, No. 1227, who is known almost universally as "the Solid Man," has just returned from America, will be pleased to hear that he has been completely restored to good health, and for the last fortnight he has been fulfilling one of the most successful engagements on record at the New Star Music Hall, Liverpool, so admirably managed by Bro. D. Saunders, Lodge 1609 (Dramatic).

The Mayor of Hastings, Bro. Alderman Howell, in proposing "The Health of the Prince and Princess of Wales, and the rest of the Royal Family," at the Mayor's banquet, on Nov. 9th, said—"All who knew how admirably the Prince had performed his duties, and how the Princess won golden opinions from all sides, and endeared, in fact were the whole of the Royal Family to the hearts of Englishmen. For himself he was proud to say that he was one of those who could call Albert Edward not only prince but brother. He had the honour of assisting at the great gathering at which the Prince presided at the head of English Masonry. In these days, when they heard so much of the dangers abroad from secret societies, they could point to England, with the future King at the head of Masonry, and the highest nobles of the land among the members."

On Monday last the Rev. Dr. Brette, P.M., No. 1460, and Past Provincial Grand Chaplain, Middlesex, was unanimously elected Worshipful Master of the Aldersgate Lodge, No. 1657.

MASONIC SONGS.—A selection of Masonic Songs set to popular airs, written by Bro. E. P. Philpotts, M.D., F.R.G.S., is now ready, forming a handsome volume, bound in cloth, with gilt edges; 3s. Sent post free from the office of this paper on receipt of stamps or post-office order value 3s. 2d.—Advt.

The Lord Mayor acknowledged on Tuesday last the receipt of £4 6s. 6d. from the Freemason Indian Famine Fund.

IMPERIAL LODGE, No. 1694.—The consecration of this lodge, which we understand is to be a private one, took place on Wednesday last, at the Cadogan Hotel, Sloane-street, S.W. The consecrating officer was Bro. Hervey, G.S., who was assisted by Bro. the Rev. R. J. Simpson, P.G.C., and Bro. H. G. Buss, Assistant G.S. The officers appointed were—Bro. P. H. Jones, P.M. 858, W. M.; Blennell Pollard, S.W.; and C. H. Reid Todd, J.W.

The Lord Chancellor has issued an order authorising the closing of the county courts on the 22nd, the 24th, and 26th of December.

We hear that some popular Ballad Concerts are about to be given at the Angel Town Institution, Brixton, every Saturday evening, commencing 8th December. Some well-known artists will appear. The concerts will be under the management of Bros. T. Turle Lee, and Wm. Worrell.

ROYAL MASONIC BOYS' SCHOOL.

MASONIC F.C., v. BUXTON COLLEGE.

These clubs met for the first time this season on Wednesday last, on the Masonic ground at Wood Green. The home team having won the toss chose to kick off, which was done by their captain. The forwards following up the ball well, the next five minutes was occupied by scrimmages in all of which the Masonic gained ground. Mr. Gardner by a pass from Godmark then succeeded in obtaining a try, which however he failed to convert into a goal. After some excellent play on the part of the forwards of both teams and several good runs by the school which were stopped by the good collaring of the Buxton men, Mr. Kelly after a splendid run obtained a try, which enabled Mr. Gardner to kick a goal. Before "half-time" was called Mr. Gardner got two other tries and in both cases kicked the ball over the cross-bar. Shortly after "half time," Howard by following up a good kick got a try, which however did not result in a goal. From this point till "time" three other tries were obtained, Scurr succeeding in kicking one goal and a postern. For the Masonic Messrs. Gardner, Kelly, Howard and Parker, while for the Visitors Messrs. Domeneck, Meakin, and Williams played well, Williams being particularly distinguished for collaring. When time was called the Masonic were the victors by 4 goals, 3 "tries," a "postern" and two "touch-downs" to nil.

MASONIC.—Hart, (back 1 try), Messrs. Gardner, (4 tries) and Kelly, (1 try) (4 backs), Parker and Ellis (4 backs), Godmark, (capt.) Scurr, Davies, Molineaux, Howard, (2 tries), W. Sparkes, H. Wood, Eastland, Mr. Humphrey and Mr. G. Gardner (forwards).

BUXTON.—Rundle, (back), Domeneck and Webb, (4 backs), Meakin and Williams (4 backs), Duncan, Davies, Dupuy, Wesham Cave, Edwards, Hicks, Clarke, Bracombe and Etherton (forwards).

BEES v. MASONIC F.C.

In somewhat boisterous weather, the above clubs met for the first time on the ground of the Bees, at Finsbury Park, the ground being in a lamentable condition which made it almost an impossibility to stand. The Masonic having won the toss, chose to play against the wind, then blowing almost a gale. The leather was put in motion by the Bees' captain, at 3.55; the first fifteen minutes play was occupied chiefly in scrimmage, when Kelly got away and after a good run, obtained a try for the visitors, which Mr. Gardner converted into a goal; before half-time three other tries were obtained, only one of which, however, resulted in a goal, as Kelly's punt from the goal line in one case was a failure. During the second half-time three more tries were obtained, from which the ball was once placed over the tape by Scurr, it being really a difficult matter to kick with anything like precision owing to the mud and wind. For the Masonic Messrs. Gardner, Kelly, Godmark, Parker, and Ellis played well, while for the Bees Messrs. Weir, Chant, Booth, and Greengrass did their best to avert defeat, Greengrass being especially conspicuous as quarter-back. When time was called the Masonic were winners by three goals and four tries to nil.

BEES.—W. Weir, (back), J. Chant, R. Booth, (half-backs), Greengrass, J. Weir, (quarter-backs), W. Mason, G. Smith, G. Storey, W. Callings, R. Reid, W. Whiteside, F. Pilon, C. Baker, Powell and J. Chant, (forwards).

MASONIC.—Hart, (back), Messrs. Kelly, (three tries), and Gardner, (two tries), (half-backs), Parker and Ellis, (quarter-backs), C. Godmark, (one try), F. Godmark, Messrs. Bassey, Scurr, Davies, Eastland, H. Wood, Howard, W. Sparkes, (one try), and Molineaux, (forwards).

THE REMOVAL OF TEMPLE BAR.—Late on Thursday afternoon, at a meeting of the Court of Common Council, a report was brought up from the City Lands Committee, by Mr. Rudkin, on the subject of Temple Bar, recommending that the structure should be forthwith removed, with the exception of the abutment on the northern side, which will remain until the negotiations between the government and the Corporation respecting the width of the pavement there are completed. Messrs. Child, the bankers, had liberally aided the Corporation in the improvement in this spot by voluntarily giving four feet six inches along the whole line of their frontage into the public way. This will enable a foot-path of 10 feet to be constructed on the southern side, and a wide roadway for four carriages; in the middle of which roadway it is contemplated to erect a pillar or obelisk to mark the site of the old Bar, with a rest for pedestrians crossing the Strand. The report was carried without opposition.—Evening Standard.

Reviews.

"The Mysteries of the Bible Dates solved by the Great Pyramid;" by William Rowbottom, W. H. Guest, 24, Paternoster Row.

We have opened the above work with much interest, and perused it with carefulness, but we have laid it down, we confess, in a considerable haze of mental understanding, so to say.

Admitting that much, very much, which the writer advances, may have a great deal to commend it to the mind of the ethnological or archaeological student, we cannot so far, grasp the data on which Bro. Rowbottom, as we believe we may term him, arrives at his facts, much less his conclusions. We search in vain for any evidence by which he is enabled to assign to the Great Pyramid a pre-Tower-of-Babel erection, and we feel bound to say that so far as the Great Pyramid itself may be considered a "factor" in the solution of Bible dates, any such theory if ingenious and lively is at any rate so far "in nubibus," and altogether "not proven." We wish we could assent to many of the suggestions of Bro. Rowbottom. But we fear that they can neither be historically accepted, nor logically proved. We hold, too, that there is a great deal of loose, unscientific, inaccurate, sentimental, mystical, "exegesis" afloat just now, as regards especially the monumental, or mystical history of the Bible, and that Bro. Rowbottom, with good intentions, has dipped into the wake of that unsatisfactory school of interpretation and explanation, which after all, does not advance the cause of truth, or uphold the reality of the Bible Story. Neither the one nor the other can be helped in our opinion, by sentimental theories, however elaborate and ingenious, or unscientific treatment of the stern facts of history, of antiquity, maternal life, and above all, monumental evidence. We, for example, like Mr. Gladstone, utterly reject the "Hebrew absorption" theory, in the Anglo Saxon race, as most opposed to every reliable shred of indubitable evidence, the actual facts of history and ethnology. We do not deny that many of Bro. Rowbottom's speculations are very striking and attractive, but we doubt their correctness, even their utility, and we always look with jealousy on this trifling with numbers, this heaping up of imaginary coincidences, this post hoc proper hoc accommodation of supposed facts, to the salient points of history and chronology.

These remarks of ours, we beg to observe, do not proceed from any spirit of complaint against Bro. Rowbottom's peculiar theory, but simply are the "outcome" of much careful thought, and study of the very intricate and yet absorbing subjects to which he calls attention. We also think that a review of any work should be truthful and bona fide, not merely made up of sugary phrases or accommodating compliments.

When the Great Pyramid was actually built, may be still a matter of grave doubt, but we cannot accept the suggestions for many reasons, that it was either previous to or contemporaneous with the erection of the Tower of Babel. It may have had an astronomical import, and probably had, but we are much more inclined to see in it a witness of the old Egyptian mysteries.

But when we have said all this, we do not for one moment deny Bro. Rowbottom's abstract and concrete right to propound his own views, as he does ably, and very clearly, and as opinions always widely differ in this world, and there are two sides to every question, much may be said pro and con the very interesting subject he has broached in his recent work. We beg to call the attention of all Masonic students to it, as it will repay studious thought and careful perusal.

Bro. Rowbottom may fairly say, I have but followed the opinion of others in making Abraham coexistent with the great pyramid, as some you know have attributed it to Isaac, whom they term Chemis, and therefore the subject is still an open one, the more so as Professor Greaves, long ago (1646), admitted that it was difficult to affix the date, adding that some ascribed it to Nimrod, some to Israel, some to a king contemporaneous with Moses, some to a much earlier dynasty, and some even went back to mythic and pre-historic times. Good old Greaves even quotes Livy as saying "Quis rem tam veterem pro certo affirmet?" Who shall affirm so old a matter for certain? Though not then convinced ourselves, and having thought it better to express our opinion, honestly we yet feel that a good deal may be advanced by Bro. Rowbottom for his own view of the case, and that his work deserves notice and to be read.

"Lectures delivered in the Grand Lodge of Instruction in Ireland, by Bro. J. H. TOWNSEND, LL.D.," Wm. Underwood, Dublin.

These lectures, which have been published "under the sanction, and by the authority of the R.W. the Grand Lodge of Ireland," will well repay both study and perusal. They are ably written and clearly expressed, and mark the productions of a Mason and a scholar.

We agree with them both in substance and in scope, and they appear very seasonably just now, when so much false teaching is abroad afloat. Whether as regards the exact principles of Freemasonry, its dogmatic declarations, such as they are, its moral teaching, and its practical efforts, we have felt for some time that the struggle has to be fought out by us, and that Anglo-Saxon Freemasonry must come to the fore, and declare openly and fraternally its solemn determination, to uphold the unchanging and unaltered landmarks of Freemasonry.

These, inter alia, we hold strongly to be these, the fatherhood of God, and the brotherhood of man; the morality of the Bible, the ceaseless avowal of toleration, justice, humanity, and brotherly love. To suppose, as some seem to do, that Freemasonry is mere humanitarianism is a sad mistake. To seek to set our moral teaching, as Dr. Townsend ably and conclusively shews on mere natural morality, (if such a thing exists), must be productive of most serious consequences. Freemasonry rests its teaching alone on the Divine Law, and without that sacred basis, all our beautiful language would be but as "sounding brass or a tinkling cymbal." We are glad therefore, at a time when foreign Freemasonry is over-run by the platitudes of the Positivists or disgraced by the "Anomia" of the "Morale Independante," by the specious errors of rationalists or even the absurdities of materialistic infidels, to find such true and sound and wholesome teaching clearly avowed and manfully laid down by our distinguished brother, under the sanction of the Grand Lodge of Ireland, and we recommend this little work to the notice of all our readers.

"The Dietetic Reformer."

The "Dietetic Reformer" for November is immensely amusing, reaching an extreme of absurdity that we should hardly have thought possible. The inferences drawn from the Darwinian theory of evolution are so ludicrous, as to make us wonder whether it is not a "skit" intended to take a rise out of the credulous.

We understand that the work will be fully reviewed in the January number of the "Masonic Magazine."

SKETCHES OF MASONIC CHARACTER. No. XIII. BRO. PLUMMER AT HOME.

We conclude these random sketches of ours to-day, and trust that they have been and will be received by our kindly Craft with gentle criticism and fraternal feeling. They were hastily thrown off, to fill up a vacant column of the Freemason, and are nothing more than they profess to be, slight "crayon" sketches of some good brethren of ours, whom we have known in the flesh, many of whom we have liked greatly, many of whom we have mourned sincerely. Time as it leaves all here always recalls to the thoughtful mind old scenes and old friends. We re-people the busy or lonely lot to-day with the forms and fancies, the voices and vanities, of other days; and go where we will, be what we may, he must be a very cold, ungenial, unsympathetic individual, to whom ancient if vanished mates have no friendly voices, for whom faded if distant hours have no "souvenirs."

We may add this—that these rough and hasty sketches, however unpretending or valueless in themselves, have just this one merit and advantage. They are not only strictly true as sketches of a few contemporary Masons, but they have been coloured, however feebly, in the truest spirit of fraternal good-will and regard. Ours has been no pen "dipped in gall," we have imparted no secrets, and betrayed no confidences, we have not even intruded into the arena of public or descended the area of private life, we have not "rung the 'hairey bell,'" nor made the name of our friends open and clear as "the blush of day." Whether others recognised our feeble portraits or not, we think we do ourselves, which is, we venture to believe, quite enough for us, and let us hope for our readers.

Plummer is a very active officer of the good Lodge "Leviathan." He is its "Senior Deacon," and is said confidentially, as Bro. Wigginson tells us, to "keep the lodge together," "to do all the work," and to be the needful, if not the "coming man" in that old and famous lodge.

How many lodges are there which boast of a Bro. Plummer, and how often in life is it true, as in this society or that, without the indispensable mortal nothing could or would go right. Does our own recollection supply us with no data even now, to prove how true is that mundane condition of affairs, and how men and things, as well as lodges and institutions, depend on the man of the circumstance or the exigencies of the hour. We sometimes think that we live, as some one has said, in an age of "aggregation." We too often forget that the history of the world, and of men, yes, and of Masonry, is after all only the record of individualism. It is the individual man who has done the most and the greatest work in this old world of ours, just as it is the individual Mason who keeps his lodge in activity and advances the light of Masonry. But as this is a hobby of our own, and it runs counter somewhat to one of the most popular fallacies of the day, belief in numbers, we think better to hold our hand for fear of coming to grief.

Bro. Plummer has a wife, who, though a most excellent woman and an admirable consort, does not altogether approve of Bro. Plummer's lodge evenings. He sometimes is a little too late for that good lady, who, in consequence, speaks her mind pretty freely to our worthy brother. Plummer came home late from a glorious meeting of the "Leviathan" the other evening in a very genial frame of mind. He had thoroughly enjoyed himself. Had he not heard Bros. Fushos and Lockitt, and Harkaway, and Upperton, and McWhaler, and O'Dowd, all dilate eloquently on the ineffable value of Freemasonry, the reality of its principles, and the sincerity of the brethren. He threw away his cigar, as he drew near No. 99, "in our square," drew forth his latch-key, meaning to let himself in and go upstairs quietly, and astorish Mrs. Plummer. Vain often are the hopes of mortals. Mrs. Plummer had fastened the door chain, and poor Plummer had to ring quietly and timidly, for he foresaw a coming hurricane. The door is opened slowly. Mrs. Plummer, like a Roman matron, "en peignoir" welcomes the erratic if gay-hearted Plummer with these emphatic, though disjointed remarks, in a somewhat rapid utterance: "A nice time to come home, Bro. Plummer; a quarter-past twelve; have you been at your lodge all this time? Don't make a noise, or you'll disturb the children; permit me to take your Masonic clothing; you had better come and sit in the morning room before you go upstairs; I have been sitting up alone for three long hours." What can a poor man or brother say or do under such pathetic circumstances?

How Bro. Plummer got over the incidents of that eventful night we know not, but this we do know, that Mrs. Plummer had a most becoming gown and striking bonnet on next Sunday at church which no one had ever seen before, and which were the admiration as well as the envy of all her dearest female friends. If any of our readers, male or feminine, fraternal or unfraternal, can discern any explanation under the circumstances, from the facts here recorded for their edification, we hope that they will do so, and that it will give them the same satisfaction it undoubtedly gave Sister Plummer, and has assuredly given us.

NOTES ON ART, &amp;c.

ART IN HOSPITALS.—A correspondent writes as follows:—"You may like to know how the pictures you sent me some months ago (in answer to my request for a parcel for hospitals and orphanages in India) were distributed, and how they were received. They were divided among eleven hospitals in the three Presidencies, three orphanages, St. John's College, Agra, a good school, and a few mission houses. The portraits of the Queen were mostly coloured before being sent out, and they have given satisfaction. Dr. Coates, of the Medical College Hospital, Calcutta, writes: 'Our bare walls have often been a source of regret to me; these pictures have much relieved them, and I hope will gladden some of the sick for many years.' Dr. Elliot, of the Presidency General Hospital, Calcutta, says: 'I beg to thank you very much in the name of the General Hospital for the pictures kindly sent for beautifying the walls of the institution; they are most acceptable, and I hope you will express the warmest thanks of all connected with the Presidency General Hospital.' I might multiply extracts from the fifteen acknowledgments I have already had, but I trust these will show how gratefully your gifts were received." Perhaps some of our readers who possess prints and illustrations might feel encouraged by these statements to forward them to the numerous hospitals and charitable institutions with which our country and its colonies abound.

MARY, QUEEN OF SCOTS.—Mr. Raphael Tuck, of 177, City Road, has lately published an admirable oleograph from Siebel's painting of the last moments of this unfortunate lady. The work is well worthy of examination, as showing the high degree of perfection now attained in this particular branch of art, which, though often maligned, affords for those who are fond of colour, and who cannot pay for costly oil-paintings, a very effective substitute.

A CENTENARIAN PAUPER.—At the last meeting of the Board of Guardians at Lampeter an old woman applied for relief whose age was 99 years 11 months and one week. The old woman looked hale and hearty, and was evidently in the full possession of all her faculties. Her ground of application for relief was that she did not now "feel able to support herself."

THE LATE M. GUSTAVE BRION.—This talented painter, who was executing the illustrations in the Graphic to "The History of a Crime," died suddenly at Paris on Sunday in a fit of apoplexy. We will reserve any detailed biography of M. Brion, as we hope to publish his portrait, but we may mention that he was only fifty-three years of age, and was well-known in England by his pictures of "A Wedding in Alsace," "Wood-cutters of the Black Forest," "Bretons at a Church Door," "A Funeral in the Vosges," and many other works. The illustrations of "The Arrested Representatives Marching Through the Streets," was probably the last work which emanated from his pencil.—Graphic.

PARIS EXHIBITION, 1878.—Messrs. Thomas Cook and Son inform us that in consideration of the services which they rendered to the British Executive throughout the Vienna Exhibition of 1873 they have been appointed exhibitors' passenger agents for the British section of the Paris Exhibition. Mr. Cunliffe Owen, in communicating the appointment, says:—"The principal object which his Royal Highness, as President of the Royal Commission for the Exhibition, has in view is the reduction of the passenger rates in favour specially of the exhibitors, their assistants and workmen, who may be visiting Paris throughout the course of the next year."

Woodcocks have appeared in England this autumn much earlier than usual, and several couples have already been shot in the woodbanks near Godstone.

The Chrysanthemums in the Temple Gardens are now in full bloom, and owing to the mild weather make a very good show this year. There are the usual three varieties—the Japanese, the anemone, and the quilled chrysanthemums, besides the pompones, and the white and yellow blooms predominate, some of the white quilled being especially beautiful. Several Japanese of a pinkish-lilac tint are also very fine.

A new Room in the Paris Louvre has been opened, containing ancient American curiosities.

"Helen's Babies" has been dramatised for the American stage.

Constitutions of the Ancient Fraternity of Free and Accepted Masons, containing the Charges, Regulations, E.A. Song, &c. A copy should be in the possession of every brother. It may be obtained for 2s. at the office of the Freemason, or will be sent post free to any part of the United Kingdom on receipt of twenty-five penny stamps. Address, Publisher, 198, Fleet-street London.—ADVT.

THE RECENT RESOLUTION OF THE IRISH GRAND LODGE.

The Irish Grand Lodge has spoken, and we venture to think well and wisely. We are much pleased to observe that the views we have from time to time expressed in this crisis, and the dangers we have sought carefully to point out, have so deeply impressed the authorities of the Grand Lodge of Ireland, as to have drawn from them a seasonable protest and a very becoming resolution. Indeed, we do not see, as we have often said before, what other course the Grand Lodges in England, Ireland, Scotland, the Canadas, and the United States have to take, or can take. The Grand Orient of Egypt, we are also happy to observe, has had the courage to make a similar avowal. That such a course is both advisable and needful, a little consideration will, we think, convince us all. The French Grand Orient has now, alas! fulfilled Monsieure Dupanloup's prophecy, and has boldly taken out from its Constitutions any recognition of belief in T.G.A.O.T.U. In so doing it has cut itself loose from the traditions of French Freemasonry, from the whole fabric of Anglo-Saxon Freemasonry, and from the undeniable teaching of Cosmopolitan Freemasonry. It has most unwisely, and most unreasonably, as we think, endorsed the mistaken views of an active and somewhat unscrupulous section of French Freemasonry, and has practically upheld the unsound objections of "Positiviste" Professors, and the unintellectual avowal of Massol's "Morale Independante." Practically, the profession of French Freemasonry is now, nothing but moral nihilism and avowed atheism. An actual Atheist may now be admitted into French Freemasonry, and remembering what has been stated by Bro. Behr and others in the French Grand Orient itself, what is put forward, what admitted elsewhere, we cannot but entertain the greatest fears for the future of French Freemasonry, we cannot but profess the gravest doubts as to the legal position and Masonic character of the French Grand Orient itself. We do not and cannot conceive that under such circumstances, and such an unsatisfactory position of affairs, any English, or Irish, or Scotch, or American, or Canadian Masons can enter the French lodges either with safety to themselves, or with honour to the Craft, and we therefore quite sympathize with all the proper considerations, which have prompted and produced the last resolution of the Irish Grand Lodge. In all probability, we think that the English and Scottish Grand Lodges will follow suit, and we feel certain that across the Atlantic there will be an universal feeling of reprobation of the recent act of the Grand Orient of France, which is neither fair nor tolerant, befitting or Masonic. It is, in fact, a yielding to pressure from without. It is more or less a political act, emanating from a political party, and conceived in the worst spirit of those dark and dangerous days, which gave such a shock to true liberty and peaceful civilization, and have only apparently aided the cause of sceptical astuteness and retrograde barbarism. Why the French Grand Orient could not go on its Masonic career and work in peace we never yet could understand. There has apparently been an extreme and unquiet party at work for some time in its midst, which has sought to assimilate Freemasonry, which knows nothing of politics, to party coteries and "Esprits forts." The "Libres Penseurs" as they are called, have for the time got the upper hand, and the Grand Orient of France, between the Scylla and Charibdis of infidelity and communism, of unbelief and politics, appears likely to go to pieces. Yes, we repeat the good Ship Freemasonry in France seems to be driving on to a lee shore; heavy breakers are ahead, the helm is shattered, the steersman is washed overboard, and the crew are in panic and bewilderment. We therefore cordially hail the resolution of the Irish Grand Lodge, which interdicts to all reverent and religious Irish Freemasons an entrance into lodges in France in which they are ashamed or afraid to acknowledge the name of T.G.A.O.T.U., and we trust that the Grand Lodges of England and Scotland will follow this good example, and that the Grand Lodges of Canada and the United States will imitate such needful proceedings. For there is no good, we feel, in being any longer reticent or mealy mouthed. The recent proceedings of the Grand Orient are as unrighteous as they are unmasonic, and our French brethren must be told so in plain language, and in terms of kindly but fraternal severity. It is impossible but that all Anglo-Saxon Masons must be deeply hurt by, and sincerely deplore the conclusion of that sorry fanaticism and the result of much ill-omened agitation which isolates French Freemasonry, and separates it, let us hope not for long, from over a million of faithful Freemasons.

THE LAST GRAND CHAPTER.

We have read the record of the last Grand Chapter with much pleasure and approval, for we are quite sure that in granting the charters for the Bayard and Wanderer Lodge Chapters Grand Chapter has come to a sound resolution, and exercised a most wise discretion. We confess to be among those who always doubted the expediency of that resolution of Grand Chapter to which so much allusion was made. We do not often disagree with our good Bro. Joseph Smith, but we cannot coincide with his line of argument in respect of this question. He does not appear to see any hardship in a lodge not having a chapter attached to it; neither does he consider it any anomaly, if the brethren who wish for exaltation have to go to other chapters. No doubt such has been the custom in London and in some large towns, but we never could see the force or reason of such a state of things. We, on the contrary, hold strongly that any lodge which wishes to have a chapter attached to it should be permitted to have one, of course supposing, of which there is happily no fear now, that there are sufficient Principals to keep the chapter in working order. We are among those who have always valued and admired our Royal Arch Grade, and we rejoice to think how far more widely it is appreciated by Craftsmen than used to be the case, say twenty-five years ago. It is in the interest of the Grand Chapter of Royal Arch Masons, and we will add Craft Masonry, that all possible extension should be given to the Royal Arch, and that the legitimate requests of lodges should be granted for charters to chapters. Indeed, we are among those who for various reasons think that every lodge ought to have a Royal Arch Chapter attached to it. We are aware that some good men and true think differently on this subject, and differ widely from our views on the matter, but as we have never seen cause to change our deliberate conviction, now of many years, and the very progress of Craft Masonry seems to confirm our humble ideas on the subject we hold to them more strongly than ever, we congratulate, therefore, the Grand Chapter on the practical good sense by which its deliberations have been marked, and we feel certain that its decision, which all will hail with pleasure, will greatly advance amongst us the happy progress of the Royal Arch system. The only possible objection that can be urged is that to which Bro. Joseph Smith adverted, the want of interest in the Royal Arch as compared with Craft Masonry, but that, we believe, is a state of things greatly improved in the last few years. There is no part of our system which to our mind deserves more support and commendation than the Royal Arch system, and we hail gladly the prospect now before us of a rapid increase of the number of Royal Arch Chapters amongst us. It will be, as we believe, of much benefit to English Freemasonry in every way.

LABOUR AND REFRESHMENT.

It is often alleged against Freemasons that they are a little too fond of the latter, and easily induced to give up the former. We however, beg to deny the "soft impeachment." There are no doubt, amongst our body, (as in every walk in life), certain worthy individuals whose zeal for labour is limited, and whose enjoyment of refreshment is abounding. We do not for a moment deny that in other days, and even at this hour, many of our lodge arrangements, our Masonic working, and our Masonic aesthetics, are made to subserve to the imperious requirements of the festive board or culinary considerations. Perhaps there are not a few even amongst us to whom the lodge symposium has much more interest than the lodge work, and for whom all the well-known and cherished accessories of our ancient and elevated ritual are often tedious and not unfrequently trying. For them the only really happy moment is, when the bustling Tyler or the energetic Steward proclaims "Dinner is ready, brethren." But these we venture to believe, constitute the few among the many. In all societies of men, as in the wondrous hive, we may find the bees and the drones, yes, and even also the wasps, and to suppose that Freemasonry is perfection, or that Freemasons are impeccable, is to violate every canon of common sense, is to be oblivious altogether of the countless weaknesses of humanity. But in the next place we wish to point out that after all refreshment is a necessary and natural sequence of labour. We must never forget that Freemasonry has its social side, and a very good thing is Masonic sociality, if not of course, carried to extremes. Freemasonry, among other moral graces and virtues, fitly recommends moderation, and as Freemasons, we always endeavour to strike the golden mean as between the two extremes, excess and asceticism. We do not suppose that any one really ever can argue seriously that under any circumstances the old world theory is tenable, which would condemn us to a total abstinence from the good things of this world, on high religious grounds. Our religion is to be shewn in our moderation and self-control, not in utter self-abnegation of all those things which may be a temptation, a snare, and a danger to us. Otherwise in truth, those old Monastic Orders were right, (but which proposition few could safely, we think, uphold now), which went out of the world altogether, because afraid of its temptations, its enjoyments, and its excesses. So also that unwise teaching might be held to be correct, which would hold up dirt and debasement, the entire absence of washing the person, for instance, to be token of a chastened spirit of true religion. Such a theory might have suited a darker day of personal superstition and intellectual suppression, but it cannot, we think, endure the light of this nineteenth century, or coexist with the progress of right reason, common sense, nay true religion in the world. Some of the heroes and heroines of a fictitious code of morals and manners of life and purity, are, to our mind, (dull dogs as we are) very dirty and common-place personages indeed, and we never can be led to believe that T.G.A.O. T.U. is honoured in any way, or his kingdom advanced among men, by usages which seem to border on Fetishism, or by observances which belong to a dormant intellect or a debased humanity. Indeed, it is a mockery on all true religion, to term any such excesses of hyper-fanaticism anything else but degrading mockeries of glorious truths, of saving words, of a living morality, of Religion gladdening, ennobling, elevating restoring man. While then, we condemn all excess, we feel bound to uphold that reasonable enjoyment of Masonic sociability which gives a zest to labour, and adds pleasant links to a wide-extending far-encircling friendship. We ourselves have found many fast friends, and spent very many pleasant hours in the inner circle of this or that good lodge. Time has run on smoothly or roughly with us all, as the case may be, but many of us have looked forward to our lodge meeting, month by month, as a gracious renewal of amicable interest, as a seasonable refresher of ancient sympathies. We meet as brethren, work as brethren, we gather round the social board as brethren, we part as brethren, and when the lodge is over and the gathering has separated for distant homes or neighbouring abodes, that has been a most unsuccessful and inauspicious assembly, let us believe, in which the ancient bonds of living sympathy have not received encouragement and confirmation. Let us not then be ashamed that in our lodges we still keep up the good old custom of hospitality, the virtues of kindness, interest, personal regard and individual friendship. One of the greatest gifts of T.G.A.O.T.U. to man is Friendship, and may its peaceful and pleasant union ever be maintained and cemented by us as Freemasons, and may geniality, and moderation, ever distinguish the social assemblies of Freemasonry.

THE SURREY MASONIC CLUB.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

At length there seems to be a prospect that the vicissitudes through which the Surrey Masonic Hall has passed will result in a satisfactory disposal of the building to the purposes for which it has been erected; and that, after all, it will become a useful adjunct to the Craft, and a credit and an ornament to the Masonic Order.

It is unnecessary to dilate upon the difficulties which have surrounded the undertaking from its inception; and it would be unwise to too closely criticise the hitherto lukewarmness of the South Metropolitan brethren generally, and the action of the directors of the late company, which together have impeded the progress of the work. Suffice it to say that the entire building is now in the hands, and under the control, of one or more persons thoroughly interested in all that concerns the good of Freemasonry, and that he or they intend to afford to all members of the Order at least the opportunity of proving that they are ready to practically evidence that unity of purpose which so many of them have professed.

As a first step to this desideratum, the Surrey Masonic Club has been started under excellent auspices, and will commence business on the 1st of December next. I hope you will give me space to enlarge on the facilities afforded by the building itself for the successful carrying on of such an undertaking, and on the reasons why it should have unqualified support from the numerous brethren connected with the important district having the Surrey Masonic Hall for its centre.

And first, as to the building. It is situated in a main road from Westminster Bridge southward, close to the Camberwell Station of a railway connecting Victoria with the heart of the city, from either of which places it is but a quarter of an hour's journey. It possesses a spacious and comfortable Temple, fitted with all the necessary lodge furniture and accessories for the perfect working of our ceremonies, together with ante-rooms and a large dining-room contiguous thereto. There are also rooms to be set apart for the use of the club, as reading-room, smoke-room, and billiard-room, with all proper offices, and cellars for storage of wines and provisions; and, though last not least, the large hall itself, capable of accommodating comfortably 800 persons, and which, it is to be hoped, will speedily be required for Masonic purposes only, and not, (to quote the "Sphinx") for "mendicis, mimis, balatrones, hoc genus omne." So much for the excellent accommodation which can be afforded, as well for direct Masonic uses as for those of the new club.

Reasons why the Surrey Masonic Club should be thoroughly supported are as "plentiful as blackberries," but I fear to risk your refusal of space by attempting to state them in extenso. Let me name a few of the principal, leaving my readers to supply others according to their individual opinions.

Freemasons only will be admitted as members, and, consideration being given to their payments as subscribers to their several lodges, the club subscription has been fixed at only half-a-guinea per annum. From and after the 1st of January next a joining fee of half-a-guinea will be required from each new member, but prior to that date all who may be accepted on proposition and ballot will be admitted without joining fee. The club will be proprietary, and no member will have monetary responsibility beyond the amount of his subscription. For this subscription the use of reading-room, supplied with leading newspapers, reviews, magazines, and periodicals, together with a first-class circulating library, smoke-room, billiard-room, and general conveniences, will be at the daily service of each member, from eleven o'clock in the forenoon until nearly midnight. Arrangements will be made for the supply of refreshments under regulations carefully framed to secure a proper use, and prevent the abuse, of those necessities to social enjoyment; and the whole conduct of the club will be under the control of a general committee, selected annually from among the members, and for whose actions in relation thereto the proprietary will accept all responsibility.

With such advantages as are above stated may not the promoters of this club fairly expect that they will have the support of many hundreds of their brethren, and by means of their aggregate subscriptions enable the proprietor, or proprietors, of the Surrey Masonic Hall to devote the entire building to the sole use of the Craft; whilst the income from other indirect sources might well maintain the club itself? I look upon this opportunity for securing the hall as a place for Masonic purposes only as the chief reason for the united efforts of the South Metropolitan brethren. Another important reason is that by the congregating of the members of numerous lodges in the general society of the club, the grand principles of our Order will be promoted to an extent beyond the power of each individual section of the Craft. And, again, the oft reiterated desire to separate our lodge meetings from the baneful influence of the ordinary tavern will be consummated. These are but a few of the many arguments which might be adduced in favour of the project, and these for the present must suffice.

Now for a practical reply from the brethren themselves! The club is formed by fifty members, from amongst whom fifteen well-known Masons have been selected for general management during the ensuing year. It will open on the 1st of December next, and up to the 1st of January, 1878, candidates may be admitted without joining fee. If by the latter date there are not at least 300 members enrolled, I, for self and many others, say, that all the talk of the past few years as to the necessity for the hall, and the support which should be given "when it was erected," is but as — "A tale

Told by an idiot, full of sound and fury, Signifying nothing!"

I am, dear Sir and Brother, yours very truly and fraternally,
Clapham, Nov. 10th, 1877. P.M., P.Z.

THIRD CLASS BY ALL TRAINS.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In August last you kindly inserted a letter from me on this subject, and in a foot note stated you quite approved of the proposal. You will be pleased to see that the suggestion has been taken up by the right man in the right place, viz., the Mayor of Derby, who has written the following letter to one of the London papers.

MR. ALLPORT.

To the Editor of the Standard.

Sir,—I think it will be conceded that, if cheap and rapid locomotion be a boon to the people, a deep debt of public gratitude is due to Mr. James Allport, the general manager of the Midland Railway. This gentleman has, throughout a long and exceptionally active life (devoted to railway organisation and direction), upheld, unflinchingly and ungrudgingly, the interests of the poorer sort of travellers. It is owing to him that third class coaches attached to all trains, so that the advantages to be obtained by fast trains at low fares, were placed within the reach of that considerable section of the community which was too much neglected in the infancy of railway legislation.

In making known to you the fact that the nucleus of a committee (entirely unconnected with the Midland Railway) is now forming at Derby—the centre of the Midland system—for the purpose of enabling the admirers of Mr. Allport to combine in presenting him with a testimonial which, if raised by small individual subscriptions, shall be in every way a general recognition of his public spirited policy, I venture to ask your invaluable aid. If the Lord Mayor could be prevailed upon to lend his powerful assistance to the fulfilment of this object, his lordship's example would, doubtless, be followed by provincial mayors throughout the kingdom.

Your very faithful servant,
WM. HIGGINSBOTTOM, Mayor of Derby.
Town-hall, Derby, November 3rd.

As the proposer of the testimonial I must thank you for allowing me to bring the same before the public through the medium of the Freemason.

Yours fraternally, GRATITUDE.

LODGES OF INSTRUCTION V. PRECEPTORS.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I should like to be informed by you, and by some old Preceptors and P.M.'s, of the precise position of a Preceptor in a lodge of Instruction.

1. Is he anything more than the instructor and the adviser as regards the rituals?
2. Has he a right to make bye-laws of his own?
3. Can he prevent any member bringing propositions before the members, provided they have no connexion with the ritual?
4. Can he alter rituals on the pretence that they are out of date? and
5. If he is an honorary member, has he the right of voting on matters not connected with rituals, and if he has that right, is it decent or prudent for him to exercise such a right.

Yours fraternally, G. M.

PAST GRAND PURSUIVANTS.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I still differ from you regarding the past rank of Provincial Grand Pursuivants. I take from your quotation from the Constitutions, "The Grand Wardens and subordinate Provincial Grand Officers * * * shall possess within their district the rank and privileges of Grand Officers." That is to say that a Provincial Grand Warden shall possess the rank and privileges of a Grand Warden, and a Provincial Grand Pursuivant those of a Grand Pursuivant. Now it is not one of the privileges of a Grand Pursuivant to be entitled to past rank, ergo it cannot be one of the privileges of a Provincial Grand Pursuivant.

If the Constitutions are open to different interpretations of this matter, surely the best way of deciding the question will be to refer it to the Grand Secretary.

Yours fraternally, A. T.

MANCHESTER.—For the information of the fraternity in Manchester, the publisher begs to state that the Freemason may now be obtained at 47, Bridge-st., Manchester, on Friday evening at 7 o'clock.

THE "MACE FUND."

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

We have much pleasure in announcing that Mr. Mace has taken a Second Class in his recent Theological Examination at Cambridge, and that he purposes taking Holy Orders at the next ensuing ordination to be held in December. We feel sure that so satisfactory a result cannot but be highly gratifying to all subscribers to the "Mace Fund," and to the friends and supporters of our Boys' School. We are therefore anxious to complete the objects of the Fund, and to raise a sufficient sum to pay the balance of his college and tutorial expenses, and to give him a start in his new career.

Whilst thanking you for past support, and soliciting your further co-operation in this final appeal.

We are Dear Sir and Brother, yours faithfully and fraternally,

W. F. PORTLOCK DADSON, Treasurer.

FREDK. BINCKES, Sec. R.M.I.B.

N.B.—As Captain Portlock Dadson will shortly leave England, Wm. Pairs, Esq., 8, Duke-street, St. James's, one of the Trustees, will be happy to receive and acknowledge subscriptions.

LODGES IN TAVERNS.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,

The letter of "A Sincere Mason," in the Freemason of the 10th inst., under the above heading, merits the attention of every sincere Mason. The remedy for the evil complained of is in the hands of the Masons themselves, and by a little co-operation the evil would soon disappear, and Masonry be freed from the imputation referred to by your correspondent.

Private Masonic Clubs and Halls are established in most provincial towns, where lodges can and do meet, and free from the influence of taverns and tavern proprietors.

London, hitherto has been without a private Masonic Club. It now has one in every way suitable for the meeting of numerous lodges, and if Masons are sincere in their desire to remedy the evil arising from holding lodges at taverns they have it in their power to do so by meeting at the London Masonic Club, where they will find every facility and accommodation for such meetings.—I am, dear Sir and Brother, yours fraternally,

JOHN GEORGE DUNN.

Secretary.

London Masonic Club,
101, Queen Victoria-street, E.C.

P.S.—The following lodges have already availed themselves of the benefits offered by the London Masonic Club: The Felicity, 58; Pilgrim, 238; Langton, 1673; Felicity Chapter; London Masonic Club Lodge of Instruction; and the Pilgrim Lodge of Instruction.

Multum in Parbo; or Masonic Notes and Queries.

KNIGHTS TEMPLARS IN IRELAND.

Our worthy and R.W. Bro. Colonel W. J. B. MacLeod Moore, in quoting the authority of the R.W. Bro. James H. Neilson, cannot name a better with respect to the question, for it is from him that I have derived my information about the lodge in Dublin which was chartered by the "Mother Kilwinning Lodge," Scotland. I write now with the Freemason of the 30th Dec., 1876, before me, containing most interesting communication by Bro. Neilson, and a copy of a printed circular issued in 1806 by the "Grand Kilwinning Chapter of High Knights Templars of Ireland." Nowhere in the communication does Bro. Neilson say that the Kilwinning Lodge warranted any brethren to assemble as Knights Templars, but only that the warrant referred to by Bro. Fowler, "is dated 27th October, 1779, and is at present in the custody of the Irish Chancellor."

It is quite true that in the document of 1806 a claim is put forth that the "Mother Kilwinning Lodge" Scotland, did charter the "High Knights Templars" Lodge, Dublin, to work as Knights Templars, but Bro. Neilson does not say so, and would not say so, for the sufficient reason that the warrant contains no such provision, but was simply issued to a number of Masons in Dublin, to initiate, pass, and raise as Craft Masons only, the title of the lodge being the singular one of the "High Knights Templars."

I can furnish plenty of evidence in corroboration of this fact if our zealous and erudite brother wishes, for it will be a sincere pleasure to me, if able, to oblige Colonel MacLeod Moore with any details, and I trust that my friend Bro. Neilson will be equally glad to do so. Briefly then Bro. Neilson, who has examined the warrant, and Bro. D. Murray Lyon, who has carefully perused the actual records of the ancient Mother Kilwinning Lodge, concur in stating that the brethren in Dublin were only chartered as a Craft Lodge (none but Craft degrees being ever worked or authorised by the "Kilwinning Lodge"), though subsequently they started number of Degrees on their own account, assuming that the presence of the Craft warrant made all their actions legal.

I daresay Bro. Neilson will furnish a verbatim et liberatim transcript of the warrant in question, to finally settle the matter.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—Health's Fountain.—It cannot surely be necessary to remind any intelligent reader that the purity of the blood determines every individual's health and vigour. Holloway's medicine searches out the slightest taint in the vital fluid and neutralizes or expels it, so that the circulation supports the system in place of sowing the seeds of decay. When epidemics are advancing and disease is steadily on the increase, it behoves every one to have a restorative like these Pills ready to act right away irregularity in the stomach, liver, bowels, or kidneys. Holloway's treatment is especially suitable for the young, delicate, and nervous who are most susceptible of any prevailing sickness, and whom violent measures would endanger little less than the epidemic.—ADVT.

CENTENARY OF THE YORK LODGE,
NO. 236.

The centenary of this lodge was celebrated on the 6th inst., by a banquet in the De Grey Rooms, in the city of York, presided over by the W.M., Bro. William Cowling, P.M., P.P.S.G.W. North and East Yorks., supported by Bros. The Earl of Zetland, Prov. G.M.; T. W. Tew, Dep. P.G.M. West Yorks.; The Hon. W. T. Orde-Powlett, P.P.G.W.; J. W. Woodall, P.P.G.W.; H. Smith, Prov. G. Sec., West Yorks.; J. Terry, Sec. R.M. Benevolent Institution; the Wardens and other Officers of the lodge, and a large assemblage of members and visitors. The vice-chairs were occupied by Senior and Junior Wardens, Bros. Sir Jas. Meek, P.M., and W. B. Richardson, P.M. The lodge was constituted in July, 1777, by the title of the "Union" Lodge, which in the year 1870 was changed to that of the York Lodge by permission of the M.W.G.M., The Earl of Zetland, at that time the oldest member of the lodge, and it is satisfactory to record that at the completion of its centenary, the lodge is in a more flourishing and prosperous state than at any former period of its existence, and has attained a position eminently distinguished in Freemasonry. The following is a list of the brethren attending the centenary celebration.

Members of the lodge:—Bros. Wm. Cowling, P.M., P.P.S.G.W. W. M.; The Right Hon. the Earl of Zetland, P.G.M.; T. W. Tew, P.M. D.P.G.M. West Yorks.; R. W. Hollin, P.M., Past G.S.B. England; Sir James Meek, P.M., P.P.S.G.W., S.W.; W. B. Richardson, P.P.G.W. Oxford, J.W.; the Rev. J. E. W. Young, P.M., P.P.G.C., Chaplain; Wm. Lawton, P.M., P.P.G.R., Treasurer; Josh. Todd, P.M., P.P.G.S., Sec.; Alderman John March, P.M., P.P.S.G.W., S.D.; Charles Smith, P.M., P.P.G.D., J.D.; A. Davison, P.M., P.P.G.S.B., M.C.; Thos. Smurthwaite, P.M., P.P.G.W., Geo. Keely, Assist. Sec.; Thos. S. Canridge, P.P.G.O., Organist; J. Tesseymann, and G. Garbutt, Stewards; Jas. Melrose, (Lord Mayor of York); G. Balinford, P.M.; S. Maltby, P.M.; F. Rawlings, P.M.; T. B. Pressick, P.M.; Alderman J. Terry, Alderman W. Valey, (Lord Mayor elect); J. Wilkinson, (Town Clerk); Rev. W. Valentine, B. Wormald, C. Wood, C. G. Padel, H. Churchill, T. B. Whythead, J. T. Stephenson, J. J. T. Marshall, W. Rooke, J. Sampson, C. D. Barstow, J. S. Rymer, W. Thompson, M. Cooper, E. J. Inman, W. McKay, P. Matthews, J. Saville, J. Hollins, J. D. Faussett, G. Browne, G. Sellar, J. Ward, J. Shilleto, W. Flint, G. Simpson, G. Moore, J. Ayres, J. Smith, J. G. Turner, C. Abbott, A. Buckle, W. Baitye, R. S. Storey, J. W. Mann, T. G. Mann, H. Scott, G. Eastwood, T. J. Russell, O. Robinson, W. Wilson, C. Kearsley, C. Ware, J. Pickersgill, C. Walker, W. T. Gowland, A. Walker, W. Powell, E. Whitehead, W. G. Thomas, H. C. Cammidge, T. Sanderson, W. H. Gainforth, H. Aitken, E. Houlden, and J. Keswick. Visitors: Bros. J. W. Woodall, P.M., P.P.S.G.W.; Hon. W. T. Orde-Powlett, P.M., P.P.S.G.W.; Dr. Smythe, Past D.G.M. Eastern Archipelago; J. Terry, Sec. R.M. Benevolent Institution; Rev. W. C. Lukes Arpan, H. Smith, P.G. Sec. West Yorks.; S. B. Ellis, W.M. 1239; F. Ford, W.M. 204; J. M. Bottomley, W.M. 312; J. Coulson, W.M. 554; Rev. H. Greaves, W.M. 566; H. Green, W.M. 630; T. Clargh, W.M. 660; R. B. A. Wiensar, W.M. 1244; J. Anderson, W.M. 1416; A. Smith, W.M. 1042; T. Cooper, W.M. 1611; Dr. Paley, W.M. 837; S. Stead, P.M. 1042; Geo. Heuthwaite, 1042.

During the banquet a massive silver loving cup, subscribed for by the members as a memorial of the Centenary, and presented to the lodge at its last regular meeting, was passed round with the usual ceremonies, the brethren pledging "Success to the York Lodge." After dinner, the W.M. stated that the lodge had hoped to have been honoured with the presence of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, M.W.G.M., on that occasion, and that it was with extreme regret that H.R.H. found that his engagements would not permit him to be present. The Secretary then read letters of apology from Bros. the Earl of Carnarvon, Pro G.M.; Lord Skelmersdale, D.G.M.; The Marquis of Hartington; Sir H. Edwards, P.G.M. West Yorks; Sir A. W. Woods (Garter), P.G.W.; A. J. McIntyre, Grand Reg.; John Hervey, Grand Sec.; Rev. A. F. A. Woodford, P. Grand Chaplain; W. J. Hugban, P.G.D. (containing an interesting sketch of York Masonry); Dr. Bell, D.P.G.M., North and East Yorks; and other distinguished brethren, pressing their inability to be present.

The usual loyal and patriotic toasts were duly honoured, after which the W.M. gave "The Health of the Earl of Zetland, Prov. G. Master," which was received with great enthusiasm, and the Earl of Zetland suitably responded. Bro. W. B. Richardson, J.W., proposed "The Deputy P.G. Master, Dr. Bell, and the Prov. Grand Lodge," which was responded to by Bro. Woodall, P.P.G.W., who proposed "The P.G.M. of the West Riding and the P.G. Lodge of West Yorks," which was responded to by Bro. Terry, D.P.G.M. Bro. Sir James Meek, gave "The Army, Navy and Reserve Forces." Bros. Mayer, Pressick, and the Hon. W. T. Orde-Powlett replying. The Earl of Zetland in complimentary terms proposed "The Worshipful Master, and Prosperity to the York Lodge," a toast which met with a most enthusiastic reception, and the W.M., who is one of the oldest Past Masters of the lodge, and for whose services the lodge is greatly indebted, received a very cordial greeting and responded in eloquent terms. Bro. J. March, P.M., gave the "The Visitors," to which Bro. Dr. Paley replied. Bro. Dawson proposed "The Lodges of the Province," responded to by Bro. F. Ford, W.M. 294. Bro. Alderman J. Terry gave "The Past Masters of the York Lodge," to which Bro. Holden, the Senior P.M. and father of the lodge, replied, and in doing so placed in the hands of the W.M. those ancient rolls of the Constitutions of Freemasonry, which, (mainly through his exertions) has been restored to the York Lodge by the Grand Lodge of England, in order that the same may be placed with the other records, which formerly belonged to the Grand Lodge of all England at York. With the acquisition of these rolls the York Lodge has now the custody of the whole of records of the ancient Grand Lodge of York. Bro. C. D. Barstow proposed "The Lord Mayor and Corporation of York," to which the Right Hon. the Lord Mayor (Bro. J. Melrose) replied.

Bro. D. Smythe, in a long and very able speech, proposed "The Masonic Charities," and Bro. James Terry, Secretary Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, responded in an eloquent speech, and gave a most interesting account of the charities supported by the Masonic body.

After the toast the charity boxes were handed round, and a very handsome amount realised for the Institutions.

"The Wardens, and other Officers of the Lodge" was next given by Bro. Tew, and the Senior Warden, Sir Jas. Meek, responded in suitable terms.

The Tyler's toast concluded the list, and brought this highly successful celebration of the centenary of the York Lodge to a close, the whole of the proceedings being carried out in a most satisfactory manner, and the occasion cannot fail to be long remembered by those who were present.

NEW MASONIC HALL AT HAMILTON.

The following address was delivered in Lodge Beta, on the occasion of the dedication of the Masonic Hall, Hamilton, by George P. Pierce, Esq., R.W.P.G.M. of New Zealand, I.C., on the 23rd ult.:

Worshipful Sir, Officers, and Brethren,—During the eight years I have had the honour of presiding over the Craft, working under the Irish Constitution in New Zealand, this is the first time I have been called upon to execute one of the privileges of a Provincial Grand Master, namely, to consecrate a Masonic Hall. The occasion which has brought us together is not a common one. I hope, however, that it will not be long before I may have to perform this interesting ceremony in Auckland, that of dedicating a building worthy of the Craft, and of that important city. It affords me great pleasure to assist at this ceremony, as the erection of such a commodious and handsome building for the purposes of Masonry cannot but promote the convenience, comfort, and well-being of the lodge which assembles within its portals. It also affords to those living in this neighbourhood the opportunity of seeing and joining in a portion, at all events, of a Masonic ceremony, and proves to the outer world that though Freemasons may have secrets peculiar to themselves, still there is nothing in those secrets subversive of the peace and good order of society. Time will not permit me, even had I the ability, to enter into any lengthy exposition of the tenets of our Order. I trust that before long you will possess a well-stocked library of Masonic books; and by that means you will be able to drink deeply from that stream of knowledge which has been collected by the wise and good of all ages and countries for our advancement and instruction. Of the origin of Freemasonry there are various theories. We are reminded that it is as old as man himself; that as we were all brought into the world weak, naked, and helpless, and were destined to live among our fellows, requiring assistance and support, therefore, the Supreme Ruler of the Universe inspired us with the holy desire that we must needs do unto others as we would have them do unto us. Hence, from the remotest times has been transmitted to us the necessity of mutual love and help in misfortune. Masonry teaches us to face danger with fortitude, to appreciate and love truth and openness, to condemn falsehood and hypocrisy, to fly to the relief of the indigent, reaching out a helping hand towards the bed of sickness and the home of the unfortunate, to abhor tyranny, to repudiate vanity and superstition, and to see in one's fellow, whatever his rank or fortune, a moral being in every respect our equal, if only he is virtuous. Whatever might wound the cherished belief of a brother we are taught to avoid. Hence, no allusion to matters of religious controversy is permitted in our assemblies. Masonry engages herself in no political discussions. She grows and flourishes under all forms of government. "Kings are her nursing fathers," and princes continue to preside over our lodges. She flourishes best where the grateful air of liberty is most freely breathed. Masonry is a moral Order established with the laudable object of perfecting the moral part of men, through the practice of the virtues. The great founder of Christianity said, "A new commandment I give unto you, that ye love one another;" and such is the precept of Freemasonry. Noble testimony has been borne at various times to the real value of our institution, by men entitled to speak with authority upon the subject. A few instances selected from many will suffice. Washington said, "The grand object of Masonry is to promote the happiness of the human race." The late Lord Durham said, "I have ever felt it my duty to support and encourage the principles of Freemasonry, because it powerfully develops all social and benevolent affections." Bulwer Lytton testifies, "For centuries had Freemasonry existed ere modern political controversies were ever heard of; and when the topics which now agitate society were not known, but all were united in brotherhood and affection. I know the institution to be founded upon the great principles of charity, philanthropy, and brotherly love." Our own great writer, the Rev. Dr. Oliver, tells us that, "The study of Freemasonry is the study of man as a candidate for a blessed eternity. It furnishes examples of holy living, and displays the conduct which is pleasing and acceptable to God. The doctrine and examples which distinguish the Order are obvious and suited to every capacity. It is impossible for the most fastidious Mason to misunderstand, however he may slight or neglect them. It is impossible for the most superficial brother to say that he is unable to comprehend the plain precepts and the unanswerable arguments which are furnished by Freemasonry." Dalcho, an eminent American divine, thus gives his verdict: "I highly venerate the Masonic Institution, under the fullest persuasion that when its principles are acknowledged, and its laws and precepts obeyed, it comes nearest religion in its moral effects and influence of any institution with which I am acquainted." Another distinguished American writer, Dr. Albert Mackey, whose works on Freemasonry are invaluable, says: "Freemasonry is a science of symbols, in which, by their proper study, a search is instituted after truth, that truth consisting in the knowledge of the Divine and human nature of God and the human soul." Freemasonry I regard as a great Catholic institution, whose object is to diffuse brotherly love, relief and truth, throughout the world. It constantly inculcates its members to practise benevolence, and charity—that "charity which suffereth long, and is kind; that 'charity which thinketh no evil,' that 'charity which forms the cementing bond of Freemasonry,' which is the chief corner-stone of our temple, and upon which is to be erected a superstructure of all the other virtues, which makes the good man and the good Mason. It is well described by the eminent Mason whose words I recently quoted: "The charity of which our Order boasts is not alone the sentiment of commiseration which leads us to assist the poor with pecuniary donations. Like the virtue described by the apostle, already quoted, its application is more noble and more extensive; 'it suffereth long and is kind.' The true Mason will be slow to anger and easy to forgive. He will stay his falling brother by quick admonition, and warn him with kindness of approaching danger. He will not open his ear to his slanderers, and will close his lips against all reproach. His follies and his faults will be locked in his breast; and his prayer and the prayer for mercy will ascend to Jehovah for his brother's sins. Nor will these sentiments of benevolence be confined to those bound to him by ties of kindred or worldly friendship alone; but extending them throughout the globe he will love and cherish all who sit beneath the canopy of our universal lodge. For it is the boast of our institution that a Mason destitute and worthy may find in every clime a brother, and in every land a home." The present will be admitted by all to be an active and utilitarian age. We want something more than an ideal link of brotherhood, and our union should be cemented by deeds as well as words. Our acts should be on a scale commensurate with the dignity and importance of our Order, not desultory or impulsive acts of generosity, but regulated by a sense of duty and an earnest desire to confer permanent benefit. I do not urge that Freemasonry should be allowed to degenerate into a benefit society, nor do I consider that there is any parallel between the case of a zealous Freemason, who after long years of good service is provided for by his brethren, and the case of a member of a Friendly or Odd-fellow's Society, who can claim so much because he has regularly contributed to the funds of his association, although he may never have worked for it, as many Masons, I am proud to say, work for the Craft quiet and unobtrusively. I do hold, however, that no deserving Mason should ever be abandoned to the rigours of poverty and adversity in old age. I consider that it is the duty of the brotherhood to succour him in the hour of his distress, liberally and substantially. It is our bounden duty also, in the time of our prosperity, to raise a fund for the widow and the orphan, and those ancient members of the household who may have no place in which to lay their heads. It is a subject which I would commend to the brethren of this lodge, as soon as this hall is paid for, as deserving not only your best consideration, but also your warmest support. Schools for orphans, retreats for widows and old age, such should be our aim; and, if carried out, as such an organisation would carry them out, these would place Freemasonry at the head of all philanthropic associations in the world. This, brethren, is its mission; and it will never be satisfactorily achieved until this our adopted country can boast of Masonic institutions similar and akin to those raised and munificently supported by our brethren of the Craft in our mother country. Finally, my brethren, let me commend to your constant and attentive study and perusal the volume of the Sacred Law. "It is the pearl of great price." Dr. Faber says, "It lives on the ear like music that can never be forgotten, like the sound of the church bell which the convert hardly knows how he can forgo. Its felicities often seem to be almost things rather than mere words. It is part of the national mind, and the anchor of national seriousness. The memory of the dead passes into it. The potent traditions of childhood are stereotyped in its verses. The power of all the gifts and trials of a man is hidden beneath its words. It is the representative of his best moments, and all that there has been about him of soft, and gentle, and pure, and penitent, and good speaks to him for ever out of his English Bible. It is his sacred thing which doubt has never dimmed and controversy never soiled. In the length and breadth of the land there is not an Englishman with one spark of righteousness about him whose spiritual biography is not in his Saxon Bible." Next to the sacred volume I would ask you carefully to study the Book of Constitutions. Read and ponder over the lectures and over ancient charges, which have been handed down to us for our guidance from time immemorial. Remember in the closing words of one of these, "Duty, honour, and gratitude bind you to your trust. Let no motive ever make you swerve from your duty; but be true and faithful, and imitate the example of the celebrated artist whom you have once represented. Endeavour, in a word, to convince the world that merit has been your title to our privileges, and that on you our favours have not been undeservedly bestowed.

CONSECRATION OF WINCHESTER LODGE.

On Monday, 3rd September, this Lodge was consecrated by the R.W.D.D.G.M., Bro. H. Thomson. A large number of brethren from the St. John's and the Caledonian Lodges, Timaru, and several members of the Craft from Ashburton attended. Bro. Barclay, the Chaplain, delivered an able address to the brethren on their duties as Masons. The R.W.D.D.M., assisted by Bro. King, P.M.; Bro. Williamson, P.M.; Bro. West, and Bro. Watkins, duly consecrated the Lodge, under the name of the Winchester Lodge, according to ancient usages. The ceremony was performed in a most impressive manner. Bro. Zeilder W.M., 1137, presided at the organ, and rendered the anthems with good effect. The following officers were duly installed for the ensuing year:—W.M., Bro. J. King; P.M., S. W., Bro. W. De Renzie; J.W., Bro. G. Taylor, S.D. Bro. W. Smith; J.D., Bro. J. A. Young; I.G., Bro. W.G. Walsh; Bro. G.C. Williams, Tyler. At the close of the installation, Bro. the R.W.D.D.M., made a few remarks expressive of the satisfaction it gave him to perform this ceremony, and said the lodge was like a ship well officered, well manned and well found, setting out on a voyage, which with but due care would surely lead to success, and complimented the new lodge on its selecting for its first W.M. such a tried and able officer as Bro. King. After the ceremony was ended the brethren were called from labour to refreshment. The chair was occupied by Bro. King, on whose left were Bros. Thomson and Williamson on the right Bros. Zeilder and the Rev Bro. Barclay. The vice-chair was occupied by Bro. De Renzie, supported by Bros. Rutland and Young. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were duly given and responded to.

THE IRISH GRAND LODGE.

The Grand Lodge of Freemasons of Ireland have acted with equal wisdom and courage in passing the resolution which appears in our columns with respect to the Grand Orient of France. They have not lost a moment in expressing, in the most emphatic form, their abhorrence of infidel opinions, and vindicating the character of their ancient institution. It is creditable to their vigilance and religious tone that they detected the change made in the constitution of the French society, and at once took steps to sever their connection with it. The example set by the Grand Lodge of Ireland will, we trust, be followed by the whole Masonic body throughout the kingdom. It is not necessary to tell those who are initiated into the mystic Order that in altering the first article of its Constitution so as to make Atheists admissible, the Grand Orient of France rejected a principle which lies at the foundation of the Institution and is necessary to its stability. They know that not only in its ritual, but in its whole character, it is pervaded by a religious spirit. Not only in its ceremonial and symbols, but in its practice and purpose, the government of an over-ruling Providence and the duty of obedience is the moral law, as revealed in the Scriptures, are reverently recognised and earnestly enforced. If it were not cemented by this practical homage to religion the bonds of brotherly love, which is its leading characteristic, would be dissolved, and the whole fabric of Freemasonry fall to pieces. Attempts have been made to impose upon the credulity of the ignorant populace by misrepresenting the Institution as a hideous monster, which plots against all that is held sacred, and perpetrates the most atrocious deeds. The accounts which have been circulated with a view to excite a prejudice against it are caricatures so extravagant and revolting that none but the basest minds could conceive them or the meanest capacity be deceived by them. They may be treated with contemptuous indifference as stupid, though wicked impostures. Freemasonry, in the United Kingdom at least, has no community of principle or feeling with the secret societies of the Continent, which are infidel and revolutionary. Those who systematically traduce it have the means of knowing the falsehood of the charges which it suits them to repeat, regardless of indignant protests. We need not remind such of our readers as belong to the Order, but others may be interested in learning, that the strictest care is taken in the enrolment of members. Their admission is not sought by the society itself, but is a favour granted to the applicant who has to petition for it, and will not be received if, upon investigation into his character, he be deemed unworthy. Judge Townsend, Deputy Grand Master, who delivered a series of lectures on the qualifications of a candidate, for Masonry, tells us that the "ancient charges" or regulations handed down from remote antiquity require that he "must believe in one God as the moral ruler as well as creator of the universe; he must believe also in a future existence, and he must admit his own obligation to observe those rules of moral conduct which are promulgated to us in the Ten Commandments." It is not enough, he says, to recommend a candidate that nothing can be alleged against him, or if nothing good or praiseworthy can be said of him, but the "tongue of good report" must be in his favour. An institution of this character would be contaminated by contact with a society which had no regard for religion, and the Grand Lodge of Ireland are to be commended for taking the earliest opportunity to disown the Grand Orient of France as unworthy of the Order.—Dublin Daily Express.

The installation meeting of the William Preston Lodge, No. 766, will take place on Thursday next, the 22nd, on which occasion Bro. S. D. Ewins, will be installed W.M. for the ensuing year.

FRENCH AND BRITISH FREEMASONRY.

It is in some degree satisfactory that the recent action of the French Freemasons with regard to certain articles of belief, or rather disbelief, should become known as soon as possible. The Masonic body in France have resolved to expunge from their professions, and to eliminate from their ceremonials, all reference to their belief in a Supreme Being and the immortality of the soul. No action in reference to this matter has yet been taken by the Grand Lodge of England as representing the whole Masonic body of Great Britain, but the Masons of Ireland, whose organisation in points of discipline is in some degree independent, have met the matter by passing a very strong resolution reprobating the course adopted by their Gallic brethren, and forbidding for the future any communication with or recognition of the brotherhood of the "Grand Orient." The principles of Freemasonry, as practised in Great Britain and Ireland and their colonies, being essentially based on the great truths of revealed religion, it is obvious that there can no longer be any sympathy between it and the order as now established in France. The Church of Rome has always discouraged Freemasonry, because it believes it to be a secret organisation of infidel tendencies, and having political objects in view. This may be true to some extent, so far as continental countries are concerned (and the recent deplorable action of the French order goes far to establish it); but those acquainted with Freemasonry as practised in the United Kingdom know that a greater delusion cannot be imagined. In spite of the secrecy imposed by Masonry it is well known that its foundation is religion and good will towards all men. It may also surprise those who control the Councils of the Vatican to learn that politics are strictly forbidden to be discussed in English-speaking lodges, and that polemical and controversial matters are rigidly excluded. Continental Freemasonry may ignore the religion of Christianity, and may have occult political objects in view, but the English order are not responsible for these ill-guided divergencies. The animating principle of Freemasonry as practised in the United Kingdom is human charity and brotherhood. Their noble institutions for the widow, the orphan, and the needy of their order are the best proof of this, and where is the evidence of any Masonic body in Great Britain combining for any political or sectarian object?—Globe.

THE GRAND ORIENT OF FRANCE.

We make no apology to our readers for printing the following important report, which has been courteously forwarded to us:

Supreme Council of the 33rd Degree of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite of Freemasonry for the Southern Jurisdiction of the United States of America.

Gr. Or. of Charleston, South Carolina,

October 19, 1877, V.E.

To all the Inspectors General, Grand Consistories, and other bodies, and all the B.B. of all degrees of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite in the said Jurisdiction:

The Sov. Grand Commander with regret makes known to you, by the translations that follow, of extracts from the proceedings of the Grand Orient of France, the deplorable step which that power has lately taken, as a concession to Atheism and to the avowed Atheists who are Masons of its obedience.

Grand Orient of France. Supreme Council for France and the French Possessions. General Assembly. Session of 1876.

REPORT, 5TH SESSION, 14TH SEPTEMBER, 1876.

The order of the day calls for the report of the Committee on Propositions.

Bro. Massicault, reporter of this committee, after having asked as a measure of order that the orators who wish to address the meeting for or against the question shall be pleased to be registered in advance, and to transmit their names to the President, reads the following report:

My B.B.

The Lodge, Progressive Fraternity, Orient of Villefranche (Rhône), has presented the following proposition: To suppress the 1st art. of the Constitution the two first clauses of the 2nd paragraph thus worded: "Freemasonry holds as a first principle the existence of God and the immortality of the soul."

"The council of the Order, in its session of the 29th of July last, passed to the order of the day on this proposition, after having heard the report of Bro. Du Hamel, which each of us had the opportunity to read in the Bulletin of the Grand Orient, number of the month of August, page 183 and the pages following.

"Nevertheless, in its session of yesterday, the Convention decided that the proposition, revived by one of its members, should be discussed to-day, and it has invited the commissioners nominated by the bureaux to form themselves into a committee to submit to the assembly a rough draft of the resolution.

"In conformity with this vote, the commissioners of the nine bureaux have assembled, and I have the honour to bring you the result of their deliberations.

"Our laws do not forbid us, and on the contrary wisdom commands us, to consider outer circumstances before regulating our Masonic action. Very well! my B.B., your committee believes so. These circumstances dissuade us to-day from giving rise to the agitation which the adoption of the proposition would cause; and it would be subserving the passions of our adversaries by supplying them with pretexts; they dissuade us from compromising our relations with the foreign Masonic powers, from disturbing our fraternal harmony, from paralysing or disquieting the good-will of our friends.

"Upon the whole, the consciousness of the good which we accomplish with our actual organism forbids us to risk the unsettling of our association, by wishing to change its basis hastily."

"In view of these considerations, my B.B., the matter of the question remaining reserved, your committee, by a majority of 5 votes against 4, proposes to you to pass to the order of the day on the proposition No. 9 indicated above, and on [the votes which express analogous propositions."

The assembly decides that the vote will be first taken on the conclusions of the report.

The Bro. Orator, being consulted, moves the adoption of these conclusions, that is to say, the unqualified order of the day on the propositions under discussion.

The vote is proceeded to be taken by call of the names, and the demand of B.B. Hubert, Broudeau, Callot, Drevet, Lambert (de Corbeil), Leborgne, Leconte, Martinet, Marx, Meyniel, Minot, de Mondenard, Paillet, Prunet, Proust, Léon Richer, Thorin, Turgis, Vincent et Voisard (to the number of 21).

Before proceeding to take the vote the President explains that each brother on his name being called must answer yes or no.

Yes will mean that he adopts the conclusions of the report, that is to say, the unqualified order of the day on the proposition; and no will mean that he rejects these conclusions.

The call made by Bro. Fort, Assistant Secretary, attests the presence of 175 voters.

Out of this number, 110 answer no, and 65 answer yes.

Consequently the conclusions of the Bro. Orator are rejected, which amounts to saying that the order of the day proposed by the Bro. Reporter is not adopted.

The President proclaims this result, and announces, as a consequence, the early reference to the lodges of the study of the question, conformably to the complementary article of Title V of the Constitution.

The Chain of Union of Paris, October, 1877. Report of the General Assembly of the Grand Orient of France, annual session of 1877. Session of Thursday, 13th September.

Bro. Cousin was Chairman during the discussion on the vote.

There is a larger gathering of deputies than usual, and the visitors' gallery better filled than on the two first days. The question is as to balloting on proposition No. IX.

The Committee seats itself; Chairman, Bro. Bruand; Secretary, Bro. Barthelet; Reporter, Bro. Desmons; members, Bros. Danel, Maury, Corbierre, Lemarignier, Hubert, André, Rousselle.

Bro. Desmons has the floor to read his report.

Report of the committee appointed to examine proposition No. IX:

The question on which the members of the committee have done me the honour to select me to report, is, I do not conceal from myself, a question of very serious importance.

I only need to adduce as evidence of this the great extent of time which the assembly of last year, and each one of our lodges individually, in the course of the year, have thought it necessary to devote to it. I only mean to adduce as another proof of this, the lively and powerful interest which we all bring to bear to-day on its definitive solution, and whereof your presence, in so large numbers in this hall, gives incontestable evidence.

So, my brethren, what preoccupies me seriously at this moment is the profound consciousness of my inadequacy and the very sincere apprehension of being very unequal to so delicate and elevated a task.

But what reassures me at the same time, my brethren, is the thought that I am here but the interpreter of a committee of which each member is disposed, I know it, to sustain me by his fraternal support.

It is also and above all the thought that I am addressing brothers on whose indulgence I certainly count. Let them be assured that on my part I will make every effort to render myself worthy, by the respectful moderation of my language, of the great trust with which they have honoured me.

My brothers, your committee, before studying the proposition which has been submitted to its appreciation, has pre-occupied itself with a preliminary question.

It has asked itself if the study of this proposition in the Convention of this year was very opportune. It has in succession heard the delegates of the bureaux, who, by six votes against three, have pronounced in the affirmative. Each of its members has reiterated the different objections which has been presented in his respective bureau.

Permit me, my brothers, to make them pass rapidly before your eyes, and to follow them up with the observations to which they give rise in the committee.

"Take care, they said to us; if you at the present time suppress this article from your Constitution, you will separate the Grand Orient of France from all the Masonic Powers of the world. You will isolate it in the midst of universal Masonry if you suppress this article, they have added; you will give rise to a painful agitation in our lodges, and provoke a deplorable schism in the midst of the Grand Orient of France.

"If you suppress this article, in fine, do you not fear that the declared enemies of our Order will profit by our decision to spread abroad slander on all Masons, by denouncing them in the profane world as materialists and atheists?"

"And under present circumstances, may not this denunciation be prejudicial to Masonry itself, and especially to the noble and generous ideas which it is its mission to defend and propagate?"

Such are, my B.B.s, if I do not deceive myself, the principal objections which the partisans of the postponement of the discussion have addressed to us.

It is not necessary to say, my brothers, how unanimous the members of the committee have been in recognising not only the unquestionable sincerity of those who have submitted them to us, but also the great weight of each of them.

Above all, it is not necessary to say with what due deference the committee has received the perfectly fraternal observations of those who, for so many years, have represented the Grand Orient of France, and to whose indefatigable devotion the assembly this year again has rendered so striking and just a testimonial. Nevertheless, my brothers, by virtue of that maxim which is the device of all of us:

"Amicus Plato, sed magis amica veritas," your Committee, with a feeling of respectful independence, has studied each of these objections in succession, and this is the answer which it has thought appropriate to make to it conscientiously.

You fear, do you say, if this article is suppressed at the present time, the isolation of the Grand Orient in the midst of universal Masonry. But is not this argument the same as that which was invoked, scarcely seven years ago, against the suppression of the Grand Mastership, which was urged lately against the admission into our Lodges of coloured men, and against the representation of the High Degrees in the bosom of our annual Assembly? Well, what has happened however? Our Masonic Assemblies have not allowed themselves to be held back by this obstacle which they were made to foresee, and now, our relations with the other Masonic Powers are not, that I am aware either less cordial or less extended.

Besides, my Brothers, I will say to those who by a perhaps excessive prudence, and through the fear of seeing the Grand Orient of France too much isolated, oppose this innovation as dangerous: "We are neither the only ones, nor the first to enter upon this course which we propose to you. Already, in the Grand Lodge of Buenos Ayres, the reform has been effected. Already, the Grand Lodge which has just been founded in Hungary, has given itself a Constitution which is copied from ours, but from which it has taken care to banish the article which is occupying us at this moment.

Yet longer ago, the Grand Orient of Italy, itself adopted a similar resolution. Be then reassured, my brothers; I do not fear for our Order isolation in the bosom of the Masonic world. There are in this route intrepid pioneers who have already preceded us. Be assured that we shall soon have numerous imitators. Besides, my Brothers, you who believe perhaps that this formula has been from all the forefront of our Constitution, you will probably not be moderately surprised to learn that it is of quite recent date. I had occasion, only yesterday, to look through the different Constitutions which have governed our Order.

Very well! do you know at what period its introduction took place? It is not at all necessary for that to consult the prehistoric period, nor even to go back to the deluge. It is only in 1849 that it is for the first time seen to make its appearance in our Constitution. You see, therefore, my Brothers, what we ask of you is not a dangerous innovation, but simply a return to a previous condition.

But, it has been added, do we not risk, by voting for the suppression of this article, casting trouble and division in the midst of our Lodges? It has appeared to your Committee that this fear was chimerical.

Ah! if the convention of this year concerned itself for the first time with this question, if, without having previously consulted them, this Assembly, by an act of authority and by a species of "coup d'état," proceeded suddenly to decree this suppression, I understand that they might be held back by the fear of seeing trouble and agitation introduced into our Lodges; but you know that this is not the case.

Above all, you are not ignorant that this year, particularly, each of our Lodges has been invited to study this question, and that, out of the 210 Lodges which have transmitted the results of their deliberations to the Grand Orient, two-thirds have been favourable to the adoption of the proposition.

Besides, my Brothers, what might give rise to trouble and agitation in the bosom of our Lodges, was the fear, not so much of seeing this formula suppressed, as of seeing it replaced by a materialistic or atheistic formula. Now, who does not know, at the present moment, that no one among us, in proposing this suppression, means to make a declaration of atheism or materialism? In this respect, is not all misunderstanding dissipated in our minds? And if, in the bosom of a few lodges there might remain any doubt, let it be known to them that your Committee declares openly that, in adhering to Proposition No. 9, it proposes to us no other object than to proclaim absolute liberty of conscience.

How, my brothers, I ask you, could the proclamation of such a principle, which is indeed that of all Masonry, excite, and trouble our Lodges? No, we have more confidence in them, and we consider that, better informed of the true goal to which we tend, those who might still feel any scruples and any hesitation will end by marshalling themselves around this magnificent standard, whose tutelary shadow is capable of protecting equally all opinions and all beliefs.

As to the calumnies which clericalism will hurl against us, we must expect them.

But, would you think to escape them, in case even you should not accept this Proposition, or even if you should refer the study of it to the next Assembly? Ah! I fear much, my brothers, that you delude yourselves on this point. No, no, our adversaries are implacable, and the new delay which we would take to settle the question which is submitted to us, would have, be convinced of it, no other result than to cause us to be accused by them, of adding fear and hypocrisy to impiety.

Such is, my B.B., the conclusion at your Committee have arrived, and if, when it concerned the question of opportuneness, we have 8 against 1, I am delighted to tell you that, for all the reasons which I have just called to your mind, we have been unanimous in adopting the following resolution which we have the favour to propose to you:—

ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

The monthly meeting of the Committee of this Institution was held on Wednesday, at Freemasons' Hall, Col. Creaton in the chair. There were also present, Bros. Joseph Smith, C. A. Cottebrune, H. Browne, F. Adlard, Thos. W. White, John Newton, J. M. Case, S. Rawson Wm. Kilton, Charles Lacey, C. F. Hogard, Benj. Head, W. F. Nettleship, Wm. Stephens and Jas. Terry. (Secretary).

The Secretary read a letter from His Grace the Duke of Manchester, Prov. G.M. for Norths and Hants, consenting to preside at the annual festival on Wednesday, the 13th Feb., 1878.

The death of three male annuitants was reported. Cheques were signed for payment of the annuities due 1st. prox.

The application of one widow for half her late husband's annuity was presented.

The transfer of the funds into the names of new trustees was directed to be made; and the petitions of eight men and twelve widows for elections in May were presented and accepted.

The Committee then adjourned.

TO WORSHIPFUL MASTERS.

The attention of Worshipful Masters is specially directed to the following advertisement, with a suggestion from the Publisher that they should cause a proposition to be made that their Lodges should become subscribers to

THE FOUR MASONIC PUBLICATIONS.

It is doubtless desirable that every Mason should have a knowledge of the proceedings at the Quarterly Communications of Grand Lodge, and it is especially the duty of the Worshipful Master to be well posted up in such matters, and as there is no better means of obtaining such information than the columns of the Freemason, which gives verbatim reports of the Grand Lodge proceedings, and a full account of all the meetings of the Board of Benevolence, and the various Committees of our Great Masonic Charities, the Publisher feels justified in making this recommendation, with the full assurance that such an investment of a small portion of the lodge funds will be productive of beneficial results.

LODGE OF UNITED STRENGTH (No. 228).

—The regular meeting of this old lodge was held on the 13th inst., at the Guildhall Tavern, Gresham-street. The W.M., Bro. James Hill, presided, supported by Bros. R. Griggs, I.P.M.; P.M. Davies, acting Secretary; P.M. Hillhouse, and P.M. John White (Freemason). The S.W., Bro. Snare, was, unfortunately, by a domestic affliction, prevented from attending, but the efficiency of his brother officers saved the lodge from inconvenience. Bro. Halford occupying the S.W. chair; Bro. Percy the J.W.; Bro. Hickman (another very good officer), acting as S.D.; Bro. Flaws, occupying his own post of J.D.; and Bro. Patmore being I.G., a post to which he has been advanced through the retirement from office of Bro. Todd, who had the moral courage to resign a position which the calls upon his time rendered it not possible for him to discharge to his own satisfaction. Bro. Hart, W.M. of the Eclectic, the Organist of the lodge, made the old instrument do excellent service, but it must have been hard work, and required the exercise of more than ordinary skill to discharge the duty of this office on an instrument which has a broken bellows and several wherzy stops. The Masonic duties of the lodge included the passing of two brethren, Bros. Henrich and Swain, and then Bro. Pearcey worked the lectures of the degree. The lodge closed, the brethren adjourned to the banquet, the visitors being Bros. Crew and Randall, of the Chiltern Lodge, No. 1470; Bros. Rawson and McNiven, of the Great City Lodge; Bro. Truth, of the Metropolitan Lodge; and Bro. W. Cook, of the Domestic Lodge. In the course of the evening "The Visitors" were cordially toasted, and they, in reply, acknowledged that the fame of the old lodge for hospitality was fully earned. The W.M., in acknowledging the toast of his health, seemed to express the regret that he had not had overmuch work in the course of the year now passing away, but Bro. Griggs, in reply to the toast of "The Past Masters," taking occasion to advert to this expressed regret, said that the lodge could afford to rest, for its numbers had been increasing by very great strides, and the Past Masters did not feel any regret, for the lodge preferred quality to quantity. P.M. While, who was also called upon to speak, said he should not illustrate the position of the operative Masons on strike by refusing to respond to the toast. After speaking of the pride with which the Past Masters watched the excellent working of the officers in lodge work, for the encouragement of the younger members he pointed to the fact that two young members held that night the two highest positions after the W.M., as a proof that the Constitutions of the Craft always held a foremost place in the governing of this lodge. He trusted that the lodge would always maintain the principle laid down in the Book of Constitutions, "merit, and not seniority, shall be the ground upon which all preferment shall be based." Spraying of the presence of country members in the lodge, there being what is termed a "Bedfordshire contingent," in members from the bank of the Ouse, he said that the remarks made against country members joining London lodges did not apply to the active country members of the United Strength. These country members had all been well and worthily recommended, and most of the proposals were well-known to many brethren in the lodge. The country members had town business, and they combined pleasure with business by transacting their civil duties on the days when the lodge met, when they could meet in friendship with those with whom they were not daily associated. There was a pleasant change in this, and it had its advantage in that the brethren in their London lodge were untrammelled by local circumstances. The officers were then toasted and replied in their turn, and Bro. Patmore, referring to the remarks of Bro. While, said that the Bedfordshire brethren had made the name of the United Strength so popular in that county that another Order had adopted the name for a Provincial Grand Lodge, and "United Strength" kindness and brotherly regard had been spread far beyond Masonry, through the example set in this old lodge, whose unity was more than a name, and the Craft itself only one of the bonds which bound its members together.

PANMURE LODGE (No. 720).—This lodge held its regular meeting on Monday, the 19th inst., at the Balham Hotel, Balham. It was well attended both by members and visitors. Amongst those present were Bros. Thomas Poore, P.M. (who, in the absence of the W.M., opened the lodge); C. P. McKay, S.W.; R. W. Sheadd, J.W.; James Stevens, P.M.; C. Pulman, P.M.; H. Payne, P.M.; W. Smith, S.D.; W. McMurray, J.D.; W. Mitchell, I.G.; M. Spiegel, D.C.; G. Lambert, W.S.; W. Steedman, P.M., Tyler; also Bros. Lilley, Richardson, Ash, Saunders, Pascall, Whittaker, Mulley, Huntley, Anthony, Gunner, Green, Burton, Kerr, Treves, &c., and visitors Bros. John Syer, 1017; S. Clarke, 1586; E. Bye and H. Stokes, 141. The lodge having been duly opened by Bro. Poore, as W.M., and minutes confirmed, Bro. Anthony was proved and subsequently passed to the degree of F.C. Mr. Adolphe Van de Water, and Mr. Chas. Glesister were balloted for, approved, and duly initiated into the Order. A notice of motion having reference to the question of "refreshment after labour" was discussed, and it having been represented by the Treasurer that the lodge was in a more flourishing condition than at any time since its establishment, it was decided to continue the practice of entertaining members and visitors in the usual manner after each meeting. The sum of ten guineas was voted to the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, and placed on the list of names, Bro. C. Pulman, P.M., as Steward, representing the lodge, and we were glad to observe that later on his list was liberally increased by the lodge members individually. The lodge having been closed the brethren adjourned to banquet, Bro. James Stevens, P.M., presiding as W.M. The usual toasts were honoured, and in giving that of the "Grand Lodge," the acting W.M. called the attention of the brethren to the late action of the Grand Orient of France, deprecating the course which had been adopted, and hoping that the Grand Lodge of England would express its opinion thereon in the most forcible manner possible. His remarks were listened to with great attention and were cordially endorsed by all present. The W.M.'s health was drunk in his absence, a circumstance which was much regretted, every officer of the lodge being in his appointed place. The toast of the P.M.'s was enthusiastically received, and hearty acknowledgements were rendered by Bros. Poore and Stevens, for their readiness to discharge the all-important duties of the chair, as well as for other assistance in the working of the lodge. The Initiates made very able responses to the toast given in their honour, and the visitors expressed much gratification with the working and subsequent hospitality. A most enjoyable evening terminated at eleven o'clock, and the brethren separated.

WHITTINGTON LODGE (No. 862).—On Monday evening the Whittington Lodge held its installation meeting at Freemasons' Hall, under the presidency of the Worshipful Master, Bro. Charles Walker. The brethren present were Bros. Jones, P.M.; Weaver, P.M., 862 and 1319, P.Z. 862, M.E.Z. 1319, H. 177, P. Prov. G. Org. Middlesex, Treasurer Benevolent Fund, Secretary; Kingston, I.P.M., Treasurer of Lodge Fund; Walker, W.M., Trustee Benevolent Fund; Moore, S.W., and W.M. elect, Trustee Benevolent Fund; Blakemore, S.D.; Farebrother, W.S.; Hobden, Godden, I.G.; Bolton, D.C.; Knell, Tate, Sedgwick, Brothers, Ward, Brown, Richardson, Devine, Collinson, Ross, Boxer, Cox, Lee, Maxwell, Evans, Coates, Thompson, Bradford, Hill, Bowden, Jones, and Hurlstone, P.M. The visitors were Bros. W. A. Tinney, P.M. 1319; H. Y. Whalley, 1670; John Canham, P.M. 199; George Anderson, J.W. 60; John Bingham, P.M. 55, 1599; J. F. West, P.M. 753; C. E. Tinney, 1319; Wm. F. Marston, W.M. 1599, S.D. 55; Thomas H. Briggs, 1503; Howard W. F. Vaughan, 1503; Wm. Tilley, 891; W. B. Benson; H. Massey, P.M. 619, (Freemason); Samuel T. Kingston, 1269; Arthur C. Moore, P.M. 216; James Alfred Rigby; W. Cane, 201; W. Ansell, United Mariners; J. Lyndon Hodges, Orpheus; James Turle, Sec. 766; and John Stedman, 172. Bro. C. H. Pike was raised to the Third Degree, and the W.M. afterwards installed Bro. Alfred Moore, S.W., and W.M. elect, as Master of the lodge. The brethren appointed to office were Bros. Blakemore, S.W.; Packer, J.W.; Thos. Kingston, P.M., Treasurer; James Weaver, P.M., Secretary; James Weaver, P.M., Treasurer of the Benevolent Fund of the Lodge; Godden, S.D.; Tate, J.D.; Bolton, I.G.; Knell, D.C.; Charles Walker, P.M., W.S.; and J. Gilbert, Tyler. The sum of £10 was voted from the Benevolent Fund to the list of Bro. Sedgwick, who will represent the lodge at the forthcoming festival of the Benevolent Institution. Through the excellent administration of the affairs of the lodge an admirable balance sheet was exhibited, a balance of over twenty guineas remaining in the hands of the Treasurer, Bro. Thos. Kingston. The Benevolent Fund of the lodge showed a balance of £112 18s. 6d. in the hands of the Treasurer of the fund, Bro. James Weaver, P.M. After the names of joining members and initiates had been given, the lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to Freemasons' Tavern, where a choice and elegant banquet was provided by the proprietor, Bro. Alfred Best. After banquet grace was sung, and the toasts were proposed. In giving the toast of "The Queen and the Craft," the W.M. said: Among the thousands who live in this dear old England of ours I think there are very few, if any, who can claim greater love for their Queen than the Freemasons. We love her, not simply because she is a queen—that, perhaps, is an attribute of birth—but we love her because she is a good, true, and noble woman, in the highest sense of those words. It is usual to couple the name of the Queen with the Craft, and I have not infrequently heard it said that this is done to make this toast Masonic; but it seems to me, although I do not mean to break through the good old rule, that it is not altogether necessary to add the Craft to make it Masonic, because I can conceive of no more Masonic toast than that of the Queen, as all Masons are thoroughly loyal men. The toast having been honoured, the W.M. gave

"The Health of the M.W.G.M.," and said that when we remembered "the fierce light which beats upon a throne," and all adjacent to it. Masons would be thankful and gratified that they had for a Grand Master one who by such square conduct, level steps, and upright intentions commended himself to the Craft generally. After the toast of "The Pro G.M., the Dep. G.M., &c.," had been drunk, Bro. Charles Watkins, I.P.M., proposed "The W.M.," and said that for the ensuing twelve months it would be his especial privilege to propose this toast. He was sure he had only to mention this toast to ensure for it the greatest applause. He could not say anything in respect of the W.M. more than the brethren already knew. They all had been witnesses for some years past of the manner in which he had performed the duties appertaining to the various offices he had filled. The brethren had all marked his intelligence, and they fully believed that he was a brother who was true and trusty, and would be fully equal to the duties which were cast upon him. He did not know that he could pass on the W.M. a higher encomium than to say this of him. The brethren all appreciated the W.M.'s talents, for it had been an acknowledged fact in the lodge for some time past that when Bro. Moore came to the chair the lodge would have a good Master. The consummation of his ambition had been that night achieved. Bro. Moore was in the chair, and he had shown the brethren that evening that he was fully competent to fulfil his duties. The performance of them was no sinecure, but whatever they were Bro. Moore would discharge them properly. The W.M. in reply observed he need hardly say that he was peculiarly gratified with the reception of the toast. Bro. Walker had been good enough to refer to him in language which he should hardly like to admit that he deserved, but the brethren might rest assured that if he did not deserve it now he should endeavour to deserve it during his year of office. He had no doubt that during that year there might be some occasional slips, a word or two here and there misplaced; but he would ask the brethren in such cases to exercise that which was the distinguishing characteristic of a Freemason's heart, and grant him charity. He hoped that during his year of office the lodge would have some additions to their numbers, and he was glad to see that some had been proposed that evening. He need hardly point out to the brethren how desirable it was that they should keep the lodge in a happy condition in every sense of the word. It had long appeared to him, although he was comparatively a young Mason, that there was in some lodges, though not in this lodge, a tendency to obtain large numbers rather than men who were at heart Masons. The Craft was already rich in numbers, and unless men only were introduced who would be a credit to the Craft generally, he held that it would be much better that the numbers were somewhat reduced. Freemasonry to his mind had appeared somewhat like a ship; in fact Freemasonry was a grand old Craft with a splendid constitution. She had an A1 captain in H.R.H. the Grand Master, who had about him excellent Grand and petty officers; they had on board two most experienced pilots in the Grand Secretary and Assistant Grand Secretary; she was burdened with capital freight, three of the noblest charities in London, the Boys' and Girls' Schools and the Benevolent Institution. She was well found in every respect, and had a very large crew. The Craft was worthy of the crew who served in her; and therefore it behoved them never to ship any hands without perfect confidence that they would be a credit to her and to the rest of the hands. He again thanked the brethren for drinking his health, and he trusted that at the end of his year of office the brethren would be as gratified to see him a P.M. as they were to see Bro. Walker in that position. He (the W.M.) passed now from the difficult task of speaking about himself to the more easy task of talking about some other fellow, and in proposing "The Health of the I.P.M." he should refer to him retrospectively. The brethren had to take a W.M. to some extent for granted, but a P.M. by what he had done, and there could be no doubt that Bro. Walker had recommended himself to the brethren generally. He had performed the duties of W.M. most creditably, and while he had never forgotten the "suaviter in modo" he had always observed the "fortiter in re." He had been amiable in disposition, although firm in conduct, and the brethren in asking him to accept a P.M.'s jewel as a record of his past services were only doing him bare justice. Bro. Walker in reply, after thanking the brethren, said he stood in a very proud position that evening. Although this lodge was not his mother lodge he was a very junior Mason (quite an infant), when, by the persuasion of Bro. Little, he joined it. He had been a member of the lodge 11 or 12 years, and he took the position of D.C. in the lodge the same as Bro. Knell had to day. By degrees he rose to the chair, and he was now very proud that he had joined the Whittington Lodge. Again he was proud that he became an officer. Still more was he proud that he was elected W.M., and none the less proud was he that he was now a P.M., and had received the honour of a jewel at the hands of the brethren, which he should highly value, not so much for its intrinsic value but for the kind expressions which had fallen from the W.M.'s lips, and for the brethren's cordial reception of them. Again he was proud that on leaving the chair he had installed in his place so highly respected and so well qualified a brother. The W.M. had spoken in nautical language of the good ship the Craft. He could say that the Whittington Lodge never stood higher in the opinion of true Masons than at present, and it never had among its members so many of true Masonic stamp. Never was a W.M. better served by officers than he had been, not one of whom was called upon to perform his duty and found wanting when so called upon. For these considerations he was very proud of being a P.M. of this lodge. "The Visitors" was the next toast, and Bro. Capt. Benson replied. Bro. Hurlstone, the oldest P.M. of the lodge, replied for "The P.M.'s," and Bros. Kingston and Weaver for the "Treasurer and Secretary." The other officers also replied to their toasts—Bros. Brown and Brothers for "The Lay Members," and Bro. Gilbert gave the Tyler's toast, which concluded the proceedings. The musical arrangements, in which Bros. J. Hodges, J. Stedman, J. Turle, Lee, and Tinney, took part under the direction of Bro. C. E. Tinney, were excellent.

GRANITE LODGE (No. 1328).—On Saturday, the 10th inst., the members of this lodge held a meeting at the Freemasons' Hall, Great Queen-street, Bro. Fredk. West, W.M. presiding. The attendance was very full. After transacting the necessary business, an adjournment took place to the banqueting hall, where a dinner awaited their arrival. After the cloth was drawn, Bro. F. West proposed "The Health of the Queen and the Craft," which was received with usual honours. Next in succession he gave "The Health of His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales," "The Earl of Carnarvon," and "The Earl of Skelmersdale," which were severally and heartily responded to. Bro. West remarked that nothing could be more conducive to good order than the proper selection of officers, and in selecting his two Royal brothers the M.W.G.M. had displayed real discretion and good taste. In proposing "The Health of the Deputy Grand Master and the rest of the Grand Officers," he coupled with it the name of Bro. Cottebrune, who had afforded such material aid to the Granite Lodge and had contributed in no small degree to its success. Bro. Cottebrune in return, praised the working of the lodge, and promised his services on all occasions. Bro. W. M. Muggeridge, P.M., in calling upon them to drink "The Health of Bro. F. West, W.M.," alluded in flattering terms to his fitness to preside over the auspices of the Granite. Those who knew him sought to unite the ties of friendship more strongly, those who did not know him were anxious to cultivate his acquaintance. The toast was received with Masonic favour. Bro. West suitably replied; and passed the compliment on to the visitors, whose health he called upon the lodge to drink, coupling with it the name of Bro. Lewis, of the Golden Rule Lodge, who, in returning thanks, passed marked encomiums on the working of the Granite Lodge, and its hospitality and munificence as regarded Masonic Charities. The Past Master of the lodge next came into the category of toasts, and the utmost sympathy was expressed for Bro. John Oliver, P.M., who was unable to be present owing to having a fractured thigh, which he sustained in the Bath Bridge accident. Bro. Muggeridge gave a merry roundelay for himself and brothers in responding to the toast, and in the course of his remarks stated that he must secede from future attendance, owing to severe indisposition, and acting upon the advice of his physicians. While dwelling on the subject he was manifestly much overcome with emotion, but he brightened up on the lodge greeting him with vociferous cheers and audible expressions of sympathy. Bro. West later on gave "The Health of the Officers of the Granite Lodge," which Bro. J. Lewis Thomas most appropriately responded to, and referred with unlimited satisfaction as Secretary to the flourishing condition of the lodge, while the Senior Warden promised that his year of office when in the chair should not lack success if he could help it. Bro. West subsequently complimented the "Fourth Estate" on its influence, power, universal vitality, and laid it down to be the backbone of commerce, the monitor of the people, the corrector of all abuses, the subduer of tyranny, and the adviser-in-chief to persons who failed to have an opinion of their own on matters in general. He coupled with the toast the name of Bro. A. C. Shelley, who replied. The far-famed and never-to-be-forgotten Tylers' toast brought the evening to a close.

SPHINX LODGE (No. 1329).—The installation meeting of this lodge was held on Saturday evening, 17th inst., at the Surrey Masonic Hall, Camberwell New Road, and was most numerously attended by members and visitors. Bro. Perceval A. Nairne, W.M., presided, the regular officers were in their places, and the following visitors were present:—Bros. Rickett, P.M. 507; Robinson, 1381; Colman, 58; Samson, P.M. 7; H. Thompson, P.M. 117 and 1158 (Freemason); Goss, P.M. 76; Davis, 1641; Rogers, 15; Lailham, P.M. 1216; Staples, P.M. 879; Wingham, P.M. 25; Grave, P.M. 73; Hayden, P.M. 73; Rousillon, Amis Rennes, J. E. Collis, 1641; Wright, P.M. 22; Clarke, P.G.S.W.; Stringer, 19; and others. The lodge having been opened and the minutes read and confirmed, the lodge was opened in the Second Degree, when Bro. Henry Martin, S.W., and W.M. elect, was presented to receive from his predecessor the benefit of installation. The usual forms having been gone through the lodge was opened in the Third Degree. All the brethren below the degree of an Installed Master were then requested to retire, and a duly constituted body of 16 Masters having been formed, Bro. Henry Martin was duly installed into the chair of K.S. according to ancient custom. On the brethren below the chair being readmitted and saluted, the new W.M. appointed his officers as follows:—Bros. Perceval Alexander Nairne, I.P.M.; George S. Bickerton, S.W.; B. Lyon, J.W.; J. C. Reynolds, Treas.; W. Andrews, Sec.; B. R. Bryant, S.D.; J. R. Richards, J.D.; J. Goulston, I.G.; and J. J. Brunton and Henry Forbes, Stewards. The addresses were then respectively delivered by Bros. Nairne, Bedolfe and Vockins. The newly-installed Master immediately entered upon his active duties, for after the lodge had been advanced in proper order the W.M. in a most able and impressive manner raised Bros. Moore and Lewin to the Sublime Degree. This, the crowning work of a W.M., was done in a manner to demonstrate that he is well qualified to discharge any duties he may be called upon to perform. The W.M. then vacated the chair, and Bro. Nairne, I.P.M., initiated Mr. James Alfred Thornhill into the mysteries and privileges of Freemasonry. On the W.M. resuming the chair he presented a valuable jewel to Bro. Nairne, voted to him by the brethren in recognition of his services in the chair during the past year, which Bro. Nairne suitably acknowledged, expressing his gratitude for their kindness and his willingness at all times to do anything and everything he could to promote the welfare of the lodge, and the happiness of its members. The lodge after disposing of the sum of £5 towards the Royal Benevolent Fund for Aged Freemasons was closed and the brethren adjourned for refreshment to an adjoining apartment, where a very bountiful repast was provided by Mr. Bromley, of the Clapham-road, and which gave entire satisfaction. On the removal of the cloth, the W.M. said in consequence of the lateness of the hour he should give the customary toasts without speeches, which to a great extent he adhered to, and although the business in the lodge was protracted to a rather late hour, in consequence of this wise determination the whole was got over in due time, and with an amount of pleasure seldom witnessed in a lodge where the working is extended to an unusual length. It was generally admitted that this was the most successful and truly harmonious meeting that has for a long time been witnessed in Freemasonry, and augurs well for the prosperity of the Sphinx Lodge under the rule of the W. Master for the ensuing year.

ST. DUNSTAN'S LODGE (No. 1589).—This representative lodge held its last meeting on the 16th inst., at Anderson's Hotel, Fleet-street. The officers present were Bros. Wellsman, W.M.; Dalwood, S.W.; Do'son, J.W.; Tisley, Secretary; Dwarber, I.P.M.; Turner, S.D.; Woodbridge, J.D.; Manners, I.G.; Low, D.C.; Bull, W.S.; Harrison, Tyler, pro tem. The visitors were Bros. Webb, P.M. 72, &c.; Bond, P.G.P. Surrey, P.M. 888; Dr. and Surgeon Major Skipton, P.M. 1065; Tinney, P.M. 1319; Nixon, W.M. Stability; Singleton, W.M. South Middx.; Leah, W.M. elect 193; Walls, P.G.O. Middx., J.W. 1381; F. H. Fowler, and J. Beveridge, 1319. The W.M., after the minutes of the previous meeting had been read and confirmed, raised Bro. Skelton to the degree of M.M., and initiated Mr. Clemow in a manner that left nothing to be desired. There being no other business before the lodge, it was closed, and the brethren and visitors adjourned to an excellent banquet, which was well and elegantly served in the Pillar Room, and having been done justice to, the W.M. gave the preliminary loyal and other toasts, briefly but prominently. The I.P.M. in proposing the toast of "The W.M." took occasion to mention the services rendered to the parish by Bro. Wellsman. As the St. Dunstan was a parochial lodge it was very pleasing to him (the speaker) to see the rising generation of the parish flocking to the Masonic standard, and which brethren he ventured to predict would do good suit and service in the time to come by endeavouring to render the lodge as nearly perfect as possible. He concluded what was altogether a very interesting speech by charging them to receive the subject toast most warmly, as the W.M. was in every way, Masonically and otherwise, entitled to their best regards. In his reply the W.M. remarked that the Master of a Masonic lodge, occupying the chair at the banquet table time after time, found it very difficult to express something new. He felt that he was not an exception to that rule, and he should therefore say but little on that occasion. He then went on to state that he hoped that those brethren who were on the road to the chair, and particularly the younger members holding office, would not be offended by his charging them to bestow every attention to the work, in order that when the time arrived for them to occupy that position they would not be found wanting in ability for the due and proper discharge of its requirements. In conclusion he said that he was pleased that his humble efforts had given them satisfaction. "The Initiate" followed. In introducing this toast the W.M. said that he believed that the quality of the Masonic recruits should be the first consideration of every brother proposing them. They should be received with discretion, even though they were "well and worthily recommended," but Number 1589 he believed were content, and very well contented with the quality of the initiates that the lodge had hitherto received. It was very gratifying to welcome amongst them that evening a member of the family who had been associated with Anderson's Hotel so many years. He trusted that their newly-admitted brother would look forward to a long career in Freemasonry, and he would take that opportunity of impressing upon him that charity should be the guiding star of its members. Bro. Tisley having given "The Entered Apprentice," Bro. Clemow made a neat and modest reply. In giving "The Visitors," the W.M. alluded to the fact of there being seven Installed Masters amongst them. He felt very grateful to them for honouring the lodge with their presence that evening, and he assured them that they might rely upon always receiving a most hearty welcome whenever they visited the St. Dunstan's Lodge, which, although but a juvenile lodge, was capable he believed of affording a little Masonic knowledge. This toast having been coupled with the names of Bros. Nixon and Dr. Skipton, and those brethren replied. The latter at some length gave some interesting particulars of Masonry in the empire of British India. "The Health of the I.P.M." followed. Bro. Dwarber, in reply, said that he felt like the W.M., who in the earlier part of the evening had told them that "he had nothing new to say." However, he was compelled to indulge in the usual language of a Past Master—to wit, that he should always endeavour to be present at their meetings, and to be ever ready to assist any W.M. in the discharge of his duties. In conclusion, he said that there was something new after all for him to express that evening, namely, to wish long life and happiness to a distinguished member of the dramatic profession, who had made his debut there that evening in the character of a guest, Bro. James Beveridge, whose melodious voice and manner were so irresistible that it was a matter of no surprise why "Liz" was so fond of him. "The Officers" was coupled with the names of the Senior and Junior Wardens, and the Secretary. The former stated that they felt complimented by the remarks passed upon their working by the W.M., and that they should always endeavour to merit his approval. The Secretary humorously remarked that the W.M. had been pleased in speaking of him to compare him with the lily that needed no painting, &c.; but he regarded that as a very doubtful compliment, because the lily neither toiled nor spun, and a Secretary to be worthy of that name must exercise both those functions. He was pleased to inform them that the Benevolent Fund was in a very flourishing condition, so that if any occasion should arise they would be in a position to assist the necessitous without unduly taxing the pockets of their brethren. During the evening Bros. Beveridge, Low, Walls, Dobson, Clemow, and others entertained the brethren.

WEST SMITHFIELD LODGE (No. 1623).—The regular meeting of this well-established lodge was held at the New Market Hotel, King-street, West Smithfield, on Tuesday, November 15th. Punctually at two o'clock in the afternoon Bro. Thomas William Adams, W.M., opened the lodge. The minutes of the meeting held on Thursday, September 20th, were read, and unanimously confirmed. The ballot taken for Mr. J. Howard was declared to be in favour of his admission. The veteran and father of the lodge, Bro. Joseph Smith, P.G.P., P.M., Treas., the I.P.M., took the chair and presided over the lodge for the remainder of the meeting. He, in his usual happy, impressive, and distinguished manner, passed Bros. William McCluer Butt (son of the host), Charles Goodwin, James Chapman, and E. C. Wagener to the Second Degree; raised Bro. Seymour Craddock and Henry Roffey, 1326, to the Second Degree; and wound up his arduous duties by initiating Mr. J. Howard into the mysteries and privileges of ancient Freemasonry. In consideration of the very many valuable services and other good duties rendered to this lodge as an active founder, and giving all the help to every member of the lodge which laid in his power, on the motion of Bro. Frederick Walters, P.P.G.D. Middx., P.M., Sec., seconded by Bro. Joshua Howes, P.M., J.W., it was unanimously resolved, "That Bro. Edward Mallett, W.M. 141, Faith Lodge, be elected an honorary member of this lodge." The Secretary, Bro. F. Walters, was desired to inform Bro. E. Mallett, W.M. 141, of this vote, as he was absent (for the first time) from this meeting. Several propositions for joining members and candidates for initiation were given in to the Secretary. On motion duly made, seconded, and unanimously resolved, "that Bro. Joshua Howes, P.M., J.W., be elected as the Steward to represent this lodge at the forthcoming festival of the Royal Benevolent Institution for Aged Freemasons and the Widows of Freemasons," business ended, the lodge was closed and adjourned, to meet on Thursday, January 17th, 1878, at half-past two p.m. The usual good banquet and dessert were served up, under the able presidency of Bro. Thomas McCluer Butt, Steward (eldest son of the landlord), who officiated for his father (who, unfortunately, was incapacitated, through an accident, from taking any active part in business), and gave satisfaction to every one. There were present Bros. G. S. Elliott, S.W.; J. Howes, P.M., J.W.; G. H. Stephens, as S.D.; G. Wintle, J.D.; W. Pennefather, P.M., M.C.; W. Malthouse, W.S.; H. J. Lardner, E. E. Crombie, W. Smyth, and others, besides those already named. The visitors were Bros. S. Page, 1326; H. Roffey, 1326; and L. Van Boelen, 1275.

LEICESTER.—St. John's Lodge (No. 279).—The regular monthly meeting of this lodge was held at the Freemasons' Hall on Wednesday evening, the 7th inst. Bro. Clement Edwin Stretton, W.M., presided, and was supported by Bros. J. M. McAlister, I.P.M.; Clement Stretton, P.M. (Mayor-elect of the Borough); George Toller, (Grand Sword-Bearer of England); W. B. Smith, P.M., Prov. Grand Treasurer. Councillors: S. Cleaver, S.W.; C. Gurden, Treasurer; J. Jessop, M.C.; J. Hart, and Chief Constable J. Farndale, as J.W.; besides a numerous attendance of brethren, both members of the lodge and visitors. The raising of Bro. Langmore was the principal feature of the business of the evening, and the ceremony was admirably conducted by the Worshipful Master, assisted by his officers. Bro. McAlister was elected Preceptor of the Lodge of Instruction. On the 9th inst., Bro. Clement Stretton, P.M., was unanimously elected to the distinguished position of chief magistrate of the ancient borough of Leicester, and although the roll of members of the old mother lodge contain the names of many of the Mayors, Aldermen, and others occupying a prominent position in our municipal history, yet as an earnest and zealous Mason, Bro. Stretton stands pre-eminent. Initiated in 1863, he early imbibed a fondness for the Order, and accepted the charge of guarding the portal of the lodge, resolved to advance by regular steps only, to the seat of honour in the east, which he attained by the unanimous wish of the brethren in 1870 and again in 1872. He has also passed the chairs of the other Degrees practised in Leicester, and our charities afford convincing proof that Bro. Stretton is not only distinguished by the profession, but by the practice of the true principles of Freemasonry, brotherly love, relief, and truth.

LANCASTER.—Lodge of Fortitude (No. 281).—The monthly meeting of this lodge was held on Wednesday evening, the 14th inst., in the Masonic Rooms, Athenæum. Bro. R. Taylor, the W.M., occupied the chair, supported by the several officers. There was not a large attendance of visitors. The lodge having been opened in the First Degree, Bro. John Atkinson was examined as to his proficiency as an E.A., and proving satisfactory he was entrusted and retired. The lodge was then opened in the Second Degree, and Bro. John Wilkinson Simpson having given proficiency as a F.C., was entrusted and dismissed for preparation. The lodge was then opened in the Third Degree, and Bro. Simpson having been re-admitted he was raised to the Sublime Degree of a M.M. by the Worshipful Master, who also subsequently presented the working tools. The lodge was then closed down to the Second Degree, when Bro. John Atkinson was re-admitted and passed to the degree of F.C. by the W.M., the symbolism of the working tools being explained by Bro. Jowitt, the S.W. The usual proclamations were then made, and the lodge closed in peace, love, and harmony.

SUNDERLAND.—Williamson Lodge (No. 949).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held on Monday evening, November 12th, 1877, in the new lodge room, in the School of St. Stephen's Church, Monkwearmouth. This lodge room has only been opened a few months, and the brethren consider it excellently adapted for lodge purposes; besides, they can now meet in a place free from the influences of an hotel. It having been announced that the Mayor of Sunderland, Samuel Storey, Esq., was to be initiated, there was a very large gathering of brethren; a great many visitors from the other lodges in the town being present. After his worship and Mr. Wm. Clark (who was also proposed), had been properly balloted for and unanimously elected, they were duly initiated into Masonry. The ceremony, including the charge, was ably gone through by the W.M., Bro. G. B. Hall. The brethren then went from labour to refreshment, and after the various loyal and Masonic toasts had been proposed, Bro. R. Shadforth, P.M., proposed "The Health of the Newly-initiated Brethren," in a speech of some length, in which he adverted to the truly Masonic spirit which had characterised the Mayor's actions, prior to his being introduced to Masonry, instancing the raising of about £1600 to clear off the debt on the Infirmary, and also close upon £2000 towards the Indian Famine Fund. The toast was received with great enthusiasm. Bros. Clark and Storey, each responded. The latter, in a very able speech, dilated upon the truly excellent spirit of Freemasonry, as was manifested to him that night on his being made, and gave evidence of a considerable acquaintance with its history and principles. Bro. Angelo Forrest, Prov. G. Organist, presided at the harmonium, and songs were ably sung by Bros. Foster, Taylor, Hamerton, Nicholson, and Fryer. The remainder of the evening was spent in a very happy and harmonious manner. It is a noticeable fact, that this is, as far as is known, the first time any one has been made a Mason whilst he held the office of Mayor of the borough; this has given considerable éclat to the Williamson Lodge, for whilst the other lodges of the town would gladly have had the honour, yet, his worship preferred being made in the lodge which holds its meetings in Monkwearmouth, his native parish, and it has no doubt given a considerable impetus to Freemasonry in the town of Sunderland.

BRUTON.—Royal Clarence Lodge (No. 976).—An emergency meeting of this lodge was held on the 15th inst., at the Masonic Rooms, Blue Ball Hotel, which was numerously attended. The officers present were Bros. E. R. Hayter, W.M.; E. Heginbotham, P.M., P.P.A.G.D.C. Somerset, S.W.; Albert Huntley, J.W.; F. E. S. Jelley, P.M., P.Z. 41, P.P.G.S.D. Somerset, acting Treas.; T. Bennett, P.M. 160, P.P.J.G.W. Essex, Sec.; J. S. Boyd, S.D.; H. Harrold, J.D.; H. Runcombe, I.G.; J. P. Swaine, Tyler, and many other members of the lodge. The visitors included, amongst others, Bros. B. Atwell, P.M. 437, P.P.G.S. of Works, Somerset; J. H. Colthurst, P.M. 457, P.P.G.R. Somerset; John Feltham, S.W. 437; Alfred Edwards, Secretary 437; John Allen, J.D. 285, and the Rev. S. Williams, 69. The gentlemen initiated were Messrs. William Palmer, Walter Basil Balch, and George Taylor. The W.M. performed the ceremony in his usual impressive manner, and at its conclusion was much applauded by the brethren. Bro. B. Atwell, P.M., kindly presented the working tools. Bro. F. Bennett, P.M., delivered the charge to the newly initiated, which was most effectively rendered and called forth the universal acclamation of the brethren present. The choral part of the ceremony was well sustained by Bros. Huntley, Lockyer, Vincent, and others, Bro. T. Bennett officiating as Organist. The lodge was closed in due form at 8.45, and perfect harmony prevailed. This being the last lodge night during the reign of the present W.M. he received the hearty congratulations of the brethren and visitors on the success which had attended his year of office, and the admirable way in which he had discharged the duties of W.M. After the business of the lodge, the brethren adjourned to an excellent supper provided by host Harry. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given and responded to, several capital songs, duets, &c., were well rendered, and a most enjoyable evening was spent. Bro. Hayter, W.M., kindly played the accompaniments.

JERSEY.—Prince of Wales Lodge (No. 1003).—The annual meeting of this lodge was held at the Masonic Temple, on Wednesday, Nov. 14th, for the sole purpose of installing the newly-elected W.M., when a large number of brethren congregated to congratulate Bro. P. Bois on the successful termination of his term of labour, and Bro. C. D. Bishop on the commencement of his career as a ruler in the Craft, under auspices so favourable, with such an example before him, and with the affairs of this young lodge in so prosperous a condition. The lodge was opened by the W.M., supported by Bros. C. D. Bishop, S.W.; John Huelin, J.W.; P. W. Benham, P.M., P.G. Treasurer; G. J. Renouf, P.M., P.P.S.G.W.; Wm. Metherell, P.M., P.J.G.D.; H. M. Walden, P.M.; I. G. Pallot, P.G.S. of W., Sec.; and others. Visitors, Bros. Dr. J. Le Cronier, D.P.G.M.; A. Schmitt, P.P.S.G.W.; F. Le Feuvre, W.M. 877, P.P.G.S.B.; Ed. Martel, P.M. 958, P.P.G.D.C.; John Oatley, P.M. 590, P.P.S.G.W.; W. H. Chapman, W.M. 958, P.G.D.C.; Dr. Th. J. Aubin, W.M. 491, P.S.G.D.; P. Messervy, W.M. 590; F. P. Le Marquand, P.M. 491, P.P.G.D.; Edmund Tuck, P.M. 174;

J. Moss, P.M. 245, Assist. G.D.C.; Ph. Blampied, W.M. 245, P.P.G.D.C.; J. O. LeSueur, P.M. 701, P.G. Sec.; A. Gallichan, J.W. 590; L. Hespéradou, W.M. 244; E. Carrie, S.W. 590; and others. This being an emergency meeting, the Secretary read the minutes of previous proceedings only so far as they related to it, which were confirmed. The lodge was opened in the Second Degree. Bro. P. W. Benham took the chair as Installing Master. Bro. C. D. Bishop was presented as W.M. Elect. The customary enumeration of duties was made and acknowledged, the ancient charges were read and assented to, and the obligations of W.M. elect administered. A Board of nineteen Installed Masters was then formed, and Bro. Bishop was duly placed in the chair of K.S., according to ancient custom. After the board had been closed, the several classes of Master Masons, Fellow Crafts, and Entered Apprentices were in turn admitted, and the usual proclamations were gone through, respecting which it need only be recorded that Bro. Benham conducted the ceremonies with great exactitude and impressiveness. After the address to the W.M., delivered with fervour, Bro. Bishop briefly remarked, that fully acknowledging the difficulty of the task he had undertaken, he was sensible of the honour conferred upon him. He accepted the responsibility, and trusted that with God's help he should not be found wanting in the worthy discharge of it, especially relying upon official help from the P.M.'s. The following appointments were made, Bro. Benham in each case officiating and offering appropriate observations:—Bros. J. Huelin, S.W.; J. Harris, J.W.; J. G. Pallot, P.M., Sec.; J. Baal, S.D.; E. Oldridge, J.D.; W. H. Anthony, I.G.; and G. R. Rogers, P.M., Tyler. Lastly, the W.M. invested Bro. Benham, the founder of the lodge, as Treas., with some remarks as well deserved by his past and faithful services as they were complimentary and sincere. Bro. Benham then said: Considering the zeal, the fraternal attachment, and the valuable services rendered by Bro. P. Bois to our lodge—considering that at great sacrifice of his private engagements he has devoted so much of his time to the labours and the numerous extra calls which devolve on the W.M., I propose—"That some token be presented to our I.P.M., Bro. P. Bois, by the lodge, as a visible testimony of our feelings of gratitude, of esteem, and of the fraternal affection which we entertain towards him, and that a committee be appointed and entrusted with the arrangements for carrying out this resolution." The proposition was seconded by Bro. Metherell, and passed unanimously and by acclamation. No other business offering, the lodge was closed in perfect harmony. The brethren adjourned to the banqueting-room, and about seventy sat down to an excellent dinner, and a most harmonious and enjoyable evening was spent.

ALDERSHOT.—Aldershot Camp Lodge (No. 1331).—The installation of Bro. V. Lucas took place on Thursday, the 8th inst., at the Assembly Rooms, High-street, Aldershot, and was well attended by the brethren of the district, where the spirit of emulation is so strongly manifested that the installation ceremony is keenly watched and criticised, and as nearly in all cases the retiring Master makes it a point to instal his successor, the criticism is keen, and the result as near as possible perfection. From the acknowledged ability of Bro. J. Smith, the retiring W.M., a Masonic treat was anticipated, and indeed partaken in by all who heard the eloquent manner in which he worked the beautiful ceremony. The lodge was opened at 3.30 precisely, when Bro. Burton was passed to the Second Degree, and then Bro. Lucas was presented for installation, and according to ancient custom placed in the chair of K.S., and duly saluted by the brethren. He then invested his officers as follows: Bros. W. Elsham, S.W.; G. Douglas, J.W. and Secretary; I. Theobald, S.D.; A. Bruce, J.D.; W. Fairbank, I.G.; J. Johnson, Steward; T. Abbotts, Tyler. The usual addresses were most impressively rendered by the Installing Officer, and the ceremony closed. A P.M. collar and jewel was then presented to Bro. Smith, and a vote of thanks was accorded to him for the manner in which he had that day fulfilled the duties of Installing Officer. The lodge was then closed, and the brethren adjourned to the Royal Hotel, where a well served banquet awaited them. There were upwards of twenty P.M.'s present. After the usual Masonic toasts, Bro. Smith proposed "The Health of the W.M.," and in doing so he hoped that he might have a prosperous year of office. He (the W.M.) went into the chair that day with the confidence and good-wishes of every member of the lodge. (Cheers.) The W.M. in returning thanks said he should always work for the benefit of the lodge, and would carefully listen to every suggestion that might be made for the welfare of it, and for the comfort and prosperity of every brother of it. (Applause.) The W.M. gave the toast of "The Visitors," saying that upon this occasion it was a great pleasure to see so many brethren of influence and eminence in the Craft present; some of them had come long distances to do him and the lodge honour. Bro. Cirtchoffers responded, and stated in an excellent speech that nothing could exceed the working of the junior officers of this lodge, and he supposed from the fact that they were military men, and the first duty they were taught to obey, which in his opinion was carried out to the letter, and he would be much pleased to attend the lodge or lodge of instruction, should either be at work when he was visiting Aldershot. Bro. Eve in an eloquent speech explained how satisfactorily the duties of the Camp Lodge, from his knowledge, were carried out, and that they had men amongst them of great ability; he also explained the great good that Benevolent Institutions are to the Craft, and impressed on the brethren the importance of keeping their dues paid up, that should an evil day turn up the door was open to those who had assisted to keep others in.

CHIPPING SODBURY.—Tyndall Lodge (No. 1363).—The seventh annual installation festival of this lodge was held at the lodge room, in the Town Hall, on the 10th inst. The brethren were summoned to meet at two o'clock, and shortly after that hour Bro. Algernon Sudlow, the W.M., took his place in the chair. The officers were in their places, and there was a numerous attendance of members and distinguished brethren as visitors, the following being present: Bros. S. Davies, P.M. 1363, G.S.W. Mon.; G. Rennie Powell, P.M., P.P.G.P.; C. A. Bush, Sec., P.G.D.C.; F. J. Vizard, P.M. 1363; J. P. Curtis, S.W.; W. Tucker, P.M. 2103, P.P.G.P. Bristol; J. Iles, Org.; G. Godwin, I.G.; C. Iles, Tyler; R. J. Brice, T. Brooke, Moses Eyles, W. R. Latter, T. Tinsley, W. Munro, P.M. 336, P.P.G.D.C. Bristol; F. J. Blake, Sec. 855, P.M. 410; J. C. Collic, P.M. 1271, P.P.G.O.; H. G. Layton, P.G.C. Gloucester; L. Millman, 855, P.P. G.P.; F. Millman, 855; F. Gregory, 855; A. G. Williams, 610, S.D.; E. Weare, 68; C. Godwin, 68; Thos. Davies, 270; W. H. Cartwright, 1003; W. Northcott, 164; W. M. Lowick, 1388. The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved in due form. Bro. J. Payne Curtis, S.W., the W.M. elect, was then presented for the benefit of installation by Bros. A. Sudlow and S. Davies. The ceremony of installing Bro. Curtis was then most ably and impressively performed by Bro. W. Munro, P.M. 326, P.P.G.D.C., and much satisfaction was expressed by all present at the manner in which Bro. Munro performed the duties. The W.M. then invested the following officers for the ensuing year: A. Sudlow, I.P.M.; E. Crossman, S.W.; W. Tucker, J.W.; C. A. Bush, Sec.; J. Trenfield, Treas.; F. J. Vizard, D.C.; T. Brooke, S.D.; T. Tinsley, J.D.; Moses Eyles, I.G.; W. H. H. Hartley and G. Taylor, Stewards; J. Iles, Org.; and C. Iles, Tyler. The closing charges to the Wardens and brethren were then very effectively given by Bro. Munro. The business being concluded, the lodge was closed in due form, and the brethren adjourned to the Portcullis Hotel, to a very enjoyable banquet, most ably served by Bro. Godwin. The cloth having been removed, the W.M. proposed the usual loyal and Masonic toasts.

TWICKENHAM.—Francis Burdett Lodge (No. 1503).—The installation meeting of this provincial lodge was held at the Albany Hotel on the 14th inst., when there were present amongst others Bros. Saunders, P.G.S. Midx. W.M.; S. H. Knaeggs, S.W., W.M. elect; Court, J.W. W. Wigginton, P.P.G.S. of Works, Midx., I.P.M. and Secretary; D'Orsey, Chaplain; Taylor, S.D.; Vaughan, J.D.; Ashley, I.G.; Palmer, Steward, Court, jun., Assist. Organist; F. Honeywell, P.M.; Dobie. The visitors were Bros. W. Hammond, P.P.G.D. Midx.; Clark, P.M. 255, &c.; Farwig, J.W. 180; W. Morgan, jun., 1385. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, the I.P.M. by the permission of the W.M. initiated Mr. T. G. Newton into the Order. Bro. Knaggs having been presented to receive the benefit of installation, that ceremony was carried out by the I.P.M., who appointed Bros. Honeywell, as S.W.; Hammond, as J.W.; and Clark, I.G., to assist him with the "work." We have had to mention in these columns on several occasions the impressive manner in which Bro. Wigginton conducts the various ceremonies of the Craft, and on this particular evening he was even more happy in his rendering of the ritual than usual. The W.M. invested his officers as follows:—Bros. Court, S.W.; Taylor, J.W.; Tomlinson, Treasurer, (by Deputy); Wigginton, Secretary; Rev. D'Orsey, Chaplain; Vaughan, S.D.; Ashley, J.D.; Palmer, I.G.; Walls, P.G.O. Midx., D.C.; Briggs, Steward; Ricknoll, W.S.; Suggs, Organist, (by deputy); Court, jun., Assist. Organist; Harrison, Tyler. Previously to the lodge being closed, a vote of thanks was unanimously voted to the I.P.M. for the able way in which he had conducted the ceremony of installation. The banquet was well served, and having been done full justice to the W.M. gave the customary loyal and Craft toasts. "The Health of the Provincial Grand Master" was coupled with the names of Bros. Hammond and Wigginton. The former brother at some length touched upon the great abilities and other qualities of Bro. Colonel Burdett, and of the Masonic skill of the D.P.G.M., whose present state of ill health was to be greatly deplored. Bro. Wigginton in his reply took occasion to speak of his experience of the Grand Lodges of other provinces notably Worcestershire, of which province he had been a Grand Officer for nearly 21 years. "The Health of the W.M." was proposed in very warm terms by the I.P.M., and having been duly honoured was acknowledged by Bro. Knaggs, who in the course of his reply said that he felt it a great honour to occupy the position of Master in so excellent a lodge as No. 1503. He felt at times that it was almost beyond his conception that he should in the brief period of three years have arrived at the goal of every zealous Mason's ambition, but he owed his proud elevation to very exceptional circumstances, firstly, as the "first-born" of the lodge, and, secondly, because he had been in office from the very night of his initiation. In conclusion, he said he would endeavour to merit the high honour that had been conferred upon him by the brethren. "The Health of the Installing Officer" was given by the W.M. in very cordial and complimentary terms, and having been briefly responded to by Bro. Wigginton, the toast of "The Past Masters" followed. In introducing this toast the W.M. dilated upon the interest evinced by the I.P.M., Bro. Saunders, in the three great Masonic Charities, and whose genial and other qualities were so well and deservedly known to them all. The I.P.M. having responded, "The Health of the Initiate" followed, and Bro. Newton made a neat and modest reply. "The Health of the Visitors" came next in order, and having been coupled with the name of Bro. Clark, gave that brother the opportunity of making an exhaustive reply, in which he spoke highly of the Francis Burdett Lodge, and of the capabilities of its "working" staff. "The Officers" followed, and was respectively acknowledged by the S.W., Chaplain, and Secretary. "The Masonic Press" having been duly proposed, Bro. Walls acknowledged the compliment. The I.P.M., by the permission of the W.M., then gave one of the most important toasts of the evening, namely, "The Masonic Charities," in which he expressed a hope that he should live to see many of the brethren of the Francis Burdett Lodge holding the position of governors in those most vital and invaluable institutions. The Tyler having been called upon to discharge his duty, the brethren shortly afterwards separated until the second Wednesday in December next.

MORECAMBE.—Morecambe Lodge (No. 1561).—The monthly meeting of this lodge was held on Friday evening, the 2nd inst., at the Masonic Hall, Edward-street. The W.M. (Bro. W. Duff) occupied the chair, but owing to the very inclement weather, the attendance was but small. The lodge was opened in the First Degree, and the minutes of last meeting read and confirmed. The ballot was then taken for Bro. E. Johnson (Preston) and Bro. J. J. Crossell, (281), as joining members, and which proving unanimous, they were duly admitted members. After the transaction of some routine business the usual proclamations were made, and the lodge closed with the formalities of the Craft.

HAMPTON.—Hemming Lodge (No. 1512).—On the 15th inst., this lodge held its second meeting of the season at the Lion Hotel, when there were present amongst others Bros. J. Hammond, P.M.; Jordan, W.M.; Fox, W.M. Lebanon, S.W.; Jessett, J.W.; Hopwood, P.G.S.B. of Midx.; Treasurer; W. Hammond, P.P.G.D. Midx.; Secretary; J. Hurst, I.P.M.; T. W. Ockenden, Secretary 1866, S.D.; T. C. Walls, P.G.O. Midx.; J. D. Kent, I.G.; Hiscob, W.S.; Moody, A.W.S.; S. H. Knaggs, W.M. 1863; Gilbert, P.G.T. of Midx.; Tyler. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, the W.M. passed Bro. Jones and raised Bro. Tozer, both ceremonies being performed most impressively. Bro. John Hurst, I.P.M., having been appointed Steward to represent the lodge at the next festival in aid of the funds of the R.M.B.I. for Girls, and several minor matters having been satisfactorily disposed of the lodge was closed and the brethren adjourned to a collation. The customary loyal and Craft toasts having been duly honoured, the W.M. proposed "The Health of the D.P.G.M. of Midx., and the rest of the Provincial Grand Officers, Past and Present." This toast was coupled with the name of Bro. Hopwood, who in his reply did full justice to the theme. "The W.M." followed, and having been most warmly received, Bro. John Hammond briefly replied. In introducing "The Health of the Officers," the W.M. said that he should include in that toast all the brethren holding office in the lodge, from the Treasurer and Secretary downwards. He then briefly but kindly touched upon the capabilities and relative merits of the staff, and coupled the name of the S.W., Bro. Fox, with the toast, who duly acknowledged the compliment paid to his brother officers and himself, and in concluding his remarks said that the W.M. and the lodge were to be congratulated on the attendance of the officers that evening, who with one exception were all present. "The Masonic Charities" followed, and having been coupled with the name of Bro. Hurst, I.P.M., that brother made a forcible appeal on the benevolence of the brethren on behalf of those excellent institutions, and particularly hoped that they would endeavour to assist him to the best of their ability at the forthcoming festival of the Girls' School. The proceedings were enlivened by Bros. Hurst, Walls, Moody, Jessett and others.

INSTRUCTION.

EARL OF CARNARVON LODGE (No. 1642).—This lodge met on Friday, the 29th inst., at the Mitre Hotel, Goulborne-road, Notting Hill. Present: Bros. Wood, W.M.; Penn, S.W.; Smout, sen., J.W.; Smout jun., Sec.; Spiegel, S.D.; Lichtwitz, J.D.; Parkhouse, I.G.; Savage, Preceptor; Michel, P.M.; Murlis, P.M.; Kelly, Woodmason, Hopton, and many others. The W.M., after opening the lodge, vacated the chair for Bro. Michel, P.M., for the purpose of working the installation ceremony, which he carried out to the greatest satisfaction of all the brethren, after which the ceremony of raising was rehearsed, Bro. Hopton being the candidate. Bro. Spiegel moved, "That this lodge of instruction will head a subscription list with £1, augmented by a subscription from the brethren, to put on the list of Bro. Stevens, P.M., the Steward for the next festival of the Girls' School," in the mother Lodge. Bro. Penn moved as an amendment to head the list with £5 5s. Bro. Spiegel withdrew his motion, but the confirmation was adjourned for a fortnight. Bro. Spiegel was elected to occupy the chair next Friday.

PANMURE CHAPTER (No. 720).—A regular meeting of this chapter was held at the Horns Tavern, Kennington, S.E., on Monday, the 12th inst. Chapter was opened by E. Comps. G. H. N. Bridges, M.E.Z.; George Waterall, H.; Mark S. Larham, J.; James Stevens, P.Z. and Scribe E.; H. C. Levander, P.Z., Treas.; and H. Harvey, P.Z. There were also present Comps. R. N. Field, P.S.; A. C. Burrell, 1st. A.S.; Samuel Poynter, 2nd A.S.; Thomas Meggy, Steward; John Gilbert, Janitor; also Comps. G. T. Thorne, Alfred Youngman, and others; and visitors: E. Comps. P. Dakers, P.Z. 583; and Comps. W. Foster, T. Edmondstone, and H. Jarman, all of the Macdonald Lodge, No. 1216. The chapter having been duly opened and companions admitted, Bros. Edward Mitchell, of the Panmure Lodge, No. 730, and Thomas Preston, Sec. of the Royal Leopold Lodge, No. 1669, were balloted for, approved of, and exalted to the Supreme Degree. Refreshment followed labour, after which the usual Masonic toasts were duly honoured. The exaltees expressed great satisfaction with their introduction into Royal Arch Masonry, and the visitors through B. Comp. Dakers bestowed high encomiums on the working they witnessed. A brief but agreeable evening was spent in social harmony, and the companions separated in peace and good fellowship.

PONTYPOOL.—Kennard Chapter (No. 1258).—A meeting of this chapter was held at the Masonic Hall, Pontypool, on Monday, 12th November, when the following companions were installed as Principals for the ensuing year: Comp. W. Bunning, as M.E.Z.; W. Dovey, as H.; H. Haskins, as Z. The ceremony was most ably performed by Ex. Comp. Capt. S. Geo. Homfray, P.G.S.B. of Grand Chapter, and P.G.H. Mon., assisted by Ex. Comps. W. Pickford and S. Oliver, P.Z.s of 471, and Ex. Comp. H. Griffiths, P.Z. A vote of thanks was unanimously given to Ex. Comp. Capt. S. G. Homfray for the ready manner in which he always comes forward to perform any ceremony when required, and the chapter was closed in harmony, and the companions adjourned to a supper at the Clarence Hotel. A very liberal collection was made by Comp. S. G. Homfray towards the Stewardship of the P.G.M., Col. Lyne, for next Boys' School Anniversary.

Ancient and Accepted Rite.

BRIGHTON.—Eureka Rose Croix Chapter (No. 44).—The Eureka Chapter celebrated the fifth anniversary of its foundation on Saturday, the 10th inst., when it was honoured by the presence of a large number of distinguished visitors from London and Cheshire, amongst whom were the following members of the "Supreme Council," 33°. Captain N. G. Philips, 33°, Lieut. Grand Com. Sen. G.D. and G.N. of England; Lieut. Col. Shalwell Clerke, 33°, G. Sec. Gen., P.S.G. Warden Devon, &c.; Hugh D. Sandeman, 33°, G. Sec. F.C., P.D.G. Master and G. Supt. Bengal; Lieut. Col. A. W. Adair, 33°, P. Prov. G. Master Somerset. The undermentioned members of the 33°, 32°, 31°, and 30° were also present:—S. Rawson, 33°, Deputy Ins. Gen. S.E. District, P.D.G. Master, and G. Supt. China; R.W. H. Giddy, 33°, D. Ins. Gen. S. Africa, D.G. Master S. Africa; Major George Barlow, 33°, D. Ins. Gen. S. District; Lieut.-Gen. J. S. Brownrigg, C.B., 33°, Prov. G. Master and G. Supt. Surrey; W. Hyde Pullen, 33°, P.G.S.B. of England; Lieut. Col. Francis Burdett, 32°, Prov. G. Master and G. Supt. of Middlesex; Charles Horsley, 32°, Lieut. Col. H. S. Burney, 32°, Dr. Trollope, 31°, P.S.G.W. Sussex; Rev. Ambrose Hill, 31°, Charles Hammetton, 31°, Hon. Capt. Paget Bourke, 30°, Thomas Lane, 30°, Robert Stewart, 30°, Dr. M. B. Tanner, 30°, and the following members of the 18°: Capt. J. C. H. Stratford, Lord Arthur Hill, Rev. E. Walker, H. Sanderson, J. Robertson, Kennedy Skipton, E. Pidcock, Capt. Huth, Capt. McWhinnie, A. Everingham, Greaves, W. R. Wood, D. Smith, E. De Paris, Vickers, F. Holford, G. Le Pays, W. Pallin, and others. The M.W. Sov. of the chapter, Bro. Charles J. Smith, presided, and after the distinguished visitors of the Supreme Council and other members of the 33° had been received in due form, the two candidates, Bros. Le Pays and Pallin, were admitted to the degree of S.P.R.C., 18°, the ceremonies being worked with great accuracy and effect by Bro. Charles Smith, who was complimented thereon by the Supreme Council. After the chapter was closed, the brethren were entertained at a choice banquet at Markwell's Royal Hotel, when the usual Masonic toasts were duly honoured. This chapter, the most complete and beautiful in England, may fairly be congratulated on the entire success of the evening, and on the distinguished position which it has attained in the last five years, despite the strenuous but fruitless opposition manifested in certain quarters in its early days. An Order that rejoices in possessing H.R.H. the M.W.G.M. as its Patron, almost every distinguished Grand Officer of England, and nearly all the Provincial Grand Masters, as members, can well afford to disregard narrow-minded cavillings and misrepresentations to which it is occasionally subjected.

SOUTH MOLTON.—Fortescue Lodge (No. 9).—The usual annual meeting of this lodge for the purpose of installing the W.M. for the year ensuing, was held at the Masonic Hall, on Monday last. The following brethren were present:—Lieut.-Col. J. Tanner Davy, P.G.M.; John Wood, W.M.; J. T. Shapland, I.P.M., P.P.G., J.W.; J. Brewer, S.W., P.P.G.J.O.; W. Cole, J.W.; J. Galliford, M.O., P.G., S.O.; J. E. Galliford, W. H. Brewer, C. S. Willshire, J. List, T. Hancock, A. Petowsky, W. Briteon, J. Gaydon, R. Kingdom and others. The ceremony of installation was very correctly performed by Bro. Davy. The W.M. then appointed and invested the following brethren as the officers of the lodge for the year ensuing:—J. Wood, I.P.M.; W. Cole, S.W.; W. H. Brewer, J.W.; J. Galliford, M.O.; J. T. Widgery, S.O.; W. Britton, J.O.; Rev. F. King, M.A., P.G.C., Chaplain; J. Galliford, Treas.; J. E. Galliford, Sec.; A. Petowsky, Reg. of Marks; W. C. Oliver, S.D.; J. List, J.D.; J. Gaydon, I.G.; and R. Kingdom, Tyler. The brethren afterwards dined together at Bro. Cole's, Unicorn Hotel, and a very pleasant evening was spent.

NEW SOUTH WALES.—The brethren who have experienced so much difficulty in procuring the Freemason in this distant colony, will be pleased to learn that owing to arrangements made with Messrs. T. J. Jones and Son, "The Four Masonic Publications" may now be obtained at their offices, No. 330, George-street, Sydney, on the arrival of the mail.

THE GRAND ORIENT OF FRANCE.

As to the consequences which our discussion may have in the profane world, I do not at all fear them as far as relates to the civil power.

What have we to fear? In studying this question do we enter into a domain which belongs to it and do we infringe its rights? By no means! We wish on the contrary to fix a limit, on this point, and to remain like itself above all creeds and all religions. Then, my brothers, and to sum up, none of the considerations which have been presented have appeared to us to be of a nature to require the postponement advised. We have been so much the more favourable, my brothers, to the immediate discussion of the question, because, as one of its members judiciously reminded the Committee, there is in the Constitution an article which made it our imperative duty. This article, is the complementary article of Title V., thus expressed:

TITLE V.—COMPLEMENTARY ARTICLE.

"Every demand of modification in the Constitution, taken into consideration by the General Assembly of the Gr. Or. of Fr. shall be discussed in the Assembly of the following year, the lodges having been previously consulted."

For all these reasons, my BB., your Committee, by a majority of eight votes, has adopted the immediate discussion of Proposition No. IX.

This first point of view being studied, my BB., your Committee has devoted itself to a profound examination of the proposition itself. You do not expect, doubtless, that I should expound to you now all the reasons which have been presented in support of its adoption. That would be giving this already too prolix report (but which the little time that has been given me to devote to it has not allowed me to make shorter) too great length.

Besides, my BB., these reasons, you know them, you have been able to gather them in the eloquent discourses which were delivered in 1865, 1867, and more recently still, last year.

In your respective lodges—and your deliberations sent to the Gr. Or. evidence it—you have been able to present them yourselves, or to hear them expressed, so that, at the present moment, these motives are, I am sure, present to the minds of all of you.

Permit me then to confine myself to recapitulating them to you rapidly.

We ask for the suppression of the second paragraph of Art. 1st of our Constitution, because it appears to us to be in complete contradiction with the following paragraph of the same article.

We ask for this suppression because this formula, it appears to us, must cause very often embarrassment to many Masters, and to many lodges, which under certain circumstances are forced, either to elude the law, or else to violate it.

Now, should not Masonry always set the example of observance of and respect for the law?

We ask for the suppression of this formula, because, embarrassing as it is for the Masters and the lodges, it is none the less so for many profanes, who, animated by a sincere desire to form a part of our great and beautiful institution, which has been depicted to them, with good reason, as a broad and progressive institution, see themselves suddenly arrested by this dogmatic barrier which their conscience does not allow them to overstep.

We ask for the suppression of this formula, because it appears to us entirely useless and foreign to the purpose aimed at by Masonry.

When a society of learned men assembles to study a scientific question, does it feel itself obliged to place at the basis of its statutes any theological formula whatever? Is not "No" the answer? They study science independently of every dogmatic or religious idea.

Should it not be the same in Masonry? Is not its field vast enough, its domain of sufficient extent, for it not to be necessary that it should place its foot on ground which is not its own?

No, let us leave to the theologians the care of discussing dogmas. Let us leave to the churches that have authority the care of drawing up their syllabus. But let Masonry remain what it ought to be; that is to say, an institution open to all progress, to all moral and elevated ideas, to all broad, liberal inspirations; let it never descend into the fiery arena of theological discussions, which have never—believe the word of him who speaks to you—brought about anything but troubles and persecutions. Let her beware of wishing to be a Church, a council, a synod. For all Churches all councils, all synods have been violent persecutors; and that from always having chosen to take for basis dogma, which, from its nature, is essentially inquisitorial and intolerant. Let Masonry then soar majestically above all these questions of Church or of sect; let her tower from her whole eminence over all their discussions; let her remain the vast shelter always open to all generous and valiant minds, to all conscientious and disinterested seekers after truth, to all victims, in fine, of despotism and intolerance.

Such is, my BB., the conclusion at which your Committee have arrived, and if, when it concerned the question of opportuneness, we have been 8 against 1, I am delighted to tell you that, for all the reasons which I have just called to your mind, we have been unanimous in adopting the following resolution which we have the favor to propose to you:

1st. The Assembly, considering that Freemasonry is not a religion; that, consequently, it is not called upon to affirm in its Constitution doctrines or dogmas:

Adopts the Proposition No. IX.

2d. The Assembly decides that the 2d paragraph of Art. 1 of the Constitution shall have the following tenor:

"Freemasonry holds as a principle: Absolute liberty of conscience and human solidarity."

3d. The Assembly suppresses, as constituting a useless repetition with the 2d paragraph modified, Paragraph 3, thus expressed:

"Freemasonry regards liberty of conscience as a right belonging to every man, and excludes no person on account of his beliefs."

4th. The Assembly decides finally that Art. 1 of the Constitution shall hereafter have the following tenor:

"Freemasonry, an essentially philanthropic, philosophical, and progressive institution, has for its object the search after truth, the study of universal ethics, of the sciences and of arts, and the exercise of beneficence."

"It holds as a principle absolute liberty of conscience and human solidarity. It has for device: Liberty, Equality, Fraternity."

If these propositions are adopted by the Assembly, your Committee decides to propose to the Council of the Order to give the question to be studied relative to the revision of the rituals at present in use.

This report, it must be acknowledged, is admirably drawn up, and therefore it was often applauded by a large majority of the assembly.

A great number of BB. in the Assembly demand that they should immediately proceed to the vote.

The President, Bro. de Saint Jean, opposes this course; he is desirous of submitting an observation.

Silence is restored with difficulty. Bro. de Saint Jean has the floor.

He would consider himself wanting in all his duties as a Mason, and not sufficiently to appreciate his responsibility as Presiding Officer of the Grand Orient, if he did not make known the agitation which filled him. Yes, he foresees mischief for our Institution in the immediate vote on the adoption of Proposition No. IX., and he cannot, he must not hide his opinion. It is this: The Assembly must weigh this reflection, and adopt the wisest expedient in the interest of the Institution.

The clamour for the question is renewed with great vigour. Bro. Dalsace wishes to speak; he obtains silence only with difficulty.

For four days, said he, I have served an actual campaign in favour of postponement, but the report which we have just heard, and which has won us by its moderation, by its wisdom, by its forcible and irrefutable consideration in favour of an immediate vote, by its very Masonic and conciliatory resolutions, all make it my duty, my BB. to inform you, that I am no longer for postponement; that I am for an immediate vote. And I am pleased to hope that all this Assembly will come round to this opinion. It is necessary, in order that the results of our vote should be efficacious, that it should not meet with any opposing factions.

Bro. Aubert-Bouché does not share the opinion of Bro. Dalsace; he deduces with rapidity the great considerations of security which are inducements to ask the postponement to another session. Often interrupted, he withstands energetically the interrupters who wish to impose silence on him. In Masonry, we must know how to listen to each other. Besides, my BB., I am the representative here of 100 Masons, which is quite a number, and I only give expression to what is expected by these Masons of the wisdom and foresight of the Assembly.

Bro. Ferdeuil thinks that we must put an end to this question, which, for too long a time, has been a source of agitation and trouble in Masonry. He embraces the proposition of the Committee on the vote, whose adoption will bring about pacification in our ranks, and will disengage us from a text of law which gives satisfaction to no one.

Again, the cries: "The closing! the closing! to the vote! to the vote!" come from all parts of the Temple. Unquestionably the majority is won over to the Proposition No. IX.

Bro. Jabouille demands the floor. He is compelled to struggle quite a long time to succeed in making himself heard. Finally, he can proceed, although interrupted; he then sets forth with much talent and appositeness the best of reasons for the Assembly to grant the postponement. He says with good reason that even while reading with the greatest care the report so well entitled to consideration of Bro. Desmons, it is evident from it that the question which is agitated is not a question of principle, but of formula . . . and again . . . He shows that the Assembly is giving way to an impulse of sentiment and nothing more, and in this case the greatest victory would be that gained over itself. He skillfully makes it evident that the declaration which has been in the Constitution since 1849 has in no wise trammelled Masonry, at any period, at any moment; what inconvenience then in deferring it? There is no inconvenience in that; on the contrary, every advantage. The orator would have had still many more considerations to plead, but the Assembly is impatient, and on the Presiding Officer himself insisting, Bro. Jabouille curtails and breaks off his discourse.

Bro. Jouault: The solution of the question exists. The declaration of the lodges rises imperiously before us. We have an imperative mandate; we have only to assent to the declaration of our lodges. To postpone would be pusillanimity. It is time to make an end of it.

Bro. Du Hamel explaining the Constitution, and stopping specially at Article 5, demonstrates the unconstitutionality and the danger of the imperative mandate.

This brother cannot get to the end of his argumentation, any more than the preceding ones.

Besides, he is told that he is outside of the question. This is not the opinion of Bro. de Saint-Jean, who, himself, thinks, on the contrary, that Bro. Du Hamel reasoned justly.

Bro. Dalsace returns to the charge, but such is the disposition of the Assembly that it does not listen, that it will not listen even to those who reflect its thought. At last Bro. Dalsace uses such energy and persistency, that finally he is able to emphasise in a louder tone the considerations which he developed in his first address. Acceding at the last moment to Proposition No. IX., he could see a very great advantage in the Assembly's being unanimous in its vote.

A brother whose name I regret not knowing, proceeded to explain what had already been said, that, concerning article 8, the Assembly could not escape from the necessity of a definitive solution of the question of Proposition No. IX. As the orator still kept on, although he was interrupted at every instant, the call for the closing became so urgent and general, that the Presiding Officer was obliged to put it to the vote: it was adopted almost unanimously.

The President demands the conclusions of the Orator, Bro. Viénot, on the postponement.

The conclusions are against postponement. These conclusions are adopted by a large majority.

The President gives notice that he will put to the vote in succession the resolutions of the report of Bro. Desmons.

Bro. Minot and some other BB. demand a vote by call of the roll. His insistence on this demand produces some tumult; finally the law prevails, and the vote is taken by rising or remaining seated.

No. 1.—No. 2.—No. 3.

1st. The Assembly, considering that Freemasonry is not a religion; that, consequently, it is not called upon to assert in its Constitution doctrines or dogmas, Adopts Proposition No. IX.

2d. The Assembly decides that the 2d section of Article 1st of the Constitution shall have the following tenor:

"It holds as principles, absolute freedom of conscience and human solidarity."

3d. The Assembly suppresses, as constituting a useless repetition of the 2d section as modified, section 3, thus expressed:

"It considers liberty of conscience as a right belonging to every man and excludes no one for his creed."

The section ". . . and excludes no one for his creed . . ." was introduced into No. 3 by request of Bro. de Saint Jean. This amendment, at first rejected by the Committee, but defended by Bro. Cauzard, of the Lodge la Renaissance and other BB., was accepted by it; which facilitated its adoption.

Being accustomed to remain an exact and impartial narrator, we have no difficulty in acknowledging that the minority against the adoption of the vote was feeble, and we acknowledge that we are of that minority and we persist in it; we remain convinced that the vote of the Gr. Or. is a mistake, and a very great mistake. We shall never understand an Institution having morality for its object, for its teaching, which commences by cutting off what is its law and sanction.

The revision of the Statutes and Rituals was decided upon so as to place them in accordance with the preceding vote.

Session of Friday, 14th September.

Some explanations are exchanged on the subject of the number of the Majority and of the Minority, in the case of Proposition No. IX, adoption of the resolutions of the Committee on this Proposition.

The official report will state the fact that the adoption had a large majority.

No one disputes the fact. Certainly the very great majority voted the adoption of Proposition No. IX.

Bro. Marchal, of Nancy, wishes to ask a question on this subject. "It remains, then, well established that the Masonry of the Grand Orient is disengaged from all religious principles?"

This is not disputed.

Our readers have before them the labours of the Session of the Masonic year 5877. It was feared that it would not take place. Let us acknowledge that these sessions have been dignified, and that the resolutions adopted have been so after serious study and thorough discussion. One vote has distressed us, this is the vote No. IX; we believe it to be prejudicial to true Masonic interests, and we have been and glory in being in that minority which voted against this adoption. But our regret should not render us unjust; if anything can afford any alleviation, any palliation of our grief on this point, it is the sentiment of moderation, the spirit of conciliation which are to be discerned in the report of Bro. Desmons. We have applauded this report, without having been willing to adopt its conclusions, for it sanctioned a suppression in our Masonic law, which is, for me, with my full conviction, a derogation from one of the fundamental principles of Freemasonry, such as it has been established from all time, such as it appears in the known Universe, because the report of Bro. Desmons is that of a loyal Mason, of a Mason who knows how to speak with a wholly fraternal heart.

We must likewise thank Brother de Saint-Jean for having proposed to add to the 3d resolution of the Committee on Proposition No. IX, the paragraph: "Freemasonry considers liberty of conscience as a right belonging to every man, and it excludes no one on account of his creed." It is a real weighing and fortunate attenuation of the textual wording of the resolutions as they came from the deliberations of the Committee on Proposition No. IX. Let us thank Bro. Cauzard, who, by his intervention in the debate, contributed powerfully to the adoption of the amendment of Bro. de Saint-Jean.

In an early number, we shall examine the report of Bro. Desmons; we will point out the historical errors in point of fact which are to be found therein. We must not do that through respect for the opinion which we have defended and which is still ours.

HUBERT.

The Members of the Grand Orient of France are entitled to the full benefit of their declaration, that the suppression of the declaration of belief in God and in the immortality of the Soul cannot without injustice be taken as a profession of Materialism or Atheism. It is, no doubt, not so for most of them. It is so, no doubt for some.

And on the other hand, they must all bear the full burthen of the declarations that it is a proclamation of entire liberty of conscience; that one of the reasons for the suppression has been, to relieve Masters of Lodges from embarrassment and from the necessity which "in certain circumstances," constrained them either to elude or violate the law; and another, to relieve profanes applying for initiation, who might find the clause suppressed a barrier which their conscience would not permit them to surmount.

For the meaning of all this is, that it shall be no obstacle in France to the admission of a profane into Masonry, that he is a pronounced and avowed Atheist, who cannot declare that he puts his trust in God, because he believes that there is no God; and the clause suppressed must no longer embarrass Masters and Lodges desirous to initiate Atheists, nor Atheists who desire initiation.

It has always been a landmark of the genuine English and American Freemasonry, that no Atheist, equally with no woman, can be admitted a Mason. That Order, in any country, into which avowed Atheists can be admitted, and the Members whereof need not believe that there is a God or that the Soul of man lives after his body, cannot be Freemasonry for us.

Notwithstanding the disclaimer by the G. Orient of France, of Atheistical profession, it is not deniable that the suppression of the declaration of faith in question is a concession to Atheism. It announces to the Masonic world, that in France it is, so far as the power of the Grand Orient extends, no longer necessary that a Mason should believe that there is a God, or that man is more than an animal.

Nothing can be conceived of, more ridiculous than reading the lessons of our Rituals of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite would be, to an Atheist. The belief in a Supreme Intelligence, Creator and Preserver of the Universe, a Beneficent God, to whom it is no folly to pray for aid and comfort, a Father, who loves us as his children, is the basis upon which all our ritualism, in all our degrees, rests. Take it away, and they become less than nought, the very babbling of incoherent and disjointed fables.

We put our trust in God, and not in a "Supreme Force," or "Greater-Principle;" and cannot hold that to be Freemasonry which does not do the same.

The Grand Orient of France claims to have in its bosom a Supreme Council of the 33d Degree. There is also a legitimate Supreme Council of France, distinct from the Grand Orient, of which Mons Adolphe Crémieux, (whose predecessor was M. Viennet, and his the Duc Decazes,) is Grand Commander, and Mons. G. Guiffrey is Secretary General. We have not for several years had any relations of amity or correspondence with the Grand Orient of France, in consequence of its recognition of the so-called Supreme Council of Louisiana. We have suspended such communication with the Supreme Council of France, for what we deemed just causes of complaint; but the BB. of its obedience are nevertheless entitled to be welcomed as visitors in bodies under our jurisdiction. The recognition by the Grand Orient of the illegitimate body in Louisiana, excludes all who are of its obedience from our bodies, and forbids our BB. to visit bodies of any degree, any where, that are of obedience of the Grand Orient of France. It is not so as to those that are of the obedience of the Supreme Council of France. It has not allied itself with a spurious body within our jurisdiction.

As each has symbolic lodges under it, and bodies of the higher degrees, in France and elsewhere, you will be careful to bear in mind the difference between them, since the Grand Orient has now made it impossible for us to recognise it as a Masonic Power, or the bodies of its obedience as Masonic bodies. We cannot recognise an atheist as a Mason, permit him to visit as such, or sit in a Masonic Body with him; and but for the existence in France of a lawful Power of the Scottish Freemasonry, the Supreme Council of France, which has not yet declared the belief in a God and in the immortality of the soul unnecessary for one seeking initiation, the Masonic Powers of the world might justly proclaim France to be unoccupied Masonic territory, and grant charters for Masonic bodies to work therein, composed of Masons obligated not to receive into the brotherhood any "old man in his dotage, or young man in his nonage, an atheist or irreligious libertine, a Jesuit, a madman, or a fool."

The Supreme Council of France, has, it is true, taken a step in the same direction with the Grand Orient of France: It has, as a concession to Atheism, substituted the phrases, "Force Supérieure" and "Principe Créateur," for the name of God, in a declaration of principles concurred in by other Powers; but it has retained the phrase, "known by the name of Great Architect of the Universe;" and has not avowed that its Lodges are at liberty to initiate avowed Atheists, nor found it necessary, as yet, to change its Rituals, in order that nothing in them may offend the tender consciences of those whom what they call "reason" compels to believe that there is no God. If it should imitate the Grand Orient, there will be no Freemasonry in France.

You will therefore henceforth admit as visitors of your bodies none who are of the obedience of the Grand Orient of France; nor sit with any such in the blue lodges; nor will you, in any country, visit symbolic lodges or other bodies of its obedience, until further order of the Supreme Council.

And may our Father which is in Heaven have you always in His holy keeping!

ALBERT PIKE, Sov. G. Com.

Mr. Frederick Stokes has been appointed Admiralty Proctor in succession to his father, Mr. Henry Graham Stokes, deceased.

No. 1 Question.—Is there anything in the Constitutions, or usages of the Craft to prevent the lodge from adding these words to the Bye-law.

No. 2 Question.—Can a lodge make a Bye-law whereby all the voting can be done in the Third Degree.

By giving a reply to the above questions, you will greatly oblige a

M.M. 711.

[In our humble opinion, both Bye-laws, the actual and proposed one, are illegal. 1.—There is no law possible by which a brother can be compelled to vote. 2.—The restrictions to Master Masons is entirely illegal, as the election of W.M. for instance, takes place in the First Degree, and Entered Apprentices, and Fellow Crafts have as much right to vote as Master Masons. 3.—We feel sure that on appeal to the Board of General Purposes, the law would be found to be as we have stated it.]

CONSECRATION OF THE ST. GEORGE'S LODGE, No. 1723.

For some time past a desire has been expressed for the establishment of a new lodge at Bolton, and a petition was recently forwarded to the authorities of Grand Lodge, duly recommended by the R.W. Prov. Grand Master of East Lancashire (Col. Le Gendre N. Starkie), praying H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, M.W. Grand Master, to grant a warrant for a new lodge, to be named after the patron saint of England, and nominating Bro. George Parker Brockbank, P. Prov. S.G. Deacon, as the first W.M.; Bro. Thomas Entwisle, P. Prov. G. S. of W., as Senior Warden; and Bro. J. W. Taylor, P. Prov. G. Org., as Junior Warden. The M.W. Grand Master was graciously pleased to grant the prayer of the petition, and, accordingly, a warrant bearing His Royal Highness's signature has been issued, numbered 1723.

It may be here remarked that Bolton previously possessed four Masonic lodges, namely, the Anchor and Hope, No. 37, warranted in 1731; the Antiquity, No. 144, warranted in 1776; the St. John's, No. 221, warranted in 1797; and the St. John, No. 348, warranted in 1815. From this it will be seen that the youngest of these lodges is sixty-two years of age, and as Bolton is now a town of 100,000 inhabitants, it was naturally felt that there was quite room for the establishment of a new lodge without injuriously affecting any of the existing lodges.

The consecration of the new lodge was appointed by the R.W. Prov. Grand Master to take place on Thursday, November 15th, and the brethren of the Anchor and Hope Lodge, No. 37, having kindly granted permission, the ceremony was performed in their beautiful lodge room, at the Church Institute, which, in addition to the ordinary banners adorning its walls, was further decorated by a splendid silk banner belonging to the new lodge, also the banner of the St. John's Lodge, No. 221, and a number of the private banners of the promoters of the new lodge.

A large muster of the brethren testified to the interest taken in the proceedings, amongst those present being Bros. Col. de Gendre N. Starkie, R.W. Prov. G. Master; George Mellor, W. Dep. Prov. Grand Master; E. Ashworth, Prov. S.G. Warden; Albert Dickens, Prov. J.G. Warden; J. L. Hine, P. Prov. S.G. Warden; R. H. Hutchinson, P. Prov. S.G. Warden; Rev. S. Y. B. Bradshaw, Prov. G. Chaplain; Rev. E. H. Aldridge, Prov. G. Chaplain; James Hall, Prov. G. Treasurer; John Tunnah, Prov. G. Secretary; John Smith, Prov. S.G. Deacon; Franklin Thomas, Prov. J.G. Deacon; G. P. Brockbank, P. Prov. S.G. Deacon; Edmund Hardley, Prov. G. Supt. of Works; Thos. Entwisle, P. Prov. G. Supt. of Works; J. H. Sillitoe, Prov. G. Dir. of Ceremonies; Robt. Whitaker, P. Prov. G. Dir. of Ceremonies; J. W. Taylor, P. Prov. G. Organist; H. Greenwood, Prov. G. Pursuivant; Thos. Mitchell, Prov. G. Tyler; C. Fitzgerald Matier, P.G.W. of Greece; R. K. Freeman, W.M. 37; James Newton, P.M. 37; James Walker, P.M. 37; Rev. J. H. Gibson, Chap. 37; Richd. Hough, W.M. 146; Robt. Horridge, J.W. 146; Thos. Morris, P.M. 221; Geo. Ferguson, P.M. 221; Wm. Hewitt, P.M. 221; W. H. J. Jones, P.M. 221; J. M. Rutter, P.M. 221; Chas. Stanley, W.M. 221; Jas. Richardson, S.W. 221; J. H. Greenhalgh, J.W. 221; Thos. Higson, P.M. 348; Thos. Chambers, P.M. 348; Jas. Horrocks, P.M. 348; John Harwood, P.M. 348; Saml. Barrett, P.M. 348; and others.

The ceremony of consecration was effectively performed by the R.W. Prov. G. Master, the Chaplain's part being impressively rendered by Bro. the Rev. S. Y. B. Bradshaw, Prov. G. Chaplain. The brethren selected to bear the elements of consecration were Bros. Jas. Hall, Prov. G. Treas.; C. F. Matier, P.G.W. Greece; and the Rev. E. H. Aldridge, Prov. G. Chaplain. An efficient glee party, consisting of Bros. Lister, Bailey, Kershaw, and Prestwich, contributed the musical portion of the ceremony, accompanied on the organ by Bro. Peter Staton.

The lodge having been constituted and dedicated, Bro. G. P. Brockbank, P.M., P. Prov. S.G. Deacon, was installed into the chair of K.S. by Bro. J. Sillitoe, Prov. G. Director of Ceremonies, who also invested the officers, viz.:—Bros. Thos. Entwisle, P.M., P. Prov. G. Supt. of Works, S.W.; J. W. Taylor, P.M. P. Prov. G. Organist, J.W.; George Ferguson, P.M., Treasurer; J. M. Rutter, P.M., Secretary; Thos. Morris, P.M., S.D.; W. H. J. Jones, P.M., J.D.; Charles Stanley, W.M. 221, I.G.; J. W. Roiley, Tyler.

The lodge being closed, the brethren adjourned to the Conservative Club, where the banquet was served, after which the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given and heartily responded to.

The whole of the proceedings, both in the lodge and at the banquet, passed off in the most satisfactory manner, and reflected the highest credit on those concerned in the arrangements.

DEDICATION OF A MASONIC HALL AT GALASHIELS, N.B.

On Friday, the 16th inst., at Galashiels, a notable addition was made to the many Masonic halls which are springing up all over Scotland. The object of these structures is a most laudable one, that of separating the meetings of the Craft from the deleterious influences of taverns, and we wish our Scotch brethren God speed in their praiseworthy endeavours. St. John's Lodge, No. 262, was founded in 1816, and is a flourishing body, having also a Royal Arch Chapter, in full working order, in connection therewith, Flowers of the Forest, No. 128. The building under notice comprises a large hall, suitable for public meetings, as also lodge purposes, ante-rooms, a cottage for the custodian, three or four other cottages, and a handsome shop, the cost of which is about £3000, furnished by the brethren of Galashiels in the shape of a joint stock company. The corner stone of the structure was laid with Masonic honours in May last, by Bro. Henry Inglis, of Torsence, R.W. Depute Grand Master of Scotland, and Provincial Grand Master of Peebles and Selkirkshire. Bro. Inglis on Friday last delegated the important duty of dedication to Bro. Dr. Middleton, Provincial Senior Grand Warden of Peebles and Selkirk, and the proceedings opened at four o'clock in the afternoon, when upwards of seventy members and visitors were present. Besides the acting Provincial Grand Master there were present Bros. D. Murray Lyon, Grand Secretary of Scotland; W. M. Bryce, Grand Tyler; J. Donaldson, Lodge 24, Peebles Kilwinning, as P.G.S.W.; R. Scott, Lodge 32, St. John's, Selkirk, as P.G.J.W.; R. Sanderson, Lodge 216, St. John's, Stow, P.G. Sec.; J. F. Walker, Lodge 216, P.G. Treas.; Rev. J. Murray, Lodge 24, P.G. Chap.; R. Scott, Lodge 262, St. John's, Galashiels; R. Melrose, Lodge 262, P.G. Tyler. There were deputations present from Lodges No. 2, Canongate Kilwinning, Edinburgh; No. 8, Journeyman, Edinburgh; No. 24, Peebles Kilwinning; No. 32, St. John's, Selkirk; No. 111, St. John's, Hawick; No. 216, St. John's, Stow; No. 261, Tweed, Kelso; and No. 392, Caledonian, Edinburgh. Bro. Adam Thompson, R.W.M. of No. 262, St. John's, Galashiels, was also supported by a strong muster of Galashiels brethren.

The R.W. acting Provincial Grand Master having opened the Provincial Grand Lodge in the Three Craft Degrees, the ceremony of dedication was proceeded with, and throughout was performed in the most impressive manner by the Provincial officers mentioned. Bro. Bryce, the Grand Tyler, acted as Director of Ceremonies, and the incidental prayers were delivered by Bro. Rev. J. Murray, P.G. Chaplain, whilst the music was under the direction of Bro. Robert Hogg. After the closing anthem had been sung, Bro. Adam Thompson conveyed the warm thanks of the brethren of St. John's Lodge, No. 262, to the R.W.P.G. Master in the chair for his kindness in performing the ceremony of dedication, and he invited the members of the P.G. Lodge to be their guests for the evening. Bro. Dr. Middleton expressed the pleasure it had afforded him and the members of the P.G. Lodge to be present on so auspicious an occasion, and he had the greatest pleasure in accepting the invitation.

Bro. Adam Thompson, R.W.M. of St. John's Lodge, No. 262, presided at the banquet, which was provided in the new hall.

The Chairman having given "The Holy Lodge of St. John," which was drunk in silence, "The Health of Her Majesty," followed by that of "The Prince of Wales, our Royal Patron," and "The Princess of Wales, with the other Members of the Royal Family," were drunk with all the honours. After "The Army, Navy, and the Volunteers," which was responded to by Bro. Boyce, R.W.M. Lodge 392, Caledonian, the Chairman, in the most fraternal terms, proposed "The Grand Lodges of England, Ireland, and Scotland, and their respective Grand Masters," coupling the Grand Lodge of England with the name of Bro. T. Lamouby, P.M. 1002 (Freemason). Cockermouth, P.G. Reg. Cumberland and Westmoreland, who replied. The Chairman next proposed "The R.W. P.G. Master of Selkirk and Peebles, Bro. Henry Inglis, of Torsence," which was drunk with "three times three." Bro. Dr. Middleton, in responding for Bro. Inglis, apologised for the unavoidable absence of the R.W.P.G. Master, through a combination of circumstances. He (Dr. Middleton) knew it would have given him the greatest pleasure to be present, and thereby inaugurate and complete the work he begun in May last. He trusted that the interesting ceremony of that day would act as an incentive to every other lodge in the province. (Cheers.) The Chairman gave "The Visiting Lodges," which was replied to by Bros. Drechsel, R.W.M., Canongate Kilwinning, 2; Davidson, R.W.M., Journeyman Lodge, 8; Donaldson, Lodge 24; R. Scott, Lodge 32; Wilson, Lodge 111, Hawick; Walker, Lodge 216, Stow; W. F. Vernon, R.W.M., Lodge 261, Kelso, (who said that the Kelso brethren were setting themselves about building a hall, whilst he added a few deprecatory remarks and hints anent against the stumbling block of holding their meetings in public-houses); and Bro. Bryce, R.W.M. Caledonian Lodge, 392.

The Chairman then rose to propose "The Health of Bro. D. Murray Lyon, the Grand Secretary of Scotland." (Cheers.) He said no man in Scotland had done more for Masonry, knew more about it, or understood its failings better than Bro. Lyon. (Hear, hear.) They must not think he (the Chairman) was flattering their worthy brother because he was one of his opponents on the occasion of his election as Grand Secretary. (Laughter.) But from what he had seen of Bro. Lyon's great energy and abilities, he felt himself in duty bound to give him all the support he could. (Cheers.) He had found Bro. Lyon to be a thorough business man, and such a man was what they wanted in the Grand Lodge of Scotland.

(Hear, hear.) He was now confident they would go on prospering, and the result would be that in a few years they would have a few thousands to devote to Masonic charity, which in Scotland had been too long neglected. (Hear, hear.) In conclusion, he considered Bro. Lyon the right man in the right place; and he sincerely trusted that every lodge would assist him to the utmost of their ability in the great object he had in view. (Cheers.)

Bro. Lyon, on rising to respond, was received with loud cheers. He said he had great pleasure in being present on so interesting an occasion. He was fully aware of the deep responsibilities attached to the high office he held in the Grand Lodge of Scotland, and he trusted that they would accept the assurance from him that if he failed it was not for want of energy and willingness. If he obtained the assistance of every lodge in Scotland, there could be no possible doubt of Masonry becoming what it should be; and already he saw evidences of a considerable improvement in their prospects, so much so, that the day was not far distant when they could boast of a considerable amount of money to devote to the widows and orphans of their Order, as also to the relief of their aged and infirm brethren. (Cheers.)

Bro. Dr. Middleton next gave "St. John's Lodge, No. 262, Galashiels," and in doing so referred to the interesting fact that in 1816 the lodge received its charter from Bro. Inglis, who was Deputy Grand Master of Scotland, whilst sixty years later Bro. Inglis's son laid the foundation of the handsome building in which they were then assembled. (Cheers.) That was something to be proud of. He remarked that to Bro. Adam Thompson, the R.W.M. of 262, was due the fact of the lodge being placed in the happy possession of a settled home. He hoped the brethren of the lodge would long continue to meet on the level and act on the square in that building; and he wished continued prosperity to St. John's Lodge.

The Chairman, in reply, reviewed the circumstances under which the new hall came into existence, and was hopeful that in ten or a dozen years they would be free of their liabilities, and then they would have something to spare for their poor brethren. (Cheers.)

The remainder of the toasts were "The Health of Bro. W. Turnbull, one of the founders of St. John's Lodge in 1816;" "The Ladies;" and "Freemasonry all over the World." The Chairman having given "Happy to meet, sorry to part, and happy to meet again," the company joined in singing "Auld Lang Syne."

In the intervals several songs were contributed by the brethren present, and the proceedings, which throughout were highly successful, and excellently arranged, were brought to a conclusion with a ball.

REMINISCENCES OF ST. JOHN'S LODGE, No. 58, KELSO, N.B.

So frequently have the columns of the Freemason been devoted to antiquarian research in connection with our dear old Craft, that your correspondent (an English Mason) may be pardoned for presuming to inflict on your many readers what he conceives to be subject matter of the most interesting character. During my professional peregrinations through the "land of brown heath and shaggy wood," I always make a point of attending lodge, chapter, or conclave, whichever may happen to be working, in a town where I take up my quarters for the evening. Well, then, on Wednesday, the 7th of November just past, after dinner, and when I had cast away all thoughts of work, after a hard day, I pulled out my indispensable "Cosmopolitan Calendar," and, on turning to Kelso, where, bye-the-bye, I was quartered, I found that Tweed Lodge, No. 261, held their monthly meeting that very evening. Calling on an acquaintance and brother, he kindly offered to introduce me to his lodge, but previously, I should mention, conducted me to the R.W.M., Bro. W. F. Vernon, a frater whom, I am happy to say, I was speedily at home with. Before proceeding to the Cross Keys Hotel, where Tweed Lodge holds its meetings, Bro. Vernon in the kindest manner gave me some valuable particulars in connection with Freemasonry in Scotland, as it existed a hundred and seventy years ago, that I was not slow to avail myself of, for I must confess to being a sort of Jonathan Oldbuck in matters Masonic. It seems that Tweed Lodge, No. 261, is not the only lodge in Kelso, holding a charter. Many years ago there existed a St. John's Lodge, numbering 58 on the registry of the Grand Lodge of Scotland, and which also flourished in that border town somewhere about half a century before the formation of a Grand Lodge in Scotland. St. John's Lodge was founded in the year 1701, but I must first explain the how interesting particulars I am about to relate came to the knowledge of the Kelso brethren of the present day. Some few years ago, it became known to the brethren of Tweed Lodge, the charter of which latter, I should say, dates from 1816, that the clothing, jewels, charter, &c., of the old St. John's Lodge were in the possession of the widow of a former R.W.M., and who held the property in lien for a debt. The old lady, who had had the chest and its contents forty years, very willingly parted with the interesting relics for a five pound note, and the whole are now in the careful possession of my new friend, Bro. Vernon, who, on the evening mentioned, was kind and courteous enough to allow me an inspection of them. The minute book I went hurriedly through, and can only give the first entry, which is dated Kelso, December, 27, 1701. Here is the first minute, recording the formation of the lodge, and the election of its officers:—

"The whilk day the companie of Masons of the honourable Lodg of Kelso, under the protection of Saint John, having met there and considered all former sedents, and that the Master and Warden and Treasurer, with the officers, were only to continue to this day, (Dec. 27, 1701).

MASONIC SERMON.

Preached by Rev. H. Bethell Jones, M.A., Vicar of Brooklands, Manchester, Prov. Grand Chaplain of West Lancashire, at Withington Parish Church, Saturday, Oct. 27th, on behalf of the Indian Famine Fund.

Mark vi, 34: "And Jesus, when he came out, saw much people, and was moved with compassion towards them, because they were as sheep not having a shepherd."

Freemasonry is not a religion; the only religion for us is faith in God, through Jesus Christ our Lord, being sanctified by the Holy Ghost. But if Masonry be not a religion, it is at any rate a grand system of moral teaching, founded on the first principles of religion; so that no Mason can be a sincere follower of the great truths which he constantly bears taught in our Masonic ceremonies without being a religious man. It is, therefore, strictly in accordance with the tenets of our ancient Order that we should meet to-day in God's holy house for the furtherance of that great principle of charity, which should be, and I trust is the distinguishing characteristic of every Freemason's heart. It is on behalf of our suffering fellow-subjects in India that I have now the privilege of addressing you; and I call upon you to follow the example of Him who was both God and man—of Him who was the world's great teacher of love, as we see Him in the text, moved with compassion at the sight of the multitudes who had followed Him, fainting from their long fast, and whom He fed from His bounteous store. The people of Galilee had been gathering into the towns, such as Capernaum, preparatory to going up to the approaching Feast of the Passover at Jerusalem. The crowds that had waited on Jesus to hear His words and see His miracles were thus much increased. His disciples had just returned from their first missionary journey. Therefore, to escape the throng, to give some needed rest to His disciples, and probably too, to give Himself an opportunity of instructing them in the kingdom of Heaven. He suddenly withdrew from Capernaum by boat, and passed over to the north-east shore of the Sea of Tiberias to a "desert place." But the people would not let Him thus escape them; they watched the direction of His boat, and when they had made sure where He would land they followed Him on foot out of all the cities and villages roundabout. In their hurry and excitement the majority had brought no food. Towards evening, signs of exhaustion were apparent among many in the crowd, who had come from far. The disciples, probably wishing to be rid of responsibility, begged Jesus to send them away. But not so: Jesus never drove suppliants away empty; but moved with compassion when he saw the multitudes as sheep without a shepherd, He made them, there in the wilderness, recipients of His bounty. He did not ask if they were all Jews; or if they had all come with right motives; or if they were all His friends. He did not say that He would feed only the aged and the weak, and the rest must return home. No; He commanded that all without exception should sit down on the ground in order; and then, after calling down God's blessing on the small provision of the five loaves and two fishes, He distributed to the disciples, and the disciples to the multitude, as much as they would. It is in the same Divine spirit of ungrudging charity that I ask you to approach the subject of the relief of those famishing multitudes in India, not perhaps of your race, religion, or colour, but still children of the one Great Father—whose sad case I plead to-day. In 1757, a hundred and twenty years ago, the great Clive won the battle of Plassey, and laid the foundation of our Indian empire. By a continued course of conquest and annexation we have gone on, adding territory to territory, till we now rule over some 180,000,000 people. But never have we had such an opportunity of covering ourselves with glory as now, in taking the people of India as our children under our protection, and, in their defence, fighting against this terrible enemy, Famine. For more than twelve months has this dread foe been advancing in our territory—constantly have we looked for that rain, which would have been our best ally, and we looked in vain. God seemed for a time to have mysteriously turned away His mercy from us, for the sky was as brass, and the earth as iron. As week followed week, the battle grew even fiercer—cholera, dysentery, fever, brought up their serried battalions, and counted their slain by ever-increasing thousands; many were only saved from starving to be withered by the hot blast of pestilence. In one district alone, in one month, the death rate rose from 1774 to 11,800, i.e., in plain English, 10,000 people died from famine and pestilence. The government of India put forth almost superhuman efforts to stay the ravages; the officials worked with the most untiring energy and perseverance; relief camps were established in central positions throughout the country; the service of the railway was improved, till at length it was able to transport 4000 tons of grain per diem; local committees were formed in towns and villages and supplied with funds from the central committee in Madras; large public works were commenced and the able-bodied drafted to them—still the famine kept steadily advancing, the number of people receiving relief kept steadily rising, the price of food-grains was five and six times their nominal value. In the midst of this dire distress an appeal comes to the people of England for aid; and the people, who had been waiting in suspense, at once generously responded, and by this time more than half a million must have been sent to India. Now this was the condition of things when the north-east monsoon broke on India with its priceless showers. One year of famine was closing, and we appeared to be entering on a second; three quarters of a million sterling being spent per month; food-grains five times the usual price; between three and four millions of people dependent on the government; at least one million and a half of people dead in the Madras Presidency alone. The first campaign had been fought, and it had been disastrous in the loss of life and property, but there was a second campaign in prospect, to face which would require the whole Imperial resources, used without stint. If rain had been withheld in October, the spring of next year would have seen the Hindoos dying not by thousands but by millions. From this awful calamity, God, by His goodness in sending the needful rain, has saved us; and now what we have to do is to fight courageously on till the end of the year, and then the grandest warfare a government ever waged will be closed, if not with victory, yet with a triumph to be measured by the salvation of four millions of people, who, but for the British government and the British people, must have perished miserably. At the present moment (October) there are between 80,000 and 90,000 centres of population, i.e. towns and villages, to be guarded from death. By the last return in Mysore and Madras, there were 592,805 persons on the public works, and 1,410,716 persons receiving gratuitous relief. If to these we add those in the Bombay Presidency and the Native States, we have a total of 772,805 on public works, and 1,910,716 receiving gratuitous relief, making up a grand total of 2,683,521 persons dependent upon the government. Let us now compare this state of things with the Cotton Famine in Lancashire, with the details of which most of you whom I am now addressing are acquainted. The Cotton Famine lasted from March, 1862, to the end of June, 1863. We may say with tolerable certainty the crisis of the Cotton Famine was in December, 1862. Now at that time the total number of persons relieved from parochial rates and by the relief committees amounted to 496,816, or say in round numbers half a million. The total amount of money voluntarily subscribed was £1,974,203, or say in round numbers two millions. If we say there are now three millions dependent on the government of India, we see that the number of persons relieved in the Cotton Famine was as one-sixth of the number in India, while the amount of money contributed for the Cotton Famine is four times the amount contributed for this famine in India. In other words, six times the number of people have to be relieved with one fourth the amount of money. Now if we give one shilling per head per week to the three millions in India, to keep them alive, it will cost us £150,000 per week; or reckoning children at sixpence per week it will cost say £100,000. Thus you see in how short a time half a million of money will be swallowed up. Still, it is to be remembered that every one who gives a single shilling will help to keep a fellow creature alive for a week; if he gives ten shillings, for ten weeks; if he gives a pound, for twenty weeks. Let this simple fact, put in this homely fashion, urge us to-day to give as much as we can afford. God, however, in His goodness and mercy has again smiled on India: the rain has descended, the intensity of the distress is abating. What is the result of this happy change? People at home are jumping to the conclusion that all danger is past and suffering too—that there is no further need of help. In a sort of prevision of this feeling there came a timely telegram from Simla of Oct. 14th—"Well to warn the people of England that, though there is every prospect of the Madras Famine terminating, yet, an infinite amount of misery will still have to be endured, and the need of alleviation will be for a time as pressing as ever." The distress is no doubt daily lessening, but by the last accounts we read that in Bangalore some thirty dead are picked up in the streets daily—in Mysore thousands are dying from want of clothing to protect them from the cold of the nights. Doubtless the rain brought hope to minds worn out by the persistence of the pressure: there were very many to whom even hope came too late. The crisis of the battle is past, the victory is assured, but the wounded and the disabled must be cared for—those who have been struck down in the heat of the fight, and are now helpless and forlorn. A great famine like a great war leaves distress in its track, and it will be months yet before the feeble, the sick, and the dying, will cease to need our help. By next February, if all goes well, the people will be out of danger; but in the meantime very much has to be done. Even in February, with the most favourable conditions, the circumstances of the people in the stricken districts will be this—all the cattle will be gone, implements of husbandry sold for food, houses bare of furniture, the silver ornaments of the women (which compose the family property) sold or melted down—all disposable property vanished, and no reserve force to fall back upon. All but bare life will have been devoured by the consuming fire of famine! Surely it is not yet time to stay our hands, or imagine our work is done. We cannot suppose that a great and prolonged famine can blast a whole country, and then pass away without leaving a trace of its fell march. It has stripped whole territories bare, and left a vast number of cultivators without any present means of support, worn out by hunger and sickness, and unable to till the ground, which is now ready to bring forth. The caste prejudices of the Hindoos have added greatly to the difficulties of the government. In very many cases they have held out as long as anything has been left, and then when all is gone and they are on the point of starvation, they crowd into the large towns, or the relief camps, and die by thousands in the roads. In some famine districts the fields are strewn with the dead as after a great battle, who have died, not in desperate charge, or in hot blood roused by the glare of battle—not standing shoulder to shoulder have they died; but worn out by exhaustion and hunger, weary with hope deferred they have sunk down in loneliness to gasp forth their life, unknown, unwept. Thank God we may begin to look forward to the time when aid will be no longer needed, and when, the famine and all its accompanying horrors shall be a story of the past. What that story shall be, will much depend on what we do in the interval. It will be a sad record anyhow; but it is not yet fully written, and it will rest with

After a matur deliberation, put it to the vot, who continou the first officers, or elect now, and it was carried to con- inu. And it was resolved that this and all following sederents shall be registrat in a book to be be kept by the Treserur, and only subscribed by the Master and next ofisor, or assistants, in case of the Master's absens. It was also resolved that all Enterd Prentises shall pay eight pounds Scots, with their gloves, to be paid to the Treasrer for the use of the society, and all the gentlemen who are the honorary members of the companie, obleidg themselves to pay a crown yearlo, to wit, on Saint John's Day, for the us of treed and all treedsmen, and to pay a shillin in yearly, on Saint John's Day, on the first Tuesdai of Junis apoynted for a yearly meeting, as well as Saint John's Day, to be held at Kelso, for the enterig and recording either treedsmen or others that the companie shall think fit to record; as also it was concluded, that for every absent on either of the forward days, that each person absent, whether honorary or otherways, shall pay a crown apiece, unless he find such a reasonable excus as the meeting shall be satisfyd with, which is to be contained in the sederent of the day. The companie also resolved that when an entered prentis is registrat as Master or fellow of the Craft, that he must pay fyv shillins, with new gloves, to the society."

These minutes were signed on the 2nd of June, 1702, by "Sir John Pringle, R.W.M.," by which it would appear that the lodge only assembled once a year, that is to say on the Festival of Saint John the Baptist. Passing over to St. John's Day, 1705, there are a lot of fines entered for absence, the first of whom is Sir John Pringle, aforesaid, who, with the Laird of Grubbit, the Laird of Clifton, Cherry Trees (probably another "Laird"), Stodrig, and a Cornet Drummond, are fined two pounds ten shillings each; whilst James Burnie, Andrew Borthwick, and John Esart are mulcted in the sum of twelve shillings each; and "Lovetennant" Bennett thirty shillings. An addendum to this entry was as follows:—"These persons are all deficient of their stent, and fined for absence, conforme with the statutes of the lodg." What is the meaning of "stent," I could not make out; but perhaps that able and erudite Masonic scholar, Bro. D. Murray Lyon, the Grand Secretary of Scotland, may enlighten us. May the word not signify the dues? If so, the total amount opposite each brother's name will include arrears of dues and fines. Proceeding on there is a resolution enjoining brethren to return straight to their several homes, after lodge business, so as not to "bring Masonry into disrepute." In 1753 St. John's Lodge subscribed the handsome sum of £50 towards building the old Tweed Bridge, at Kelso, which structure was carried away by a flood forty-five years later. At the same time the lodge subscribed £5 to the Melrose Bridge. This goes far to show that the members were an opulent class of Craftsmen. Not the least interesting part of this minute book are the signatures of the brethren belonging to the lodge, as also visitors. One of the first in the book is a Walter Scott, (1701), in all probability an ancestor of his illustrious namesake; the "Wizard of the North," who likewise was a Mason. A Duke of Roxburghe's autograph is dated August 11th, 1804, but the peculiarity of the signature nearly all through the book, extending over a century, is the appendage to each name, corresponding in many instances with the trade, calling, or profession of the brother. Thus an artist has a pallet tacked to his name; an architect a house; and so on. In the earlier years of the lodge, however, are appended angular characters something approximating to the marks of the Mark Master Masons of the present day. Amongst the visitors on October 25th, 1785, was the great Italian aeronaut, in whose honour a peculiarly-shaped bonnet, worn by ladies of fashion at that time, was named, and to which Bro. Robert Burns alluded in one of his well-known poems, thus:—

"I wadna been surpris'd to spy
You on an auld wife's flamen toy;
Or aiblins some bit daddie boy,
On's wylecoat;
But Miss's fine Lunardi, fye!
How daur ye do't?"

This was Vincent Lunardi, whose bold signature and address (Lucca, Italy) is embellished with a pen and ink sketch of a balloon. Leaving the old minute book and its curiosities, I had a glimpse at the charter of St. John's Lodge, which is dated so late as 1754, and signed by Ch. Hamilton Gordon, Grand Master; John Williamson, Deputy Grand Master; and Geo. Frazer, Substitute Grand Master. Then again, there is a parchment document, dated 1805, a sort of obligation, to which all strange visiting brethren had to subscribe their signatures by way of test. This large sheet of parchment is covered with signatures, a great many being the autographs of French officers, on their parole, during the Peninsular war. The old lodge Bible is in splendid preservation, as in fact are all the tools, jewels, and clothing, thus fortunately rescued from the limbo of obscurity through the enterprise of the brethren of Tweed Lodge.

I should add that the brethren of Tweed Lodge have petitioned the Grand Lodge of Scotland for permission to adopt the charter of No. 58, of which to-day, I believe, there are only two, or at most three, members living at Kelso.

I may conclude by adding that the pleasure of inspecting these relics was not a little enhanced by a visit to the Tweed Lodge the same evening, where the Third Degree was conferred on one candidate, another being absent, whilst three were proposed for initiation. The brethren of Tweed Lodge are eminent and practical exponents of the greatest of Masonic virtues, inasmuch as they recently organised a concert in aid of the "Indian Famine Relief Fund," which, after defraying expenses, realised the handsome surplus of £65.

the English people to settle its final details, whether it shall tell of heedlessness and heartlessness on the part of that great Christian nation which has conquered India, or whether, as I believe it will be, it shall form one of the most glorious pages in the long and eventful history of this ancient monarchy. At any rate, we know how the case stands and the nature of the call made upon us. If we are to meet it as we ought, and not leave a good work half done, then the tide of charity must flow on some time longer. Would you know something of what is actually taking place? Come with me then to one of the many relief camps, say the one at Bellary. It contains 3600 stricken wretches, all either suffering from ailments brought on by hunger or too weak to labour. The camp is divided into two parts—in one are the hospitals, in the other are large compartments in which the people are classified. If we enter the first compartment we shall find 600 orphan boys, in another hundreds of orphan girls, in a third coolies, in a fourth women and children. In that shed over there are the worst starvation cases, many men, more children, some few sitting, most lying prostrate on the earth, the only sign of life a slow gasping for breath, mere skeletons covered with wrinkled discoloured skin. Let us watch the distribution of relief. In front of us are two Englishmen giving out the doles of food or money to a crowd of famishing natives; to our right are two strong coolies carrying off a sort of square box suspended from a pole on their shoulders. In this box lie a heap of bones; but look a little closer, and you will perceive that what seemed a heap of bones will resolve itself into the living skeleton of a child sitting upright in the cold embrace of its dead mother. A little beyond is the emaciated form of a young woman leaning against the wheel of a wagon, evidently in the last stage of exhaustion. At the back of the crowd is a woman holding aloft, in outstretched arms, her starving infant as she pleads for food. Here again is a woman with dishevelled hair, clasping to her bosom a wee little child that is crying bitterly for food. In the background we can see coolies dragging carts to the camp laden with miserable wretches, who have probably been found on the road-side, worn out in trying to reach the relief camp. Everywhere are men, old and young, bearing stolidly and patiently the fire that is consuming their vitals, till their turn comes to be fed, or to die. Come out of this camp to that tree over yonder; at some time it has been struck with lightning, which has left a great rift in its massive trunk. What, think you, mean those carrion crows waiting there so ominously? In the rift of the trunk is an object sitting upright, staring with vacant glassy eyes, its lips swollen and parched, its body a mass of staring bones, a low hollow moan in place of a voice. Close by this living skeleton is the little babe, once so merry and so bright, the joy of that poor mother's heart, now lying stark and dead, with its little hands and arms bent convulsively back. We understand now why the carrion birds are waiting. This is not a solitary case, it is only a type of thousands. Up to July it is calculated that three-quarters of a million of people had been done to death in the Madras Presidency alone. What will be the terrible death roll by December 31st? What would have been the fate of these miserable people if there had been no British government to help them God alone knows. But Christian England has had compassion on the multitudes. The example of that Divine and Beneficent Being, who came to seek and save that which was lost, as we see Him, moved with compassion for the multitudes in Galilee, who were as sheep without a shepherd, feeding the hungry, healing the sick, binding up the broken-hearted—that example has been working with its gracious power on the hearts of the English people, whose great pity has been moved to its depths by the sight of that patient, gentle people perishing for want, and perishing without a murmur. As Freemasons we have no need to hide our heads for shame in this matter—we have not been backward in this noble cause—we have not asked that the money subscribed by the Grand Lodge of England, the Provincial Grand Lodges, or by local lodges should be given only to Freemasons—for we have many brethren in that distant land—we have only asked that the money we give should be dispersed with an ungrudging hand, and that the passport to the reception of our charity should be the proved need of the suppliant. Give to-day with a bountiful and ungrudging spirit: as God gives, who makes His sun to shine upon the evil and the good. Give as Christ gave to the fainting multitude on the shore of the Sea of Galilee; not asking if they be Jew or Gentile, bond or free. And, as the mighty Mississippi rolls its majestic waters into the bosom of the thirsty ocean, asking nothing in return, but with its undiminished store ever replenished by the rains of heaven, so give to-day, expecting nothing in return, and God will shower down upon you the richest blessings of His heavenly store now and for ever.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILL.—It is admitted by every one who has personally tried these noble remedies for any eruptions, sores, ulcers, bad legs, &c., or who have witnessed their purifying and healing effects on others suffering from such maladies, that nothing more can be desired than these medicaments possess. The Ointment relaxes the swollen muscles, diminishes inflammation, assuages pain, and even alleviates dangerous maladies which may have lasted for months, or even years. Holloway's excellent preparations are effective singly, realises in combination, and have been recommended by grateful patients to be sought as the alternatives when all other means of regaining health have failed, their action is temperate, not violent, or reducing.—ADVT.

GRAND ORIENT OF FRANCE.

We have been favoured with a copy of a letter addressed by the Supreme Council 33° for England, Wales, and the Dependencies of the British Crown, to the Grand Orient of France, and of a resolution by the said Supreme Council, forbidding Masonic communication between members of the Ancient and Accepted Rite, under their allegiance, and those under obedience of the Grand Orient, in consequence of the latter body having ruled it to be unnecessary to require of candidates for admission into Freemasonry a declaration of their belief in the existence of a Supreme Being.

It should be understood that all French Freemasons do not come under this ban; the Masonic Craft in France is governed, not as in England by one Grand Lodge, but by two separate bodies, each one having under its obedience lodges of the blue, or symbolic degrees. One of these bodies is the "Grand Orient," which by its late unhappy decree has violated all Masonic law and tradition, by "tolerating an Atheistic principle;" the other is a "Supreme Council," which demands of its members a declaration of their belief in God, as is required in our own lodges, and further insists that every summons and official document emanating from its lodges shall be superscribed with the holy name which every true Freemason is taught to reverence.

The Supreme Council of France is a member of the confederation which held its congress at Lausanne in 1875, and in friendly relations with the Supreme Council of England, as well as with all other legitimate Supreme Councils.

The letter and resolution under notice are as follows:—
To Illustrious Brother Thevenot, Grand Secretary General of the Grand Orient of France.

Dear Sir and Illustrious Brother,

On the 17th October last, under the instructions of the Supreme Council 33° for England, Wales, and the Dependencies of the British Crown, I had the honour to address you on the subject of a rumour which had reached the Supreme Council, that the Grand Orient of France no longer required from candidates for admission into the Masonic Order a declaration of their belief in the existence of a Supreme Being, known in Masonic language as "The Great Architect of the Universe."

I have not been favoured with a reply to that letter, but this Supreme Council have, since it was written, read the report of the General Assembly of the Grand Orient of France held on the 13th September last, confirming the rumour which they had heard with so much regret.

You are aware, that in this country a belief in the existence of God is regarded to be absolutely essential as a qualification for admission into Freemasonry, and consequently that no one can be recognised as a Freemason unless he holds that belief.

The Supreme Council trusts that it may not be too late for the Grand Orient of France to re-consider its decision, and to revoke what must inevitably lead to its rejection by all true Masonic bodies.

Feeling however that they cannot conscientiously regard as Freemasons any persons under the obedience of a body which tolerates an Atheistic principle, this Supreme Council have deemed it necessary to instruct their Secretary General to warn by circular-letter the several chapters under their control that no Masonic communion be permitted with any persons under the allegiance of the Grand Orient of France unless the objectionable decree be annulled.

I am to add that it is with the feelings of the very deepest regret that the Supreme Council have felt it incumbent upon them to take this extreme step in vindication of what they consider to be the highest interests of Freemasonry.

I am, dear Sir and Ill. Brother, yours fraternally,
(Signed) HUGH D. SANDEMAN, 33°,
Grand Secretary for Foreign Correspondence.
33, Golden-square, London, W., 7th November, 1877.

RESOLUTION.

Passed by the Supreme Council 33° for England, Wales and the Dependencies of the British Crown, on Wednesday, the 7th November, 1877:—

Whereas the Grand Orient of France confers Masonic Degrees from the Fourth to the Eighteenth Degree and upwards;

And whereas at their meeting held on the 13th day of September, 1877, they have declared it to be unnecessary to require of candidates for admission into Freemasonry a declaration of their belief in the existence of God, the Great Architect of the Universe;

And whereas this Supreme Council holds such a declaration to be a necessary condition of admission into Freemasonry; and further that no person can be legitimately regarded as a Freemason unless he doth declare his belief in Almighty God.

It is resolved that this Supreme Council 33° does from henceforth cease to hold any alliance or Masonic intercourse with the Grand Orient of France, and does hereby instruct and direct its subordinate bodies to hold no communion in the degrees of the Ancient and Accepted Rite, from the 4° to the 33° inclusive, with the members of the various bodies established by, or owing allegiance to, the said Grand Orient.

And it is ordered that a copy of this resolution be forwarded to the Grand Orient of France, as also to all Supreme Councils 33° with which this Supreme Council is in fraternal alliance, for their general information; and further, that notification of the same be forthwith transmitted to all the subordinate bodies holding under, and bearing allegiance to, this Supreme Council 33°, in order that the decision herein recorded may come into full force and execution without delay.

Certified to be a true copy. SHADWELL H. CLERKE, 33°,
Gd. Secretary-General, Supreme Council of England, Wales, and the Dependencies of the British Crown.

The Widow of a Brother of the Belgrave Lodge, No. 749, London ... 50 0 0

Report of the Board of General Purposes :—

The Board of General Purposes beg to submit a Statement of the Grand Lodge Accounts, at the Meeting of the Finance Committee, held on Friday, the 16th day of November instant, shewing a balance in the hands of the Grand Treasurer of £3636 18s. 11d.; and in the hands of the Grand Secretary for Petty Cash £75, and for Servants' Wages £96 15s.

(Signed) JOHN B. MONCKTON, President.

APPEALS :—

(1) Appeal of Brother John Henry Henry, of the St. John's Lodge, No. 1039, Lichfield, against a judgment of the Provincial Grand Master for Staffordshire,—the late Earl of Shrewsbury,—for deciding a case, and censuring Brother Henry, without hearing him.

(2) Appeal of Brother Alfred Leander Vailant and others against a judgment of the Deputy District Grand Master for British Burmah, declaring Brother the Rev. John E. Marks eligible to be elected Master of Lodge Victoria, in Burmah, No. 832, Rangoon, he not having previously served as a Warden and not having been present when appointed Senior Warden, consequently not having served as "Warden for one year" as required by the Constitutions, Article 2, page 62. Also against the exclusion of Brother A.L. Vaillant and five other brethren from the said Lodge, No. 832.

The papers relating to these appeals will be in the Grand Secretary's Office till the meeting of Grand Lodge, and open for the inspection of the brethren during Office hours.

NOTICE OF MOTION.

By V.W. Brother the Rev. Robert J. Simpson, P.G. Chaplain :—

1. That the 300 petitions now presented to Grand Lodge on what is commonly called "The German question" be received.

2. That whereas it appears from the Book of Constitutions of the Grand National Lodge of the Prussian States (called The Three Globes, held at Berlin) that those only who profess the Christian faith are eligible to become member of the Craft in any Lodge within its jurisdiction, this Grand Lodge, in the interests of Masonry, would respectfully suggest to the Grand Lodge aforesaid a reconsideration of the following section of the Book of Constitutions :—

In the jurisdiction of the Great National Mother Lodge (of The Three Globes) only those may be proposed for acceptance into Freemasonry who acknowledge Christian belief (Christlichen Glauben) without distinction of sect.

It is necessary for the candidate to state, &c.

Clause 3.—His religion (Creed).

Clause 9.—Whether he has tried hitherto to fulfil his duties as a Christian citizen, and whether he will continue to do so.

Every brother who wishes to join a lodge of our Constitution must be of Christian faith, and able to give his honourable discharge from his former Lodge by a written discharge therefrom, &c., &c., &c., with a view to widening the basis on which German Masonry now stands, and bringing it into more complete and fraternal harmony with Freemasonry throughout the world.

3. That in order to give effect to the foregoing resolutions the M.W. Grand Master be respectfully requested to communicate them to the Grand Lodge of Germany in any manner his Royal Highness may deem most expedient.

WILLIAM PRESTON LODGE (No. 766).—

The installation meeting of this lodge was held on the 22nd ult., at the City Terminus Hotel, Cannon-street. Bro. W. E. Newton, W.M., opened the lodge, assisted by his officers, Bros. S. D. Ewins, S.W.; Dr. Cutmore, J.W.; Geo. J. Kain, P.M., Treasurer; W. Worrell, P.M., Secretary; E. Kidman, S.D.; W. Drake, J.D.; W. J. Roberts, I.G.; A. Braun, P.M.; G. Newman, P.M.; W. J. Miller, P.M.; A. C. Rees, P.M. There were also present among others, Bros. John White, W.M. 1076; John Dorton, I.P.M. 1076; H. B. Holliday, F. Brien, A. Renshaw, W. H. Rudderforth, 13, &c.; W. Morgan, and H. Massey, (Freemason). Bro. James Turle Lee was passed to the Second Degree; and Messrs. Eugene Wood, William John Heath, and Pay were initiated. Bro. W. J. Miller, P.M. then installed Bro. S. D. Ewins, S.W., and W.M. elect, as Worshipful Master, who afterwards invested as his officers Bros. W. E. Newton, Dr. I.P.M.; Cutmore, S.W.; E. Kidman, J.W.; Capt. G. J. Kain, P.M., Treasurer; W. Worrell, P.M., Sec.; W. Drake, S.D.; W. J. Roberts, J.D.; Smart, I.G.; Geo. Newman, P.M., W.S.; Collins, D.C.; Grant, Tyler. Bro. Miller then delivered the addresses, and the W.M. presented Bro. Newton in the name of the lodge with a handsome P.M. jewel. On the motion of Bro. Capt. Kain, P.M., Treasurer, seconded by Bro. George Newman, an alteration of the bye-laws was agreed to by the following resolution :—"That the Resolution passed on the 27th January, 1876, suspending Bye-law No. 25 (which limited the number of the Members of this Lodge to fifty), be rescinded, and that the Bye-law resume its operation, as if no such resolution had been passed." lodge was then closed, and the brethren adjourned to banquet; after which the toasts were proposed and responded to in very few words. Bro. Wood, replying as an initiate, said he should like to convey his thanks as fully as he felt them for the honour conferred on him by his admission to the Order. When he meant to enter Freemasonry he was anxious to belong to an Order that numbered such good and worthy men, and now that he had found out what its principles were, he trusted he should endeavour to maintain the principles that had been laid down to him that evening. That he might become an honour to the Craft he sincerely wished, and he was confident he should never regret that he had become a brother among Masons. Bro. Pay also trusted that he should become a good Mason; and Bro. Heath expressed the same idea. Bro. Norton, I.P.M., gave "The Health of the W.M." They were not yet in a position to say a great deal of Bro. Ewins' working, but they must all admit that he had shown that evening that he possessed a knowledge of what he was about. From the manner in which he had invested his officers there was good ground for forming the opinion that he would make a most efficient Master. Upon what he had done he merited the warmest congratulation; and if he had done so then when the chair was so new to him, fair expectations might be entertained that in his year of office he would display still greater experience. The W.M., in replying, said that he hoped his year of office would be satisfactory to the brethren. He had to thank the brethren very much for their kindness to him that evening, and he would endeavour to repay it by the exercise of his best abilities in the working of the lodge. "The Visitors" having been honoured and responded to, Bro. Miller replied to the toast of "The P.M.'s." All the P.M.'s were anxious to do their duties, and to do the best they could for the lodge's welfare. It was their pleasure as well as their duty, and in the performance of the installation ceremony he had striven to render it worthy of such a distinguished lodge. Bros. Kain, Worrell, and Dr. Cutmore very briefly responded to the toast of "The Officers of the Lodge," and after the Tyler's toast the brethren separated. Bros. J. Turle Lee and others entertained the brethren with some charming music.

ROYAL OAK LODGE (No. 871).—The regular meeting of this prosperous lodge was held on Thursday, November 22nd, at the White Swan Hotel, High-street, Deptford. At five o'clock sharp the Worshipful Master, Brother J. J. Pakes, opened the lodge. The letter announcing that the late Senior Warden had ceased to be a member of the Craft and the removal of his name from the list of members having been unanimously agreed to, Bro. J. J. Pakes, W.M., appointed and invested with the collar and jewel of their office as his officers, Bros. G. T. Limm, S.W.; R. Harman, J.W.; J. G. Vohmann, S.C.; G. Harvey, J.D.; W. A. R. Harris, I.G.; the appointment of the Inner Guard gave great satisfaction, for he is a worthy brother, and has distinguished himself as a good worker of the ceremonies in the Craft. The arduous duties of the W.M., (after the minutes had been read, confirmed and signed by the W.M.) then commenced. He in his usual careful manner initiated Mr. Thomas Weston into the mysteries and the privileges of ancient Freemasonry, Bro. G. Andrews, P.M. impressively giving the all-important charge to the Entered Apprentice who retired. The craftsmen, Bros. William Henry Luckraft, John Eberhardt Schnabel, and John Lorenz Brodbeck, gave every proof of superior proficiency by the admirable manner in which they exhibited the knowledge they all possessed when answering the usual interrogatories. To add to the solemnity of the raisings each brother was introduced separately, Bro. W. H. Luckraft—then J. E. Schnabel—and last came J. L. Brodbeck, the W.M. distinguishing himself by the correct manner he gave every portion of the ceremony, including the traditional history, and the ever-important lecture on the tracing board, not of course omitting all the tools. The father of the Lodge Bro. Frederick Walters, P.M., and Secretary, P.P.G.D. of Middlesex, made a forcible appeal for some member of the Lodge to represent it as its Steward for the Benevolent Institution in 1878, pointing out to the newly appointed S.W., how desirable it would be for him to accept that office. His efforts were warmly supported by the late Steward, Bro. H. J. Tuson, I.P.M., and there being no volunteers, Bro. G. T. Limm, S.W., in a gracious manner accepted, and was elected to that honourable position. Some names were given in for initiation which may render it imperative to have an emergency meeting before Christmas. The usual formalities were observed in closing, and the lodge adjourned to Thursday, January 24th, 1878, to meet at 5 p.m. There were present besides those named Bros. W. Andrews, P.M., Treas.; J. Truelove, P.M.; all the officers and nearly fifty members. The only visitors were Bros. J. T. Adams, 1326; John Evans, 767. There being no banquet, or any refreshment, the brethren separated about nine o'clock, well satisfied with having spent nearly four hours in labour.

WANDSWORTH LODGE (No. 1044).—A meeting of this lodge was held at the Spread Eagle Hotel on Wednesday evening. The following officers were present :—Bros. H. R. Jones, W.M.; W. A. Morgan, S.W.; A. M. Newens, J.W.; J. B. Walker, S.D.; W. J. Huntley, J.D.; J. J. Holland, I.G.; H. Wilson, Treasurer; J. Frost, Secretary; and S. Steed, Tyler. The Past Masters were Bros. P. Cooke, J. G. Carter, E. H. Boddy, J. G. Kewney, F. H. Newens, and G. Howick. The brethren were Bros. R. Watkin, G. Clarke, J. W. Haines, G. W. Smith, R. Neal, G. Neal, G. Fortescue, W. Springett, J. Stonehewer, S. C. Landon, H. F. Goodchild, and A. A. Denham. Bros. O. H. Keeley, 1184; H. Bickerstaff, and E. Carter, 1044, were visitors. The minutes of the last meeting having been confirmed, Bro. F. Reed (Earl Spencer Lodge, No. 1420), was elected a joining member, being proposed by Bro. P. Cooke, P.M., and seconded by Bro. J. G. Kewney, P.M. The ballot was then taken for two new members, Mr. William Price and Mr. Henry John Newens. The former was proposed by Bro. W. J. Huntley, and seconded by Bro. H. N. Newens, while the latter was proposed by Bro. A. N. Newens, and seconded by Bro. Past Master F. H. Newens. The election proved unanimous, and the candidates were then duly initiated by the W.M., Bro. H. R. Jones. Bro. A. A. Denham, seconded by Bro. W. J. Huntley, gave notice of motion, that he intended bringing forward. The brethren then adjourned to the banquet, which was presided over by the W.M., whose health was proposed by Bro. Past Master P. Cooke, and drank with Masonic honours. Other customary toasts were given.

METROPOLITAN LODGE (No. 1507).—The usual monthly meeting of this lodge was held at Anderson's Hotel, Fleet-street, on Wednesday, the 21st ult., under the presidency of Bro. R. T. Kingham, the W.M., with Bros. T. Williams, I.P.M.; J. J. Michel, P.M.; W. M. Stiles, J.D. and Secretary; C. T. Scales, J.W.; W. Side, S.D.; H. Stiles, D.C.; G. Clark, W.S.; H. L. Wegrove, Steward and Assistant Secretary; J. Daly, Tyler. The new lodge was opened in due form, and Bros. Poole and Shuttleworth were raised, Bros. Barton, H. Clark, and Holden were passed, and Messrs. J. J. Steele, Channing, and two other gentlemen were duly initiated. At the conclusion of the Masonic business the brethren adjourned to a banquet, which was followed by the usual toasts.

HENRY MUGGERIDGE LODGE (No. 1679).—The third regular meeting of this young but prosperous lodge was held on Saturday, the 24th ult., at the Prince George, Park-road, Dalston. Present: Bros. Henry Muggeridge, W.M.; Francis Fellows, S.W.; E. F. Storr, J.W.; J. B. Scriven, Treasurer; Alfred Sack, Sec.; J. Lorkin, S.D.; H. John, J.D.; J. H. Wilkin, I.G.; Charles Arnold, S. Stampfer, 6; F. Brown, G. Clark, E. C. Dyer, W. J. Darnell, F. Haines, Henry Leach, and A. R. Foster. Visitors: Bros. J. Perry Godfrey, W.M. 1201; James Pinder, P.M.; George Phythian, S.W. 22; R. W. Muggeridge, 538; H. Edmunds, 805; George Clark, 1662; T. W. Clarke, 1567. The lodge was opened in due form, and the ballot taken for Mr. A. R. Foster, a candidate for Masonry, who was unanimously elected, and being present was initiated. Bros. George Clark, S. Stampfer, and Charles Arnold were raised to the Sublime Degree of M.M. The ceremony was worked by the W.M., Bro. Henry Muggeridge, and all present were delighted. This veteran in Masonry was never in better form; the working was really splendid. After propositions in open lodge for candidates and joining members, the lodge was closed, and the brethren sat down to a pretty little dinner provided to order by Bro. Glennie, of Kingsland. Short speeches were made by Bro. Henry Muggeridge, W.M., much to the purpose, and the evening was spent to the great enjoyment of all present. Really this is a compact and quite a jolly little lodge, quite a family party. All work well together, and for so young a lodge does great credit to all connected. It affords us great pleasure to speak so favourably of new lodges. After an evening well spent the members separated, some living a long distance, to get well drenched by rain or almost blown away by the wind during the heavy gale.

WOOLWICH.—Nelson Lodge (No. 700).—The first meeting of this lodge since the installation of the present W.M., Bro. S. Waters, took place on Wednesday the 21st, at the Freemasons' Hall, William-street, when, notwithstanding the steady downpour of rain and altogether uncongenial state of the weather, there was a good muster of both brethren and visitors. The officers present beside the W.M., were Past Masters, T. Butt, I.P.M.; S. Goddard, E. Bowles, C. Norman, W. C. W. Hobson, and J. Henderson, (the former of whom is Treas. and the latter Sec. of the lodge); A. C. Woodley, S.W.; J. Warren, J.W.; J. Wilkins, S.D.; E. B. Hobson, J.D.; C. Cooke, Organist, W. McCoy, I.G.; G. Beaver, D.C.; and B. Norman, Tyler. Among the visitors were Bros. W. B. Lloyd, S.D. 913; H. Ritchings, 1151; H. Pryce, 913 and 1536; A. Cleale, 13; A. Deans, 13; F. Brock, 13; and C. Jolly, 913 (Freemason). The business before the lodge consisted in the passing of Bro. Stoddart, and raising of Bros. Wright and Harris, both ceremonies being on the part of the W.M., fairly above an average first attempt. At the refreshment board, which was most hospitably served, the W.M. gave the usual loyal and Masonic toasts, and on Bro. Butt being temporarily entrusted with the gavel, he, in felicitous terms, proposed "The Health of the W.M." who, he said, had shown them that he was quite up to the standard of efficiency required in all Masters of the Nelson Lodge, and if he only went on in the same path he would leave the office with the same honour that had attended his predecessors. (Cheers.) The W.M. in reply said he felt proud to occupy such a position, and pleased to hear the terms in which Bro. Butt had spoken of his efforts that night; they were, however, not yet to his satisfaction. Unfortunately, he laboured under several disadvantages which most of his predecessors had not to contend with. In the Woolwich district they had the advantage of having lodges of instruction where the ceremonial of Masonry was generally studied, but in most of the lodges of instruction in London that he had opportunities of attending they in most cases went in for the Sections, so that the brethren would see that he was really at a disadvantage in that respect; but they might rely upon his not allowing the high prestige of the lodge to lose any of its lustre through his want of care or effort. (Loud cheers.) The next toast was that of "The Visitors," to which Bros. Cleale and Pryce replied. The latter in a few well chosen words spoke of the good feeling that had so long existed between the Nelson and the Pattison Lodges, and spoke of the regret expressed by the W.M. and officers of the latter at the non-appearance of a single member of the Nelson at the late Pattison meeting. He trusted the bond of good feeling and brotherhood which now existed between them would never be loosened, and in the name of the lodge gave a free and hearty welcome to the brethren of the Nelson Lodge to the next meeting of No. 913. (Cheers.) Bro. Henderson, who is as well a member of 913 followed in the same strain, and then the W.M. proposed "The Health of the Past Masters," saying that he had read in the last issue of the Freemason that the Master of a London lodge had declared that the Past Masters of his lodge had little or nothing to do, and did it with a great deal of dignity. Now the Past Masters of the Nelson Lodge had a great deal of work to do, and he was proud to say that they did it with a great deal of dignity, and the lodge was thankful to them for it. (Cheers.) Bro. Butt suitably replied, and after the officers had been toasted, and Bro. Woodley had returned thanks, the Tyler's toast concluded the proceedings. We may add that we were pleased to see a file of the Freemason in the ante-room, in which the brethren seemed much interested from time to time.

TUNBRIDGE WELLS.—The Holmesdale Lodge (No. 874).—On the 21st inst., the regular meeting of this lodge was held at the Royal Sussex Hotel, when there were present Bros. B. S. Willmott, W.M.; Reed, I.P.M.; W. B. Bacon, S.W.; A. D. Williams, J.W.; Hodgkin, S.D.; Pelton, J. D.; Dunkley, J.G.; Burton, D.C.; Deadman, Organist, T. Waterman, Poston, Graham, Oakley, and others. The lodge was opened in the First Degree, the minutes were read and confirmed, the ballot was taken for Messrs. E. Elliott, T. Elliott, and A. Arnold, which proving unanimous, they were duly initiated into the Order. Bro. Whitehead was passed to the Second Degree, and Bros. Waterman and Poston were raised to the Sublime Degree of M.M., the ceremonies being performed most impressively. The business ended, the lodge was closed and the brethren adjourned to an excellent banquet, which having been done justice to, the W.M. gave the usual preliminary loyal and other toasts briefly but pertinently. A most enjoyable evening terminated at 11 o'clock, and the brethren separated. Visitor R. N. Field, No. 902.

SOUTHEND.—Priory Lodge (No. 1000).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held on Thursday, the 15th inst., at the Middleton Hotel, Southend. The W.M., Bro. Rev. S. R. Wigram, Past Grand Chaplain, presided, supported by the following brethren, viz., Bros. A. Lucking, P.M. 160, P.M. and M.E.Z. 1000, Prov. G.D.C., as I.P.M.; W. Chaplin, S.W.; J. C. Johnstone, P.M. 20 (I.C.), J.W.; J. A. Wardell, P.M. 160 and 1000, P.P.G.D., Sec.; Rev. H. Hayes, Chaplain; F. D. Grayson, S.D.; G. F. Jones, I.G.; H. Rowley, P.M., P.P.G.D.; H. Briggs, W. H. Locky, W. H. Norman, G. Berry, W. D. Merritt, B. Johnstone, W. Waterhouse, and others. After the usual business the W.M. in a very able manner passed Bros. O. Bentall and W. Griffin to the Second Degree. The lodge was then closed and adjourned.

BURY ST. EDMUNDS.—Royal St. Edmund's Lodge, (No. 1008).—This flourishing lodge, which was consecrated in 1864, and has made such rapid strides in Freemasonry, as to encourage and assist in forming a second one (the Abbey, 1592) in the town, held a special meeting on the 21st inst., for the purpose of receiving a visit from the Prov. Grand Master of the Province, the Right Hon. Lord Waveney. Upon this occasion there was a goodly muster of the brethren of the two lodges (about fifty) no invitation being sent to the neighbouring lodges. At seven o'clock the Prov. G. Master was conducted to the lodge room by the W. Master, Bro. W. G. Patrick, accompanied by the following past and present Provincial Grand Officers:—Wor. Bros. J. Hedley Bevan, P. Prov. S.G.W. and I.P.M. 1008; Rev. J. T. Hassall, Prov. G. Chap.; W. H. Lucia, Prov. G. Sec. (also Sec. of the Lodge); P.M. of Lodges 100, 1008, and 1592; C. P. Oakes, P. Prov. G. Reg; W. Armstrong, P. Prov. G.J.D.; J. R. Thompson, P. Prov. G.S.B.; W. D. Paine, Prov. A. D. of C. and J. B. Chemell, P. Prov. G. J. D. Cambs. The lodge being duly formed, the Right Wor. the Prov. G. Master was saluted with the honours due to his high position in the Craft. The lodge was then worked in the three degrees, opening and closing in the most efficient manner by the following officers of the lodge: Bro. Patrick, W.M.; T. F. Lucia, S.W.; W. Armstrong (acting) J.W.; J. R. Thompson, S.D.; J. G. Oliver, J.D.; W. D. Paine, (acting) I.G. Before closing the lodge the W.M. made the usual proclamation, and a proposition was made, but not accepted until enquiries had been made if there was room for admittance, the rule being in this lodge, that but four initiations of joining members can be admitted during the twelve months. At the second sound of the gavel, the R.W. the Prov. G. Master rose and said he came to meet the united lodges Bury St. Edmunds, and they could not have done the Provincial Grand Master a greater honour than having two lodges to meet instead of one, showing that in Freemasonry separation does not mean division. There were some points on which he desired particularly to dwell, as being of great importance to the Craft, and on which he should be sorry to postpone giving his opinion until he had the opportunity of expressing it in P.G. lodge. He next remarked upon the manner in which one of their special duties had been carried out with the assistance of their fellow-subjects in the Indian peninsula. He was fully confident that such a return as appeared appropriate to every member would be made to any appeal that might occur, and he was far from saying that they might presume to measure the charity which to any brother might appear prudent and practicable, because there were many at home who had a larger claim upon them than their fellow-subjects abroad, on behalf of whom their charity had been invoked. Be that as it might, he was sure the province would do itself credit in these turns which would be completed in the course of the ensuing week. The brethren would learn, with pleasure, from authoritative sources that the great crisis had been materially alleviated, and had been so far diminished that a reasonable expectation might be held of a termination of the suffering. But the central committee in London had deemed it proper for a certain time to keep open the books for the reception of such funds as might not previously have been forwarded. That he thought was most wise, for the agony of suffering and the want of necessary support was indeed but trifling compared with that which followed after. After famine comes pestilence—after pestilence exhaustion; therefore he held that their charity and offerings were by no means superfluous, for, do what they would, after the field had been cleared of a great mass of suffering, supplementary charity would convey comfort and relief. With regard to the general prospects of Masonry in the province, they were to be congratulated on the addition of another lodge, and also upon the circumstances under which it was incorporated into their roll of lodges. He was unfortunately unable to be present, and the D.P.G.M., who never allowed any trifling matter to interfere with the performance of his duties, was at the time suffering under a most severe bereavement. But in proof of the position which this province occupies in the Grand Lodge of England, the duties their natural leaders were unable to perform were undertaken by the hands of most eminent Masters of the Craft. The Grand Secretary of England, to whom the Craft was so much indebted, and Lord Skelmersdale, a distinguished brother, were there to perform the duties, and he was pleased to have seen the duties placed in such hands. There was a point with regard to the Craft on which he always took the opportunity of inquiring, viz., what was the condition or officer who had so long and well administered the financial arrangements. His health remained good, and such comforts were secured to him as might wait upon a constitution exhausted by labour, not only with them in the Craft-room, but at all times and all hours in the dwellings of the poor throughout the division of the county to which he belonged. There was another point on which he desired to be very explicit. It was with regard to a representation that was made to him in the beginning of last year, with respect to the Royal Arch. He had not the time to devote himself to this branch of Masonry, which was of the highest value and importance, but he was not willing that any members of the province should feel that they had not the opportunity of practicing that branch of the Craft. By good fortune he found in a brother to whom he had often been indebted for good counsel and enlightened opinion, one who was perfectly competent to assume the direction of the Royal Arch. He was sure the D.P.G.M. would conduct the G. Chapter, and whatever might be necessary for the prosecution of that branch with a discipline, a sincerity and a straight-forwardness which animated their brethren of the temple of Zion, from which they drew their name. (Applause.) Another point to which he wished to make reference was one which had not yet been brought before the assembled lodges, that if what he heard was true it was one of the most important questions that had ever been submitted to the Freemasons of the world. They knew that their rule was of the largest and widest scope consistent with the recognition of that great power which they denominated, the Architect of the Universe. They were told that a communication had been made to the Grand Lodge of Ireland from the Grand Orient of France, to the effect that for the purpose of testing the sincerity with which their obligations were undertaken it was unnecessary, as they conceived, to refer to the sanction of the Divine Being. They did not wish to circumscribe the mode of obligation, or bring themselves within the limits of any special power. Indeed he might say that he had been the means of introducing to the Scientific Lodge at Cambridge a member of Mahomedan creed; there being in that religion a recognition of a Divine principle which conveyed sanctity to the brother taking the obligation. His own opinion was that the obligation should be rectified and made solemn as in the presence of the Most High. (Applause.) It would be a matter for consideration first by the Grand Lodge of England, supposing it were determined to proceed in the matter, but as the Grand Lodge only represents and reflects the opinions of various provinces, he held it to be his duty to communicate to them, in the position of honour and trust in which he was placed, the opinion he held upon it. It must be an exaggeration or a misconstruction of a statement made in a foreign language, or it must be that some indiscretion had been committed by the Grand Lodge of France; but they could not permit such an idea to float through the society as a lodge entering upon its duties except under the most awful and solemn sanction. There was but one point further with regard to the management of the business of the province, to which he thought it right to allude. He had taken a great and overpowering interest in the greatest social problem that had been worked out for ages—the governmental efficiency and national prosperity of the great kingdom of Italy. He did not go there to see oranges blooming at Christmas, nor for the purpose of antique research; but he went to Italy year by year to see whether men who had been compelled to walk with faces gravelling on the ground could now walk with the bold clear elevated front of free men. That being the case, he should during a portion of the time he was away delegate the duties of the P.G.M. to his Deputy. He had but one direction to give him, which was that in cases in which the conveniences of lodges might be consulted, and (not to use the word in a dogmatic sense) in which any grace or favour of any sort could be required for the convenience of the Craft, he should not hesitate. If, unhappily any difficulties should arise, it was due to the Craft that those difficulties should be settled only by the supreme authority. He had requested the D.P.G.M. to reserve such cases for his direction, and upon that ground he would not consider himself called upon to decide; but the matters should be referred to himself, and he would see that they received speedy solution. (Applause.) The lodge was then closed, and the brethren retired to the banqueting-room, where a recherché spread was awaiting them, and which upon this auspicious occasion was served in Bro. W. Guy's best style. After the loyal and official Masonic toasts had been given and received, harmony and complimentary toasts were proceeded with, the health of the Dept. Prov. Grand Master, the Rev. C. J. Martyn, Past Grand Chaplain of England, (who was unavoidably absent, being received with as much enthusiasm as the M.W. the Grand Master of England. The toast of the charities was well received, and a liberal subscription was made by the brethren towards them. The Tyler's toast was given at 11 o'clock, and one of the pleasantest meetings of the Royal St. Edmund's was closed.

LIVERPOOL.—Lodge of Israel. (No. 1502).—The members of this highly successful confraternity of the "Free and Accepted," celebrated their annual festival of installation at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street, Liverpool, on Monday, the 19th November, when there was both a numerous and influential gathering. Bro. Maurice Hart, W.M., occupied the K.S. chair at the opening, and he was supported by Bros. Ralph Robinson, P.M., D.C.; A. J. Henochsberg, I.P.M.; the Rev. J. Prag, Chaplain; A. Jones, S.W.; S. Schonstadt, J.W.; L. de Frece, Treasurer; B. Levy, Secretary; the Rev. H. D. Marks, S.D.; S. J. Henochsberg, I.G.; W. G. Veale, Organist; and W. H. Ball, Tyler. The members present during the afternoon included Bros. M. H. Edwards, I. Woolf, S. Simmons, A. Cohen, B. Smajé, M. P. Tieski, H. Isaacs, J. Sabar, H. Rabow, J. B. Levy, J. M. Myers, J. E. Davidson, H. Henochsberg, W. Levy, L. Levy, D. Gabrielson, H. F. Wright, J. Milton, Sol. Jacobs, J. Franks, W.M. 203; H. Liebschutz, A. Hart, J.W. 724; H. M. Silver, M. Aronsberg, P. Barnett, E. Scott, A. Zolki, E. I. Fraser, the Rev. Dr. W. Stern, M. Parker, H. Sagar, L. Hart, and others. The visitors present were Bros. H. S. Alpess, P.G. Sec.; H. Jackson, P.G.A.D.C.; H. Ellis, 1021; A. W. Croft, 594; J. Cobham, P.M. 241; J. B. McKenzie, J.W. 1609; V. Kahn, 673; H. Sykes, 1219; W. W. Cottam, W.M. 1013; L. R. Barnes, P.M. 1113; T. H. Rahn, P.P.G.D. Durham; J. C. Robinson, W.M. 249; R. C. Mellor, P.P.G.J.D.; R. J. Taylor, I.P.M. 1025; J. Thompson, J.D. 270; C. W. Briar, J.W. 971; J. Walmsley, W.M. 1102; G. Phillips, 203; L. S. Cohen, 216; J. S. Lopsen, 724; J. W. Ballard, P.M. 274; and T. Sammons, W.M. 1393. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and unanimously confirmed, and the ballot was afterwards taken for candidates. The W.M., Bro. M. Hart, then passed four brethren to the Degree of F.C., and concluded his year's excellent working by installing Bro. Alexander Jones as his successor in the chair of K.S., the presentation being made by Bros. A. J. Henochsberg, P.M., and Bro. Ralph Robinson, P.M., D.C. The ceremony was most ably and impressively performed. The following brethren were appointed and invested officers for the ensuing year:—

Bros. R. Robinson, P.M., D.C.; Rev. J. Praag, Chaplain (re-appointed); S. Schonstadt, S.W.; Rev. H. D. Marks, J.W.; I. de Frece, Treas. (re-elected for the fourth time); M. Hart, I.P.M., Sec.; W. G. Veale, Org.; S. D. Wareing, S.D. (by proxy); S. J. Henochsberg, J.D.; M. P. Tieski, I.G.; J. Sabar, S.S.; H. F. Wright, J.S.; and W. H. Ball, Tyler. The W.M., as a commencement to his service in the chair, initiated Mr. Myers into the mysteries and privileges of the Order. The brethren were then called off from labour to refreshment, and nearly 100 sat down to a choice dinner in the large banqueting hall, under the presidency of Bro. A. Jones, W.M., who subsequently gave the usual loyal and Masonic toasts. In responding to the toast of "The Earl of Carnarvon, Pro G.M.; Lord Skelmersdale, D.G.M., P.G.M. W.L., and P.G. Officers, Bro. H. C. Alpess, P.G. Sec., said the recent Masonic gathering at Southport was probably the largest ever seen in this country, with the exception of that at the installation of the Prince of Wales. It pleased Lord Skelmersdale, and would make him devote himself even more assiduously to the service of the Masons in the province over which he presided. Bro. Alpess concluded by praising in high terms the excellent working of the lodge by all the officers connected with it. Bro. H. Jackson, P.G.A.D.C., also briefly responded to the toast. "The W.M.," given by Bro. I.P.M. Hart, was suitably responded to, and the W.M. then presented Bro. Maurice Hart, I.P.M., with a very valuable and beautifully designed P.M.'s jewel, which was acknowledged in happy terms. Bro. R. Robinson, P.M. and D.C., gave "The Fund of Benevolence," and in doing so said that fund was now in a most flourishing condition. In two years it had secured an accumulated sum of £120. Bro. Lyons, the Treasurer to the fund, acknowledged the toast. The W.M., in giving "The Officers," took the opportunity of presenting Bro. Isaac de Frece, Treasurer, with a very handsome dining room clock and a Treasurer's jewel, both of which had been subscribed for by private members of the lodge in recognition of the admirable and invariably faithful services rendered by Bro. I. de Frece since the formation of the lodge. The toast was then acknowledged by the S.W. and J.W., and the prescience being Bro. de Frece. Other toasts followed, and a pleasant evening was spent with songs and recitations.

INSTRUCTION.

EARL OF CARNARVON LODGE (No. 1642).—A meeting was held on Friday, 23rd Nov., at the Mitre Hotel, Gouldborne-road, Notting-hill, present: Bros. Spiegel, W.M.; Smout, junr. S.W.; Adkins, J.W.; Gabb, S.D.; Wood, J.D.; Hopton, I.G.; Savage, P.M. Preceptor. There were also present, Bros. Tottenbaum, Kelly, Newland, Poulter, and Reynolds. The ceremony of raising was rehearsed, Bro. Poulter being candidate, after which the ceremony of initiation was rehearsed. Bros. Gabb and Reynolds were elected members of this lodge of instruction.

LONDON MASONIC CLUB LODGE OF INSTRUCTION.—A meeting was held on Monday, 26th Nov., at the Club, 101, Queen Victoria-street, E.C. Present:—Bros. Nelson Reed, W.M.; C. E. Smith, S.W.; J. White, S.W.; J. E. Shand, Sec.; C. J. Hogg, Treas.; W. Sharrett, S.D.; A. Triggs, J.D.; J. D. Langton, I.G.; W. Smallpeice, Preceptor, Barnett, Bauman; and as visitors, Bros. A. J. Turner, and A. Triggs, 157. Lodge was opened and the minutes of last meeting confirmed. The third ceremony and lectures were worked. Audit report was submitted, approved, and ordered to be entered upon minutes. Two brethren were elected joining members. Bro. C. E. Smith was elected W.M., for next meeting.

METROPOLITAN LODGE (No. 1507).—The annual meeting of this lodge of instruction was held on Tuesday, the 27th inst., at the Metropolitan Club, Pentonville-road, King's Cross, for the election of officers for the ensuing year. Bro. T. Adams, P.M., P.G.P., was unanimously elected Preceptor, a post which he has held from the commencement of this lodge of instruction, to the great advantage of the brethren attending. Bro. J. Willing, P.M., of the mother lodge, was re-elected Treasurer, and Bro. W.M. Stiles was unanimously re-elected to the post of Secretary, the brethren thanking him for his prompt and regular attendance. The first degree was worked with the following as officers: Bros. G. Clark, W.M.; Smith, S.W.; H. Lovegrove, J.W.; Willing, S.D.; H. Clark, J.D.; Edmunds, I.G.

Royal Arch.

ANDREW CHAPTER (No. 134).—The regular Convocation of this well-established chapter was held on Thursday, the 15th instant, at the Bell and Anchor, Hotel, West Kensington Gardens. The chapter was opened in the usual manner, and the companions admitted, when the minutes of the previous convocation were duly read and confirmed. Amongst those present were Comps. Worthington, M.E.Z.; Lewis Bryett, H.; Adamson, J.; Lines, P.Z.; Treasurer; George Read, P.Z., S.E.; Cole, S.N.; Game, P.S.; Avery, 1st Assist. Soj.; Barfield, 2nd Assist. Soj.; Hardy, P.Z.; Thompson, P.Z.; Slack, P.Z.; Millis, P.Z., and a large number of Royal Arch Masons. The visitors were, Comps. Carter and Dixon, both of the Windsor Castle Chapter, 771. Comps. Bryett, Adamson, and Game were then duly installed as First, Second and third Principals, the ceremony being performed by Comp. Read in such a manner as to draw forth the special approbation of those present. After the M.E.Z. had been saluted in due form by the re-admitted companions, two brethren were balloted for who had been proposed at the former meeting, and the names of three others proposed for exaltation. The presentation of a P.Z. jewel to Comp. Worthington, for his past labours in the interests of the chapter, gave great satisfaction. Chapter was then closed, and the companions adjourned to a magnificent banquet, provided by and served under the personal supervision of Comp. Millis. The menu's were of a peculiarly novel character, great taste being apparent, both in their design and execution. Grace being said, the M.E.Z. gave the usual loyal and Masonic toasts, which were fully responded to. Comp. Worthington then rose and proposed "The Health of the M.E.Z.," stating that it afforded him, as they were doubtless aware, the utmost pleasure in seeing Comp. Bryett fill the chair of First Principal, and were he to speak for a long time he was afraid he could only faintly convey his feelings on the subject. He had known the M.E.Z. since his connection with the Ranelagh Lodge, and had noticed with extreme pleasure the attention he always paid to his Masonic duties, especially when he was W.M. of the Ranelagh Lodge. It was also highly gratifying to them all to have watched the steady progress Comp. Bryett had made in the Andrew Chapter, as they were aware it was a chapter distinguished by the exactness of its working, thereby reflecting great credit on one of its founders, long since passed away, and after whom it was named. The M.E.Z., in reply, thanked the companions sincerely for the way in which they had drunk his health, and was afraid that he scarcely merited a twentieth part of the compliments paid him by the I.P.Z., but took the opportunity of stating that he should always be pleased to do everything and anything in his power to further the interest of the Andrew Chapter. He then proposed the health of the P.Z.'s of the Chapter, that of Companion Worthington for the first class manner he had carried out the duties of the Chair during the past year, Companion Lines, for the able manner in which he looked after the finances, Companions Thompson and Slack, for their past services, Companion Millis for his great kindness in always looking after the creature comforts, and last, but not least, Companion Read, for the great assistance he always afforded them in directing and carrying out the ceremonies. The toast of "The Officers" was well received and capitally responded to, and after "The Janitor's" toast had been given, the companions separated, this concluding one of the most successful Royal Arch gatherings held in the neighbourhood for some time past.

CAVEAC CHAPTER (No. 176).—This well established and prosperous chapter held an election and installation meeting at the Albion Tavern, Aldersgate-street, City, on Saturday, November 24th. Punctually at three o'clock the audit committee was held. The result of the labours of the audit committee showed the finances to be in a sound position. Precisely at four o'clock the chapter was opened by Comps. G. K. Lemann, P.Z.; J. B. Sorrell, H.; W. M. Goss, J.; P. A. Nairne, P.Z.; Dr. W. S. Wyman, P.Z.; R. S. Foreman, P.Z.; and F. Walters, P.Z., Treasurer, P.P.G.A.S. Middlesex. The companions were then admitted. Minutes of the last regular convocation were read, confirmed, and signed by the M.E.Z. Ballot was unanimous in favour of Bro. William Ancell, P.M. 30, who being present was exalted in an impressive manner, every officer being perfect in his work. The bye-laws having been read, the elections were for Comps. J. B. Sorrell, Z.; W. M. Goss, H.; C. Browne, J.; F. Walters, P.P.G.A.S. Middlesex, P.Z. Treasurer (re-elected); A. Williams, C.E., S.E.; J. B. Sorrell, jun., S.N.; A. Middlemass, P.S.; E. T. Speight, Janitor, re-elected. Comp. G. K. Lemann, M.E.Z., installed Comp. J. B. Sorrell, M.E.Z. Comp. P. A. Nairne, P.Z., installed Comp. W. M. Goss, H. In consequence of illness Comp. C. Browne, was absent: his installation as J. was deferred until the next meeting. The officers appointed and invested were Comps. F. Walters, P.P.G.A.S. Middlesex, P.Z., Treasurer (re-elected for the tenth time); A. Williams, C.E., S.E.; J. B. Sorrell, jun., S.N.; A. Middlemass, P.S., who appointed as his assistants R. P. Tebb, First A.S.; S. Pownceby, Second A.S.; A. W. Thorpe, Steward; C. T. Speight, Janitor (re-elected for the eleventh time). The usual six-pound Past Principal's jewel was voted to Comp. G. K. Lemann, I.P.Z., who acknowledged the gift in a nice speech. In consequence of Comp. G. K. Lemann, P.Z., being about to live abroad, he resigned his membership, the chapter, to show what high estimation they held him in, unanimously elected him for life an honorary member. Some propositions were given in for candidates. The chapter was closed, and adjourned to Saturday, February 23rd, 1878, to meet at five p.m. The banquet provided by Comp. W. G. Jennings was as usual first class. The usual loyal toasts were given and responded to. The companions separated wishing each other the compliments of the approaching season. The visitors were Comps. F. Grave, 3; Lou's Beck, 1326, W.M. Rotheray Lodge, 1687, and others.

DOMATIC CHAPTER (No. 177).—The last convocation of this chapter was held at Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-street, on Thursday, the 22nd instant. There were present amongst others Comps. Adams, P.Z., acting M.E.Z.; Cubitt, P.Z., acting H.; Hill, J.; H. G. Buss, P.Z., Treasurer, acting S.E.; Lawrence, P.S.; Harrison, 2nd Assistant, and Foulger, P.Z.; Payne, P.Z.; Bentley, Janitor. The visitors were Comps. Green, S.N. 975; Walls, P.S. 185. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, the sum of five pounds was unanimously voted to Comp. Briggs, as Steward, for the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, at the forthcoming festival of that charity in February next. There being no other business before the chapter, it was duly closed, and the companions adjourned to an excellent repast. Upon the removal of the cloth, Comp. Adams vacated the chair in favour of Comp. Foulger, who ably officiated during the rest of the proceedings. The toast of "The Queen and Royal Arch Masonry," "The P.Z. of the Order," "The G.H. and G.J. and the rest of the Grand Officers Past and Present," having been given, very briefly

Comp. Buss proposed in happy and eulogistic terms "The Health of the acting M.E.Z." He stated that he had had the honour many years ago of exalting Comp. Adams in that chapter, and it had afforded him that evening very great pleasure in seeing their very worthy and esteemed companion officiating as First Principal. When they considered that Comp. Adams was nearly eighty-five years of age it was very wonderful to see him still in possession of good health, and with both sight and memory unimpaired, and long might he continue to possess those blessings. He also wished to couple the name of another of his Royal Arch children with the toast, namely, Comp. Foulger who had kindly presided at the banquet table that evening. This toast having been well and heartily received, Comp. Foulger responded, and immediately gave "The Visitors" which toast was acknowledged by Comps. Green and Walls. The remaining toasts, viz., "The Past Principals," "The Second and Third Principals," "The Treasurer and acting S.E.," and "The Officers," were given but briefly, and were respectively acknowledged upon behalf of themselves and absent colleagues by Comps. Cubitt, P.Z.; Hill, J.; H. G. Buss, Treasurer; and Lawrence, P.S., and Harrison, 2nd Assistant. Comps. Green, Walls, Lawrence, and others entertained the companions, who separated at a very early hour. The next convocation will take place on the fourth Thursday in February next.

WELLS.—The Avalon Chapter (No. 446).—A meeting of this chapter was held at the Town Hall on Tuesday, 20th November, when the following companions were installed as Principals for the ensuing year, Comps. Bath, as M.E.Z.; C. L. F. Edwards, as H.; and Long, as J. The ceremony was performed by Comp. Capt. S. G. Homfray, P.G.S.B. of Grand Chapter, and P.G.H. of Monmouthshire, who was one of the founders of this chapter, and a constant attendant. The great success of this chapter is entirely due to the great exertions of Comp. Cap. A. Thrale Perkins, the I.P.Z., a most zealous and indefatigable worker in the Craft. After closing the chapter the companions adjourned to refreshment at Bro. Wickenden's, where a cordial vote of thanks was passed to Cap. Perkins for his valuable services during the past year, and a fervent hope that he might be long spared to the brethren of Wells.

SOUTHEND.—Priory Chapter (No. 1000).—A convocation of this chapter was held at the Middleton Hotel, Southend, on Wednesday the 21st inst. There were present amongst others Comps. A. Lucking, M.E.Z.; E. F. Phillips, as H.; I. C. Jonstone, P.Z. 20, (I.C. as J.; (H. and J. being unavoidably absent through illness); Rev. R. S. Wigram, P.Z. 214 and 1000, Past Grand 1st Assist. Soj.; S. J. Weston, Treas.; Rev. H. J. Hatch, Scribe N.; W. Pissay, Prin. Soj.; E. Judd, 1st Asst. Soj.; Mountain, Janitor; F. V. Tillings, G. F. Jones, and Dr. S. W. Fisher, Visitor, Comp. Carr. After the usual preliminaries, Bros. H. Briggs, of the Priory Lodge, 1000, and Douglas, S.D. of the Metropolitan Lodge, 1507, were balloted for, which, proving unanimous in their favour, and Bro. Briggs being in attendance, he was duly exalted, the M.E.Z. also giving the three lectures. The chapter having been closed, the companions adjourned to refreshment. The usual loyal and patriotic toasts were given and heartily responded to, the Janitors' toast bringing the evening's proceedings to a close.

Mark Masonry.

BATH.—Royal Cumberland Lodge.—(T.I.) The regular quarterly meeting was held at the Masonic Hall on Tuesday, Nov. 27th, when the lodge was opened at 8 p.m. by Bro. R. B. Cater, Prov. G.J.W., in the chair of W.M., supported by Bros. Carey, I.P.M.; Dr. Hopkins, P.G.J.W. of England, P.M. 26 and 74, Chaplain; Jas. Dutton, P.M.; John Dutton, S.W.; Murlis, Reg. as J.W.; C. Wilkinson, Sec.; Braham, M.O.; Brown, S.O.; Falkner, J.O.; Radway, S.D.; Dingle, as J.D.; Mercer, as I.G.; Bigwood, Tyler; there were several other members, and Bro. Moutrie, as a visitor. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, a ballot was taken for Bros. C. M. Penley and W. Peach, and both being unanimously favourable, they were admitted and advanced to the Degree of M.M.M., the first part of the ceremony being performed by the W.M., and the latter by Bro. James Dutton, P.M. The Chaplain announced the meeting of Grand Mark Lodge, on December 4th, for which as a Past Grand Officer he had received a summons. He also exhibited patterns of jewels for the officers of the lodge, which he had been requested to procure. After some discussion he was deputed to order a complete set, most of the officers offering to pay the cost of their own and to present them to the lodge. He was also requested to make inquiry from the Grand Secretary as to a Tracing Board. Bro. James Dutton, P.M., brought to the meeting a large handsomely framed Masonic chart for the inspection of the members, stating that it had been executed and presented to him by the Chaplain, at the close of his own year of office as W.M. as a compliment to himself as well as to the lodge over which he had presided. Other matters were transacted, and the lodge was closed at 10 p.m.

JERSEY.—Caesarean Lodge (No. 74).—A quarterly meeting of the lodge was held at the Masonic Temple, on Wednesday, November 21st. The lodge was opened by the W.M., Bro. J. Oatley, supported by Bros. Dr. T. J. Aubin, S.W.; J. O. LeSueur, J.W.; P. W. Benham, I.P.M.; A. Schmitt, Chaplain and Hon. Sec.; C. Kingsnorth, M.O.; J. O'Flaherty, S.O.; Thos. Leah, J.O.; W. Z. Pugsley, Reg.; Ed. Martel, as S.D.; P. Blampied, D.C.; Jno. Huelin, I.G.; and a strong muster of members. Visitor, Bro. G. V. Henley. After the confirmation of the minutes, a ballot was taken for the following candidates: Col. M. Stringer, R.A., 877; V. Cordier, 245; F. P. LeMarquand, P.M. 491; Z. J. Ainsley, 244; J. W. N. Smyth Pigott, E. M. Esnouf, 877; which proved unanimous in each case, and being in attendance they were advanced in due form to the hon. degree of M.M.M. The Secretary congratulated the W.M., officiating for the first time, on the efficient and effective manner in which the whole ceremony was performed, evidencing not only the labour bestowed by him and his officers upon the work, but rendering evident the fact that the labour is a labour of love and pleasure. The brethren adjourned to partake of a collation, and an hour was harmoniously whiled away in toast, song, and sentiment. The Honorary Trio was not forgotten.

ANNUAL FESTIVAL OF THE EMULATION LODGE OF IMPROVEMENT.

The annual festival of the Emulation Lodge of Improvement, working under the Lodge of Unions, No. 256, was held yesterday week at Freemasons' Hall. About 300 brethren were present at the working of the lodge, over which Bro. C. A. Murton, P.G.D., presided. Bro. J. Muzio was S.W.; E. Legg, J.W.; John Hervey, G.S. Treasurer; W. H. Smallpeice, Secretary; W. A. Dawson, S.D.; F. N. Spaul, J.D.; and Tattershall, I.G. Among the other brethren present were Bros. R. J. S. Berton, S.D. 788; G. Brooke, W.M. 63; C. P. Cobham, P.M. 957; Evans Cronk, J.W. 1414; W. A. Dawson, 421; H. J. P. Dumas, P.G.D.; J. Edell, 108; T. Fenn, P.G.D.; J. P. Godfrey, W.M. 1261; Montague Gosset, P.M. 66; R. Grey, P.G.D.; E. M. Haigh, P.G.S.; E. J. Hart, W.M. 1201; A. Hill, 21; W. G. Kentish, I.G. 1293; J. W. Lambert, W.M. 142; W. S. Lee, S.D. 1201; Edwin March, P.M. Grand Stewards' Lodge; J. C. Parkinson, P.G.D.; Hyde Pullen, P.G.S.B.; A. D. Renshaw, J. D. 104; A. A. Richards, P.M. 8 and 865; P. Prov. G.J.W. Midx.; J. A. Rucker, P.G.D.; J. E. Shand, I.G. 1563; G. B. Smallpeice, P.M. 370; F. R. Spaul, J.G. 1124; E. G. Tattershall, 165; S. B. Wilson, P.M. 59.

The questions were put by Bro. Murton, the work chosen for the evening being the Second Lecture. The answers in the First Section were given by Bro. W. A. Dawson; Second Section, by Bro. Spaul; Third Section, by Bro. Tattershall; Fourth by Bro. Lee, S.D. 1201; and Fifth by Bro. Kentish. Of the style of work it is only necessary to say that it was fully up to the high standard of Emulation working, and at the close of the labours of the evening, the Earl of Donoughmore, P.G.S.W., in proposing a vote of thanks to the working brethren, said that as he should have the honour of presiding at the banquet, where he would have an opportunity of speaking more fully, he should trouble the brethren now with very few observations; but he thought he should represent the wishes of all the brethren assembled if he said that they did not wish to separate without giving their hearty thanks to those who had that night given such excellent working. Last year he had the pleasure of being present on a similar occasion, when the working was performed by those whom he might call the rulers of the Craft. Those, however, who had done the work this evening, were brethren who had not yet risen to the high position of W.M.; but the brethren could have no doubt, from the excellent manner in which they had just carried out their duties, that when it came to their turn to fill the chair they would have a very successful Masonic career before them.

The vote having been carried with acclamation,

Bro. C. A. Murton, P.G.D., W.M., in acknowledging it, said it had always been his desire in this Lodge of Emulation to promote a good style of working, and the study of the Sections which illustrated the beautiful ceremonies. He thought it was highly necessary that those who desired to understand the nature of the ceremonies or of the Craft generally should give their attention to this study.

Lodge was then closed, and the brethren adjourned to Freemasons' Tavern to supper where they were presided over by the Earl of Donoughmore, who was supported on the dais by Bros. C. A. Murton, P.G.D.; J. M. Case, P.G.D.; J. A. Rucker, P.G.D.; Hyde Pullen, P.G.S.B.; Col. Somerville Burney, Lieut.-Col. Shadwell Clerke, J. M. P. Montagu, D.P.G.M. Dorset; S. Tomkins G. Treas; John Hervey, G.S.; Capt. Philips, G.D.; Peter de Lande Long, G.D.; Thos. Fenn, P.G.D.; A. J. D. Filer, P.G.S.B.; H. G. Buss, Assist. G.S.; Rev. D. Robbins, A. B. Cooke, W. H. Smallpeice, and H. J. P. Dumas, P.A.G.D.C.

After supper the toasts were proposed, and that of "The Queen and the Craft" having been disposed of, Lord Donoughmore proposed "The M.W.G.M., H.R.H. the Prince of Wales." His Lordship said it was his fortune to be in a position with regard to the Pro Grand Master, in which, as it happened, a great deal of Masonic work had to pass through his hands, and he was therefore in a position to bear witness to the very great interest the Grand Master took in everything that Masons attempted and did. It was hardly necessary he should give the brethren this assurance, but as he was able to give it he was sure it would only increase the zeal with which they would receive the Grand Master's health.

Lord Donoughmore in giving the toast of "The Pro Grand Master, the Deputy G.M., &c.," said the majority of those present had often heard the Pro Grand Master's eloquence and observed his wonderful power of dealing with the most difficult subjects which came before Grand Lodge for decision at different times. Any panegyric on him now would be a waste of time. Of Lord Skelmersdale he might say they all knew the work he had done in the province over which he presided, and in London, in Freemasons' Hall, and in other buildings where Masonry flourished.

Bro. Samuel Tomkins, G. Treas, proposed "The Health of the Chairman." There was no Mason who did not look upon the working of the Lodge of Emulation as a very important, useful, and interesting work in Masonry. The prosperity of the Emulation Lodge of Improvement was virtually the prosperity of Masonry; and the more the brethren felt an interest in it, the more Masonry was appreciated, and the more good Masonry effected. Masonry, however, would not be able to do the good it did unless noblemen like the Chairman showed by the interest they took in it that it was an Order to which all honourable men might belong. For the interest such noblemen took in Masonry the brethren were greatly thankful. He asked the brethren to drink "The Health of Lord Donoughmore," as an excellent Mason.

Lord Donoughmore said that the very flattering manner in which the brethren had received his name was naturally very gratifying to him. He could thoroughly concur with the brother who had brought it before them in everything he had said about the Emulation Lodge of Improvement. Bro. Tomkins had said it was a most useful institution, and one which deserved the greatest encouragement from all brethren, whatever rank they might hold in the Craft. Bro. Tomkins said at the same time that unless the governors of the Craft supported it, it would not flourish so much as it did. He perfectly agreed with Bro. Tomkins in that; but then he agreed with him for a practical reason on another ground as well. He felt that it was not only the rulers of the Craft who should support it for the sake of the good it would do to the Craft, but for the good it would do to themselves. He spoke from practical experience. He had had the honour of founding a lodge at a time when he knew little of what he had to do as Master, and if it had not been for the Emulation Lodge of Improvement he would not have been able to learn his duties. Therefore, he had good reason to foster and support the existence of such a valuable body. He had to thank the brethren again for receiving his name so cordially on this his visit to the lodge, and he could only say it had given him the greatest pleasure to occupy the position of Chairman. Last year the chair in lodge was occupied for a time by the Earl of Carnarvon, and a very interesting ceremony was then gone through, which most of the brethren would remember. Upon that occasion the distinguished brother who had been Treasurer of the lodge for the past thirty years was presented by Lord Carnarvon on behalf of the lodge with a testimonial. Lord Carnarvon then spoke in far more eloquent terms than he (Lord Donoughmore) could of the very great services Bro. Hervey had rendered to the Emulation Lodge of Improvement, and to Freemasonry, but he (Lord Donoughmore) considered it a piece of great good fortune to find himself, in proposing "Success to the Emulation Lodge of Improvement," supported by Bro. Hervey, whose name he should couple with the toast. The toast itself was one well worthy of the brethren's acceptance; but he felt sure that if there was one thing more than another which would render it acceptable to the brethren it was that it would be responded to by the excellent Bro. Grand Secretary, the Treasurer of the lodge.

Bro. Hervey, in reply, said that if his lordship had been gratified by the reception accorded to him, almost a young Mason, it must be doubly gratifying to him (Bro. Hervey) as an old Mason to be, after a long tenure of office and service in the lodge, received in the manner in which the brethren had received his name. It was not always that after more than thirty years' exertions for a lodge, or for any body of men whatever, one was well received; but he felt sure that he was scarcely deserving of such a compliment as Lord Donoughmore had paid him, because his attendance at the Emulation Lodge of Improvement was not now, and could not be what it used to be. He felt now almost superannuated (no, no); at any rate to a certain extent, and he was very glad to give up the lead which he had had the honour and pleasure of taking for so many years in this lodge to such good men as the brethren had seen that evening, as he had seen in Bro. Fenn, a constant attendant at the lodge (cheers), as the brethren also saw in other members of the lodge, such as the Secretary, Bro. Smallpeice, and in Bro. Richardson. It was to these brethren that the prosperity of the lodge was now due; it was to them that the lodge might be thankful for the meeting that they had had that night, and for the general success of the meeting. (Hear, hear.) He felt now that he was like an old horse which was turned out to pasture after a long interval, and left to vegetate for the rest of his life without labour; but so long as he could be of any use to the lodge, or at any time the lodge might feel there was a special call for his services, then again he should be happy to come forward and to say, that although he had been turned out to pasture for the rest of his days he was still ready to exert himself to the utmost to further the interests of the lodge, and at all times to do what in him lay to promote its welfare. (Applause.) He was extremely gratified to see that evening young men, in contradistinction to the older Masons they saw a twelvemonth ago, performing all the sections. Last year they were worked by Past Grand Officers, and it was a pleasure to see the young ones coming up, probably to push the old ones from their pedestals, and show that they also could do the work as well as the old ones did a year ago. Next year probably we should see others ready to show that the Emulation Lodge was not effete but was doing good suit and service to the Craft in the excellent working of the ceremonies. He had often said that it must present itself to all those who took an interest in the working of Masonry that first impressions were everything; that if a man was well initiated, he would feel that he was entering on something that was worth entering upon; but if he was initiated in a slovenly manner he would turn from it in disgust and say, "why was I initiated into an Institution where nothing is offered me but a Master who stumbles over his work, and officers who cannot do their duties?" Unless the working was good at an initiation, it would have no good effect upon the initiate; and hence he repeated the words which had fallen from Lord Donoughmore on the present occasion, that the Emulation was doing good service to the Craft, and he was glad to bear his Lordship say it had done good service to him. He (Bro. Hervey), again thanked the brethren heartily on behalf of the Emulation Lodge of Improvement, and trusted that although time was running fast along he might still have an opportunity or two more of meeting the brethren in that hall and of again responding to this toast.

Lord Donoughmore then rose and said that at the risk of tiring the brethren with the sound of his voice he would propose another toast. Bro. Hervey had said that the work that evening had been done by young hands; and that although he felt he was like an old horse turned out to pasture he was always ready to come back at the call of duty. In giving the brethren the toast of "The W.M. and the officers who presided in the Lodge of Emulation," to-night he could not do better than say that he was sure that the young members would remember whenever they were in difficulties Bro. Hervey's promise. It was a thing well known that an old hunter was always the best, he was always cleverer than any other; and whenever the brethren were in a difficulty he was sure they would avail themselves of Bro. Hervey's advice. At present he was bound to say that as far as he and the brethren could see, none of those who took part in the ceremonies of the evening, were in need of much assistance, the work was so admirably given. He did not himself perceive a mistake from beginning to end, and the whole thing was a credit to the Emulation Lodge, which was a guide to the working of the Craft. Therefore he thought as they had already done in the lodge in a business manner they should now do in a social manner, give them a recognition of their appreciation of the instruction they had exemplified.

Bro. C. A. Murton, P.G.D., responded. Though not such an old horse as Bro. Hervey, he was somewhat an old horse, for he could count up 21 years in Masonry, Bro. Hervey was his father in Masonry, and perhaps he should not have taken such an interest in it but for the impression made on his mind at his initiation. He had always felt what Bro. Hervey had said, that if the ceremonies were not well performed, many brethren retreated from the Order, probably in disgust. He was not surprised that Lord Donoughmore and the brethren should have been pleased with the working of those brethren who had worked the sections. It was a very happy allusion to the noble Chairman, that in comparing the working of that evening with the working of last year, the work of last year was done by old officers, old rulers of the Craft; whereas the working of this evening was, with one exception, done by brethren who did not hold office. It was wonderfully creditable to those brethren that they should work the difficult sections without an error. He did not know whether, in returning thanks for the officers of the lodge, he should include the permanent officers; but he imagined they should regard the Treasurer and Secretary. They had very arduous duties to perform, and no one more so than the Secretary. On their behalf, and on behalf of the working brethren, he begged to thank the noble Chairman and brethren very much.

Bro. Murton, then, in proposing "The Lodge of Unions," under whose warrant the Lodge of Emulation was held, said it might well be that the Lodge of Unions was proud of her offspring, who would render it very great honour by the large number of members on its rolls who had turned out such efficient workers; but still the Emulation ought to be grateful to the Lodge of Unions for allowing them to work under its warrant. He coupled with the toast the name of Bro. Farnfield, P.M., of the Lodge of Unions.

Bro. J. A. Farnfield regretted that (through a domestic affliction, the Master of the Lodge of Unions, the Rev. D. J. Drakeford, having lost his wife) the pleasure of responding to this toast should have fallen to him (Bro. Farnfield). The Lodge of Unions was deeply sensible of the great glory that had attached to them by the eminence the Lodge of Emulation had arrived at. Instead of the mother lodge shedding lustre on the child, the child really shed lustre on the mother. He hoped that the cordial relations which had hitherto existed between the mother and child might never be severed; that both might increase and have good men and true ranging under their banners.

Bro. J. A. Rucker, P.G.D., proposed "The Visitors," of whom there were a host present, and who he hoped would honour the lodge with their presence again, not only on these festive occasions, but on every Friday except Good Friday and Christmas Day. The real entertaining hosts were the brethren who had afforded so much entertainment; but there were other hosts, the committee of the Emulation Lodge of Improvement, who had issued invitations to several distinguished brethren. To do honour to these distinguished brethren he supposed he had been asked to propose this toast, and among these brethren was Bro. Tomkins, G.T., who added lustre to every Masonic meeting at which he was present, there were also other distinguished brethren present; Capt. Philips, G.D.; Bro. Long, G.D.; Bro. Buss, Assistant G. Secretary and Lieut.-Col. Shadwell Clerke. It would be agreeable to the brethren, and he hoped it would not be disagreeable to Col. Clerke, that they were able to honour him as Colone for the first time in such a splendid lodge of Freemasons.

Bro. S. Tomkins, G.T., regretted that by an imperative appointment he had not been able to be present at the working of the lodge; but he had heard from the Grand Officers who were present how admirable the working of the lodge had been. The prosperity of this lodge was a matter of grave importance and interest to the brethren who felt an interest in the prosperity of Masonry generally, but while the lodge of Emulation worked as it did now, and while it was supported by distinguished brethren like the nobleman who was in the chair that evening, no brother could feel any doubts that the prosperity of Masonry would be maintained, and it would go on effecting the good that it had in past times.

Lieut. Col. Shadwell Clerke said as Bro. Rucker had kindly mentioned his name in connection with this toast he would briefly say that whatever time might effect in respect to his military position he only hoped that it might never sever him from his Masonic duties, in which he took so much pride and pleasure.

Bro. John Hervey, G.S., said that by permission of the noble brother in the chair he would propose the toast of "The Masonic Charities," a toast which would commend itself to the sympathies of all the brethren. It was rarely forgotten at Masonic meetings. There was scarcely a brother round the table who was not in some way or other associated with the charities, and interested in their success. When he looked round the hall he could discover hardly a brother who had not been more or less a supporter of those charities. He might say this toast was a family toast, one in which they all sympathised. He was sorry to say that one of their excellent Secretaries, Bro. Little, was unable to be present on account of ill health, which they would all regret. Bro. Binckes also was not present, and Bro. Terry had been obliged to leave; but he fancied he would find a good respondent in the person of Bro. J.M.P. Montagu.

Bro. J. M. P. Montagu in reply, said that the charity jewel was the brightest Freemasons could wear, and he was sure all the brethren would strive to place it on their breasts. He hoped they would all carry out what he had said a few days ago when one of the Secretaries said he thought the Masonic Charities would suffer from the handsome way in which relief had been extended to the Indian famine, that the charitable instincts of Masons would not fail them, and that if an extra call were made on them they would do more for the charities than they had done before, they would give their money freely, and it was not because there had been an extra call that they would neglect their own charities.

Bro. Peter de Lande Long proposed "The Stewards."

Bro. Richards replied, and the company then separated.

ANNUAL FESTIVAL OF THE HIGH CROSS LODGE OF INSTRUCTION.

The first Anniversary Festival of the High Cross Lodge of Instruction, was held on Wednesday, 21st Nov., at Bro. Mattock's, Coach and Horses, Lower Tottenham. Bro. William Dance, W.M. 754, President, and Bro. C. S. Brown, W.M. 1237, P.G.D.C., Middx., Vice President. There were present Bros. Maller, P.M., Treasurer; Driscoll, P.M., P.G.P., Middx., Secretary; Thompson, P.M., P.P.G.S.B., Middx.; Wells, P.M.; Jones, P.M.; Linzell, P.M., P.P.G.D.C., Middx.; Winsdale, P.M.; Oddy, Stephens, Burford, Garrod, Clements, Everdell, Rolls, Killick, and numerous other brethren.

After the dinner, which was served by Bro. Mattocks, the host, in a manner that gave the utmost satisfaction, the president proposed "The Queen and the Craft," observing that the gracious lady who ruled over us had by the purity of her life and the progress and prosperity of her reign endeared herself to all classes. The president next gave "The Health of the Prince of Wales," the Most Worshipful Grand Master, and said that the Prince had not only identified himself with Freemasonry and accepted the position he now held as the head of the Craft, but had by his many good qualities proved himself to be in all respects a thorough English gentleman. The Vice President then proposed the toast of "The Earl of Carnarvon," the Pro Grand Master, and spoke in high terms of the services rendered by him to the Craft. "The Earl of Skelmersdale, the Deputy Grand Master, and the rest of the Grand Officers past and present," was then proposed by the Vice President. These toasts were enthusiastically received by the brethren present.

The next toast, "The High Cross Lodge of Instruction," was then given by the President, who spoke of it as being a great success, it having been established about five years, and now bore on its books some seventy or eighty members. The subscriptions, which were but small, were devoted to charitable purposes, and the lodge had also acquired two life governorships in the Institution for the aged, were life subscribers to the Boys' School and would shortly be in a position to become life governor of another of the Masonic Institutions. The President took occasion to speak in high terms of the services rendered to the lodge by Bros. Driscoll and Thompson, and coupled with the toast the name of Bro. Garrod, who had acted as Worshipful Master at the last meeting of the lodge.

Bro. Garrod responded in appropriate language, and concluded by proposing in a few well chosen words the next toast, that of "The President," Bro. Dance, the Worshipful Master of the High Cross Lodge, No. 754, from which the lodge of Instruction derives its authority.

The President having responded gave "The Health of the Vice-President," Bro. Brown, and in thanking him for acting, congratulated him on his having attained provincial honours.

The Vice-President in response, expressed his gratification at the opportunity afforded to him of being present to act as Vice-President, and referred in happy terms to the friendly and good-neighbourly feeling that had always existed between the Enfield and High Cross Lodges.

The toast of "The Visitors" was then proposed by the President and responded to by Bro. Winsdale and the toast of "The Treasurer" proposed by the Vice-President and responded to by Bro. Maller. The President then proposed the toast of "The Masonic Institutions" and taking the Girls' School as the first in its order of formation, he said that it commenced in 1778 with a very limited number of children, but succeeded in building their first school in 1793. It had since progressed rapidly, and in 1851 the present handsome school at Battersea Rise was built. The girls were there maintained, clothed, and educated, until 16 years old, and what was more, a protecting and helping hand was extended to those who for lack of funds outside might require it. It had made marked progress within the last few years, for though in 1870 it maintained and educated 100 Girls, there were now 161 in the school. It had £39,000 invested, from which an income of £1162 was derived and the donations and subscriptions for 1876 were £10,161. The next in order was the Boys' School. It started in 1798 with six boys. Like the girls, the boys were maintained, clothed, and educated from eight to sixteen years old, and there are now something like 186 boys on the establishment, it had made great progress and had acquired a substantial and permanent position, and had built the extensive and handsome school at Wood Green. The Institution had been liberally supported, the donations and subscriptions for the year 1876, were £13,220, this with grants and the banker's balance, brought forward from the preceding year, placed £16,960 at the disposal of the Committee for the year 1876, and they were thus enabled to purchase "Kent House" Convalescent Home (an acquisition which had been attended with great advantages), to increase their invested capital from £2000 to £5000, and to begin the year 1877 with the highly respectable balance at their bankers of £2476. The education said the President, given at both schools was of a sound practical character, such as would enable the children to fight the battle of life, and it was gratifying to know that many of them, both boys and girls, succeeded in taking honours at the local examinations of Oxford and Cambridge Universities. The last, though by no means the least, in importance of the Institutions was that for aged Freemasons and the Widows of Freemasons. Whether it was that there was more charm in helping the young than the old he could not say, but certain it was that this Institution had not been founded until 1842, although he need not tell the brethren that the helping hand had always been held out to the decayed Freemason by his brethren in the Craft. However, in 1842 this Institution was founded, and it had gone on steadily increasing in prosperity. Since its foundation 468 brethren and 242 widows had received annuities. At the time of the last election there were 140 brethren in receipt of £5600; 130 widows receiving £4160; and fourteen widows at half their deceased husband's annuities, £280, or in round numbers, brethren and widows of brethren received for the year £10,040. The subscriptions and donations for the last year amounted to £13,368, and this handsome amount had enabled the Institution considerably to increase the number of annuitants; but, notwithstanding this, there were for the next election thirty brethren candidates, and nine vacancies and thirty-eight widows' candidates, and only seven vacancies. In concluding his notice of the three institutions, the President said that although last year the total amount thus devoted to educating the young and helping the old was over £42,000, still seeing that in both the schools and the institution for the aged the candidates were largely in excess of the vacancies, it behoved every brother to do his utmost to support them—for they were all equally good, equally noble, and equally worthy of support—and there was a benevolent association connected with the Lodge of Instruction, which had done much towards enabling brethren to become Life Governors of the institutions he had referred to; he would not say more on this subject, but conclude by calling upon Bro. Thompson, to whose exertions, as its Secretary says, so much of its success was due, to respond.

Bro. Thompson, in response, said that the benevolent association had been formed some four years ago, and had been the means of enabling its members to acquire many Life Governorships of the various institutions, amounting to £445. Several of its members, too, had served as Stewards, taking up with them over £400.

The Vice-President next proposed the toast of "The Officers and Brethren of the High Cross Lodge," to which Bro. H. Stephens, S.W., responded, and the proceedings closed with a cordial vote of thanks, proposed by the President to their host, Bro. Mattock, for the capital dinner he had placed on the table. The evening's entertainment was much enhanced by some excellent singing by Bros. Stephens, Burford, Farrin, Oddy, Oxley, Killick, and others.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF SOMERSET.

The annual Grand Lodge of the Province of Somerset was held at Taunton, on Monday, the Earl of Carnarvon, Pro Grand Master of England and Provincial Grand Master of Somerset, presiding. The members of the Craft, to the number of about 150, assembled at the Shire Hall, at half-past one o'clock. The grand jury room had been fitted up to meet the requirements of Masonic ceremony, and punctually to the time fixed the lodge was opened in ancient form by the R.W. Pro G.M., the Earl of Carnarvon. The roll of the lodges was then called over, all the lodges in the province except two answering to their names.

The present officers of the P.G. Lodge in attendance were Bros. R. C. Else, D.P.G.M.; Dr. Samuel Bryant, P.M. 1296, P.G.S.W.; Geo. Ricks, P.M. 135, P.G.J.W.; Rev. T. L. Challen, 973, and Rev. Francis Reed, 261, P.G. Chaplains; B. Turner P.M. 53, P.G. Treas.; F. R. Prideaux, P.M. 291, P.G. Sec.; E. Bath, P.M. 772, P.G.S.D.; C. L. Fry Edwards, P.M. 1199, P.G.J.D.; W. M. Forty, P.M. 291, P.G.S. Works; W. Clark, P.M. 285, P.G.D.C.; S. Jones, P.M. 1222, P.G. Assist. D.C.; Thomas H. Leaman, P.M. 1197, P.G. Org.; A. Villar, W.M. 261; J. C. Hunt, W.M. 135; W. Hickman, J.W. 135; J. T. Dunsford, Secretary, 291, and J. Hughes, 814, P.G. Stewards; W. Woodford, 291, and A. J. Carter, Tylers.

Amongst the visiting brethren present were Bros. Col. A. W. Adair, P. Prov. G.M. of Somerset; W. S. Gillard, P.M. 1168; Robert. M. Worlock, P.M. 1388; Daniel Williams, P.M. 686; A. Pratt, P.M. 22; James Mills, P.M. 1125, P.P.G.O.; Henry Davey, P.M. 1125; Henry S. Gill, 1125; Thomas Parkhouse, 1125, W.M.; James H. Lloyd, 1125; John B. Crabb, 1125, P.J.W.; Jno. W. Hunt, 1125; L. W. Zuegg, P.P.G.S.W., Dorset; George Evans, 1181, P.G.S.D.; Henry Stransan, 39, Exeter, P.M. P.P.J.G.W.; John Algar, 39, D.C.; James Chaffin, P.M. 326, P.G.J.D.; H. J. Sellick, 256; A. O. Hill, 76; Jas. Ricks, 23, I.G.; and W. Trevena, P.M. 159.

The lodge having been duly opened,

Bro. F. R. Prideaux, P.G., Secretary, read the minutes of the Prov. Grand Lodge meeting, held at the Town Hall, Bridgwater, on the 22nd September, 1876, under the presidency of Bro. Else, the V.W.D.P.G.M., and they were confirmed and signed.

Bro. E. T. Payne, P.G. Treasurer, next read a statement of accounts for the past year, showing a balance in hand amounting to £162 18s. 7d.

On the motion of Bro. Meyler, W.M. (No. 261), who had assisted in auditing the accounts, seconded by Bro. Ashley, the accounts were passed.

The P.G. Secretary having announced the receipt of letters from several brethren expressing regret at their inability to attend,

The M.W. Bro. the Earl of Carnarvon, next declared all offices vacant, whereupon Bro. Col. Adair proposed and Bro. Wilton, P.G.J.W., seconded, the re-appointment, of Bro. E. T. Payne as P.G. Treasurer for the ensuing year, which was agreed to with acclamation.

The M.W. Bro. the Earl of Carnarvon, said it afforded him great pleasure to think that the P.G.L. had secured once more the valuable services of Bro. Payne, who, he believed, would now enter on the eighteenth consecutive year of his high office. His Lordship then proceeded to invest the newly-appointed officers as follows:—

Frederick J. Brown, P.M. 41	Prov. G.S.W.
A. Villar, P.M. 261	Prov. G.J.W.
Rev. F. S. B. Seale, Chap. 135	Prov. G. Chap.
Rev. Thomas Randall, 261	Prov. G. Chap.
T. Payne, P.M. 53	Prov. G. Treas.
H. C. Smith, W.M. 1197	Prov. G. Reg.
F. R. Prideaux, P.M. 291	Prov. G. Sec.
H. J. Walker, P.M. 53	Prov. G.S.D.
J. C. Hunt, P.M. 135	Prov. G.J.D.
G. K. Foster, P.M. 329	Prov. G.S. of Wks.
H. W. Batten, P.M. 291	Prov. G.D. of C.
W. W. Westcott, W.M. 814	Prov. G.A.D.C.
Sidney Lewis, W.M. 1223	Prov. G.G.S.B.
E. R. Hayter, W.M. 976	Prov. G. Org.
A. W. S. Bailey, P.M. 772	Prov. G. Purst.
W. H. Dill, P.M. 906	Prov. G.A. Purst.
T. B. Wickenden, 446; L. Bohn, 261; T. Sherring, 814; T. Parker, 285; J. Arney, 1199; and Jos. Trellin, 135	Prov. G. Stewards.
W. Woodward, 291	Prov. G. Tyler.
J. Salter, 53	Prov. G.A. Tyler.

The Prov. G. Sec. next read the report of the Charity Organisation Committee, which was received and adopted, on the motion of Bro. G. Ricks, seconded by Bro. Ashley, and, on the further proposition of Bro. Payne, seconded by Bro. Wilton, it was also resolved that it should be printed and distributed in. The Prov. G.M. in moving the resolution which appeared in his name on the agenda paper that the sum of £50 be paid out of the fund of the Provincial Grand Lodge to the Indian Famine Relief Fund, said: All of us have been so familiar unhappily from the daily newspapers with the sad records of this famine that very little is needed on my part to explain, or I think to justify, such a motion as this. I had this morning placed on my table a bundle of papers which contain some interesting details, which I thought the Provincial Grand Lodge might care to know. Unfortunately by some inadvertence I left the papers behind me and therefore I must confine myself to the mere generalities of the question. At the same time the main facts are doubtless in the mind of everybody here, so that I need add very little that I think would be worth communicating. I am given to understand that there has been a doubt in the minds of some gentlemen, whether or no, the time of great distress having passed by, any further assistance to the Indian Famine Relief Fund is really requisite. I think I can clear that doubt up at once by assuring every brother here that it is impossible to subscribe money to a worthy or a nobler object. Through the liberality of Englishmen in general, whether in this country or in our colonies, a fine response has been made to the appeal sent forth some months ago, and hard upon half a million of money has now been raised to place at the disposal of the Indian Government. That half million no doubt is so considerable a sum that it will tend in an appreciable degree to the mitigation of the suffering, but I should greatly deceive myself and you if I held out any hope that the half million would at all meet the calamity. That calamity is of the most momentous character, it is one of the darkest which is the recollection of this generation has befallen any part of the British Empire; and if even another half-million is forthcoming, it would not be at all too much; in fact it would not suffice to do that which is desired. Some years ago great famine occurred in another part of the Empire. By a most lavish expenditure of money and great sacrifice of devotion on the part of all concerned in India, this famine was met in the most energetic manner which I think the history of an civilized nation records. Great as the area was and vast as was the population, I believe it may be said without exaggeration that not a single life was lost through that famine. Unhappily as much cannot be said of the present famine. The area being larger and the population affected greater, from various reasons it has been impossible to meet it in the same way. Many have succumbed, and I am afraid many more must succumb to the effects of famine. At the same time the Indian Government has made efforts and much has been accomplished. Yet so terrible is the state of things that in August last, only a few months ago, the Viceroy of India wrote to express his earnest apprehension not only as to the then state of affairs, but what might be expected if a very beneficial rainfall did not follow. The policy of the Government was one which I think was wise and prudent to adopt under the circumstances. They encouraged as far as possible voluntary effort, but determined not to interfere with the general occupations of trade. They gave all the assistance they could to local committees and they established large public works and, as far as was possible they gave relief, not as a mere matter of charity, but in return for work done, with the view, as far as might be, of not pauperising the native population, and wisely they laid it down as a principle that as far as the resources of the State were available and it was practicable to employ them, human life should be saved. I take it that the policy of the Indian Government was a prudent one, and within certain limits had succeeded very well. They have encouraged voluntary effort as far as they could, and their appeal has been met as I have just now said, both in this country and in our colonies, very liberally. A famine fund has been formed which has had several objects, but mainly I should say for the mitigation of suffering as distinguished from the duty of the relief works, which duty more probably falls on the Indian Government itself, and this fund has been formed very properly for the assistance of the local committees and for giving relief, especially to women and children; and it is to that fund that any contribution this Provincial Grand Lodge may be pleased to make will be paid. As I have before said, in August last the then Viceroy took a very gloomy view of the prospect? Mercifully and providentially, somewhere in the month of September, there was a very welcome rainfall, and that was followed up in other parts of India until about the middle of October, when it became clear that the crops for the ensuing year would be saved. Thank God that has not failed, and now the prospects are more cheering. At the same time the strain has been terrible. Looking upon the resources of the Indian Government and upon the individual amount of mortality not only that has already taken place, but which will follow as the after effect of disease and weakness which must greatly impoverish these unfortunate people, who have been compelled to sell their cattle and their implements and farming stock of every kind, there are millions which have been reduced to a state of the most terrible destitution, and therefore this £50 which I propose to this Grand Lodge to subscribe will come as a welcome help to the fund which is being accumulated, and, though not a great amount, it will prove, at all events, an earnest evidence of the interest which the Freemasons of Somerset take in this national calamity.

Bro. R. C. Else, D.P.G.M., seconded the motion, which was agreed to with acclamation.

On the motion of Bro. T. E. Payne, seconded by Bro. Inskip, it was unanimously resolved that the sum of fifty guineas be presented to the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, that the same be placed on the list of the W.D.P.G.M. Bro. Else, who has signified his intention to represent the province of Somerset as a Steward at the next festival in aid of the funds of the Institution, and that the P.G. Treas., be authorised to pay the amount out of the funds in his hands on account of this province.

On the proposition of Bro. Payne, seconded by Bro. Col. Adair, and supported by the Earl of Carnarvon, the following was unanimously agreed to:—"That this P.G. Lodge desires to express its sympathy with the family of the late Bro. C. J. Vigne, P.P.G.S.W., and one of the trustees of the property of this P.G. Lodge, in their late melancholy bereavement, and to record its sense of the service to Freemasonry, rendered by their deceased brother.

Two sums of twenty guineas each having been voted out of the funds of the lodge for the relief of children of deceased brethren.

Bro. Rev. F. S. P. Seale introduced a motion with respect to the working of the Lodge of Benevolence, but after a discussion had taken place thereon, the resolution was withdrawn.

On the proposition of Bro. Payne, the sum of ten guineas was voted in aid of the fund of the Taunton and Somerset Hospital.

The lodge was then closed, and the members afterwards dined together at Withycombe's Castle Hotel. The Earl of Carnarvon presided during part of the evening, but being obliged to leave before the toast-list had been gone through, the chair was occupied during the rest of the evening by Bro. Else, D.P.G.M. The noble Earl was supported by P.P.G.M. Adair, Bro. T. Meylar, W.M. of the Lodge of Unity and Sincerity, Taunton, and a large number of past and present Provincial Grand Officers.

Provincial Grand Chaplain Seale said grace before and after dinner.

Departing from the usual course W.M. Meylar proposed "The Health of the Provincial Grand Master of England" first. Adding to the old proverb, he said, "Time, tide, and trains wait for no man," and as his Lordship was compelled to leave early to be in time for his train, he proposed his health, tendering him the thanks of the Masons of Somerset for presiding over them that day. (Applause.)

The Earl of Carnarvon, in reply, said that it was only a short time since he was reading them a lecture on the necessity of observing regularity and order on their procedure, and now, he found himself, through the kindness of Bro. Meylar, committing one of the greatest solecisms, and greatest irregularities he had ever witnessed at a Masonic gathering. (Laughter.) He found himself actually returning thanks for his health in the very middle of their entertainment, and before the loyal toasts had been honoured. He was sure, however, if His Royal Highness the illustrious Grand Master of England—(applause)—with whom he had as it happened within the last few days been in correspondence on Masonic subjects if he had known of the circumstances of the case would not have forbidden his Somersetshire brethren for giving him their cordial and hearty good wishes in this way. (Applause.) He regretted exceedingly that he was obliged to leave them. He congratulated them on the flourishing state of the province at the present moment. It was impossible that so large and important a lodge could be conducted without difficulties or some little clouds occasionally gathering in the horizon. In fact he should begin to doubt whether it was in a satisfactory state if there were no clouds, but the way in which the Deputy Provincial Grand Master and himself had dealt with those difficulties they had passed away, a fact that was owing a great measure to the good temper and Masonic obedience which prevailed throughout the province. He repeated now what he had said on former occasions that Masonic affairs were only to be satisfactorily conducted when those who were invested with the executive power were seconded, and heartily and cordially seconded by every lodge in the province. It was to them he had looked, it was to them he had appealed on former occasions when there had been any difficulty, that appeal had never been made in vain. (Applause.) Not only was Masonry prospering in this country, but it was prospering in the colonies, and he assured them that when administering colonial affairs many matters arising out of ordinary and practical life came up and reminded him of Masonic questions and Masonic brotherhood. Matters frequently arose in which Masonic interests were involved, and he felt that there was that under-current—even in the administration of colonial matters—of Masonic feeling which existed he was happy to believe in every part of this country. (Applause.) He hoped and trusted that they would be very careful to maintain what he might call the landmarks of the Order. (Applause.) It was these landmarks which distinguished English Masonry from most other branches of Masonry all over the world, and things had been done and said lately which some of them considered went to the root of Masonry and which had raised questions of grave and anxious doubt. This was not the occasion or the time to go into that question. He simply said this, which any Mason or non-Mason might hear, and could not misunderstand—that he trusted those great landmarks of Masonry which they all knew, which they all revered and to which they were all pledged would be maintained throughout this province, and in all their lodges, as long as any of them had the power to maintain them. (Applause.) He concluded by wishing them a pleasant evening.

The P.G.M. then left.

Bro. Else, D.P.G.M., having taken the chair, proceeded to propose the usual toasts.

"The Queen and the Craft," and "The M.W.G.M., His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales" were duly honoured.

"The Health of the Officers of the Grand Lodge of England" having been drunk, "The Health of Bro. Colonel Adair as P.P.G.M." was heartily honoured.

Bro. Colonel Adair, in eulogistic terms, proposed "The Health of Bro. Else, as Deputy Provincial Grand Master," and Bro. Else made a suitable response.

Several visiting brethren acknowledged the toast of "The Visitors," and Bro. T. Meylar, W.M. of Lodge 261 (Taunton), responded for that lodge.

"The other Lodges in the Province," "The Masonic Charities," and "To all poor and distressed Masons, &c.," concluded the list.

NEW LODGES.

Warrants have been granted by the M.W. Grand Master, since the last Quarterly Communication of Grand Lodge, for the following Lodges:—

- No. 1722. Excelsior Lodge, Dugshai, Punjab.
- 1723. St. George's Lodge, Bolton, Lancashire.
- 1724. Kaiser-i-Hind Lodge, Regent Street.
- 1725. Douglas Lodge, Maidstone, Kent.
- 1726. Gordon Lodge, Bognor, Sussex.
- 1727. Tenterfield Lodge, Tenterfield, N.S.W.
- 1728. Temple Bar Lodge, Fleet Street.
- 1729. Skelmersdale Lodge, Pietermaritzburg.
- 1730. Urmoston Lodge, Urmoston, Lancashire.
- 1731. Cholmeley Lodge, Muswell Hill.
- 1732. King's Cross Lodge, King's Cross.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

The monthly meeting of the Committee of this Institution was held on Thursday afternoon at the Freemasons' Hall, Bro. Col. Creaton, Vice-President. The other brethren present were Bros. Griffiths Smith, T. F. Peacock, H. Cox, John Boyd, A. H. Tattershall, Henry Venn, F. G. Baker, Herbert Dicketts, H. Massey (Freemason), and R. W. Little (Secretary); Bro. Hedges also attended.

Four petitions for candidates to be placed on the list for election in April were received and accepted, and the candidates were ordered to be placed on the list.

Notice of motion was given on behalf of Bro. Joshua Nunn for increasing all the salaries at the school.

The committee then adjourned.

ROYAL MASONIC BOYS' SCHOOL.

W. A. Parker, a pupil in the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, gained the 9th place out of a large number of candidates for entrance into Her Majesty's Dockyard, to be educated as a naval engineer. He has been directed to enter upon his duties in H.M.'s ship "Marlborough," at Portsmouth, early in the present month.

Parker had no special preparation for the examination, which included English, French, and mathematics.

Masonic and General Tidings.

The Christmas Number of the Masonic Magazine will contain a portrait of Bro. Capt. Phillips, Senior Grand Deacon, in addition to ninety six pages of interesting matter, written expressly for this number, by eminent Masonic writers, and a handsome illuminated cover. The price of this number will be one shilling.

Mr. Charles P. O'Connor, the "Irish Peasant Poet," will lecture on Monday evening, the 17th inst., at St. Matthias's School, On-the-Weir Bristol. The subject will be "Poets and Poetry of Ireland."

A report of the meeting of the Neptune Lodge, held on Thursday, will appear in our next.

The half-yearly Communication of the Grand Lodge of Mark Master Masons will be held at Freemasons' Tavern, Great Queen-street, London, on Tuesday next.

The installation meeting of the Carnarvon Lodge, No. 1572, takes place this (Saturday) afternoon at the Albion Tavern, Aldersgate street. A full report will appear in our next.

The consecration of the Kaiser-i-Hind Lodge (No. 1724), for Indian Officers and those connected with India, took place on Thursday last. The ceremonies were performed by Bro. John Hervey, Grand Secretary, assisted by Bros. the Rev. A. F. A. Woodford, P.G.C.; and H. G. Buss, Assist. Grand Secretary. A full report will appear in our next.

A DISABLED HOSPITAL.—Owing to the severe gales, four wards of The National Hospital for the Diseases of the Heart and Paralysis, Soho Square, have been rendered uninhabitable, necessitating the immediate removal of the suffering patients. The committee have issued an appeal asking for assistance for the reparation of the damage done and to reopen the wards.

AN OLD ENGINE.—The first sale in connection with the estate of Thomas Vaughan and Co., ironmasters, of Middlesbrough, in liquidation, took place on Wednesday, at the Whesoe Works. Amongst the lots offered was an old-fashioned locomotive, declared to be the fifth ever made for the first railway, the Stockton and Darlington line. This engine and its tender were sold to a marine store dealer for £45.

At a meeting of the Ivy Lodge, No. 1441, on Tuesday 27th ult., in an appropriate speech, Bro. Archer Farr alluded in touching terms to the lamented death of the late Bro. Superintendent Mott.

Arrangements have just been completed by Atlantic Cable with Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe (author of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," &c., &c.) for the publication, from advanced sheets, of her new story, "Our Folks at Paganuc," in the columns of the Christian Globe. The story abounds in dramatic incident, and is written in Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe's well-known and attractive style and is full of that mysterious life-principle which is the first condition of the highest art in every form of literature.

The first annual ball of the City of Westminster Lodge, No. 1563, will be held at Willis's Rooms on Wednesday, the 23rd of January next, under the presidency of Bro. E. White, W.M. of the lodge. Bro. the Rev. P. M. Holden is Vice-President, and among the Stewards are Bros. C. A. Cottebrune, P.G.P.; B. H. Swallow, P.M.; B. Phillips, S.W.; and John E. Shand, S.D. We hope to give further particulars in a future number.

The Worshipful Company of Skinners have given a donation of £100 to the Royal Albert Orphan Asylum, in aid of the funds of that excellent institution, of which our Bro. Wm. Worrell is the energetic Secretary.

The annual concert in aid of the funds of the Post Office Orphan Home will be given this (Saturday) evening, at St. James's Hall, under the patronage of the Right Hon. Lord John Manners, Postmaster General.

A Grand Ballad Concert will be given on Saturday next Dec. 8th, at the Angel Town Institution, Gresham-road, Brixton, to commence at 8 o'clock. The artistes for this occasion include Madame Worrell-Duval, Madame Marie Coles, and Bro. J. Turle Lee.

The Surrey County Club announce their second evening concert of the winter season, for Tuesday next, the 4th inst.

On Wednesday Mr. Walter, M.P., presided at the annual festival dinner in aid of the Home for Little Boys, at Horton Kirby, Farningham. Subscriptions amounting to about £1200 were announced during the proceedings.

The opening meeting of the Sessions of the Law Amendment Society will be held on Monday evening next, when Mr. Sergeant Cox will read a paper on "A Court of Criminal Appeal." Mr. William Forsyth, Q.C., M.P., will preside.

A Dramatic performance, by members of the Honourable Artillery Company, will take place at the Royal Aquarium Theatre, on Wednesday, the 12th inst. The proceeds will be devoted to the City Orthopaedic Hospital.

Bro. Theo Lane's letter reached us too late for insertion this week. It shall appear in our next.

An interesting communication has reached us from Bro. Robert Laing (Copenhagen), representative of the Grand Lodge of England in the Grand Lodge of Denmark, which we shall have much pleasure in giving in our next.

We regret to have to announce the death of Mrs. Eleanor Spencer, the wife of Bro. Walter Spencer which took place on the 15th ult., at the residence of her father, at Upper Norwood, after protracted sufferings. We sincerely sympathize with Bro. Walter Spencer in his great bereavement.

Reviews.

"Mottoes and Aphorisms from Shakespeare."—John Hogg Paternoster-row.

"Rules for making English Verse;" ditto.

We have received these two books from Bro. John Hogg, and perused them with much pleasure. We commend them to the notice of our readers. "Mottoes and Aphorisms from Shakespeare" will be found very useful to those who like to "garnish" our English language with the thoughts of "Glorious Will," and are pleased to find how much of truth always lies at the bottom of the Shakespearean well. Indeed, the more we study Shakespeare the more we love him, and it used to be said of King Charles I. that next to his Bible and Prayer-book he always preferred his Shakespeare. If any of our readers want a few quotations apt, on the spot, so to say, let them get this neat and tiny handbook of reference and quotation.

"Rules for making English Verse" will commend themselves to all poetasters. The application of Tom Hood's more modern, and Byshe's older rules for versification will be a great help to many who rack their brain for a recalcitrant rhyme. Poetry is now "heavy in the market." Whether we are improving its quality (its quantity is enormous) we say nothing, but as it is always a proper thing to teach the young or the old idea "how to shoot," let us not be above welcoming all such "vade mecum" to verdant bay leaves and superabundant laurels. Seriously, though, we do not think that sermons can be written from Skelton sermons, nor poetry from our English "Gradus ad Parnassus," yet they are adventitious aids, well worthy the attention of those ladies and gentlemen who write with ease or without any ease at all. With all our barking criticism we commend Bro. Hogg's little publication alike to Alonzo and Theodore, to Imogen and Amanda Jones.

Mulum in Parbo; or Masonic Notes and Queries.

THE UNITY LODGE, No. 132, F.M.H., RINGWOOD.

I have received the following transcript from my friend and brother, John J. Taylor, J.W. 121, who saw the originals when at Ringwood, and I think them sufficiently interesting to have them inserted in the Freemason. The lodge, it appears, was constituted in 1764, and precedes (at the present time) two lodges, respectively numbered 130 and 131 (Southampton and Truro), which were chartered in 1772. The difference in the years of origin is explained by the fact that the latter were constituted by the "Ancients," and No. 132 by the "Moderns." No. 129, at Kendal, is of 1764, as also the lodges from 133 to 135.

WARRANT.

To all whom these presents shall come, I, Henry Dagge, Esq., Deputy Grand Master for the County of Southampton, send greeting.

Whereas it has been represented to me that there are now remaining two members only belonging to the lodge at Lymington, in the said county, of which the Master, Mr. Samuel Cothorne, is one, who has signified to me his desire that the said lodge should be transferred and removed to the town of Ringwood, in the said county, to be held there at the sign of the "White Hart," kept by Brother Richard Gibbs: And whereas there are several brethren residing in and near the said town of Ringwood who are desirous of becoming members of the said lodge when removed to Ringwood as aforesaid. Now, I, the said Henry Dagge, by virtue of the power and authority in me reposed, do hereby transfer and remove the Lymington Lodge to the town of Ringwood, to be held there at the "White Hart" Inn aforesaid. And the said Master of the Lymington Lodge having resigned his office, and our worthy Bro. Stephen Martin, of Ringwood aforesaid, Esquire, having been presented to me as a proper person to succeed to the said office, and having been strongly and unanimously recommended by all the brethren now present as a person of good morals, and great skill, true and trusty, and a lover of the whole Fraternity wheresoever dispersed over the face of the earth, I do, therefore, appoint the said Stephen Martin, Master of the said lodge. In testimony whereof I have hereunto set my hand, this twenty-seventh day of December, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and twenty-six.

HENRY DAGGE, D.G.M.

The Unity Lodge, Ringwood, likewise possesses two valuable chairs of historical interest, having been used by His Majesty George III. and his Royal Consort when at the city of Salisbury. The following are the inscriptions on the chairs in question:—

"His Majesty King George the Third visited the City of Salisbury Sept. 30th, A.L. 5778, and was seated on this chair and throne in the choir of the Cathedral during the performance of three anthems;" and on the other "Her Majesty Queen Charlotte accompanied her Royal Consort to Salisbury Sept. 30th, A.L. 5778, and was seated on this chair and throne in the choir of the Cathedral."

How they are now located at Ringwood I know not, but this much I do, that all such interesting details as those sent by Brother Taylor are well worthy of preservation in these pages.

W. J. HUGHAN.

"RAMBLER" AND ANCIENT LODGE AT KESLO.

I have had a rare treat in reading the interesting description of the records of the ancient Lodge of Keslo, Scotland, and feel much indebted to our brother, "Rambler," for the trouble he has taken to present the readers of the Freemason (and through that paper, the Craft) with a brief, but comprehensive account of Freemasonry in Keslo, which, so far as I know, is new to all of us "Masonic Students."

On behalf of Bro. the Rev. A. F. A. Woodford, M.A., and myself, I should like to correspond with "Rambler" about the matter, for we should like to know if the minute book contains a copy of the "Old Masonic Charges" usual at that time, and if so, of what kind, and the date when written. It is more than likely that in a hasty glance—however much was made of the time at disposal—some points of value may have escaped attention, and so if I were favoured with the loan of the records, or some one would undertake a careful examination who is on the spot, there may be other matters of interest discovered.

WILLIAM JAMES HUGHAN.

Public Amusements.

GLOBE THEATRE.—It would be difficult to imagine a brighter or pleasanter entertainment than that which was provided for the patrons of the Globe Theatre on Saturday, 24th November. Notwithstanding the fact that five other performances were advertised to take place at the same hour, and that the weather was most forbidding, the house was filled by a large and appreciative audience, attracted, no doubt, by curiosity as to Messrs. Romer and Bellamy's comedy of "Flirtation," which was announced to form the piece de resistance. Although this sparkling little play had already made its appearance on a similar occasion, the authors have made such judicious alterations and improvements, both in construction and dialogue, that it is now to all intents and purposes a different piece from that which obtained such favourable suffrages in July last; and for that reason, as well as on account of its intrinsic merit, calls for particular notice.

It may be well to state that the piece has nothing but its title in common with one produced some years ago at Booth's Theatre, in New York, in which the famous avenue at West Point played so important a part. It is thoroughly English in its character, and original in conception. The plot turns upon the scheme by which two young ladies, Alice Leith and Cissy Morley, attempt to bring their tardy lovers, Archie Terry and Jack Rollope, to book, at the same time that those unsuspecting subalterns are engaged in a somewhat similar plot to ascertain the state of their mistresses' affections; whilst the secondary interest of the piece is furnished by the elderly courtship of the girls' widowed aunt, Mrs. Brayley, by a certain eccentric Major Shoreshot, admirably played by Mr. Edward Righton.

The acting of the piece was, on the whole, excellent. Miss Sanger, who has been trained in the best school of genteel comedy, has, perhaps, never been seen to greater advantage than in the part of the lively Cissy Morley. She was charmingly coquettish, and acted with an élan which yet never even trenched upon the hoyden; the scene in which she instructs Major Shoreshot how to make a proposal was especially taking—the spirits of the actress communicated themselves to her audience, and the result was a genuine triumph, to which Mr. Righton's inimitable face greatly contributed. Of that gentleman it is enough to say that he was thoroughly himself, therefore wonderfully funny; the authors have suited him with a character exactly suited to his eccentric talent, in the blustering, amorous, and withal chicken-hearted, major, and he makes the most of it. Mr. Collette, in the somewhat novel part, for him, of the senile baronet, was so natural that one quite fell in love with the courtly old gentleman, in spite of his inability to remember the "capital story" which was always in apparent readiness to illustrate every possible occasion. Miss Ritta was pretty and graceful, as usual; the rest of the dramatic personæ may be classed as respectable. The writing of the piece is good, sparkling, without being impossibly epigrammatic, and always concise and to the point; if Messrs. Bellamy and Romer can do more such work, they will prove valuable adjuncts to the ranks of dramatic authorship. The second act is decidedly the best in every way, but all three show talent of no ordinary kind.

The piece was preceded by that wildest and funniest of farces, "Cryptoconchoidisophonostoma," in which Mr. Collette once more proved himself to be the legitimate successor of Charles Mathews in patter parts. "Isaac of York" wound up the entertainment, and this versatile actor again took his share of the applause. It is rather a comfort once more to see a burlesque which depends for its success upon the powers of its performers, and not upon their personal charms.

Altogether it was a most delightful afternoon. But may it be permitted to enquire who is responsible for the black mail levied upon the audience? Sixpence a copy for the "programmes," i.e., in the language of mortal men, "play-bills," is rather a high price. Fortunately, they did not smell of some hairdressing abomination, as is too often the case.

WESTMINSTER PLAY.—The Adelphi of Terence will be performed by the Queen's scholars in the Dormitory as usual on the evenings of Thursday, December 13, Tuesday, 18th, and Thursday, 20th.

THE COSMOPOLITAN MASONIC CALENDAR, DIARY, AND POCKET-BOOK FOR 1878. (London: George Kenning).—An essential to all Masons; it is neatly bound in pocket-book form, and can be carried in the breast pocket with ease. The Craft will find it a comprehensive book of reference, containing list of lodges, chapters, K.T. encampments, conclaves, and grand councils. It will be found useful, too, as giving the names of officers in England and Wales, and Scotland, Ireland, Canada, British Columbia, United States, Central and South America, France, Germany, Italy, Spain, Portugal, Belgium, Denmark, Sweden, Norway, Greece, Turkey, the Netherlands, and Egypt; and information in regard to every Grand Masonic body throughout the Globe.—European Mail.

NOTES ON ART, &amp;c.

An Ethnographical Museum is to be formed in Paris from the collections made by various French scientific expeditions. Scientific and archaeological objects only will be exhibited, as all artistic treasures will go to the Louvre. In connection with the museum an ethnographical exhibition of collections from South America will be held at the Palais de l'Industrie from January 15 to March 1st, 1878.

BUTTER ANALYSIS.—A prize of 150 marks has just been awarded to Otto Helmer, F.C.S., Public Analyst for the Isle of Wight, and Arthur Angell, F.R.M.S., Public Analyst, county of Hants, for their essay on butter analysis. The award was made by Professor Heintz and Professor Knop, of Leipzig, examiners for the Pharmaceutical Association, Leipzig. Six essays were sent in for competition—two from Germany, one from Austria, one from Italy, and two from England.

The Herons in Richmond Park, which migrate during the summer months, says the Live Stock Journal, have returned to their winter quarters.

The Shakespeare Memorial Theatre at Stratford-upon-Avon, now in course of construction, is progressing satisfactorily, but the question of funds has once more come to the fore. The accompanying library and picture-gallery cannot be built unless £8000, be forthcoming, and of this sum Mr. C. E. Flower, who has already given the site for the memorial buildings, has promised £4000, if a like amount can be collected by the end of the year. The Mayor and Corporation accordingly appeal for donations, and are specially desirous to erect the gallery, as Mr. Graves, the well-known publisher, has bequeathed to it all his pictures of a Shakespearian character. Subscribers are to receive a steel engraving of Gainsborough's portrait of David Garrick, which was in the last Winter Exhibition Burlington House, the engraving being executed only for this purpose.

The Marquis of Bute has offered to build at his own expense, and to present to the University of Glasgow the Grand Hall of the new buildings, according to designs proposed by Sir Gilbert Scott, R.A. It is estimated that the building will cost from £70,000 to £80,000.

CLEOPATRA'S NEEDLE.—The Rev. Bouchier Wrey Savile, rector of Shillingford, writes:—"In The Times' report of the very interesting lecture delivered by Dr. Birch, the prince of English Egyptologists, on the subject of Cleopatra's Needle, there is an omission, as I venture with some diffidence to consider, which should be supplied—viz., that the said obelisk was erected by Pharaoh Thothmes III., the contemporary of Moses, for which the evidence is overwhelming. And further, that this Pharaoh is infamous for his endeavour to erase wherever he could the name of his distinguished sister, Queen Hatason or Hataseps, who so long ruled Egypt as Queen-regnant in her own right, and whose beautiful obelisk, which still stands amid the ruins of Thebes, bears the significant and suggestive title of 'Pharaoh's Daughter.'

The British Museum is to receive a collection of Armenian antiquities from the Province of Van, which are now in Mr. Layard's keeping at Constantinople.

The Relics of the "Victory," formerly preserved by the Duke of Clarence at Bushey, and which we mentioned some weeks ago, are to be exhibited in the Queen's Guard Room at Hampton Court Palace.

Prompt books prove sometimes an acceptable legacy. A well-known Liverpool manager lately paid Mrs. Charles Kean 100 guineas for the loan of the prompt-book of The Winter's Tale, as arranged by her late husband, and played at the Princess's Theatre.—Theatre.

The Centenary of the Death of Albrecht von Haller, the celebrated physiologist, is to be celebrated next month at Berne, Haller's birthplace. In Germany Haller is as much famed for his poems as for the scientific studies which gained him the title, "Father of Physiology."

The Late M. Gustave Brion, according to Mayfair, was in very reduced circumstances in Paris during his student days. A friend, meeting him at a Café, told him his coat was worn out at the elbow. "What does it matter?" replied Brion cheerfully; "talent, true talent, must come out somewhere."

The Transit of Mercury on the 6th of May next is to be observed by a special scientific expedition sent to San Francisco by the French Government. French astronomers are specially desirous to be represented, as their countryman, Pierre Gassendi, was the first person who succeeded in observing the transit of the planet. On November 7, 1631, Gassendi, then at the College de France in Paris, witnessed the passage by means of a camera obscura into which he introduced the solar rays through a hole cut in the shutters.

A new four-act drama, by Mr. Manuel, founded on a romantic story of the Rebellion of Monmouth in 1685, has been produced at the Britannia Theatre. The plot turns on the impersonation by a villain of the right heir, who being himself a fugitive from Sedgemoor, dares not denounce the impostor. In the end the false claimant is unmasked, and all ends prosperously. The chief parts were well sustained by Miss Brewer, Mr. Newbound, Mr. Drayton, and Mr. Reynolds. The piece was received with marked favour by a very crowded audience.

Constitutions of the Ancient Fraternity of Free and Accepted Masons, containing the Charges, Regulations, E.A. Song, &c. A copy should be in the possession of every brother. It may be obtained for 2s. at the office of the Freemason, or will be sent post free to any part of the United Kingdom on receipt of twenty-five penny stamps. Address, Publisher, 198, Fleet-street, London.—ADVT.

The Freemason,

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 1, 1877.

OUR GRAND LODGE AND THE GRAND ORIENT OF FRANCE.

By the agenda paper it will be seen that this subject will be alluded to at the next Quarterly Communication from the chair. We rejoice that this is so, and feel strongly that the course proposed is the best under the circumstances that can be adopted. We are quite persuaded, that when the matter is brought before our Grand Lodge, it will be discussed with that gravity and fairness, that true Masonic spirit, which always distinguish Grand Lodge, and which not only are demanded by the pressing importance of the special circumstances of the case, but by the larger claims even, and unchanging responsibilities of, Cosmopolitan Freemasonry.

THE THEISTIC POSITION OF FREEMASONRY.

Our contemporary, the Hull Packet, invites us to explain ourselves on this head, and we gladly respond to the invitation. The remarks of the Hull Packet are based upon an article in the Freemans' Journal, which we have not seen, and therefore we are dealing with "text and context" on faith, assuming that our contemporary, which we doubt not, has quoted the Freemans' Journal correctly. We leave out a great many meaningless and unrighteous invectives against the Order, which we ascribe to "invincible ignorance," and take the main point of accusation, that the God of the Freemason is "not the God of the Christian religion," and that while admitting Freemasons do recognise a "Supreme Being," the "Supreme Architect," it is a very "vague and shadowy profession, in which a Freemason is asked to assert his belief in the "Divine Existence." Now, first of all, we beg to say, that as Freemasons, we are always taught to treat the name of God with the greatest reverence, and we deplore the irreverent manner in which that Sacred Name is invoked, amid discussions which are useless, and controversies which are dangerous often to faith and morals. But in reply to so sweeping a charge we beg to say that never was a greater mistake ever made by any writer on the subject. Freemasons are taught to look up and to trust in an ever-present God, Most High, Personal, Living, Creating, Preserving, and Saving, the moral Governor of mankind, the future Judge of living and dead. They are bid to implore His aid in all their lawful undertakings, His presence in all their peaceful assemblies, His protection, His approval, and His blessing in all their passage through this sublunary scene. And not only this, but His Inspired Word is the distinguishing ornament of every lodge. Without it no Anglo-Saxon lodge is perfect or can work at all, and they are bid emphatically to seriously contemplate the "Volume of the Sacred Law," and to consider it as the "unerring standard of truth and justice," and "regulate their lives by the Divine precepts it contains." It is true that Freemasonry does not go further than this, nor can it go, inasmuch as it receives into its great brotherhood all who are not Atheists or libertines, all who accept fully the Fatherhood of God and the Brotherhood of man. But as far as it does go, its views are perfectly clear, correct, and orthodox. It does not enter into the question of Christian controversy, or the conflicting beliefs of any body of religionists, because were it to do so, its very foundation would be undermined, and its cosmopolitan character destroyed. Freemasonry, whether rightly or wrongly, seeks to make a great union all over the world, for the purpose of humanitarian sympathy, relief, and good will, in which all who recognize a common Heavenly Father, a Divine Ruler of the world and of man, can harmoniously take part. And who amid the conflicting creeds of Christendom, and the diverging religious of mankind, can venture dogmatically to say that Freemasonry is wrong? But the Freemans' Journal, which is a Roman Catholic journal, speaks according to its own Ultramontane belief, and if it is to say anything, it has the right to make the best of a case, even if that case be, in our opinion, "a bad bargain." For let us go back a little! The whole Roman Catholic opposition is based on the Bull of Pope Clement XII, of 1738. That Bull is so peculiar a Bull, (not an Irish Bull at all), that we beg to call the attention of our esteemed confrere the Editor to it. The grounds of condemnation of that Bull are distinctly said to be the meeting of persons, "cujuscumque religionis et sectæ homines." And what is the punishment to follow? Handing over the Freemasons to the Inquisition and the secular arm, the demolition of the house in which the lodge was held, and the fine and punishment of the proprietor. On this Bull all the subsequent Bulls of Benedict, Leo, Pius VII., and the allocution of Pius IX. are built up, and we invite the worthy editor of the Freemans' Journal honestly to meet these facts of the case, and to tell us if they consort with his or our common notion of legality, justice, religious liberty, and conscientious conviction. It is this very peculiarity of Freemasonry which so appears to irritate many of our esteemed Roman Catholic fellow citizens and ardent religionists of various denominations, but there is nothing in it really to disquiet the conscience of the most sensitive, or to alarm the orthodoxy of the most orthodox. Freemasonry is simply a religious, moral, peaceful sodality, which avoiding controversies, and deprecating sectarian animosities, seeks to advance in the world the glory of God and the welfare of man. If it is wrong in being so world-wide and so universal in scope, it surely is on the right side, and takes a manly course in avoiding any of those limitations of thought, which the progress of Christianity seems to have thrown upon conflicting bodies of Christians themselves. It bases all its religious avowals on the Divinity of all prayers. Further than that it does not dogmatize, more than that, it does not profess to teach; and until that sublime form of words is proved to be erroneous, or insufficient, Freemasonry may well be pardoned if it rests its language of prayer and its utterance of goodwill, on the safest and best of all teaching. But while Freemasonry is thus liberal and tolerant, it openly raises its voice against atheistical formulæ or nihilistic subtleties. And therefore, while it condemns the French Grand Orient, and upholds the recent resolution of the Irish Grand Lodge, it openly declares its loyal adherence in a spirit of the truest toleration, to its own distinct Theistic teaching. Without expressing any opinion or passing any condemnation on those who prefer a limited, and even Christian view of Freemasonry to the wider circle of Craft teaching, English Freemasonry once more repeats its adherence to the principles promulgated at the Union in 1813, which are, as we all know, Cosmopolitan, as opposed to merely national, universal, as opposed to merely sectional.

THE GRAND ORIENT OF ROME.

We greatly rejoice to be able to give to the Craft the gratifying assurance, on the authority of our excellent and distinguished Bro. J. C. Parkinson, that the Grand Orient of Rome has not adopted the most mischievous and most un-Masonic position of the Grand Orient of France. We are privileged to make use of his own words, than which none more satisfactory can be given, and to which we beg to call special attention, not only as an answer to our own question some time back, but as in reality a close to the discussion in our pages:—"I should not have the slightest hesitation in pledging myself, that the Grand Orient of Rome has not made any such lapse from true Masonic principles, as we are deploring in the case of the Grand Orient of France. I received the most positive assurance on this head from Signor Tamajo, the D.G.M., when I was in Rome last year, and besides, the symbolism and ritual are like our own, such as to render such a negation absolutely impossible." All Anglo-Saxon Freemasons will rejoice to receive such an assurance on such an authority, and to which we beg to call the serious attention of the Grand Orient of France, and of Bro. Desmons, who has stated just the contrary, in a recent and too famous report.

EXCLUSION OF THE HEBREWS IN GERMANY.

We are glad to note by the Agenda paper, that this subject is going to be brought before the next Quarterly Communication of Grand Lodge, and that in answer to 300 petitions our Grand Lodge will be invited to take immediate and proper action. We do not shut our eyes to some difficulties attendant, necessarily, on the course which it is suggested Grand Lodge and the Grand Master shall now pursue under the circumstances in respect of the independence of National Grand Lodges, and we should perhaps have been inclined to recommend another course, namely, the affirmation of the right of the Hebrew to admission, and the antagonism such exclusion of the Hebrew creates to the true principles of Universal Freemasonry. But we are quite sure that Grand Lodge will come to a right decision in the matter.

LITERARY GARBAGE.

We are just now inundated with a plethora of personality which threatens to undermine and degrade our English Press. If any one doubts our humble words, let them read a recent article in the Contemporary Review, which points out, in terms by no means too strong, how, at the very moment we write, the public taste is vitiated, and public morals are weakened, by the infusion into our weekly literature of the stale jokes of uneducated scandal, the off-scourings of the smoking room, the tittle-tattle of the clubs, and the personal antipathies and proclivities of brainless and enervated individuals. It has been said, and perhaps truly, that the real social state of any nation is best reflected by the literature which "pays," and the theatres which are attended; and if we were to judge of our national position in respect of morals, and manners, by these two tests, just now, we should have to confess, we fear, that the prospect before us would be alike most disheartening and depressing. In the literature of the press, the papers which are apparently most sought after, are those which pretend to impart fragrant scandals and to draw aside the curtains which properly close private life from our view; which seem bent on retailing the droppings from gin-palaces, and the last coarse joke of some "free-and-easy" or "coachman's club." We are to be told everything about everybody, what Royalty itself has said and done, even in most private life, what Lady Clacker has been about, what Lord Charles Piper has remarked, and what Tommy Tippetts has not achieved. For those who revel in the annals of "Low Life above Stairs," there are many weekly papers just now, which seem a sort of refuge for those dear, destitute young men of ours, who never think, never read, never do anything but smoke and nip, and spit, and bet, and which even are read with "gusto" by middle aged ladies and gentlemen, who seem always to be saying "militavi non sine gloria." To please some of our readers we give a free translation of our words. "We carried on the war with signal success." In our opinion nothing is so lamentable as this condition of a great class of society, settling down on the lees of a barbaric sensuousness, of a debasing and unrestrained effeminateness of habits, tastes, and feelings. But the evidences abound on every side, which serve to convince us, that that which best "pays," is most read, and even highly prized, is that style of literature which descends to the lowest source of scandal and ill living, repeats the vile anecdote, or the treacherous canard, and abounds in those edifying records of personal wrong-doing which seem to be "caviare" to countless gaping ganders and geese of both sexes, and all conditions. Under present circumstances neither private life nor the confidence of a club are exempt from these breaches of public and personal honour. Stories are repeated which some ingenious and ingenuous young gentleman has heard in the "Poluphloisboio Club," and straight away sends off to those immaculate journals, (being paid for his pains), which are named "Honour," "High Life," "Confidence," &c., &c., and which duly edify those countless "gobemouches," who are weak enough to buy and still weaker to read such "garbage" and such rubbish. Let none be offended at our plain speaking. As regards our theatres, while we make some exceptions, we regret that many pieces ever see the light, much less ever are played on our English boards. The true end of the theatre, as we hold it, is to amuse, to inform, to instruct, to impress, to satirize the amiable weaknesses and vanity of each passing age, and we always grieve when we behold the English stage reduced, in order to secure attendance and applause, to pander to a relaxed code of morals, and to pourtray in inflammatory language, not the wickedness, but the palliations of vice; to use words which bring a blush to the cheek of innocence, and undermine, while they contaminate, the higher sentiments of virtue. But we forbear for the present to dwell on this topic, which deserves to be treated by itself, since we are among those who have always seen, as Dr. Johnson saw, the actual good of the stage, amid no doubt many deteriorating influences and tendencies. If we are wrong, we are content to be in error with that stout old moralist. We have been led into these remarks by the accumulating testimony before us to the extent of this evil of personal attack and scandal, affecting the press. We would say to all, especially brother Masons who allow themselves on any grounds whatever, to descend to the vulgar use of personality and calumny, the anonymous letter, or the covert innuendo, that such proceedings are an absolute degradation to them as men and Masons, an utter burlesque on every principle of Masonic profession. The brother who, for causes of private "pique," or personal jealousy, attacks another, brother behind his back, "willing to wound but yet afraid to strike," is the most contemptible of men, nay of reptiles, and we beg to commend to his very serious attention, for his improvement and edification, some little words of our immortal brother and bard, from that noble play "Othello," with which we desire respectfully to conclude this, our earnest deliverance:—

"A slippery and subtle knave; a finder out of occasions; that has an eye can stamp and counterfeit advantages, though true advantage never present itself: a devilish knave."

KNIGHT TEMPLARS OF IRELAND.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

As my esteemed and valued R.W. Bro. W. J. Hughan calls on me by the article in your paper of 17th inst. to furnish you with a copy of the charter granted by Mother Kilwinning on the 8th of October, 1779, to "The High Knight Templars of Ireland, Kilwinning Lodge," I have great pleasure in not only sending you at foot a copy of that charter, but also of the petition, praying Mother Kilwinning to grant that charter. Some time since I compared both of these with the originals.

It will be at once seen that the petition only prayed for authority to work Craft Masonry, and that the charter only confers power to work the Craft degrees, and that the working of Knight Templary under it was unauthorised.

The original minute-book of this High Knight Templars of Ireland Kilwinning Lodge is in my possession, and shows that not only the Craft degrees were worked under this charter, but also those of Knight Templary, Excellent, Super-Excellent, "Royal Arch," "Prince Masonry," and "Knight of Red Cross," were worked assumedly (as is stated in the circular of 30th Jan., 1806) by virtue of this charter of 8th October, 1779.

Holding as I do the high honour of honorary membership of Mother Kilwinning, and having had the great pleasure of reading her original records and minute-books from the 11th day of December, 1642, up to the 14th of August, 1876, being nearly a period of 234 years, I can vouch from these invaluable records that Mother Kilwinning has never worked or sanctioned the working of any degrees save those of Craft Masonry.

I have long since written our valued and esteemed Ill. Bro. the Great Prior of Canada, promising him every Masonic information and assistance I can give him, as it is a real pleasure to have the honour of corresponding with such a true Mason as our Ill. brother.

I may also mention I am at present procuring for our

Ill. brother all the information I can as to Irish Knight Templary.

I remain, yours fraternally, JAMES H. NEILSON,
5, Upper Mount-street, Liverpool.

PETITION FOR CHAPTER.

To the Grand Master and Brethren of the Mother Lodge of Kilwinning.

Brethren,—Studious to follow Freemasonry on the justest principles of the Ancient Craft, and willing to derive an authority from the first source, a regular lodge of Free and Accepted Masons, held in Dublin, have been long desirous to obtain a charter from their esteemed brethren, the Ancient Lodge of Kilwinning, as they are fully satisfied of their just title of primogeniture. Anxiously solicitous after the attainment of this much desired object, but at a loss to whom to turn for advice, or where to apply, they count it a fortunate era their meeting with their much loved brother, George Cunningham Esq., whose friendship has pointed out a clue to lead them out of their labyrinth of doubt. Under his auspices, therefore, they apply for a charter from you to hold a lodge, to be called the High Knight Templars Lodge of Ireland, and hope ever to walk worthy of their vocation, and the high favour you will confer on them by granting it. We remain, with the greatest respect, wishing you the salutation of peace, love, and harmony, your truly affectionate brethren, HENRY WHEELER, Master.

PETER GRANT, S.W.
ROBERT COLVILLE, J.W.
RICHARD GANDEY, Sec.

Dublin, April, 1779

COPY OF CHARTER.

"We, Archibald, Earl of Eglintoun, Most Worshipful Grand Master of the Mother Lodge of Kilwinning, having taken into consideration the request of certain Masons in the City of Dublin, in Ireland, praying our authority to be formed into a regular Lodge or Society, being well-assured of their moral character, and of their inclination to promote the good of Masonry: We, with the consent of our Wardens and other brethren, do constitute and erect them into a regular lodge, by the name of the High Knight Templars of Ireland Kilwinning Lodge. And we grant them all powers and privileges which now are, or for any time past may have been, legally enjoyed by any other lodge of our creating; the same to be always holden of the Most Worshipful Grand Master of the Mother Lodge of Kilwinning and his successors in office, upon the yearly payment of one merk Scots money (13s) sterling, at the anniversary meeting of the Mother Lodge in December, and upon the attendance of one of their members, if required, at said meeting.

"Given at Kilwinning the 8th of October, 1779.

"ROBT. LAUGHLIN."

LODGES AT HOTELS.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,

I have noticed lately some letters in your good paper about holding Masonic Lodges at Hotels, and I cannot see why the hosts should be so unceremoniously snubbed as some of your correspondents have snubbed them.

What have they done?

I have a little experience in the Craft, and am obliged to express my opinion, that more hearty and sincere Masons than "Publicans" do not exist, and that as a body they have done as much for Masonry and our Charities as any other men.

Your correspondents must surely have met with some very objectionable "Pub," as he calls it. If so, why dub them as a rule?

I think it would be more courteous to our hosts if he would point out wherein they overstep their duties, and then call them to order. I mean the especial ones. We all have that privilege.

Few Masons, I think, will deny that the Hotel, Hostelry, or Inn, is a convenient place to hold a lodge. Solitary "Bethels" may be very good, in some parts of the country, some of whose members may prefer their good dinners at home, but I believe they, as a rule, would be all the better Masons after their occasional banquets together.

No place in my opinion supersedes a well managed Hotel.

Masonry is charity, in its highest sense, and good "refreshment after labour" certainly induces charity, and the best of refreshments can be had at good Hotels.

Yours fraternally, G. TIDCOMBE, JUN.
Abercorn Lodge, Stanmore.

LODGES OF INSTRUCTION v. PRECEPTORS.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I am surprised that your correspondent, G.M., as an old M.M., should ask such questions, although I have often heard of complaints respecting Preceptors, who are ignorant, conducting themselves without due respect to those brethren, who look to a Preceptor as dutiful scholars to a teacher, but the Preceptor should also look to his scholars as superior pupils.

In my experience I have always found a good preceptor to regulate his teaching according to the majority of the brethren.

As to the right of a Preceptor to make bye-laws, I never heard of such, and would be surprised if a Preceptor would do it.

Altering rituals is out of question altogether, and as to voting, no doubt he has a right, but what decent and proper Preceptor would do it, except advising. A preceptor ought to be neutral on every question when ritual and the Book of Constitutions is not concerned.

Yours fraternally,

THE GRAND ORIENT OF FRANCE AND FREEMASONRY.

To the Editor of the Scottish "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Right glad am I to find that the Grand Lodge of Ireland has spoken out so decisively on the question of the action of the Grand Orient of France in suppressing the Article I. of their Constitutions, "Belief in God." I fully agree with the leaders that have lately appeared in your columns, and had I been able to attend the last Quarterly Communication of Grand Lodge on November 5th, I would have tabled a motion to this effect: "That the Grand Secretary be instructed to communicate with the Grand Lodges of England and Ireland, and those in America recognised by the Grand Lodge of Scotland, to concert joint action on this subject." I am informed, on good authority, that the question will be taken up "aux sérieux" at the next quarterly meeting of the Grand Lodge of England in December. If the matter is not brought up at our next Quarterly Communication by a more influential brother, I myself will move a resolution in accordance with the deliverance of the Grand Lodges of England, Ireland, and America.

Fraternally yours,
GEO. R. HARRIOTT,
Prov. G.M. Wigton and Kirkcudbright.

To the Editor of the "Wells Journal."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In reference to a paragraph in your Journal of the 15th on this subject, I beg to observe that, doubtless not only will the Grand Lodges of England and Scotland, but also all other Masonic lodges, as strongly condemn and repudiate "La Grand L'Orient de France" for eliminating from its constitution all reference to the Deity, as the Grand Lodge of Ireland has resolved. In fact, the Grand Orient of France is no longer truly Masonic, but, on the contrary, a licensed infidel community—of Bradlaughism.

Whilst Masonry is the exemplar of free thought, and speech, and unsectarianism, it is essentially bounded between liberty and license by the indisputable recognition of God and of His (the Great Architect of the Universe) moral government. And to quote from the Freemason of the 3rd: "To obliterate this principle would be to unsettle the very foundations of morality, and religion, and society. We cannot tamper with this, nor allow any argument to be urged against it, because it is the very corner-stone of our organisation, which we accepted when we sought initiation, and which we have agreed that it is not in the power of any man or body of men to change."

To which I beg to add from the same source
A MASONIC ODE.

Almighty Sire, our Heavenly King,
Before whose sacred name we bend,
Accept the praises which we sing,
And to our humble prayer attend.
All hail, great Architect Divine,
This universal frame is Thine.

That sacred place where Three in One.
Comprised Thy comprehensive name,
And where the bright meridian sun,
Was soon Thy glory to proclaim.
All hail, great Architect Divine,
This universal frame is Thine.

On Thy Omnipotence we rest,
Secure of Thy protection here,
And hope hereafter to be blest,
When we have left this world of care.
All hail, great Architect Divine,
This universal frame is Thine.

Inspire us with Thy grace divine,
Thy sacred law our guide shall be,
To every good our hearts incline,
From every evil keep us free.
All hail, great Architect Divine,
This universal frame is Thine.

I am, Sir,
A LONDONER OF NO. 7 LODGE.

WHAT DOES IT ALL MEAN?

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I have received many copies of a pamphlet, called "Forewarned—Forearmed, a Great Masonic Mistake," or some nonsense to that effect, which appears to be an attack on the "Cosmopolitan Masonic Calendar," of your publisher, Bro. George Kenning.

Now whence does this rubbish emanate? Who is at the expense of circulating this petty attack? Masonically it seems a very questionable proceeding, and in the very worst taste conceivable.

Probably I have said more than enough on this subject, and am,

Yours fraternally,

A PROVINCIAL.

[We have had several copies forwarded to us and many letters on the subject. We advise our complaining correspondent to treat them as we do—laugh at them. It probably amuses some weak minds, and does the "Cosmo" no harm.—Ed.]

AN APPEAL.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Will you permit me through the valuable columns of the Freemason to draw the attention of your readers to a case that I think especially deserving of sympathy and support. It is that of a poor widow who for several years has had many sad reverses. Her husband, Bro. Jas. Batley, formerly a chemist of the Triangle, Kennington, was initiated in the Fortitude and Old Cumberland Lodge, No. 12, on the 8th November, 1852; he joined the United Pilgrims Lodge, No. 507, in March, 1854, and served the office of W.M. in the years 1859 and 1860. In 1862 he also served the office of Steward for the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys. It has been proposed that a sum of £50 should be collected to enable the widow to continue a small business, that bids fair to succeed, but is declining solely for want of means, failing which, she would soon be without a home, and in want; it is hoped the brethren will prevent this by sending their subscriptions, however small, to the undermentioned.

Subscriptions will be thankfully received by the following brethren.

Bro. S. M. Gardner, P.M. 1381, Kennington Cross.
Bro. T. P. Innous, 17, Beaufort-street, Chelsea, S.W.
Bro. W. H. Pannell, 180, No. 1, Guildhall Chambers.
The Proprietor of the Freemason, 198, Fleet-street, E.C.
I am, dear Sir and Brother, yours fraternally,
T. P. INNOUS.

A FEMININE REVOLUTION.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Are you aware that we are on the eve of a great social revolution? Though as a Freemason you will naturally be a lover of order, and an opponent so violent change, yet I write to-day to ask your sympathy on behalf of a great movement! You may be aware, or you may not, that for some time past there has been growing among my Hebrew sisters, a mighty sense of wrong.

We have for some time past been organizing a resistance to the present practice of female isolation in our synagogues, whereby we are confined to the galleries.

A facetious brother, who shall be nameless, says that as we are in the galleries, he does not see what we "gals" have to complain of, but on so serious a subject chaff is not only very unbecoming but is beside the question. We object to be considered any longer as an "inferior creation;" we decline to be told that we have "no souls;" we refuse to be considered not equal to the men in all that pertains to intellect, &c., and to be located either in latticed or open galleries.

"As if we were the parrots not they."

Our co-religionist paper, the Hebrew Leader of America, has these words:—"The Jewesses who attend Synagogue in London have turned the tables on Dr. Adler, and are now railing him in on the gallery question. The introduction of pews in our reform places of worship, at least settles that matter."

We hope, therefore, that the reform we advocate will speedily be conceded by our "Lords of the Creation."

No doubt in the Temple the women had places set apart for them, and were separated from the men, but is it necessary now to adhere to that state of things? The Christians in their earliest places of worship separated the men from the women, following the Jewish tradition, but that arrangement has happily died out, and is only now to be seen here and there, as a matter of archaeological curiosity, or ritualistic innovation.

I trust that you will give me a corner in your columns and permit me to advocate, not the cause of "oppressed nationalities," but of galled Jewish women, and believe me, yours sisterly always,
SUSANNAH.

GRUMBLING.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I saw in your contemporary, the Times, the following paragraph under "War Prices," which amused and astonished me not a little.

"Viator" writes, under date Hotel Brofft, Bucharest, Nov. 12:—"For the information of British travellers who may be passing this way I beg to enclose the original of a bill for a breakfast for two persons. We had some caviare, mayonnaise of Danube fish, a beefsteak, some fruit, and a bottle of wine; one of us had a taste of liqueur. The amount of the little bill is 42f. 25c. I may add that the market price of provisions is scarcely more than in time of peace." The following is the bill:—Caviare, 7f.; mayonnaise, 4f.; chateau-aux-truffes, 5f.; pain, 1f. 50c.; liqueur, 1f. 25c.; fromage, 2f.; fruit, 3f. 50c.; œuf, 2f.; Leoville, 16f.—42f. 25c.

Now I make bold to say, dear Sir and Brother, that such a complaint from any one is simply ridiculous, and that it is still more absurd, begging pardon of the Times to publish it, for the "addition," as the French term it, is after all, very moderate. "Viator" and his friend, (male or female, deponent knoweth not), order a most expensive breakfast, and then grumble at the bill, not at all an unusual occurrence. Caviare is a luxury, a mayonnaise is a luxury, beefsteak is a luxury, truffes is a luxury, fruit is a luxury, while 16 francs for a bottle of Leoville is clearly a luxury also. Even with the cheese and eggs and liqueur the breakfast is as expensive a breakfast as well can be, and 42 francs 25 centimes is by no means too much under the circumstances for two "portions." We note "Viator" says nothing about the inevitable "café-au-lait," which I presume he does not think it necessary to mention. Now every brother who has been abroad will agree with me, that you can get, at Paris for instance, even in the dearest cafés, the best of breakfasts for four francs, supposing, of course, that you are content with an Englishman's breakfast. But if people will ape foreign habits, to which they are not accustomed, and have caviare, mayonnaise, chateau-aux-truffes, cheese, fruit, liqueur, and Leoville at 16 francs, the best thing they can do is, having eaten and, let us trust, digested their breakfasts, to pay up manfully without regret, and above all, without grumbling.

War prices, indeed, my dear Sir and Brother! Let us have no more of such nonsense, and oblige, Yours fraternally, A TRAVELLING MAN.

THE BRITISH ORPHAN ASYLUM.

To The Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,

Will you kindly allow me to trespass on your space in order to bring before your readers the claims of the above charity on their support. The asylum was established in 1827 for the gratuitous maintenance and education of orphans of both sexes, and of all denominations, whose parents once moved in prosperity, and lived in any part of the British empire. The number of children at present in the establishment is over 200; they are the sons and daughters of clergymen, naval and military officers, solicitors, merchants, &c. The education imparted is of a practical Christian character, and many pupils have been enabled to regain the position once occupied by their parents. The present being the jubilee year of the institution, an effort is being made to raise a jubilee fund to enable the Board of Directors to enlarge their sphere of usefulness, and I am endeavouring to obtain a hundred guineas to add to this fund at the annual meeting in January next. I have a special reason for making this effort. My brother, William Charles Cooper, died on Whit-Monday last year, after a severe and protracted illness, the result of the exposure to which he was subjected when serving and benefitting his fellow-countrymen as a reporter in many parts of the kingdom. He left a widow and five children, the eldest only nine years old, entirely unprovided for, his illness having absorbed all his means. My sister-in-law is doing her best to provide for herself and little ones by lodging letting, but, as you can easily imagine, finds the care and other accompaniments of so large a family a serious drawback to her success. With a view, therefore, of assisting in the removal of this obstacle, a brother Mason who knew my brother, and who is well-known for his Christian liberality in such cases, has nominated my brother's eldest child, Catherine Jane Cooper, as a candidate for admission in the above-named asylum. After two elections we find that we shall require at least four hundred more votes than we can hope to obtain by canvassing to secure her election at Christmas; but if I can succeed in filling my subscription list of one hundred guineas, I shall be entitled under one of the rules (the 47th) to the required number of votes on that occasion only. It is on this account that I appeal to my brother Masons, which I am sure will be readily accorded, for the care of the widow and fatherless, is one of our chief objects in bonding ourselves together. It is especially desirable that my niece should be successful at the forth-coming election, as my aged mother, by whom necessarily the greater part of the canvass has been conducted, is unable to continue it, on account of failing health and sight. Many of us have recently been attending thanksgiving services for the bounteous harvest with which we have been favoured, and for preservation from the horrors of a war into which it at one time seemed probable we might drift. Is it possible to conceive of a better way in which to show our gratitude to the Father of the Fatherless and the Husband of the Widow, than by doing our best to provide for those who are left desolate by the hand of death?

I am, dear Sir and Brother, yours fraternally,

E. SEYMOUR COOPER.

THE MONDE MACONNIQUE.

(Communiqué.)

In a recent number of the Monde Maçonique we find some remarks in respect of the Freemason, which are distinguished by that same want of courtesy and right feeling, which we feel bound to observe has characterised all the remarks of Bros. Caubet and Grimaux, since the controversy arose about that regrettable agitation which has culminated in the last vote of the Grand Orient of France.

But neither our dignity nor our Masonic principles permit us to indulge in rowdy language, in the utterance of childish intimidation or bullying, and therefore we pass over this second "bêtise," with the same contempt as we did a former one.

But as our Brethren Grimaux and Caubet are apparently very ignorant on certain topics, we think it our duty as good and charitable Freemasons to enlighten them, and we trust they will truly profit by our forgiving explanations, and make an "amende honorable."

1. Bro. Kenning has nothing to do with the literary articles of the Freemason. Though his spirited publisher and sole proprietor, he wisely leaves the editorship to the brother who is responsible to him and to thousands of readers, for the tone and temper of the articles in each weekly impression. Whether the views the Editor expresses please Bros. Grimaux and Caubert, matters in truth very little. They are written for Anglo-Saxon Masons, and seem to have found favour with them, as the opinions expressed in the Freemason have been practically endorsed by the Grand Lodge, and will probably be supported with all the authority of the Grand Lodge of England. Therefore, the blame of Bros. Caubert and Grimaux becomes praise to the Freemason.

2. Bro. Grimaux insinuates that the account of the tumultuous meeting of the last Grand Orient is not correct, though very jesuitically he does not venture to say so in express words. The expressions in the Freemason rest on the contemporary evidence of an eye-witness, Bro. Hubert, and the language of the Freemason is completely identical with that of the Chaine d'Union. If Bro. Grimaux will attack Bro. Hubert's testimony, on the ground of its incorrectness, we may probably, in the discussion, arrive at the exact truth. We prefer Bro. Hubert's authority to that of Bro. Grimaux.

3. Altogether the whole of the past and present discussion, the temper which has been manifested, and the susceptibilities which have been aroused, only serve to convince us, and all true-thinking English Freemasons, that the whole question is a political, not a Masonic movement, and one that seems to bring out the fatal reminiscences of a "reign of terror" the amenities of the "revolution" and the violence of the "Commune."

4. It is just because we object to the further degradation of French Freemasonry by the interested or the interfering, that we protest against proceedings which disgrace Cosmopolitan Freemasonry, and can only end in the utter collapse of the French Grand Orient itself. When it finds itself in a real position of complete "Isolation," it will then discern, let us hope not when it is "trop tard," who are its best friends, and above all, who are its real enemies.

THE FREEMASON AND DR. BEIGEL.

We have read the Friemaurer of Vienna, which is professedly an answer to our remarks on Dr. Beigel's unfortunate blunder, and disrespectful language to Bro. John Hervey, our esteemed Grand Secretary, but we find the article so utterly unworthy of Masonic consideration, that we cannot consent to take any further notice of it.

We have reason to believe that there is some personal feeling on the part of Bro. Dr. Beigel.

PROVINCIAL GRAND CHAPTER OF DORSET.

A special Grand Chapter was held at the Masonic Hall, Weymouth, on Friday, 23rd inst., for the purpose of installing the M.E. Comp. J. M. P. Montagu, of Downe Hall, Bridport, as P.G. Supt. The ceremony of the installation was under the presidency of the V. W. Comp. Captain N. G. Philips, G.S.N., acting for and on behalf of H.R.H. the First Grand Principal, assisted by M. E. Comps. H. C. Vernon, Past Grand Assistant-Soj. of England, P.G. Supt., Warwickshire; Lieut-Colonel Shadwell Clerk, and the Hon. R. W. H. Giddy, D.G.M. Africa, acting as Grand Director of Ceremonies; also by representatives of Grand Chapter, and many other distinguished Companions from various provinces, as well as from Dorset.

M.E. Comps. R. N. Howard, P.P.G.J.; and J. S. Webb, P.P.G.S.N.; were then respectively installed as P.G.H. and P.G.J. The Prov. G. Supt. next proceeded to appoint the other P.G. officers:—

W. Chick, P.Z. 417.....	Prov. G.S.E.
F. H. Tanner, P.Z. 622.....	Prov. G.S.N.
J. Jetsy, P.Z. 770.....	Prov. G.P.S.
F. W. Good, P.Z. 707.....	Prov. G. First A.S.
J. H. Boyd, Z. 137.....	Prov. G. Second A.S.
J. Jacob, P.Z. 170.....	Prov. G. Treas.
P. Hooper, Z. 170.....	Prov. G. Reg.
J. Hine, Z. 707.....	Prov. G.S.B.
R. Hansford, H. 707.....	Prov. G. St. B.
W. Smith, P.Z. 170.....	Prov. G.D.C.
J. Whitehead Smith, Z. 622.....	Prov. G. Org.
F. Long.....	Prov. G. Jan.

At six o'clock the companions partook of an excellent banquet, provided by Comp. Dunn, of the Victoria Hotel, in the adjoining banqueting-room. The P.G. Supt. presided, and was supported by the officers of the Grand Chapter.

PROVINCIAL GRAND ENCAMPMENT OF DORSET.

On Thursday, the 15th ult., there was a large gathering of the Masonic Knights Templar, in the ball room of the Bull Hotel, Bridport, for the purpose of installing Sir Knt. J. M. P. Montagu, J.P. and D.L., as the head of Knights Templar in this county, the post having been rendered vacant by the death of Sir Knt. C. J. Vigne, J.P., of Westfield House, Bath, who for many years had ruled. Among the Sir Knights present were Sir Molyneux Hyde Nepean, Bart.; General Doherty, C.B.; H. C. Vernon, Lieut.-Col. S. Clarke, the Installing Officer; Capt. N. G. Philips, the Hon. R. W. H. Giddy, R. Costa, C. B. Roys, Dr. Woodforde, and many others.

After the ceremony the company adjourned to Downe Hall (Sir Knt. Montagu's residence), and were very hospitably entertained at a recherché dinner.

On the following day at the Masonic Hall, Weymouth, Sir Knt. Montagu was duly installed Provincial Grand Superintendent of the Royal Arch-Masons of this county —under patent issue by His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales—by Sir Knt. Capt. N. G. Philips, Groom of the Stole to Her Majesty the Queen. Sir Knt. R. N. Howard, was appointed H., and J. S. Webb, of Beaminster, appointed J. by the P.G. Superintendent.

In addition to most of those named above, a very numerous company of Masons attended from different parts of the country. An excellent repast was afterwards served in the new banqueting hall (which was inaugurated on this occasion), by Mr. Dunn, of the Victoria Hotel, Sir Knight N. Howard, kindly placed his residence (Greenhill House) at the disposal of Sir Knight Montagu and his friends from a distance. Sir Knight Montagu's task as the head of two such important and valuable bodies will not be rendered lighter by his succeeding two such men as Sir Knight C. J. Vigne, and the still deeply lamented Sir Knight J. Gundry, of the Hyde, Bridport. Sir Knight Montagu has ever taken great interest in these Masonic Orders; and we have no doubt will work assiduously and successfully on their behalf.

FREEMASONRY IN AUSTRALIA.

The annual installation meeting of the Yarra Yarra Lodge, No. 714, E.C., took place in the Freemasons' Hall, Ferrars-street, Emerald Hill, on Sept. 20th, when Bro. Wm. Marshall was installed (the first in the new hall) as Worshipful Master for the ensuing year. There were present a very large concourse of brethren of the lodge and many distinguished visitors. Bro. H. W. Lowry, P.P.G.S.W., as on every occasion, with but one exception, officiated as Installing Master. The W.M. having been placed in the chair, the following brethren were invested as the officers of the lodge:—C. Duncey, P.M.; T. Ford, S.W.; H. Harding, J.W.; J. Tribe, Treasurer; R. Mallinson, Secretary; A. Ford, Organist; J. Plummer, S.D.; — Macdonald, J.D.; W. Hinchcock, I.G.; G. Thomas, and R. Banks, Stewards; and L. Levy, Tyler. At the conclusion of the installation ceremony, which was conducted by Bro. H. W. Lowry in his well-known impressive and perfect manner, the brethren adjourned to the lower hall, where a banquet was provided by Bro. Bradley. After the usual loyal toasts had been acknowledged, "The Three G.M.'s, The D.P.G.M.'s, and their Officers" was proposed by the W.M., and acknowledged by Bro. W. F. Dixon, (W.M. of the Mariners' Lodge) on behalf of the English Constitution; Bro. A. Hart, P.M., for the Irish Constitution, and Bro. T. Ford for the Scotch Constitution. "The W.M. of the Yarra Yarra Lodge, Bro. W. Marshall," was then proposed in an eulogistic manner by Bro. P.M. Duncey. The W.M., in responding, acknowledged the high honour conferred upon him in electing him to the chair, and urged, as an incentive to the younger members of the lodge, to attend to their duties properly, as by which means they would in due course occupy the position he then held. He remarked that it was upon an installation night he was initiated, since which time he had filled every office in the lodge. The W.M. next proposed "The Installing Master," responded to by Bro. H. W. Lowry. This toast was followed by "The W.M.'s of Sister Lodges," responded to by Bro. Braim (Combermere) on behalf of himself and others present. "The Past Masters of the Yarra Yarra Lodge" was responded to by the Immediate P.M., Bro. Duncey, and Bro. E. Exon, the senior P.M. The last-named brother availed himself of the occasion to state that it would probably be the last installation of the Yarra Yarra Lodge he would be able to be present at, as the distance to where he was about to remove would preclude him attending. "The Visitors" was acknowledged by several brethren. "The Officers" was responded to by Bro. T. Ford, and Bro. W. Small, P.M., gave the "Last Toast." The evening's proceedings were enlivened by singing from Bros. Exon, P.M., D. Madden, A. Ford, Skinner, Bell (Combermere), and Banks.

THE HENRY MUGGERIDGE TESTIMONIAL.

At a Committee meeting held on Thursday, November 15th, at Bro. George Kenning's, The Masonic Rooms, Little Britain, it was proposed and carried that the subscription list for the Henry Muggeridge testimonial should be closed on the 31st of January, 1878.

Bro. Henry Muggeridge is Vice-Patron of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls; Vice-Patron of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys; and Vice-President, Royal Masonic Institution for Aged Freemasons and Widows of Freemasons.

The Committee respectfully ask for subscriptions from the brethren in order to make the testimonial suitable for a life service to Masonic Instruction.

PRESENTATION TO BRO. CAPTAIN MERCIER.

A presentation was recently made to Bro. Capt. Mercier, at his studio, Chatham-house, High-road, Knightsbridge, on the occasion of his resignation of the chairmanship of the Hospital Saturday Fund. Alderman Gould, of Kingston, Treasurer to the testimonial fund, made the presentation, observing that he, with the other subscribers to the fund (who included Lord Napier of Magdala and the Earl of Aberdeen) esteemed very highly the qualities of head and heart which Captain Mercier possessed. After referring to the national memorial to the King of the Belgians, to Captain Mercier's labours to establish a good understanding between England and France, and his exertions with respect to the Hospital Saturday subscriptions, and also in connection with the foundation of the Chelsea Club, he said he looked upon Captain Mercier as a public benefactor. Captain Mercier had exerted himself to establish a friendly feeling between England and neighbouring nations, and had, by calling upon the sympathies of the working classes, drawn from those classes about £20,000, which had been distributed among the hospitals of London. The Hospital Saturday Fund had now been placed upon a firm foundation, and the friends of Captain Mercier had taken the opportunity of his withdrawal from the chairmanship of the fund to present him with a testimonial. Mr. Gould then begged Captain Mercier's acceptance of a timepiece and a purse of sovereigns. The timepiece bore the inscription "Presented, together with a purse of sovereigns, as a mark of esteem and regard to Captain Charles Mercier, on his resigning the chair of the Hospital Saturday Fund." Dr. Mackenzie, Captain Bird, Mr. Bullen, (of the British Museum, Mr. George Robinson (of Manchester), Mr. Bridgwater, Mr. J. F. Wilson (of Cassell, Petter, and Galpin), and Captain H. Evans, also spoke in appreciation of Captain Mercier's character and public labours. Capt. Mercier thanked the subscribers and the committee, and said he should ever treasure this memento of their approval and should bequeath it to his son, to whom it would be a stimulus to do his utmost for the public weal.

STIRRING TIMES.

As hinted in our last, there has been music in the air during the past week, and the feathered innocents along the Sound have suffered accordingly. Those of our readers who might have been at Hunter's Point at an early hour last Wednesday might have seen the departure of an expedition designed to create a rumpus in Moriches. The party consisted of Sir Wm. A. Blanck, commander of the guns, Capt. George Arey, of rifle shooting fame, the Dispatch, with a pocket full of steel pens and a small barrel of ink, his Serene and Imperial Highness the L. H. A., and two members of his staff.

Boarding the train, of which a special car was reserved for their use, they fell into the hands of Conductor Bro. M. Ryan, whose courteous attention is hereby acknowledged. The ride offered but one suggestion, which is that the part of Long Island through which we passed must have been finished right after the Deluge, for a more forlorn, stand-still, loll-backward country it would be difficult to find within a similar distance of New York. Dilapidated dwellings, barns, and outhouses, fences tumbling down, stunted pines, scrub oak, and a sort of general "Oh, don't mention it," are the features of the landscape. However, arrived at Yaphank, where, taking stage over roads two centuries in advance of the rest of the country, we arrived in due time at the hospitable mansion of our host, Capt. Hugh Smith, where a generous refecton awaited on appetites sharpened by the journey. After a preliminary skirmish along the bay, to get things in order for the grand battle, we sought our respective tents.

At daybreak next morning all hands were summoned for the day's work, and proceeding to the yacht, we found his Imperial Highness already on deck, fully armed and in fatigue uniform, which indicated work ahead. The stores having been got on board, sail was made, and we started for the rendezvous, where, however, his Highness refused to land, on the ground that he intended to explore the bay and test the sailing qualities of the vessel. Having given him a good send off, the rest set to work preparing the decoys and other appliances recognised as indispensable to correct duck shooting, and soon there was lively work going on, many a promising bird suddenly stopping on his southern journey at the command of Commandant Blanck and his aids. In the course of an hour or two the vessel was descried in the offing with all sails set and colours flying, and as it was desirable to prevent the too close approach of this bird-frightening apparition, the Dispatch and two aids were directed to intercept the venerable dignitary and beg him to remain at the post he then occupied, laying off and on until lunch time. Before these orders could be conveyed, however, the vessel had approached near enough for his Highness to descry the decoy ducks, when he immediately gave orders to heave her to, which having been done, he commanded the brass swivel gun to be loaded with grape and canister, when, carefully training it on the decoys, which, it should be remarked, he mistook for living birds, he fired into them with his own venerable hands. Not a bird stirred, and supposing he had killed the entire flock, he exclaimed:

"There, you young fellers, when you want to shoot ducks, send for me."

He was about to order all hands to splice the main-brace in honour of the event, when the Dispatch ventured to inform him that the ducks he had assaulted were made of wood, and none the worse for the splendid gunnery he had just exhibited.

Of course no one dared to smile in his presence, but when he had with great dignity retired to his cabin and commenced an analysis of the lunch basket, there were suppressed "skremes of laughter" on deck, and a general disposition to examine the top hamper through a glass. Shortly afterward the wind, which had been light, veered to the south-east, and rapidly increased to a gale, accompanied with a heavy mist, and the short chopping waves that distinguish land-locked waters under such circumstances. And now the old hero rose to his normal grandeur. Orders issued from his speaking trumpet faster than they could be executed. "Brail up the spanker!" "In with your flying jib!" "Double reef the cat-heads!" "Furl the sheet anchor!" followed in rapid succession; but, despite the best efforts of the crew, we were fast being driven on a lee shore and a watery grave, when, fortunately, Lieut. Sol. Smith, our sailing master, with a wisdom and daring beyond his years, leaped on shore with a line and made it fast to a tree. Even then his Highness, like the boy on the burning deck, refused to desert the ship until he was made to understand by signals that the Widow Cliquot was at the mansion and desired an audience. Thus touched in a tender point, he left the vessel to its fate and waited upon the charming widow. We are happy in being able to add that the yacht was subsequently brought in safe and sound, and that the party reached New York with as many ducks as they could conveniently carry. All's well that ends well, and Commander Blanck, Capt. Arey, and the L. H. A. have our thanks for many courtesies.—New York Dispatch.

Obituary.

BRO. JAMES GOODALL.

The death of Bro. James Goodall, P.P.G. Reg., Eastern Division South Wales, P.M. 237, P.M. and Treas. 1573, Swansea, which took place in Swansea, on Friday, November 23rd, after a long and painful illness, has called forth most sincere expressions of regret from the brethren in Swansea and the province generally.

The brethren have sustained an irreparable loss in Bro. Goodall's death, as he was not only skilful in the performance of the various ceremonials of the lodge, but was always willing to give a helping hand to those less gifted than himself, and his zeal for Freemasonry, coupled with a courteous and amiable disposition attracted a large circle of friends, a fact amply demonstrated by the presence of nearly eighty brethren from the various lodges in the province, at his funeral, which took place on Wednesday, the 28th November.

Amongst the brethren present were Bros. M. Tennant, D.P.G.M., Eastern Division, South Wales; J. G. Hall, P.P.S.G.W., W.M. 1323; W. Whittington, P.P.S.G.W.; E. Rogers, P.J.G.W., P.M. 1573; J. Jones, P.G. Treas.; Evan Jones, P.G. Secretary; W. E. Brown, P.M. 237; S. Powell, P.M. 237; W. H. Tucker, P.M. 237 and 1573; J. S. Wooley, W.M. 237; J. Livingston, W.M. 1573; Evan Thomas, P.M. 679, and many brethren belonging to the lodges in Swansea.

Bro. Goodall has now gone to "his long home," "the undiscovered country from whose bourne no traveller returns," and his name will long be revered by those who were in the habit of meeting him, both in lodge and at business. "Requiescat in pace."

BRO. SUPERINTENDENT MOTT.

We have to record the death of Bro. Supt. Mott, of the A. Division of Police. Well known to all Londoners by the efficient performance of his duties, at all times, and in great emergencies, he was equally distinguished by his courtesy and kindness, and by many good qualities of head and heart. His place will be one difficult to fill, owing to his sterling worth and his personal knowledge of his important avocation, and his loss will be sincerely deplored by all members of the force, as well by his superiors as by his equals, and his subordinates.

Bro. Mott was a member of the St. Clement Danes Lodge (No. 1351), and leaves a large family to lament his irreparable loss.

On Wednesday the funeral of Bro. Mott took place at Brompton Cemetery. The obsequies, in accordance with the wish of the family of the deceased, were carried out privately, though the high esteem in which he was held drew together many, especially from the police ranks, to witness the last solemn rites. Few police officials came more prominently before the public than the late Bro. Mott, of whom it may be said that to have known him was to hold him in good favour. Placed at the head of the chief division of the police, which is brought into use in both town and country on important occasions, when great numbers of people assemble, his duty was oftentimes an onerous one. Now it would be at Epsom races that he would be met with, directing his staff of men over the Downs; next, perhaps, at a Royal review at Windsor-park; or, again, at a "Tichborne" demonstration in Hyde-park. On such occasions as these rare tact is required to carry out official duties, with an excited crowd in a measure concerned, and when a harsh, peremptory adherence to a hard-and-fast line, admitting not of the "give and take" principle, might result in a collision between the police and the public, or at least leave a rankling feeling of displeasure with the latter. But to Superintendent Mott was laid the credit of promoting most harmoniously kindly relations between the members of the force and the public, while not abating in any degree his reputation as an able disciplinarian; and his familiar figure at great public gatherings will be greatly missed in the future. The funeral procession started from the late residence of the deceased, at Kennington, shortly after twelve o'clock. It consisted simply of the hearse, three mourning carriages containing members of the deceased's family and friends and several private carriages. The cemetery was reached at about a quarter to two o'clock. About 100 members of the A Division, in uniform, had assembled, while there was a large number of other members of the Force, representing all grades, in plain clothes. These latter fell in immediately behind the carriages at the cemetery gates, the officers in uniform bringing up the rear. Several members of St. Clement's Danes Lodge (1351), followed, including the Treasurer, some of the Past Masters, and others of the brethren.

The procession proceeded to the chapel, into which the coffin was borne, and the first portion of the funeral service was proceeded with, Ilean Stanley being the officiating clergyman. Among those present were—Colonel Henderson, Colonel Pearson, Mr. Walker, district superintendent, Superintendents Williamson, Wiseman, Eccles, Digby, Galforth, Brennan, and many others. The short service in the sacred edifice ended, the coffin was conveyed to the family grave, where the interment took place. The deceased, who was a widower, was only 49 years of age, and he leaves a large family, including two daughters, one a well-known singer, and the other a pianist. It should be stated that one of the last wishes of the deceased was that his daughter's concert, appointed for the 7th inst., should take place, and it will be held on the day named.

THE FOUR MASONIC PUBLICATIONS.

It is doubtless desirable that every Mason should have a knowledge of the proceedings at the Quarterly Communications of Grand Lodge, and it is especially the duty of the Worshipful Master to be well posted up in such matters, and as there is no better means of obtaining such information than the columns of the Freemason, which gives verbatim reports of the Grand Lodge proceedings, and a full account of all the meetings of the Board of Benevolence, and the various Committees of our Great Masonic Charities, the Publisher feels justified in making this recommendation, with the full assurance that such an investment of a small portion of the lodge funds will be productive of beneficial results.

Swan borough and W. A. Tinney.

After the reading and confirmation of the minutes the Earl of Carnarvon invested the Rev. H. A. Pickard as Grand Chaplain, in the place of the Rev. W. Lake Onslow, deceased.

The Rev. H. A. Pickard having been saluted in ancient form,

The Earl of Carnarvon rose and said:—Brethren, it is not usual, nor is it, in my opinion, desirable that many motions should proceed direct from this chair, but there are some questions which affect the highest principles of the Craft, and which stir Masonry throughout the whole of the country. Such, from all that I can hear, is the question with which I have now to trouble you. I, for my own part, should have been glad to have avoided the necessity of calling your attention to this painful subject. There is an old saying that it is unwise to stir up sleeping lions; but, on the other hand, there are occasions when the danger and difficulty to our postponing all reference to these vital questions are such that we can neither in wisdom nor in conscience put them aside. (Hear, hear.) And when I look round and see this crowded Grand Lodge, unusually crowded at this time of the year, I feel that I should deeply misconstrue the feeling of the Craft, if I had not from this chair, and with all the authority which this chair lends to the occupant of it, if I had not brought this question under your notice. (Hear, hear.) Brethren, I do not desire to dwell at any length upon this matter, or to go into any details that are unnecessary for the purpose in hand. It is probably within the knowledge of every member of Grand Lodge that recently the Grand Orient of France, the Masonic representative body there, has made an alteration in the fundamental rules and principles by which French Masonry and all Masonry is bound together. (Hear, hear.) I have here a paper which states in parallel columns the changes which have recently been made. It is unnecessary to go into details; for my purpose it is quite sufficient to read the alteration which has been made in the first article of their constitution. Under the old system by which they have up to this time governed, their first article ran in these terms: "Masonry has for its principles the existence of God, the immortality of the soul, and 'la solidarité humaine,' which I hardly know how to translate, it is so vague a word to English apprehension; but I should say probably it means the unity and the indissolubility of the human race. I hardly know how else to put it. Now that has been altered in the following terms: "Masonry has for principle"—not belief in the existence of God, and the immortality of the soul; but "Masonry has for principle absolute freedom of conscience and la solidarité humaine." Therefore Grand Lodge will perceive that those two great fundamental principles the belief in a God and in the immortality of the soul have been struck out, and they have been replaced simply by an illimitable, unlimited freedom of conscience and by "la solidarité humaine," whatever that expression may mean. Now it may be a question, perhaps, with some minds, what the meaning of that change is. There has been much debate on this point in France, and some of those who have been parties to this change, have asserted that it means nothing whatever, except liberty of conscience. On the other hand that has not been the view that has been taken by a large portion of French Masonry. I understand that no less than seventy-six lodges in France have protested against this change (hear, hear), and thereby marked their opinion that the change was not one of names, but of principles, and, therefore, there is a painful separation of them from the Grand Lodge of their country. It is certain also, that many other Masonic bodies abroad have followed in this track. The Irish Grand Lodge has not hesitated to pass a resolution, clear and uncompromising in its language, rebuking and censuring the action which the Grand Orient has taken. (Hear, hear.) That has been the course which has been adopted, I believe, by other Masonic bodies abroad; and I fairly own myself that with every desire to take the most temperate view of the matter, I cannot, if words have any meaning in them, assign any other construction to this change, except it means this—they have blotted out as one of the necessary and essential fundamental principles of the Craft, the belief in God, and the immortality of the human soul. (Hear, hear.) To accept any other view seems to me to put the most forced construction upon language, and to give it what has been sometimes called a wholly non-natural sense. (Hear, hear.) Well, brethren, it is no light matter if it be so; it is no light matter for any body of men to make such a change as this—no light affair for them to declare that they have no belief in God, no belief in the immortality of the soul. But it is no light thing to discard in this way, the two principles which have been the two guiding leading principles of civilization, which have done more to raise and elevate man than any other two to which I can point, which in the darkest periods of the world have illuminated them, and from which every noble thought, and every generous action, have in turn sprung. (Hear.) But it becomes still more serious when a body which has for many years past carried these two principles in the forefront of their system, solemnly and deliberately, after long debate expunged and erased them from their form. We cannot blind ourselves I think to the gravity of the act, whatever our view may be. It is true it may be said that the French Grand Lodge is in one sense the only sufferer. They see themselves by this act isolated from every other Grand Lodge in civilized Europe (hear, hear): they see still more that by this act they have thrown discord and confusion into the midst of their own lodges; they see themselves a torn, lacerated, divided body. But it may be said that this concerns them alone. Brethren, if indeed this were a matter of internal discipline; if it were one of those questions of internal regulation which are the exclusive property of each national Grand Lodge it would be beside our duty, it would be impertinent in us to interfere with it (hear, hear). No matter what the grievance was, no matter what the loss was to them, we should have no right to interfere (hear, hear). But we do interfere on this broad ground—first of all, that they cannot so affect the leading principles of Masonry, the fundamental principles on which, through generations past—through centuries past, I will say—the Craft has acted—they cannot so affect them without affecting the whole of the Masonic body (hear, hear); and it is alike our right and our duty to raise our voice. But we must also remember that equally questions arise which touch us intimately. French Masons come over to this country; they ask for admittance to our lodges; and how can we admit them if the Masonry of France be not pure in its fundamental principles. (Hear, hear.) We do, ourselves, and we have, perhaps, the right to call this Grand Lodge the mother Grand Lodge of all Europe, we do ourselves—and the interests of the Craft which are committed to us a grievous wrong and injustice, if we are silent in this matter. (Hear, hear.) Brethren, I say that these questions to which I have alluded are really of the essence of Freemasonry. The history, the traditions of Masonry are based on them, are bound up in them. The symbols that we use, the charges which we deliver, the ceremonies in which we take part, if these principles are to be discarded they become meaningless, and worse than meaningless, they become almost offensive mockery (hear, hear), and I know nothing that would so justify the scurrilous taunts that have been thrown out against Freemasonry at times, and the calumnious misrepresentations which have been hurled against it, as it would be by sanctioning, even by silence, such a step as that which the Grand Orient of France has taken. (Applause.) Brethren, there is no narrowness, there is no illiberality in what I have just said. (Hear, hear.) The limits of Freemasonry are very wide; they have been designedly made wide. The Roman Catholic and the Protestant, the Churchman and the Dissenter, the Lutheran and the Calvinist, the Hebrew, all form part of our body. (Hear, hear.) We hold that our Masons should be bound by those considerations—religion (and there can be no religion without belief in God and in the immortality of the soul) religion, morality and obedience to the civil government of the country. These are the limits; they are very wide limits; it would be unwisdom in us to contract them; but it would be much worse than unwisdom—it would be destruction to the Order, if you were to enlarge them, for there would be nothing left by which we could stand (hear, hear); and I hold it is our bounden duty on an occasion like this to see that under no specious name or pretext a mere tide of unprovoked, uncalled for, unrequired revolutionary innovation should flow over our ancient system, and should obliterate those venerable landmarks of the Order which we have always maintained, and by which I trust we shall always stand in this country. Brethren, those that revolt against such a limit, so wide, so liberal as that which I have indicated, ask not for an emancipation from any artificial restraint; but they revolt against the highest law of human nature; that which has made man, that which is leading man to still higher destinies. Brethren, I said that there were many questions that would arise out of this unfortunate action, as I conceive it, of the Grand Orient of France; and the question which I have now to put to you is this—Practically what is it our duty to do, as the guardians of English Masonry, in this matter? Now in this as in so many cases there are, as it seems to me, three courses which may be taken; either you may leave the matter alone; but I should mis-read Grand Lodge—I should ill read the feeling of the Craft in this country, through its length and breadth, if I thought they were content to leave this matter alone (hear, hear); or secondly, we might follow the example of the Irish Grand Lodge, and express at once our unqualified regret and condemnation of the step which has been taken. I think that Grand Lodge would not be unjustified, unwarranted to proceed to such a course as that; but I would venture to put it to them that however clear they may be in their facts and however satisfied they may be of the view which I have put to them, and which I believe and trust represents their feelings—however satisfied they may be on these points, still it is safer, it is wiser to proceed in such a way as allow for no possible complaint being brought against us. Let there be no action which hereafter can be termed hot or precipitate; and therefore the course which I recommend to Grand Lodge is this—that a committee be appointed (and which I may say I have endeavoured to make as far as possible representative of the Grand Lodge and the Craft) and that they should enquire into the facts of the case; that they should then search all those ancient records which it may be desirable to examine; that they should deal with the matter in that spirit which a small body can alone deal with it, patiently, calmly, temperately; if need be, even obtain explanations of anything which may now be in doubt; and that they should then in proper time report to Grand Lodge the course which they recommend. Probably they will report to Grand Lodge only the course which Grand Lodge would of its own free feeling adopt; but Grand Lodge will ever have the satisfaction of feeling that in this matter and when the interests of other foreign Freemasons were at stake they rushed to no conclusion precipitately, but that they proceeded in the most dignified, the wisest and the quietest course. And on that point I would only say this, that Grand Lodge will remember that it is not merely the question of the Grand Orient and of English Freemasonry which is involved; but it is also in the interest of those French Masons, who have protested against this step, who have by their protest placed themselves in a peculiarly awkward and painful position as regards themselves, and for whom the greatest consideration at our hands is due. Brethren, there is only one other point in connection with this. I may be asked what is to be the course in the event of French Masons applying for admittance to the English Lodges whilst this committee is considering. I think the question is a natural one, and it admits, as it seems to me, of a perfectly simple answer. Provided that the certificate that that French Mason brings with him date previous to this declaration on the part of the Grand Orient, I should say there was no reason why he should not be admitted. I should say, by all means admit him freely and instantly. But if on the other hand (and it is after all a very unlikely contingency) a French Mason appear with a certificate bearing date subsequent to that declaration, then even though there may possibly be some hardship to individuals, it would be clearly, as it seems to me, our duty to act upon the principle of suspending this question until we are in a position to pronounce a judgment upon it. Brethren, under those circumstances I shall not go further into this matter. If you agree, as I trust you will, and I trust in such a case unanimously, to the appointment of this committee, when that Committee have made their report it will be full time to attack it in all its details. I will therefore propose to you at once that a committee be appointed for the purpose of enquiring and reporting to Grand Lodge on the enquiry into the recent circumstances, and the course which they recommended should be adopted.

The Earl of Limerick:—M.W.G.M., I believe it will be most in accordance with the feeling of Grand Lodge; after the able and exhaustive speech which has been made by you, if I do not go into this question, as by doing so I should merely repeat in a more feeble way what your Lordship has so ably said. I shall content myself therefore with formally seconding the motion which has been made from the chair.

Bro. John Symonds wished to know whether a report drawn up by Trevelyn, a firm believer in the Great Architect of the Universe, was in the Grand Secretary's office. It was desirable it should be seen, as the brethren would then have an opportunity of seeing the peculiar course of reasoning which had led the French Masons to come to this conclusion. He wished to add another word with reference to the certificates of French Masons. All the French certificates that he had seen had upon them "Au Nom du Grand Architecte de l'Univers." Where certificates with that upon them were presented, there could be no difficulty as to the date at which a French Mason was admitted to the Order. Certificates given after the recent decision of the Grand Orient would of course not bear the words he had referred to.

The Earl of Carnarvon said the answer to these questions were of course extremely simple. The document mentioned by Bro. Symonds would be laid before the committee; that was one of the points which they would have to arrange about. With regard to the certificates the only safe course would be to observe the actual date in figures upon the certificate, and not anything which was part of the form. His own belief was that during the short time the committee would be sitting inquiring into this matter, it was extremely unlikely that a French Mason whose certificate was issued subsequent to the recent action of Grand Orient would present himself to an English lodge.

His Lordship then put the motion, which was carried unanimously.

The Earl of Carnarvon: Brethren, I wish before reading the names of the members of the committee, just for the information of the Grand Lodge, to mention that the date on which this declaration of the Grand Orient of France was passed, was the 13th September, of this year. I will now proceed to read the names of the proposed committee. They have been drawn up with all care, but it is impossible that they can approximate in number those brethren I see before me. But in those names Grand Lodge will find that they are representative of the brethren, and that they will approach this subject with that amount of fairness and impartiality and calmness of judgment on the question on which all calmness should be applied. The committee I propose will consist of eleven members—myself, Lord Skelmerdale, Lord Leigh, Lord Tenterden, Lord Donoughmore, Bros. McIntyre, Havers, Monckton, Martyn, Levander, and Gould.

Bro. the Rev. J. Edmund Cox thought the committee was admirably constituted as a whole; but there were officers of Grand Lodge that might have been selected; he referred to the Grand Chaplains. No one could be more interested in the question than they; and he thought one or two of those brethren might be added to the committee. He would propose that the two Grand Chaplains be added.

Bro. C. W. Hutton, P.G.D., seconded the amendment.

Bro. the Rev. John Robbins, D.D., P.M. 1635, thought it the height of unfairness that any Grand Chaplain should be on the committee. As a clergyman of the Church of England he objected.

Another Rev. Bro., P.G.C. of Lord Carnarvon's province, begged to second the remark of Bro. Robbins. It would be a most unfortunate thing that clerical brethren should be on the committee to consider this question.

Bro. the Rev. C. W. Arnold, G.C., quite agreed with what had just been said. This was not a matter for a Grand Chaplain to interfere with in the slightest degree, because he considered it was one of the great principles upon which Freemasonry rested. Freemasonry was founded upon the Volume of the Sacred Law; and no brother could be initiated unless he was initiated upon that volume. He thought it far better that the Grand Chaplains should be exonerated from any such duty as serving on the committee. (Applause.)

Bro. the Rev. R. J. Lampour:—I must say that the Grand Chaplains at all events would be quite as competent to judge of the matter as any other brethren of the Order. I feel that if they were appointed they would be able to give as good an opinion as any brother. I don't see why Grand Chaplains should be applauded for giving way on this occasion, or because a brother suggests a Chaplain should be appointed on the committee the voice of Grand Lodge should be against him on that account. I think equality should be observed in this as in all other cases; and Grand Chaplains are equally competent to judge on this question as on others.

The Earl of Carnarvon: I think the general sense of Grand Lodge has been very fairly expressed. It is quite clear on the one hand that they value and greatly appreciate our Grand Chaplains. On the other hand we think it would be unfortunate to place them on this committee in such numbers as would imply a preponderating weight on a vote put to them, and, therefore, as far as I consider, the Grand Lodge sanctions this committee, which I believe fairly represents the feeling of Grand Lodge. I say in fairness, because I never like the idea of any misapprehension on any question that may arise. I ought to make Grand Lodge understand—which I am not quite sure they do at this moment—that Bro. Martyn, whom it is proposed to put on this committee, is a Deputy Provincial Grand Master, and a very distinguished Mason (hear, hear). Still he is a Past Grand Chaplain, and I do not think Grand Lodge would for a moment hold that they ought to disqualify him (hear, hear). The question, therefore, I have now to put to you is this "That these names constitute the committee."

The motion was carried mem. con.

Grand Secretary read the following letter from the Grand Secretary of the Grand Lodge of New Brunswick:—

Very Worshipful Sir and Brother,—

At the annual communication of the Grand Lodge of New Brunswick, held at the City of St. John, on the 27th Sept. inst., it was unanimously resolved that the fraternal sympathy and condolence of the Grand Lodge of the Ancient Free and Honorable Fraternity of Accepted Masons of New Brunswick be transmitted to Grand Lodge of England consequent on the death of the Earl of Shrewsbury, Prov. G.M. Staffordshire, and an eminent brother of the fraternity, under whose fostering care the noble charities of the Craft had increased, and whose memory is revered by his brethren in all quarters of the globe. By order of the Grand Lodge,

WM. F. BUNTING, G.S.

This letter was ordered to be received and entered on the minutes.

Bro. A. B. Cook rose to nominate the M.W.G.M. for the ensuing year. He said:—M.W. Pro Grand Master. I rise for the purpose of proposing the nomination of His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales for Grand Master for the ensuing year. This is a nomination which I feel sure will be acceptable to every member of the Craft, and which will require very few words from me to ensure it a cordial reception. It may be a matter of some regret to all of us that the numerous calls upon his time which our Royal Grand Master has, prevents his coming among us more frequently than he does; but I am sure you feel that although he is not present with us, still the well-being of the Craft is at all times in his thoughts. I think this year we have had very good proofs of this, for whenever there is something of more than ordinary importance the Most Worshipful Grand Master has in his own name put a notice of motion on the paper on the subject. I really do not think that I need detain you any longer on the subject. I simply express the wish and the unanimous feeling of every member of the Order, who desire to show His Royal Highness how much his services are at all times regarded by the Craft. I beg, therefore, to nominate His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales as Grand Master of Freemasons for the ensuing year. (Applause.)

The Earl of Carnarvon then appointed Bro. J. M. Clabon, P.G.D., President of the Board of Benevolence, and announced that Bro. Joshua Nunn, P.G.S.B., had been duly elected Senior Vice-President, and Bro. James Brett, P.G.P., Junior Vice-President.

The election of twelve P.M.'s to serve on the Lodge of Benevolence was then proceeded with, and scrutineers were appointed.

The following brethren were elected:

Bros. C. Atkins, P.M. 37; H. Bartlett, P.M. 147; C. P. Cobham, P.M. 957; J. Constable, P.M. 185; H. Dicketts, P.M. 25; H. Garrod, P.M. 749; C. F. Hogard, P.M. 205; H. C. Levander, P.M. 142; W. Mann, P.M. 186; O. Roberts, P.M. 188; G. Smith, P.M. 21.

The grants recommended by the Lodge of Benevolence, as given in the Freemason last week were afterwards confirmed, and the report of the Board of General Purposes was adopted.

After the appeals had been decided

Bro. the Rev. Robert J. Simpson, P.G. Chaplain, moved:—

1. That the 300 petitions now presented to Grand Lodge on what is commonly called "The German question" be received.

2. That whereas it appears from the Book of Constitutions of the Grand National Lodge of the Prussian States (called The Three Globes, held at Berlin) that those only who profess the Christian faith are eligible to become members of the Craft in any Lodge within its jurisdiction, this Grand Lodge, in the interests of Masonry, would respectfully suggest to the Grand Lodge aforesaid a reconsideration of the following section of the Book of Constitutions:—

In the jurisdiction of the Great National Mother Lodge (of The Three Globes) only those may be proposed for acceptance into Freemasonry who acknowledge Christian belief (Christlichen Glaubens) without distinction of sect.

It is necessary for the candidate to state, &c.

Clause 3.—His religion (Creed).

Clause 9.—Whether he has tried hitherto to fulfil his duties as a Christian citizen, and whether he will continue to do so.

Every brother who wishes to join a lodge of our Constitution must be of Christian faith, and able to give his honourable discharge from his former Lodge by a written discharge therefrom, &c., &c., &c., with a view to widening the basis on which German Masonry now stands, and bringing it into more complete and fraternal harmony with Freemasonry throughout the world.

3. That in order to give effect to the foregoing resolutions the M.W. Grand Master be respectfully requested to communicate them to the Grand Lodge of Germany in any manner His Royal Highness may deem most expedient.

Bro. the Rev. Robert Simpson, P.G. Chaplain, said that he should be saved a good deal of trouble, and be saving a good deal of patience of Grand Lodge, by at once stating that many of the arguments which had been advanced so forcibly and eloquently upon a kindred question by the Pro. Grand Master, applied to the question which he had now the honour to lay before the brethren. This was an age of extremes, and truth, as the great Greek philosopher said of the virtues, generally lay in the mean between those extremes. It was a significant and very remarkable fact that on the very same night should be discussed in Grand Lodge, two departures from the ancient landmarks of Freemasonry in exactly opposite directions, the one taking from that Masonry which we believed to exist within it, and the other attempting to contract its principles by excluding a large body of men. In 1841 Bro. Behrend, who was initiated in the Lodge of Joppa, went to Germany and presented himself at a German lodge. He was refused admission on the ground that he was not a Christian. Subsequently Bro. Faudel, well known as a Past Grand Officer of the Grand Lodge of England, and another brother, who was present to-night (Bro. Hutton) taking a very great interest in this question, went to Germany and knocked at the door in order to gain admittance. They were met by the question "are you a Christian," and they declined to answer. Lord Zetland when the matter was brought before him said that if the German lodges refused to recognise an English certificate presented by whomsoever it might be, provided he was a good and worthy man, he (the Grand Master), should feel called on to withdraw his representative from the Grand Lodge of Berlin, and however pleased he might be to see the Chevalier who was here as a visitor to Grand Lodge, under such circumstances he could not receive him in his representative capacity. In consequence of that action was taken in Germany, and in the year 1872, a letter was read by Grand Lodge of England upon the subject from the Royal York Lodge of Friendship, and of the three Grand Lodges of Germany, to the effect that revision of the Book of Constitutions of those lodges having taken place nine years before, a new revision was made in the present year, and the question of the initiation of Jews was again deliberated. The Secretary of those lodges said he was happy to announce that the Royal York Lodge was now receiving Jews. The letter concluded in very fraternal terms. Now they could not believe that Masons of the other two Grand Lodges of Germany would be so utterly different in principle and temperament as not to consider a subject which was favourably considered by the other lodges. He would therefore say that in consequence of representations made to him within the last ten or twelve months that he ventured to anticipate those remarks which might be made, by saying that he did not propose to interfere with, or dictate to the Grand Lodges of Germany, but that it was desirable to hold out the right hand of fellowship in Germany to those to whom he had held it. We had a right to believe that Masonry was not like the nations, unhappily divided, but that it boasted to be one brotherhood throughout the world. If we were to take the analogy of a single family to which Freemasonry should belong—could it be an interference if a brother suggested in the kindest and most courteous manner that such and such a thing was likely to create a family feud? He could not for a moment conceive how it could be supposed if Masons were true Masons that such an intervention could be construed into an interference. In addition to that he might say we had one of the great Grand Lodges of Germany setting this example, and he doubted not that many Masons connected with the Grand Lodge, as well as with other Grand Lodges, would hail this measure as a means by which their hands would be strengthened, and instead of looking upon it as an interference would regard it as giving power to their great cause. In Germany there was a large number of persons of the Jewish faith—good respectable citizens, held in high esteem by their friends, and also in England they were held in high esteem, and many of them held some of the most elevated positions in the land. If that was the case it was not only an indignity to Jewish subjects to be excluded from lodges, but it was a matter of great regret to those who were of the same race and religion in this land to feel that they were excluded from the privilege abroad which as men and as Masons these brethren possessed here. He could not but feel as if the old definition of sympathy was correct—that if one member suffered all the members suffered with it; and if one member rejoiced all the members rejoiced, it ought to apply to brethren of Freemasonry throughout the world. He would put a case—a brother went to Germany to reside, and wished to become a joining member of a German lodge. He was told that he could not be a joining member, but might be a subscribing member, or a visitor without the power to vote. In that case he was only tolerated, not taken by the hand as a brother standing upon regular ground. If he (Bro. Simpson) was in such a position he should not trouble lodges of Germany much with his presence. It was perfectly true that the Grand Lodge of England certificate might be now received in Germany, but it was equally true that it did not admit even those Masons who held it to equal privileges of the Masons of Germany; and in the two jurisdictions to which he had alluded men were not permitted to be initiated who did not hold the Christian faith. They had heard much that evening of what Freemasonry was or ought to be, and if he had learned anything of Freemasonry in time past he had always believed that looking on the one side and the other that the five great landmarks were alone to be held in belief in the great God and the Architect of the Universe; belief in the immortality of the Soul; and on the other morality and the practice of charity; and he believed as a beam of light between both worlds and the mighty power of prayer. Anything short of this, and anything beyond this was not genuine Freemasonry, and therefore he thought all had a right to appeal to the Grand Orient of France to take measures in reference to what they had done; and he thought we were equally learned, though in a different direction, to act in a much milder and kinder way in regard to the step which excluded thousands of worthy and good men from the Order. If there was one section of men connected with Freemasonry more than another with whom he ventured to say we should have strong sympathy it was the men of that ancient race who had engraved their history upon the annals of time, whose old writings were an ornament to literature, whose great names sprang from mighty kings; whose traditions and associations were such that before them those of modern days "paled them in effectual fires;" above all, these men, whose writings, whose associations, whose words were continually associated, and indissolubly entwined with the traditions, symbols, ritual and literature of Freemasonry, that these men should not be excluded from any privilege of Freemasonry in any part of the world.

Bro. C. W. Hutton in seconding the motion said, that in 1846 Bro. Faudel and he when this question was mooted, and the present Emperor of Germany was Master of the German Grand Lodges, put the matter to the test by going to Germany and presented themselves with their certificates to the lodge. They were asked individually if they were Christians, and individually they declined to answer, considering the question anti-Masonic. He had hoped that from that time the barrier was broken down, but it had come up again the last three or four years. It was a stigma to the Craft in Germany, a stigma to the nation which had shut up the banner of Ultramontanism which was attempted to be unfurled before them, a stigma to an intelligent race whose doctrines were founded upon the Bible. Let the brethren see what Freemasonry was. He thought Grand Lodge should exercise its utmost power to shew the brethren of Germany that they were wrong in refusing admission to Jews. He hoped that a representation made to them would lead to a revision of their Constitution in 1881.

Lord Tenterden opposed the motion. In 1740 the Lodge of the Three Globes was established as a Christian lodge. It was not a lodge for the whole of Germany; it was a particular system of Freemasonry based upon Christian principles. Questions whether the constitutions could be altered were raised in 1766, 1783, 1808, 1844, and 1849; but the feeling always seemed to have been that the Masons of that lodge were meeting under a Christian system of Masonry, and they wished to adhere to and maintain that particular form of ritual. In 1868 it was again considered, and the conclusion came to was that they had always been a Christian body, and they would be departing from their ancient landmarks if they altered it. He moved an amendment to Bro. Simpson's motion.

Bro. Erasmus Wilson seconded the amendment.

The Rev. R. P. Bent, P.G.C., said that Swedish Freemasonry was on the same footing as German Freemasonry, and His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales was made a Freemason under the Swedish Constitutions.

Bro. James Mason objected to enforcing on German Grand Lodges what English Freemasons thought they should do.

Bro. Israel Abrahams, P.M. 188, spoke in favour of the motion.

The Earl of Limerick supported the amendment and said that the lodge of the Three Globes were adhering to their ancient constitutions. He thought Grand Lodge of England would hesitate to take the step proposed, and would leave it to be worked out by the great example which Grand Lodge of England set. All who presented English certificates to German Lodges were admitted as visitors, although they could not be joining members.

Bro. S. V. Abraham said he had taken great interest in this question. The Jewish brethren did not bring this matter before Grand Lodge as a grievance to Jews alone. They denied that it was a question of Jew and Gentile; they wished it considered only as a question of a Masonic, and purely Masonic character. Thinking it advisable that the German Constitutions should be revised they came at once to the fountain-head to suggest the alteration; they came to a body whose head was the head of the country. By placing the matter in such hands they considered they were doing right. Truly and Masonically had they brought the question forward, and not from any party feeling.

Bro. McIntyre, Grand Registrar, opposed the motion.

Bro. Simpson having replied,

The Earl of Carnarvon said he should not think it necessary to say anything at all, except this, that as this was a question on which the principles of Freemasonry had been much invoked it would be perhaps unsatisfactory to Grand Lodge if he put it to the vote without the expression, however slight, of his own opinion. He need hardly tell the brethren that so far as his own opinion went, he regretted the course which the German Grand Lodge of the Three Globes had taken. Looking at the point as he was bound to do, as an English Freemason, he should have been glad if they could have accepted the view of the principles by which they had been guided, if indeed this was a case as some of the speakers had put it, absolutely within the jurisdiction of Grand Lodge of England, he should not for a moment hesitate to endorse everything Bro. Simpson had said, but of course it was his (the Earl of Carnarvon's) duty to put it to the brethren in the most deliberate manner he could; and the conclusion to which he was carried after listening to this discussion was, that this Grand Lodge should be careful and cautious, very cautious in accepting such a motion as this. He did not care to go through all the arguments which had been used on either side, but the brethren must remember that there was extreme force in what Bro. McIntyre, the Grand Registrar, had said, that we could not take up our position on the same ground that we had occupied with regard to the Grand Orient of France. That body made a distinct and startling innovation. The Grand Lodge of the Three Globes, whether they be right or whether they be wrong, were simply adhering to the course of precedent they had followed for more than a century. In the same way we thought we must bear in mind that in coming to a vote on this question we really were not very familiar with the details of it. Much that the Grand Senior Warden (Lord Tenterden), had told them was new, he ventured to say, to almost everybody present, and that of itself should inform them that they were treading on rather delicate ground, and that if under the impulse of a right feeling, in which he (Lord Carnarvon) entirely went along with the brethren, (and he wished to do full justice to the extremely fair, liberal, temperate, and Masonic manner and language in which the question had been discussed by all those of the Jewish brethren who had taken part in it), still he must say they were treading on very delicate ground, and if they were inadvertently to make a mistake, Grand Lodge would find itself in a very difficult position. It was always possible hereafter, after full explanation and enquiry to proceed to a decision based upon sounder conclusions, but if upon imperfect knowledge and without full cognizance of the details they proceeded on a hasty conclusion, they placed themselves in a position which they might bitterly regret and which might lead to very great inconvenience. (Hear, hear). He wished for his own part that the mover of the motion should withdraw it. They would all have stood in a better position on the one hand, and the Jewish race would not have been at all prejudiced, they would rather have gained by the moderation which they had exhibited, and Grand Lodge would have been saved the risk of committing a serious blunder. He would fairly and frankly own to Grand Lodge that he doubted whether they were not exceeding their authority in making this recommendation to the German Grand Lodge of the Three Globes; and if this were so, if they really were travelling out of their own authority, if they were interfering in that which could upon argument be sustained as a matter of fair internal regulation on the part of that German Grand Lodge, then they might place themselves in a position which would be a matter, to say the least, of very great regret. Grand Lodge lastly must bear in mind: if they agreed to this resolution and requested H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, the Grand Master, to convey a resolution to the German Grand Lodge, and the Emperor of Germany as the head of that Grand Lodge, which could not be sustained in argument, which on argument might turn out to be a matter of internal regulation, this Grand Lodge placed its illustrious Grand Master in a position, he might say in a predicament, that they certainly could never intend, which it would be most painful to him to occupy, and from which he (Lord Carnarvon) frankly owned he did not see how the Prince of Wales could extricate himself satisfactorily. He put it to Grand Lodge to pause well. They had waited for 140 years; they might surely afford to wait for three months longer. (Hear, hear.) There could be no error in that, but there might be a great error in hurrying to a decision that evening. He was sure he was giving Grand Lodge sound and seasonable counsel to which no man could take exception, and which was for the comfort and satisfaction of all. If Bro. Simpson, would not withdraw the whole of his motion he would suggest that he should only retain the first part of it "That the 300 petitions now presented to Grand Lodge on what is commonly called 'The German question' be received."

Bro. Simpson assented to this course, and the remaining portions of the motion having been withdrawn No. 1 was put to the brethren and carried unanimously.

Grand Lodge was then closed in due form.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

NEPTUNE LODGE (No. 22).—The regular November meeting of this famous old lodge was held at the Guildhall Tavern, on Thursday week, the presiding officer being Bro. E. F. Storr, W.M. The business which was transacted was passing Bro. Cutting to the Second Degree, and initiating into Masonry Mr. A. F. Austen and Mr. E. R. Curtice. At the completion of this work the brethren unanimously elected Bro. Phythian, S.W., as the W.M. of the lodge; re-elected Bro. Isaac Wilcox, P.M., as Treasurer; elected the Audit Committee; on the motion of the Worshipful Master voted £10 to the "Henry Muggerside Testimonial Fund"; voted also a P.M.'s jewel to Bro. Storr, W.M.; and made a donation of five pounds to a distressed brother, and five pounds to his wife and family. Bro. Phythian undertook the office of Steward for the next festival of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution for Girls; and the W.M. gave notice of motion for next meeting that ten guineas should be voted to each of the three Masonic Institutions. After the transaction of some other business the lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to banquet. Among the brethren present were Past Masters White, Harcourt, Batty, Nead, Gray, Eames, and Wilcox, and visitors Albert Storr, 1658; Thos. Kitching, 435; J. Reinhardt, 23; H. Massey, 619 (Freemason); Sir J. Bennett, 1; A. S. Swaine, 73, (as guests of the Worshipful Master); and Alex. Crawford, 738. After banquet, and the honouring of the formal toasts, Bro. Isaac Wilcox, P.M., Treasurer, proposed "The W.M.," and in doing so said it was not the first time he had had the same honour. It was with much pleasure he did it, because he knew, as the brethren knew, that Bro. Storr had exerted himself to the utmost during his year of office to satisfy the brethren. As far as he, as an old P.M., could judge, speaking from many years' experience, the W.M. had conducted himself in a manner which redounded very much to his honour, and to the credit of the Neptune Lodge, which he trusted would maintain its good name and standing. It was acknowledged to be one of the best working lodges in the Craft, and there was nothing more gratifying to the P.M.'s than to find the younger brethren aspire to the position of W.M., and endeavour to qualify themselves for the office. Many years since he passed the chair, and it was very pleasing to find that when there was work to do in the lodge the W.M. whom the brethren had selected was always able to do it, and he always did it in a creditable manner. He repeated that the W.M. had exerted himself to the utmost on behalf of the lodge; he was a very energetic Mason, as all good Masons were; and the brethren had seen that evening, by the way in which he had done the working of the ceremonies, and brought forward his different motions, with what true Masonic feeling he was actuated. The W.M. must be congratulated on the happy termination of his year of office, and the brethren wished him health and long life to enjoy his membership of this lodge. (Hear, hear.) Bro. E. F. Storr, in reply, said there were times in a man's life when to be silent was to be eloquent, and with himself he felt that that time was now, for he could not respond to this toast in a way which he felt Bro. Wilcox's remarks deserved. He could not help feeling that that evening his sun had set, and he hoped the rising sun would eclipse him. During his year of office, although it had been a most prosperous one, he had had feelings of regret because he had had to support several cases from the lodge at the Lodge of Benevolence. This had been most distressing, and but for this his year would have been one of unmingled pleasure. No one had had better officers, without which what could a W.M. do? He had tried to please the brethren and he was pleased to find that he had been successful in his attempt. If they were satisfied that was sufficient recompense to him for what he had done. He hoped Bro. Phythian's year would be brighter, more prosperous, and luminous than ever his own had been. Bro. Austen responded to the toast of "The Initiates," and said he had long looked forward with anxiety to the time when he should join the Order, and he was now very grateful to the brother who had introduced him into it. Nothing should now be wanting on his part to make him a good Mason, and in speaking thus for himself he knew he was speaking the sentiments of his co-initiate, Bro. Curtice. The W.M. proposed "The P.M.'s," of whom he said the Neptune Lodge could proudly boast. Long might they be spared to remain an ornament to the lodge! Bro. Wilcox, P.M., replied, and said that the P.M.'s were very proud of belonging to that body, and grateful for the compliments the brethren so often paid them. They had endeavoured in their day and generation to do properly that which devolved upon them, and they only hoped and trusted that all those who followed them would tread in their footsteps. Having the interest and welfare of the lodge at heart he and his colleagues did their best in that direction, and nothing gave them greater pleasure than to see a brother in the chair who aimed at giving satisfaction to the brethren in the discharge of his duties as Bro. Storr had done. Unless a brother performed his duties well, they knew that a lodge deteriorated, and he felt confident that the brother who occupied the position of W.M. felt the same as did the P.M.'s. Bro. Sir John Bennett replied to the toast of "The Visitors." It was indeed a pleasant thing in the midst of heavy daily and weekly work to come into a lodge of Freemasons, because they all had great respect for that great and very ancient institution. They knew its antiquity; they knew its doings; but they did not know all its great doings in past centuries. Let him however, refer to some of the things which their predecessors in the Craft had done. If the history of the Craft could be written for the last 2000 years, they would have the history of the world through the dark ages, and see what the lodges did. The outward and visible signs of what they did remained in the grand ecclesiastical buildings, whose architectural splendour astonished the world. But beyond that, Masons constituted a line of great societies of men, who from century to century, from age to age, were in their circles the most powerful agents that kept alive all that was great and good in the career of our industry; the literary spirit, the artistic spirit. They were the body guard that taught liberty. Masons were proud to be descendants of such a body of men, who kept alive all that had dignified, beautified, elevated, invigorated human society, and made civilisation what it now was. If they had done this in the past, Masons of the present day were the men to do it now; to pass on this torch of human enlightenment, prosperity and civilization for the future. He was always proud when he came among Masons. He had been but a poor Mason himself, because his occupations were numerous. Though extra-Masonic, they were nevertheless in the true spirit of Masonry wherever he went. He was proud to visit this lodge, by the invitation of the Worshipful Master, and to have the opportunity of saying that he and the other visitors held among themselves the bright spirit of our forefathers in this respect, that whatever they did well we were prepared to do better, with our greater power of knowledge and enlightenment, and of all those manifold appliances of daily life which multiplied the power of man, which made him feel he was the centre of circles that should not only invigorate and elevate, but send prosperity through the whole of the civilised community. The common spirit which was shown to be among Masons by the friendly interchange of courtesies at these meetings would aid in this great work, and when they went forth from the lodge they would feel themselves the next day better men for the pleasure they had enjoyed that evening. (Cheers.) The W.M. next proposed "The W.M. elect." He said that when he took the gavel from his predecessor he was determined to do his duty to the Neptune Lodge, and he was pleased to find he had held it to the satisfaction of the brethren. In giving it up to another brother he had great pleasure and enjoyment in knowing that it would go into the hands of a brother who would equally endeavour to discharge his duties properly. Bro. Phythian, who would take the gavel next year, was initiated the year after him (the W.M.), and they had been like twin brothers ever since, and if he had nothing else to be thankful to Masonry for beyond his intercourse with the dear kind friends of the Neptune Lodge, the knowledge that he had made the friendship of Bro. Phythian, one of his bosom companions, was sufficient to make him pleased that he had become a Mason. Bro. Phythian responded. He little thought, he said, six years ago, when he was initiated that he should ever be elected W.M. It had always been his great ambition to be Master, and the brethren knew he had always but once been punctual in his attendance. He had always been pleased to attend to his duties in the working of the lodge. He could not make any promise as to the way in which he should perform the duties of W.M.; but he was working for it, and attending lodges of instruction to qualify himself. Bro. Gray had been coaching him and so had Bro. Mugeridge, and both pronounced that he was right in the two First Degrees though somewhat shaky in the Third. However, he had a couple of months before him to perfect himself, and he hoped in that time to be ripe for his post. Bro. Eames, P.M., Sec., responded to the toast of "The Treasurer and Secretary." The compliment was rather to the Treasurer than to himself, but as Bro. Wilcox had spoken once or twice that evening, he (Bro. Eames) was asked to reply now. Bro. Wilcox was such a Freemason as few other lodges had. He (Bro. Eames) had been Secretary only a short time, but he had endeavoured, and he hoped he had succeeded in his endeavours, to perform his duties satisfactorily to the W.M. and the other members of the lodge. Bro. Ashwell and Bro. Foxwell responded for "The Officers," and the brethren shortly afterwards separated. There was some very pleasant music and singing during the evening.

TEMPLE LODGE (No. 101).—This lodge met on Tuesday last, the 4th inst. There was a very large assemblage of the brethren, and many visitors, amongst whom was Bro. Signor Campobello, who, after dinner, sang several songs in his usual style (accompanied by Bro. Romano), which gave great pleasure to the brethren assembled. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts having been proposed and carried unanimously, the W.M., Bro. Taylor, proposed "The Health of the Visitors," coupled with that of Bro. Campobello. The toast having been drunk with the usual honours, Bro. Campobello rose, and in proposing "The Health and Prosperity of the W.M., Brethren, and the Temple Lodge," said he had offered his gratuitous services and those of his wife, Madame Campobello, and the artists of his company, to give a concert in February next for the benefit of the Masonic School at Wood Green at Freemasons' Tavern. The W.M. suggested that a Lodge of Emergency should be called for the purpose of appointing a committee to carry out the necessary arrangements. Further information in connection with the concert can be obtained of Bro. G. V. De Luca, 5, Guildhall-chambers, Basinghall-street.

FAITH LODGE (No. 141).—The members of this old lodge met at Anderson's Hotel, Fleet-street, on Tuesday, the 27th ult. Amongst those present were Bros. E. Mallett, W.M.; C. Dairy, S.W.; Rumball, J.W.; Carter, P.M.; Treasurer; W. Stuart, P.M., Sec.; Morris, J.D.; Heaphy, I.G.; T. C. Walls, P.G.O. Midx.; W.S.; Clark, D.C.; Ashton, Assist. Sec.; Themans, acting I.P.M.; E. Hopwood, P.M., P.G.S.B. of Midx.; Longstaff, Tyler. The minutes of the installation meeting in October last having been read and confirmed, the W.M. raised Bros. Broadhurst, Aarons, and Cox to the degree of M.M., the ceremony being exceedingly well performed. The W.M. is to be congratulated upon having acquitted himself so well in that his maiden essay. There being no other business before the lodge it was formally closed, and the brethren immediately separated. The next regular meeting of the lodge will be held on the last Tuesday in January next.

DUKE OF CONNAUGHT LODGE.—(No. 1524).—The brethren of this highly prosperous lodge assembled in full force on Thursday week at the Havelock Tavern, Albion-road, Dalston, Bro. John Bairstow Shackleton, the W.M., most ably performed the work, which was unusually heavy. At four o'clock Bros. Hollingsworth, C. J. Olley, A. R. Olley, Fisher, and Norman, were raised, the ceremony being most impressively rendered, and each candidate for Mastership was taken separately. Bros. Denter, Beasley, Bell, Bigg, and Blow, were then respectively passed, and a ballot for Bro. William Ford, proved unanimous in his favour that gentleman was duly initiated. The audit committee was then appointed, and Bro. Bernard Meyer, the J.W. of the lodge, elected W.M. for the ensuing year. The labours of the evening over, the brethren adjourned for refreshment, and spent three hours most pleasantly.

CARNARVON LODGE (No. 1572).—This lodge, which is now only two years old, held its installation meeting on Saturday last at the Albion, Aldersgate-street. Bro. Walter Solomon Whitaker presided, and was supported by Bros. J. Cowan, S.W.; T. S. Hillier, J.W.; J. Clarricoats' Treas.; R. C. Hooton, I.P.M. Acting Sec.; Nelson Reed, S.D.; G. W. Briggs, J.D.; G. W. Brock, I.G.; T. Brown, P.M. 765, D.C.; F. Morgan, W.S.; Burman, Cotton, Jaccard, Pearce, A. Taylor, W. Munro, Russell, P. Bullock, A. E. Packer, F. Spargen, J. Spurgen, J. Garratt, S. Garratt, Wm. Poole, H. Poole, Gosnell, Dr. Longrigg, Margettes, Edwards, Lovibond, Greening, Leman, Chaffey, and Willocks. The W.M. passed Bros. J. Spurgen, and H. Poole, and raised Bros. S. Garratt, D. Longrigg, F. Spurgen, and E. A. Packer. He afterwards installed Bro. James Cowan, S.W., and W.M. elect, as Worshipful Master, who thereupon invested Bro. Whitaker as I.P.M., the duties of which office were transferred to Bro. Hooton, P.M., Bro. Whitaker being also invested as Secretary. The other brethren invested were Bros. Thos. S. Hellier, J.D. 1580, S.W.; Nelson Reed, W.M. 1671, J.W. 1601, S.D. 765, J.W.; John Clarricoats, Treasurer; George Briggs, S.D.; George A. Brock, J.D.; Frederick Morgan, I.G.; J. E. Burman, D.C.; Richard Cotton, W.S.; and W. Steedman, P.M. 754, Tyler. All these appointments gave the greatest satisfaction to every member of the lodge, a proof of which was conveyed in the hearty applause with which they were greeted on being conducted to their situations in the lodge. The investments over, Bro. Whitaker delivered the charges with the same fluency as had characterised his delivering of the other portions of the ceremony, and of the other work of the lodge. On resuming his seat he was followed by general cheering, and the remaining work of the lodge having been completed, lodge was closed, and the brethren sat down to one of Bro. W. G. Jennings' elegant banquets. The visitor present were:—Bros. P. McNabb, S.C. Scotland, P.M. 110

E. Terry, W.M. 1319; R. E. H. Goffin, 1359; J. Hill, Org 732; C. Taylor, I.G. 1436; J. Bergmann, J.D. 1671; J. H. Leggot, S.D. 145; C. Swain, 80; H. A. Lovett, S.W. 134; G. Saul, J.W. 1201; C. Dodson, 834; J. R. Stacey, P.M. 180; W. H. Lee, P.M. 975 and 1524; J. Chaney, 183; J. McCutchen, S.C. 28; C. F. Seymour, 163; J. Slater, 22; J. Henderson, 186; H. Massey, (Freemason) P.M. 619; W. H. Rowe, 1426; R. Greening, 1426; A. Leigh 657; C. T. Smith, 1426; Viner Bedolfe, P.M. 1329. When the banquet was concluded, grace having been said, the W.M. proceeded with the toasts, and in giving that of "The Queen and the Craft," said that three of her Majesty's sons occupying the three principal chairs of Grand Lodge at one time was an honour that no mother had ever had in the history of Masonry. The W.M. in giving "The Health of the M.W.G.M.," after referring to the ability with which the Prince of Wales discharged the duties of Grand Master, said H.R.H. had proved himself a thorough Mason, and both in Masonry and as the Prince of Wales had proved himself a thorough Englishman. A distinguished Scotchman who was also a Mason had written many years before the Prince of Wales was born,

"The rank is but the guinea's stamp,

A man's a man for a' that,"

And the Prince of Wales had shown that this sentiment was applicable to him. The W.M. having proposed "The Pro Grand Master, the D.G.M., and the rest of the Grand Officers," Bro. H. G. Buss, Assistant Grand Secretary, replied, and said he deeply regretted that there was no other Grand Officer present senior to himself in rank to return thanks for the toast. He, however, perfectly agreed with the observations of the W.M. that the Prince of Wales could not have made a better selection of his Pro and Deputy Grand Masters, than when he appointed Lord Carnarvon and Lord Skelmersdale, because, as was patent to all, they displayed great ability in the discharge of their duties. They were always to be approached, and when any Masonic difficulty arose, they were ready to listen to any application that might be made to them. Notwithstanding the important duties which devolved upon the Pro G.M. in his position as a statesman, he found time to devote a portion of his attention to Masonry. The Deputy G.M. also found time to perform his Masonic duties. Coming to the officials of Grand Lodge, Bro. Hervey, he was sorry to say, was unable to be present, and had been unable to be at the office that day, through having caught a very bad cold; but he had telegraphed to him (Bro. Buss) to convey the expressions of his regret to Bro. Whitaker, who had personally invited him to this installation, that he was unable to come. He (Bro. Buss) must thank the W.M. and brethren very much for the manner in which he had been received, and it was not the smaller part of the honour conferred upon him that he had been asked to wear the collar of S.W. during the installation. It was no small honour to take such an office, in such a lodge, which he trusted would go on and prosper. No brother round the table could complain of the prosperity of the lodge or of the success of the lodge management. It was patent to all the Masonic world that there could not have been two better Masters than the two who had passed the chair. Their conduct of the lodge business had been excellent, and he was sure that the brother who had been placed in the chair that evening as third W.M. would not be wanting in displaying those abilities which had been displayed by the other W.M.'s of the Carnarvon Lodge. Bro. Hooton, P.M., proposed "The Health of the W.M." It was not very often, he said, that it was the privilege of a P.M. to hold the gavel two years in succession as I.P.M., and under the circumstances he thought it necessary to make some little explanation to the visitors why it so fell to his lot. The esteemed P.M., Bro. Whitaker, had been invested with the collar of Secretary, and the consequence was that it fell to him (Bro. Hooton) for the forthcoming year to resume the position of I.P.M. of the lodge. In that position his first duty was to propose what was in his opinion the most important toast of the evening, that of "The W.M." If, as Bro. Buss had said, the lodge had had two good P.M.'s, he was quite sure they would have another in the person of Bro. Cowan. All those who had known the W.M., (and all around the table had known him for some years) knew him as a most enthusiastic, painstaking, energetic young Mason; and he felt sure that in taking the responsibilities of W.M. upon himself, as he had that night, he would endeavour to the utmost of his abilities, please God to give him health and strength for his year of office, to carry out the duties of the chair with satisfaction to all the brethren and with credit to himself. The W.M. in reply said he thanked Bro. Hooton very sincerely for the terms in which he had spoken of him, and the brethren for the very cordial way in which they had endorsed them. He felt that he scarcely deserved the very kind words with which Past Master Hooton proposed his health; but still as a young Mason and a persevering one he could not deny that soon after his initiation he became sensible of the great responsibility attaching to the position of W.M. of a lodge. He felt at the same time a strong ambition one day to occupy the chair, and he saw that the way to get there was to qualify himself for the position. He therefore attended lodges of instruction in order to obtain Masonic knowledge so that if ever the brethren offered him the chair he should feel justified in accepting it. He had to a certain extent obtained Masonic knowledge, and the brethren had given him the opportunity of using it. The opportunity they had given him and the honour they had conferred upon him he accepted with all its responsibilities. He could only say now, as they had no experience of what he could do or might have to do, he would endeavour to give them satisfaction. He received the lodge in a thoroughly good state financially, and it should be his duty to maintain it. The ability and energy with which his predecessors had occupied the chair had raised the lodge to a state of efficiency which had gained for it the character of being second to none in the Craft. It would be his earnest endeavour to leave the chair with that name unsullied. It was an honour to any Mason to be installed as W.M. of any lodge; but much more was it an honour to be installed Master of such a lodge as the Carnarvon Lodge, and to be installed by such a Master as Bro. Whitaker. He said "Bro. Whitaker" but he meant to say "Bro. Solomon." (Laughter.) There could not be a doubt that he was a Solomon, and that he was a good representative of his great namesake, the Grand Master. He (the W.M.) felt that the honour he had spoken of was a great one, and he would endeavour to discharge his duties to the best of his ability. He again thanked the brethren for the honour they had conferred upon him. The W.M. said the next toast was a very important one, and one that he approached with a great amount of diffidence, knowing as he did his own inability to do it the justice it deserved. The toast was that of "The Installing Master, their late W.M." He happened to know more of the Masonic career of the respected Bro. Whitaker than perhaps any Mason living. He recollected four years ago, the day after he was initiated (for even at that early age of his Masonic career he was greatly craving for Masonic knowledge, for he was in possession of very little Masonic information at that time) he went to Bro. Whitaker and asked him for his assistance. Bro. Whitaker introduced him to the Metropolitan Lodge of Instruction, where he soon attracted the attention of the great instructor of that lodge, whom he was now glad to see present. Bro. Whitaker from that time till now had never ceased to be a constant attendant at the lodge, and being endowed by nature with a good memory and great elocutionary power, he had made himself a bright and shining light in the Craft. To the brethren of the Carnarvon Lodge he need not say how Bro. Whitaker had discharged the duties of his office. He might be allowed to say that in Bro. Whitaker's Mastership the lodge had had thirteen initiations, thirteen passings, and thirteen raisings, and when he informed the brethren that the whole of the candidates had been obligated separately it would occur to them that the ceremonies had been repeated very often in the same night. The whole of the work had been by the W.M. from one end of the year to the other; and he said it without fear of contradiction that it had been done in a faultless manner. He had gone through the ceremonies, initiation, passing, and raising without adding to or detracting from a word of the beautiful ritual. In the solemn serious and effective manner in which he had discharged his duties he could not fail to make a lasting impression on the minds of the candidates for the several degrees. There were eminent P.M.'s present who knew more about Masters of lodges than he did, and he felt they would say this was perfection which few Masters could attain to. During his year of office the late W.M. had not been without difficulties to contend with, for soon after his installation it pleased the G.A.O.T.U. to remove the late lamented Bro. Scott, the Secretary. They had in Bro. Scott an officer of great experience and one of that sort of men that no lodge could well afford to lose, much less a lodge then in its second year of existence. But great as the loss was to the lodge in general and to the W.M. in particular, the W.M. proved himself equal to the occasion, and took the duties in his own hands. The brethren knew how he had conducted them, and if he (the W.M.) were allowed to pass his opinion he would say that Bro. Whitaker had conducted them with pleasure to all the brethren and with credit to himself. He had occupied his position night after night, and the ability with which he had discharged his duties to the lodge, limited as it was, he had filled it, and now he had left him (the W.M.) nothing to do. But to crown the successful year of office with a successful termination, after his eminent services he had installed his successor. He had had the honour and pleasure of seeing and hearing the ceremony of installation performed on many occasions; but he might say, as far as he himself was concerned and was able to judge, he had never seen the ceremony performed better. There were several distinguished P.M.'s present who could count the times they had seen it performed by the score, and if they had seen anything that evening in the installation to find fault with he would ask them to remember that this was the first time that Bro. Whitaker had installed a W.M. He (Bro. Cowan) now came to a more important part of his duties, and it was a duty which he might be allowed to say he was proud to be in a position to perform. A month ago that night the members of the Carnarvon Lodge determined to present Bro. Whitaker with a P.M.'s jewel. In placing that jewel now upon Bro. Whitaker's breast, he felt sure that he expressed the earnest wish of every one present when he said that they hoped he might be long spared to his wife and family, and that the heart that now beat under that jewel might long continue to exercise its functions. Bro. Whitaker might look upon that jewel to remind him of the many friends he had made and the happy days he had spent in the Carnarvon Lodge, and it would also remind him of the eminently successful year of office which he had had. Bro. Whitaker, I.P.M., in acknowledging the toast said that when the elegant programme was delivered to him that evening, he saw on it that it was his duty to make a speech, and he thought to himself that after having inflicted on the brethren four hours of working upstairs, the shorter he made his speech the better. So it had been his intention simply to thank the W.M. and sit down. But he thought he should be wanting in his duty to the Carnarvon Lodge if he did not express his thanks to the lodge more at length. When he was installed Master of this lodge he fully appreciated the difficulty of his position, and he endeavoured as far as in him lay to overcome that difficulty. The brethren of this lodge had been pleased to confer upon him a lasting and valuable tribute of their appreciation in giving him a P.M.'s jewel, which he esteemed a great honour. He should not thank them at any length, because he knew, though he could not find words to express his feelings, that every brother of the Carnarvon Lodge was aware he had done and would do all he could to further its interests and promote its efficiency. The W.M., in proposing the toast of "The P.M.'s," said that without the toast "The P.M.'s," the lodge would have no history, and as the history of the Carnarvon Lodge, although a short one, was certainly a very creditable one. It would necessarily occur to the brethren that the P.M.'s were few, numbering only two. Bro. Whitaker had qualified himself to rank among P.M.'s, and the style of his performance of the duties of his office was fresh in the minds of the brethren. Bro. Hooton's career in Masonry had been a long and also a creditable one. He had just informed him (the W.M.) that twelve years ago that night he was received into Freemasonry, and shortly after that he was put into office. From that day up till now he had not been a single year out of office. In his mother lodge he had served all the offices up to that of Master, and during his year in that capacity he had raised his lodge to a position it had ever occupied since. His energy and ability in the Carnarvon Lodge were also fresh in the minds of the brethren. At the consecration of the lodge there was a distinguished body of visitors, and they all agreed that he performed his duties most ably. Each of the P.M.'s could always be approached for advice, and could always be relied upon for giving the best advice; and the best instruction could also be obtained from them. Bro. Hooton had undertaken the duties of I.P.M., because Bro. Whitaker had been appointed Secretary, and it had been thought better that Bro. Whitaker should not have to discharge double duties. Bro. Hooton responded. It was true he had been a Mason twelve years, and it was equally true that he had endeavoured to discharge his Masonic duties to the best of his ability, and to carry out the principles instilled into his mind on the particular occasion of his initiation. It was a very eventful moment for him. He then made up his mind that, subject to the approval of the brethren he would obtain the greatest amount of reward the brethren of his lodge could give him, viz., placing him in the W.M. Chair. He at last obtained that position, and having been in office for many years he began to be tired of office. When the present lodge came into existence the first twenty members of it were members of his mother lodge, and four-fifths of these he had been instrumental in introducing into his mother lodge. He looked upon their selecting him as the first W.M. as a great honour. It was a distinguished privilege to belong to such a lodge as the Carnarvon Lodge; much more was it an honour to be its first W.M., and to have received it at the hands of the Grand Secretary of England. When he accepted the office he did so with the determination to perform the duties of that high office to the satisfaction of every member of the lodge, and he trusted now that he had succeeded. Twelve months ago the brethren were pleased to present him with a P.M. jewel, and to place him among the P.M.'s. He was glad to find that now he was not alone, and he hoped that before long there would be a good string of P.M.'s. Although this was not the occasion for a long speech, he might say that the great principle the Carnarvon Lodge had always laid down was punctuality; it had carried out that principle, and would endeavour to do so, together with the principles of cordiality and Masonic goodwill towards each other. They had only one view—to render the Masonic work as complete as possible, and from the very eminent opinions they had had from time to time, they flattered themselves that they succeeded. It was these principles which had obtained for the Carnarvon Lodge an illustrious name in the long roll of Masonic Lodges; and he was sure that the Carnarvon members would be found to produce other W.M.'s who would endeavour to do as their predecessors had done, and if they did, the Carnarvon Lodge would in years to come, when the present P.M.'s were gathered to their fathers, maintain the same unsullied lustre as the W.M.'s of the two last years. The W.M. next proposed "The Visitors," amongst whom he particularly mentioned P.M. Stacey, No. 180, who amongst his other duties yet found time to be the Instructor of the Metropolitan Lodge of Instruction. In that capacity he (the W.M.) did not believe Bro. Stacey had his equal. There were many W.M.'s who owed their position entirely to the knowledge they had been enabled to obtain from Bro. Stacey's teaching; and he (the W.M.) himself was not ashamed to own that his position was owing to the care and attention bestowed on him by that brother. He was not the only one who could say that, for he could point to Bro. Whitaker to illustrate the manner in which Bro. Stacey performed his duties as Preceptor to the Metropolitan Lodge of Instruction. There were many brethren present who had benefited by his instruction. Bro. Stacey in reply, said he was not going to shower honours upon the W.M., but to tell the brethren a few truths about him. Four or five years ago, a raw Scotch lad presented himself to a lodge of instruction in Fleet-street, over which he (Bro. Stacey), had the honour of presiding. That raw Scotch lad was the present W.M. of the Carnarvon Lodge. How much Masonry had done for that W.M. he would not stop to enquire; but he thought the brethren would furnish an answer better than he (Bro. Stacey) could. Bro. Cowan was one of the most intelligent scholars he ever knew, one of the most persevering, and one of the most gentlemanly, shewing that gentlemanly bearing that evening, by what he had said of the visitors. This was not the first time he (Bro. Stacey) had had the pleasure of attending the Carnarvon Lodge, and he sincerely hoped it would not be the last. Bro. Hooton had spoken of one or two things as the attributes of this lodge, but he certainly forgot one—the very great kindness with which it received the visitors, and the attention which it paid to them. En passant, he was not going to make a long speech, but he might say he looked round the lodge with very much pleasure indeed; for not only had the W.M. been under his (Bro. Stacey's) unfortunate ministrations, but the brother who had so ably and well worked the ceremony of installation had also been one of his unfortunate pupils. (A voice: "Fortunate.") He sincerely hoped that these brethren and the other brethren of the lodge would long be an honour to Freemasonry, work shoulder to shoulder, and assist in carrying on the Lodge of Instruction, and that they would excel in what they had done already. The S.W., Bro. Hellier; the J.W., Bro. Reed; Bro. Brock, and several other officers of the lodge, the Metropolitan Lodge of Instruction had also had under its care, and the Carnarvon Lodge was happy indeed in the very large amount of talent, the great application and the ready intimation with which its members gained the knowledge which was so essential to progress in Masonry. He knew of no better example than the W.M. that evening, who from the crude had become the polished Master. Bro. Terry, whose knowledge of everything in Masonry was very great, agreed with him in saying that he had never seen a Master who had come on in Masonry as Bro. Cowan had. He would be happy indeed to find the Carnarvon Lodge, with the unanimity amongst its members, its progressiveness, and its hospitality, certainly second to no other lodge. Bro. W. H. Lee said he had been associated with Bro. Cowan ever since he first entered among English Freemasons, and he agreed with Bro. Stacey that a more intelligent, active, or diligent Mason it would be difficult to find. He congratulated the lodge on the success it had achieved, and he hoped the success that had attended it in the past would attend it in the future. Dr. Bedolfe and Bro. Goffin also replied for the visitors. The W.M. in proposing "The Charities" said we were taught in Masonry that charity was the brightest ornament that could adorn the Masonic profession, and the surest proof and best test of our religion. Bro. Goffin in his reply for the visitors had alluded to some among the outside world having charged Masonry with being nothing more than a gourmandising society. He repudiated the idea, and in answer to the charge, he had often said that £40,000 being subscribed by Freemasons last year to the charities, was a proof that they were not a gourmandising body. He was not going to say much about the charities, further than that they were an honour to the Order. The three noble institutions which Freemasons supported were an honour to the body. The Carnarvon was a young lodge, and could not take upon themselves to say they had done much for the charities; but in the two years of their existence the balance of the Benevolent Fund was £85. In addition to that they had made a handsome donation to the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, of which Bro. Terry was the Secretary. As a lodge it was their ambition to qualify themselves as Life Governors of all the charities, and in due time he had no doubt they would in that respect attain to the summit of their ambition. He would say nothing further about the charities, but leave to Bro. Terry whose eloquence was well-known, to work upon the hearts and purses of the brethren.

Bro. Terry, Secretary of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, responded, but owing to pressure in our columns is deferred till next week.

The toast of "The Officers" was then given and responded to, and the brethren separated.

Some excellent music was given during the evening by the brethren. Bro. Bergmann, J.D., 167, presided at the piano.

BEDFORD.—Stuart Lodge (No. 540).—ANNUAL BANQUET AND INSTALLATION OF BRO. RHYS WILLIAMS, M.D., P.A.G.D.C.—Wednesday, November 28th, the thirtieth anniversary of this lodge, as well known for the excellency of its working as the boundless hospitality at refreshment, witnessed a larger and more brilliant gathering than any similar occasion in the memory of even the oldest member of the lodge. Punctually at 4 o'clock p.m. the lodge began working, when there were present Bros. Col. Stuart, P.G.S.W., &c., W.M.; Capt. Green, J.P., I.P.M.; Wilkinson Finlison, P.M.; S.W.; Capt. Colburn J.W.; Rev. C. Breton, B.C.L. and Rural Dean, Chap.; Coombs, M.R.C.S., &c., S.D.; Allan, J.D.; Thody, I.G.; Prior, M.D., P.M., Sec.; Alderman Sergeant, P.M., Treas.; Alderman Bull, J.P., P.M., Steward; and Reynolds, Tyler; Past Masters J. Trapp, Capt. F. C. Polhill-Turner, M.P. for Bedford, Deputy Lieutenant for Beds., &c.; Cuthbert, Fisher, Cookson, Nash, Billson; and Bros. Warren, Whitaker, Stafford, Young, Jarvis, Pick, Thompson, Roberts, Kilpin, Lund, Wicks, Carter, and visiting Bros. Rev. and W. Studholme Brownrigg, P.G. Chap.; W. Henry Dumas, P.G.D.; W. Dyer, P.G.—; W. Haydon, P.G. Steward; Rev. and W. W. Tebbs P.P.G. Chap. Somerset; J. Cumberland, 475 (Mayor of Luton); Burnett, W.M.; Wade-Gery, S.W.; Dr. Swan, J.D.; Hooper, P.M.; and Reynolds, P.M. 803, St. Andrew's, Biggleswade; Wilmer, Taylor, and Cooper, 1410, St. Peter and St. Paul, Newport Pagnell; F. D. Bull, Walling Street, Stony Stratford; Dunkley and Reed, 874, Holmesdale, Tunbridge Wells. Great regret was expressed at the unavoidable absence of Bro. Sir A. Woods, Garter King at Arms, G.D.C., and Bro. Bent, P.G.C., who were expected to be present. After the minutes had been read and confirmed and the report of the Audit Committee received and passed, a vote of £10 was unanimously carried to the mother of a brother who was suffering from mental affliction. The W.M. elect was presented by Bro. Dr. Prior, and duly installed in the chair of K.S. The W.M., Bro. Rhys Williams, M.D., P.A.D.C., then invested his officers: Bros. Colonel Stuart, I.P.M.; Rev. C. Breton, Chap.; Capt. Colburn, S.W.; Coombs, J.W.; Alderman Bull, Steward; Allen, S.D.; Thody, J.D.; Carter, I.G.; Dr. Prior, Sec.; Alderman Sergeant, Treas.; and Reynolds, Tyler. The brethren then adjourned to a capital banquet, after which the usual loyal and other toasts were happily put by Bro. Rhys Williams and well received, being responded to as follows: "Pro and Deputy Grand Masters, and Grand Officers, Past and Present," by Bros. Colonel Stuart and Dumas; "The Visitors," by Bros. Haydon, Hooper, and Tebbs; "P.M.'s of the Lodge" by Bro. Trapp. After the Tyler's toast a truly enjoyable evening was spent, enlivened with songs by many brethren, amongst whom it would be invidious to mention Bros. Sergeant, Prior, Wilmer, Stafford, Jarvis, Tebbs, Roberts, and Cookson. Amongst the overwhelming praises of the guests we must repeat one brother's very true observation on the efforts of the Steward, Bro. Bull, that "his self-denying efforts were most indefatigable—indeed, the very life and soul of the party's enjoyment." Thus pleasantly passed another anniversary of this favourite lodge, and thus "happily parted" the hospitable brethren and their favoured guests; "and happily may they meet again."

MANCHESTER.—Strangeways Lodge (No. 1219).—The usual monthly meeting of this lodge was held on Wednesday, the 28th ult., at the Empire Hotel, Strangeways, Manchester, when a large number of the brethren assembled at five o'clock. The lodge being opened in due form and passed to the Second Degree, Bro. Damberghy was advanced to the degree of Fellow Craft, the W.M., Bro. S. H. Needham, performing the ceremony in a masterly manner. The brethren then adjourned to tea, and after full justice had been done to the excellent spread provided by Bro. Banks, returned to their labour, when Bros. Evans and Southworth were also passed to the degree of Fellow Craft, P.M. Rogers rendering the W.M. valuable assistance in his duties. The lodge was then opened in the Third Degree, when Bro. Moore was duly raised to the Sublime Degree of a Master Mason, Bro. W. T. Schofield giving the charge in a most important manner. After sundry matters of business had been disposed of the brethren adjourned to the social board, the W.M. occupying the chair, supported by Bros. Schofield, I.P.M.; Rogers P.M.; J. Andrews, P.M.; Bros. Leech, S.W., and Dawson, J.W., occupying their usual places. A large number of visiting brethren were present, amongst whom were Bros. Dunks, Wrigley, and Marsh, of the Duke of Athol Lodge, 210; and Bros. Bostock, W.M.; Brown, Secretary; Green, and Byway, of Avon Lodge, 1623. The usual toasts incidental to the occasion were proposed and responded to, Bro. Sykes most efficiently carrying out his duties as D.C. The proceedings were much enlivened by the excellent singing of Bros. Ruddock and Smith, and Brown, who recited "Little Jim, the collier's son," in true pathos. The brethren separated at an early hour, after having spent a most enjoyable evening.

UPTON.—Upton Lodge (No. 1226).—This popular lodge held an emergency meeting at the "Spotted Dog," Upton, the usual place of meeting. Bro. George Brown, the W.M. presided, and there was a good attendance of the members, and also visitors, amongst whom were Bros. Larkin, Quincey, Giles, Messrs. William Mason Paxton, John Strout, and Otto Julius Silver were respectively initiated, a ballot having been previously taken for each, and found to be unanimous. The brethren adjourned for refreshment and had a sumptuous tea, dispersing at about nine o'clock.

EXETER.—Semper Fidelis Lodge (No. 1254).—The brethren of the above lodge assembled on Tuesday the 3rd inst., at the Freemasons' Hall, Gandy-street, Exeter, for their ninth yearly festival, and to instal their Worshipful Master for the ensuing year. The choice had fallen on Bro. W. Brodie (proprietor of the Exeter and Plymouth Gazette), who, at the previous regular lodge had been unanimously elected for the honourable position of Master of this flourishing lodge. An unusually large number of the Craft attended the interesting ceremony, in testimony of their esteem and respect for their worthy brother, the W.M. elect of lodge 1254, amongst them being the following, viz.: The Right Worshipful the Provincial Grand Master of Devon, Bro. the Rev. John Huxley, Past Grand Chaplain England, &c., &c.; W. Elphinstone Stone, P.P.G.J.G.W.; S. Jones, P.P.S.G.D., P.M. 112; 1135; Easton, P.P.G.J.W., P.M. 39; Isaac Latimer, P.P.G.J.W., P.M. 1895; W. F. Giercke, P.P.G.O.; P.M. 39; W. T. Maynard, P.P.G.T.; H. B. Stark, P.P.G.O.; Henry Strawson, P.P.G.J.W. Somerset, P.M. 814; H. W. Hooper, P.P.G.R.; P.M. 1254; J. H. Warren, P.M. 1254; F. Horspool, P.M. 1254; W. B. Shears, P.M. 372; T. Dunsford, W.M. 372; J. W. Boon, W.M. 189; T. Willing, W.M. 1284; J. Woodman, W.M. 444; C. R. Collins, W.M. 15; J. Stocker, S.W. and W.M.-elect 39; B. Barber, I.P.M. 1254; G. Huxham, W.M. 1254; and many others. The lodge having been duly opened, and the minutes of the former lodge having been read and confirmed, Bro. B. Barber, I.P.M., presented Bro. Brodie, as the W.M. Elect, to the Installing Master, Bro. Geo. Huxham, for Installation in due and ancient form; and he having, in the presence of the assembled brethren, answered the usual questions, and signified his assent to the laws and regulations for the government of the Craft, a Board of Past Masters was formed, and the ceremony of installation was effectively and impressively gone through. The newly-installed brother, after having been saluted by the brethren, and duly proclaimed as Worshipful Master of Semper Fidelis Lodge for the year 1878, feelingly expressed his appreciation of the high honour conferred upon him by the members of his lodge, and the great compliment paid to him by the presence of the Provincial Grand Master, and the numerous gathering of other Provincial Officers and brethren from the various lodges in and around Exeter, many of whom he knew had attended at considerable inconvenience and expense. He could only thank them most heartily, and hoped that their kindness would induce him to still further increase his zeal in Freemasonry, to the benefit of the Craft, and the satisfaction of himself. The following brethren were then appointed officers of the lodge, and duly invested by the Master with the collars and jewels belonging to their various offices, viz., Bro. G. Huxham, I.P.M.; W. Pidsley, S.W.; E. T. Fulford, J.W.; C. Kendrick, C.; H. W. Hooper, Treas.; W. A. Gregory, Secretary; H. Elmore, S.D.; J. Sampson, J.D.; J. Horswell, I.G.; W. H. Hawker, Organist; T. B. Land, D.C.; W. Heavens, A.D.C.; H. Clarke, B.B.; J. Gibson, S.S.; W. H. Woodbridge, J.S.; P. L. Blanchard, Tyler; and J. Blanchard, Assist. Tyler. The Worshipful Master then rose, and, addressing the brethren, said he had a most pleasing task to perform, viz., to present to his predecessor in the chair, Bro. G. Huxham, a valuable solid gold P.M.'s jewel, voted to him by the lodge, and which had been most generously supplemented by an illuminated scroll, beautifully executed by Bro. H. J. Yelland, P.M. 1284. The scroll, which was mounted in a handsome Masonic frame, specially made by Messrs. Rowden, Queen-street, set forth the satisfactory manner in which Bro. Huxham had performed the duties of his office, during his occupancy of the chair for the past twelve months, and also bore the names of nearly forty of the members who had individually subscribed towards the extra cost of the scroll. Bro. Huxham was much moved by this proof of fraternal regard and appreciation of his work, and suitably thanked the brethren. The beautiful jewel was fastened to his official collar amid much applause. The next pleasant feature was the presentation to the lodge, by Bro. John Harswell, of a very handsome silk banner, having worked thereon, in coloured silks, raised on a blue ground, the arms of the ancient and loyal city, its motto "Semper Fidelis" being worked on the ribbon under the arms. On the reverse side was also worked, in white silk on a blue ground, the square and compasses, surmounted by the name of the lodge, with its number underneath. Bro. Horswell said he had the greatest possible pleasure in presenting the banner to the lodge, from the fact that he had invariably met with the greatest courtesy and brotherly feeling from the members of the Semper Fidelis Lodge, and finding, on the occasion of the dedication of the new Hall and premises in which they were then assembled, that, being a young lodge, it possessed no banner, he thought he could not better testify to the pleasure he felt in being connected therewith than by presenting the banner, which he now did, for the use of the members in future processions, and on all festive and other occasions when the lodge might meet. Bro. Brodie, as W.M., accepted the handsome gift on behalf of the brethren, and warmly eulogised Bro. Horswell's generosity and kindly feeling towards this, his adopted lodge. The banner was supplied through Bro. W. A. Gregory, High-street, Exeter. It is an excellent specimen of silk handicraft, and much patience and ability must have been exercised in so faithfully depicting the city arms, and following the exact colours and shading. It is handsomely mounted, and will be a striking object in any future Masonic procession. "Hearty good wishes" were either personally offered, or expressed by letters, to the W.M., from brethren belonging to nearly thirty other lodges in Devon and other provinces. The lodge having been duly closed, the brethren adjourned to Bro. Birkett's Royal Clarence Hotel, in the Cathedral Yard, where a recherche banquet was served in the splendidly-appointed and spacious assembly room, which has recently undergone almost complete transformation in re-arrangement, embellishing, and furnishing. The Worshipful Master, Bro. William Brodie, presided, being supported on his right by the Provincial Grand Master of Devon, several past and present officers of the P.G. Lodge, and between twenty and thirty Past Masters and Worthy Masters. There was a strong gathering of other officers and members of the Craft, numbering in all, close upon a hundred. Bro. W. R. Woodman, P.G.S.B., England; P.M., &c., kindly sent some beautiful plants and flowers, for decorating the banquet-tables, and Bro. E. Johnson, P.G. Std. England, also sent some choice flowers for the same purpose. The brethren were highly pleased with the catering of Bro. Birkett, and unanimously agreed that nothing better could have been provided, or more excellently served. The tables having been cleared, the toast-list, with vocal and instrumental delineations, was gone through, and the more formal part of the proceedings having received due attention, song, music, and good-fellowship reigned supreme. It will be long ere the many agreeable episodes that contributed to the full enjoyment of the ninth anniversary of Semper Fidelis Lodge will pass from the memory of a large number of brethren who took part therein. As a fact illustrative of the genuine and exemplary charity of the brethren, we may add that at the dinner-table Bro. Samuel Jones mentioned the case of the daughter of a brother, recently passed away who was in want of immediate relief. The W.M. Bro. Brodie also pleaded the orphan's cause. The plate was handed round, and a goodly sum was collected there and then for her.

RISCA.—Homfray Lodge (No. 1562).—This deservedly flourishing young lodge held its annual installation meeting at the Masonic Hall, Risca, on Thursday, the 15th inst., when lodge was opened by Bro. Jonathan Piggford, W.M., with the usual formalities. The D.P.G.M., Bro. Captain S. G. Homfray, P.A.G.D.C., and D.P.G.M.M., then entered the lodge to act as installing Master in the unavoidable absence of Bro. L. A. Homfray P.G.M.M., Mon., and inducted the W.M., elect, Bro. James, S.W., into the chair of K.S. in his well-known masterly style. The W.M. then proceeded with the investiture of his officers for the ensuing year. Bros. J. Piggford as I.P.M.; Taylor S.W.; Williams, J.W.; Lewis, Secretary; Greene, Treasurer; Moses, S.D.; James, J.D.; J. G. Taylor, Steward; Fletcher, Tyler. The lodge was then closed in ancient form, when the brethren adjourned to refreshment at Bro. Host Bolton's, of the Albert Hotel, where a banquet awaited them, very nicely put on, consisting of some of the substantialities, as well as the niceties which those of the outside world who know not Masonry, are so apt to give the Craft the credit of an overweening liking for. After ample justice had been done to the repast, the W. M. proceeded with the usual loyal and Masonic toasts, which were well received, as is the usual custom amongst Masons. But the particular feature of the day was the presentation to the retiring W.M., Brother R. J. Chambers, P.M. and P.P.G.S.W., by the brethren of the Homfray Lodge, with his portrait in oils, executed by Bro. Villiers. As a work of art it is extremely happy, being a most faithful reproduction on canvas of our esteemed brother, it will be valued by him as a token of the high regard in which he is held in the lodge, of which he is founder. The presentation was made by Bro. Captain S. G. Homfray, and suitably acknowledged. During the evening the sum of £6 11s. was subscribed for the Masonic Charities. The Tyler's toast brought to a close a very successful and enjoyable Masonic gathering. There were present at the banquet:—W. James, W.M.; S. G. Homfray, P.A.D.G.C., and D.P.G.M., Mon.; J. Piggford, I.P.M.; R. J. Chambers, P.M.; P.G.J.W.; W. S. Tait, (Isca), I.G. 18; Wm. Welsford, (A. Edward, Prince of Wales), Steward; James Wilson, (1429) Steward; John Elias, (1562); John Smith, (1562), Henry Fletcher, Tyler (1562), A.P.G.T.; A. William, J.W. (1562); E. B. Jukes (1562); E. Charles (1562); Jas. Silverthorne (1562); E. P. Phillips (1562); Thomas Moses (1502); Senior Deacon; James T. Green, (1562), Treasurer; E. A. Taylor, S.W. (1562); W. G. Clark (1562); W. O. Reilly (1562); Edwin Jarne (1562), Junior Deacon; Seth Lewis (1562); J. R. Taylor (1562), Steward; E. Edwards, (1562), Inner Guard; E. Lewis (1562), Secretary; Dan. R. Chambers (1562); George Trew (1592); H. A. Huzzey (613); John Boulton (1562); R. H. Richards (1562); Perrin (Organist, Albert Edward); Spencer, W.M. (St. George's, Tredegar); P. A. Villiers (471).

LIVERPOOL.—Dramatic Lodge (No. 1609).—The usual monthly meeting of this excellent lodge was held at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street, on Tuesday, the 27th ult. There was an unusually large attendance of members and visitors, and the general opinion was that this meeting was amongst the most enjoyable which has yet been held in connection with a lodge which has enjoyed almost unexampled prosperity. The K.S. chair was occupied by Bro. W. J. Chapman, W.M., and there were also present Bros. Joseph Bell, I.P.M.; B. B. Marson, P.M., D.C.; L. Courtenay, S.W.; J. B. McKenzie, J.W.; A. Woolrich, Treas.; J. Atkinson, Sec.; W. Sandbrook, S.D.; R. Burgess, Organist; J. Pye, S.S.; W. Savage, J.S., (acting I.G., in consequence of Bro. Frank Emery's absence from illness), and W. H. Ball, Tyler. Amongst the members present were Bros. Shrapnell, Weston, H. Cowdell, J. F. Carter, J. R. Brown, W. Penny, W. Reay, H. Leslie, R. Durden, I. de Frece, Treas., 1502; D. Saunders, F. Wilkinson, W. Hildyard, J. Hill, J. Ballard, Buck, Walter, Duncanson, Stafford, Collinson, and others. The visitors included Bros. Dr. Costine, S.D. 216; Dr. Sheldon, P.M. 1094; Fred Albert, J. Elmore, T. Salter, Sec. 241; W. G. Bales, J. S. Macbeth, C. Campion, and others. Messrs. Mat Robson and Eyres were duly initiated into the mysteries and privileges of Freemasonry, and Bros. Weston, Durden, and Wilkinson were raised to the Sublime Degree of M.M., the W.M. doing the work in a masterly manner. The way in which the S.W. (Bro. Courtenay) gave the ancient charges also elicited universal commendation and admiration. On the motion of Bro. J. Bell, I.P.M., seconded by Bro. Isaac de Frece, it was resolved to form a Fund of Benevolence in connection with the lodge, and on the motion of the J.W., a committee was appointed to frame the rules and report to next meeting. It was likewise unanimously resolved, on the motion of the W.M., seconded by the S.W., to minute and send a letter of condolence to Bro. B. B. Marson, P.M., expressing the strong sympathy felt for him by the brethren in connection with the loss sustained through the death of his wife. It was further agreed, on the motion of Bro. Chapman, W.M., seconded by Bro. Courtenay, S.W., to vote the sum of ten guineas from the funds of the lodge towards facilitating the election of a son of the late Bro. G. Belmore to the Royal Masonic Boys' School, London. The brethren subsequently dined under the presidency of the W.M., and during the evening capital songs and recitations were given by Bros. J. Busfield, 216; Fred. Albert, R. Durden, J. Elmore, D. Saunders, L. Courtenay, J. Hill, &c. The pianoforte accompaniments were admirably played by Bro. Richard Burgess, Organist.

PROVINCIAL GRAND MARK LODGE OF LINCOLNSHIRE.

The third annual meeting of this lodge was held at Alford on Thursday, 29th November, under the banner of the St. Wilfrid Lodge, No. 209. The proceedings of the day commenced at 11.15 a.m., by the consecration of the St. Wilfrid Lodge, which new lodge has been constituted by the installation of its W.M., Bro. B. A. Galland, M.A., rector of South Thoresby, on the 24th September, and which young lodge now consists of eighteen members, under the presidency of one of the best working Masons in the kingdom.

The ceremony of consecration was performed by Bro. F. Binckes, Grand Secretary, in his usual perfect style. The nice little town of Alford not being easy of approach, there was only a limited number of brethren present; but a special train being arranged for the convenience of brethren from Gainsbro', Lincoln, and Grimsby, and some visiting brethren from Hull, there was a goodly muster at the assembling of Prov. Grand Lodge at 12.45 p.m., which took place in the Corn Exchange, which was most tastefully decorated for the occasion, the most remarkable feature being the Mark Tracing Board, drawn on the floor of the lodge, 24 feet by 15 feet, which was most startling to the brethren on entering.

The Provincial Grand Lodge was presided over by the Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Mark Master Mason, Bro. John Sutcliffe, of Stalingbro' House, near Grimsby, and a large number of distinguished Master Masons were present. A full report of the proceedings will appear in our next.

Masonic and General Tidings.

We are most happy to state that Bro. Kenning's Masonic Cyclopædia will be ready for the subscribers some time during the month of January, 1878. Bro. Kenning has determined in consequence to keep the list open for subscribing brethren and lodges until January, 2nd, 1878, on which day it will be closed, as the list of subscribers will be published in the Cyclopædia. The price to subscribers up to January 2nd, 1878, will be 7s. 6d.; after that date, for all, 10s. 6d. Bro. Kenning has determined to bind the book in a neat and emblematic cover, with the portraits stamped in the centre in gold, of the three Grand Masters of England, Ireland, and Scotland.

At a meeting in Liverpool, on Thursday week, in aid of the funds for the augmentation of the stipends of poor curates, a donation of £50 was acknowledged from Bro. Lord de Tabley, R.W.P.G.M. for Cheshire.

His Grace the Duke of Abercorn, M.W.G.M. of Ireland, dedicated and reopened the Masonic Hall in Dublin, on Wednesday afternoon. The assembly was a brilliant one, 450 brethren being present. A full report appears elsewhere.

The Prince of Wales will visit Cambridge on Monday, January 21, and stay until next day. His Royal Highness will, during his visit, unveil the statue of the late Prince Consort at the Fitzwilliam Museum.

Bro. R. Martin, P.M. 1182, has been appointed the Hon. Secretary of the annual Masonic Ball, to be held in January, at the Town Hall, Liverpool, in aid of the funds of the West Lancashire Masonic Educational Institution.

At the presentation of the Testimonial to Bro. Abbott, which is to take place on Tuesday, the 18th inst., it is proposed that the subscribers to the fund dine together at the Cannon-street Hotel. Tickets for the dinner may be obtained of the Hon. Sec., at his office, 30, Queen-street, Cheapside.

A meeting of the Premier Red Cross Conclave was held on Monday last, at Freemasons' Tavern. A report of the proceeding will appear in our next.

Mr. B. Arcedeckan Duncan, M.D., Fellow of the Royal Society of Literature, &c., has been appointed one of the Physicians to the National Hospital for Diseases of the Heart and Paralysis, Soho Square.

We regret to announce the death of Bro. F. L. Fox, of Her Majesty's Stationery Office. The worthy brother died on Saturday last, in his 54th year.

Bro. the Right Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, R.W. Deputy Grand Master, has been nominated for the office of Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Mark Master Masons.

THE COSMOPOLITAN MASONIC POCKET BOOK.

—This work, which contains an abundance of information on all subjects relating to Masonry, has just been issued for the coming year. It will be found, as hitherto, a useful guide to all who seek for such information, while to active members of the Craft it is indispensable. Price, post free, 2s. 3d.—Morning Post.

An official circular from the Grand Lodge of Brazil records the death of Bro. Udo Schleusner, Sov. Grand Inspector General 33°, a member of the Grand Orient, and of the Supreme Council of the Scottish Rite. He was a devoted and enthusiastic Freemason, and was beloved and respected by his brethren.

The following stand over: Reports of Chapters 158, 228, 303, 874; Mark Lodge 109; Masonic Club, Finsbury Park and Earl of Carnarvon Lodges of Instruction.

The distinguished office of Grand Prior of Cheshire, K.T. Degree, vacant by the death of Bro. George Cornwall Legh, has been conferred on Bro. the Rev. C. W. Spencer Stanhope, M.A., 31°, who was installed into that office on Wednesday week, the 28th ult., by Col. Shadwell Clarke, Acting Great Prior of England.

The Christmas number of the Masonic Magazine, which will be ready on the 15th inst., will contain a portrait, suitable for framing, of Capt. N. G. Phillips, Senior Grand Deacon, &c.

AN APPEAL.

The Proprietor of the FREEMASON has much pleasure in acknowledging the receipt of the following subscriptions sent in response to "An Appeal" on behalf of Mrs. Bailey, which appeared in our last. The collection was made by Bro. Alfred Withers, Hon. Sec. Royal Arthur Lodge of Instruction.

AFRICAN LANGUAGES.—The Institute of France has awarded a gold medal, "The Volney Prize," to the Rev. Schon, of Chatham, for his valuable works in the Hansa language. Mr. Schon has reduced this language, the Greek of Western Africa, to form, and published a grammar and copious dictionary. This is the second time that this medal (the Volney) has been awarded to a missionary of the Church Missionary Society. It was bestowed on the Rev. S. Koelle, for his Polyglot of 100 African languages.

TROY.—Dr. Schliemann has brought the whole of his Hissarlik collection to London, and is at present engaged in arranging it for exhibition in the South Kensington Museum.—Academy.

The General Committee of this Institution was held on Saturday last, at Freemasons' Hall, Bro. Henry W. Hunt, in the chair. There were also present Bros. Hy. Browsey, V.P.; Benj. Head, V.P.; S. Rosenthal, V.P.; Wm; Roebuck, V.P.; R. W. Stewart, V.P.; William Paas, V.P.; John Boyd, C. G. Rushworth, A. Durrant, Jesse Turner, D. M. Dewar, G. W. Dosell, Hyde Pullen, J. J. Berry, J. J. Griffiths, Wm. F. C. Moutrie, Geo. J. Row, H. Massey, (Freemason); and F. Binckes, Secretary.

The minutes of the General Committee of 3rd Nov. were read and confirmed, those of the House Committee of 23rd Nov. were read for information, and the minutes of the Joint Committee on office accommodation, 10th Nov., were read for information.

Petitions on behalf of five candidates were submitted and accepted.

The sum of £20 was granted conditionally to Wm. Ramsey Parker, an ex-pupil who had passed the examination held by the Civil Service Commissioners, as an engineer student in the Royal Navy.

John Borisow Featherstone was accepted as the nominee of the Most Hon. the Marquess of Ripon, K.G., under the powers of the presentation "Marquess of Ripon."
The Committee then adjourned.

The following is sent to us for publication :—
Dear Sir and Brother,—

The labours of the Masonic Hall Committee in providing a building suitable for the purposes of Freemasonry and adapting it for the comfort and convenience of the brethren in the various degrees having been brought to a conclusion, I beg to hand you a report of their proceedings and to urge the necessity of the co-operation of every member of the Exeter lodges, to enable them to clear off the liability which still rests on the undertaking. The purchase of the freehold of the very extensive premises which have been secured was effected for £875, but to render it available for the purposes of the Craft and the other degrees very extensive alterations were necessary, and from the nature of the building they have proved somewhat larger than was anticipated. They are now complete, embracing a very handsome entrance hall, robing room, lavatory, good house for Assistant Secretary or Tyler, refreshment room, committee room, large Masonic Hall for Craft and R.A. Degrees, with every convenience, whilst the upper portion is adapted for the purposes of the other Masonic Degrees and large store, and rooms for a Masonic club and library when formed. This has necessitated an additional outlay of about £1700 to complete and furnish the premises, which has been done in a manner that has given general satisfaction to the brethren.

St. George's Lodge has contributed	...	£400
St. John's	320
Semper Fidelis,,	120
And the St. George's Chapter	60

From the Craft an amount of £205 has been obtained in private subscriptions from various members, and £35, the proceeds of the Masonic concert, leaving a balance of £400 still unpaid. On behalf of the committee I venture earnestly to solicit donations from those who have not already had an opportunity of aiding in this work, and additional subscriptions will be thankfully received by me, or it can be placed to the credit of the Masonic Hall Trustees, at the City Bank, Exeter. The particulars of the consecration, &c., having been fully reported at the time, render it unnecessary for any comments.

Annexed I beg to hand you a list of subscriptions to the present time, and trusting to receive your kind assistance. I am, dear Sir and Brother.

Yours faithfully and fraternally,

CAB RATES IN LIVERPOOL.—Since Monday last a number of cabs have been plying in Liverpool at the rate of 6d a mile, which is a reduction of one-half upon the ordinary fare. "Hard times" are said to be the reason for the change.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—The finest remedies in the world for bad legs, old wounds, sores, and ulcers. If used according to directions given with them there is no wound, bad leg, or ulcerous sore, however ob-tinate or long standing, but will yield to their healing and curative properties. Numbers of persons who have been patients in several of the large hospitals and under the care of eminent surgeons, without deriving the slightest benefit, have been thoroughly cured by Holloway's Ointment and Pills, for glandular swellings, tumours, scurvy, and diseases of the skin there is no medicine that can be used with so good an effect. In fact, in the worst forms of disease, dependent upon the condition of the blood, these medicines, if used conjointly, are irresistible,—

From Berlin is announced the death of Professor Lucas, director of the Academy of Architecture.

Professor Ebers, the German novelist, who has furnished such curious studies of ancient Egyptian life in his "Egyptian Princess" and "Uarda," has completed a new novel, "Homo Sum," laid in the time of Constantine.

Bach's cantata, "My Spirit was in heaviness," will be sung, with orchestral accompaniment, at St. Anne's Church, Soho, under the direction of Mr. Barnby, every Friday evening during Advent, commencing December 27th.

Herr Wagner's Dramatic School at Bayreuth, wherein students are to trained especially for the representation of his operas, opens on January 1st.

The ground round St. Paul's Cathedral is shortly to be laid out as a public garden. The palings will be lowered and trees planted, and pathways made.

Temple Bar's days are now numbered, the tenders for its removal are invited, the applications to be sent in by the 12th inst.

It is stated that the jewels stolen from the Countess of Aberdeen at Halstead Place, Sevenoaks, were even more valuable than was at first announced (£5,000), but no precise estimate of her ladyship's loss has been published. The property which the thieves overlooked is said to be worth twice as much as was stated last week.

In India last year 48,000 cattle were destroyed by wild animals and venomous snakes; and 22,357 wild animals and 270,185 poisonous snakes were killed; 12,075 rupees had been expended in rewards. In the current year 19,173 persons and 54,830 cattle have been killed, and 1,24,574 rupees expended in rewards. In the central provinces the deaths from this cause increased from 610 in 1875 to 1,098 in 1876.

The Postmaster-General announces that the present half-penny newspaper wrappers will shortly be replaced by others of a better quality, which may be procured singly or in any number, at the following rates:—one for  $\frac{1}{4}$ d., two for  $\frac{1}{2}$ d., three for  $\frac{3}{4}$ d., four for  $1\frac{1}{4}$ d., five for  $1\frac{1}{2}$ d., six for  $1\frac{3}{4}$ d., and so on. They may also be obtained uncut in quarter reams, containing 120 sheets of fourteen wrappers each, on special application, at the rate of  $\pounds 3$  18s. per quarter ream.

A PLANTAGENET TOMB.—"Langley Regis" writes:—"that the remains recently discovered in King's Langley Church are believed to be those of Edmund de Langley and not his twin daughters, as stated, but his wife Isabel, and their daughter Constance. The subject is undergoing thorough investigation, and much interesting matter in reference to it may be expected to appear before long. The discovery is of a singularly interesting nature, especially when we bear in mind that Edmund de Langley—the fifth son of Edward III. and founder of the House of York, as John of Gaunt, the fourth son, was of the House of Lancaster—was a direct lineal ancestor of Her Majesty the Queen."

The new wing of Mount Stuart House, the residence of the Marquis of Bute, situated five miles from Rothesay, was on fire on Monday. The fire broke out at about 11 a.m. in a servant's bedroom on the upper story, and spread with great rapidity. The apparatus for extinguishing flames was very defective. The Marquis and Marchioness were from home, but are expected daily. The extent of the damage done is not mentioned. The seat, which had just been newly decorated at great cost, was built in 1718 by James, second Earl of Bute.

SOUTH AFRICAN DIAMONDS.—News from the South African diamond fields states that during October a magnificent gem of 5½ carats weight—a pure white frosted stone without spot or flaw—was found by Messrs. Sole, Conolly, and Manning in their gully in Dutoitspan. It is stated that 3000*l.* has been refused for it. Another diamond of more than 100 carats has been found in the Kimberley Mine, but its quality was not equal to its weight.

VICTORIA PHILOSOPHICAL INSTITUTE.—The opening meeting of the thirteenth session of this society was held recently, Mr. C. Brooke, M.D., F.R.S., in the chair. Many new members were elected, including the President of Wisconsin University, and Professor Heer, of Zurich, the recipient of the Royal Society's gold medal for 1877. The list of authors of papers for the session includes the names of ten professors of English and foreign Universities, &c. The number of the society's members has increased in spite of those adverse influences which have this year affected almost every society and institution, and now approach 800. The paper of the evening was read by Mr. J. E. Howard, F.R.S., and referred to the advances which modern science has made in regard to nature, and to the value of "a slow, but sure path of induction."

The Freemason,

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 8, 1877.

THE MEETING OF GRAND LODGE.

Our prophecy of last week has been perfectly made good. Grand Lodge has dealt with the question of the Grand Orient and Hebrew Petitions in a thoroughly wise and practical manner. The Pro Grand Master, in a speech of great power, introduced the recent unwise proceedings to the notice of the English Grand Lodge in words which commanded the hearty assent and warm plaudits of a crowded Grand Lodge. But as that "burning question" has been referred to a committee to report on, we forbear to discuss it now at any greater length, further than to say that the opinion of our English brethren on the subject is as unanimous as it is happily unequivocal! We think that on the whole, Grand Lodge has taken the proper course in the matter. Bro. Simpson, whose speech was marked by much eloquence, introduced his resolutions, which gave rise to a lengthened discussion. At the conclusion, in deference to the urgent desire of Lord Carnarvon, he wisely withdrew the two resolutions, which had led to much debate, and which we fancy had he not done so, would have been negated by a large adverse majority. Indeed, after the able, and forcible, and convincing speech of the Grand Registrar, and the sound and statesman-like warning of Lord Carnarvon, there could be but one result and opinion in Grand Lodge. As we ventured to hint last week, a grave objection lay at the root of Bro. Simpson's motion, namely, the interference with another independent Grand Lodge, and this point, indeed, became the "pivot" on which the whole long and able debate turned. Whether we have regard to the speeches of Bros. Simpson and Hutton, Bro. Lord Tenterden, and the various Hebrew brethren who spoke, too much praise cannot be accorded to the tone and temper of the orators. As a reply to an able address, Bro. McIntyre's certainly appeared to us to be one of the most forcible and crushing we have heard for some time past, and seemed instant to obtain the adhesion of the majority of Grand Lodge. As regards the abstract question in dispute there was practically no difference of opinion. The exclusion of the Hebrews was unequivocally condemned, and their admission considered to be a question of time? Indeed, we feel perfectly convinced, that such un-Masonic restrictions must ere long be removed. But a grave question cropped up. Had we in the English Grand Lodge a right to pass a resolution affecting the internal discipline of an independent Grand Lodge? In the case of the Grand Orient, its proceedings involved momentous consequences, and were a revolutionary innovation, but in the case of the Grand Lodge of the Three Globes, it was acting on the same rules it had clung to for 130 years. How then, could Grand Lodge be justified in addressing it on its internal regulations? Would it not, in so doing, be acting "ultra vires?" After Bro. McIntyre's speech there could only be one reply to such questions, and further, we had clearly no right in our Grand Lodge to find fault with the rules of any independent Grand Lodge, however much we might object to them, unless, indeed, by some regrettable innovation they departed from the recognized laud-marks of Freemasonry. But the Grand Lodge of the Three Globes had always acted on these laws, and how could we call such exclusion an innovation? Remembering that up to 1813, we in England had used Christian prayers, more or less, bearing in mind that Christian prayers are still used in Ireland and Scotland, and that it was only in 1813 that we in England wisely laid down our more Cosmopolitan laws; it would have placed Grand Lodge, in our opinion, in a very unsafe position, if it had gone out of its way to censure another Grand Lodge. It seemed, too, that these very German Grand Lodges received our certificates, admitted our Hebrew brethren as visitors, but refused them as joining members. Could we compel other Grand Lodges to accept our brethren on the ballot? Certainly not! that was a proposition which all the eloquence of Bro. Simpson could not make good. So on the whole we are very much satisfied with the discussion and the decision. We trust that in due time the just rights of our Hebrew brethren will be acknowledged everywhere, and that the German Grand Lodges will one and all expunge these unwise and intolerant regulations from their constitutions. We may add that the appeals which were heard were very interesting, and after the lucid explanation of the Grand Registrar, the decisions come to by Grand Lodge were in accordance both with Masonic law and Masonic justice. All the brethren felt how admirably and how ably Lord Carnarvon presided over this most important meeting of Grand Lodge, and how much the brethren owed alike to his impartial ruling and his eloquent addresses.

SPECIAL LODGES.

Another special lodge, the "Kaiser-i-Hind lodge," has been added to our roll, and its proceedings seem to call for a few words of comment and appreciation. We have already stated that in principle we are favourable to this system, as a protest against the prevailing tendency of indiscriminate admission. No one can fady describe at this moment, the extraordinary idea which seems to have affected the minds of many, that they have a right to select a particular lodge, and to enter therein, whether the brethren like it or not. It is not too much to say that at the moment we write, as it appears to us, the existence of Freemasonry is jeopardized, its prestige greatly impaired by the haste of indiscriminate admission, by the desire of lodges evidently to increase their funds, and extend their lodge roll. We feel quite sure of this, that many are entering Freemasonry just now from a wrong motive, yes, even from sordid views,—for what Freemasonry can give, for what they can get some day, if need be, out of so rich and influential an Order. Now all this is a great evil, and portends a great weakening of Masonic influence and value. It is diametrically in opposition to the whole teaching of Freemasonry on the subject, and antagonizes all those safeguards which our Order has so carefully thrown around admission to our mysteries, and reception of our "aporrata." We think, then, that this formation of special lodges is justifiable and even advisable in the highest degree. We have long been sensible of this weak point in our Masonic system, and as a very distinguished brother well put it, the other evening, no one has a right to introduce or recommend any one into a lodge whom he could not safely introduce into his own family circle, and whom he was ashamed to acknowledge at all times and under all circumstances. We have long foreseen that the time must come, for every interest, personal, social, charitable, and Masonic, when we must tighten up our "stakes" brush up our hedges, and set our faces firmly against this indiscriminate admission into Freemasonry! The Kaiser-i-Hind Lodge is meant mainly for military men who have served in India, and those connected with India, and for Officers of the Army. We wish it all success. If we may judge of its future by its first appearance, we should say that it had a most useful Masonic career in its own hands, under the presidency of Bro. Captain Burton, and such officers as Major Blake and others. We cannot doubt that it will speedily "go to the front," and we can only trust that all its after meetings will be as pleasant as that which attended its first appearance in the Masonic world. We congratulate Bro. Dr. Ramsay on the successful result of so many laborious efforts, and so much careful forethought. We call attention to a detailed report of its proceedings elsewhere.

KENNING'S MASONIC CYCLOPEDIA.

Dear Bro. Kenning,—

I am happy to inform you, that by the time these lines reach the eyes of your many readers, the whole of the copy for the Cyclopædia will be, in a few days, in the hands of the printers, and that the delivery of the Cyclopædia to the subscribers is now only a question of printing arrangements.

Owing to the help of a very kind and valued friend, who has taken the concluding letters of the alphabet, all my own lengthened contributions being completed, are now being set up, and from the quantity of proof I almost daily receive, I see no reason, why the Cyclopædia should not be delivered, (D.V.), during the month of January, 1878.

If any of your subscribers complain of the length of time employed, I can only say, I wish fervently, that they had had the work to do, as, though I thought I had measured out my work, I was quite overwhelmed when I set to compile, by the amount of unforeseen references, which required time and toil. And the reason is this. I began my work before the appearance of Mackey's great work. His system of ample treatment required, that in any subsequent Cyclopædia the same research should be employed. The consequence was that much of my work had to be done "de novo," and that I had, when I had prepared some articles, to re-open the question, and re-consider my own conclusions. But at last, I am pleased to think, that my work is ended, and that very soon, in the handsome cover you have so liberally provided, "Kenning's Masonic Cyclopædia" will be in the hands of your many and I will add patient subscribers.

They say "Finis coronat opus," and I trust that when they receive the Cyclopædia, our friends will not grudge the time spent over it, as if in the case of any similar book ever published in this world, theirs will be "value received."

I am, dear Bro. Kenning, yours most fraternally,
THE EDITOR.

P.S.—Would it not be well to give lodges and brethren until January to subscribe to the Cyclopædia? It will make no practical difference to you, but may make much to them. Let the subscription list remain open to January 2, 1878, and then close finally, so that we may publish the list of subscribers. THE EDITOR.

"BELIEF IN GOD."

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

The Grand Lodge of England is to the Masonic world what British territory is to the nation; liberty of conscience being the prerogative of the English Freemason; liberty of person being the privilege of the English subject.

But even as admittance into the palladium of British rights demands subjection to the laws of the land, so does reception into the fellowship of true Freemasonry crave acknowledgment of our creed—and our creed is this:—

"Belief in the Supreme Architect of the Universe—the Most High God."

This is the first landmark of Freemasonry; the "central point to be found in every true and rightly-constructed lodge, from which no true Master will stray."

Around that central point is described a circle—the circle of the Universe—the axiomatic symbol of eternity.

On the uttermost North and uttermost South, the periphery of that circle is bounded by two parallel right-lines, of which that on the North is typical, according to the old charges, of St. John the Baptist, while that on the South foreshadows on St. John the Evangelist, in other words "the first parallel being Nature, and the second parallel Religion, Knowledge and Faith," the two eternal pillars of all truth; the right lines that never meet, and therefore never contravene, but ever coinciding, whether we comprehend their concordance or not, arising in the infinity of eternal truth and undeviatingly directed to the revelation of that wisdom is everlasting life.

These are the first landmarks of Freemasonry, without which there can be no justly constituted lodge; and the Grand Lodge that endeavours to evade or ignore these landmarks will only succeed in taking its ground outside the pale of true Freemasonry.

There is no swearing away, or ranting away, or hushing away this fact, that the very first landmark of Freemasonry is belief in the Supreme Architect of the Universe, the Most High God.

You may belong to a secret society, holding its meetings under all the forms of Masonry; you may know your ritual by heart, and be able to interpret the hidden meaning of all the grips, and words, and signs; but, if you acknowledge not the first landmark of our Craft, you are no Freemason, and the secret society, whose meetings you denominate as a lodge, is a mockery and a rotten shell, that contains no seed, and never can bring forth aught but ashes.

Yours fraternally,

ROBERT LAING.

GRAND LODGES.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Last Saturday you gave an interesting account of Freemasonry in Australia. At the banquet after the installation of the W.M. of the Yarra Yarra Lodge, No. 714, it is reported that Bro. Dixon returned thanks on behalf of the English Constitution, Bro. T Ford for the Scotch, and Bro. A. Hail for the Irish. All of us—English, Scotch or Irish, at home or abroad—acknowledge but one Queen and one Prince of Wales, why not one Grand Master?

Yours faithfully and fraternally,

THE SECRETARY OF No. 38.

PAST GRAND PURSUIVANT.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

The recent letters in your valuable periodical show that a doubt exists as to whether or not the office of Provincial Grand Pursuivant carries Past Rank. I, therefore, beg to submit for publication copy of a letter received by me from the Grand Secretary in reply to my enquiry. The Grand Registrar's opinion of course settles the point beyond question.

Yours fraternally,

THEO LANE, J.W. 120,
P.P.G.P., Herefordshire.

[COPY.]

Freemasons' Hall, London, W.C., 27th Nov., 1877.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In answer to the enquiry made in your note of the 20th inst., I beg to say that I have consulted the Grand Registrar on the point, and he is of opinion that a Provincial Grand Pursuivant, under Article 2, page 51, Book of Constitutions, is entitled to wear his P.P.G.L. clothing.

Yours fraternally,

JOHN HARVEY.

NOTICES OF MOTION.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In the province of North Wales and Shropshire we have had a set of new Bye-laws, many of which in the opinion of the brethren want revising, for which purpose on October 30th, 1877, I wrote to the Prov. Grand Secretary, asking him to place on the agenda for the next Prov. Grand Lodge, notice of motion to consider revision of Bye-laws Nos. 43, 47, 66, 70, and 71.

NOTICES OF MOTION.

No. 43 says: "It being essential to the interests of the Craft, that all matters of business to be brought under the consideration of the P.G. Lodge should be known previously to the P.G. Officers and Masters of Lodges; that through them all the representatives of lodges may be apprized of such business, and by having sufficient time for mature deliberation, be prepared to decide thereon. Every motion intended to be made shall be in writing and annexed thereto shall be the name and Masonic rank of the mover and the name and number of his lodge, and such motion shall be transmitted to the Provincial Grand Secretary not less than twenty-one days preceding a meeting of such Provincial Grand Lodge."

On November 27th, a Provincial Grand Lodge summons is issued for December 14th inst, at Shrewsbury, but on this summons no notice is taken of my letter of October 30th, which is more than twenty-one days preceding the date of Provincial Grand Lodge summons, and it runs thus:—

41, Broad-street, Welch Pool, Oct. 30, 1877.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I must request you to place as under on the next Prov. Grand Lodge summons and oblige yours,
D. P. OWEN, P.M. 998.

To the Prov. Grand Secretary, North Wales and Shropshire.

To consider revision of Prov. Grand Bye-laws Nos. 43, 47, 66, 70, and 71.

Now can any brother give me any idea of what is done in other provinces? Again, have I neglected (in the letter of the law), not putting the words "Welch Pool Lodge" instead of plain "Welch Pool"? Also is the "Board of General Purposes" the proper place for redress? If it is, by leaving out the word "Lodge," it is a pitiable way of getting rid of any "notices," which I know are objected to by certain Prov. Grand Officers, and the "P.M. 998" ought to be taken as sufficiently defining my Masonic rank. I am P.Z. of 998, but that has nothing to do with Craft rank. Apologising, &c.,

Yours fraternally,

D. P. OWEN, P.M. and P.Z. 998.

HONORARY MEMBERS.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I should be glad to be informed if a brother owing two years' subscription to a lodge can have them remitted and become an honorary member in one evening, without being placed on the circular, or whether any new law is established in Grand Lodge?

I am, dear Sir and Brother, yours fraternally,

C. L.

[There is no limit to the power of a lodge in such votes as you describe, except they contravene the lodge bye-laws, the Prov. bye-laws, or the Book of Constitutions. It is, however, a most unusual and, we think, very un-Masonic proceeding. If the lodge bye-laws provide notice of motion, it is, of course, an illegal act, and would be quashed on proper appeal to the Board of General Purposes. There is no new law of Grand Lodge on the subject.—Ed.]

QUERIES.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

May I request the favour of a reply to the following queries through the medium of the Freemason?

1. Would a subscribing member of a lodge undertaking the office of Tyler for certain remuneration become a "serving brother"?

2. Would a subscribing member, undertaking such office for payment, be compelled to resign his membership, and to cease paying his subscription?

A P.M.

[We answer no to each query, though it is a somewhat difficult and delicate question.—Ed.]

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Supposing a reverend brother, a M.M. but not a P.M., is invested as Chaplain of a lodge, is he legally entitled to a seat on the dais amongst the P.M.'s? A reply to this, given in the Freemason, will oblige a number of brethren.

Yours fraternally,

LEX.

[Not necessarily among the P.M.'s, but on the dais, on the right hand of the W.M. Mos est lex.—Ed.]

MASONIC SONG.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Can you, or any of your readers inform me where to obtain a Masonic Song, called "John Hart, he was a Mason good," composed and sung by Beuler?

The information would much oblige,

Yours truly,

C.M.J.

[We are unfortunately, unable to reply ourselves, but perhaps among our numerous readers, a copy may be found with the address of the publisher.—Ed.]

DEDICATION AND RE-OPENING OF THE MASONIC HALL, DUBLIN.

On Wednesday evening last, his Grace the Duke of Abercorn, K.G., K.P., Grand Master of Ireland, presided at the dedication and re-opening of the Masonic Hall, Dublin. The ceremony was conducted in the presence of a large and distinguished assemblage of the brethren, who were clothed in full insignia of the Blue Order. Amongst those present were:

Grand Officers.—His Grace the Duke of Abercorn, &c., Grand Master; B. W. Shekleton, Q.C., D.G.M.; Robert Warren, D.L., Grand Treasurer; Rev. J. J. MacSorley, Grand Chaplain; Alderman Manning, J.G.D.; G. Stephens, G.S.W.; T. E. St. George, G. Dir. of C.; G. Moyers, LL.D., Grand Steward; H. Hodges, G.S.B.; C. Grandison, Grand Organist; H. Minchin, M.D., G.I.G.; Samuel B. Oldham, D.G.S.; A. St. George, Assistant Secretary.

Past Grand Officers.—Hon Judge Townsend, Rev. Dr. Wesley, C. Cameron, M.D.; George Hepburn, B. L. Griffin, LL.D.; F. Quin, John Dunne, Mus. Doc; D. Thorp, Stuart A. Lane, W. Allen.

Representatives from Foreign Grand Lodges.—Maxwell Closr, M.P., P. C. Simply, M.D., Major Davoren, James V. Mackey, L. H. Derring, E. H. Kinahan, D.L.; Capt. Huband, J.P.; C. C. Macnamara, J. H. Goddard, G. H. Major W. Wilkinson.

Provincial Grand Officers.—Sir Charles Lanyon, George H. Smith, W. Parker, Andrew Browne, William T. Potts, George T. Tyler, W. Fetherstonhaugh, William Babington, Arthur St. George, William B. Armstrong, Colonel Cosby, B. Tiernan, M.D.; Colonel Colclough, Captain Mostyn.

Board of General Purposes.—Thomas Valentine, Hugh Leonard, Richard Harvey, James W. Fair, Major L. Thompson, James H. Macauley, John Hill, J. R. Sutcliffe, John Gallie, F. M. Scott, John Barker, M.D.; S. Hart, Charles Pompey, Samuel Bouchier, John Gerety, Robert Thacker, Morris Harris, A. Ellis, Richard Boyle, J.P.; D. J. Field Harris, J. C. Meredith, LL.B., Thomas Fitzgerald, T. H. Reilly, Thomas Craig, John Whyte, Wm. Curtis, T. J. Wright, A. Jacob, M.D.; R. M. Carnegie, Thomas McGovern, and Thomas Brunker.

There were also present a large assemblage of Past Masters, W. Masters, officers and brethren of the Dublin lodges.

On the arrival of the Most Worshipful the Grand Master, the Grand Director of Ceremonies arranged the procession, which moved to the Grand Hall in the usual order.

When the procession reached the Grand Master's chair, the Grand Officers were separately proclaimed by the Grand Director of Ceremonies, as they arrived at the station; and immediately on the Grand Master being proclaimed, a grand march was performed on the organ, during which the procession was made three times round the hall, at the termination of which the Grand Master and the other Grand Officers repaired to the seats prepared for them. The cornucopie and the vases, with the corn, wine, and oil, were laid on the altar, on which was also placed the Bible open, and the square and compasses were laid thereon, and on another pedestal was deposited the Book of Constitutions.

These arrangements having been completed, an anthem was sung.

The Grand Secretary then informed the Grand Master that the fraternity desired to have the hall dedicated to Freemasonry, according to ancient usage; upon which the Grand Master ordered the Grand Officers to assist in the ceremony, during which solemn music was continued, excepting only the intervals of dedication.

The first procession was then made around the lodge. When the Grand Master arrived at the East the music was silent, and the Grand Chaplain offered up the dedication prayer.

The response was then chanted.

The hall was then dedicated to Freemasonry, the Grand Chaplain strewing corn and pouring wine and oil, according to ancient custom.

Grand Chaplain then gave the invocation, and the response was chanted.

The grand honours were then given, and the Grand Master resumed his seat, when an anthem was sung.

The Grand Master said: Brethren, I cannot refrain from addressing to you a very few words to say how much and what heartfelt pleasure it has given me to meet the brethren again here to-day, and to be able to take part in the interesting ceremony we have just performed, I pray that the good providence and blessing of the Great Architect of the Universe may rest upon our institution, and may sanctify all our endeavours for that universal brotherhood and charity to all men, which are the aim and aspiration of all true and accepted Masons. (Applause.)

The Deputy Grand Master before closing Grand Lodge said: I have a pleasing duty; we meet here for the first time as a Grand Lodge in a room of which the Irish Masons may well be proud, the paintings and the decorations being the work of Irish artists. (Applause.) The paintings are the gift of Bro. Henry Gibson, brother of the artist and designer of the decorations. (Applause.) The carpet, a facsimile of that used at the Installation of the Prince of Wales as Grand Master of England, was presented by Bro. Lewis, of Huddersfield. (Applause.) These observations are a prelude to my pleasing task, I think we should be wanting in our duty to your grace as head of the Order if we did not return you our most grateful thanks for performing the ceremonial. As your deputy I can safely say that you have been unable to come among us as often as you would wish, but your heart has been always with us, and you have been most willing on every occasion to assist in promoting the welfare of the Order. (Applause.)

The Grand Master and several of the distinguished brethren were afterwards entertained at dinner by the Masonic Glee Union.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF LEICESTERSHIRE AND RUTLAND.

The winter half-yearly communication of this Provincial Grand Lodge was held at Freemasons' Hall, Leicester, on Wednesday, the 28th of November last, under the auspices of the Commercial Lodge, No. 1391, the chair being taken by the R.W.P.G.M., the Earl Ferrers, who was supported by R.W. Bro. W. Kelly, P.P.G.M.; W. Bros. Rev. W. Langley, as D.P.G.M.; S. S. Partridge, Prov. S.G.W.; W. B. Smith, Prov. G. Treas.; G. Toller, jun., Grand Sword Bearer, Prov. G. Sec.; and most of the other Prov. Grand Officers.

The business of the lodge was of the ordinary routine character.

For the office of Prov. Grand Treasurer, Bro. F. A. Wykes, W.M. 523, P.P.G. Org., was unanimously elected, in succession to Bro. W. Beaumont Smith, who had for many years past ably discharged the duties of that post, but on whom the P.G.M. was about to confer a higher appointment.

The statement of the Treasurer's account, which showed that the province was in a good financial position, was duly passed.

The Provincial Grand Master then appointed and invested the officers for the ensuing year, as follows:—
W. Beaumont Smith, P.M. 523.....Prov. G.S.W.
W. Hardy, jun., P.M. 1265.....Prov. G.J.W.
Rev. F. H. Richardson, 1560.....Prov. G. Chap.
T. A. Wykes, W.M. 523.....Prov. G. Treas.
C. S. Preston, W.M. 50.....Prov. G. Reg.
S. S. Partridge, P.M. 523.....Prov. G. Sec.
G. Clifton, P.M. 1391.....Prov. G. S.D.
H. Blood, jun., P.M. 779.....Prov. G.J.D.
T. Cooke, P.M. 1007.....Prov. G.S. of W.
J. B. Hall, P.M. 1391.....Prov. G.D.C.
S. Cleaver, 279.....Prov. G.A.D.C.
G. T. Willan, W.M. 1130.....Prov. G.S.B.
W. Vial, W.M. 1007.....Prov. G. Org.
M. H. Lewin, P.M. 1330.....Prov. G. Purs.
E. R. Cust, 1330.....Prov. G. A. Purs.
J. Jessop, 279.....Prov. G. St. B.
J. Farndale, 279; T. R. Pickering, 523; J. Webb, 779; R. L. Gibson, 1007; S. W. Black, 1130; and F. Pochin, 1265.....Prov. G. Stewds.
C. Bembridge and T. Dunn.....Prov. G. Tylers.

In pursuance of a recommendation of the Provincial Charity Committee, it was resolved that the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls should be the charity to receive the special support of the province during the ensuing year, and Bro. S. S. Partridge, who last year served as Steward for the Boys' Institution, was appointed to represent the Prov. Grand Lodge at the next festival of the Girls' School. The W.M. of St. Peter's Lodge invited the R.W.P.G.M., to hold the next summer half-yearly meeting of Prov. Grand Lodge at Market Harborough, under the banner of his lodge (No. 1330), an invitation which his lordship was pleased to announce his intention to accept.

Several letters of apology for absence having been read, the Prov. Grand Lodge was closed in due form, and the proceedings terminated with a banquet, at which W. Bro. Clement Stretton, P.P.G.W. (Mayor of Leicester), presided, in the absence of the R.W.P.G.M., who was unable to remain.

CONSECRATION OF THE KAISER-I-HIND LODGE, No. 1724.

This newly formed lodge was consecrated on Thursday, the 29th ult., with all solemnity, at the Regent Masonic Hall, Café Royal, Regent-street. The lodge has been established in order to supply a want which has long been felt, namely the association together in Masonry of officers of the army and members of other professions who have been connected with Indian affairs. The lodge meetings will be held on the first Thursdays in May, July, September, and October, and it opens under circumstances which cannot fail to ensure prosperity. The consecration ceremony was ably performed by Bro. J. Hervey, Grand Secretary, who was assisted by Bros. the Rev. A. F. A. Woodford, P.G.C.; H. G. Buss, Assist. G.S.; and several other G.L. Officers Present and Past. Amongst those present were Bros. Capt. H. Burton, W.M. designate; Major Blake, S.W. designate; R. W. Fyer, J.W. designate; T. Fenn, P.G.D.; J. Robinson, A.G.D.C.; Dr. Ramsey, A.E. McIntyre, G.R.; A. W. Hall, P.P.S.G. W. Surrey; T. W. Whitmarsh, P.M. 1150; E. March, P.M. Grand Stewards' Lodge; J. Hawes, 143, P.G.C. Middx.; Sir C. Bright, W.M. 1691; E. B. Webb, 259; Morrimer, 617; Capt. Pratt, S. C. Dibdin (Sec. pro. tem.); Lieut. Col. E. H. Vincent, Capt. C. H. Sampson, S. H. d'Avignon, E. B. Bright, 780; Nassau Lees, 259; J. Wilkinson, 1248; W. O. Goldsmith, 1531 (Freemason); C. B. Payne, G. Tyler; C. T. Speight, Prov. G. Tyler Surrey; and others.

The brethren having entered the lodge room in procession, the Grand Secretary assumed the chair, and had as his S.W. Bro. T. Fenn, P.G.D., and as his J.W., Bro. F. Robinson, A.G.D.C.; Bro. H. Buss, Asst. Grand Secretary, acting as D.C. The lodge having been opened in the Three Degrees, the following address was delivered by the Grand Secretary:—

It is hardly necessary for me to say for what purpose we are assembled here this evening. We are assembled to consecrate this new lodge, and to bring it into existence. I think in doing so we may congratulate ourselves on the good way in which in England our Masonic lodges go on. They progress at a great rate, and sometimes, I think, at almost too fast a rate; but still while they progress as they now are doing here, and while they are composed of such gentlemen as we now see around us, I must say I do not think that then they can progress too swiftly. (Applause.) The danger is in what I should call the second-rate lodges—the fear that a great many come into our assemblies simply for what they can get out of it. We are, as you know, in this country very highly patronised; we have the Heir Apparent to the Crown at our head (applause), who always takes the greatest interest in what goes on in Masonry. His Royal Highness is always fully alive to the interest of Freemasonry, and whenever I have the honour of seeing him he always expresses himself as regards the Craft in a manner to show that he knows what he is about; that he is able to give an opinion upon any point which may come before him, and that he is not one who will allow himself to be unduly dictated to. (Applause.) In our Pro Grand Master we have also another brother who stands very high, not only in Masonry, but in every position in life, and he manages to find time, notwithstanding war with the Kaffirs, the annexation of the Transvaal, and the various other difficulties he is surrounded with in the administration of the colonies of the country, he finds time—I say, to devote to Masonry a great deal of attention, and he is always ready to do all he is called upon to do in the discharge of his duties as Pro G.M. You will feel then that it is a great privilege we enjoy in this country to have two such men at our head. (Applause.) We are not, I rejoice to say, at the present moment in the position of our friends across the Channel. We are not setting up a new idea of Masonry, we are not following the example of those who are, I am afraid, laying the axe at the root of the tree. I believe that unless a man believes in the Great Architect of the Universe we had better be without him in our ranks, and I am satisfied that those who are around me in this room would not allow him to enter. (Applause.) What the result of the action of the Grand Orient will be I am afraid to say—indeed it is impossible to foresee—but I very much fear that it will lead to a great deal of schism. I am glad to see that we adhere to our old formula. (Applause.) We do not wish to throw new light on Freemasonry in this nineteenth century, but we go on in our old track, and we find and have proved that it is a prosperous one. (Applause.) Worshipful Master designate, I might, I think, now venture to give you a little advice in the conduct of your lodge. It occurs in the conduct of a lodge that a great deal depends upon the W.M. On many occasions I have mentioned the necessity of performing the ceremonies in a manner that should command the attention and the sympathy of the candidate who presents himself for initiation. I believe a great many candidates come into lodges and afterwards croak at the Craft, because they have been initiated in a slovenly manner, and because they are not impressed, and do not feel satisfied with what occurred. As to the officers of the lodge, unless they work well and harmoniously together, and in unison with the Master, it is impossible that matters can progress satisfactorily. If any one officer is not equal to the post he has undertaken to fulfil, he is simply like a fiddle out of tune in an orchestra, and the whole effect is marred. (Applause.) I do hope, W.M., that you and your officers will think it worth while, as you thought it worth while to obtain a warrant, to work up in such a manner as not only to command the sympathy of the Craft in general, but to show those who are initiated that they have come into a society where the ruling powers take great care to do that which is right, and not only that, but what is necessary to impress the candidate with a proper feeling of what is taking place around him. (Applause.) I fear I am travelling a little out of the record in giving this advice, but as an old Mason, as one who has worked hard in the Craft, and as one who since he first entered a lodge has the feeling that he had done his duty, I am sure you will extend your indulgence. (Applause.) I do not say that it is necessary the I.G. should be able to take the S.W.'s post, but the officers ought at any rate to make themselves masters of the offices they have undertaken to fulfil. One thing I would impress is to be punctual in attendance, because if any officer is away when the lodge is opened the Master cannot get on efficiently with the work, and is placed in a great difficulty. I am afraid you will think I am detaining you too long, but I have the interest of the Craft much at heart, and Masonry much at heart, and my very able friend at the other end, who is one of the best Masons in England, will join with me in saying that if my advice is adopted it is one of the best things which can happen in the interest of the lodge. (Applause.)

The opening prayer having been impressively rendered by Bro. A. F. A. Woodford, P.G.C., the petition and warrant were read, and the ceremony of consecration was then very ably performed, in the course of which the following oration was delivered by Bro. A. F. A. Woodford:—

V.W. Presiding Officer, Wardens, and Brethren,—I have so often had the pleasure of addressing my brethren of late, and of assisting you, V.W. Sir (always the most pleasant of duties, believe me), that I almost feel as if some slight apology was necessary for another appearance on my part, for another Oration. And yet, Sir, when I received from our esteemed Bro. Dr. Ramsey the flattering invitation to act as your Chaplain on this interesting occasion, more than one constraining motive led me to accept what I felt to be, I assure you, both a privilege and a pleasure. In the first place, like a distinguished general of our army, and an equally distinguished dignitary of our Order, I for one rejoice to think that the officers of the English army are associating themselves so much with our Masonic Order. I feel sure that I am only expressing the feelings of the Craft when I say, that the more we see of them in our lodges the better we shall be pleased, and I venture to think that they will be able to find in Freemasonry much to interest them, and much to gratify and edify intellectual minds and cultivated understandings. I am also, like all patriotic Englishmen, I make bold to say (Freemasons though we are, we are still ever patriots), always interested in all that concerns British India—tharfar-off portion of our mighty empire. And not only like some probably now present, do I remember that India is the resting place of a dear relative of my own, who found there a soldier's grave, but I look always with heartfelt sympathy on all that concerns the prestige of our name, and the beneficent sway of our "Kaiser-i-Hind" over those teeming millions. Calling to mind the history of India from the famous victory of Clive, to the last avenging effort of Lord Clyde, I think we shall all agree that time can give out no nobler annals, than those which attest the heroism and devotion of the Anglo-Saxon race on the sun-burnt plains of Hindostan. But I turn, Sir, from this fascinating topic to the more immediate object of our assembly. And if, as I observed at the outset, I am glad to be permitted to be present, to avow my sympathy with the promoters of this special lodge under so good a name, I am also pleased to be privileged at the consecration of another offshoot of our great and goodly Masonic Tree as an old Mason now, to call the attention of my brethren, (my younger brethren especially), to a few thoughts—to a few considerations, which may not be without meaning or value for our present auspicious commencement of the young life of a fresh lodge on our now wonderfully increasing roll. The only difficulty others as well as myself feel on such occasions as this, is how to vary somewhat our addresses. Excellent as is the teaching of Masonry, true as are its precepts, and charming as are its sympathies, it is very difficult to avoid repetition, and not to incur the charge of amiable sameness. If, then, I leave our "first principles" for the nonce, and go a little out of the beaten track on this specific occasion, I trust that you will pardon my effort to say something worthy of your inauguration ceremony, and if I turn for a moment from what is, however admirable, though only theoretical, to what is absolutely practical and before our eyes, so to say, at this very moment. To day, Sir, as you have pertinently observed, when we are peacefully and fraternally employed celebrating our mystic rites, consecrating a new lodge according to ancient form and under religious sanction, Freemasonry, as a system per se, is violently attacked from two quarters at once, from two opposite points of the compass. There are those who condemn Freemasonry, for instance, openly and loudly, with all the paraphernalia, too, of mediæval intolerance, because it allows persons of various religions to range under its kindly banner, and to assemble together within its expansive fold. They anathematize it officially, they sneer at it unofficially, they assail it with the open diatribe and the Jesuitical innuendo, because it humbly endeavours with gentleness and generosity to mitigate the sorrows of humanity, to pour into its ever open wounds the wine and oil of Masonic sympathy and Masonic aid. It is this peculiar union of Christian and non-Christian, the Hebrew, the Hindoo, the Parsee, and the Mahomedan, for humanitarian beneficence, and humanitarian good-will, which serves to help to point the bitter taunt, to justify the angry accusation, and to account for the "invincible ignorance" of petulant accusers of their brethren. In the first Roman Catholic Bull of Clement XII, against Freemasons in 1738, Freemasonry was openly condemned "ex Cathedra Petri," why? but because it allowed persons, "cujuscumque religionis et sectæ homines," to assemble themselves together, qua Freemasons; and that Sir, which was a grave charge against us then, 140 years ago, is still, as you know, a favourite complaint with many persons to-day. We actually do—yes, we infatuate Freemasons, do look upon those who differ from us in belief as brethren of the common dust. Yes, I repeat, we are unprincipled and so latitudinarian as to think our "doxy" is not actually or necessarily a another person's "doxy," and there are such things possible in the world as liberty of conscience, the sanctity of personal belief, that persecution is debasing and proscription irreligious. And, therefore, in defiance of Papal Bulls, of Cardinals' Charges, of Archbishop's "mandements," and the outcry of the smaller Ultramontane fry, we venture to hold our Masonic assemblies, imposing no test, but simply asking from all our faithful brethren an acknowledgment of the Fatherhood of God, sympathy with the brotherhood of man. We profess to pass no judgment, as indeed we cannot, on a brother's views or a brother's tenets; "to his own master, he standeth or falleth;" we condemn no difference of opinion; we object to no honest conviction; our "words are words of pleasantness and all our paths are peace." Far from us, Sir, ever be that intolerance which denounces all who do not agree with us, that bigotry which forgets that we have no moral right, any of us, to say that we are alone in possession of the truth. If the fact of gathering together on such a basis, most consonant, as I for one hold it to be, with right religion and sound morality be an offence at all, it is surely, if it be an offence, an offence only against intolerance and injustice, and can assuredly be no offence whatever against light and truth, religion and liberty and true toleration. Indeed, as I venture, Sir, to look at it to-day, this very broad foundation of Freemasonry is after all the truest test of its reality and its surest condition of vitality. It is its best and most enduring tie of cohesion and consistency, and tends to weld together and cement together, in goodly and consistent fraternity those who would otherwise have remained at an impenetrable distance. This much abused universality of Freemasonry is, I repeat, in my humble opinion, the truest evidence of its liberal profession, the most effective witness of its religious practice, and the surest guarantee for its future progress. Freemasonry, Sir, often appears to me to resemble a goodly obelisk, which towers on high, pointing to heaven. The storms of ages have beaten about it, the sand of ages has accumulated at its base, but still, there it is, defying wind and weather, the ravages of time, the march of ages, and the passions of men, and outliving all those petty controversies, all those insane contentions, which have marked, alas, too often and too sadly, the onward career of the human race. And when, Sir, we look back to day on the past history of Freemasonry and contemplate its present position, we are able, I think, to see, that one of the reasons why it still flourishes and still extends, despite the malediction of an "infallible authority," the accusation of the ignorant, and the cavils of the unjust, is just because it has remained true, (as the Great Duke once said of another body), to its "Marching Orders," "Brotherly Love, Relief, and Truth." And sure am I of this, that we who form part of the lodges happily under the Grand Lodge of England will never surrender, for any reason whatever, those distinguishing tenets of our venerable craft, but shall feel that they in truth deserve our loyal adhesion and our unflinching support. And then, Sir, there is another position has'ly and recently taken up by a section of our Order, which I can only shortly allude to, which deserves notice and demands I venture to think, our manly and Masonic reprobation. It is an old saying that "extremes meet," and outside the lodge, we know how often in public and private life that apothegm is made good. In France, for instance, a noisy and intolerant majority has forced the Grand Orient to abjure any professed belief in God, and the reason put forward by those ardent lovers of change is, that the present constitutions keep out certain persons and create difficulties. But when we ask "who are the persons kept out, and what are the difficulties complained of," we find that those who do not and will not accept a personal God, or avow belief in God, are those for whom, under the specious cry of toleration, this momentous revolution has been effected. The only persons to be benefitted by the change, are those whom we term "Atheists," that is those who, whether belonging to Positivism or the "Morale Indépendante," decline to recognize the Great Architect and Moral Governor, the Continual Preserver and Future Judge of all Mankind. I think I shall best illustrate how this untoward change is likely to work by a little anecdote. Bro. Behr, some months back, in the Grand Orient of France (I take the fact from the "Bulletin du Grand Orient," their official publication), made this statement, which has never been denied, and I fancy cannot be refuted. Indeed, proof might be forthcoming showing that the same "animus" exists in many other French and Belgian lodges. That worthy brother, who objected most properly and ably in his speech in the Grand Orient to the proposal originally put forward, spoke as follows:—He said that he had been recently in a French lodge in Paris where the candidate was asked by the "Vénérable," amid numerous questions (which are ad libitum in France)—"Have you ever prayed to God?" "Yes," he replied, "quelquefois," (sometimes). "Sometimes?" said the Master, (I give the French) "Où, dans les circonstances très douloureuses de ma vie." (In some very mournful circumstances of my life). He had, it seems, actually prayed to God, sometimes, in sorrow. Infatuated man! And for this act of fanaticism he received twenty three black balls, and was excluded from Freemasonry. Is not comment needless? Does not argument even seem to be an impertinence under such a hopeless, senseless, godless state of things? The effect of the recent legislation can only be to discourage believers in God from entering Freemasonry, and encouraging those to ask for admission into its sodality who refuse to believe in God, who do despite to every sanction of religion, and who deliberately reject all those blessings which in the goodness of the G.A.O.T.U. flow from his message of religious credence and revealed truth to man. Sir, I only mention this painful reality but to "point the moral," if not to "adorn the tale." Thus we see how intolerance most alien from our Masonic toleration, works, if under different names, and from antagonistic points of thought and action. The Ultramontane objects to our meeting together here with Christians and non-Christians, the "Libres Penseurs," the Esprits Forts, deny our right of professing to believe in God, as Freemasons. They have, so far, in France, got the upper hand, and not only have banished the Bible from the lodges, but they now take away the only bar apparently to the admission of materialistic professors of infidelity, and actual Atheists. Surely in these things there is a warning. Yes, Sir, there is an exhortation which speaks trumpet-tongued to us when we meet in our lodges, when we consecrate a new lodge to-day. Such abnormal acts remind us of our happier truths, and our good old teaching. Do they not, as it were make us determine that we will not only "quæta non moveat," but that we will resolutely stand "super vias antiquas." Far better than any novel definition or political cry is our most true Old English Masonic Triad which has gone the old world over, "Brotherly Love, Relief and Truth? Is there not a striking message to our English Craft in these things to follow the good advice of our Royal Grand Master, to keep clear of politics, and steadily repressing hurtful cliques and noisy clamour, to adhere to the great principles of English Freemasonry, "Loyalty and Charity," the reverence of God and the love of man?

Let us not allow any one to degrade our noble and fraternal Order by infusing into it the hurtful elements of party strife, or degrading it to the level of some barbaric faction, but under our Royal Grand Master, let us hold fast resolutely by the "safe old lines," and, neither turning to the right hand or to the left, let us march on a devoted phalanx of friends and brethren, whom persecution cannot intimidate, divisions cannot destroy. A living Masonic poet, in a very pretty poem, has said; and I venture to repeat his words to you, in conclusion of my address, because I think you will appreciate both their seasonableness, their grace, and their truth:—

The voice of love, who can ignore its accents mild and pure?

It is a balm for every wound, for every grief a cure,
And our Grand Master who presides in majesty above,
Ne'er gave a richer boon to man than sweet fraternal love,
To wipe the tear from sorrow's eye, the broken heart to bind,

Will yield to us the purest bliss that we on earth can find;
Go to the desolated home, assuage the mourner's grief,
And pour into his listening ear the voice of kind relief;
More potent than the strongest spell which eloquence can cast,

Is that soft voice of magic power, not least, though mentioned last;

It gives a sacred charm to age, a matchless grace to youth,
And stands pre-eminent of all, the voice of spotless truth.
Dear brethren of the mystic tie, into your ready ears,
May all these "voices" find access, dispelling all your fears.

And when you pass within the veil, life's conflict nobly won,

May our Grand Master say to each, "Faithful and true,
Well done!"

V.W. Sir, officers and brethren, I trust that you will accept these imperfect remarks as the friendly words of an old Mason, and, as he believes, entirely an agreement with our Masonic love, and that you will permit him to express in conclusion, his sincere congratulations at the object of your meeting to-day, and his "heartly good wishes," for the future prestige, usefulness, and Masonic work of the Kaiser-i-Hind Lodge. (Applause.)

At the conclusion of the consecration ceremony, the lodge was resumed to the Second Degree, and Bro. Capt. H. Burton was presented by the D.C. as the first Master of the lodge. A Board of Installed Masters was then constituted, and the W.M. was fully installed and afterwards saluted. He then proceeded to appoint and invest his officers as follows: Bros. Major Blake, S.W.; R. W. Fyers, J.W.; Rev. A. W. Hall, P.P.S.G.W. Surrey; Chaplain; S. C. Dibdin, P.M., Sec.; S. C. Pratt, S.W.; Lieut.-Col. E. H. Vincent, J.W.; Capt. C. H. Sampson, O.; S. H. d'Avignon, I.G. C. T. Speight, Prov. G. Tyler, Surrey, was elected and invested as Tyler. A vote of thanks was passed to the Grand Officers who had assisted in the ceremony, and Bros. J. Hervey, Rev. A. F. A. Woodford, T. Fenn, McIntyre, Buss, and Robinson were elected honorary members of the lodge, a compliment which was briefly acknowledged by Bro. Rev. A. F. A. Woodford. Subsequently a banquet took place, at which the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were honoured. The speeches were of an entirely complimentary character, and the warmest wishes were expressed for the prosperity of the lodge.

The visit of the Prince and Princess of Wales to Dorsetshire during the hunting season has been fixed for Monday, January 28. They will be the guests of Lord Alington, at Crichel House.

NEW RESIDENCE FOR THE DUKE OF CONNAUGHT.—The Builder gives a view of a new mansion in course of erection at Bagshot Park, Surrey, for H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught, K.G. The old house, once the residence of the Duke of Gloucester, stood in a low situation, and having become much dilapidated has recently been pulled down. The site selected for the new structure is considerably more elevated, and commands an extensive and beautiful view. The house now building is in the Tudor style, which has been preferred to Lombard-Gothic; the materials are red brick and Portland stone. The plan is formed so as to admit of future additions when required.

GRAND MARK LODGE.

The half-yearly communication of Grand Lodge of Mark Master Masons of England, and the colonies and dependencies of the British Crown, was held on Tuesday evening, at Freemasons' Tavern. There were present the M.W. Bro. Right Hon. the Earl of Limerick, M.W.G.M.; R.W. Bros. Samuel Rawson, Prov. G.M.M., China, as Deputy G.M.; Lieut.-Gen. J. S. Brownrigg, C.B., P.G.W. as G.S.W.; Captain N. G. Philips, P.G.S.W., as G.S.W.; A. B. Cook, G.M.O.; J. J. H. Wilkins, G.S.O.; D. M. Dewar, G.J.O.; Rev. F. W. Thoyts, and Rev. T. F. Ravenshaw, G. Chaplains; V.W. Bros. Fredk. Davison, G. Treas.; H. C. Levander, G. Reg.; Fredk. Binckes, (P.G.J.W.), G. Secretary; W. Bros. A. Spears, G.J.D.; Wm. Wigginton, G. Inspector of Works; Robt. Berridge, G.D.C.; W. Spencer, P.G.A.C.; Hyde Pullen, G. Sword Bearer; J. G. Poderin, G. Standard Bearer; W. T. Belcher, D.M., G. Org.; H. W. Binckes, G. Assist. Sec.; Thos. Poore, G.I.G.; C. T. Speight, G. Tyler; Joseph Tomlinson, S. S. Pearce, George J. McKay, G. Stewards; R. W. Bros. John Wordsworth, Prov. G.M.M., Yorkshire; Hon. R.W. H. Giddy, South Africa; W. E. Gumbleton, P.G.W.; V.W. Bros. Magnus Ohren, P.G.M.O.; Thomas Meggy, P.G.M.O.; James Stevens, P.G.J.O.; W. Bros. J. C. Gregg, P.G.J.D.; Thomas Hargreaves, Geo. Neall, P.G. Supt. of Works; S. Rosenthal, Thomas Cubitt, P.G.D.C.; T. J. Sabine, P.G.A.D.C.; W. A. Barrett, P.G. Org.; J. H. Spencer, P.G.I.G.; T. R. Parker, A. Williams, C. Pelman, H. Massey (Freemason), P.G. Stewards; and the following Prov. G. Officers:—W. Bros. George Toller, jun., P.P.G.S.W. Leicestershire; John Chadwick, Prov. G. Sec. Lancashire; Reginald J. Mure, P. Prov. G.M.O., Middx. and Surrey; B. Meyer, P.G.S. Middx. and Surrey; J. B. Shackleton, P.G.D.C., Middx. and Surrey; John Wrightson, P.G.S. Middx. and Surrey; J. W. Klenck, P.G. Reg. of Marks, Middx. and Surrey; with many brethren representing the St. Mark's Lodge, No. 1, Southwark Lodge, No. 22; Caesarean Lodge, No. 74; Keystone Lodge, 107; Panmure Lodge, 139; Grosvenor Lodge, 144; Temple Lodge, 173; Duke of Connaught Lodge, 199; St. Mary's Lodge, 121; St. Cuthberga, 99.

After the opening of Grand Lodge, the minutes of Grand Lodge of 5th June last were read and confirmed.

Bro. T. J. Sabine, P.G.A.D.C., in rising to nominate a Grand Master for the ensuing year, said:—M.W.G.M. and brethren, our old and familiar friend whom none of us can shake off in our travels through life, has at last brought us round to the day when it is necessary out of respect, and in conformity with the constitutions that govern this Order, that some distinguished brother should be nominated to take his seat on the throne which you, M.W.G.M., now occupy, and which you have so well occupied for a long time past. I rise to propose to you a nobleman [whose name I am quite sure will be accepted with the greatest amount of respect, not only on account of his personal fame as a citizen and as a nobleman, but more especially on account of those varied and distinguished services which he has rendered to Freemasonry in every one of its branches, which he has hitherto touched. I refer to the Deputy Grand Master, Lord Skelmersdale. In making this proposition to Grand Lodge, I have thought it my duty to look back for a period of ten years, and to compare what Mark Masonry was in the year 1866-7 with what it is in this year, 1876-7; and I find, Sir, that Mark Masonry has made, thanks to the energy which you and your predecessors have shown with respect to this degree, most rapid strides, and I am justified in saying it has made a most tremendous success. Despite the opposition which the degree meets with—the conscientious objection, I will say—from some of the old Masons who look with some degree of affection on that wonderful decision which was taken by Grand Lodge when they united in the year 1813, an opposition which it is difficult to overcome, I find that whereas in the year 1866-7 we had then upon the roll of Grand Mark Lodge somewhere about 90 or 95 lodges, at the present time I am told by our respected Grand Secretary, we have on the roll something like 214 lodges.

Bro. Binckes, G.S.:—214 lodges in addition to the old time-immemorial lodges, which would bring the number up to 230.

Bro. Sabine:—That, of course, makes it so much the better. I have an invitation to attend the consecration of No. 211 on Saturday next, and I hear that since the warrant was granted three or four more applications for warrants have been received and granted. In 1866-7 the annual income from all sources was about £330. I find our annual income now exceeds £800. I find, further, that ten years ago, when our highly respected Past Grand Master Beach was Grand Master, the number of the Provincial Grand Lodges was five. I find at the present time the number of Provincial Grand Lodges is twenty-four. I find, further, that in 1866-7 there was no Benevolent Fund; but since then a Benevolent Fund has been started; and you may possibly remember that in 1869 some six Stewards, of whom I had the honour to be one, tried if such a thing would succeed. At the present time we have not only furnished and firmly established that Benevolent Fund, but we have invested £800, and instead of bringing in at the Benevolent Festival some £50 or £60, as we did at first, last time we got £232 or £234 by the exertions of seventeen Stewards. In 1866-7 this Grand Lodge had not on its general account one penny invested in order to meet the future claims that might arise. Now, on the General account we have £500 invested: at the period I have named we had comparatively very few members: now, I am told, they muster from 10,000 to 12,000. I think in stating these facts I am steadily showing you, M.W.G.M., and also the members of the Grand Lodge, that it is owing to the wise discretion which Grand Lodge has hitherto exercised of selecting every three years brethren of distinction, and position, and energy, to fill the throne of Grand Mark Lodge, that this success has come about. Hitherto the first Grand Masters of the Order, Lord Leigh and Lord Carnarvon, and others, laid the foundation of Mark Masonry unquestionably, and they laid it well; and it had been strongly built upon: those who succeeded them unquestionably built up a very noble superstructure; and it is for those who shall succeed you, M.W.G.M., to beautify and adorn the noble structure of Mark Masonry, and to extend its influence and teaching. I have the honour, M.W.G.M., to propose Lord Skelmersdale as the Grand Master of the Order for the ensuing year.

Grand Secretary then read the following report of the General Board:—

During the six months, ending 30th September last, the number of certificates issued has been 405, bringing the number of brethren registered as having been advanced to membership of the Order to 10,466.

In the same period charters for new lodges were granted as follows:—

- No. 203 "Vousoir," Bengal.
- " 204 "Frontier," Bengal.
- " 205 "Beaconsfield," Walthamstow.
- " 206 "Fort," Cornwall.
- " 207 "Lebanon," Bengal.
- " 208 "Rough Ashlar," Bengal.
- " 209 "St. Wilfred," Alford, Lincolnshire.
- " 210 "Vale of Brisington," Somerset.

The most successful festival yet held on behalf of the "Mark Grand Lodge Benevolent Fund" was celebrated at the Alexandra Palace on Wednesday, 1st August, under the presidency of the Right Hon. the Earl of Donoughmore, R.W. Grand Senior Warden, the contributions, through the active agency of seventeen Stewards, having reached a total of £232. There is now standing to the credit of this fund at the banker's the sum of £286 is., and the Board recommend the investment of £200, which will make a total of £800 as the invested property of the Fund of Benevolence.

Satisfactory as this result must be regarded—the work of eight years, after having provided liberally for the relief of several distressed claimants on the Fund—the Board desire again to impress upon the members of the Order generally to what a considerable extent this fund may be augmented by the establishment of a "Charity Box" in each lodge, and by the adoption of a resolution by every Provincial Grand Lodge that a brother be appointed to act as a Representative Steward at each recurring anniversary festival.

It has been suggested to the Board as highly desirable that a plan should be adopted by the Order by which the necessitous orphans of deceased Mark Masters might be assisted in their education. The Board will be glad to receive suggestions from brethren on this subject, addressed to the President.

The Board further recommend the investment of £100 on behalf of the General Fund, making a total of £500, the invested property of the General Fund.

The Board have considered two petitions for relief, and recommend in the case of—

1. Mrs. H. C., widow of the Bro. T. C., of Dorchester, whose services in behalf of the Order were exceedingly valuable, and only interrupted by his premature decease—That Grand Lodge do approve the grant of £30, and in the case of—

2. Bro. S. M. L., that the grant of £25 be approved.

With the sanction of the M.W.G.M., a circular letter with appeal in aid of the "Mansion House India Famine Fund" was issued in October last to the W.M. of every lodge, to the R.W.P.G.M.M. of every province, and individually to every Present and Past Grand Officer. In answer to this, certain contributions have been received and promised, which will be handed over to the fund.

Bro. Meggy, P.G.M.O., having undertaken to represent the Mark Degree at the ensuing Festival of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, it is recommended that a sum of £21 be voted from the Funds of Grand Lodge, to be added to his list.

The Board have the gratification of announcing to Grand Lodge the formal recognition by "The General Grand Chapter of the United States of America" of this Grand Lodge as the legitimate governing jurisdiction of the Mark Degree in England and Wales, and the colonies and possessions of the British crown other than those of Canada and North America.

The letter from the E. Comp. Grand Scribe E. of the General Grand Chapter, addressed to and forwarded by the General Representative of this Grand Lodge, Ill. Bro. Albert G. Goodall, 33, is as follows:—

"General Grand Chapter of Royal Arch Masons for the United States of America.

"Office of General Grand Secretary, Buffalo, N.Y.,

"September 12th, 1877.

"A. G. Goodall, Esq., New York City."

"Dear Sir and Companion,—I am in receipt of your favour of yesterday's date, in which you express a desire to have sent to your address an official copy of the resolution recognising the Grand Lodge of Mark Master Masons of England, &c., &c., adopted by the General Grand Chapter, in order that you may send the same to England by the mail on Friday next.

"I should be most happy to comply with your request, but just at present I find myself very busy in the preparation of the proceedings of the late Triennial Convocation for the printer's hands, an occupation that brooks no delay, and therefore cannot spare the time to suitably prepare the resolution to be presented to so distinguished a Masonic body as the Grand Mark Lodge of England in time for the purpose for which you desire it.

"I will give the matter attention early in next week, and will forward the papers directly to R.W. Bro. Binckes.

"With kindest regards, I am fraternally yours, (Signed) "CHRISTOPHER G. FOX.

"Fredk. Binckes, Grand Sec., &c., &c., London.

"Dear Sir and Brother,—Your esteemed favour of August 28th is duly received, and I now have great pleasure to inform you that the Grand Lodge of Mark Master Masons of England and Wales and Colonies and Dependencies of the British Crown was duly recognised at the last session of the General Grand Chapter of the United States, and the official communication of which will be forwarded to you by Christopher G. Fox, Grand Secretary, as you will see, per enclosed letter, that I have arranged.

"Sincerely yours,

"A. G. GOODALL."

Examined and found correct, THOS MEGGY,

15th November, 1877. Auditor.

(Signed) G. R. PORTAL, Past G.M.M.,

President.

Bro. Thoys, G.C., moved, and Bro. I. J. Hooper

Wilkins, G.S.O. seconded that this report be received and entered on the minutes.

The M.W.G.M. said: Brethren, before I put this motion to Grand Lodge I should wish to call your attention to one or two items in this report of the General Board which I think are of considerable importance and interest. It is very satisfactory, I think, to all the brethren to see the increase which has taken place in the number of new lodges; and the brethren will remark that that increase is only up to the six months ending 30th September. I think I am right in saying there are some three or four lodges established since then.

Grand Secretary: Yes!

The M.W.G.M.: So that we may say, besides the eight mentioned in the report there are three or four more lodges to be added to them. As regards the lodges so sanctioned

I might call the attention of Grand Lodge to the fact that no less than four of those lodges are for the province of Bengal. This shows what an energetic District Grand Master, with his Deputy and officers and brethren, can do in a province. The brethren will concur with me in saying that the increase in that province is deserving of the highest praise of Grand Lodge; for there must be good work done in the province to enable such an increase as that to be made. Not many weeks ago the subject of the Indian Famine Fund was brought before me, and I felt that the brethren of the Mark Degree would wish that they should not be behind other

Masonic bodies in endeavouring to render assistance to the distress which that terrible famine has caused in India. I therefore sent out a letter, as has been stated in this report.

That letter was sent out at rather a late date, and the announcement came very shortly afterwards that owing to the improved state of the weather which gave hopes of good crops in the future, no large further additions to the fund would be necessary. No doubt if it had not been for that the sum which had been contributed by the lodges of the Mark Degree would have been very considerable, but that intelligence coming very shortly after the sending out of the letter of course made many lodges and brethren think that it was not necessary to move in a manner that they otherwise would. I trust Grand Lodge will agree with me that such a calamity as that which has happened in India was one which the Grand Master of such a party as the Mark Degree could not pass over, and that I was justified in bringing it before the brethren. (Hear, hear.)

The last thing which I have to call attention to is that part of the report relative to the action taken by the General

Grand Chapter of the United States of America. We all feel the greatest pleasure and satisfaction that a body which is the governing body of all Grand Chapters and Chapters of America, a body which has under its banner by far the largest body of Royal Arch Masons and Mark

Masons in the world, has stretched forth a fraternal hand and recognised the position of this Grand Lodge as being the legitimate head of Mark Masonry in England. (Hear, hear.) I was glad when I found that we should now be able to enter into official relations with a body of Masons so eminent in every respect as are those that work under the banner of the General Grand Chapter of the United States of America. I do not think, brethren, that there is anything further which I need allude to in this report.

The subjects dealt with are of great importance, as they testify generally to the continued prosperity of Mark

Masonry in this country, and I think that justifies the hope that that distinguished brother who has been nominated to-night, and will be elected at our next meeting, will find the Order in a flourishing state when he assumes the throne; and I believe that a nomination could not be made of a brother more capable and willing to discharge the duties of the throne than our Bro. Lord Skelmersdale, the present D.G.M. (Hear, hear.)

The motion was then put and carried.

Bro. the Rev. G. R. Portal, M.A., P.G.M., thereupon rose and said: Before moving the recommendations contained in the report which has just been read, and which is also in the hands of most of the brethren here, I should just like to add to the very weighty remarks which you,

M.W.G.M., have just made, that it is impossible to exaggerate the importance of the recognition of this Grand Lodge by the General Grand Chapter of the United States. We have already been recognised by the Grand Chapter of Ireland and by the Grand Chapter of Canada. We are still unrecognised by the Grand Chapter of Scotland; but we all know how difficult it is when having once taken a wrong step to retrace it; and, therefore, I think that every excuse is to be made for them. It was, no doubt, a bitter thing for them to see the lodges in England which worked under them absorbed by this Grand Lodge; and, therefore, I am not surprised at their non-recognition of us at present. I have no doubt we shall be recognised by them, because I feel it must come not only from their fairness and good sense, but from their Masonic feeling. We know that Masonry is nowhere so strong as it is in the United States, and, therefore, I think it is impossible to exaggerate the importance of the fact of their recognising us. I should like to draw the attention of Grand Lodge to the recommendation of the Board, that a charity box should be established in each lodge; and I hope the G.M. will direct the Grand Secretary to communicate with Prov. Grand Masters in our provinces, and urge them to try and carry that resolution into effect in their respective provinces; because I am sure by that means, and appointing a Steward for our charity festival, we should have a regular and not a spasmodic contribution to our Benevolent Fund. Then, as regards the suggestion to the Board, as to assisting the necessitous orphans of deceased Mark Masters in their education, Grand Lodge is, no doubt, aware that in the north of England, as in the extreme west, there is a large Provincial Fund which is devoted to the educational assistance of the deserving children of Masons. There may be many brethren here well acquainted with the details of that fund; and what the Board wish in bringing the matter before Grand Lodge to-day is, that brethren who have had experience of the working of those funds in the north and west will be good enough to impart that experience to the General Board, and make any suggestions as to the future, which would improve the working of such a system as that. When we have been furnished with that advice the Board will be ready with a scheme which they will submit for Grand Lodge's acceptance.

The following recommendations of the Board were then put and carried:—

(a) "That a further sum of £200 Colonial Stock be purchased on account of the 'Benevolent Fund.'"

(b) "That a further sum of £100 Colonial Stock be purchased on account of the 'General Fund.'"

(c) "That a sum of £21 be voted from the funds of this Grand Lodge to the 'Royal Masonic Institution for Girls,' and placed on the list of Bro. Thomas Meggy, P.G.M.O., who has offered to represent the Mark Degree as Steward at the festival in May, 1878."

(d) Grants from Benevolent Fund:—

"That £30 be granted to the widow of the late Bro. T. C."

"That £25 be granted to Bro. S. M. L."

Bro. the Rev. G. R. Portal, P.G.M., concluded by moving the adoption of the report, which was seconded by Bro. Thomas Meggy, P.G.M.O., and carried.

Charity jewels were then presented to Bros. J. H. Spencer, J. G. Podevin, the Rev. F. W. Thoys, C. W. Wyndham, H. R. Cooper Smith, Captain J. Wordsworth, Alfred Williams, A. Middleton, and George Higgins, and an extra bar each to Bros. S. Rosenthal and F. Binckes.

Grand Secretary announced that he had received letters of apology for inability to attend from R.W. the

Rev. C. Tristram, D.C.L., P.G.C. Northumberland and Durham; Lieut.-Col. T. Davy, P.G.M. Durham; L. A. Homfray, P. G. M. Monmouth; Rev. W. K. R. Bedford, P.G.M.

Warwick and Staffordshire; W. Kelly, Pro. G.M. Leicester; Earl of Donoughmore, G.S.W.; Sir H. St. John

Halford, G.J.W.; H. Hopkins, P.G.S.W.; G. P. Brock-bank, P.G.S.W.; V.W. J. D. Moore, M.D.; G. Barlow,

P.G.M.O.; Lieut.-Col. F. Gadsden, P.G.M.O.; Rev. Dr.

Brette, G.C.; Rev. P. M. Holden, G.C.; Rev. C. R. Davy,

P.G.C.; Rev. D. J. Drakeford, P.G.C.; Rev. J. Horden

Jukes, P.G.C.; W. T. G. Irwin, D.P.G.M. Somerset;

Rev. C. W. S. Stanhope, D.P.G.M. Cheshire; W. Rowe,

G.S.D.; R. C. Else, G.S.D.; W. O. Walker, P.G.S.D;

T. W. Swinbourne, P.G.J.D.; E. T. Inskip, P.G.J.D.; T.

Trollope, P.G.D.C.; H. M. Baker, Grand Steward; A.

Greatrex, P.G.S.; T. B. Whythead, W.M. York Lodge; and R. Boggett, W.M. Humber Lodge;

Bro. Meggy, P.G.M.O., informed the Grand Master that a Mark Lodge of Improvement would be held every Wednesday evening, after the 1st January, at 2, Red Lion-square, until the end of April. It was held under the auspices of the Grosvenor Mark Lodge, and he commended it to the notice of the London brethren as an excellent mediun by which they might attain perfection in the working of the Mark ceremony, in which brethren were now somewhat deficient.

Bro. James Stevens suggested that Grand Mark Lodge should establish and aid with funds a Lodge of Improvement of its own.

Bro. Binckes said this would be contrary to the usual custom, which was that a lodge of instruction should work under a regular lodge which was amenable to Grand Lodge.

With regard to pecuniary support from Grand Lodge, as

Bro. Stevens had stated that the lodge of instruction he proposed was for metropolitan brethren, what would provincial brethren say to such a step?

Bro. Levander said the Grosvenor Lodge required no such pecuniary assistance from Grand Lodge, for they were able to pay all their expenses.

Bro. Stevens, in explanation of his remarks, said, three brethren of the Grosvenor, last Wednesday evening, were desirous that the subject should be brought before Grand Lodge. As far as he could see there was nothing in the Constitutions dealing with this matter. It might be an omission; but that subject might be referred to the General

Board. No doubt Grand Lodge would approve of a lodge of instruction under efficient management.

Bro. Meggy moved, "That it be referred to the General Board to take into consideration the question of lodges of instruction with regard to the Mark Degree, and the manner in which they should be held."

Bro. I. J. H. Wilkins seconded the motion.

Bro. Levander referred to the Book of Constitution, whose 52nd rule provided for the holding of a lodge of instruction on the day of the Half-yearly Communication of Grand Lodge. That was carried out for some time, but had now dropped.

The M.W.G.M. said his attention had been called to that rule, and it disposed of the point that all lodges of instruction should be held under private lodges. The lodge of improvement referred to in Rule 52 was held directly preceding Grand Lodge and under the authority of the Grand Master. The rule required more elasticity, and the proposal made by Bro. Meggy was a very good one.

Bro. Meggy's motion was then put and carried, and Grand Lodge was closed in due form.

FORTITUDE AND OLD CUMBERLAND LODGE (No. 12).—This very ancient lodge met on Monday last at the Ship and Turtle, Leadenhall-street. There were present Bros. Wm. Browne Kidder, W.M.; D. Nicol, S.W.; W. H. Bateman, J.W.; Henry Mower, S.D.; R. Oombes, J.D.; and W. H. G. Radderforth, I.G.; and a large attendance of the brethren. The working of the lodge was that of initiating Mr. Frederick Cantor, into the Order as a country member, the ceremony was ably performed by the W.M. After the ceremony of initiation was disposed of, and the bye-laws having been read by the Sec., Bro. Alfred Snelgrove, the lodge proceeded to ballot for the election of a W.M. for the ensuing year, when the S.W. (Bro. Nicol) was unanimously elected. Bro. Ruf, P.M., then proposed that a P.M.'s jewel should be presented to the retiring W.M., Bro. William Browne Kidder, as he had rendered the ceremonies in that lodge in such an able manner, as had not usually been done by the brethren for years past, and he felt very proud in having such a brother as the W.M. had proved himself coming into the rank of the P.M.'s, and was sure that, although his year of office had nearly expired, Masonry would not lose the good offices of Bro. Kidder. Bro. Raynam W. Stewart, P.M., said he had very great pleasure in seconding Bro. Ruf's proposition, and in doing so said he felt sure that no one who had heard Bro. Kidder do his work could but appreciate the admirable manner the ceremonies had been gone through, and the way the lodge had been governed during the year he had presided over them as W. Master. The vote was then put and unanimously carried. The W.M. then thanked the brethren for their kindness, and the lodge was closed in due form. The brethren then retired to the banquet-hall, and partook of a sumptuous banquet, such as is usually provided by those well-known caterers of the Craft, Bros. Palmers. The banquet was followed by the usual Masonic toasts of "The Most Worshipful Grand Master, H.R.H. the Prince of Wales," &c., which were respectively received by the brethren with honours. "The Health of the W.M." was then proposed by Bro. George Angold, the I.P.M., who said that it afforded him great pleasure in proposing the toast, and yet it gave him pain—he said he was a man for very few words, but what he was going to say he could assure them came from the very bottom of his heart. In giving the toast he felt a pleasure in proposing the health of such an excellent and perfect working Mason as the W.M., and pain in knowing that it was the last time he, Bro. Angold, would occupy the position as I.P.M., and of having the pleasure of sitting so near to his Worshipful brother, at least for a twelvemonth, who to hear was to admire, and he sincerely trusted that health and prosperity would attend Bro. Kidder for many years to come, a sentiment which he was sure came from the heart of every brother present. The toast was drunk with the most fraternal feelings of respect and regard. The W.M. in replying said he was unable fully to express to Bro. Angold and the brethren how sensibly he felt his gratitude was due to them for the uniform kindness which he had received during his year of office in assisting him in the discharge of his official duties, and particularly for their marked approval of his services by voting him a Past Master's jewel, which he should wear with the greatest pride and satisfaction, as an acknowledgment that the lodge was sensible that he, the W.M., had carried out to their satisfaction the duties he had undertaken, and that he felt himself highly flattered by the manner his health had been drunk by the brethren, and wished them and the lodge every possible prosperity. The W.M. then proposed "The Health of Bro. Nicol, the Worshipful Master elect." He said there was no brother more entitled to the honourable position of Worshipful Master than Bro. Nicol, and which office he was very pleased had that evening been conferred upon him by the unanimous vote of the brethren. The W.M. remarked that Bro. Nicol had already passed thirty degrees in Masonry, and had gained the confidence of the brethren by his generous disposition and his marked liberality in supporting the Masonic Charities, he being a Vice-President of one Institution, and had that evening decided to represent the lodge as Steward to the Masonic Benevolent Institution at the forthcoming festival, and then make himself a Vice-President of that one also. The toast was drunk with much enthusiasm, and on Bro. Nicol rising to reply, the brethren greeted him very loudly. Bro. Nicol said he thanked the Worshipful Master very much, and also the brethren for what they had said of him, and felt very pleased indeed for their kindness in electing him as Worshipful Master. He assured them that he would do the utmost that he could for the lodge, and for every brother in it, and he hoped that his year of office would be as pleasant to him as it had been to Bro. Kidder, for whom he had a very great regard and should never forget his kindness. Bro. Raynam W. Stewart, P.M., suggested to the brethren the propriety of voting some testimonial to Bro. Ruf, P.S. (the Treasurer of the lodge), as a mark of their approval of his excellent qualities, and the esteem in which he was held. Bro. Stewart said he would volunteer his services by calling a meeting at his office to decide what form of testimonial should be given, and he hoped that the W.M., Bro. Kidder, might during his year of office have the opportunity of presenting Bro. Ruf with the testimonial. The brethren with loud acclamation demonstrating their approval, immediately named several of the brethren to act as Committee-men. The Worshipful Master then followed on with the usual remaining formal toasts, and the brethren then separated, after spending an enjoyable evening.

LION AND LAMB LODGE (No. 192).—The December meeting of the above lodge was held on Thursday, the 6th inst., at the Cannon-street Hotel. Brethren present: Bros. Edward Jones, W.M.; Legg, S.W.; F. Fellows, J.W.; George Kenning, Treasurer; George Newman, P.M.; Thos. Cohu, P.M.; Edw. King, P.M.; Geo. Abbott, P.M.; Cook, Carter, Lucas, Pratt, Bright, Haynes, Dart, Lorkin, Sparrow, Copeland, Perkins, Kent, Mayo, Goddard, and Arkell. Visitors: Bro. Everett, P.M., and several others. The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed. The brethren supped together.

LODGE OF ISRAEL (No. 205).—The brethren of this lodge held their usual meeting at the Cannon-street Hotel, on Tuesday evening last. Bro. I. P. Cohen, the W.M., presided, and was most ably supported by his officers, Bros. A. M. Cohen, P.M. and S.W.; A. Bassington, J.W.; H. G. Phillips, S.D.; Z. Norden, I.G.; Chas. Coote, Treasurer; C. F. Hogard, P.M., Secretary; W. Littuar, P.M., and Francis Buckland, P.M. The minutes of the previous lodge meeting having been confirmed, Bros. J. H. Lobli, and H. Sol. Myers were raised to the Sublime Degree, the ceremony in each instance being most ably worked by the W.M. and his officers. A ballot was taken for Mr. Louis H. Leon, and found unanimous in his favour, and that gentleman was duly initiated. Upon the motion of Bro. A. M. Cohen, the following resolution, of which he had given notice at the previous meeting, having been duly seconded, was carried unanimously:—"That Bro. Emanuel Gompers, Bro. Joseph Raphael, and Bro. Francis Buckland, be, and they are hereby elected trustees of the Lodge of Israel Benevolent Fund in place of the present trustees, several of whom are no longer members of this lodge."

GOLDEN RULE LODGE (No. 1261).—The regular December meeting of this prosperous lodge was held at the Air-street Masonic Hall, on Tuesday, the 4th inst. Bros. Perry Godfrey, W.M.; F. G. Longley, S.W.; J. Jessup, J.W.; J. Lewis, S.D.; W. Embden, J.D.; E. Payne, Org.; H. Adkins, I.G.; Past Masters Bros. A. Cross, A. Allworth, and R. Goddard, and other brethren. Visitors: Bros. S. H. Head, P.G.S.; F. West, P.G.R. Surrey; W. H. Pannell, 180; J. Strachan, 10; A. Vyse, 92; W. Marshall, J.D. 1549; F. Fellows, S.W. 1679, J.W. 192; H. Beardshaw, 14; F. Biggs, P.M. 1261; and A. Godfrey, 193. The business of the lodge consisted of initiation of Mr. S. S. Williams, passing of Bros. R. Wrench and W. Shepherd, and raising of Bro. W. H. Lavers. The W.M. was excellent in the working of each degree. The S.W., Bro. G. Longley was unanimously elected W.M., and Bros. Wilkins, Diane and Davis appointed on the Audit Committee, and a special Past Master's jewel presented to the I.P. Master for services rendered during his year of office. The lodge was then closed in due form, and the brethren adjourned to banquet room, where a récherché banquet was well served. The W.M. here, as in lodge, was excellent, and in proposing the Officer's toast was exceedingly happy in the effective but gentlemanly manner in requesting the officers to be punctual in attendance. We quite agree with the W.M., that without punctuality a lodge cannot excel, however good in working. It is a duty officers owe to the W.M., members of lodge, and the Craft in general.

ST. CLEMENT DANE'S LODGE (No. 1351).—The monthly meeting of this lodge was held as usual at the King's Head Hotel, Strand, on the first Thursday in the month, and was, as is generally the case, well attended by those connected with the lodge, whilst several visitors were present. Bro. Geo. Wilson, the W.M., occupied the chair of K.S., and the degrees were worked; Bro. Thos. Carr was raised, and Mr. W. Henry Le May was initiated into the mysteries of our Order. Bros. Porter, S.W.; J. Wigg, J.W., were present in their respective places, as were Bros. J. Butler, S.D.; W. H. Perryman, J.D.; E. Barnes, I.G.; and during the evening amongst those whose names were duly entered in the lodge book were Bros. T. Parker, P.M. (Treas.); W. Hilton, P.M. (Sec.); D. Betts, P.M.; W. Hamilton, P.M.; W. Hale, P.M.; G. A. Littlewood, P.M.; W. Stewart, P.M.; W. Wiseman, E. Fisher, W. H. Hall (Freemason), A. Betts, A. Price, J. Welch, W. B. Date, E. Swanborough, the Rev. J. Graham, W. H. Harwar, J. B. Griev, W. Dickens, E. Metherell, J. Hodges, Isaacson, Hutton (2) and others. As the working of the lodge was nearing its conclusion, Bro. Hilton, the excellent Secretary, in terms as appropriate as expressive, called attention to the lamented death of Bro. the late respected Supt. James Mott, of the "A" division, whose cheery face and good society will unfortunately no longer be seen at this lodge. The worthy Secretary moved that a vote of condolence be sent to the family of the deceased, expressive of the great grief that the lodge has felt and they have sustained in the loss of so affectionate a father. Bro. W. H. Hall asked the W.M. to allow him to second the motion, as he was proposed in the Craft by their departed brother. He paid an eminent tribute to the goodness of the deceased, both in mind and heart, and related that how within a few hours of Bro. Mott's decease he had called on him to condole with him and give him a word of comfort in a sad domestic bereavement which had just befallen him. Bro. Hale, P.M., in terms of friendship supported the proposition, and took the opportunity of reminding the brethren of Miss Emily Mott's concert on the succeeding Friday, and during the evening he disposed of a good many tickets for that always excellent musical treat. Lodge being closed, the brethren sat down to an excellent banquet, at which the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were duly paid attention to. During the evening reference was made by the W.M. to the split with the Grand Orient of France, and there was an unmistakable manifestation on the part of the brethren that its divergence from the fundamental principle of the ancient Order of Masonry was not one to commend itself to their sympathies.

KENNINGTON LODGE (No. 1381).—A strong meeting of this lodge took place on the 4th inst., at the Surrey Club House, Kennington Oval, when there were present, amongst others, Bros. H. Higgins, W.M.; Drysdale, P.M., acting S.W.; Walls, P.G.O. Middlesex, J.W.; G. Everett, P.M. Domestic, I.P.M.; Page, P.G.S., Treas.; Street, P.M. 41, Sec.; Kohler, S.D.; Speedy, J.D.; Webb, I.G.; Honeywell, P.M.; Dobie, Asst. Org.; Robinson, D.C.; Marston, W.S.; Stokes, A.W.S.; and Past Masters Mann, Koch, Gardner, and Pope. The visitors were Bros. J. Pope, P.M. 177; G. F. Smith, G. Smith, jun., and Downies, all of 188. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, the W.M. passed Bros. Martin, Pim, Stevenson and Barry, and initiated Mr. Charles Webster, the ceremonies being carefully performed. There being no other business of importance before the lodge, it was duly closed, and the brethren adjourned to an excellent repast, which was well catered for by Bro. Timewell, and at its conclusion the preliminary and time-honoured loyal and Craft toasts were done full justice to. In proposing "The Health of the W.M., Bro. Everett, the I.P.M., that Bro. Higgins had been honourably connected with the lodge since its foundation. He had always been most punctual in his attendance, he was a most excellent working Mason, and ever ready to assist others in the discharge of their duties. He laboured under great physical difficulties in the rendering of the ritual in consequence of loss of voice, and therefore in his endeavours to surmount those difficulties he was worthy of their most warm and hearty commendations. The W.M. having briefly replied, proposed "The Initiative." In the course of his remarks he said that they had received into their Lodge that evening as a member, one who he felt assured would reflect great credit on the Kennington Lodge. He wished however, particularly to impress upon their newly-admitted brother, that amongst others there were two very important principles in Freemasonry to be remembered, namely, "Charity and Brotherly Love," which, if properly exercised, not only reflected lustre upon the brethren, but set an example worthy of being emulated by those who were strangers to their mysteries. This toast having been received with excellent "fire" the brother thus honoured made a neat reply by thanking them for the great and hearty reception they had accorded him that evening. He had been impressed with the ceremony. He had had for some time past a great desire to join their ranks, and so deep was the interest already felt by him in the Craft that he fervently hoped that he should never do anything that would disgrace Freemasonry, or lower him in the esteem of those seated round that festive board, and that if in his humble way he could advance the welfare of the Order, or promote the interests of any of its members, he would cheerfully and unhesitatingly do so. The remaining toasts, in consequence of the lateness of the hour, were given but formally, and for the same urgent reasons but briefly acknowledged.

CARNARVON LODGE (No. 1572).—The following is the reply of Bro. Terry in response to the toast of the Masonic Charities, omitted from our last:—Bro. Terry, in responding, said he rose to return thanks on behalf of the Masonic Institutions in the warmest manner he possibly could, in response to the kind way in which the W.M. had thought fit to submit the toast to the members of the Carnarvon Lodge. He felt especial pleasure in responding to the toast, because he knew that ever since the formation of the lodge it had done all it possibly could to further the interests of the three great Institutions, and he would illustrate this in the most practical form, by saying that the J.W. in the kindest manner came forward this time last year as Steward for the Benevolent Institution at the festival, in February. How successfully he carried out this Stewardship was patent to the members of the lodge, for they knew he carried in nearly £100. This was the first time since that festival that he had an opportunity of thanking the lodge for its very handsome donation of £20, which it placed on the list of Bro. Nelson Reed on that occasion. The Institution had during the present year an unexampled career of prosperity, and he believed that when the end of the present month arrived they would be able to say that the year 1877 was the most prosperous they had ever had. He thought they would total up some £42,000 or £43,000, and after such a result they might very quickly put aside altogether any remark that might be made by the outside world as to Freemasonry being an eating, drinking, and convivial society. He could merely hope that other eating, drinking and convivial societies, when they had institutions to support, might be able to show as good a result in one year as the Freemasons. He was afraid that in the coming year the Institutions would not have as much success as they had had in the past. An enormous amount of money had gone out of the country in charitable objects. To come to what the Masonic Institutions had done—the Benevolent Institution had placed thirty additional annuitants on its list; the Girls' School had taken twenty-five additional girls; and in April the Boys' School would take in twenty-one additional boys; so that there would be an increase over any preceding year of seventy-five or seventy-six persons receiving the benefits of the Institutions. He had been told by the excellent brother who was acting as I.P.M. that whether the Carnarvon Lodge was able to send a Steward or not, there would be a donation from the lodge's coffers to the Benevolent Institution. That was a promise he very much esteemed, and he should have much pride in reporting it to his committee at their next meeting. This was not only done in the Carnarvon Lodge but in others, and notably there was one, which was a representative one, of which the Assistant Grand Secretary of England, now present, was a member, which had for years and years gone by, when it was not so fashionable as now to have Stewards, sent a Steward; he spoke of the Egyptian Lodge, No. 27, which had laid a foundation and built a structure upon it which was highly honourable. Twenty-five years ago, Bro. Buss told the members of that lodge that Freemasonry was not worthy of being called Freemasonry unless some practical good resulted from its meetings. How well it had followed up those precepts might be judged of from the fact that this Egyptian Lodge was one of the most distinguished lodges in the calendar, and he (Bro. Terry) was proud to have the opportunity of saying in another lodge than Bro. Buss's own, of acknowledging what it had done in following up his advice. He hoped that many in the Carnarvon Lodge would follow so bright an example, and would support those who asked them to contribute. The Masonic Institutions could not be supported by any appeal to the outside world; they differed essentially from all others in the country; others had the whole population of England to appeal to; the Masonic Institutions could only appeal to the Craft. The brethren knew in their several spheres they were called upon to support other charities; and therefore the more honour was fit to them, that while supporting other charities they supported the Masonic Charities so well. Freemasonry was not essentially a close charity, as was evidenced by the fact that during the present year more than £5,300 had been given to objects outside the Order—£4,000 to the Lifeboat Institution, £1,000 to the Famine of India, £200 to the distress by the fire in New Brunswick, and £100 to relief in Peru. If other cases of distress arose, he was sure that at next Grand Lodge further relief would be extended. He thought this was a sufficient answer, if one was needed by a "Way-side" traveller (Bro. Goffin), when he heard Freemasons accused of being an eating, drinking, and convivial society. He ventured to hope that on the 13th February next, when the first Masonic festival of the new year would take place, some brother would volunteer his services as a Steward from this lodge, and that a sum of money would be voted for him to take up, and the prestige of the lodge be thus supported. It was on behalf of 280 poor old men and women he spoke, who were receiving a sum of £10,040 a year. The Institution had only £2300 permanent income; and it had to pay away £10,040, independent of working expenses. It was an enormous sum to raise from the individual kindly feeling of the brethren of each lodge to keep the Institution going. There were 44 candidates coming on for the next election already, and there were yet two more months in which other candidates might be added. He had no doubt therefore that there would be as many as 70 candidates clamouring for admission when next May arrived. There were now 17 vacancies only; and could the brethren in the face of that, after they had been enjoying themselves so much at the hands of the Carnarvon Lodge, refuse to support a Steward on behalf of the poor old men and poor old women. He hoped to have the pleasure of taking away with him the name of a brother who would represent the Carnarvon Lodge. He was confident there never would be an appeal made to the hearts and sympathies of the members of this lodge without a ready response being given to it, when the object was one that must commend itself to the feelings and affections of every Freemason in England.

BATH.—Royal Cumberland Lodge (No. 41).—A regular meeting of this ancient lodge was held at the Masonic Hall, Bath, on the 6th inst. The lodge was opened punctually at 7.30 p.m., the W.M. Bro. F. Wilkinson, in the chair, supported by Bro. Brown, G.S.W. of Somerset, I.P.M. 41, &c.; and Bro. Dutton, P.M., &c. The officers generally were in their usual places—Bros. Ashley, Treas., P.M.; G. Falkner, S.W.; C. Wilkinson, J.W.; F. Gummer, S.D.; W. Hunt, J.D.; P. Braham, Sec.; C. W. Radway, I.G.; Bigwood, Tyler. Captain, Robinson Steward, the Director of Ceremonies, was absent, but the duties of his office were ably performed by Bros. Moutrie, P.M. and Rubie, P.M. After the usual routine business of reading and confirming the minutes of the last regular lodge, and the emergency, held on November 21st, a candidate, Mr. John Chivers, was presented for initiation, and the ceremony was very ably, and we may say most impressively, performed by the W.M., the charge being given by the Treasurer, Bro. Ashley, P.M. After his being dismissed the lodge was opened in the Second Degree, and Bro. Wilton, having been carefully examined, was duly prepared and passed to the degree of Fellow Craft, receiving from the W.M. the privileges of this degree. The working tools were in each case presented by the S.W., Bro. Falkner, in his usual clear and impressive manner. The lodge was then closed down, and the W.M. informed the brethren that he represented the Royal Cumberland Lodge at the recent meeting of Prov. Grand Lodge at Taunton, and congratulated Bro. Brown, I.P.M., on his having received the high honour from the hands of the R.W. Prov. Grand Master of Somerset, the Earl of Carnarvon, of the collar and office of P.G.S.W. of Somerset, in recognition of his indefatigable exertions in Masonry during his connection with the Royal Cumberland Lodge, No. 41. Bro. Ashley then informed the lodge that the son of a deceased brother, highly esteemed, not only in No. 41, but in several other lodges to which he had belonged (Bro. Cooper, P.M., &c.), had been placed on the list of candidates for the Boys' School. A resolution was passed, proposed by Bro. Falkner, S.W., and seconded by Bro. Hunt, to purchase two M.M. aprons for the use of visitors in the lodge. A donation of two guineas was voted to the family of a deceased distressed brother—Sergeant Major Anderson. There were present Bros. Brewer, Wilcox, Stiles, Mann, Ames, Holmes, Sumsion Davis, Dill, Peach, Muris, Mercer, and others. The lodge was closed in perfect harmony at 10.5 p.m.

SUNDERLAND.—Phoenix Lodge (No. 94).—This old lodge held its regular monthly meeting on Dec. 5th, when Bro. W. W. Collie, S.W., and Prov. G.S. of W., was duly installed as Worshipful Master, the I.P.M., Bro. J. D. Todd, acting as Installing Master, a large number of brethren and visitors from the various lodges being present. The manner in which the interesting ceremony was done by Bro. Todd gave great satisfaction, and the very efficient manner in which the newly installed Master invested his officers, and the neat address that he gave to each officer, was the subject of much praise and applause. The lodge being closed, the brethren adjourned to refreshment. The usual Masonic and other toasts were given. The newly installed Master read a paper, giving a very graphic history of the lodge, from the first granting of the warrant down to the present time, which was received with great applause, and a very enjoyable evening was spent. The following brethren were appointed to the various offices: J. D. Todd, I.P.M.; M. Frampton, S.W.; E. Sutherland, J.W.; Jno. Riseborough, Treasurer; J. J. Stiles, Secretary; W. Whinham, Organist; J. Dixon, S.D.; T. R. Smart, J.D.; Jno. Ross, I.G.; J. W. Brown, Tyler; John Hudson and W. Bailes, Stewards.

LEICESTER.—St. John's Lodge (No. 279).—The brethren of this lodge assembled in goodly numbers at the Freemasons' Hall, Halford-street, on the 5th inst., to transact their usual monthly business, and to elect the Worshipful Master for the ensuing year. Bro. C. E. Stretton, W.M., occupied the chair, and was supported by his officers, and several Past Masters. The preliminaries having been attended to in due form, Bros. Coulson and Dr. Johnston were examined as Entered Apprentices, and passed to the degree of Fellow Craft. The ceremony was ably performed by the W.M., and Bro. Smith, P.M., gave the lecture of the degree. In consideration of the claims of many aspirants to office, Bro. C. E. Stretton declined to undertake the duties of W.M. for another year, and the choice of the brethren fell upon Bro. G. W. Statham, under whose direction the lodge is likely to be maintained in the same thorough state of efficiency that now marks it as the leading lodge of the province. During the temporary absence of the W.M. the chair was occupied by Bro. McAllister, I.P.M., and the following resolution was submitted, and carried unanimously: "That Bro. Kenning be requested to supply a Past Master's jewel, with a suitable inscription, to be presented at the installation meeting to the retiring W.M., in recognition of his valuable services during the past year." These services comprise seven initiations, ten passings, nine raisings, and three joinings. The Mayor of the borough (Bro. Clement Stretton, P.M.) visited the lodge during the evening, to witness the workmanlike manner in which his son, the young W.M., gave the finishing touch to the business of the year, and in responding to the toast of his health, the Mayor alluded to the sad phases of social life which came under his observation in the discharge of his magisterial duties, and pleasingly contrasted them with the harmony and concord which pervade a Masonic lodge.

BATH.—Lodge of Honour (No. 379).—The annual Installation meeting was held at the Masonic Hall, on Monday, Dec. 10th, when the lodge was opened at 5 p.m. by Bro. H. Gore, W.M., supported by Bros. Dr. H. Hopkins, P.P.G.S.W., acting as I.P.M.; H. Culliford Hopkins, S.W.; Dickinson, J.W.; Davis, P.M., Sec.; Johnson, J.D.; Dill, P.M. 906, as I.G.; Barrum, P.M.; and the following visitors, besides the members of 379: Bros. Gen. Doherty, P.M. 53 and 906, P.P.G.S.W.; J. L. Stothert, P.M. 53, P.P.G.S.W.; W. R. Wood, P.P.G.S.W. for Sussex; Col. Ford, P.M. 53, P.P.G.R.; F. J. Brown, P.M. 41, P.G.S.W.; Kirkham, P.P.G.J.W. for Hunts; Dill, P.M. 906, P.G. Pours; W. Smith, P.M. 53; W. Williamson, W.M. 906; S. Edwards, W.M. 53; F. Wilkinson, W.M. 41; Freeman, Steward 906. The minutes having been read and confirmed, Bro. Stothert in earnest terms solicited the support of the lodge to render help to the family of a highly respected deceased brother, especially with a view to the admission of one of his boys into the Masonic School. A grant of two guineas was made to the widow of another brother. A ballot was taken for one candidate for initiation and another for joining, both of which proved favourable. The lodge was opened in the Second Degree. Bro. Elze, D.P.G.M., then entered, was received with due honours, and took the chair of W.M. Bro. H. C. Hopkins was presented for installation by two P.M.'s, and was obligated as W.M. elect in the usual form, after which the lodge was opened in the Third Degree, and all under the rank of W.M. retired. A Board of Installed Masters was constituted, and the new W.M. was duly inducted into the chair of K.S. The Board was closed, the brethren readmitted, and the remainder of the ceremony was effectively carried out. The following appointments and investments were made: Bros. H. Gore, I.P.M. and Treas.; Dickinson, S.W.; Dr. Fisher, J.W.; Johnson, Sec.; Baldwin, S.D.; Rev. —Saunders, J.D.; Davis, P.M., kindly undertook the office of I.G. temporarily; Guzzard, Tyler. The lodge having been resumed in the Second and afterwards in the First Degree, the W.M. very neatly expressed his appreciation of the high position he then held, and gave hopes of good progress during his year of office. Two candidates were proposed, one for initiation and the other as a joining member. Votes of thanks were passed to the D.P.G.M., and also to the visitors, which were appropriately responded to by the former, and by the W.M.'s of Nos. 41 and 53 on behalf of and as representatives of the latter. The lodge was closed at 7 p.m., and an adjournment took place to the Castle Hotel for a banquet, which was provided by Bro. Rubie with his usual skill and attention to the guests. It should be added that a singular concurrence of unfortunate circumstances prevented the attendance of many old and attached members of the lodge, who had signified their intention to be present both during the Masonic proceedings and at the banquet.

STOCKTON-ON-TEES.—Tees Lodge (No. 509).—The annual festival of the above lodge was held on the 6th inst. Bro. Alex. Iley was installed Worshipful Master, the ceremony being ably performed by Bro. W. M. Watson, P.M., P.P.J.G.D. Bro. Iley being duly installed, he then appointed the following as his officers: S.W., C. M. Norman; J.W., C. Morris; Chaplain, Rev. G. Roberts; Treasurer, John Robinson; Secretary, J. S. Hart; S.D., T. Brayshaw; J.D., E. D. Brown; I.G., R. Ventren; Organist, J. Thompson; Stewards, Dr. Watson and F. L. Fullerton; Tyler, T. Trenholm. The following brethren were also present: Bros. Joseph Dods, P.M., P.P.G.S.W.; John Hunton, P.M., P.P.G.J.D.; William M. Watson, P.M., P.P.G.J.D.; Bolsover, I.P.M., P.G.R.; John Robinson, P.M., together with numerous other Past Masters. The brethren, numbering nearly 80, dined together in the banqueting hall, the newly installed Master presiding.

HARTLEPOOL.—St. Helen's Lodge (No. 531).—The annual installation and festival of this lodge was held at Hartlepool on the 6th inst., when the ceremony of installing the W.M. elect, Bro. James Horsley, was impressively performed by Bro. Dr. Moore, J.P., P.P.J.G.W. At the close of the ceremony, the W.M. appointed the following officers, viz.:—Bros. F. Bennett, S.W.; J. Spolforth, J.W.; Johnson, P.M. (Preceptor); W. Shaw, re-elected Treasurer; G. W. H. Winter, Secretary; Quincey, S.D.; Gregory, J.D.; Dring, I.G.; S. Armstrong, D.C.; Taylor, Org.; Mowbray, Tyler; Patterson, S.S.; and Garratt and Stobart, J.S. At the close of the lodge, the brethren partook of a splendid banquet, provided by Bro. C. Humble, at the Cleveland Hotel.

COCKERMOUTH.—Skiddaw Lodge (No. 1002).—The monthly meeting of this lodge was held on Tuesday evening, the 4th inst., in the lodge rooms, Station-street, Cocker-mouth. There were present Bros. R. Robinson, P.M. and Treasurer, as W.M., in the absence of Bro. W. Taylor, W.M., who, however, arrived in the middle of the business; A. Taylor, P.M. 310; Carlisle, as S.W.; W. H. Lewthwaite, P.M. and Organist, as J.W.; Dr. H. Dodgson, P.M.; Jas. Black, as Secretary, vice Bro. W. F. Lamony, P.M. and Secretary, absent in Scotland; W. Shilton, P.M.; Tom Bird, S.D.; and about a dozen others. The minutes of the preceding ordinary, as also committee meetings, having been read and confirmed, the lodge was opened in the Second Degree, and Bro. the Rev. Canon Hoskins, M.A., proved his proficiency, was entrusted, and retired. The lodge then being opened in the Third Degree, the rev. brother named was raised to the Sublime Degree of M.M. by the W.M. in the chair. The lodge was next severally reduced to the Second and First Degrees, when Messrs. Richard Harrison and John Fearon were balloted for, approved, and initiated into the mysteries and privileges of ancient Freemasonry, the W.M. in the chair, after the readmission of the initiates, also delivering the E.A.'s charge. This was election night, and Bro. James Black was almost unanimously elected W.M. for the ensuing year. Bro. Robinson, P.M., had also the honour and gratification to announce his unanimous re-election as Treasurer; whilst Bro. W. Potts was likewise re-elected Tyler for the year. The W.M. and Treasurer elect having returned thanks, the lodge was closed in form. It has been arranged to hold the festival of St. John the Evangelist for the installation of Bro. Black, W.M. elect, and investiture of officers, on New Year's Day, when it is expected there will be a large attendance of visiting brethren. Bro. Crowther Morton, the father of Skiddaw Lodge, P.M., Lodges 872 and 1267, W.M. Lodge 1660, P.P.G.S.W., who has successively installed eleven Masters of Lodge 1002, some time since intimated his wish to retire from that important duty; and the Installing Masters of the day will be Bros. R. Robinson, P.M. and Treasurer, P.P.G.S.D.; and W. F. Lamony, P.M. and Secretary, P.G. Registrar (Freemason). The musical arrangements will be under the direction of Bro. W. H. Lewthwaite, P.M. and Organist, P.G. Organist; and the Installed Master's Degree will be worked in its entirety.

LANCASTER.—Rowley Lodge (No. 1051).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held in the Masonic Rooms, Athenaeum, on the 3rd inst., Bro. T. Jackson, the W.M., presiding. There was only a moderate attendance of members of the lodge, but there was a good number of visitors. The lodge was opened in the First Degree with solemn prayer, and the minutes of the previous meeting read and confirmed. The ballot was then taken for Mr. Robert Palmer, and for Mr. William Gibbons Welch, and proved unanimous in each case. They were subsequently initiated in the order named into the mysteries of the Craft by the W.M., the working tools being delivered by the J.W. (Bro. Sheriff), and the E.A. charge by Bro. Langman, P.M. The next business was the election of W.M. for the ensuing year, when Bro. N. Helme, S.W., who would undoubtedly have been elected, in very graceful terms, and with true Masonic spirit, asked the members who intended recording their votes for him to give them to Bro. Sheriff, the J.W., who has been a Mason for something like twenty-one years, whilst he was comparatively speaking, a young member. Owing to circumstances over which he had no control Bro. Sheriff had frequently to move from one place to another, and there was a probability of his being removed from Lancaster next year. He had frequently been in office, but, owing to the circumstances stated, he had never occupied the Master's chair, and if the present opportunity was allowed to pass Bro. Sheriff might never have an opportunity of occupying it. Therefore, acknowledging the principle of senioris prioris, he (Bro. Helme) would be glad if they would transfer their votes to Bro. Sheriff, and in another year, if it was the wish of the lodge, he should be happy to receive the honour at their hands of being elected to the W.M.'s chair. The votes were then taken, and Bro. Sheriff was unanimously elected as W.M. In acknowledging his election Bro. Sheriff thanked the members for the honour done him, and also Bro. Helme for the truly Masonic spirit which he had evinced. Bro. Sly, Prov. G.J.D., was re-elected Treasurer, and A. K. Allinson, Tyler. A vote of condolence was passed to Bro. Dr. Moore, P.G.S.B. of E., on the death of his only son. The usual proclamations were then made, which elicited "heartly good wishes" from the visiting brethren, and the lodge was closed with the formalities of the Craft. An emergency meeting of the above lodge was held on the 5th inst., when Bro. W. H. Chippindale was duly passed to the degree of Fellow Craft by the W.M., the working tools being presented by the Senior Warden. The lodge was subsequently closed with the usual formalities.

MORECAMBE.—Morecambe Lodge (No. 1561).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held on Friday evening, the 7th inst., in the Masonic Hall, Edward-street. Bro. W. Duff, the W.M., presided, and there was a good attendance of members. The lodge having been opened in the First Degree with solemn prayer, the minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed. The ballot was then taken for Bro. Henry Hartley (1353), as a joining member, when he was unanimously elected. A discussion then took place as to holding a Masonic ball, when it was resolved to have one at an early date. The usual proclamations were then made, and the lodge closed in peace, love, and harmony.

HAMPTON WICK.—Wolsey Lodge (No. 1656).—A meeting of this lodge was convened at the White Hart Hotel, on the 3rd inst., when there were present, amongst others, Bros. W. Hammond, P.P.G.D. Middlesex, W.M.; B. Sharp, P.G.S. of Middlesex, S.W.; Bond, P.G.P. Surrey, J.W.; Rev. F. J. C. de Crespiigny, P.P.G.C. Middlesex, Chaplain; J. Hammond, P.M.; Jordan, W.M. 1512, Hon. I.P.M.; Ackenden, S.D. 1512 Sec.; Hurst, P.M. 1512, J.D.; Walls, P.G.O. Middlesex, I.G.; Marvin, D.C.; Scott, W.S. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, the W.M. passed Bros. Ayley, Worthington, and Murray; raised Bros. Malcolm, Duffett, and Elphick, and initiated Mr. A. Darling, the ceremonies being well and carefully performed. Bro. B. Sharp having been appointed to represent the lodge at the next festival of the Girls' School, the lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to banquet. Amongst the visitors were Bros. Inglis, P.M. Carnarvon; Pearman, and Dobie. At the conclusion of the feast the W.M. gave the customary royal and Craft toasts, both Grand and Provincial, with his accustomed point, but they were necessarily given very briefly, as the hour was advanced. "The P.G.M., the D.P.G.M., and the rest of the Grand Officers, Past and Present," was responded by the P.P.G.C., the Rev. Bro. De Crespiigny, and who immediately afterwards proposed "The W.M." In the course of his remarks he said that success had followed the W.M. in every Masonic virtue he had undertaken. He was glad that their local lodge had prospered so well, and that he fully endorsed the motion of the S.W., given that afternoon, that the lodge should be increased from 30 to 50 members, which would enable it to take a superior position in the province than it then held. Referring to their W.M. he would again say that whatever duty he took in hand he discharged it conscientiously, and that he personally felt it an honour to hold the position of Chaplain under him. The W.M. having proposed "The Health of the Initiate," who stated in his response, that it had always been the great wish of his life to become a Mason. He knew but little at present, but what he had heard that night would inspire him on occasions to listen and endeavour to learn more. In reply to the toast of "The Visitors," Bro. Inglis spoke highly of the manner in which the working had been performed that evening, and also of the kind and hospitable reception accorded to his co-visitor and himself both in and out of the lodge. "The Masonic Charities" followed. The W.M. said that they were all good Institutions, and most ably governed, the Girls' School in particular had the advantage of a most excellent Secretary, and possessed one of the very best mistresses that could possibly be found in any educational community in the country. "The Health of the Officers" came next. The S.W. in reply touched upon other matters foreign to the subject but of an interesting nature. He conjured this newly admitted brother always to bear in mind the landmarks of the Order, Brotherly Love, Relief and Truth, combined with Truth, Hope, and Charity. In speaking of the latter he said that large sums had been returned and he hoped would continue to be returned in aid of the great Masonic Charities. It was not only a duty, but a necessity, that every brother should subscribe to those Institutions as far as his means would allow, in order that the vitality of the Charities might remain unimpaired. During the evening Bros. Hurst, Walls, and others entertained the brethren. The Tyler's toast at half past ten brought the proceedings, which were throughout very successful, to a close, and the brethren separated until the first Monday in February next.

INSTRUCTION.

LONDON MASONIC CLUB.—The members of this Lodge of Instruction held their first banquet on Thursday, 29th November; Bro. Hogg, Treasurer, in the chair; Bro. Shand, Secretary, vice-chair. There were present Bros. Edell, Langton, Sharrett, Jno. White, Langton, jun., and others too numerous to mention. Visitors Bros. Stiles, W.M. 1507; Triggs, 137; Turner, and others. The usual toasts were given, and success and prosperity to the Lodge of Instruction was drunk with enthusiasm, coupled with the name of the Hon. Secretary, Bro. Shand. The brethren altogether had a most enjoyable evening at the club.

FINSBURY PARK LODGE OF INSTRUCTION (No. 1288).—This lodge of instruction (for Master Masons only) met at the Finsbury Park Tavern Holloway, on Friday, 30th November, 1877. Bros. L. R. Rogers, P.M. Burgoyne Lodge, Preceptor; John Walker, W.M. Egyptian Lodge, 127; W.M.; Thos. Press, J.W. New Finsbury Park Lodge, 1695, S.W.; H. B. D. Dunn, S.D. New Finsbury Park Lodge, 1695, J.W.; Woolley, S.D.; R. C. Frampton, J.D. New Finsbury Park Lodge, 1695, J.D.; Jeffreys, W.M., Burgoyne Lodge, I.G.; and other brethren. The lodge was opened in the First Degree, the minutes read and confirmed. The lodge was then opened in the Second Degree, Bro. Frampton, candidate for raising, was examined, entrusted, and retired. The lodge was then opened in the Third Degree and the ceremony rehearsed. The lodge was then resumed to the First Degree, Bro. Dunn candidate for initiation; ceremony rehearsed. Bro. Press was then elected W.M. for the ensuing week.

EARL OF CARNARVON LODGE OF INSTRUCTION (No. 1642).—This lodge was held on Friday, 30th November, 1877, at the Mitre Hotel, Goldborne-road, Notting-hill. Present: Bros. Penn, W.M.; Smout, Sec., S.W.; Tellisbron, J.W.; Spiegel, S.D.; Kelly, J.D.; Woodmason, I.G.; Savage, P.M., Preceptor; Murlis, P.M.; Wood, Luhtwitz, Newland, Krabb, and Collett. The W.M. opened the lodge in the Three Degrees, and the ceremony of raising was rehearsed, Bro. Kelly being the candidate. After resuming the lodge to the First Degree, the ceremony of initiation was rehearsed, Bro. Krabb being the candidate. The adjourned proposition of Bro. Spiegel was then considered, when the amendment of Bro. Penn that the Lodge of Instruction subscribe £5 to Bro. Stevens's list as Steward of the Girls' School for the mother lodge was carried, and thus this lodge of instruction, only since January last opened, becomes Life Subscriber to this Benevolent Institution. A cordial vote of thanks was recorded for the very excellent manner the W.M. worked the Third Degree for the first time, and more especially he, being only a very young Mason, has made himself so proficient and worthy of his position as W.M. of the mother lodge. Bro. Smout, sen., was elected W.M. for the next Friday.

Royal Arch.

SHEERNESS.—Adam's Chapter (No. 158).—The annual convocation of this chapter was held on Tuesday, the 27th November, in the Masonic Rooms, Victoria Hall, Sheerness. There were present Comps. William Pannell, M.E.Z.; Alexander Spear, H. and Treas.; John Bagshaw, J. and E.; Edward Penney, Thos. M. Riggs, John Hancock, Alfred Ingleton, Wm. Sullivan; and Comp. T. Tanner, Leinster Chapter, No. 387, I.C., visitor. The chapter having been opened by the Principals, and the minutes of the previous convocation read and confirmed, the ballot was taken for Comp. Lieut. Benjamin D. Acland, R.N., of the Columbia Chapter, No. 120, S.C., for affiliation, and for Bro. William Isaac, J.W. De Shurland Lodge, No. 1089, which proved unanimous in their favour. Bro. Isaac was then exalted to the Sublime Degree. At this meeting the Principals elected at the last quarterly convocation were duly installed, and placed in their respective chairs. M.E. Comps. Spears, P.Z., Z.; Bagshaw, P.Z., H.; Penney, J.; and the following officers were invested: Comps. Pannell, P.Z., Treasurer; Bagshaw, P.Z. and H., E. (re-elected); T. M. Riggs, N.; Hancock, P.S.; Garrett, First Assist. S.; Sullivan, Second Assist. S.; J. Akhurst, Janitor. After the Principals had been proclaimed and saluted, three brethren were proposed for exaltation, and some other routine business transacted, the companions adjourned to the Britannia Hotel to a banquet, when a very pleasant evening was spent.

CHAPTER OF UNITED STRENGTH (No. 228).—The second meeting of this new chapter for business was held on Tuesday, the 27th ult. At the first meeting—the new chapter opening its career with an emergency—no fewer than eleven brethren were exalted, and now more names appeared as candidates for the exaltation. The weather, however, was dreadful, and kept some of the candidates away, engagements kept others, and sickness kept one. Comp. James Terry, M.E.Z., and Comp. R. Griggs were punctually in the chapter, and bore the sorrowful intelligence to the companions, that the other Principal, Comp. Winsland, had domestic trouble which bound him to be at home, and that Comp. Smart, the Principal Sojourner, was still compelled, by reason of the same cause, to remain absent. The chapter was opened by the Principals, and Comp. Pearcey attained the high distinction (distinction being always given to merit, according to the United Strength traditions) for he was called to the H. chair, and discharged his office with a dignity and an ease which would have done credit to a companion of more experience. The office of Scribe E. was discharged by Comp. Hillhouse, P.M.; that of Scribe N. by Comp. John While, P.M. (Freemason); and the position of P.S. was held by Comp. Halford, the assistants being Comps. Killick and Edis. The ballot was taken for the brethren presented for exaltation, and Bros. John Woodman, Philip Woodman, and Dr. H. B. Bartlett, of the mother lodge, and Bro. T. H. Simmonds, of the Cornwallis Lodge, were unanimously elected. The ceremony in all its grandeur was performed with care, and the ritual was most impressively rendered throughout. Before the closing of the chapter the M.E.Z. conveyed the welcome intelligence to the chapter that the whole of the furniture had been paid for—a fact creditable to the Treasurer and founders generally, and welcome to the members. On the motion of Comp. Griggs the Principals and the Scribes were appointed a committee to draw up the bye-laws. The chapter having closed, the companions retired to the banqueting room, where they refreshed themselves after the many working hours. After the usual loyal toasts, loyalty to the Head of the State and to the Chiefs of the Craft being commended by the M.E.Z. in pointed eloquence, Comp. Griggs gave the toast of "The M.E.Z." and spoke warmly of the able and earnest manner in which the work in chapter was discharged, and of the good fortune the chapter had in securing Comp. Terry in this position of hard work. The success of the chapter was secured from the fact of Comp. Terry being associated with it, and the companions, responding to Comp. Griggs' call, heartily wished their M.E.Z. every happiness and success in life. The response given was an acknowledgment of the kindly feeling existing amongst the United Strength brethren and companions, and he then proposed "The Exaltees," who in fitting terms thanked the companions for receiving them, and spoke of the deep impression the ceremony had made upon their minds. The companions toasted the absent H. and expressed the deepest sympathy with his domestic affliction. The M.E.Z. then proposed "The Officers," and speaking of the efficiency of the Scribes and Sojourners, said that the pains they had individually taken to perfect themselves in their work, proved they were determined to emulate the efficient working of the mother lodge. Replies were given by Comps. Hillhouse and While. The evening was enlivened by some excellent singing by Comps. Cooke, Edis, Killick and Griggs.

TEIGNMOUTH.—Benevolent Chapter (No. 303).—A regular meeting was held at the Masonic Hall on Thursday, Nov. 29th. At 6.30 the chairs were taken by E. Comps. J. Strouds Short, Z.; Loram, H.; Hallett, J.; and the chapter was duly opened by them. On the admission of the other companions the other chairs were taken as follows: Comps. Ormerod, P.Z., E.; Captain Boyd Fawcett, N.; Whidborne, P. Soj.; Ball and Collins, Asst. Soj. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. A ballot was taken for Bro. Dr. Workman as a candidate for exaltation, which proved favourable. The companions having retired in compliance with a request from the first chair, Dr. Hopkins, P.Z. 328, 587, 710, took the place of Z., and having constituted a Board of Installed Principals, proceeded to instal E. Comp. Loram as Z. for the ensuing year. In turn he installed E. Comp. Hallett in the chair which he had just vacated; and afterwards the latter installed Comp. Templar as his successor in the chair of J. The Board of Installed Principals was closed. On the re-admission of the companions the Installing Z. concluded this portion of the proceedings by conducting the salutation and proclamation. The following investitures were made by the new Z., Comp. Ormerod, P.Z. as E.; Comp. Whidborne, N.; Comp. Ball, P. Soj.; Comps. Collins and Valentine, Asst. Sojs.; Hegarty, Janitor. Several matters of business were discussed, and the chapter was closed at 9 o'clock.

TORQUAY.—St. John's Chapter (No. 328).—A regular meeting was held at 5 p.m. on Tuesday, Dec. 4th, at the Masonic Hall. The first chair was taken by E. Comp. Perry, P.Z., by the request of the M.E.Z., who, as well as the Third Principal had been summoned to London jointly on business. The Second Principal was absent on account of illness. The chair of H. was therefore occupied by E. Comp. D. Watson, P.Z., and that of J. by E. Comp. Dr. Hopkins, P.Z. 328, 587, 710 who, being in the neighbourhood availed himself of the opportunity to revisit the chapter, of which he had been one of the founders and is still an honorary member. E. Comp. Harland, P.Z., was present at the opening of the Board of Installed Principals. This having been concluded, the companions were admitted; among them were Comps. Bradnee, E.; Hurrell, N.; Fullwood, Pr. Soj.; Dodge, S. Soj.; Goss, as J. Soj.; Cheneour was Janitor. The chapter was then opened. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. A ballot was taken for Bro. W. B. Dalby, M.D., as a candidate, which proving unanimously favourable, he was admitted and carefully exalted to the rank of R.A. companion by the acting Z. The Historical, Symbolical, and Mystical Lectures were all given by the acting J., and terminated amid the plaudits of those present. On the proposition of H., seconded by Z., a vote of thanks was passed to Dr. Hopkins for his presence and assistance, which he suitably acknowledged. The acting Z. laid before the members the results of an inquiry which he had been requested to make as to the pecuniary position of the chapter. He reported the accounts as being now in a very clear state, and though there is still a small arrear of debt, congratulated the members on the satisfactory financial condition, seeing that all the beautiful furniture is paid for, and that only one or two small liabilities now remain, notwithstanding the great difficulties encountered four years ago, all which have been happily overcome. In a year or two there is no doubt that the chapter will be quite clear. The meeting was brought to a close at 8 o'clock, when the very intelligent candidate, now a R.A. companion, expressed himself as greatly pleased, not only with the ceremony itself, but also with the able manner in which it had been administered.

TUNBRIDGE WELLS.—The Holmesdale Chapter (No. 874).—This young and prosperous chapter held their regular meeting on Monday, 3rd, at the Royal Sussex Hotel. The chapter was opened and the minutes of the previous convocation were read, confirmed, and signed by the M.E.Z. Among those present were Comps. B. S. Willmott, M.E.Z.; W. Delves, H.; W. Stevens, P.Z. 862, J.; R. W. Delves, S.E.; W. B. Bacon, S.N.; H. D. Williams, P.S.; Jas. Bass, 1st A.S.; C. Graham, 2nd A.S. The visitors were Comps. S. Smout Grist, G. Penn, and J. High all of No. 862. Comp. Willmott having vacated the chair in favour of Comp. Rev. J. Robinson, P.Z., P.G.J. Kent, the ballot was taken for Bros. G. Langridge, P.M. 874, P.P.G.R. Kent; J. F. Bates, and C. W. Holt, which proving unanimous in their favour they were duly exalted, the ceremony being performed by Comp. Robinson in such a manner as to draw forth the special approbation of those present, and a vote of thanks was recorded to him. On Comp. Willmott taking the chair, a vote of thanks was also recorded to Comp. Stevens for his kind present of a Bible, and a fervent hope that he might long be spared to the companions of Tunbridge Wells. The bye-laws having been read and some propositions given in for candidates, the chapter was closed and the companions adjourned to an excellent repast. The usual loyal toasts were given and responded to, and the companions separated in peace and good fellowship.

Mark Masonry.

NEWPORT.—Keystone Lodge (No. 109).—The usual annual meeting of this lodge, for the purpose of installing the W.M. for the ensuing year, was held at the Masonic Hall, Dock-street, Newport, on Monday, 26th November. The following brethren were present: Bros. Wm. Watkins, W.M.; Captain S. G. Homfray, I.P.M.; Captain Alfred Thrale Perkins, S.W.; R. J. Chambers, J.W.; Walter West, M.O.; J. Horner, S.O.; W. Pickford, Treasurer; R. B. Evans, A. Taylor, S. Davies, G. Tweedy, A. McMahon, Wheeler, Gage, W. Williams, P.M., and several others. The lodge having been duly opened, an announcement was made that R.W. Bro. L. Augustus Homfray, P.G.M.M.M. of Monmouthshire, together with his Deputy, Col. Lyne, was at the door waiting admittance, and they were received in due form. The chair was then taken by Bro. Captain S. G. Homfray, P.G.S.W., who performed the ceremony of installing Bro. Captain Alfred Thrale Perkins, P.G.D.C.M.M.M., as W.M. for the next twelve months, in the same efficient manner as he performs all ceremonies in Masonry. The W.M. then appointed Bro. R. J. Chambers as S.W., and Bro. Walter West as J.W., as also his other officers. A cordial vote of thanks was then unanimously passed to R.W. Bro. Augustus Homfray, P.G.M.M.M., for his kindness in attending the lodge, together with his Deputy, Bro. Col. Lyne. Bro. L. A. Homfray acknowledged the compliment, and expressed his extreme gratification at the progress Mark Masonry was making in his province, he having received the warrant for a third Mark Lodge, to be formed at Abergavenny, under the title of St. John's Lodge, with Bro. Little, of Llanvair, as its first W.M., the descendant of a family highly esteemed in the province. The consecration would take place early in January, when he hoped to be well supported by his provincial officers. He also wished to add that the formation of the new lodge was due to the exertions of Bro. W. Williams, P.M., of the Ashlar Lodge at Tredegar, of which he was also the founder. The lodge was then closed, and the brethren adjourned to a banquet at the King's Head, presided over by W. Bro. Captain Alfred Thrale Perkins, supported by R.W. Bro. L. A. Homfray, P.G.M.M.M.; W. Bro. Col. Lyne, D.P.G.M.M.M.; W. Bro. Captain S. Geo. Homfray, P.G.S.W., and other distinguished brethren, when a most enjoyable evening was spent. We may add that the selection of Captain A. Thrale Perkins as W.M. is a most popular one in the province, he being a zealous worker in every degree in Masonry, and much beloved by the brethren of the province of Monmouthshire, and under his auspices Mark Masonry cannot fail to flourish.

Red Cross of Constantine.

COCKERMOUTH.—Dykes Conclave (No. 36).—An adjourned assembly of this conclave was held on Tuesday last, the 11th inst., in the new rooms of Skiddaw Lodge, No. 1002. The Sir Knights mustered at half-past twelve, when there were present:—Em. Sir Knight Edward Tyson, M.P.S., on the throne of C.; Em. Sir Knight T. Mardle, V.E.; Sir Knight R. Bailey, S.G.; Sir Knight T. Bird, J.G.; Em. Sir Knight W. F. Lamonby, P.S., High Prelate, as Recorder and Prefect (Freemason); Sir Knight W. H. Lewthwaite, Treasurer and Organist; Em. Sir Knight R. Robinson, P.S., Orator; Sir Knight James Quay, Herald; Sir Knight Stephen Thwaite, A. Moner; Sir Knight W. Potts, Sentinel; Sir Knights J. R. Banks, Jos. Abbott, and others. The conclave having been opened, the minutes of the previous assembly in August last were read and confirmed. The following five were then duly installed and dubbed Knights of the Order:—Bros. Jas. Black, W.M. elect Skiddaw Lodge, No. 1002; George Brash, J.D. Skiddaw Lodge, No. 1002; George Fitzgerald, Sun, Square, and Compasses Lodge, 119; H. Peacock, Skiddaw Lodge, 1002; and John J. Robinson, P.M. Lewis Lodge, 872. The ceremony was performed by the M.P.S. in the most perfect manner, this being his first appearance since enthronement in August last, and we must here take the opportunity to record that Em. Sir Knight E. Tyson is the first Sovereign in the history of Dykes Conclave who has gone through the installation ceremony without assistance from other Past Sovereigns, with the exception of Em. Sir Knight R. Robinson, who was the first Sovereign of the conclave. After the High Prelate had delivered the historical oration, three notices of motion were brought forward, the first of which was a proposition to alter the end of the financial year from January to July, when the anniversary is held. The alteration of the conclave bye-law in connection therewith (IX.) was thereupon moved by Em. Sir Knight W. F. Lamonby, seconded by Sir Knight R. Bailey, and unanimously carried. Em. Sir Knight W. F. Lamonby next proposed that the place of meeting of the conclave be removed to the new rooms of Skiddaw Lodge, in Station-street, and that the conclave pay a rent of three guineas per annum for use of said rooms. The motion was seconded by Em. Sir Knight E. Tyson, and unanimously agreed to. The third notice of motion, standing against the name of the M.P.S., was moved by him, seconded by the High Prelate, and agreed to, nem. dis., viz., "That the installation fee be one guinea, instead of two guineas, as stated in Bye-law VII., and that such bye-law be altered in accordance therewith." The conclave was then closed. Subsequently the Sir Knights passed away an hour or so in toast, sentiment, and song, and some useful hints were thrown out relative to the future well-being and prosperity of Dykes Conclave.

UNITED GRAND LODGE.

The following are the addresses of Bro. Lord Tenterden and the Grand Registrar, on the German question, omitted from our report last week:—

Lord Tenterden wished to lay before the brethren a few remarks on this subject. Although he was representative in Grand Lodge of the Grand Lodge of Germany he did not speak now in that character. He would not attempt to follow Bro. Simpson or Bro. Hutton, but would endeavour if he could to place before the brethren very shortly the facts of the case. It was not correct to call this a German question. The lodge called the Three Globes at Berlin was not the Grand Lodge of Berlin—very far from it. It was one of a very large congeries of lodges, each of which had other lodges under it. He had a long list in his hand, and without giving all he would say that among them were—the Grand National, Mother Lodge of the Three Globes, the Grand Countries Lodge of Germany, the Grand Lodge Royal York of Friendship, besides lodges at Hamburg, Frankfurt, Breslau, Dantzic, Dresden, Bayreuth, and many other places. He would not say whether the German Masons were right or wrong in what they did in this matter, but it so happened that when Freemasonry was introduced into Germany last century it was constituted on a Christian system of St. John. The Three Globes Lodge was constituted in 1740 as a Christian lodge. He would offer no opinion on this particular matter whether Masonry should be Christian or universal; but he might say that he himself had initiated Turks, Jews, and persons of all creeds and nations, and was now only stating the simple facts of the case. Brethren must understand that the lodge of the Three Globes has always been a Christian Grand Lodge, and it had certain other lodges affiliated to it. It was not a lodge for the whole of Germany; it was a particular system of Freemasonry based upon Christianity, and requiring in its members the serving of God and the knowledge of the Evangelists. He would not trouble the brethren by asking them to consider whether this was a form of Freemasonry, which Grand Lodge of England would be inclined to favour; he thought they were all of one mind on that point; but the Lodge of the Three Globes had had these principles from 1740 to the present time. It is well known that it had been considered whether it was possible to alter it. The question was mooted in 1766, 1783, 1808, 1844, and again brought forward in 1849. There did not appear to have been any illiberal feeling in the matter, but rather the opinion that having been a Christian Grand Lodge, it should be maintained and adhered to on that principle. In 1868, the question was again considered, and as far as he could ascertain, at the last revision of the constitution this very point was brought forward again, and the old constitution maintained. They held that being founded as a Christian Grand Lodge, and having existed as such, and been acknowledged as such, there were bound to remain so. There were other lodges which a person who was not a Christian could go to in Germany, and be received in. It was only in this particular lodge and those lodges affiliated to it that he could not be received. Consequently, when he went to a Christian lodge in Germany, he knocked at the wrong door. He made a mistake in doing so. That being the state of the case, Grand Lodge of England must look the matter in the face. Grand Lodge of England had acknowledged this German Grand Lodge as a Christian Lodge for 137 years, and was it quite reasonable that we should now go to them and ask them to alter the system on which they were founded. Whether it was reasonable or not he felt confident they would say and think that this was more than a friendly suggestion—that it was a deliberate interference. The case was not at all analogous to that of the Grand Orient of France. The Grand Orient had made a very recent innovation, and Grand Lodge of England had taken action in the matter. But in the case of Germany, they had proceeded for 137 years under the old constitutions on which they were founded. A brother who was not a Christian going to a Christian lodge, would find that he had knocked at the wrong door; to use a nautical expression, which he had learned from an old friend of his, an admiral, he would be endeavouring to put in his oar where there was no rowlock. He was not speaking as the representative of Germany, but only on the general question, and he asked the brethren not to support the proposition. He could not but think that whatever influence Bro. Simpson might wish to exercise by bringing forward this resolution had been already been exercised, and he would therefore ask the brethren only to support the first part of the resolution, declaring as received the 300 petitions which had been presented on this subject. For the remainder of the motion, he thought it an interference with the system of Freemasonry adopted by the Three Globes Lodge for 137 years.

Grand Registrar (Bro. E. J. McIntyre, Q.C.):—Before the debate closed rose and said: At this late hour of the evening I should not have obtruded myself on Grand Lodge, for I feel that my voice is too often heard; but I rise for the purpose of asserting a principle that I think ought to govern the decision of Grand Lodge. We are here, the Grand Lodge of England, an independent body, framing our own laws, constructing our own constitution, and I think we should consider it the height of impertinence if any other Grand Lodge should approach us and tell us what our law should be. We have to consider the laws necessary for Freemasons of this country. Up to 1813 the two Grand Lodges of England were Christian Grand Lodges. In 1813, at the time of the Union, we became a universal Grand Lodge, and Jews were admitted amongst us. The Grand Lodge of the Three Globes is as perfectly a sovereign authority as we are. They framed their constitutions more than 100 years ago; they have adhered to those constitutions; and the matter is entirely different from the position we stand in as regards the Grand Orient of France. There they make an innovation; they change their laws; but the Lodge of the Three Globes take their old constitutions, and we have taken 140 years to find out that they are wrong. If we are powerless to get them to recede to our request let us be wise enough not to make it. There is a great difference, and I hope Grand Lodge will not be misled by thinking the action of Lord Zetland is at all a matter to guide us in this question. Lord Zetland says the certificate of the Grand Lodge of England shall admit English Freemasons to German Lodges. It does so now in Germany; they receive our certificates, and admit our members. What did Lord Zetland do? He says "If you will not receive my Masonic subjects I cease to have Masonic intercourse with you." But they do receive our members. Lord Zetland never went as far as this, to say—"If you blackball one of our members who tries to be a joining member"—because it comes to this—the Masonic lodges in Germany say a man must be a Christian before we admit him to the ballot of our lodges; he shall be in them the same as one of ourselves, but we will not have him as a "joining member." When I say "as one of ourselves," I say it in this sense; with them as with us, a Mason's lodge is a Mason's Church; he may join and remain there during the ceremonies which he may properly see; it is the same as the way we admit a visiting brother. On the other hand, Bro. Simpson says we ought to make this representation, and he represents to you that the lodge of the Three Globes should admit. But it would lead to this difficulty—if they do not listen to our representation, what are we to do? Are we to send their representative home? or are we to say this—"We exclude every German Freemason that comes to our lodges; you admit all our members as your visitors; we will not admit yours." Is that what Bro. Simpson wants us to do? I say it would be a most impertinent interference. The Emperor of Germany might just as well come and say to the Queen of England, "Why is it that according to your laws a Jew cannot be Lord Chancellor? you repeal that law, or else"—what!—"or else"—what? "I can do nothing." And so in this case, we ask you to depart from your present laws, and if you do not, we will hold our tongues and say nothing. M.W.G.M., it does seem to me that it is the worst precedent in the world to set, to interfere with the laws that are deliberately arrived at by a sovereign authority; and in answer to the brother who spoke in the body of the hall, (Bro. Israel Abrahams), who complains that they will not admit to, and that Jews are excluded from Lodges in Germany, I would remind him that there are certain lodges here who only receive particular classes. The Apollo University Lodge of Oxford only receives members of the University, and it is a condition precedent to a man being put for ballot in that lodge that he should be a member of the University. In the same way we have other class lodges.

Bro. the Rev. R. J. Simpson expressed dissent.

Bro. McIntyre: My Bro. Simpson seems to dissent from what I said about the Apollo Lodge, but I know it of my own knowledge. I happen to be an honorary member myself of that lodge, and I had the honour of having the province of Oxford in my charge for five years; and I say it is a condition precedent to a man being put up for the ballot in that lodge that he should be a member of the University. Now, are we, when we find these things exist in our own lodges, that we complain of in the lodges of the Three Globes, to ask them to alter their constitutions. True, we say we do not seek to dislodge a single landmark of Freemasonry; but they say—as members of our lodges we limit the reception of brethren to the Christian brethren; and we do it because our lodges are St. John's Lodges. Here numbers of our lodges, although not nominally Christian Lodges, keep St. John's Day, knowing that in the old time we were St. John's Lodges till 1813. We are now, I am glad to say, on a much broader basis; and if at a future time the Grand Lodge of the Three Globes should see fit of its own accord to admit the members of the Jewish community into their lodges, let them do it. I am sure that Grand Lodge of England would hail that as a step in advance taken by them. But while they stand on their ancient laws and constitutions it does seem to me an extraordinary step to take, to single out this Grand Lodge at the present time for this revolution. If I had not known the contrary, I should have thought that the Grand Lodge of the Three Globes had made some innovation, and this resolution was intended to remit it. But while they are standing on their ancient rights, do not let us, for our own credit, honour, and satisfaction, make a representation to them which one sovereign state has no right to make to another, and which they may recoil from in anger.

FREEMASONRY IN THE UNITED STATES.

NEW JERSEY TO THE FORE.

There assembled at the Temple of Hiram Lodge, No. 17, F. and A. M., upwards of three hundred Masonic Masons to hear read the lodge history embraced between 1849—the year of its birth—and 1860. It was an assemblage noted on account of the many prominent men and shining lights of the fraternity present. In the east sat W. Bro. Jenne, flanked on either side by R.W. Bros. Hamilton Wallis, Senior Grand Warden; Marcus Higginbotham, District Deputy Grand Master; M. M. Droham, Junior Grand Deacon; Past Masters Hilton, Alexandra (the first Mason ever made in Hudson county), Crawford, Dickson, and Mellor, of Hiram Lodge, No. 17; W. Bro. Seymour and Past Master Page, of Enterprise Lodge; Past Junior Grand Warden Chase, of Enterprise Lodge; W. Bro. Tilden, of Rising Star Lodge; Past Masters Doggett of Bergen, and Chambers, of Manhattan Lodge, of New York; W. Bro. Burnay, of Pentalfa Lodge, New York. Before the commencement of the reading of the history, Bro. W. C. Brown, of Varick Lodge, created a surprise by presenting to the lodge a beautiful set of emblems, mounted on a handsomely enamelled frame, illustrative of the "Work" in the several degrees. They were accepted on behalf of the lodge by R. W. Bro. Hamilton Wallis. After the presentation, W. Bro. Jenne proceeded to read the history, which consumed the greater part of an hour, and was replete with interest and valuable information, especially to the brethren of Hiram Lodge, the "old Mother of Masonry in Hudson county." A letter was received from M.W. Grand Master Marshall B. Smith, regretting his inability to be present. Among the charter members of old Hiram present, were, Bro. Andrew Clerk, its first Secretary, and Bro. Grinnell, its second Treasurer. It is hoped the brethren of Hiram Lodge will take measures to have the history printed in book form, for its better preservation, as its compilation represents a vast amount of labour. We understand that it is the intention of W. Bro. Jenne to continue his good work and write up the history to as late a date as 1870.—New York Dispatch.

ON THE MOUNTAIN.

In October, 1875, Virginia Lodge, No. 3, of Nevada, held a meeting on the summit of Mount Davidson.

The meeting referred to was a Stated Communication of Virginia Lodge, No. 3, and was held on the 8th day of October, 1875. The Masonic Hall in Virginia was burned in May; the lodges then removed to Odd Fellows' Hall, which was burned a few days before the meeting on the mountain. Bro. Albert Hires, the Worshipful Master of Virginia Lodge, at the solicitation of the Grand Master, W.M. Robert W. Bollen, notified the members to meet in regular communication on the summit of Mount Davidson, which is seven thousand eight hundred and twenty-seven feet above the level of the sea, and nearly seventeen hundred feet above the city of Virginia.

The summit of the mountain is a pointed mass of broken granite, yet almost upon the very apex, and a little west of it, where there is a sort of basin, surrounded by cliffs, the lodge was held. A rude altar of stone had been erected, whereon rested the three great lights; rude chairs of rough granite had also been built for the Master and Wardens, while the brethren found ample accommodations in the way of seats by availing themselves of stone slabs and boulders which Nature had profusely there provided.

Around that altar were gathered over three hundred Masons, who, in the heat of the mid-day sun, had toiled up the rugged mountain side to witness and assist at the opening of a Masonic Lodge at a place so unusual in our time; and there, overlooking a city of twenty thousand people, on a summit from which the country for the radius of perhaps a hundred miles is visible, with its towns, lakes, mountains, valleys, hoisting works, quartz mills and railroads, the lodge was opened and its regular business was transacted. The M.W. Grand Master, by special invitation, presided.

A row of pickets, designated by white badges on their left arms, were stationed all around the summit. They were near each other, so that none could pass or repass without permission. In that way the approach of cowans and eaves-droppers was effectually guarded against. As the lodge was opened, the white emblem of the Craft was thrown to the breeze from the flag-staff on the summit, and, as the wind unrapt its folds, and displayed the square, compasses and the letter G; thereon emblazoned, it was greeted by three cheers that rang out upon the clear air like clarion blasts. An opening ode was sung by the lodge quarter, composed of Bros. E. J. Passmore, George N. Eells, C. L. Foster and G. W. Dorwin, and a brief prayer was offered by Rev. Bro. J. D. Hammond.

The Grand Master made a very feeling address, thanking the brethren for the invitation extended to him to preside on the occasion. He gave accounts of some preliminary meetings which had been held on the coast and on the tops of hills; of one near Ragtown, where brethren had come together in that way to raise money and provisions for suffering emigrants, and over which meeting he had the honour to preside, of a similar gathering in 1858, in Eureka, and of another at Auburn, California. But none of these were gatherings like the present, and he again thanked the brethren that he had been called upon to preside over their deliberations.

After the regular business of the lodge had been transacted, and under the head of Good of Masonry, Bro. Charles E. de Long, late United States Minister to Japan (who died October 26, 1876), was called upon, and responded very happily. He sketched the surroundings within which they had erected their altar. Beneath them was the wealth of the Ophir, and around them the tumult of trade, &c., &c. He told them how in Japan he had assisted in wedding the link in Masonry which had made the chain complete around the world. Up to that time there had been one land where the Craft was not known. Now there was none. Masonry belted the globe. The lights of the altar had been lighted, and now there were six lodges in the empire, and the institution was rapidly spreading. Bro. H. Taylor, to whom a subpoena duces tecum had previously been directed by the Worshipful Master, was then called upon, and responded by reading the following:

The Lord unto the prophet said,
"Upon the mountain's topmost round,
Far as its breezy limits spread,
Shall be most holy ground."

Neath God's blue dome, on lofty hills,
Whose crests first catch the morning heat—
Whose heights the evening glory fills—
The Craft were wont to meet.

There, far above the busy mart,
And from its care and turmoil free,
They learned the lessons of the heart,
To "work" and to "agree."

Oh! sacred hills of olden time,
Whose hoary crags resist the gale,
Ye have a history sublime,
The ages cannot pale!

Again, to-day, the sons of light,
As did their sires of olden days,
Upon the mountain's dizzy height,
Their mystic banner raise.

Again, above the busy marts,
Where human feet have seldom trod,
We raise our voices and our hearts
In reverence to God.

Almighty Father! by whose will
The mountains rise, and worlds do move,
Thy blessing grant; descend and fill
Each Mason's heart with love.

Bros. E. A. Sherman, Thomas H. Williams, R. M. Daggett, W. M. John C. Currie, and M. W. George W. Hopkins, followed in brief and happily expressed remarks.

A touching prayer was then offered by Rev. Bro. S. P. Kelly; "Auld Lang Syne" was sung in full chorus; the lodge was closed, and at about five o'clock p.m., the concourse wended their way down the mountain side. And though doubtless weary upon arriving at their homes, all agreed that they had enjoyed and been benefited by the exercises of the day, which, with its many pleasant incidents, will never be by them forgotten.—New York Dispatch.

THE MASONIC AND GENERAL LIFE ASSURANCE COMPANY, LIMITED.

The annual general meeting of this company was held at their offices, 9, New Bridge-street, London, on Thursday, the 13th inst., and it is with pleasure that we note the satisfactory report of the year's business. Bro. Torkington, the Managing Director, will afford every information to applicants, we therefore content ourselves by giving the report in full, which is as follows:

The Directors have much pleasure in laying before their co-proprietors their ninth annual report and balance sheet. The number of proposals received during the year was 295, to assure £83,710; of these 72, representing £24,050, were declined or not completed, leaving 223 policies, assuring £59,660.

This result shows an increase of thirty-one policies, and of £15,605 in sums assured, over the preceding year, and when it is borne in mind that the generally depressed state of trade throughout the country has materially interfered with the progress of life assurance, the increase of new business during the year cannot but be regarded as very satisfactory.

The Directors have given their usual assiduous attention to the selection of proposals, and have maintained their determination not to increase the business by assuring doubtful lives.

It is also satisfactory to note that the working expenses have been reduced, but it is unquestionable that any office, a large proportion of whose business consists of new policies, must necessarily incur a heavy expenditure; the ratio of expenditure to premium income, however, cannot be taken as the criterion by which to gauge the stability of a life office. A solvent life assurance company is one in which the present value of its future net premiums, together with its available assets, will more than cover the present value of the sums assured. The Masonic and General Life Assurance Company, Limited, is in this sound position; moreover, the amount of capital uncalled is £11,376, therefore this item (as with every proprietary company) forms a guarantee fund for the security of policy holders, but there is no likelihood or probability of such guarantee fund ever having to be utilised.

There having been no necessity for any increase of capital, no effort has been made during the year to issue more shares, and the Directors have determined to make no further allotment, except under special or exceptional circumstances.

The amount paid in claims during the year was £1433 10s., raising the total amount of claims paid since the commencement of the office to £10,998.

It is a fact worthy of note that a large proportion of this sum was paid to the representatives of assured members whose estates were sworn under such small amounts as justify the directors in stating that the office has been a substantial relief to the Masonic Charities, for had it not been for the life policy many a widow and orphan would have had no other hope than relying upon the charities. Unfortunately, the applications for relief to the Masonic Institutions have always been more numerous than they could deal with, notwithstanding their most earnest endeavours.

The retiring Directors are Captain Bennett, J.P., and W. L. Nash, Esq., who, being eligible, offer themselves for re-election.

The retiring auditors, Frederick Binckes, Esq., and Wm. Burnett, Esq., also offer themselves for re-election.

In conclusion the Directors rely on the shareholders rendering every assistance to the executive to increase the business of the company during the current financial year.

By order of the Board,

JOHN SUNLET, Chairman.

RED CROSS OF ROME AND CONSTANTINE.

The Red Cross of Rome and Constantine is probably the most ancient Order of Christian knighthood. It is conferred in the Baldwin Encampments of Bristol, London, Bath, and York, England, and the date of its introduction into that country is said to be coeval with the return of Richard Cœur de Lion from the Holy Land, A.D. 1195. The seven Orders of Chivalry conferred in these Ancient Encampments are: First, Red Cross (of Constantine); second, Knight Templar; third, Knight of Malta; fourth, Knight of the Holy Sepulchre; fifth, Rosa Crucis; sixth, Templar Priesthood; seventh, Commander Elected Knight Kadosh. It is claimed that this Order of Knighthood, coming as it does from Greece and Constantinople, is the ancient and original Order of the Temple. It is still conferred by the Prince Rhodocanakis, the Byzantine Representative, as a civil Order. The Order of Knight of the Holy Sepulchre is conferred at the present day in Palestine on Roman Catholics of noble birth. The requisites of admission are very rigid, and the ancestry must be marked. The Order of St. John of Palestine is the ancient Order of Knights who claim to possess the true secrets of the Order of the Temple.

At the union of the two Grand Lodges in England, in 1813, several of the Orders of Chivalry were dropped, viz.: the first, fourth, fifth, sixth, and seventh, and hence they became local. This was revived on a permanent basis by the Earl of Beattie, in London, by the organisation of the Grand Imperial Council of England and English possessions, and is now flourishing as a separate and distinct Order of Christian Masonic Knighthood. The moral qualifications and social position of candidates are insisted upon. It was incorporated in the Masonic body in the middle of the last century, when the desire for the degrees of Knighthood in the higher branches of Freemasonry induced not only the formation of many Masonic degrees quite unknown except to Masons, but also the attributing of Masonic secrets and ceremonies to military Orders which those who originally instituted them never intended. The civil Order of Red Cross of Rome and Constantine belongs to Greece, and the Prince Rhodocanakis claims to be the true Grand Master, and can alone, as a civil Order, confer it. The Prince has been lately initiated into the mysteries of Freemasonry in Scotland, and is a member of the "Scottish Order of the Temple." What action he will take as regards the English Masonic Red Cross Branch has not transpired. The Order was introduced in the United States by Sir W. J. B. McLeod Moore, of Canada, in 1869, and into Illinois by Sir J. J. French in 1871. As promulgated in the United States the Order is composed of three working and three official degrees. The first, or Red Cross, is conferred in a body styled Conclave, and on Master Masons. All business is transacted in this degree. The second and third grades are conferred on Red Cross members who are Royal Arch Masons, and in bodies styled Sanctuary and Commandery respectively. There is one official degree each to be conferred on the first and second officers of the Conclave. The highest official rank, or Knight of the Grand Cross, is only conferred in the Grand High Chapter, U.S.A., upon the payment of £100, and only in annual session.

The officers of the Sovereign Grand Council, U.S.A., elected at the last annual session in the city of Rochester are: Sir C. F. Knapp, Pennsylvania, Sovereign Grand Master; Sir J. J. French, Chicago, Sovereign Deputy Grand Master; Sir R. B. Smith, Illinois, Sovereign Grand Viceroy; Sir J. H. Willard, Indiana, First Lieut.; Sir E. C. Meyer, Pennsylvania, Second Lieutenant; Sir E. B. Caldwell, Kentucky, Grand Treasurer General; Sir Alfred Creigh, Pennsylvania, Grand Registrar General; Sir J. L. Young, Pennsylvania, Right Reverend Prelate; Sir J. H. Drummond, Maine, Grand High Chancellor; Sir G. O. Tyler, Vermont, Grand Seneschal; Sir J. Haigh, Massachusetts, Grand Prior; Sir G. V. Howk, Indiana, Grand Chamberlain; Sir J. H. Miles, Chicago, Grand Standard Bearer; Sir J. D. Williams, New York, Grand Marshal; Sir H. C. Field, Rhode Island, Grand Herald; Sir T. Ballantyne, Georgia, Grand Captain of Guards.—Voice of Masonry.

Constitutions of the Ancient Fraternity of Free and Accepted Masons, containing the Charges, Regulations, E.A. Song, &c. A copy should be in the possession of every brother. It may be obtained for 2s. at the office of the Freemason, or will sent post free, to any part of the United Kingdom on receipt of twenty-five penny stamps. Address, Publisher, 198, Fleet-street, London.—ADVT.

The novelty of the Metamorphoses in Dean's New Surprise Picture Books, "Puss in Boots," and "Dame Wonder's Changing Characters," equals, if not surpasses, those issued last year.

NOTICE.

The Christmas number of the FREEMASON will be published on Friday next, the 21st inst., and will consist of 32 pages and a wrapper with 11 life-like portraits. Orders should be sent at once to the Publisher, 198, Fleet-street, London, or through any newsagent. The price of this double number will be 4d; post free 5d.

Masonic and General Tidings.

A distinguished service reward of £100 a year has been conferred on Lieut.-Gen. H. W. Montagu, C.B. Royal Engineers; and a similar reward on Lieut.-Gen. Edmund Ogle, Royal Engineers.

The Hamilton Advertiser understands that the Prince of Wales will visit the Duke of Hamilton at Hamilton Palace about the middle of January.

Her Majesty is expected to reside at Windsor Castle till a few days before Christmas, and then proceed to Osborne.

The Civil Service Review remarks as follows:—"A well-known Civil servant, Mr. Emra Holmes, who has recently brought out a volume of 'Tales, Poems, and Masonic Papers,' published by Tweddell and Sons, of Stokesley, Yorkshire, under the patronage of the Marquis of Bristol, the Earls of Limerick, Nelson, Stanhope (to whom the book is dedicated), Lords Cottesloe, Skelmersdale, Waverley, Henniker, and a crowd of lesser notabilities, is about to bring out a second series of Tales, &c., dedicated by express permission to Prince Leopold, President of the Royal Society of Literature. The proceeds of both works go to the relief of an aged literary brother in distress, and it is on this account His Royal Highness so graciously accords his patronage. By such acts as these of goodness and charity the Royal family endear themselves to the people of England, and Mr. Holmes is to be congratulated on his good fortune."

THE COSMOPOLITAN as it is more familiarly known among the members of the Craft, is a very useful calendar, diary, and pocket book for Freemasons. It contains a list of the lodges, chapters, K.T. Encampments, conclaves, and grand councils of the world, and forms a comprehensive Masonic Book of Reference. This year we find that sixty-eight new lodges have been consecrated, the last being the United Manawatu, No. 1721, New Zealand. In its get-up the pocket book is quite equal to others published by the trade, and apart from its special merits the brethren will find the diary of lodge fixtures particularly useful.—Northampton Herald, Dec. 8, 1877.

ERRATUM.—By a lapsus calami Bro. Hyam Moses Levy's (P.M. 188) name was omitted from the list of brethren elected to serve on the Board of Benevolence.

RAINFALL.—Up to the end of November 25.1 inches of rain were measured at Greenwich. In the first four months it was 4.8 inches above and in the last seven 3 inches below the average of sixty-one years.

The demolition of Temple Bar commenced on Wednesday morning.

A DEARTH OF DOCTORS.—The mayors of six different localities in one of the French departments inform the public that the said cantons are destitute of medical advice, and would warmly receive any medical men who could see their way towards settling amongst them.—Medical Examiner.

A meeting of the early Grand Conclave of English Knights Templar was held on Friday, at the Cannon-street Hotel. A full report will appear in our next.

Her Majesty the Queen has sent an autograph letter to the Rev. Canon Beadon, rector of North Stoneham, Southampton, congratulating him on having attained on Wednesday last 100 years of age. The Duke and Duchess of Coburg have sent similar congratulations to the venerable gentleman, who highly appreciates these and similar compliments which have been paid him. He is in the full enjoyment of his faculties.

The Duke of Rutland has offered a site for the erection of a new church in the northern part of the parish of Ilkeston, Derbyshire, and also £500 towards the building fund.

Captain Burton has started from Suez for Midia, where he hopes to discover a rich mineral country between two ranges of mountains hitherto unexplored.

The principal saddlers' ironmongers in London have decided to close their establishments from Saturday afternoon, the 22nd December, until the Thursday morning following.

I mentioned to an American friend of mine the other day the bankruptcy of a merchant who was personally known to him, and expressed a hope that he was not utterly ruined. He said, "Well you see, he has been a kind-hearted and generous man. He has, while wealthy, made very large settlements on his wife and children, and I guess, after all his liberality, they ain't going to see the old man starve."—Tatler.

On Saturday evening Dr. Samuel Kinns, F.R.A.S. Principal of the Highbury New Park College, delivered, at Christ's Hospital, the last of a series of free lectures on Animal Physiology.

The Ceremonies of Consecration and Installation will be rehearsed in the Crusaders Lodge of Instruction No. 1677, at the old Jerusalem Tavern, St. John's Gate, Clerkenwell, on Thursday next, the 20th inst. at seven o'clock precisely by Bro. James Terry, Prov. G.D.C. Herts, P.M. 128, 228, 1366; P.Z. 174, 975; and Secretary to the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution.

Our readers and the public in general would render great assistance to the Post Office by posting letters, Christmas cards, &c., on the 24th and the 31st instant as early in the day as possible.

PLAIN NEEDLEWORK.—An exhibition of children's plain needlework will be held in the West Gallery of the South Kensington Museum on Friday and Saturday, December, 14 and 15th. The work exhibited will be the contributions of the children from the metropolitan elementary schools. The articles shown will be examined by a committee of ladies, by whom prizes will be awarded. Last year the exhibition was opened by the Princess Louise, and the prizes were distributed by the Lady Mayoress. On the present occasion Lady Burdett-Coutts will open the exhibition and Lady Reed will distribute the prizes.

CATTLE SHOW.—Carriage riders and those who take an interest in locomotion on wheels have found a great deal to interest them in the carriage department of the show this week. Foremost amongst exhibitors is the firm of Messrs. Morgan and Co., of Long Acre, whose improvements in carriages, notably the Cee-spring, and the self-acting opening and closing landau head, have created a revolution in carriage-building. These improvements have gained a world-wide recognition, but to still add to the comfort and safety of carriage owners this enterprising firm has lately introduced a new patent rubber-cushioned axle, applicable to all kinds of carriages. It will be seen that when the entire weight of the vehicle and its contents rests upon the elastic india-rubber cushions around the axle-box, there is necessarily an absence of vibration, jolting, and the unpleasant drumming noise peculiar to panelled carriages. If a good article recommends itself, Messrs. Morgan and Co.'s carriages should meet with universal approval.

The name of the late Bro. George Frank Gouley, Grand Secretary of the Grand Lodge of Missouri, by order of the National Grand Lodge of Egypt, on May 25th, 1877, was inscribed in the Book of Gold "Libro d'Oro" of that Grand Body, as an honorary member, and a memorial tablet in the Masonic Temple at Alexandria has been fraternally inscribed to his memory.

A day festival in aid of the Royal General Theatrical Fund will be held on Saturday at the Royal Aquarium, lent for the occasion by Mr. Robertson. Mr. Sims Reeves and a whole host of dramatic celebrities have promised their assistance, and a considerable benefit for a deserving charity can scarcely fail to be realised.

The Masonic Lodges of New Mexico, all of which have hitherto been working under charters from the Grand Lodge of Missouri, by convention of delegates has organized and established the Grand Lodge of New Mexico, with William W. Griffin, Grand Master, and Dav. J. Miller, Grand Secretary. This completes the chain. There is now a Grand Lodge in every state and territory of the United States, and in every province of British America. Masonry also prevails in nearly every division of South America, Australia, New Zealand, the Hawaiian Kingdom, Europe and India. It also exists in Africa, China and Japan. It is in fact almost world-wide in its extent, influence and benefit, and if its votaries continue to be true to its principles it will soon unite the whole human race as a common brotherhood. Not that it will do away with all distinctions, but that it will secure all in their just rights and amenities.

At the Council held on Wednesday by the Queen, at Windsor Castle, it was ordered that Parliament be further prorogued to the 17th proximo.

A lady residing near Sheffield died the other day. One relative survived her, an only sister. The lady left £400,000, and of this sum her sister receives £1000.

The report of the last meeting of the Etonian Lodge of St. John No. 209, reached us too late for insertion in present number. It shall appear in our next.

The following are the officers of the Grand Council R. and S. Masters of Ohio for the ensuing year:—S. W. Courtwright, of Circleville, Grand Master; C. A. B. Senter, of Columbus, Deputy Grand Master; S. M. Sullivan, of Dayton, Grand Principal Conductor of the Work; F. J. Phillips, of Georgetown, Grand Treasurer; John D. Caldwell, of Cincinnati, Grand Recorder.

The Coal Tar Soap and Solution of Coal Tar, manufactured by Messrs. H. V. Wright & Co., have now become very valuable assistants to the doctor and the nurse, both in hospitals and in private sick rooms. The former a firm, pleasantly scented, perfectly antiseptic soap, is of the greatest utility to medical men; to people afflicted with any malady of the skin, and is a perfectly good article for all cleansing purposes, while the latter, which holds in alcoholic solution the active principles of coal tar, such as benzine, naphthalene, and phenic acid, is the best deodoriser and antiseptic wash extant, being far superior to carbolic acid, which unquestionably irritates both exposed nerves and sound skin. It mixes easily with water, forming a permanent emulsion, and in various strengths may be made use of as a mouth wash, a gargle, and for all skin diseases.

Early on Thursday morning Vice Chancellor Bacon's chambers situated at No. 11, New-square, Lincoln's-inn, were burnt out. The fire originated, it is believed, with an explosion of gas in the rear of the building. One of the most valuable law libraries in the inn had only recently been removed from the premises.

The Anniversary Festival of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution for aged Freemasons and widows of Freemasons will take place on Wednesday, the 13th day of February, 1878, at Freemasons' Tavern. His Grace the Duke of St. Albans will preside. Bro. James Terry, Secretary, will be glad to receive from brethren desirous of accepting the office of Steward, their names and Masonic rank at as early a date as convenient.

The Canadian Craftsman is gratified to learn that official intimation has been received of the cordial and fraternal recognition of the Grand Chapter of Royal Arch Masons of Quebec by the Grand Chapters of the States of Massachusetts and Connecticut.

Mr. Welsh, the new American Minister, arrived at St. Pancras from Liverpool on Wednesday evening, and was received by Mr. Pierpont and the members of the American Legation.

Bro. Commander Cheyne, R.N., delivered a lecture on Arctic Exploration to a large audience assembled in the lecture theatre of the Birkbeck Institution on Wednesday night.

Bro. Fort's unequalled volume—"The Early History and Antiquities of Freemasonry, as connected with Ancient Norse Guilds, and the Oriental and Medieval Building Fraternities," is becoming popular abroad as well as at home. An edition of it has been taken by a London publisher, and we find it advertised in both the Scottish and English Masonic papers. The fourth edition of this standard work is about to appear in this city.—Key-stone.

An official decree has deferred from the 1st of January, 1878, to the 1st of January, 1883, the date at which subordinate officials in certain French-speaking districts of Alsace-Lorraine will be required to use the German language.

CATTLE SHOW.—Forty-five thousand was the number of persons who passed the turnstiles up to the close of the show on Wednesday. Large as the figures appear they are just 8000 below the corresponding day of last year, when they reached 53,000.

NEW POLICE REGULATION.—The following provisional order has been issued from the office of the Commissioners of Police:—"Pending the decision of the Secretary of State as to the old system of detection of crime, all gratuities given by private persons or public bodies to police employed in plain clothes or in uniform in recognition of services rendered in making inquiries respecting evidence, or for the arrest of criminals, are to be paid into a gratuity fund kept by the receiver. Directions will be given as soon as possible to the disposal of this fund, and great care will be taken that the conduct of the individual officer is recognised when the award is made. The particulars of all such gratuities are to be continued to be reported, and the commissioner will direct in each case what amounts are to be paid into the Bank of England on a receivable order after submitting the usual vouchers." Great dissatisfaction is said to be felt by the police at this new regulation.—Evening Standard.

SALE OF SHARES IN THE NEW RIVER COMPANY.—In the year 1852 the interests of the shareholders in this company, which was established in the reign of Charles II., were valued at £1,519,953. Yesterday seven lots of sixtieth parts of a King's share were sold for £1590 to £1650 each; six 120th part shares brought from £780 to £790 each; and eleven new £100 shares produced £310.

On Tuesday afternoon a purse of 100 guineas and a silver salver were presented to Mr. Coxhead, on his retirement, after a service of 31 years, from the post of district superintendent of the South-Eastern Railway at Ramsgate. The presentation took place at the Town Hall.

BOLLO.—A new strategical and scientific game, issued by Dean and Son, offers many attractions. It is a game of skill—in fact a tiny war—affording unflagging interest, varied changes, and great surprises. Possessing therefore, every element that deserves popularity, it ought not to be classed among the ephemera of the season. The rules of the game, and the method of playing, have been so clearly written by Robert H. Mair, Esq., LL.D., that every difficulty in acquiring them is entirely obviated.

A complimentary banquet to Lord Justice Thesiger, on his elevation to the bench, was given on Wednesday evening by the members of the South Eastern Circuit, at the Albion Tavern, Aldersgate-street. The guests numbered 150. Mr. Montagu Chambers, Q.C., took the chair, and was supported by Lord Justice Bramwell, Baron Pollock, Mr. Justice Denman, Sir James Hannen, Sir Henry Hawkins, Mr. Sergeant Parry, and others.

The Pope has forwarded to the Duke of Norfolk, through Cardinal Howard, his special blessing, accompanied with his Holiness's most affectionate congratulations on his marriage, transmitting at the same time to his Grace, through the hands of his Eminence, a very beautiful and costly mosaic of the Bridge of Tivoli.—Weekly Register.

THE TELEPHONE.—In consequence of the large attendance expected on the evening of Wednesday next, when Professor Bell will repeat his lecture on the telephone before the Society of Arts, the council have made arrangements for the lecture to be delivered in the great hall of the Freemasons' Tavern, Great Queen-street, W.C., instead of at the Society's house.

MASONIC SONGS.—A selection of Masonic Songs set to popular airs, written by Bro. E. P. Philpots, M.D., F.R.G.S., is now ready, forming a handsome volume, bound in cloth, with gilt edges, 3s. Sent post free from the office of this paper on receipt of stamps or post-office order value 3s. 3d.—ADVT.

NOTES ON ART, &amp;c.

M. Taine's "History of English Literature" has been translated into German, and brought out at Berlin.

AFRICAN EXPLORATION.—The French expedition to Equatorial Africa, composed of old African sharpshooters, under the command of a lieutenant of Turcos, Comte de Sémélé, starts on the 15th prox., and landing at the mouth of the Niger, will try to reach the Eastern Coast, while the King of the Belgians has sent out Captain Raymakers, of the Congo, towards the centre of Africa, in order to meet the Belgian Expedition, under Captain Crispal, which has begun operations from the Eastern Coast.

Cooking by Means of Solar Rays has been tried successfully at Bombay, and an apparatus has been contrived to cook chops and steaks in the open air as well and expeditiously as over an ordinary fire. The apparatus consists of a copper vessel, tinned inside and painted black outside, with a glass cover enveloping the vessel with an inch of hot air, and fixed on to the bottom of a conical reflector lined with common silvered sheet glass. If properly covered over it will retain the heat for full three hours and a half.

We are informed that it is now definitely arranged that Temple Bar will be pulled down and removed before the end of the year, most probably in Christmas week. The commission for carrying this object into effect has been intrusted to Messrs. Mowlem, Burt, and Freeman, and the necessary preparations will be made forthwith. It is calculated that a week, or ten day at the very outside, will be sufficient for the operations, and such a force of men will be put upon the work that the street traffic will not be stopped for more than two days, or three at the outside. The stones as we have already stated, will all be numbered, and will be placed for a time on a vacant space of land in Farringdon-road until some definite place is fixed by the Court of Common Council as a site for the Bar.

Experiments with the Telephone have been made between Aberdeen and Inverness with great success. Songs and choruses were distinctly transmitted and conversations well carried on at the distance of 108 miles.

TROY.—On Thursday morning last, Mr. Gladstone spent an hour and a half in inspecting the Trojan antiquities which Dr. Schliemann is arranging for public exhibition at the South Kensington Museum. In the afternoon her Royal Highness the Princess Louise and the Marquis of Lorne visited the collection, and conversed for some time with the discoverer in German as well as in English.

THE VALUE OF FRESH AIR.—Recent statistics show that the rate of mortality among grocers is as 76 to 100 among the general population at equal ages, while the death-rate among drapers is as 108 to 100 by the same standard. On analyzing the cause of this difference between the drapers and the grocers, it is found that it lies in the mode of living. The disease which destroys the draper is pulmonary consumption. The explanation is simple. The grocer lives in a shop, the door of which is open the whole day, and he is very active himself in business; the draper, on the other hand, lives in a close place with the doors of his shop closed, and in a dusty, close atmosphere. No one whose pleasure or business calls on him to enter the majority of our large drapery emporiums in London but will feel in a position to testify to the truth of this description. The heat and closeness which are their usual characteristic sufficiently accounts for the general pallor and unhealthy appearance of the male and female attendants in them.—Sanitary Record.

THE LATE MR. DURHAM, A.R.A.—By the will of the late J. Durham, A.R.A., F.S.A., Mr. Raemakers, of Pimlico, London, has been left to complete his unfinished works. Mr. Raemakers, who for the last twenty years has been the friend and associate of the late great sculptor, has received this token of the high esteem in which he held his artistic capabilities. Mr. Raemakers will be recognised by his works exhibited in the Royal Academy, among which are portraits busts of the Earl and Countess of Clancarty, the Hon. Mrs. Trench, and the Marquis of Bristol.

THE BRITISH MUSEUM.—The British Museum has bought Sir Henry Rawlinson's fine collection of Arabic MSS.—Athenaeum.

ART IN LIVERPOOL.—The Liverpool Corporation Autumn Exhibition closed on Saturday night with a conversazione, and the rooms of the Walker Art Gallery were overcrowded. The Exhibition has been a great success, having been visited during the three months by upwards of 72,000 persons, besides 2208 season ticket holders, and pictures to the value of £9267 have been sold. Last Friday night 2568 persons paid for admission.

The Darien Canal is attracting fresh attention in Paris, and Lieutenant Wyse, who made the preliminary survey last year, has started afresh to complete his work. M. de Lesseps estimates the cost of the canal at £24,000,000, and advocates a line starting from the river Tuyra, on the Pacific Coast, through a cutting to the Chucunague river, thence up the valley of the Titi, through a tunnel between eight and eight-and-a-half miles long, into the valleys of the Acanti and Tolo, reaching the Atlantic at Port Gandi.

The Society of Lady Artists will hold their exhibition for 1878 at the Gallery, 43, Great Marlborough Street. Works received on the 11th and 12th of February. The Art Criticism Meetings (established in connection with this Society) will be held during the latter part of December and during January. Examining Visitor, W. H. Fisk, of University College.

Reviews.

"Old Jonathan." City Press, Aldersgate-street.

This interesting and illustrated publication for the young is still radiantly to the fore. It deserves alike perusal and patronage.

"Floral Designs for the Table." By John Perkins. Wyman and Sons, 81, Great Queen-street.

This is a most comely book for the drawing-room table, and a most useful one for the careful and ingenious housewife. The floral decoration of the table is an art yet to be studied and realised, and we consider Mr. Perkins's work as most clever and commendable. We offer it to the notice of all who admire flowers and wish to make use of them on all occasions, whether to gratify the sight, or to adorn the room or the dinner table.

"Kalender fur Freimaurer." By Bro. C. Van Dalen. Leipzig: Bro. J. G. Findel.

We have received and read with pleasure this useful German Masonic Annual. It is admirably edited, and the information it gives is alike correct and important. Indeed, it is impossible to arrive at a true understanding of the German Masonic organization (about which so many errors prevail), without studying carefully Bro. Van Dalen's interesting and valuable "vade mecum." We congratulate both Editor and Publisher on its seasonable and acceptable appearance.

"Early French Lessons." "First French Lessons." By HENRI BOZ, Hachette and Co., 18, King William-street, W.C.

These little works are very useful to beginners in French. We hail their appearance, because we are amongst those who desiderate a more extensive study of French by our youth of both sexes. Sure we are of this, that if we hope to see a national advance in all that pertains to civilizing arts and sympathies, we must get rid of the old heresy, that we are over-educating our young people. Education is either good or bad. If good we have no right to limit its area, or minimise its gifts. We must, as an inspired writer says, "Cast 'our' bread upon the waters," and depend upon it, by God's blessing, we shall "find it after many days."

THE SWEDENBORGIAN RITE.

Those who have marked the progress of this important and interesting Rite will be glad to hear that another lodge and temple have just been formed at Liverpool, and constituted as the Royal Oscar Lodge and Temple, No. 9. The first W.M. of this lodge is Bro. Thomas Clarke, P.M. of the St. John's Lodge, 673; the first Senior Warden is Bro. William Thomas May, another P.M. of the same lodge; and the first Junior Warden is Bro. Thomas Roberts, P.M. The new lodge and temple have been very efficiently started by the main efforts of Bro. Major George Turner, the Provincial Grand Master for the District for the Rite, and promises to be energetically worked with every prospect of a prosperous future. The lodge has been named in honour of H.M. the King of Sweden, and many Scottish brethren are expected to join it. We understand that an eminent Masonic jeweller has the very elegant jewel of the Rite in hand, and no doubt many brethren will be anxious to see it when finished. The Swedenborgian Rite contains illustrations of Masonic science of the greatest interest to Past Masters and Mark Master Masons.

The small extent to which the practice of farmers is as yet amenable to the elementary principles of science is deplorable. The need of shelter; the folly of allowing rain to wash the manure; the frightful waste of straw; the reckless consumption of hay; the injudicious use of roots; the want of system in the assortment and mixing of food; the foolish purchasing of bad foods; and the persistent practice of buying inferior animals—these and other faults of management are, we are loth to confess it, almost a rule. No doubt many of us know better, still are guilty of similar weaknesses in our management. "Any fool can farm if he has his pockets well lined," and the wisest man must put up with bad buildings and restrained expenditure when he or his landlord is short of cash. Let him be as wise as Solomon and as strong as Samson, he cannot use either his wisdom or his strength if he is crippled in his resources. Covered yards, well-arranged machinery, well-selected stock, increased labour, liberal use of artificial feeds and manures, all mean more money, and we think Mr. Mechi is not far wrong when he gives his opinion that twice the present farming capital might be profitably expended upon the land.—Agricultural Gazette.

Mr. Warrington Wood, the sculptor, has been made a member of the Academy of St. Luke, the blue ribbon of the profession at Rome.

THE ROYAL ACADEMY.—It is understood that in addition to the contributions to the Royal Academy Winter Exhibition of this season which we have already mentioned as promised, the Duke of Buccleuch has consented to lend the whole of his magnificent gathering of engravings, by all the best artists, in the finest states of the works, from the paintings of Sir Joshua Reynolds. This famous collection is nearly complete, and has been for many years in the charge of Messrs. Dominic Colnaghi and Co. Mr. Anderson will probably lend his fine gathering of prints after Romney. The Rev. J. J. Heywood, Mr. Paget, Mr. R. Fisher, Mr. Addington, and other well-known collectors will be represented.—Athenaeum.

The House of Commons Telegraph Office is about to be connected with the Central Telegraph Office by means of a pneumatic tube.

ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

The monthly meeting of the Committee of this Institution was held on Wednesday afternoon, at Freemasons' Hall.

Bro. Col. Creaton, V.P., presided, and the other brethren present were Bros. C. A. Cottebrune, S. Rawson, George Bolton, Joseph Smith, C. J. Perceval, Griffiths Smith, John March Case, Dr. Jabez Hogg, Thomas Smith, William Stephens, L. Stran, H. Massey, (Freemason); and James Terry, (Secretary).

After the reading of the minutes the Warden's report was read. A notice of motion was put on the paper for pensioning the gardener at Croydon.

Two widows were granted half their late husband's annuities.

The Secretary reported that he had received a notice from the Local Board of Health of Croydon, to repair the road and footpath in Freemasons' Road, Croydon, but said he had been advised not to notice it; that the Board would do the work required and would charge the Institution with the cost.

Four brethren and four widows petitioned to be placed on the list of candidates for next election in May. One case was deferred, the others were placed on the list.

It was resolved that all the brethren who are annuitants on this Institution who are Tylers of lodges should send in to the Secretary a statement of their income from all sources in addition to their annuities, with the names of the lodges and chapters that they tyled.

Bro. James Terry, after some formal business had been disposed of, obtained the permission of the committee for the use of the large hall of the Asylum at Croydon, for an entertainment to the old people on the 2nd January.

The Chairman said that before the brethren separated he wished to make a few observations on one subject. He was sure that all the brethren would feel with him that this annual dinner should be given to the old people. It afforded them a great deal of pleasure, and it was a proper thing to be done. But the Institution had not hitherto paid for it, and the way the requisite money was raised was by the voluntary subscriptions of brethren, for which the Secretary asked them. Now he thought it would be a much more dignified course to follow, for the Institution itself to make a grant from its funds instead of laying the burden on the Secretary to go round to brethren and beg for such small sums as might be required. He threw it out as a suggestion. The Institution could well afford the money, and he thought it would be much nicer that it should grant it.

Bro. Joseph Smith supported the Chairman's view, and was very glad the Chairman had spoken about this matter; because in all these Institutions the trustees annually gave the inmates an extra treat. He agreed with the Chairman that they should not put it upon the Secretary to go round and ask for subscriptions for this dinner. No doubt some one would always give, and he thought it most likely the same persons gave every year.

The Chairman asked Bro. Terry how much he wanted. Bro. Terry said these entertainments usually cost about £30 or £32. He had some twenty-five guineas towards that amount already. £5 was all he now required.

The Chairman said if he lived till the following Christmas he should move that the Institution pay the whole amount.

Bro. Terry said he had several brethren who made donations. Bro. Wm. Hale always sent a pound of tobacco for each old man, and a pound of tea for each old woman. Another brother sent a bottle of whisky for each inmate; Bro. Farnfield sent a bottle of sherry each; and another brother provided the magic lantern.

A vote of thanks to the Chairman concluded the proceedings.

Obituary.

BRO. WILLIAM PURSHON, P.M. 24.

Bro. William Purshon, who died on 24th November at Killingworth, near Newcastle-on-Tyne, was initiated, passed and raised, (by dispensation) on Feb. 14, 1815, in Lodge No. 24; joined Northern Counties Lodge, No. 406, 21st June, 1836, and served the office of W.M., &c.; exalted in Chapter No. 24, on 26th November, 1817; and joined Chapter No. 406, 10th January, 1837, of what he was P.Z.; was made a Knight Templar in the Royal Kent Encampment, No. 45, 5th January, 1816, and on the appointment of H.R.H. as M.E. and S. Grand Master, was nominated Prov. Grand Prior for Northumberland and Berwick, which office he held at the time of his death.

He was buried at Killingworth, December 1st. His funeral, although private was attended by over 300 of his friends and tenants, and his loss will be much felt in the neighbourhood, where he was most highly esteemed.

At Bolton, on Monday, a new chimney, 90 feet high, which was being straightened, fell upon an engine-house and other premises, doing damage to the extent of £1,000, and causing serious injuries to a young man and a boy.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Colds, Coughs, Shortness of Breath.—These corrective remedies are infallible for these pectoral complaints, which, neglected, often end in asthma, bronchitis, or consumption. The Ointment well rubbed upon the chest and back, penetrating the skin, is carried directly to the lungs, whence it expels all impurities. All the blood in the body constantly passes through the lungs, and there all noxious particles tending to produce disease, can be quickly, thoroughly, and permanently neutralised, rendered harmless, or ejected from the system. Holloway's Ointment and Pills perfectly accomplish this purification; and through the blood, thus cleansed, the influence of these wonderful medicaments reaches the remotest parts of the human body; and thus cures all all diseased action, whether internal or external.—Adv.

BRO. FINDEL'S LETTER.

We print in another page a letter from Bro. Findel, which will, we fear, hardly give satisfaction to any readers of the Freemason, and will be deeply objected to by all Anglo-Saxon Freemasons. Bro. Findel, it seems, objects to our article on "The Theistic Teaching of Freemasonry," which appeared in our issue of 1st December, and declares that it is—Popery! We leave such a very unwise and unfair, in fact absurd remark to the appreciation of our many readers. For now, alas! out comes the truth. Bro. Findel approves of the act of the Grand Orient of France, which is unanimously reprobated by a million of Anglo-Saxon Masons, and seems very angry with us for objecting to so revolutionary an innovation, and like angry people is a little incoherent, and to say the truth, not a little unreasonable. One of his statements will arouse our numerous readers. His argument, as regards our Old Charges, appears to be this: If a man is an Atheist, he is not absolutely ineligible, but only if he is a "stupid" Atheist; a gloss we would beg to observe, worthy of those astute gentlemen, concerning whom, as we may know, Bro. Findel does not often speak in the most complimentary terms. To those who understand the English language such a remark will appear to be both unreasonable and childish, for by the epithet "stupid" our Charges convey a term of reproach, not a palliating term for the word Atheist. Paraphrastically these words would say—if any one is so stupid as to be an Atheist, he is not fit for the society of Freemasons, who reverently recognise and trust in T.G.A.O.T.U.; no one can really be so stupid as to be an Atheist—"Atheos,"—no one ought to be so stupid, and if he is so stupid he ought not to be a Freemason. There is no other construction possible of such simple words, and any other interpretation would land us in a fertile region of non-natural evasion and Jesuitical subtlety, wholly unworthy our honest and plain-speaking, right-minded Craft. Knowing as we do the high ability, the zeal and energy, and the Masonic sympathy of Bro. Findel, we deeply regret to see his name appended to such a letter, and much less to read the observations he has thought fit to send us. But we should not be doing our duty as honest journalists and English Masons if we did not at once say to him kindly, and firmly—that his views if carried to logical conclusions must end in the destruction of true Freemasonry. Indeed, this hasty and unwise tampering with ancient landmarks and sacred truths seems to us most perverse and unjustifiable, and we protest once again against that cruel agitation and that revolutionary change of the Orient of France, which has convulsed Cosmopolitan Freemasonry, and may result in the most deplorable consequences. In England, as in Ireland, and Scotland, and America, and Canada, we mean to stand firmly "super vias antiquas" and will continue to exclude as we actually shall reject all Atheists, all those who, whether "stupid" or otherwise, cannot, with us, conscientiously acknowledge and believe in T.G.A.O.T.U.

FREEMASONRY IN IRELAND.

We rejoice to be able to call the attention of our brethren to the re-opening and the re-dedication of the Masonic Hall, Dublin, which took place on Wednesday, the 5th inst., under the distinguished presidency of the Grand Master, the Duke of Abercorn, and a brilliant gathering of Grand Officers, and W. Masters, Past Masters, and brethren of the Irish lodges. The entire ceremony seems to have passed over with great éclat, and happy success, and to have given great satisfaction to all who were privileged to take part in it. In our Christmas number (Dec. 22nd) will appear a detailed and architectural account of the restored hall, all too long for our crowded weekly columns, unfortunately. We beg to congratulate our Irish brethren on this great advance in Masonic arrangements and æsthetic decoration. We refer our readers to the description of the Hall in the Christmas Freemason, which we trust will interest them, as it has interested us, and we rejoice to think that so much has been accomplished in a right direction and so well. We trust that under their most excellent Grand Master, the Irish Craft, as we doubt not, will continue to progress in brotherly union, zeal, and good will, and that despite the special difficulties of their situation in Ireland, we may have to report from time to time how well and happily the good old Craft weathers every gale and conquers every foe. There is, however, one point to which we feel bound to allude. Animated as we are, and ever have been, with the best and truest feelings towards our Irish brethren, we wish that we could give more reports from Ireland, week by week, and that all difficulties were smoothed away, by authority, which stand in the way of our receiving proper Masonic information. The present Irish Masonic system of discouraging all Masonic reports, works most prejudicially for our Irish Brethren. Reports of the Grand Lodge proceedings appear in Ultramontane papers, in journals deliberately hostile to the Irish Grand Lodge, but the Freemason, always friendly, is debarred from detailing what non-Masonic and inimical newspapers openly publish. Even as regards the last resolution at the Irish Grand Lodge, we were indebted to private hands for a copy of the official circular, and we venture to think that such a course of procedure is neither very wise, nor, to say the truth, very Masonic. We speak in all of good will and good feeling to our worthy brethren in Ireland. We repeat that we are only too happy to report their meetings and their proceedings, and we can only trust that in the future, by a wise and Masonic change in this respect, we may receive, and we may be permitted to report, the "sayings and doings" of the Irish Craft.

WHAT IS TOLERATION?

It appears to us, from a good many addresses which we read, both religious and secular, and from many speeches which we hear, that the true meaning of this word is hardly understood by us as it should be, and that it has either a double or a non-natural significance for many at the present hour. As philanthropic and large-hearted Masons, it seems to be our bounden duty to clear away any doubts or dimness which time and circumstances have concurred to accumulate round a word so frequently used, and yet as it seems to us so little really understood, What then is Toleration? To answer this question, we must go back a little and invoke alike the patience and attention of our readers. There is a limited view of toleration which we think we may at once dismiss to the limbo of forgotten fallacies, and effete superstitions. It is this, you hear people often loudly talking about toleration, and saying, "we are most tolerant, Sir," only, however, ere long to realize, that what they mean by toleration is "endurance" of certain opinions simply because either they cannot help themselves, or because they think it better "quieta non movere." But endurance is not toleration. Endurance is a factitious feeling, so to say, as regards any teaching either in respect of the psychology of man, or the "To Kalon," or the "To Agathon," of earthly striving and aspirations. But Toleration is a principle, living and real, which is intended to dominate the intellectual, and the metaphysical perceptions of our race! It is one thing to endure, to submit to views and dogmata which we cannot help being propounded, or could not well interfere with, and quite another thing on a great broad principle of teaching and action, to concede to another, (of course within certain needful limits), the "liberty of prophesying," the right of individual conviction, the sanctity of private judgement. And this is what we call Toleration—true Toleration—that gracious and genial dogma which lies at the foundation of all Masonic profession, and accompanies it always in practice, is in fact its abstract avowal, and its concrete performance. Let us see, then, how such a principle as this acts and works in the world, of which we are now citizens for time, and looking on, let us never forget, through time to eternity, when we and all our race shall stand before the "Great White Throne of the Judge of all Men." Having disposed of that limited view of Toleration, which is very common, and very popular, but which whenever it is tried is "found wanting," let us go on to see, if we can, what are the "marks" of that better and truer tolerating spirit which it should be our endeavour as Freemasons, to cultivate, and always to uphold. Of course it is perfectly clear to the eye of common sense, when we touch upon the "raison d'être" of Toleration, needful as we believe it to be for the happiness, the peace, and the progress of mankind, that such a truth must have some limitation, nevertheless, alike in precept and in action. And admitted its necessity and its sacredness, even, we must be just even while laying down broadly and elaborately its lines of true thought and truer practice. A religious body, for instance, has clearly a right to say "for the preservation of peace and unity, for the maintenance of the faith" (as it teaches it), "we impose certain articles of agreement, certain creeds, certain tests, and tokens of adherence, and all who cannot conscientiously accept them must either submit or demit." No one can allege that any religious body so teaching, so acting, transgresses the limits of Toleration, because all first principles are accepted, remember, subject to certain agreement with the laws of self preservation, self defence, common safety, common sense, otherwise, the world would soon have to be governed by a hybrid system of fictitious development, by mendacious axioms, by an outcome of mingled fanaticism and impiety. If it should ever happen, that any member of a religious body finds that, on mature reflection, or calm diagnosis of dogmatical doctrine, or practical life, by the "evolution," so to say, of certain underlying consequences of certain assumed truths, he cannot consistently teach as his denomination teaches, then the only course open for a man of probity and conscience, is to make his bow, and seek elsewhere the liberty denied to him, as he feels in that circle of ecclesiastical teaching to which he belongs, even though it terms itself the one true church. But having done this, his responsibility ceases, in respect of the body of which he has been an adherent. Outside its pale, honestly and conscientiously, (and let us admire free-spoken and fair-spoken conscientiousness, in all, be they who they may), he has no right to be persecuted "for conscience sake." This is true Toleration, but any wider application, as regards the just right of religious bodies, becomes hyper-liberalism and hopeless latitudinarianism. We think that we have now disposed of two formidable and "burning questions," and may now safely proceed to define, "more nostro," true Toleration. True Toleration, then, as expounded and practised in Freemasonry, implies that we accord to others the same right of private judgment which we claim for ourselves. We admit the sanctity of conscience; we uphold the freedom of worship and belief; we judge no man; we impose no creed; we neither mingle with the controversies of Christians themselves; nor do we enter into the antagonisms of non-Christians. Inside the lodge, all we ask of our brethren is, that they believe and trust in a Personal and Living, Creating, Preserving, Ruling, Saving, and Judging God Most High, and that all shall co-operate in works of pioussympathy and large-hearted benevolence. But beyond this we do not go, beyond this we do not dogmatize, beyond this we do not enquire, beyond this we do not wish or want to know. Is not this true Toleration? We think that it may fairly claim that name, both in theory and in effect. To realize that the world is wide enough for us all, that we are not sent into this world to curse, to persecute one another, is alike worthy of true religious and sagacious philosophy. For who of us can lay claim to infallibility? Who of us has a right to say, I, only, am a possessor of the Truth? Who of us can fairly deny that another person's conscientious conviction may be as right and true, absolutely as our own? Who can venture to affirm, whatever his subjective trust may be, that objectively must be, that ought to be, the trust of another? And if we cannot do any of these things which we clearly, rightly cannot, must we not admit that the necessity of the case, as well as the eternal fitness of things demand imperatively the practice of toleration? That it is perfectly right for any one of us to hold firmly, faithfully, even to death, for the sake of the truth which he holds sacred, the faith he holds most dear, the Master whose he is, and who is his, none of us, as Freemasons, will be prepared for one moment to contest or deny. But that it is right for this religious body or that to curse others, we think a misunderstanding of scripture itself, a mistake of past Christianity, and one of the greatest stumbling blocks in the way of true religion, just as it is one of the best weapons for the Sceptic and the Atheist. But here we stop to day. The subject, great and interesting as it is, even in this partial dealing with it, already overruns our modest limits, and all we can hope is, that our readers will be able to follow our very condensed argument, and will realize its truth, and make it their own in profession and practice.

THE LAST GRAND LODGE.

We call attention to the full reports of the speeches of Bros. Lord Tenterden and the Grand Registrar in another column, which the early hour at which we went to press prevented us including in our last publication.

THE CHRISTMAS "FREEMASON."

We beg to call attention to the fact that the Freemason for Christmas, published December 21st, will be enlarged to thirty-two pages, with a cover, and we recommend all non-subscribers to order a copy at once, at 198, Fleet-street, or through their local newsagents, to prevent otherwise inevitable disappointment.

KENNING'S MASONIC CYCLOPÆDIA.

Dear Bro. Kenning,—

Since I wrote last I have placed in the hands of the printer the concluding portion of the "Copy" for the Cyclopædia, so that, as I said before, I feel quite confident that the work can be delivered in January. In about ten days I think we shall be able to say when.

I congratulate you on the conclusion of the work, and am, dear Bro. Kenning, yours fraternally,

THE EDITOR.

P.S.—I am glad to see you have taken my hint about January 2.

Original Correspondence.

[We do not hold ourselves responsible for, or even as approving of the opinions expressed by our correspondents, but we wish, in a spirit of fair play to all, to permit—within certain necessary limits—free discussion.—Ed.]

THE THEISTIC POSITION OF FREEMASONRY.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,

The article of your paper with the above heading (page 520) contains a declaration of Masonic faith, which destroys the cosmopolitan character of Freemasonry, and makes it a truly sectarian institution. It will be no easy task to oppose the infallible position you assume as the only correct basis of the Craft, a position which, I am sorry to say, constitutes a Masonic Popery.

Allow me to confess that in Germany, Hungary, Italy, &c., all Masons do not share your views against the resolution of the Grand Orient of France. We regret your somewhat intolerant position. You seem to feel that it is not universal, not cosmopolitan and world-wide, but exclusive "Anglo-Saxon," as you call it. Your views, I am convinced, are not quite in accordance with Article I. of the Old Charges of 1723, which do not declare that a so-called Atheist cannot be a member of the fraternity, but speaks more in a reserved, tolerant, and high-minded sense, only supposing that he will not be a stupid Atheist. If a Freemason is an honest lover of truth, and if he, in conscientiously seeking truth, comes to the conviction that he must deny the existence of God, or at least a personal God, he is no stupid Atheist, and as such he may be a very good brother, and an honest, virtuous man. If, as you say, "Freemasonry seeks to make a great union all over the world, for the purpose of humanitarian sympathy, relief, and good-will," then each lodge may initiate men of all denominations and convictions, without requiring the profession of any faith whatever, if the candidate is only a good and true man.

Freemasonry is a purely human institution, for humanitarian, not metaphysical or orthodox religious purposes, which only can exist as a cosmopolitan institution, if it does confess the utmost liberty of conscience, of thought and confession, leaving to the inner holydom (sic) of each member what he will believe or not believe in the question which at all times have separated men, not united them.

Allow me to refer the readers of the Freemason to the Masonic declarations of my "History of Freemasonry," in the introduction, pages 1-10, and to the dedication of the Book of Constitutions of 1738.

But it is not my intention to give such general declarations on the true meaning of the Royal Art, as it seems more necessary to help to a right understanding of the resolution of the Grand Orient of France. Our French brethren have not deserted the belief in the existence of God and immortality of the human soul, in striking out the discussed words of the first article of the Constitutions, but they have only declared that such a profession of faith does not belong to Masonic law. The Grand Orient has only voted for liberty of conscience, not against any religious faith. Therefore the true meaning of the French Constitution is now only, that each brother Mason may believe in God or not, and that each French lodge may judge for itself which candidate shall be initiated or not. The French vote is only an affirmation of liberty of conscience, and not a negation of faith.

The excommunication of the Grand Orient of France, by Masonic Grand Lodges is therefore an intolerant act of Popery, the negation of the true principles of the Craft, the beginning of the end of Cosmopolitan Freemasonry. The excommunication of the Grand Orient of France only proves the sectarian mind of the excommunicating Grand Lodges, which have forgotten that Freemasonry has for its purpose to unite all good men of all denominations and professions; they profess the separating element, and destroy the Craft, and waste the heritage of our more liberal and more tolerant forefathers. The Masonic Union will in future be a mere illusion, if the Anglo-Saxon Masons condemn the French, German, Italian Masons, &c., and vice versa.

Fraternally yours,

J. G. FINDER.

THE GERMAN QUESTION.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Allow me to state a few facts in respect to yesterday's proceedings in Grand Lodge on what is commonly called the German question.

In Germany there are now existing eight Grand Lodges, six of which admit Jews as members, two do not. The six Grand Lodges admitting Jews are the Grand Lodge of Hamburg, the Eclectic Grand Lodge of Frankfurt a/M.—both quite similar in constitution and ritual to English Masonry—the Grand Lodges of Saxony, Darmstadt, Bayreuth, and Royal York of Friendship at Berlin. The two remaining, not admitting Jews as members, are the Grand Lodge of the Three Globes and the Grand Lodge of the Whole Country, both at Berlin, which together with the Grand Lodge Royal York of Friendship constitute the three Prussian Grand Lodges under the Protectorate of the Emperor of Germany, who personally belongs to the Grand Lodge of the Whole Country, where he was initiated, and not to the Grand Lodge of the Three Globes, as erroneously stated last night.

The Grand Lodge of the Three Globes at Berlin has descended from a lodge of the same name, founded 1740 by Frederick the Great, where he met his intimate friends and councillors, and its Christian character was ably expounded last night by Lord Tenterden. The Grand Lodge of the Whole Country at Berlin is in its system an adaptation of Swedish Freemasonry brought over to Germany in 1766 by Von Zinnendorf, and as Swedish Freemasonry is purely Christian, this Grand Lodge follows the same principle; and the Emperor of Germany, although, indeed, a true Mason, admitting universality of Freemasonry, is nevertheless devotedly attached to his own lodge and its working. It is with both Grand Lodges not merely a question whether to admit Jews or not; they would have, in order to do this, to alter the whole of their ritual, into which most beautiful and poetical emblems and metaphors have been introduced debarring a conscientious Hebrew from joining or from being initiated.

The Rev. Brother who yesterday moved the resolution, if he had counselled proper information previously to making the motion, ought well to have paused before attacking a stronghold of Christianity, which in infidel Germany Freemasonry has built up in the form of these two Grand Lodges.

I may mention that at present there is a movement about to create one Grand National Lodge of Germany, and should this movement succeed, no doubt the "German question" will be satisfactorily solved.

I remain, dear Sir and Brother, yours fraternally,

KARL BERGMANN,

P.M. of the Pilgrim Lodge, No. 238.

London, 4, Gray's-inn-square, Dec. 6.

* This Grand Lodge, constituted in 1846, adheres also to Christian principles, it rules, however, only over nine lodges.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,

The Craft is greatly indebted to you for the very full and complete report you have given of the last Quarterly Communication of Grand Lodge, which was undoubtedly a meeting of such importance as to deserve and demand an able report of its discussions.

It seemed somewhat strange to me that those who felt an interest in the motion of my friend, Bro. Simpson, had not made some enquiries as to the practice of other Continental Grand Lodges besides that of Germany on the subject of a profession of the Christian Faith, and I felt impelled to address Grand Lodge for the purpose of informing it that the Grand Lodge of Sweden knows no other Masonry than that which is purely and entirely Christian. But the lateness of the hour prevented my making an explanatory speech; I therefore contented myself with the briefest possible statement of the fact. I did not, however, do this in the way in which I am reported in your columns. I did not say that "Swedish Freemasonry was on the same footing as German Freemasonry," but, on the contrary, I said that whereas in Germany, as Lord Tenterden had just pointed out, the Christian qualification was an exceptional characteristic of certain lodges, in Sweden it is the universal feature of all the lodges. Jews are not admitted as candidates for initiation in any Swedish lodge; but Jewish brethren, holding the certificates of any other Grand Lodge in the world, would be received as visitors and made welcome. This being the case, I think it would have been simply impossible for the Grand Lodge of England to request its Royal Grand Master to interfere in the case of Germany, and to ignore the stronger case of Sweden, in the Grand Lodge of which country he himself still holds a very high place, and to whose Constitutions His Royal Highness still owes allegiance.

The fact of the matter is this. Freemasonry in Sweden knows but one system, viz., that of a Grand Lodge which is the governing body of all the degrees which are, or can be, worked in that country. It is not, as in England, the Grand Lodge only of the Craft, or First Three Degrees, but recognises the Knight Templar as well as the Master Mason. I am myself a Canon of the Order of the Temple, i.e., a member of the highest degree known in Swedish Masonry; if I were a layman, I should be "Knight Commander." It is their Ninth Degree; what is looked upon as the Tenth is not a working degree, but a sort of brevet rank, or honorary distinction, conferred in a chapter of the Eighth Degree. This Eighth Degree is that of Knight Templar, and it is marked by a handsome gold ring worn on the middle finger of the right hand. The King of Sweden always wears this ring; and the Swedish deputation at the installation in the Albert Hall noticed that the Prince of Wales wore it on that occasion. Now, the privilege of wearing this ring is an object of laudable ambition to every Swede who joins the Masonic body; no Swede ever dreams of becoming a Mason to stop short at the Third Degree; he looks forward to the Eighth, and to be known all over Scandinavia as a Knight Templar by his ring. Consequently it may be understood that the Jews resident in Sweden would look upon the Freemasonry of the country, of which Knight Templary is so essential and prominent a feature, as not an object for their ambition or desire.

Before closing this letter, will you allow me to ask a question? What will the English Templars say to me when I present myself at their encampments as a visitor? Will they give a brotherly recognition to one who holds the same Swedish rank as their own Grand Master, whom they admitted to that high position on (as I believe) the qualification of his Masonic rank in Sweden?

Faithfully and fraternally yours,

R. P. BENT, P.G.C.,
Late Chaplain at Gothenburg, Sweden.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

While thanking Bro. the Rev. R. J. Simpson, P.G. Chaplain, right brotherly for his excellent advocacy in behalf of the motions he brought forth at the last meeting of G.L., permit me, as originator of this "German Question," to make a few remarks.

Whatever may be the original constitution of the G.L. of the Three Globes, if it is not in accordance with the principles of true Freemasonry it is not a right and lawful system.

That it is not in accordance with the principles of true Freemasonry will be acknowledged by every Freemason who has in his heart the words of the first chapter of our Book of Constitutions, namely: "Let a man's religion or mode of worship be what it may, he is not excluded from the Order."

The question therefore arises, can G.L. of England admit an official representative of the G.L. of the Three Globes, or any other G.L. which is as unlawful as that? (compare Lord Zetland's declaration as reported in Bro. Simpson's speech in the Freemason of 8th Dec., page 528, 3rd column.)

It cannot admit such a one until the Book of Constitutions of that G.L. of the Three Globes is revised according to the principles of true Freemasonry.

That it can be revised, is shown very clearly indeed by the revision of the Book of Constitutions made by the G.L. of Royal York of Friendship, when a similar obnoxious clause to that in question was repealed.

While admiring the wisdom of our M.W. Pro G.M., the Right Hon. the Earl of Carnarvon, not to "hurry to a decision that evening," I hope that G.L. will at its next meeting carry the motions two and three of Bro. Simpson, as it has done with motion one.

Yours fraternally,

S. STRAUSS,
Chaplain of Harmony, 600.

THE GRAND ORIENT AND THE GRAND LODGES OF SCOTLAND AND IRELAND.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I have been favoured from the Grand Orient of France with two letters (copies) one addressed to the Hon. Bro. Hyde Clarke, London, and the other to the Ill. Bro., E. Borough, Dublin, and as I think that they are important documents respecting the action lately taken by the Grand Orient of France, I have translated them, and beg you to insert them in your next publication.

Yours fraternally,

J. T. LORR, 33°.
P.M. and G. St.—Representative of the Grand Orient of France at the Grand Lodge of Scotland.

GRAND ORIENT OF FRANCE.
O. de Paris, 14th November, 1877.

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I hasten to reply to your letter of the 10th inst. The Grand Orient of France have not abolished the Masonic formula, "To the glory of the Great Architect of the Universe," as you appear to believe, still less have they made profession of Atheism. In their General Assembly of September, 1877, they purely and simply proclaimed absolute liberty of conscience as a right belonging to every man; and out of respect for this liberty they expunged from their constitution a dogmatic formula, which seemed to a great majority of their members to be in contradiction with liberty of conscience itself. I see by your letter, and by the resolution of the Grand Lodge of Ireland of which you apprise me, that this modification of their Constitution by the Grand Orient of France has unfortunately been misunderstood and badly interpreted abroad. I believe it would be otherwise if they would give themselves the trouble to take cognizance of the discussions upon this question, which took place in our General Assemblies of September 1876 and 1877.*

From the date of foundation until 1849, the Grand Orient of France had thrived and prospered without formulating in their code any dogmatic creed. They, in common with the founders of the Order, understood that Freemasonry should remain, in every state, a neutral ground, to which men of all opinions could be admitted, and should there be respected, and on which all honourable men, without distinction of nationalities, religions, races, or colour, could shake hands.

In 1849, under the influence of peculiar circumstances, which I have neither to vindicate nor qualify in this letter, the Grand Orient of France departed, at least in appearance, from this broad basis of ideas and principles; they then inscribed, for the first time, in their fundamental law, a dogmatic affirmation, which, since that period, has never ceased to cause confusion in their ranks.

In 1877, in the plenitude of their rights, and after a profound study of the question, being desirous of putting an end to so regrettable a state of affairs, they returned to their original starting point. By proclaiming absolute liberty of conscience they placed themselves in accord with the original laws of Masonry, with modern ideas, with progress; they showed themselves humane and tolerant in the face of inhumanity and intolerance, that is all.

Will the Grand Lodge of Ireland and the Great Masonic Powers of the Globe attribute to them as a crime this return to the pure sources of the institution? I do not think so, I cannot believe it, because I suppose them just and intelligent and animated by fraternal sentiments; and if I were charged to appeal to them, before all I should address myself to the Grand Lodge of Ireland, for, better than any other, they should know the value of liberty of conscience and have the highest appreciation of it.

Such, dear Sir and Brother, are the reflections which your letter suggests to me. However incomplete they may be, I am sure they will suffice to put you on your guard against the errors disseminated respecting the latest labours of the Grand Orient of France, and you will shortly receive the official report of these labours, by which alone you can form a sound judgment on the question.

Accept, dear Sir and Brother, the assurance of the sentiments with which I have the honour to remain,

Yours fraternally

Chief Secretary.

GRAND ORIENT OF FRANCE.
Cabinet of the President, Council of the Order,
O. de Paris, 18th November, 1877.

Sir and Very Illustrious Brother,—

We have received the letter informing us that you resign the representation of the Grand Orient of France at the Grand Lodge of Ireland. Your determination, it seems, is based upon the circumstances that the Grand Lodge of Ireland have decided, not only to break off all connection with the Grand Orient of France, but also that they should address a circular to the lodges of their jurisdiction, inviting them to refuse our Freemasons admission to their lodges. It would appear that this decision, which has not been notified to us, was taken in consequence of certain modifications made in our statutes by the last General Assembly of the Grand Orient of France.

While formally accepting your resignation, Sir and Very Illustrious brother, we cannot refrain from expressing our surprise and regret at the precipitation wherewith the Grand Lodge of Ireland have acted in this matter, without even having sought official information respecting the considerations which gave rise to the vote of our last General Assembly. In those proceedings, permit me to observe, there is a forgetfulness of the sentiments of Masonic fraternity, which, we are persuaded, will strike you, as it has done us, and in any case it is painful for us to note such an act of intolerance on the part of a Masonic power with which the Grand Orient of France have for so long a period maintained fraternal relations. In this letter I shall not endeavour to demonstrate to you how much the Grand Lodge of Ireland have been mistaken in their construction of the vote of our last Assembly. That is a duty which I hold in reserve until such time as the Grand Orient of France shall have received notice of the regrettable decision you mention. Let it suffice for me to affirm that, in modifying an article of their statutes the Grand Orient of France by no means intended to make profession either of atheism or of materialism, as would seem to be understood. No alteration has been made either in the principles or in the practice of Masonry; and French Freemasonry remains what it has always been, a fraternal and tolerant brotherhood, which respects the religious faith and political convictions of its adepts, and leaves in these delicate questions to each one the liberty of his conscience. Labouring, as it does, with a view to the moral and intellectual perfecting of men and to their well-being, it requires of those who desire to be admitted to its fold those sentiments of honesty and love of good which permit their co-operating usefully in its work of progress and civilisation.

We think, Sir and Very Illustrious Brother, that these are the true precepts inculcated by Freemasonry, and we should be much surprised if they did not dwell in the hearts of all Freemasons of every land, to whatsoever die they may belong.

In conclusion, Sir and Very Illustrious Brother, we express our most sincere wish that the misunderstanding which constrains you to resign your office of representative of Grand Orient of France may disappear, and that we may once more be permitted to entrust you with that mission to the Grand Lodge of Ireland.

Accept, Sir and Very Illustrious Brother, the assurance, &c., &c.

THE COSMO.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

A pamphlet entitled "A Masonic Mistake" has come into my hands, and induced me to write a few lines to you. It appears to me that such a communication, which apparently intended as a "trade circular," is neither very courteous nor very amiable, and is entirely inconsistent with the true principles and real teaching of Freemasonry.

It is, in fact, a deliberate attack from some interested individual on your publisher, and his useful and valuable Cosmopolitan Calendar.

Even supposing that such hostile criticism is justified, I think it right to say this. Every one knows that in a compilation of such magnitude as the "Cosmopolitan" errors of various kinds must creep in, even with the best intentions in the world, and with the utmost care of comparison and compilation. I note, for instance, that even in our excellent Grand Lodge Calendar, published under official authority, there are no less than twenty-three errors in the days of meeting of eighty-six lodges, and nine errors of the same kind in regard to thirty-five chapters. So far as regards this province very few chapters meet more than four times a year, but the "Calendar" does not mention the months of meeting. I have carefully compared the dates given in Grand Lodge "Calendar," as "corrected from the books of the Grand Lodge and Grand Chapter," with the small Calendar compiled by the Prov. Grand Secretary of East Lancashire, the dates of which I have verified in many instances. This I think proves how very difficult it is to arrive at entire accuracy in detail.

I also observe that Grand Chapter is said to have voted a sum of money to the sufferers from the fire at St. John, New Brunswick, in 1879. Of course it will be said that this is a mere mistake of the printer's devil. But don't you keep one at the office of the Freemason? And cannot you throw the blame of any errors or omissions in the "Cosmopolitan" on his guilty shoulders?

Were it not for the "Cosmo," how could I learn anything about the Mark, the K.T., the Rose Croix, or any of the higher degrees, for some of which I hold a great veneration, the meetings which I am always anxious to be present at, in the course of one's wanderings? Your "Cosmo" has rarely misled me, either in England or on the Continent, and I must bear my record to its value as being what it professes to be, in addition to its giving the greatest amount of information for the money, and as quite reliable, in every way. I am, dear Sir and Brother,

Yours fraternally,

SENIOR DRAGON.

THE "NATIONAL REFORMER."

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I see in the National Reformer, a letter addressed to His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales respecting the Grand Orient of France and the Grand Lodge of England. The only answer which the epistle requires is, I think—"A Mason is obliged, by his tenure, to obey the moral law; and if he rightly understand the art he will never be a stupid atheist, nor an irreligious libertine. He, of all men, should best understand that God seeth not as man seeth. Let a man's religion or mode of worship be what it may, he is not excluded from the Order, provided he believe in the glorious Architect of Heaven and Earth and practise the sacred duties of morality."

I am, yours fraternally,

AN ENGLISH MASON.

P.S.—English Masons are not unprepared for the fight, as threatened somewhat in the National Reformer.

The London Freemason has been enlarged to twenty pages—weekly. This is one of the best, if not the best, Masonic periodical of the day. There is an immense amount of reading matter in its pages, and the leading articles are ably written. We are indebted to the Freemason for items of English Masonic news.—The Canadian Craftsman, Nov. 15th, 1877.

CONSECRATION OF THE HAMMERSMITH MARK LODGE No. 211.

On Saturday last another lodge, with the above title, was added to the roll of the rapidly increasing Mark Degree. The brethren began to assemble at the Windsor Castle Hotel, King-street, Hammersmith, at 3 o'clock, but the ceremony did not commence until after 4 o'clock, when there were present amongst others, a very goodly and distinguished array of Grand and Provincial Grand Officers. We noticed Bros. Binckes, Grand Secretary; Stevens, P.G.J.O.; Levander, G.R.; Mann, P.G.R.; Wilkins, G.S.O.; Cottebrune, P.G.S.B.; Cozens, P.G. Organist; Poore, G.I.G.; H. Binckes, Assist. G. Sec.; Tebb, P.G.S.W., Midx. and Surrey; Shackleton, P.G.D.C., of the same province; Thicellay, W.M. No. 1; Horsley, M. No. 1, 35°; Dixon, P.M. 32; Holmes, P.M. 107; ois and Williams, St. Mark's Lodge; Harty, Bon Ac Lodge; Davies, 16, Ottawa; Loeweostark, 86; Barney, Adams, 176. The founders present were Bros. J. sen, Thistle; Baldwin, Lebanon Lodge; T. C. Walls, Francis Burdett, all P.G.O.'s of the Craft in Middlesex; F. Walters, a P.G. Officer of the Mark Degree; Dunham Thistle; D. Smith. The officer appointed by the M.W.G.M. to conduct the ceremonies of consecration and installation was Bro. F. Binckes, G.S., who appointed Bros. Stevens as S.W.; W. Mann, J.W.; Wilkins, D.C.; and Poore, I.G., as his assistants. There being no Chaplain present, the G.S. delivered a short but telling address as a substitute for the usual oration. The impressive and beautiful ceremony was then carried out in its entirety by the Consecrating Officer. In certain parts of the ceremonial Bros. Cottebrune, Levander, and Cozens rendered valuable assistance. The W.M. designate, Bro. Mason, was then duly installed, and having invested Bros. Baldwin and Walls, the S. and J. Wardens designate, was about to appoint his officers when it was reported that the R.W.P.G.M. Middlesex and Surrey, Lieut.-Colonel Burdett, had arrived. A procession having been formed, that gallant and genial officer and distinguished Mason was duly and formally escorted into the lodge, and saluted in ancient form. The investiture of the officers was then resumed, Bros. Dunham being appointed M.O.; Harty, S.O. (pro. tem.); F. Walters, Sec.; Smith, Assist. Secretary. A vote of thanks was passed to Bro. Binckes for the manner in which he had carried out the dual ceremonial, and it was ordered to be entered on the minutes. Bros. Colonel Burdett, F. Binckes, H. Binckes, Stevens, Levander, Mann, Wilkins, Poore, and others whose names we could not catch, were elected honorary members. A number of propositions for advancement and joining having been given, the lodge was closed, and after a somewhat wearisome interval the brethren re-assembled at the banquet table. By this time the number of the visitors had been swelled by the arrival amongst others of Bro. Sabine, P.G.A.D.C. At the conclusion of the feast, which reflected great credit upon the caterer, Bro. Gilbert, the W.M., gave the customary royal and Mark toasts, which were received with excellent "fire." The name of Colonel Burdett having been mentioned in connection with the Grand Officers, that R.W. brother arose and said that it afforded him great pleasure to reply. The present members of Grand Lodge, he said, were not only always ready, but they were in every respect capable of discharging any duty that they might be called upon to do, but of himself for obvious reasons he would say nothing. He had visited one of the oldest Mark Lodges the previous evening namely, the Thistle, and he was pleased to have seen one of its members installed into the chair of the newest lodge in the Order that day. It was also very gratifying to him to find that the degree was on the increase both in London and in the provinces. As the Grand Master of Middlesex and Surrey, he was proud of the rapid growth they had made in Mark Masonry, and he ventured to predict they would eventually become the chief strongholds of the Order, and he should always endeavour to further the good cause as long as he had the honour of presiding over the destinies of the united Provinces. In conclusion he thanked them for electing him an honorary member. "The Health of the W.M." was proposed by Bro. Binckes, G.S., who stated on rising that he had been requested to do so by the P.G.M. of Middlesex and Surrey, which compliment conferred upon him by the gallant colonel he highly appreciated. The founders of the Hammersmith Lodge had made a wise selection in nominating Bro. Mason as first Master. This lodge was also established under very auspicious circumstances. He had no idea that Mark Masonry would have taken the lead in Hammersmith, but such was the case, for they were, he was informed, the pioneers of a coming Craft lodge to be held in that very house. He was pleased to meet there that day the R.W. Bro. Colonel Burdett, whose zeal in all Masonic matters was unremitting. In installing Bro. Mason into the chair he had performed a very pleasing duty, because he was as good a man and brother as possibly could be found to preside over the destinies of any lodge. When their W.M. did him, the speaker, the great honour of asking him to consecrate their lodge, subject to the approval of the M.W.G.M., he determined that nothing should be wanting on his part to render it a great success, and he was gratified to think that everything had passed off so well. In conclusion, the Grand Secretary complimented the lodge upon possessing two good Wardens, whose interest in Masonry was widely known, and a most indefatigable Secretary in the person of Bro. Fred. Walters, who, in writing to him upon the prospects of No. 211 had forcibly stated, "We mean to make the Hammersmith Mark Lodge a great success." He heartily echoed their Secretary's words, and further wished them every happiness and every prosperity, and hoped that the interests of the Order would not suffer at their hands.

The W.M. made an excellent and humorous reply, which space prevents our giving in detail. "The Installing Master" followed, and gave Bro. Binckes, in reply, an opportunity of touching at length upon various matters connected with the Order, and which were listened to with great attention by the brethren. "The Visitors" came next, and having been coupled with the name of Bro. Charles Horsley, that veteran Mason made a terse but pertinent response. The W.M. in proposing the health of "The Officers," congratulated himself and the members generally upon having such good working brethren as Bros. Baldwin, Walls, Walters, Dunham, and Harty, occupying the principal positions in the lodge. Bros. Baldwin and Walters having briefly replied, the Tyler was called upon to discharge his duty and the brethren separated.

During the proceedings Bros. Cozens, Walls, and others instrumentally and vocally entertained the brethren. The first regular meeting of the lodge will be held on the third Saturday in January next.

PROVINCIAL GRAND MARK LODGE OF LINCOLNSHIRE.

The third annual meeting of this lodge was held at Alford on Thursday, 29th November, under the banner of the St. Wilfrid Lodge, No. 209. The proceedings of the day commenced at 11.15 a.m., by the consecration of the St. Wilfrid Lodge, the ceremony of consecration being performed by Bro. Binckes, Grand Secretary, in his usual perfect style.

The Provincial Grand Lodge was presided over by the Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Master Mason, Bro. John Sutcliffe, of Stalingbro' House, near Grimsby, and a large number of distinguished Master Masons were present, amongst whom were the R.W. Bro. John Sutcliffe, Prov. G.M.M.; Bros. W. Watkins, P.P.G.S.W., as Deputy Prov. G.M.M.; R. Cotton Carline, Prov. G. Reg., as Prov. G.S.W.; W. W. Copeland, Prov. J.W.; F. Higgins, as Prov. G.M.O.; M. Crowden, Prov. G.S.O.; J. E. Mason, as Prov. J.O.; the Rev. D. Ace, D.D., P.P.G. Chap., as Prov. Chap.; Jack Sutcliffe, Prov. Treas.; Robt. Gough, Prov. Sec.; T. A. Handsley, as Prov. S.D.; C. Brooks, as Prov. J.D.; W. H. Roberts, Prov. D. of C.; Hasten Clark, as Prov. Asst. D. of C.; H. S. Close, Prov. Sup. of W.; G. M. Lowe, M.D., Prov. Sword B.; C. W. Cheesman, as Prov. Organist; F. C. Johnson, as Prov. I.G.; Geo. Motley, Prov. Steward; W. H. Parkinson, Prov. Steward; Charles Mann, Prov. Tyler; W. H. Radley, P.P.G.S.W.; F. S. Judd, P.P.G. Assist. D. of C.; Thos. Slater, P.P.G. Sword Bearer; T. M. Wilkinson, S.O. Remigius, 117; J. E. Fox, Sec. Remigius, 117; R. Goodman, P.P.G.D. of C., W.M. John-of-Gaunt, 172; J. Loughton, S.O. John-of-Gaunt, 172; C. F. Liversidge, S.D. John-of-Gaunt, 172; B. Box, Tyler John-of-Gaunt, 172; W. Marshall, P.P.G. Steward, W.M. Sutcliffe, 188; Geo. Lister, S.D. Sutcliffe, 188; R. Boggett, Past M.O., 188; Henry Barker, Sec., 188; Henry Wardale, Tyler, 188; John Nelson, 188; C. Genney, 188; Charles Smyth, S.W., 209; R. Garfit, J.W. 209; W. O. Taylor, 209; Edward Souley, 209; John Mawer, 209; C. Mason, 209; C. H. Bycroft, 209; W. N. Mason, 209; R. Lanphier, 209.

The visitors were the V.W. Bro. F. Binckes, Past G.J.W. Grand Sec.; Bros. Martin Kemp, P.M. 182; Henry Preston, J.W. 182; M. Haberland, 182.

The Prov. Grand Secretary read the following list of brethren from whom letters had been received, regretting their non-attendance:—Bros. James Terry, C. Harrison, M.D., Jno. N. Scherling, Walter Reynolds, A. Kirk, F. Watson, C. Scorer, H. Watson, Hesketh Smith, P. P. Dickinson, Geo. Housham, T. E. Jacobson, Jno. Moxon, W. Pollitt, T. C. Lazenby, the Rev. J. G. Bayles, W. M. Green, S. Walmsley, Captain Coates, the Rev. B. A. Galland, M.A.

The usual routine of a Provincial Grand Lodge having been gone through, and the officers for the ensuing year invested, the R.W. Prov. G.M.M.M. then called upon the brethren for one to volunteer to undertake the office of Grand Steward, which office W. Bro. D. Ace, D.D., P.P.G. Chaplain, undertook.

The Treasurer's accounts having been previously submitted and passed, and found in a healthy state, there being a balance of over £30 in hand, the R.W. Prov. G.M.M.M. said for his part he had always been opposed to Masonic lodges hoarding up money. He thought it was far more desirable to circulate it for the benefit of distressed Masons, and he suggested that a portion should be voted to strengthen the Mark Benevolent Fund, and on the motion of Bro. Dr. Ace the sum of £10 10s. was so voted. The Prov. G. Master subsequently added £5 5s. to this, and Bro. R. Boggett volunteered to undertake the office of Steward at the Mark Benevolent Festival, which is usually held in May in each year.

The R. W. Prov. G.M. appointed and invested the following brethren as the Prov. Grand Officers for the ensuing year:—

Charles Harrison, M.D., 117	D.P.G.M.M.M.
G. M. Lowe, M.D., 117	Prov. G.S.W.
W. Marshall, 188	Prov. G.J.W.
R. Goodman, 172	Prov. G.M.O.
R. Boggett, 188	Prov. G.S.O.
Charles Smyth, 209	Prov. G.J.O.
Jack Sutcliffe, 188	Prov. G. Treas.
R. Cotton Carline, 117	Prov. G. Reg. of M.
R. Gough, 188	Prov. G. Sec.
F. M. Wilkinson, 117	Prov. G.S.D.
C. F. Liversidge, 172	Prov. G.J.D.
W. H. Roberts, 188	Prov. G.D.C.
Hasten Clark, 188	Prov. G. Asst. D.C.
Robert Garfit, 209	Prov. G. Sup. of W.
T. C. Johnson, 209	Prov. G.S.B.
Geo. Motley, 172	Prov. G. St. B.

Frederick Higgins, 209 ..... Prov. G. Org.
John Nelson, 188 ..... Prov. G.I.G.

J. E. Fox, 117; John Loughton, 172;
Henry Barker, 188; J. Eardley
Mason, 209 ..... Prov. G. Stewards.

Charles Mann, 117 ..... Prov. G. Tyler.
The R.W. Prov. G.M. exceedingly regretted that Bro. the Rev. B. A. Galland, the W.M. of the St. Wilfrid Lodge, was unable to be present through illness, and in his absence appointed him Prov. Grand Chaplain, and deputed Bro. Smyth, the S.W. of the St. Wilfrid Lodge, to invest him to that office.

Before closing the lodge, the R.W. Prov. G.M.M.M. stated that in routine the lodge will be held at the fine old city of Lincoln next year, on which occasion he expected to have a most numerous and popular gathering. The Masons of Lancashire—his native county—had done him high honour, and he had in return invited the R.W. Prov. Grand M.M.M. for Larnashire, with all his present officers, to honour Lincoln with a visit, and he fully expected they would do so, when he, with the Lincolnshire brethren, could acknowledge his obligations, and give them a hearty reception, such as Masons know how to give.

A magnificent banquet was served at the White Horse Hotel to between fifty and sixty brethren, guests of the Prov. Grand Mark Mason, Bro. Sutcliffe, who occupied the chair. There was also a liberal supply of choice wines to add zest to the repast and to the loyal and Masonic toasts which followed. The menu comprised the various edibles in season, including a plentiful supply of game, and the bounteous provision elicited the personal thanks of Bro. Sutcliffe to Host Hibbit. During dinner the founder of the feast took wine respectively with the brethren on the right and the left, and with the St. Wilfrid Lodge. In proceeding with the toast list before the tables were cleared,

The Chairman apologetically remarked that the time was getting very valuable and very precious, as some brethren had to leave in a short time for their homeward journey, and he must therefore call upon Dr. Ace for the usual prayer after meat.

Grace having been said,

The Chairman loyally called upon the brethren to join him in drinking the toast of "The Queen and Mark Masonry," which was followed by the singing of the National Anthem.

The Chairman then said the next toast he had to propose would meet with a hearty response, namely, "His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales," who was at the head of Masonry, and not only that, but as the Heir Apparent to the throne they should drink his health, and also that of "The Princess of Wales and the rest of the Royal Family." (God bless the Prince of Wales.)

The Chairman, without any delay, proceeded to say that the next toast he had to propose for their approval was that of "The M.W. the Earl of Limerick, the Grand Mark Master Mason; The Provincial Grand Masters of other Mark Provinces; and all Grand and Provincial Grand Officers Present and Past." It was a routine toast, but still a compliment which it was incumbent upon them to pay to the head of their institution. They had looked to the Earl of Limerick with a great amount of interest for the moveable Grand Lodge which he had promised to hold in this district in the autumn of the present year, but after many attempts Bro. Binckes had failed, for the Earl was so engaged that he could not attend. He coupled with the toast the name of Bro. Binckes, Grand Secretary.

Bro. Binckes, in responding, remarked that the Right Worshipful Master had imposed upon him a heavy duty to discharge, because it was a very comprehensive toast. They started with the Most Worshipful Master who held the reins over this province—the Earl of Limerick, to whom their Right Worshipful Master Sutcliffe had made a happy allusion, but he did not know that it was from the reason named that the Earl did not hold a moveable Grand Lodge, because he was in Ireland, and had engagements there, and from one cause or another the Moveable Grand Lodge fell through. Speaking of the selection of Provincial Grand Officers, he said it was exceedingly difficult to make a selection without giving offence where the qualifications of all were so equal. But they could always make themselves happy under disappointment. (Hear, hear.) They lived in the hope that the day would come when the merits of each individual brother would be acknowledged. There were two estimates of every man—the one formed of himself and the other formed by other people, and he thought the estimate formed by other people was the most correct. (Hear, hear.) With reference to himself he was exceedingly happy to be once more amongst them, and exceedingly pleased to see such a good attendance, so ably presided over as they were by their Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Mark Master. (Applause.)

Bro. Binckes proposed "The Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Mark Master for Lincolnshire, Bro. John Sutcliffe." Had he known when responding to the last toast that this honour would have been put in his hands he should have curtailed his observations. Three years ago he had the honour of installing Bro. Sutcliffe as a Provincial Grand Officer. The honour fell to him (Bro. Binckes) by accident. He could say a good deal with regard to the distinguished brother in connection with this toast, but he need not occupy time in recounting his most valuable and good qualities, which were probably better known by those present than by himself (Bro. Binckes), although he knew something of both. He was one of the hardest Provincial Grand Masters he ever served under, and now only allowed him a minute-and-a-half to propose his health, and he must therefore call upon them by the heartiness of their reception of it to make up for the want of what he would say if he had time to say it, but he believed a better Grand Master could not be served under (applause), nor one better deserving of their best support. (Applause.) He wished him good health, that he might for many years fulfil the position he now held and the arduous duties devolving upon him as they had seen him that day. (Great applause.)

Bro. Sutcliffe, on rising, was received with loud applause and cheering. He feelingly acknowledged the very great kindness with which the proposition of his health had been received, as proposed by Bro. Binckes, who by his splendid and eloquent flow of language expressed himself in a style which no other man scarcely could do. He (Bro. Sutcliffe) hoped to have the opportunity of meeting his brethren for some years to come (hear, hear), and they would not find much change in him. (Applause.) For their kindness he could only say he would fulfil his office in every way he could, but it was no use his being placed in the chair unless he was supported by the various lodges. He expressed himself as pleased with the satisfactory state of things in the province.

The Chairman, without resuming his seat, said he had great pleasure in proposing "The Health of the Worshipful Masters, Past Masters and all Officers and Brethren of Lodges in the Province of Lincolnshire." The lodges were all working harmoniously. They did not lose strength, but gained a little. They had at the head of their lodges four good and enthusiastic Masons. Dr. Lowe and Brother Goodman were unsurpassed by any men. Bro. Copeland, who presided over another, was one of their principal names and principal characters. For the Alford Lodge he was exceedingly pleased in submitting for their consideration a first-rate tip-top man, who would be a great ornament to the province, and he greatly regretted that he had not been present that day (the Rev. Basil A. Galland, M.A., rector of South Thoresby). With men like these they must progress. They did not want to progress rapidly; they wanted quality and not quantity. He coupled with the toast the name of Dr. Lowe.

Bro. Dr. Lowe expressed the satisfaction which the Masters of the lodges felt in their Provincial Grand Master, whom they endeavoured to imitate, and they did all they could to serve him, and, owing to him, no sooner were Masons initiated in the Craft lodge but they were anxious to join the Mark lodge. With regard to Lincoln, they were not quite so prosperous as they might be. They kept Masonry very popular, especially Mark Masonry, and before another year the lodge would be increased. He knew from the pulse of Lincoln that it would be so. The Grand Lodge would probably be held in Lincoln next year under very agreeable auspices, and they would give a good reception. He hardly expected that they should do equal justice to what they had seen that day, for he had travelled through the province and not seen it better done or better served. (Applause.)

The Chairman said the next toast under ordinary circumstances would have been the Deputy Provincial Grand Mark Master and other Provincial Officers of Lincolnshire, but they must excuse him for passing over that toast, seeing that the Lincoln and Gainsboro' brethren must depart almost immediately. He would therefore take up "The Visiting Brethren," who came from Hull, South Lincolnshire (St. Botolph's), and Bro. Binckes. He had been in the habit of seeing the Lincolnshire brethren more numerous than that day, but the geographical position of Alford was such that they could not come. But although the brethren from Hull and Boston were very few, they were glad to see them in all Mark lodges, and he hoped to have them on a future occasion. In conclusion he asked the brethren of the district to drink to the brethren of Hull, Lincoln, Boston, and Spalding, and Bro. Binckes, wishing them many years of happiness and prosperity, and coupling with the toast the names of Bro. Kemp, Bro. Radley, and Bro. Preston.

Bro. Preston (Hull) wished the Provincial Grand Mark Master every prosperity, hoping that the Mark Degree would prosper. The brethren from Yorkshire had great pleasure in meeting him on this occasion.

Bro. Radley (Boston) expressed his gratitude for the opportunity of observing the working of a Mark lodge. Although on the "black list," they of the St. Botolph's Lodge not being able to work a Mark lodge in a high degree, they would have liked to do so. They came there because, being presided over by such a distinguished and painstaking brother, it was the least duty they could render at his hands. All his brethren then present felt their position somewhat, and he hoped the outcome would be that they should not keep out of the pale of Masonry another year, especially as the Prov. Grand Master held out to them the temptation of a meeting, which they hoped would be the best under the Mark Masonic prestige in Lincolnshire, and he would say if it was not taken up in Boston he would join some other lodge. (Hear, hear.)

Bro. Kemp, in an eloquent speech, proposed "The Masonic Charities," which he described not as charities, but as truly benevolent institutions, referring particularly to the Boys' Schools and their economical management. There were very few institutions, but some grumbling person might say there is some extravagance here, or some mismanagement there, but it could not be said of the Boys' Schools, and he would say that there was no Institution in the land that could compare with the Masonic Institutions in London. He had mentioned the name of Binckes in connection with them, but he could not possibly pass over the name of Sutcliffe. (Great applause.) Before he had the pleasure of an intimate acquaintance with their Prov. Grand Master he read of his noble doings. He did not envy the Province of Lincolnshire very much, but he envied them of their Grand Master. They had a Mark lodge in Hull—a baby one-and-a-half year old, and when compared with the lodge they had consecrated that day it showed how Mark Masonry was progressing. The Hull lodge was No. 184, and that established at Alford was 209, showing the great increase in so short a time. He hoped to have the pleasure of meeting their Provincial Grand Master for many years to come. (Hear, hear.) He was reminded by seeing Bro. Jack Sutcliffe take office—which was not the first instance in Masonry—that he was a worthy son of a worthy sire. (Great applause.) The names of the Right Worshipful Grand Master and his son Jack, with the name of Binckes, would never pass away, with whom he would also mention the name of Buggett, a Mark Master at Hull, in connection with the Masonic charities.

Bro. Binckes, in responding, gave some particulars of the position of the Boys' and Girls' Schools, which had £40,000 funded property. They were not hoarding up all their income for posterity, but had expended £3,000 to £3500 in enlarging the Boys' Schools and had increased the number from 140 to 180. His brother Jack Sutcliffe, whose name had been associated with his good father's noble deeds, and whose efforts in the future would be in excess of those that had gone before, would find a most genial occupation in providing for aged Freemasons, thereby on the one hand supporting them in their closing years, and in the other case starting them in life with that education which all wished to start with.

Bro. Jack Sutcliffe observed that after such a brilliant speaker as Bro. Binckes it was difficult for him to gain their attention. He failed to see how his name could be connected with the Masonic charities, because he had done very little in comparison with other active Masons. He had done something in the Craft and Mark lodges, and went up to London well satisfied with his position in respect to other lodges. He was nobly and well entertained, and in a manner which afforded him great gratification. He was introduced to many brethren whose acquaintance it was an honour to have. What little he had done for the Masonic charities he had done with great pleasure indeed. His heart was with the great Masonic movement, and if they wished him to continue in the position he now held he should endeavour to increase what he had hitherto done. (Applause.)

Bro. Boggett (Hull) also responded, remarking that when they went up with their lists they were not second. (The Provincial Grand Mark Master: "And you shall not be second this year.") He was going to represent the Lincolnshire Province of Mark Masons, and he hoped the brethren in the Mark Degree would assist him. He had the promise from one brother of 5 gs., and if he wanted more he was to go again. Last year Bro. Sutcliffe sent him 5 gs., and this year he hoped to have the name of every officer in the Sutcliffe Lodge—every officer in the county. He hoped to have the biggest list at the Mark Festival.

Bro. Copeland said he had a toast to propose that did not appear in the list. It was the practice of Masonry to recognise merit where merit was due, and the brother that he had to bring before their notice had merit as his peculiar forte. He was a brother who had served very long and very arduously in this province, namely, "Bro. Grand Secretary Gough." (Applause.) They all knew, especially those who were first connected with this province, the very great amount of work that Bro. Gough had to perform. (Hear, hear.) He deserved their thanks for what he had done in the lodge and in the province. That was all they could do at present, but he hoped at some future time some further recognition would be forthcoming. (Hear, hear.)

Bro. P.G.M.M. Sutcliffe: Before this toast is submitted to you I must say that Bro. Gough has been lad and man with me, and he is my book-keeper. He has only one senior in our establishment. He has my full trust as a book-keeper, and he has my full confidence as a Mason. He not only discharges his duties as a servant, but he discharges his duties as a Mason. (Applause.)

Bro. Gough thanked the P.G.M.M. and all present very much for drinking his health, the proposal of which had come upon him unexpectedly. As most of them were aware, talking was not his forte, and as to the working part he left them to be the judges, thanking them for their confidence.

The Chairman then proposed a toast which he said ought to bring a smile over the faces of all brethren, namely, "The Ladies." It was a toast which was often brought before a meeting as a matter of mere routine, being placed sometimes in the hands of some young butterfly who did not know anything about it—(laughter)—who did not know how to propose it. However, as an old married man, and the father of a family he could say they were a great comfort and solace, as the brethren would feel when they arrived at his time of life. In our youth we enjoyed their society, and they administered to our comforts in many respects as married men, and in our old age they had to be our nurses. He did not know what his home would be without his wife—his good old wife, who at that time would be very anxious and wondering how "John" was getting on. (Laughter.) She would be saying to herself, "Now will he come home cross or pleased?" (Laughter.) But in a general way he went home from a Masonic meeting in a much better temper than from elsewhere. (Applause.) Therefore he had very great pleasure in proposing the health of "The Ladies." Young and old admired them and loved them. He coupled with it the health of the Provincial Grand Organist, Bro. Higgins.

Bro. Higgins felt the difficulty of his position in this case, for he as a bachelor could not tell what the ladies would wish to say under such trying circumstances. He considered that married Masons occupied a more difficult position than bachelors, for they might be assured that when they went home they were put through a most trying ordeal, and if they did not give satisfactory answers think of their faces, and think of their tongues. (Laughter.) They bachelors had no such trying questions put to them. Still the ladies would be only too glad to second his poor efforts in returning thanks for them.

The Chairman having proposed, "All poor and distressed Masons," the proceedings were brought to a conclusion by the usual parting toast.

The Freemason,

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 22, 1877.

A CHRISTMAS GREETING.

With this Christmas season of 1877, Publisher and Editor wish to greet all their many kind readers, contributors and friends. They have to express to them once again their deep sense and heartfelt appreciation of a sympathy which has never faltered, and of a good-will which has never grown cold. Never at any time in its interesting and successful career has the Freemason been so cheered with the voice of popular approval and the prestige of Masonic confidence as in the last twelve eventful months, and it is with no ordinary emotions of thankful congratulation that as Christmas once more draws near, Publisher and Editor beg to offer their genuine Masonic Christmas greeting to their numerous and increasing patrons. May this festive genial season be to all for whom the Freemason is published and to whom it appeals in Masonic loyalty and "entente cordiale," an unmixed epoch of home happiness and of family union. May all of good, of peace, of contentment, of harmony, welcome its approach, and witness its departure. If time as it passes brings some souvenirs of missing friends, if Christmas as it hails us seems to point to vacant chairs, at the goodly board; if voices hushed, appear to mingle with the sounds we raise, and shades dear and spiritual appear to linger wistfully with us all still, yet our Christmas rejoicing season seems once more to bid us all "God speed" on our journey of life. As we write to-day the Christmas holiday is summoning all classes to come together for a few brief moments of pleasant intercourse and merry gathering. Age is once more to look benignly on the follies of youth, and youth is to cheer the incipient winter of old age. As poor Stanislas, the last King of Poland, once said at a similar season, about 100 years ago, as the great Lord Malmesbury records, "c'est si doux de se tromper quelquefois,"—it is so sweet to deceive ourselves, sometimes. So let us midst the hearty welcome which Christmas brings, and the innocent rejoicing of friends and families, let us, we say try to forget for a few short moments the cares which worry us and the anxieties which depress us. If life is made up for us all of what, the Bishop of Lincoln properly calls "trivialities," if "les petites miseres de la vie humaine," the little miseries of human life—often greatly affect us all alike, let us welcome Christmas as a happy annual reminder, that not only for all these things there is an end, but that even now we may well forget them one and all amid that happiness of the heart, and sympathetic union which the family gathering offers, which the meeting of friends and relatives and children supplies. In how many happy homes of England on Christmas Day will the sanctities of family life receive a fresh vitality and blessing, as for once during the twelve months, all assemble round the old "hearth stone" or congregate under the dear paternal roof. The laughter of the innocent and the young, the pleasant associations of early life, the rejoicing activity of the gay and the goutless, will give strength to the resolutions of maturity, and quicken the aspirations of old age. Many are the families whose grandfathers and grandmothers live again in the smiles and winning ways of their grandchildren, whose parents smile approvingly on the promises of goodness and grace in their children, and where all can find sympathy, and not a few encouragement, from the unbought merriment of the true, the tender, and the trusting. Hail then, oh, Christmastide, which wouldst renew for many of our toiling race the pleasantest dreams and memories and companionships of time! May all of true happiness and simple pleasure attend all our kind readers and friends in their Christmas holidays, and we trust that they will deign to receive to-day, once more in all the genuineness of outspoken sincerity, the heartfelt wish from these humble pages of the Freemason, that theirs may be indeed a very happy Christmas to them and theirs.

THE PROGRESS OF TIME.

It is an old,—very old, saying, perhaps among the oldest, "Tempus fugit," but it has not yet lost one jot of its reality. As year succeeds to year in the long calendar of time as the young year grows old and the old year bids us farewell, we feel, if we feel anything at all, how evanescent are its fairest gifts, how short-lived its fondest dreams. Life and time come and go, for us all, day by day, year by year, and we are so busy, so reckless, and so indifferent, that we hardly note their arrival or heed their departure. We look back to day, perhaps through the dim vista of a long avenue of years. How strange it seems to us to recall and remember the years, the scenes, the friends of "long ago." We who are now old and hurrying down the decline of life, were once hale and strong, and active, and for us youth had its gay flowers, its soft songs and its happy heart-ease. But we have seen life gradually leave us and slipping from beneath our feet, and here we are looking on to-day in fading hours to the inevitable and the eventual! For us no day dreams are longer possible; for us no anticipations are any further probable. We have outlived life and trust, and fancy and fondness, and zeal and strength; and Time, if it lays its hand gently upon us, yet tells us unmistakably that ere long it must recall from us its gifts and its graces, its joy and its sorrows, yes, its smiles and its tears. For us the present is leaving us, the future stands out before us, if like a bank of cloud on the horizon at sea, yet clear and certain, definite and distinct. The true Freemason needs no such teaching, however, it is the moral symbolism of all our lodge lore, if only we will but attend to it. But as profession and practice are two very different things we think it well to rub up the memories of our good brethren. We enter the lodge as we do life, and we encounter shocks and trials, and illumination and enlightenment, as onward we go, further we progress. We take our degrees alike in the school of Masonry, and in the academe of life, we are full of trust and vigour and vitality of body and mind. We make us fast friends, we form us pleasant companionships, we learn how much of happiness friendship can impart to us all here below, how amiable are its gifts and its graces to isolated yet gregarious man. But ere long life's shadows seem to fall on the scene, and Masonry, like the world, bears with it its own abiding witness of weakness and decay. We lose the friends with whom we have consorted, we separate from the cherished companions of many a festive hour. The good old lodge knows us no more, and for us, alas the songs are hushed, the lights are extinguished, the flowers are withered, the hearts are cold, which once cheered the pathway of our feet, and crowned our lot on earth with the choicest of all earthly good things, the friendship of the friendly, and the sympathy of the sympathizing. Oh! wonderful mystery of our probation and our existence, that nothing here will endure, nothing can outlive the "encroaching hand of time," nothing can withstand the weakness, the decay, the disappearance of life. Faith and love, truth and tenderness, the joy of the joyous, and the sorrow of the sorrowing, alike yield to the resistless flight of time, and as Life speeds on its goal, we only realize more and more, how that when all its best gifts are enjoyed, its truest treasures treasured, and its fairest sympathies claimed, all this passes away often in a moment, and we sum it all up as a tale that is told. We think then, that at this goodly season of the year, we should seek to remember such teaching as we may find it both opportune and improving. If the Masonic press is to hold its own, it must alike improve and inform, warn and edify. It is not meant merely for the idle display of the hour or the passing record of frivolity. No, it has a higher mission, and a truer teaching. As good men and bright Masons let us listen to that pleasant voice which seems to whisper to us from out of our own cherished ceremonial, "Gnothi Seauton." To-day we are—tomorrow we may not be. For us our lodge will be closed, our work finished, our course run! And what then? The progress of life warns us, like as in Masonic analogy, how all things here must have a close, how the voice of friendship must be hushed, and the pleasantness of companionship ended, and that there comes a time to us all, when we can no longer find pleasure in all those goodly gifts, and all those refreshing associations which crowned the long struggle of existence, and have accompanied us even to the presence of old age. But now, they one and all bid us farewell as the curtain falls, and the shadows flee away.

CHRISTMAS.

Christmas is here once again before us, and greets us smiling on the way. Much as we like this festive season, much as we admire its carols and reverence its memories, Christmas comes to us with mingled feelings of rejoicing and melancholy, of pleasure and pain, of gaiety and depression. It is impossible amid the cheerful wishes and gladdening associations of Christmas-tide not to feel how we are ourselves all carried back, whether we will or no, to many a past Christmas, to scenes and epochs in our own little life, which are still full to us all of deep pathos and of abiding souvenirs. For do what we will, say what we may, the present does recall the past, and if the reflection of all past time! as some one has said, is melancholy, it will yet supervene alike amid the chants of rejoicing, and the gatherings of the world. Yes, there seems always to be a ghost of the past, reminding us of other days and other scenes, and telling us how time is fleeting and hopes are vain, how all that is of earth is ephemeral, and how all the flowers and the decorations of fancy, the pleasures and pains of existence, the glittering gewgaws and the fantastic tinsel of life, the very living beings of our little home circle, all fade by degrees and end in dust—yes in dust! And do not let any of us think that ours is too lugubrious a deliverance, too much of a sermon, too little of a Masonic leader, especially at this genial season. We hold, and hold strongly, that of all the nuisances which bore us, and bedevil us at the present hour, is that array of foolish persons, of whom "Motley is the only wear," who are on the look out always for insipid jokes, and bad puns, whose cacchinations are unceasing, and whose faces are always extended in a broad grin. We want to be serious every now and then, depend upon it, and never more than at this Christmas season, when mirth may degenerate into licence, relaxation into extravagance, and amusement into excess. We always need the sobering voice and the restraining hand. Such is the composition of mortality, feeble and fallen, that what was intended for its enjoyment becomes an abuse, what was given to it for a blessing ends in its bane. So too, amid all the licensed liberty and reasonable gaieties of Christmas, there comes as a ever needful warning, lest we misuse instead of profiting by the goodly blessings of T.G.A.O.T.U., and lest we also forget the solemn lesson that each returning Christmas brings in its silvery and pleasant voice to us all alike old and young, high and low, rich and poor, educated and uneducated. First of all let us be on our guard against turning our needful and beneficial holiday into a scene of unwise and unsanctified revelry. Too many make Christmas still only an excuse for unrestrained indulgence and idle extravagance! The world has so taken possession of Christmas, that its hymns of rejoicing and its echoes of peace, are sometimes drowned in the din of tumultuous uproar, in the chants of human Bacchanalia. The memories of Christmas are forgotten altogether, put on one side, laid by entirely, and we give a pure earthly gloss to all of higher teaching or more severe contemplation. And then also we forget the past in the present. That present is all in all for us. It colours our waking dreams, controls our hourly striving, it is the be-all and the do-all of our whole moral being, until at last, absorbed in gaiety, and given up to dissipation, we become wholly material, entirely sensuous, and forget all that is spiritual, ignore all that is of heavenly teaching and development. The past has no longer a memory or a message for us; it is often in fact as if it had never been. Now it is against this two-fold mistake, that Christmas seems always to protest, as the world runs on its way, as generation follows generation to the grave, as we ourselves grow old and weary in the race, and as the river of time passes slowly on, emptying itself year by year into the great ocean of eternity. If it be the best of philosophies, not to be too melancholy or too morbid, not to take too downcast a view of life and the world, not to "cry over spilt milk," not to deplore the irresistible and the inevitable, surely also it is the highest wisdom, not to allow the present to make us forget the past or the future, so as to render us denizens of time alone, when we are heirs of eternity, to constitute us simply children of the "plain," when we really belong to that "better country," which lies amid the "everlasting hills." If Christmas has any message for the serious and the thoughtful it is this: be not "too much conformed to this world," but remember that through all these outer things, and amid all proper use of all God's good gifts there lies a higher life, an eternal resting place for all the "true in heart," when the fashion of this world has passed for ever away, and when this old earth of ours, with all its pains and penalties has yielded to that glad new earth in which all the former evil things have utterly ceased to be. Christmas, which once again confronts us in the Calendar, seems as it bids "be merry and joyful," also to point to that happier home and that everlasting happiness which T.G.A.O.T.U. reserves in his mercy, for our weary and dying race.

MASONIC THOUGHTS FOR CHRISTMAS, 1877.

Though in all that concerns English Masonry ours may be a contented Pagan which we raise amid the closing hours of 1877, and though we may all rejoice to note the onward and prosperous career of English Masonry, yet we confess that we look on the closing scene of 1877 with some feelings of anxiety and depression. We cannot shut out from our eyes the stern and unpalatable fact that in France, for instance, a very great mistake has been committed through the perverse restlessness of a busy section of the Order, which has resulted in our humble opinion, in one of the greatest blows which French Freemasonry has ever sustained. We should not be honest English Masons if we did not express our opinions freely and fully, and in this particular crisis, we think reticence unadvisable, and silence the worst of kindness to our French brethren. English Masons have often been pained by the accounts of the sayings and doings of individual Masons in France and Belgium, by the "agenda paper" and resolutions of private lodges. The foolish and ridiculous acts of those French Freemasons, for instance, who joined the Commune, and made Freemasonry a bye-word and a scandal were truly deplored by our entire Craft. Anything more senseless, more puerile, more un-Masonic, and more infatuated, never yet disgraced the annals of Masonry. But we consoled ourselves with the belief and the hope, that such acts were individual acts alone, and that the Grand Orient of France did not in any way approve of them. In fact the French Grand Orient was powerless, and owing to its vicious and incomplete organisation, had, apparently, no real authority to repress Masonic recreancy. But still we hoped for the best, as the Grand Orient of France was not actually mixed up in such untoward and unseemly proceedings, which might be put down to an "access" of individual Masonic insanity. And therefore we fondly trusted that "Philip drunk" would give way ere long to "Philip sober," and that the Grand Orient might gracefully and gradually, by a true Masonic course, restore, at any rate, that sympathy, confidence, and "entente cordiale" which such unwise proceedings had rudely shattered, and which such un-Masonic words and ways threatened to destroy altogether. For in this one thing, all English Masons were agreed, that they never would, happen what may, have "part or lot," with any professing Masons who degraded the good old Craft, always loyal and ever orderly, to the level of "une partie ideologue," to whom murder and arson, and pillage and destruction, the overthrow of all social civilization were both welcome, and a matter of exulting reality. But alas! our fair expectations have been cruelly disappointed, our not unreasonable hopes extinguished, though let us trust and believe only for a time. The Grand Orient of France is now committed to a course alike senseless and suicidal, dishonouring to God, and hurtful to man. Yielding to sinister influences, and political factions, it has, in imitation of the worst and darkest days that France has ever seen, struck out the belief in God from the Constitution, and for the express purpose, and with the avowed intent, of enabling those who do not believe in God to enter French lodges. Henceforth, the Materialistic Infidel, the Positiviste, the Negativiste (hopeless paradox), and the avowed Atheist, may be admitted into French Freemasonry. So far does this absurdity of hyper-tolerance proceed, (which however amounts to intolerance), that Atheism is termed even a "culte," a religion, and is positively placed on the same level as that of Christianity or Theism, which the "Morale Independante" would treat as some among many forms of belief, all equally false, in the world! Pleasant prospect for the French Freemasons! The truth is, that this consummation of events is not the least astonishing to those who have watched the course of the dominant party in French Freemasonry, and who know that Masol some years back brought forward precisely the same motion which has now been carried. As it is, as before the world French Freemasonry occupies this unsavoury and unsatisfactory position that it rests its public professions of Masonic belief on a nihilistic erasure, and a political cry, and remembering the past and realizing the present, we cannot but forbear feeling the greatest depression and uneasiness, alike in respect of its actual status and its eventual safety. Had the French reformers wished only to keep their profession of faith as with us, in a separate form, such as "tradenda and observanda," we should not have thought that its removal from a code of laws mattered much, for we do not think that expressions of belief are suitably placed amid legislative enactments. But, unfortunately, such a compromise did not suit the movement party in French Freemasonry. They objected to the exclusion of Atheists, and they have carried their admission. The only gainers by this senseless change are the Ultramontans, and the old antagonist of Freemasonry, Bishop Dupanloup. For French Freemasonry such an act can only place it in the most melancholy of positions—"Isolation," and may be, as we fear it will be, the prelude to its own internal dissolution. Before the world it now stands in complete opposition to Cosmopolitan Freemasonry, and to its own ancient teaching, and we apprehend that there is nothing before it, humanly speaking, but a reprobation of its acts, and a denial of its jurisdiction by all Anglo-Saxon Freemasons. We are sincerely sorry for the French Freemasons.

"PEACE ON EARTH, GOOD WILL TO MAN."

We are closing another eventful year of the great calendar of time, and war, cruel, devastating war, is still wasting and destroying the bright promise of human life, and entailing its bitter and heartrending miseries upon thousands of our suffering fellow-creatures. At this time, then, and at this season of the year, so propitious to gentle souvenirs, and more gladdening truths, it seems well to remind ourselves of the unchanged hopes and aspirations of Freemasonry. For war qua war, Freemasonry does not possess and cannot have any sympathy. Of course there are wars and wars. There is, for instance the war of defence, which is sacred; there is the war of liberation, which is needful; there is the war of honour and principle, which is commendable. But war is a sad necessity always, at the best, and can only be defended as a necessity, and in the words of perhaps the greatest soldier who ever lived, the Duke of Wellington, we ought always to try and avoid war, if we possibly can. For war, it is too often forgotten, amid a blaze of heroic language or gaudy transparencies, the songs of the victor, the flush of victory, is in fact a very prosaic and petty affair after all, when measured by the greater standard of humanity. We say nothing here of the fine qualities it may evoke, or the noble deeds it may embalm, the heroism or daring which it displays, or the dauntless courage which it perpetuates, for all these things are duly sang of and recounted by the bards and chroniclers of all time. And no doubt they have their good side and their true meaning for man, and life. But war, however fascinating and how gorgeous in the abstract, in theory,—in the concrete, practically means the overthrow of all civil life and polity, and virtue, and innocence, the ruin of peace, and of all we count most dear to us, nationally and individually, and above all the domination of all that is fell and foul, all that is cruel and crooked, all that is unsavoury and unsatisfactory on this fair earth of ours. War is the absolute destruction of the labours of the husbandman, of the savings of the tradesman, of the progress of honest industry, of the development of kindly commerce. We say nothing here of the sufferings of humanity which it introduces in its train, or the outrages on women, innocence, or helplessness which it entails, the ravages it occasions, the epidemics it brings about. Freemasonry cannot follow with applauding voice the car of the conqueror, which seems only to be drawn, like hateful Juggernaut, over the prostrate bodies of the infatuated and the reckless. No orphan's cry, no widow's wail, shall go with Freemasonry, accompany its footsteps, herald its advance, or mark its ascendancy. The victories it wishes to celebrate are those of civilization; the triumphs it is glad to record are those of peace. Under its banner are congregated those who wish to see the gradual, loyal, orderly, advance of the human race in the one safe way of patriotic legality, and, above all, in that general good, which most of all tends to the happiness of the citizen, the contentment of nations, and satisfactory march of the great army of the human race. When, then, to-day, we still hear the blast of war, if even in a far-off land; when we read the tales of hideous cruelty, or have to listen to some fearful damning record of human wickedness, of the prevalence of those awful passions which war excites, as Freemasons, we cannot but express a wish, at this season of the year for the advent of a golden epoch of healing peace. We look forward to the time when "Wars shall be no more," when the "sword shall be turned into the ploughshare," when peace shall shine upon this fair world of ours in all its radiant grace. For that happier time we still can wait, in confiding hope, even amidst the mists and darker hours of to-day, and faith still whispers to us of a glad dawn yet to be, when in God's own good time, the angelic song shall yet be heard again, often forgotten amidst the discordant shouts of earthly folly, wickedness, and warfare,

"Peace on Earth, Good Will to Man."

OUR "ST. JOHN'S."

Time's wheel, ever relentlessly running on, has rolled round, and the noted point in its periphery has again come into contact with our Masonic parallel; the weeks have sped away noiselessly and uneventfully, may be, yet gradually and surely, and here we are once more gathered in lodge to celebrate our winter "St. John's." A joyous time it is and a merry, for is it not the birth of our new Masonic year? the starting point of many of us in a fresh career of duty and of usefulness to the Craft and Lodge, to the brethren, and, let us hope, to ourselves.

To one amongst us it is an especially anxious time—we mean to our Master, now newly enthroned in the chair of the Royal Solomon. For him the circle of this year of office will revolve concurrently with the circling-line which will bound his duty, touching on either side the exemplary parallels to which his attention was long ago directed, and on whose pattern he must frame his future conduct; regulated on the one side, by the eager zeal, the unflinching rectitude of the Master who gave the law amidst the terrors of Sinai and Horeb, and who enforced it in its strictest integrity through the sad world of wilderness to the honey-yielding, milk-flowing plains of the Canaanitish rest; and, on the other, by the wisdom of the Grand Master, whose glory and renown were told to earth's remotest bound. The new-made Master looks upon the one that now stands beside him, a step below that chair that but lately he so well and proudly filled, and whose hand but a moment before gave into his hand the gavel of high rule and acknowledged authority; and in this his hour of elevation above, but by his fellows, though a proud flush may mantle over his cheek as he thus grasps in his strong right hand the symbol of the worthy and well-earned reward of his labours, he cannot but feel that, work as he will, and labour as he may, Time's circle will as surely revolve for him as it has for his brother on the step below him, and the time must inevitably come when the point will once more touch the parallel, and he too must descend from his proud position as his brother has done before him; and yet, he may console himself with the thought that even that lower step is, after all, the position of dignity; for it is the place of those who, having as lately well-ruled as they have aforesaid well-wrought, are entered into that rest which is the reward of toil, and are even now in the enjoyment of the reward, the hope of which has sweetened their labour in the days gone by.

And as for these last, the Fathers of the Lodge, they in their turn will remember that a few more revolutions, at most, of Time's circle, and their well-earned jewels of rectitude, adorned with learning and judgment and experience, must fall from off their necks—for all mundane things, jewels though they be, are—

"Shadows, not substantial things," which will vanish at the dawning light of morning, and will—

"In the earth be equal made,
With the poor crooked scythe and spade."

Nor is the lesson of Time's circle lost to the brethren below the chair; for them too, it touches, year by year, its parallels and theirs, the two St. John's. To them it points to a ceaseless round of duty, regulated on the one hand by the burning eager zeal for truth and rectitude of the Baptist, and on the other by the meek love and trustfulness in the Master's care of him we speak of as "the Divine;" the love modelled on that of the one, tempering the life moulded by the warning call to the repentance, from the objects of the lower life, to those of the better life above us and beyond, of the other; nor must they long delay, for none —"can stay Death's hand,

Nor hold the ebbing sand,
Of Life's hour-glass;
We can but brave and patient stand,
And let it pass."

Just as it was the case with the exemplar, in days of old, the Widow's son, so must it soon be with them. Happy for them if they then leave behind amongst their brethren a reflection of his bright and beautiful career of integrity, made the more resplendent by the fortitude of his faithful, albeit sorrowful, end.

Labour is ended and refreshment is begun, and round the festive board are gathered the resting sons of toil; but where are the familiar faces that we see there no more, and whose are those young forms that occupy the places of the loved and lost?

"With joy and sorrow, weal and woe,
This chequered life jogs on; and so
The world keeps rolling!
While stars have set, fresh stars have shone;
New friends replace the old ones gone,
Our grief consoling;
And marriage-bells ring on and on,
Through death-knells tolling!"

And so the circle is always complete, but yet though this be so, we cannot quite forget the loved and lost—lost? no! gone before! For now Time's circle shining out once more, although it shows us gaps here and there where earth-worn fellows have dropped out of the wheel, gaps ever widening till all, even we ourselves, shall be gone, yet tells us that the lost parts shall be reunited in the future, in the circle of Time no longer, but of Eternity instead, an everlasting band, to be broken no more, but to circle on for ever round the throne of The Great Architect of the Universe, Himself the centre of the system of love, taught us in this our greatest festal-day, our annual "St. John's."

"LE MONDE MACONNIQUE," "THE SCOTTISH FREEMASON," AND "THE FREEMASON."

It is a great pity, that those worthy brethren who write in the Monde Maconnique are so ill posted up in all that relates to the Freemason. It is not indeed surprising that thus it should be, but we think it well to state, for the information of our readers, that thus it is. Having recently hinted that certain editorial articles of the Freemason are animated by the views of a trader, and thus assuming that the Editor and Publisher of the Freemason are one and the same, in order to point a childish sarcasm, they have made another amusing mistake in the last number of the Monde Maconnique; for now they gravely assert that the Editor of the Freemason and of the Scottish Freemason is the same person, and like the French Republic, "one and indivisible." But, as we before pointed out, Bro. Kenning, though the sole proprietor, is not the Editor of the Freemason, who has a distinct personality, however humble, of his own. And so also we think it well to remark to-day, that the editor of the Freemason is not the editor of the Scottish Freemason, has nothing to do with its direction, and knows nothing of its articles, and in no sense directs its opinions. The Scottish Freemason is a perfectly independent paper of itself, and unconnected with the Freemason. Though Bro. Kenning is the proprietor and publisher of both, the Scottish Freemason has been, and is so ably edited, that we feel the compliment of the Monde Maconnique very much, and as we fully agree with the actual editor of the Scottish Freemason in all that he has said, and in all that he does say week by week so effectively, we are very happy to be supposed to "row in the same boat" with him. What a pity it is that our old antagonist Bro. Adrien Grimaux should make such a "little biffsteak," and like the "charming woman" of the old song should "talk of things" which he certainly does not "understand."

ETON COLLEGE.—The school will close next Friday for the Christmas vacation, when the authorities of the Great Western and South Western Railways will run special trains for the conveyance of the boys to their homes.

THE INSTALLATION ENGRAVING.

We have seen, by the courtesy of Bro. Harty, the artist's proof of this remarkable engraving, and we can safely pronounce it to be a most decided and most striking success. We have no hesitation whatever in adding that as an artistic production, the engraving must rank very high indeed in the history of all similar compositions. The grouping is admirable, the execution is most finished, and the portraiture, for such minute detail, is very close and clear. We think that we may fairly add that from the mass of portraiture, the "tableau" is perfectly unprecedented in the history of the engraving art. We congratulate Bro. Harty on the conclusion of his arduous undertaking, which reflects the greatest credit on his employés of every "genre." When Bro. Harty has submitted the engraving to the notice of H.R.H. the Grand Master, we shall have something more to say about it. We understand that the engraving will be ready for delivery to the subscribers about the third week in January.

COMMUNIQUE.

We deeply regret to note the tone and the temper of the Monde Maçonnique for December with reference to the Irish Grand Lodge. We should have thought, that the ruling powers of the Grand Orient of France would have realized ere this, that the feeling among Anglo-Saxon Freemasons was very strong and very real in regard to the dreadful mistake committed by the Grand Orient of France, and that they would also have perceived that they were very honest in their opposition to what they deemed an unwise, an un-Masonic, and we will add a godless change in the general system of French Freemasonry. But the only view which Bro. Caubet apparently takes of the matter is, that it does not much signify what opinion the Grand Lodge of Ireland, (and by analogy any other Grand Lodge), forms of the transaction. 'The Grand Orient "locuta est, causa finita est." Happy union of ultramontane and ultra liberal opinions! What are his words? "Que nous importe l'opinion de la Grande Loge d'Irlande," &c., &c., &c. Now we do not suppose for one moment that any such honest and legitimate opinion does matter much to them who have so revolutionized French Freemasonry. It is in fact only another condemnation, according to them, of bigots and fanatics, of those who believe in God and read the Bible! For Bro. Caubet has the bad taste to say, (we might well use a harder word), that the Grand Lodge of Ireland is "not an universal Grand Lodge," but that it is a "narrow sect," only admitting "men who believe in a personal God, and are received on the Bible." Really nothing more. We can quite feel how such a state of things must hurt, as it evidently does, the feelings of Bro. Caubet, but remembering Bro. Massol's expressed opinions, we are not the least astonished at such strong feelings on the part of our worthy Bro. Caubet. If such be a fault on the part of the Irish Grand Lodge, it is one which all Freemasons in England, and America, and Scotland, and Canada, are quite ready to be blamed for, and whatever Bro. Caubet may say or think we will never give up that truer position of universal Freemasonry. All this only shows whither French Freemasons are going, and our readers will remember that we have from the first contended, that the great change they have effected on the specious and jesuitical cry of toleration, was a complete revolution in French Freemasonry, and so it certainly is, so it is likely to prove to be. We will have nothing to do with the "unclean thing."

Original Correspondence.

[We do not hold ourselves responsible for, or even as approving of the opinions expressed by our correspondents, but we wish, in a spirit of fair play to all, to permit—within certain necessary limits—free discussion.—E.]

THE GRAND ORIENT OF FRANCE.

Dear Bro. Kenning,—

I should not have troubled you again with respect to this painful question, but for a special reason. As no one ventured to confute my arguments or deny my facts in my former letters, about the Grand Orient of France, I had every reason to be contented, and so I should have remained silent and satisfied, had I not been so greatly struck by the line of argument pursued by Bro. Caubet, that I deemed it right to call the attention of your numerous readers to this untoward affair. Bro. Caubet at page 354, seeks to deal with the recent resolution of the Grand Lodge of Ireland. I pass over the technical objection that the resolution of the Irish Grand Lodge was passed without any official communication from the Grand Orient of France, of the change it had approved.

It is clear to every one that the Grand Lodge of Ireland has full right to deal with a matter of public notoriety, the more so as the result of a deplorable agitation and a still more deplorable vote, had appeared both in the Chaine d'Union, the Monde Maçonnique, with a note of triumph from Bro. Caubet, and in the "Bulletin du Grand Orient." And so I pass on to Bro. Caubet's reply. It practically is nothing more nor less than this, "The resolution of the Grand Lodge of Ireland matters nothing to the Grand Orient of France." But I am not aware that Bro. Caubet can thus speak in the name of the Grand Orient, and I can only therefore look upon it as the opinion of Bro. Caubet quantum valet. Remembering all that has taken place, I am inclined to think, that Bro. Caubet represents in this view of matters the intolerant and dominant majority of the last "Couvent," and even though that be so, I should not even have called attention to this "deliverance" of Bro. Caubet, but for another reason. For Bro. Caubet actually goes on to bring a charge against the Grand Lodge of Ireland, that it accepts a "personal God," and the "Bible," and is therefore not "Universal." This then is the real cause of this foolish excitement which has culminated in this deplorable result in the Grand Orient of French Masonry, and this is what French Freemasons are teaching, and is to be the position which French Freemasonry is henceforth to assume: Denial of belief in God, rejection of the Bible because incompatible with universal Freemasonry. Can anything be more sad, more suicidal; or more senseless? I fancy, there will be but one answer in England and elsewhere. It is somewhat curious and instructive to note, that at this moment Freemasonry is attacked from two extreme points of view. It is condemned for instance by the Ultramontanes because it admits all who do believe in God;—others, in fact, than Christians. It is arraigned by the Infidel School because it did not disavow its belief in God, and builds its moral teaching on God and the Bible. Truth, as we know, mostly lies between two extremes, and I for one am glad to realize the "Vials of Wrath," poured upon our "devoted heads," as Freemasons, whether profusely showered upon us by an amiable Pontiff, or vigorously sprinkled over us by the intrepid Caubet. I fancy, dear Bro. Kenning, that English and Irish Freemasonry will survive alike the anathema of Pius the IXth, and the unjust complaint of Bro. Caubet. I for one think that we ought to be grateful to the Irish Grand Lodge for the resolution it has passed with reference to the un-masonic act of the Grand Orient of France, and I know that the Grand Lodge of Ireland will care little indeed for the disapproval and criticism of those in France who seek, as we regard it, to revolutionise, to de-religionise, to destroy French Freemasonry. It is, indeed, most melancholy to think what must be the future of that portion of our great Order. How much longer can it, (after all that has passed), consistently keep, at the head of its official document, "à la gloire du Grand Architecte de l'Univers." Logically, I fear, there can be but one necessary corollary of this last act of unwisdom, namely, its erasure also! I for one fully expect to hear of the additional proposal before long, but as things cannot be worse than things are, it really matters very little, one way or the other. I cannot conceive a more unhealthy, a more unhappy, or a more un-masonic state of affairs than that to which the French Grand Orient has now committed French Freemasonry.

I am, yours fraternally,

MASKELYNE.

PAST MASTERS' JEWELS.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In the Freemason of September 29th last, in a letter signed "P.P.G.B.S.X.," on "Past Masters' Jewels," &c., I am quite of the writer's opinion, and as we have only three brethren in this district who even make an attempt at the "installation" ceremony, and they each differ very much, I have written to the Grand Secretary to know if the correct ceremony is published in any form, that I may get it and so be able to instal my successor in office. Hitherto, I have obtained all my "working," orally—but as I do not know the really correct ceremony of installation, even though I may have heard it (having heard several different versions), I shall be glad to get it in any constitutional manner. The Grand Secretary simply says in his letter to me "I am sorry I cannot assist you with the information you require respecting the ritual of the installation ceremony," &c. Thinking that, in the event of your not being able to furnish me with the information, you would kindly forward this communication to your correspondent, I have taken the liberty of addressing this to you—and as time is now somewhat pressing perhaps you will pardon my suggesting that you will kindly let the matter have your early attention, and oblige,

Yours faithfully and fraternally,

C. T. RHODES, W.M. 448.

APOLLO UNIVERSITY LODGE.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I notice in your issue for last week that in the debate on the "German Question" in Grand Lodge, the Grand Registrar stated that the Apollo University Lodge of Oxford only received members of the University, at which statement Bro. the Rev. R. J. Simpson expressed dissent.

I think the following quotation from the "History of Apollo Lodge" may interest your readers as clearing up the point at issue.

"A bye-law was proposed in 1853, that henceforth no one shall be proposed for this lodge except he be or has been a member of this University," was not confirmed by the Provincial Grand Master; but the restriction has been practically maintained."

I am, yours fraternally,

357.

A CORRECTION.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,

Your last week's report of the Kennington Lodge (usually so accurate) contains an error, which, in justice to a very worthy brother, I am sure you will allow me to rectify. In proposing the health of the W.M. I am made to say "He laboured under great physical difficulties in the rendering of the ritual, in consequence of loss of voice." Whilst what in reality I did say was, "that he laboured under disadvantages which prevented him making the best of himself at the banquet table (the room in which it took place being a large one), but that he more than atoned for it by the excellent manner in which he rendered the ritual in the lodge." Your insertion of this in your next issue will much oblige,

Yours fraternally,

GEO. EVERETT,
P.M. 177 and 1381; Treasurer 1608.

SWEDENBORGIAN RITE.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In your to-day's number of the Freemason you say that many Scottish brethren are expected to join the Swedenborgian rite. I am glad to hear some Scottish brethren have done so. But the Lodge and Temple Royal Oscar, No. 9, would especially welcome Swedish brethren.

I have to thank you on behalf of any brethren of the rite for the kind manner in which you publish news concerning this rite, which is of the deepest interest to Biblical students.

I remain, dear Sir and Brother, ever yours fraternally,
KENNETH R. H. MACKENZIE,
Supreme Grand Secretary.

Hounslow,
Dec. 15th, 1877.

P.S. Scottish was a misprint for Swedish.

LODGE OF BENEVOLENCE.

The monthly meeting of the Lodge of Benevolence was held on Wednesday evening, at Freemasons' Hall. Bro. Joshua Nunn, P.G.S.B., Senior Vice President, was in the President's chair; Bro. James Brett, P.G.P., Junior Vice President, in that of Senior Vice-President; and Bro. C. A. Cottebrune, P.G.P., in the chair of Junior Vice President. There were also present among others Bros. John Hervey, Grand Secretary; H. G. Buss, Assist. Grand Secretary; A. A. Pendlebury, S. Rawson, P.D.G.M. China; Thos. Cubitt, P.G.P.; John Coutts, P.G.P.; Col. Somerville Burney, Joseph Smith, P.G.P.; W. Mann, P.M. 186; Thos. Mortlock, A. J. Iretton, W.M. 1314; Charles Atkins, P.M. 27; H. Bartlett, Griffiths Smith, E. F. Storr, W.M. 22; Conrad C. Dumas, P.G.A.D.C.; H. Bartlett, J. A. Farnfield, C. F. Hogard, Benj. Swallow, Edw. Terry, W.M. 1319; H. C. Levander, Herbert Dicketts, P.G.S.; Magnus Ohren, Louis Beck, E. J. B. Bumstead, P.M. 548; H. Murray, P.D.G.M. China; Edw. Jones, W.M. 192; E. Couch, W.M. 1297; F. Binckes, P.G.S.; John Draper, P.M. 1305; and H. Massey (Freemason).

The amount of £280, granted at last Lodge of Benevolence, which required confirmation, was first confirmed, after which the brethren proceeded with the new cases, of which there were thirty-three on the list. Of these twenty-five were relieved with the total sum of £505, consisting of one £50 (£50), two £40 (£80), two £30 (£60), two £25 (£50), eight £20 (£160), one £15 (£15), eight £10 (£80), and two £5 (£10).

The remainder of the cases were deferred.

The lodge was closed after sitting three hours.

Obituary.

BRO. WM. WYATT.

Bro. William Wyatt, the well known market gardener, died at his residence, Manor Farm, Upper Lewisham Road, New Cross, on Friday, Dec. 14th, at the comparatively early age of 47 years, after a long, painful and lingering illness. Brother William Wyatt was initiated into Freemasonry at the Royal Oak Lodge, 871, on July 22nd, 1868. After filling the minor offices he was unanimously elected and duly installed W.M. of the Royal Oak Lodge in February 1873, and after his successful year of office was unanimously voted a Past Master's Jewel. He was exalted into Royal Arch Freemasonry in the Pythagorean Chapter, No. 79, and had he lived, would no doubt have filled the M.E.Z. chair. He was not unmindful of the Charities, and to prove his disinterestedness made himself a Life Governor of both the Girls' and Boys' Schools, and had it in contemplation to do the same for male and female annuitants. A more amiable brother one seldom meets with than this worthy P.M. was. It is a truth to say he never made an enemy in the lodge. His reputation was equally good in the world. The lodge will mourn his loss. His memory will ever remain green amongst them.

QUEEN MARGARET'S CAVE.—The Edinburgh Daily Review reports the intended restoration of a hitherto neglected relic at Dunfermline, dating from the time when King Malcolm held Court at the Tower Hill. This relic is Queen Margaret's Cave, which consists of an apartment in the solid rock, and is situated a few hundred yards from the Tower Hill. It is 6ft. 9in. in height, 8ft. 6in. in width, and 11ft. 9in. in length. At the bottom of the cave is a small spring well, the water of which rises at times and covers the whole of the lower space. Queen Margaret was accustomed, historians tell us, to repair constantly to the cave for the purpose of private devotion, and the King, discovering the real cause of her long absences, hearing while he listened prayers uttered by her on his behalf, caused the rude excavation in the rock, always damp and dingy, to be fitted up as an oratory. After the Queen's death the place was permitted to fall into decay.

THE UNIVERSALITY OF MASONRY AND THE BELIEF IN GOD.

If we look around the whole of the globe we can scarcely find a country or a nation wherein Masonry has not planted its banner; in the north, south, east, and west the loving Mason will find a brother. In Great Britain there are few towns of any size without a Masons' lodge; the same may be said of America—nay, more—even in the distant prairies, among the Indian tribes, "the light of Masonry has shined." To go further South, the numerous States of South America—viz., Peru, Venezuela, the Argentine Republic, Brazil, Mexico, Columbia, Uruguay, Chili, &c.,—all possess Masonic governing bodies. On the Continent of Europe, in every nation, brethren of the "Mystic Tie" will be found. Russia alone, at the present time, refuses permission to lodges to meet and transact business, but the interdiction is only of comparatively recent date, and many Masons still exist there. If we turn to the East, India, like all other British possessions, fosters the Craft. China and Japan are said to be acquainted with the Order. Australia, New Zealand, Fiji and other islands boast of numbers of votaries of Masonry. In Africa, Masons' lodges are found in Algeria, Egypt, the Cape of Good Hope and Liberia. In fact, throughout the world, wherever the British or American trader, merchant or colonist have appeared, there Masonry has at once asserted its powers. Thus far we have only considered the extension of Masonry from its material point of view, and as regards its connection more particularly with the Anglo-Saxon race. Let us now look at it in another light. Masonry is not confined to Christians, Catholic or Protestant; it belongs to the Mahomedan, the Parsee, the Hindoo, the followers of Confucius, the red Indian of America, the native of Africa, and the islanders of the Southern Seas. What, then, is the common bond that unites these various races, creeds, and sects in one universal order? What is the ground-work on which the whole theory of the Craft is built up?

"The bulwark, the 'raison d'être,' the first and greatest landmark of the Order, is 'the belief in God,' the Creator, the Great Architect of the Universe!"

To Mahomedans, Allah (God) is all supreme; his firm faith in the goodness and justice of God enables him to face death without fear. The mild and gentle Parsee does not worship the "Sacred Fire" as a God, but as a proof of the "presence of God."

An almost parallel case is to be found in the Bible as regards the Israelites—both in the Tabernacle and in the Temple of Jerusalem God signified His "presence" by the fire always kept burning in the altar. The peaceful Buddhist does not worship Brahma, Vishnu, and Siva as the "Supreme God," but as the representatives of the principal attributes of the Godhead. Just as Christians worship the Trinity as three persons in one God, so with the Buddhist—Brahma, Vishnu, and Siva represent the Creator, Preserver and Destroyer. The disciples of Confucius worship God through their prophet, Confucius; the red Indian worships as his Supreme Being the "Good Spirit." Few tribes and races exist, however idolatrous or paganish they may be, that do not in some sense acknowledge and worship "one Supreme God." To all, then, the "belief in God" is the common bond of union.

Dogmatical discussions are rigidly excluded from our lodges, when in session, so that the brethren of various sects and creeds be not wounded in their religious feelings. Thus we get an answer at once to our would-be persecutors, and also to those brethren of the Grand Orient of France, &c., who are now seeking to exclude "the very idea of God Almighty" from the constitutions of the Order. And why do they seek to do this? Only forsooth that a few libres penseurs (Freethinkers) Atheists, should be admitted.

Are we to give up the basis, the bond of union of the Order, for a few Atheists? If we did so, the mighty edifice raised with such care would fall to pieces, and "like the baseless fabric of a vision, leave not a wrack behind." Because the brethren of Great Britain and other nations have inveighed against this exclusion, in no measured tones, they have been called "intolerant!" and they are told that if they withdraw recognition of such French Masons that they will destroy the universality of the Order. Intolerant, forsooth! Rather most tolerant! If we excluded the idea of and worship of the Great Architect, we should no longer have the Buddhists, Parsees, and Mahomedans working with us! If we refuse to recognise such French Masons as these, do we destroy the universality of the Order? We trow not. There are many right-thinking brethren and lodges in France who will not give up this, the greatest landmark of the Craft; these good and true Masons can among themselves erect a Grand Lodge of France that will be recognized and acknowledged by every Grand Lodge in the world. There would be no diminution in the universality of Masonry, but rather a "separation of the sheep from the goats!" or "a winnowing of the corn from the tares." Masonry would profit by this. Without "the belief in and love of God," how could we understand "the love of our neighbour." In these two points consist the whole theory of the system of Masonry. We have often been asked what are the landmarks of Masonry, so often talked about and yet so little understood. Here are the two principal, the raison d'être of the system; we have called it moreover, the "Bulwark of the Order," and surely it is so. What are the charges laid against us by our persecutors and detractors? That we are "Enemies of God! subverters of public order; that we are, in fact, worshippers of the devil!" Our answer is, our system has as its foundation stone "Belief in God." "No true Mason mentions the name of God save with the awe and reverence due from the creature to the Creator! We implore His aid in all our difficulties, and in all our undertakings!" Are we then "Enemies of God?" Subverters of order! Would our princes, rulers, judges, and magistrates be our votaries, if such were the case? Can those who love and serve God be "worshippers of the devil?" Exclude this love, this belief, and our enemies could well bring evil charges against us, and Masonry would become, as it should do under such circumstances, "a by-word and a reproach."

So much, then for the Masonic crisis in France, Belgium, and, we fear, Hungary also. We would like, however, to say a few words on the "Belief in God," as regards ourselves. We believe and hope that there are few among us who really are Atheists; there may be some of lax and careless views, but still, on the whole, our brethren believe or profess to believe in God! We will not be so pharisaical as to say that in Great Britain all are good, all earnest believers in God! It may be that the winnowing the chaff from the wheat might be practised, with advantage, even among ourselves! But Anglo-Saxon Masons all profess, more or less, this great "Landmark" and teaching of Freemasonry. We should, however, do more than profess this, which should be the guiding principle of our lives—we must seek to carry it out in practice. It matters not what sect of worshippers we belong to, we are, one and all of us, "children of God," created by Him, imbued by Him with faculties which we should cultivate to his service. We would thus become more worthy of our calling as Masons. If the present struggle on the continent ends adversely, as it has done, alas! in France, to the cause of Masonry, we must act promptly and with severity. It must never be said that the Grand Lodges of England, Scotland, Ireland, America, &c., for one moment tolerated such an innovation, such a destruction of the constitutions of our Order; nay, more, it is a sacred duty that we owe, not only to Masonry all over the world, but a still greater duty due to those good and true brethren in France who are now doing battle for the integrity of our noble and universal Craft. The path before us is broad and straight! we must not swerve to the right hand or to the left! but do our duty faithfully, honestly, and conscientiously. Then, and then only, will this crisis, this struggle in France, instead of being a stumbling block in our way, become a bright and shining epoch in the annals of Masonry.—Scottish Freemason.

WELL SAID.

We call attention to the above article, taken from the Scottish Freemason, and trust that every person into whose hands this copy of the Dispatch may fall may take the trouble to read it carefully, and think upon what he has read. It will be seen, by even a casual glance at the article in question, that the writer desires to make allowances for those of the French minority who, by their votes and influences, declared that they did not accept the dictum of the majority, and yet adhere to the old platform of Masonry—namely, an unquestioning belief in the existence of one ever-living and true God, the Creator and Ruler of the Universe.

We desire to be understood as making the same allowance, and as sympathizing with those who, desirous of standing up to the real teachings of the Craft, find themselves overborne by a majority imbued with revolutionary ideas, and willing to sacrifice everything to their notions of the moment. But at the same time we renew our protest against the official declaration of the Grand Orient which removes from the Masonic creed any recognition of the Father. We take occasion again to say that we believe that it is not within the power of any man or any body of men to make innovations in the body of Masonry, and that all who profess to be Masons must accept without question the primitive dogmas of the Craft or simply quit.

Now from the beginning, not only of the present organization of Freemasonry, but from the earliest times of which we have any record, all societies or associations of men of a similar nature to ours have had for their underlying principle the existence of one God, acknowledged to be the Creator of the universe and worshipped as the Father "from whom cometh down every good and perfect gift." It follows that those who do not accept this dogma in its entire simplicity are not in communion with the rest and do not follow conscientiously the work set for us to do, and it follows, also, that not believing and sympathizing in our doctrine as well as our work, they are really not of us. They demonstrate the truth of the Scripture that, "All are not Israel that are of Israel," or, in other words, that all are not Masons who bear the name and pretend to exercise the profession.

The world has got far beyond the time when there can be any hesitation or equivocation on this question, and less than any other, can our Institution afford for a moment to dally with the vagaries of free thinkers or the delusions of downright infidels. We have been from the beginning on the side of God the Father, and there we must remain to the end, or cease to be members of the Ancient and Honorable Fraternity of Free and Accepted Masons.

We take further occasion to repeat—for it cannot be too often said—that unless we can from our inmost hearts and consciences declare our belief in God, we have not been and are not Masons. Believing thus, we are none the less ready to accept the fact that all French Masons are not and cannot be Atheists. We know of many instances to the contrary, and we accept the vote of the seventy-six lodges voting in the minority at the late meeting of the Grand Orient, when the question of striking out all allusion to the Supreme Being was decided in the affirmative, as proof positive that atheism is not yet altogether rampant in France, but we must be governed by the official action of the governing body as having the right to speak for the constituency, and that body having deliberately resolved to strike out the Deity, we are bound to accept that resolution as the sentiment of French Masonry, expressed through its official organ. It is, of course, unfortunate for the minority that their views of the right, and their devotion to the principles of the Craft should have been thus misrepresented and officially overruled; but there is only one resource left to them, and that is the one suggested by our Scottish contemporary, namely, that they should at once proceed to form a Grand Lodge—not a Grand Orient—for the propagation of true Ancient Craft Masonry as it was at first communicated to them through Lord Derwentwater, and we can confidently assure them of the sympathy and recognition of all English speaking Masons throughout the world. If, however, they choose to sit still and allow the atheistical majority to rule and speak for them, then it will be only a fair deduction that the real principles of our fraternity have not been understood in France, and that in that country forms have been mistaken for principles. We sincerely hope that such will not prove to be the fact, and that upon sober second thought a majority of our French brethren will be found to have taken place on the side of Masonic principle, and in favour of supporting to extremity—if necessary—the governing ideas of the association.—New York Dispatch.

THE MASONIC HALL IN DUBLIN.

This Masonic Hall embodies in its style the five orders of architecture. It was built from the design of Mr. Edward Holmes, who is architect of the fine Masonic Hall in the town of Birmingham. Although externally the edifice is neither ornate or imposing, once the portals are entered the eye is charmed with the variety of architectural adornment. Thirty-five Blue Lodges meet within the building; and in addition there are rooms devoted to the Royal Arch Chapter Masons, the Knights Templars and the Prince Masons. Thus of the various styles of architecture we have the Ancient Egyptian, which is the earliest, in the Royal Arch Chapter Room; the classical in the Grand Lodge Room; and in the Chapel of the Knights Templars, the Gothic, which is the style of most of the ecclesiastical structures in the United Kingdom, France and Germany.

The Grand Lodge Room, devoted to Craft Masonry, the Order may justly contemplate with pride. It has undergone a satisfactory transformation, and is now one of the most tastefully decorated apartments in the United Kingdom. Lightness of tone and simplicity and elegance of design at once strike the beholder, while, at the same time, the vast dimensions of the room (being larger than St. Patrick's Hall, Dublin Castle), and its classical pillars and entablature impart a due degree of solemnity. At a glance the harmony of the decorations is apparent; and the longer in contemplation the greater the satisfaction in arriving at the conclusion that uniformity has been observed in every detail. First of all, examine the frescoes in the space 'twixt the groined arches. What a wonderful episode in sacred history they unfold! The ten combined tell the story of the building of Solomon's Temple, each contributing its own fragment in an eloquent manner that cannot be mistaken. Mr. Edward Gibson, 44, Great Russell-street, London, youngest son of Mr. H. James Gibson, of Mary-street, Dublin, is the designer and painter. He is a young man in the springtime of life, and his present work undoubtedly gives promise of great things to come. Each design manifests deep thought and sound judgment, while the drawing is accurate and the dresses and composition of the various subjects prove the scholar as well as the artist. Although the treatment of the figures is in sepia or monochrome on a gold ground, the effect is thoroughly satisfying, the facial expression and the natural, easy flow of the drapery being especially so. Standing in the East where the Grand Master's throne is placed, on the right are described the incidents in close connexion with Hiram, King of Tyre, and his builders and artificers, while on the left are those more immediately relating to Solomon and the Israelites. The central cartoon on the right is the genesis of the story. It represents the reception of Solomon's servants by Hiram, King of Tyre. Hiram regally attired, is seated on his throne, which is copied from Egyptian monuments, and is ornamented with flowers and emblems. On either side stand female slaves, waving fans or punkahs, to cool the air for his Majesty, while in the foreground sits another, as if awaiting her turn of duty. At the right hand side of the King stands his Minister or Grand Vizier, his hands resting on his sword; and behind this throne is stationed the King's body guard, armed with sword and buckler. Solomon's three messengers kneeling at the foot of the throne complete the groups. One of them seems to act as spokesman, while another presents gifts. At once the distinctive appearance of the Israelites and the Tyrians is discernible. The Tyrians wear their beards curled short; the Israelites let theirs flow in the natural manner. The references on the frieze beneath to the texts in 1 Kings, v., vii., furnish a key to the cartoons. "And Solomon sent to Hiram, saying, 'Thou knowest how that David, my father, could not build an house in the name of the Lord his God, for the wars that were unto about him on every side, until the Lord put them under the soles of His feet. But now the Lord my God hath given me rest on every side, so that there is neither adversary nor evil occurrent. And, behold, I purpose to build a house unto the name of the Lord my God, as the Lord spake unto David, my father, saying, 'Thy son, whom I will place on thy throne in thy room, he shall build an house in my name.' Now, therefore, command thou that they hew me cedar trees out of Lebanon; and my servant shall be with thy servants; and unto thee will I give hire for thy servants according to all that thou shalt appoint—for thou knowest that there are not among us any that can skill to hew timber like unto the Sidonians." And it came to pass that when Hiram heard the words of Solomon, he rejoiced greatly, and said, "Blessed be the Lord this day which had given unto David a wise son over this great people." And Hiram sent to Solomon saying, "I have considered the things which thou sentest unto me for, and I will do all thy desire concerning timber of cedar and of fir. Thy servants shall bring them down from Lebanon to the sea, and shall convey them by sea in floats unto the place where thou shalt appoint me, and thou shalt receive them; and thou shalt accomplish my desire in giving food to my household." We now resume the thread of the story with the cartoon on the extreme right. It is a representation of a cedar float on which are three men in the act of shoving off from the land, and a sail is set to catch the breeze. They are conveying the cedars of Lebanon from Sidon to Joppa, the nearest port to Jerusalem. The next in order represents the stone-squarers in the quarries. In the foreground is an overseer with a callipers in his hand, addressing a stone-squarer, who, chisel in hand, beside the stone he is engaged upon, is in an attitude of attention. On the left is a man marking on a stone with a square what is to be hacked off it, and on the opposite side is a labourer choosing a hammer from among others laid against the stone, while another is moving a stone already squared. In the background is a carver ornamenting a capital with pomegranates, a fruit which was frequently employed in the decoration of the Temple, and of the priests' robes. Skipping the central picture, already described, we come to No. 4, showing Hiram, the artificer, in a chariot, crossing the country on his way to Jerusalem, having been sent by King Hiram to King Solomon. He was a widow's son, of the tribe of Naphtali, whose territory bordered on that of the King of Tyre. His father was a man of Tyre, a worker in brass. Hiram was "filled with understanding and cunning to work all works in brass, and he came to King Solomon and wrought all his work." The chariot is a square box-like vehicle, ornamented in simple geometrical patterns and borne on cumbrous wheels with serrated rims. It affords accommodation for three—Hiram and the charioteer in front, and a female slave behind, holding above Hiram a sun-shade. The two horses drawing it have been going at a furious pace, but speeding towards a large stone on the wayside, just now the driver pulls them hard on their haunches to avoid the impediment. Hiram seems to look forward with Oriental serenity—heedless of the danger, or perhaps lost in admiration—thinking of the work before him; but the slave, with the curiosity of her sex, peels over his shoulder to see what is the matter. The horses are richly caparisoned. In the background the hill country is dimly visible. No. 5 discloses Hiram in his workshop, with two assistants, making the vessels for the Temple. He holds in his hand what we will suppose is a sketch model of the molten sea, which he is going to make Solomon. Just as he is about to leave for that purpose, his attention is arrested by one of the assistants. On the left of the picture the other assistant is engaged chasing a vase. Turning now to the other side of the room, the rest may be taken in the order in which they are set, commencing immediately on the left of the throne. No. 6 represents the chiefs of the people, attended by slaves depositing offerings of gold and silver ornaments—including vases, armlets, bangles, &c., which form a large pile, for the sacred vessels while a scribe stands by, making an inventory. The next describes the departure of the levy of "30,000 men of all Israel" to Lebanon and to the quarries. Adoniram, head of the levy, seems to be directing their movements, the overseer of each band taking his command, and close to him is a scribe, writing the strength of each company marching past. The men are disappearing in a body behind a hill so that the idea of a vast multitude is given. In No. 8 we have the reception of Hiram's envoys by King Solomon, affording assistance in building the temple. It occupies a position directly opposite to that representing Solomon's messengers soliciting the assistance from Hiram. Solomon, holding a sceptre, is seated on his throne, which is flanked on either side with sculptured Egyptian lions. He, too, has female slaves in attendance, waving pinks to make the air fresh and balmy. One of Hiram's messengers is salaaming at the foot of the throne, which is ascended by a series of steps, while the spokesman kneeling on the second step is unfolding his master's letter and stating its contents to Solomon. A seer or elder stands beside a spiral column at the right of the throne, in his hand his master's letter which he has just read. No. 9 represents the dedication. Before a cromlech, or stone altar, whereon is a bullock as a sacrifice, stands Solomon with his hands outstretched heavenwards. Although there is here only one figure, and therefore the picture lacks the usual aids to effect, the artist has concentrated all his skill, and with success, in making that figure truly noble and kinglike. Solomon is in an attitude of intense earnestness, his whole frame thrilling with emotion in the excitement of the supreme moment which witnessed the fulfilment of his dearest hopes. He seems to stand out in relief from the canvas, his finely moulded Hebrew features instinct with the fervour, the enthusiasm, the joy of his heart. His invocation is sublime. It was repeated at the dedication and is used on all similar occasions. In the concluding picture of the series is a view of the builders at work. A scaffolding is raised round one of the pillars. The central figure is an overseer, who is directing three men on the right in slipping a stone which is attached to a rope. On the left are two sub-officers watching the movement, or waiting to speak to the overseer. One of them holds a plan and the other a callipers. Of the pillar little beyond the base can be seen. It seems to rise from a cluster of lotus leaves, bound by a fillet which is embellished with carved lily work. The foregoing description conveys little beyond a sketch of these high class works of art. On their archaeology alone an interesting treatise might be written, not to speak of an elaborate criticism of their artistic merits. As to the propriety of their arrangement, placing the most important and those with most figures in the centre for prominence, or, on the other hand, chronologically arranging them according to the order of events, however opinions may differ, their excellence both in conception and execution disarms criticism. It is hoped that the present achievement will lead to the revival of mural decorations in high art, examples of which are very few in this country. The greatest painters that ever lived—Raphael, Michael Angelo, Titian, and many others of the ancient masters—have decorated the walls of churches and palaces with their best efforts; while in modern times Maclise has adorned the halls of Westminster with noble frescoes which none can see without admiring his genius. Mr. Gibson's prentice effort already proves him an expert. By studying the great works of the great men of yore who were adepts in Christian art and its symbolic exposition, he too, may win a name and a fame to last beyond his lifetime, if he does not actually attain those rare altitudes of perfection, which can only be reached by inspired genius. Proceeding now to the subordinate decorations, analysis or synthesis alike proves them worthy of the cartoons, to which they form an effective setting, while the most exigent Mason cannot but feel satisfied that the hues and emblems peculiar to the Order have fitting prominence. The room is a parallelogram, traversed all round with Corinthian pillars, sixteen in number, supporting an entablature, whence springs a series of groined arches, their apex rising to the ceiling, and within them bring semi-circular spaces containing the cartoons. Handsome stucco mouldings, designed by Bro. Thomas Drew, R.H.A., architect, enrich the architraves. The ceiling, which is intersected by beams dividing it into five panels, is painted in celestial blue and studded over with raised five-pointed stars in gold, suggested of the empyrean. Of the same hue are the spandrels; while the intersecting beams together with the architraves and cornice are in cream colour and white relieved with gold. The frieze is of pale neutral green, whereon the texts relating to the illustrations are written in Roman letters of gold. On the broad fascia beneath the entablature and running parallel with the capitals is an exquisite white Roman scroll pattern in relief on a blue ground. Between the pillars the wall space is of a neutral leather colour, each space forming a panel confined by a matted gilt moulding within a deep selva of grey. The pillars themselves are in white enamel, their capitals and bases laved in gold; while the dado skirting the walls all round is of chocolate colour. In the west is the grand organ of classic design; it, too, has been renovated. The furniture is of oak, upholstered in blue leather. From this outline it is obvious that Masonic taste has been consulted in giving the room a distinctive character. At the same time the judicious use of neutral tints has prevented the monotonous effect that must ensue from the employment of those only that are strictly Masonic. In the centre of the Hall was laid a rich Turkey carpet in crimson, blue, and gold, emblazoned at the corners with the Masonic arms and the Prince of Wales' plume, together with the Masonic motto "Aude, Vide, Tace." It is the gift of Bro. John Lewis, of Huddersfield, and it is of similar pattern to that laid down in Albert Hall on the occasion of the installation of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales as Grand Master of England. Thus the room is at once a triumph of artistic embellishment, and bears those distinguishing features which indicate the imprimatur of Masonry. The decorations have been executed by Messrs. James Gibson and Son, 19 and 50, Mary-street, under the immediate supervision of Bro. Henry Gibson, P.M., 232, who designed them. Their artistic merit is established by the fact that they were selected from amongst other competing designs by a committee of artists. Bros. Captain George Huband, P.M. 12; George H. Moyers, L.L.D., P.M. 25, Grand Steward; G. A. Stephens, Grand Superintendent of Works; R. W. Griffin, L.L.D., Past Grand Sword Bearer; and Thomas Fitzgerald, P.M. 227, Secretary of the House Committee, were indefatigable in their assistance and suggestions.

TOLERANCE OF MASONRY.

A short time back the Mahomedan community of Bombay organised a monster open air prayer-meeting, to implore the great and merciful "Allah" to send down rain; so earnest were the Mussulmans of Bombay that large numbers (according to the statements of contemporaries) assembled and joined in these supplications. The Times of India said that it was originally intended to hold these prayer-meetings for several successive days—but owing to the heavy down-pour of rain that followed the first day's supplications, the original programme was abandoned. Days prior to this the sky had been cloudless, and the severe famine then devastating the land had every appearance of being indefinitely prolonged.

The answers to fervent prayer recorded are numerous, and each sect naturally connect these special interpositions of Divine Providence with the supplications offered. The Mahomedans of Bombay will also naturally claim that the heavy rainfall was in direct answer to their prayers. Who, we ask, will be able to eliminate from their unsophisticated minds the idea that the prayers offered up by them in humility, with bowed head and body prostrated on the ground, had not been a direct means of invoking the merciful Allah (the Great Creator of the Universe) to send the boon they asked for, and so much needed? With a full belief of this, they changed their original programme of prayers for rain, into thanksgiving for the generous supply sent.

We also remember reading in a religious magazine, of a lay Wesleyan preacher whose supply of bread and flour had run out; the only mills in the district where he resided were windmills, and owing to the continued calms that prevailed neither he nor his neighbours could get their corn ground. One day, when not even a zephyr moved the leaves, and the smoke from the cottage chimneys ascended in spiral columns, the minister loaded his pack-horse with wheat, and proceeded to a neighbouring mill. The miller naturally remonstrated about receiving the good man's corn; but more to oblige what he considered to be an eccentric whim than aught else, the miller obeyed the directions he received, and placed the corn in the hoppers to be ground. The good man retired and prayed earnestly for wind, and in a short time a breeze sprang up, the sails of the mill commenced to revolve, and he conceived that God in His mercy had answered his prayer. The writer in the magazine affirmed that the above facts were fully authenticated, and were also well known in the Lincolnshire Fens and immediate neighbourhood, where this minister resided.

Many we are aware would scoff at the idea of the results in either case having been in any way promoted by the means resorted to, nor are we going to venture an opinion upon the subject. Members of each community who are conversant with either of the facts we allude to, will naturally connect the above circumstances with the prayers offered on each occasion. As Masons we dispute neither, and allow both to fully enjoy their respective opinions.

Masonry being an universal institution, has one grand rule for its guidance; it admits all, of whatever colour, creed or religion, who recognise a supreme Deity as the Great Creator of the Universe. We admit our Mahomedan brother with fraternal greetings, and agree with him in his belief in the Great Allah, but we do not follow "the faithful" in the admiration of their Prophet. We receive the Parsee into our lodges, and fully accept him, but we are not prepared to go to the length with him in adoration of "The Elements" or in "Fire-worship." We hail the "Hindoo" as a brother, on his acquiescing to certain forms, and expressing a belief in the Great Creator of the Universe; we respect his caste prejudices, but we do not admit either his caste or polytheistical ideas. We willingly accept our Roman Catholic brother, extending to him the right hand of brotherly love; although our system has been denounced by his Jesuit Priests, and slandered by his Ultramontane Bishops—condemning Masonry on the ground of secrecy—when many of their own institutions are shrouded by a mysterious and more impenetrable veil than belongs even to Masonry;—we receive the Roman Catholic on his belief in the Divine Creator, we respect his creed, but at the same time although we tolerate it, we do not follow him into those labyrinths of Transubstantiation, or prayers to the Virgin Mary. Protestants, of all shades of opinion, are accepted on the same broad fundamental basis—a belief in our Beneficent Creator; but as Masons we do not go to the extremes of predestination on the one hand, or strictly adhere to theory of original sin on the other. The Nonconformist, Baptist, Wesleyan, in fact Dissenters of any sect or creed, are readily admitted to "our mysteries;" on the one broad basis of a belief in the Great Architect of the Universe, this fundamental rule acknowledged, we (as Masons) do not stay to cavil over minor points, as to whether immersion, or only sprinkling is a necessity; or whether infants or adults ought to be baptised; nor whether godfathers or godmothers are needful, or that confirmation is a requisite rite of the church; these and many minor points of ceremonial and ritual are all allowed to sink before that universal charity and brotherly love which characterises our ancient institution. Masonry rushes to no extremes, it teaches its members to respect the beliefs and prejudices, and above all to have a charitable regard for the weaknesses—so long as they are neither criminal nor vicious—of their brethren. Within the sacred precincts of the lodge, controversy, whether religious or political, or of any nature liable to disturb its harmony, are rigorously excluded; all acknowledge one grand truth; all are governed by one universal law; and all adhere to one time-honoured rule. The one God; the one law of brotherly love, and the one rule of charity are the guiding springs to each action. These are the points to which all their fraternal greetings direct, and the one common platform on which all, of whatever creed or nationality, can meet. One loving brotherhood in which all are accepted, and unto which all are equally welcome.

Within the precincts of the "Lodge" all differences, of whatever nature, must subside, and all bow as if by one invocation to the Divine Ruler of the Universe, acknowledging Him as their Creator and Protector. There the bitterness of party feeling is stifled; there, the strife and differences of religious opinion are sunk—and anything likely to interfere with the true feelings of Brotherly Love must be put aside. Tolerant to each other's varied creeds, and respectful of each other's prejudices, the true bond of fraternity is strengthened and established. By these means—and these alone—does Masonry not only teach, but inculcate Tolerance. It is not only by precept, but also by example, within the "Lodge," that Tolerance is impressed upon—may more, imperatively demanded. Does not this tolerance alone excite that still higher and more universal virtue, Charity, not mere almsgiving, but that respect for each other's opinions which true fraternity encourages. Shall not this principle of Tolerance infuse amongst its members other and nobler aims and aspirations, and bring out those better feelings of our nature? This bright feature in Masonry affords a beautiful lesson, a splendid example for all mankind—even its detractors—to follow. The study of it will make them kinder and more moderate, and the practice of it must assuredly result in them becoming wiser and better members of Society.—Australian Freemason.

KNIGHT TEMPLAR NOTES.

By EMMA HOLMES, K.C.T., P.G.C., Past Grand Provost, Order of the Temple, &c.

The following memoranda were given to me by a very distinguished Freemason when I was compiling my "Notes on the United Orders," and as I think they may be of interest to my Brother Sir Knights, I have decided to publish them in the pages of the Freemason.

YORK WARRANT.

In the name of the Most Glorious Self-existing Lord God.

"We for the time being, the G.G.C. of the G.R.E. of all England, held at York, do by the power and authority vested in us from the earliest ages of C.K., and derived to us from the successors of that worthy S.K.T.; S.G.B. The first C.K. of Jerusalem, in our great love to the Order of S.K.T. and in compliance with the humble petition of Sir John Hassal, Sir Joseph Carter, and Sir James Ashton, and others, all S.K.T., praying our authority, constitution, and warrant, to hold a R.E. of S.K.T. in Manchester, in the County Palatine of Lancaster, or elsewhere, do grant this our warrant for holding such R.E. in any convenient place in Manchester aforesaid, or elsewhere in the same county, according to the ancient usages and customs of all legal R.E. and they and their successors, always observing due subordination and acknowledgements; are hereby authorised and empowered to hold a R.E. of S.K.T. and to continue it by succession to perpetual ages, and by the authority so vested in us, we do hereby nominate and constitute our I and W.B.B. all S.K.T., John Hassal, Joseph Carter, and James Ashton, to be present G.C. thereof, each in order as named, and we do hereby invest them with full power to nominate and instal their succeeding G.C., and those, their succeeding G.C., and so on in perpetual succession; and such G.C. from time to time, are hereby empowered and authorised by their known and secret methods, to make and admit such worthy brethren, S.K.T., as are regularly and properly qualified to receive such Order, and dignity, and also to receive into their R.E., such as were worthy and regular S.K.T. before, and to expel from their R.E. such as by their dishonourable behaviour un-knight themselves, or merit expulsion, and also to convene the K. of the R.E. at their pleasure, when right shall require it, and likewise to deliver certificates to all worthy S.K.T. and we the G.G.C. aforesaid by this our warrants and constitution, ratifying and confirming all our legal acts, do hereby reserve to ourselves and our successors of this G.R.E. full power and authority to abrogate and recall this constitution whenever by indefensible actions or neglect the R.E. to be held in pursuance hereof, becomes irregular or obnoxious to the Ancient Order of C.K.

Given in our G.R.E. under our hands, and the seal thereof, this 10th day of October, A.D. 1786, A.C.K. 1754, A.D. 5786.

It is doubtful whether the college of Heredom Templars ever met at York after 1791, in which year Dunckerley organised a Grand Conclave in London; and Oct. 12th, 1794. It was unanimously agreed that this R.E. shall come under Royal Grand Encampment of London, held under His Royal Highness, Prince Edward, Bro. Dunckerley, Acting Grand Master, and Bro. Torr was ordered to consult Bro. Burrow on the action, and if he thinks proper, to order a warrant as soon as possible.

January 4th 1795.—Bro. S. Torr and Bro. Lithgre having given in their report, it was ordered that Bro. Torr should write to Bro. Dunckerley on the subject.

March 15th, 1795.—Bro. Sir David Torr having received a letter from our R.W. Grand Commander, which was very satisfactory to the Encampment, it was unanimously agreed that Bro. Torr should write by the next post to Bro. Dunckerley, for a warrant of Constitution.

LONDON WARRANT.

Thomas Dunckerley.

Initium Sapientie Amor Domine.
In the name of the Grand Architect of the Universe.
In the East of London, a place full of Light, where reigneth Silence and Peace, but the darkness comprehendeth it not.

To all whom it may concern greeting:—

Know ye that we, Thomas Dunckerley, of Hampton Court Palace, in the county of Middlesex, Most Eminent and Supreme Grand Master of the Royal Exalted, Religious, and Military Orders of H.R.D.M.K.O.D.S.M., Grand Elected Knights Templars of St. John of Jerusalem, &c., under the patronage of His Royal Highness, Prince Edward, having received a petition from Sir David Torr, and several noble Knights, residing at and near the town of Manchester, humbly requesting a patent of constitution to open a Conclave or Chapter of Encampment under our sanctions at the Grapes Inn, Manchester, aforesaid. We do hereby constitute and appoint the said Sir David Torr of Manchester, our Deputy for opening and conducting the said Conclave or Chapter of Encampment at the Grapes New Market Inn at Manchester, and do hereby grant to the said Sir David Torr and the other noble Knights petitioners and their successors full power and authority to assemble on the second Sunday in January, April, July, and October, to install Knights Templars, &c., at their field of encampment aforesaid, or at such other time and place as they and their successors with the consent of us and our successors for the time being shall appoint. With such power and privileges, prerogative, and immunities, as do from ancient usage and of right belong to regularly established Conclaves and Chapters, and to noble Knights of the Order, subject nevertheless to the Ancient Statutes and Ordinances of our predecessors, or that may hereafter be enacted by us and our successors, in a Grand and Royal Conclave.

(Signed) CHARLES COLLINS,
Grand Scribe, pro tempore.

Given at London aforesaid, in our Grand Field of Encampment, this 20th day of May, Anno Lucis 5799, Anno Domini 1795, Anno Ordinis 677, Anno Cædis 481.

(Signed) WILLIAM HANNEB,
Acting Grand Master.

The first warrant was granted by a petition addressed on the 11th June, 1786, to the Right Worshipful, the Grand Master of all England, the Grand Wardens and the rest of the brethren of the Grand Lodge, and is styled "The humble petition of John Hassal, Joseph Carter, and John Watson, Knight Templars." The system of degrees followed in this encampment is said to have been as follows:—1, E.A.; 2, F.C.; 3, M.M.; 4, P.M.; 5, R.A.; 6, K.T. (six months between); 7, K. of M.P. (six months); 8, Kt. of Malta (six months); 9, Rosæ Crucis. Knight Templar Priest. The latter could be taken as the 7th degree at once (at any rate under a revised system adopted in 1813), and gave the recipient the right of occupying the chair in preference to other Knights, in the absence of the E.C.

Some encampments gave also the Red Cross degree under the authority of York, as it is said they have warrants. I always look upon this degree as the origin of the Athol Royal Arch. There can be very little doubt that the oldest teaching under this system was that the Order represented St. John and the Temple, and the six months between the degrees represented periods in the History of the Order of Malta.

The York warrants appear to have been separated for everything in the foregoing system, but those of Dunckerley appear to have included everything above the Templar.

ADDRESS DELIVERED AT THE DEDICATION OF ROGER WILLIAMS' MONUMENT, U.S.

The following address was delivered by the Rev. and W. Henry W. Rugg, Grand Chaplain, at the dedication of Roger Williams, Monument, Providence, R.I., on Tuesday, Oct. 16th, 1877.

"The Institution here represented, and for which I speak to-day, has no apology to offer for its participation in the services of this occasion. It makes its appearance, displays its cherished symbols, which are of such deep significance to the discerning mind, and enacts its solemn ceremonial about this memorial shaft, simply because its ancient character and a long line of precedents seem to render fitting and proper this day's work. Not in the spirit of rivalry with any other society, certainly not in the mood of ambitious self-seeking nor any poor desire for display and notoriety, does the Masonic organisation of this jurisdiction answer the call made upon it by the civic authorities to assist in these dedicatory exercises. As true Masons, faithful to the traditions of the past and obedient to the powers that be, we could not do otherwise than respond with willing alacrity to the invitation extended.

But ours is more than a perfunctory rendering of rites and ceremonies marked out by the ritual as appropriate to such occasion. We are no less citizens than we are Masons. We share the common feeling of satisfaction and pride in whatever makes our City and State illustrious—in whatever promotes the public good. The primal admonitions of the Institution commend patriotism and inculcate the most profound respect for the constituted authorities. The faithful Mason cannot be otherwise than a quiet and loyal citizen, interested in every thing that ennobles the State. Naturally therefore we are in sympathy with this occasion. We have part with our fellow citizens in the associations and hallowed memories which are signified by the erection of this monumental pillar. We rejoice with them that the day has dawned for the setting up of so noble a memorial to the founder of this City and State,—that thenceforth there shall be another visible reminder of the great apostle of religious and civil liberty whose abundant labours and fidelities have borne such glorious fruit.

The community does well to attest its appreciation of the character of this uncompromising moral hero, whose life illustrated so many of the most commanding qualities of true manhood, and whose unflinching advocacy of freedom of conscience and spiritual liberty has reflected upon Rhode Island a glory that can never be effaced.

It is no waste to build monuments and fashion statues for such deserving heroes. It is only following the same divine prompting which Joshua obeyed when he set up the twelve stones in the midst of Jordan, and said: "These stones shall be for a memorial unto the children of Israel for ever." Gathered here thus willingly to assist in the services of dedicating this monument—about to engage in a ceremony which however meaningless to some is to others most solemnly significant, it belongs to my place to preface such ceremony by a brief address touching the genius of the Masonic Institution.

I shall attempt no careful formulating of the principles of Masonry, I shall pass by the inviting fields of its ancient life and widely varied work, only pausing to say that its roots run broadly and deeply into distant lands and ages, and that it has made an enduring record of itself in almost every part of the civilised world. Its continuance in the face of not a little misrepresentation and opposition, its persistent hold upon the confidence of men, show that it must have had some happy adaptation to human needs thus to have lived, and afford at least a fair intimation that it is justly entitled to hold an honoured place among the moral forces of the world.

Making no effort then to any appropriate setting forth of the character and work of the Masonic Institution, I shall but endeavour to touch upon two or three salient points that in my thought seem to bring our present gathering and ceremony into happy accord with the general features of this day's commemorative service.

Three things among others the Masonic Institution stands for:

I. Religion.—I do not assert that Masonry is religion, but I do claim that it is deeply rooted in religion. Making no attempt to fix the tenets of sectarian belief, it yet demands of every candidate for its mysteries that he shall have faith in the existence of a personal Deity, the Supreme Creator and Ruler of the Universe—even the one living and true God, whose name is Jehovah! The Masonry of the fathers—certainly the only Masonry that is known to English speaking communities, is that which shuts out the atheist and the irreligious libertine from its membership. Masonry calls for this recognition of God at every step. The All-Seeing Eye is one of the most hallowed symbols of the Craft. The Holy writings form an essential part of the furniture of every lodge, and not being present no Masonic work can be done nor information given. More than this, whilst there is not a single obligation, promise, teaching, emblem, or sign of Masonry that is in conflict with a proper reference and faith towards God, line upon line and precept upon precept are given, admonishing the true Mason that he must square his life according to the volume of the Sacred Law if he would fit himself as a living stone for that Temple not made with hands eternal in the Heavens.

It is the plan of Masonry that its roots run thus deeply into religion—that it puts men into a devout attitude before Jehovah, and bids them in the strongest manner to obey the law of God. It does not assume to fill the place of the Church—to do its work, to answer the spiritual needs of sinful humanity—those needs which can only be fully met by accepting the salvation that is in Christ, but it does give recognition to the one eternal and uncreated God, the Father of lights, who is over all and blessed for evermore.

II. Toleration.—I make no empty boast when I say Masonry stands for more than an average amount of intellectual and moral liberty. The very fibre of its life is drawn out from a broad catholicity of sentiment that makes it impossible that its followers should be moulded into the pattern of Pharisees. Essential Masonry is of very necessity saturated by the spirit of toleration. It can never be true to itself while adopting any policy of hatred and abuse, of misrepresentation and obloquy, such as we sometimes see even the Church disposed to adopt towards those whom it arraigns as heretics and demons. The rights of individual opinion and the grand principle of religious liberty, for the maintenance of which Roger Williams gained his crown of glorious reputation, are the primary axioms among all well informed members of our fraternity. It is the very keynote of Masonry—the proclamation that men are not to be interfered with, are not to suffer themselves to become despisers of one another because they do not agree—because they honestly entertain different opinions respecting important questions. If American Freemasonry stands for anything, it stands for that great principle of complete liberty, both civil and religious, which has made the name of him for whom this memorial is reared generally illustrious all the world over!

III. Charity.—Masonry is charity; not merely that charity recognised in alms giving and the generous bestowal of benefactions to the poor and needy, but that charity born out of the great loving heart of God Himself, which links soul to soul all the world over and brings Heaven down to earth. Masonry seeks to bring together men of every political faith, and of every religious creed, winning them from their isolation, their selfishness, and their sins, and uniting them in work for the general good. It emphasises the statement of an apostle, "no man liveth to himself," and calls its members to be helpers of each other—helpers of all men—animated and filled by that charity "which suffereth long and is kind," that charity which never faileth, well declared to be the fulfilment of the law.

I make no assertion that the membership of our organisation have all been baptised into this spirit, and thus brought to nobler toil and duty. The ideal is always in advance of the actual, and whilst human nature bears its present infirmities we can hardly expect the full realisation of our largest aspirations. But it counts as something for an Institution to have so grand an ideal, to be established on principles so divine and glorious. It is the crowning glory of the Masonic Institution that above all the din and confusion of earth it so clearly sounds forth the watchword of human brotherhood and flies the white banner of love.

"Ours are the ample views, that, unconfined,
Stretch to the utmost walks of human kind:
Ours the spirit, that, with wildest plan,
Brother to brother binds, and man to man.
When the fleet vanities of life's brief day
Oblivion's hurrying wings shall sweep away,
Each act by charity and mercy done,
High o'er the wrecks of time, shall live alone.
Immortal as the heavens, and beauteous bloom
In other worlds and realms beyond the tomb."

As it is written in our ancient chronicles, so would I repeat the sentiment as a fitting legend for this occasion: "Love to God, sweet peace and charity to all men."

Brethren, behold your high calling and vocation as Masons! So walk ye, reverently toward God and lovingly toward men, thus reflecting the true glory of our ancient Institution! So walk ye, making this world something the brighter and better by your having lived in it, turning thus when you shall depart this earthly life that Divine welcome: "Well done, good and faithful servants, enter ye into the joy of your Lord."—Freemasons' Repository.

TRUTH REGNANT.

Infidelity has been, since the first doubt of God's word was harboured in the breast of the first woman, the mother of us all. We recently assigned a reason for the opinion that in the world's pre-millennium stage it would never cease to be. In its modern hydra-headed form, its principal toil is to mask stale and often refuted objections—to invest with novelty the effete and threadbare. Its pride is to claim an origin from the superior lights of science, to hail its opponents as the devotees of superstition, to mock devotion as a mental insanity. All this, however, is the merest hollow pretence, as many a scholar knows. It has no new ideas. Even the latest phase, by perversion of its true principles, so called evolution, has its counterpart in the ancient theories. It affects the role of learning. But the proportion of such is in disparaging contrast with the long line of illustrious men who have reflected the light of inspired truth in every age.

What is the question between us? The bible as a divine book. This settled, and there is an end of controversy in the mind of man. Infidelity is not a thing of the head, but the heart: "The fool hath said in his heart, there is no God." The sacred oracles exist. This is our ground plan and vantage. The fair-minded among sceptics do not condescend to the system of mere negation—the open, blatant scoffers move on a lower plane from them. But the danger of this teaching is all the more pronounced and insidious. They are of the school of Strauss, and Renan, and Weiss. By such the bible is a received book, but they construe it a myth in all its supernatural revealing. The answer is that in all its parts the Jews, for "centuries which have passed into millenniums, have received it as their veritable history, while the prophecies already fulfilled and no longer questioned, prove it a reality. And this is one short method with this sentimental school.—As to minor criticism of a verbal character the objections of philosophy, falsely so called, time has never yet failed to vindicate Bible accuracy and truth, and we have no fear that it will ever fail. Faith and patience are wise readers of holy writ, and time is a most excellent expositor. Let us catenate a few of these examples. Theodore Beza, a learned and Christian critic, on the strength of a passage in Strauss, concluded that St. Luke, to say the least of it, had written carelessly in calling (Acts xiii. vii.) the Governor of Cyprus, Sergius Paulus, a Pro Consul, instead of a Pro-Pretor, and in his translation of the acts actually, in his blind certitude, substituted the terms. Soon afterwards some old coins of the Island of Cyprus turned up, and the inscriptions on them proved that Beza was wrong and St. Luke right. Twenty-five years ago an eminent critic, Von Bohlen, made quite a sensation by undertaking to prove that the author of the Books of Moses must have been a Chaldean, and could have known nothing of Egypt, because in Exodus he speaks of vines and grapes in ancient Egypt, of making wine, of buildings of brick, and of asses and of sheep. Wise and good men waited, however, while the faith of some was shaken, until Sir Gardner Wilkinson, Rosellini, and others, in exploring modern Egypt, demonstrated that Von Bohlen was wrong and the Books of Moses right. These instances might be multiplied indefinitely. No case of criticism and sceptical objection has been found permanently to hold, how plausible, soever, its first presentation.

It is above all other books in its transcendent spiritual power in searching the conscience and in the presentation of a morality which has never been questioned for its purity and adaption of our race. It rises so high over everything possible as of human invention, it is self evident that this pure morality could never have sprang from earth. Its laws and legislation underlie the jurisprudence of all government having justice and right as the high intent of rulers. But chiefly as a plan of salvation, a life-giving principle, a spiritual potency, do we have an evidence of its divinity which appeals to the experience of a great multitude, past and present. This power is in the word as a convicting word—a piercing, devouring sword of the spirit, a discerning, seven-eyed heart reader, a converting, regenerating word, a manifestly divine word. Mr. Van Lennop, missionary to Constantinople, relates that a Turkish Pasha confessed in a free conversation with himself and others, this power of the word: "Were I to become a Christian," said he, "I should be one indeed." And going to the library of the steamer on which the company were sailing, and opening an English Bible, said: "I read this book once through in Italian" and pointing to his head and heart—"It remaineth here and here!" We cannot close these desultory reflections more profitably than to repeat the lines of Sir Walter Scott, which were found copied on a fly-leaf of Byron's Bible, as an evidence of even his profound sense of the solemn truth and mystery of the Book:

"Within this awful volume lies
The mystery of mysteries;
And happiest they of human race
To whom the Lord has given grace
To read, to hear, to hope, to pray,
To lift the latch and force the way;
But better had he ne'er been born,
Who reads to doubt, or reads to scorn."
—Eclectic.

The erection of Temple Bar on the Thames Embankment as a water-side gate to the Temple Gardens has been suggested, as the Bar would not only look well, but would thus retain its old associations with the Temple.

LOOK TO THE FUTURE.

When reposing in apparent security, it is well to look to the future, with a view to avoiding danger, or to prepare for it should it come. The institution of Masonry has enjoyed such a long season of uninterrupted success, that it fears no danger, and is indifferent to looking forward in anticipation of what might be at its very door. "In time of peace prepare for war." Is there danger within the scope of possibility? Are there those who believe we are on the brink of a precipice that will engulf many, and in so doing shake the foundation of the old fabric itself?

One of our great weaknesses is our numbers, masses of whom are but of the institution in consequence of its present popularity, and who would be baneful should clouds arise and a storm threaten. We are not alarmists; on the contrary, we believe that the old Craft is not in any wise cranky, but as staunch as ever, so far at least as the ship herself is concerned; a little scraping on the quicksands and a shaking up might rid it of many barnacles; but there are those of the fraternity who earnestly believe there is a lee-shore ahead that cannot be avoided, and that it is necessary to keep sounding the lead without ceasing; they believe that disaster may momentarily result from discontent, dissatisfaction and monetary considerations of some of an overcrowded crew, as well as from anti-Masonic torpedoes and breakers of different forms that lie in the immediate path of the vessel. They believe that the institution of Masonry has become so formidable in numbers as to attract the special attention of its old enemy the Roman Catholic Church, and that shortly not only will be fulminated some Bull, but that energetic action will be had that will bring on such collision between the Jesuits and the fraternity that property and even life will be at stake with those who proved true to their voluntary solemn obligations; this could in no wise affect our land directly, but his Holiness cannot be ignorant or indifferent to the unprecedented advancement in late years of free thought, and its antagonism with mental tyranny and debasement. Superstition, ignorance, and fanaticism are yielding to that enlightenment which is borne of the "children of light," and this cannot pass unnoticed.

It is unfortunate for the handful of anti-Masons in this country that they cannot charge some gross crime against the brotherhood, as they did in 1826; they are suffering for some great nucleus upon which to build a cry for extermination and convulse society as if with the throes of an earthquake, as they did in 1830. Masonry is not indifferent to that lesson; the newspaper press, that powerful engine, poured upon us from its batteries an incessant storm. Everywhere, and under every possible circumstance, Masonry was assailed with remorseless violence. The cry of its enemies was like the watchword of Palafox on the Saragossa, "War, war to the knife!" Books, pamphlets, tracts, and handbills, couched in language best calculated to inflame the public mind to the highest pitch, flooded the country. They were found in taverns, in the hands of the people on the highway, in the cottage, in the drawing-room, in the public school, in the church pew, and sometimes on the seat of the judge.

Even-handed justice could no more be expected by a Mason, under many circumstances, than if the ban of outlawry had been proclaimed against him. As if it were not enough to banish him from the pale of civil society, the Mason was not unfrequently driven to the alternative of renouncing Freemasonry, or be expelled from the Church of his faith.

The ballot-box, that tremendous power, the ballot-box, with all its crushing weight, was brought to bear upon us. Not a man who dared raise his voice in our favour, or even invoke the general virtue of compassion for the persecuted institution, had the slightest chance of obtaining the smallest office in the gift of the people.

New York State, now possessing 83,000 affiliated Masons, and 110,000 of the brotherhood within its limits, then numbered 100,000 enrolled anti-Masons, and Pennsylvania half as many more; the broad taint extended South and West, and was all powerful for mischief. Never before, in the annals of the civilised world, were such fearful efforts put forth to crush any institution whatever. It is no exaggeration, no over-drawn picture, but sober facts. Society, through all its depths, reared and heaved, and tossed like the ocean when it feels the wrath of the hurricane.

Not a throne in Europe but would have fallen before a tide of the power arrayed against the institution of light. Our own government, though the strongest in the world, could not have withstood such an assault, headed by overwhelming majorities of the people, aided as was this by the pulpit, the press, the ballot-box. Any of the numerous self-constituted societies of the day, whose existence depends upon the momentary breath of popular opinion, would have vanished as suddenly as did the ghost of Hector.

Through all this scene Freemasonry stood calm and undismayed, yet putting forth no effort for self-protection, employing no weapon of defence, and yet came out of this fiery furnace unscathed. Like the Heaven-protected Hebrews, even the smell of fire was not found upon her garments. And those who fully understand her principles know the reason why. That is our mystery. In view of all this, we look forward, in the full face of the future, undaunted by hierarchy, or croaking anti-Mason, or the trembling passenger upon the deck of our good ship. Sail on, Heaven's Angel holds the helm.—Hebrew Leader.

The ratepayers of Shrewsbury have met and energetically protested against the endeavour of a small majority in the Town Council to abolish the Show, a festival which had been celebrated for the last seven centuries.

THE FRUITS OF FREEMASONRY.

The following excellent address was delivered by Bro. the Rev. R. G. Sutherland, of Hamilton, Canada, before the brethren of that city on St. John the Baptist's Day. We commend it to the attentive perusal not only of Masons, but also of those of the uninitiated who would like to know something of Masonry. We take it from the Canadian Craftsman.

St. Matthew, vii 16 "By their fruits ye shall know them."

Brethren.—This is the test our Lord gives us whereby to examine every teacher like St. John the Baptist, and every society. When we come to speak of a saint like this—of him who was the second Elias, the friend of the bridegroom, the child of promise, like Isaac, and foretold by the prophets—the man appointed like Samson, a Nazirite from his birth; consecrated to the Lord like Samuel; ordered like Elijah to prepare a people for the Lord and to rebuke princes like him, the burning and shining light, at whose coming the voice of prophecy that had been silent for 400 years was again heard; the man of whom as if anticipating the "well done thou good and faithful servant," it is written in the book of the Acts as the testimony of God Himself that "He fulfilled his course," and, like his Master, "did the work that was given him to do." How instructive, yet how solemn and difficult, the task! For who can rightly set forth and paint the inward experience of one on whom the Spirit of God rested from his very infancy—who can duly describe the inward purity of him—the stern rebukes of sin, alike on Jordan's banks and in Herod's palace? Where shall we find words to set forth the intense conviction of his faith in the Lamb of God—the depth of his joy when he beheld the Bridegroom, and said, "This, my joy, is fulfilled,"—that firm hold upon the world to come which made him quail not as he bent in the lonely dungeon of Machorus, beneath the victor's sword. We can only judge of those inward workings of the mind—we can only estimate the power of the grace which sanctifies him when we mark the spiritual fruits, the decision of character, that lofty, undaunted bearing, that scorn of the happiness and luxuries of the world, that austere, rigid life of strict self-denial, that bold rebuking of ungodliness in high places. It is all summed up for us in those words I have already quoted, John fulfilled his course—words which depict his career either as that of the victorious racer dashing along the race course, passing every competitor, and dying nobly in the very moment of victory; or, as others have understood the words, of the course of some stream that sweeps along in its majestic course, fertilising, as it goes, many and many a land, and at last rushing as a mighty torrent into the bed of the ocean, its native home. Brethren, when we look at the history of a great saint like St. John the Baptist, it is right to trace the visible effect to the hidden cause; to trace the stream to its one true fountain, and to be sure that where there is such abhorrence of sin, such love for the Saviour, such witnessing for truth, such boldness even unto death, that God has been sought and found; that fruits like these grew not on the stem of nature; that the truth has been followed, so far as the truth is known; that that truth has taught him how to value the world's toys and baits, and scorn and rage—to value them at their real value, when seen in the light of eternity—and then to trample them under foot. Faith like his; separation and severance from the world like his; that rugged and undaunted boldness which courts no smile and fears no frown, has its roots on high, in common with God, in a spirit of obedience to His will. But your presence here to-day reminds me that I must turn to another illustration of the text, "By their fruits ye shall know them." I cannot hope to teach you your duty as Masons; it would ill become me—perhaps the youngest in your ranks—to attempt this. But since you have honoured me so far as to ask me to address you on this festival, I propose to examine our world-wide Order by the simple test our Lord and Saviour here lays down; and with no affected humility permit me to ask you, Brethren and Worshipful and Right Worshipful Brethren, to extend your wonted charity to me if I fail, I do not say to instruct, but to interest you. What I have to say cannot be new to you, for it is from yourselves that I have learned the truths I am about to put you in mind of. What, then, is Freemasonry, and what are its fruits? What is its aim, and what does it do? First, what is it? It is a beautiful system of morality, veiled in allegory, and illustrated by symbols. Masonry, then, is not a system of religion, but of morality. The great principles of natural and revealed religion are, it is true, preserved and inculcated by our Order. The Bible, the volume of the Sacred Law, is the great standard of Masonic truth. No act is regular which feels not the hallowing influence of its open pages. It is the central point to which the eyes of Masons are always directed, from which are diffused those gleams of light which dispel the darkness of the human understanding, and brighten and illumine the blindness of the human heart. But Masonry concerns itself rather with the moral than with the spiritual doctrines of the Bible. It is the handmaid and assistant, not the rival of, or the substitute for, the Church. This, "system of morality, veiled in allegory," is "illustrated by symbols"—symbols from the universal language. The bent knee, bowed head, outstretched hand, are embodiments of thoughts and feelings common to mankind. Look around you, as you sit, and let me read to you what this church teaches you symbolically. The chancel looks toward the East because Christ is the bright and morning star, and shall thence appear, as say the old traditions when in the latter day He cometh to save us. The western front is toward the world. Upon that face are found in many an ancient cathedral all manner of strange grotesque figures, representing the evil agents and powers of darkness cast forth from the Church and beating their wings against its windows, unable to effect an entrance. There at the North, stands the tower, the symbol of the Apostolic Ministry facing the foes of Christ and resisting them, keeping watch and ward evermore on the side of the danger. Within, the church is divided into nave, choir, and sanctuary; threefold according to the eternal Three, and yet again in the nave are three aisles, of the same sacred number. The chancel arch is the symbol of the gate of death, the portal through which man enters into the rest of Paradise. The choir represents that Paradise, the place of our hopes and dreams. Thither looking, we see its occupants clothed in white robes and singing in melodious antiphonal chant the songs of other days, and the new songs of Moses and the Lamb before the symbol of the throne. That throne is within; it stands in the sanctuary—the symbol of the present Christ, where we show forth the Lord's death till he come. Above the chancel the roof ascends, adorned here and there with shining stars, because our journey through life is in the night of this world—a night now far spent. The font stands at the door, because we enter by baptism into the fold of God. The very windows are symbols. They are wider within than without, because the truth widens and broadens upon us as we leave the world and enter the household of God, and those windows are filled with many coloured glass, which, from without, appears dark and unsightly, but from within appears beautiful and clear; because it is only by being inside the church that man can discern the glory and beauty of the light shed on us by our Lord, who is light. Such, brethren are few out of the many lessons which this church teaches by symbols. And the beautiful morality of our Order is also illustrated by symbols. From the gavel, rule and square how often have I heard the Masters draw deep lessons for our use. No Mason can look upon the gavel, which the labourer uses to hew off the roughness and produce a level surface, without being reminded that his duty is to strike off the eccentricities of his character, and smooth down its moral inequalities.

To us the rule with its twenty-four divisions is a symbol of each day of life, its twenty-four hours to be measured out with diligent care and graduated into seasons of labour, rest and devotion. In the square a Mason reads great moral truths that underlie the whole structure of society. Therein he sees Divine principles asserted, undeviating laws established. Looking on that symbol of a just and upright life, he recalls the solemn pledges he has made that he will square his actions to all men, but especially the brethren, by the square of virtue—and dull and dead must his heart be who does not feel strengthened in good resolves and stimulated to a correct and upright life whenever he looks upon the symbols of Masonic justice between man and man. Take again the implement with which the cement is spread, which makes the parts of the building into one united and harmonious whole. To the common eye it is simply a trowel. To the Mason it reveals important truths. It reminds him of deep principles. It preaches. It teaches him that, as a Mason, he must liberally spread the cement of fraternal love, that so the moral edifice may be neither unstable, unsightly, nor unworthy of the Master whose Temple it is. As a last example of the truth that Masonry is a system of morality, take another implement, one of the most common of those used by the builder, viz., that by which we are taught to circumscribe and keep our passions under bounds. You, brethren, know that the most valuable secrets of your Craft may be found between its points, and that while you keep within that charmed circle it describes, you cannot materially err. In one word, the symbolism of Freemasonry is not "a spectacle to amuse full grown boys." It is a means, and the simplest and most expressive means, to impress upon our minds the moral duties of brotherly love, relief, and truth. One feature which I must note in passing is the unobtrusiveness of Freemasonry. It courts no observation. Whenever the attention of the world has been drawn to it, it has been by its enemies. We have all heard of an anti-Masonic party, but no man ever heard of a Masonic party. The Craft never strives to proselytise. When attacked it does not fight; it does not even defend itself. It is this quiet unobtrusive spirit which has made us so many enemies. We give no opportunity for criticism, and this very modesty on our part enrages those who, while ignorant of our real spirit, excommunicate and libel us. Another characteristic of Masonry is its comprehensiveness. All it asks of those who would share its privileges is, "Do you believe in God, the immortality of the soul, and in a future world of reward and punishment? Are you a man, freeborn, of mature age and sound judgment?" If you believe these things, if you are all this, then welcome, whether rich or poor! You need not give up one iota of religious faith; one tittle of your political convictions. Enter and see that within our "safe and sacred retreat" it is possible for men of the opposite ideas to meet on the broad ground of humanity, to live in perfect accord and work together happily for the attainment of knowledge and for the diffusion of charity. Here we offer a pleasant retreat where men may forget the world and its conflicts in the enjoyment of friendship and social intercourse. And because we prize this union so highly we are careful to "guard well the outer door." This is the first and last duty of every Mason. "Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty." We are sworn to admit only those who will add strength as well as numbers to our ranks, those who will become "centres of union and the means of conciliating true friendship." That we do guard the door, the fact that nearly twelve thousand applicants were rejected last year in North America alone is abundant proof. It is, I think, worth while on an occasion such as this to examine an objection which is often made with regard to our fraternity. "It is," they say, "a secret society," and, it is often added "wherever there is secrecy there is iniquity." Well, I must remind objectors that so long ago as the year 1798 one of our English bishops defended the fraternity from this very charge. A bill was passing through the House of Lords to suppress secret societies, but Bishop Headley clearly showed that Masonry could not be embraced under the name of secret, and secured its exemption from the Act. Masonry, it is true, has its secrets, but its objects and aims are not secret. Secrecy, we must remember, also pervades public and private life. The naval commander sails under sealed orders—his destination is a secret—and so the enemy is not kept informed of the plans formed against him. The Cabinet deliberates in secret. Every councillor is sworn to secrecy. I read the other day that on the Roy case the Methodist Conference sat in secret. In a business partnership there are secrets known only to the firm. In every family there are secrets. The heads of households have secrets which are not imparted to their children or servants. Everywhere, and in every rank of life, prudence enjoins secrecy, and why should not our Order have its secrets? But Masonry is not, properly speaking, a secret society, inasmuch as its tendencies, objects, and aims are open for all the world to see. Those ends are brotherly love, relief, and truth, boundless charity and unflinching benevolence. For this we are united, to this we are bound by the most solemn obligations. Clergymen and physicians, lawyers and journalists, merchants, princes, skillful artisans, all are ready to give their best aid one for all and all for one. For our own turn may come when we shall need a brother's hand and a brother's sympathy. A conflagration such as that of St. John might reduce the wealthiest here to abject poverty. Misfortunes overtake us all alike, and adversity visits us in turn—no life is exempt from suffering—no career is free from vicissitudes; and although, (to quote the eloquent words of the Grand Master of Kansas) Masonry cannot subdue the tempest, nor say to the ocean, "Peace, be still," yet it lifts the sinking mariner from engulfing wave and warms him into life. It cannot hush the voice of the thunder, nor arrest the lightning's fiery missile; but it takes the victim of the storm and wraps its snow-white robe around him. It does not stand at the door of the sepulchre to roll away its stone and bid its silent, solemn tenant come forth; but it finds the lame, the halt, and the blind, that have fallen by the wayside, and pours into their hearts the oil of joy and gladness. It does not go abroad to proclaim its benevolent spirit, but it wipes the tear from the widow's eye, and guides the feet and guards the head of the orphan. It does not boast of its deeds of charity, but it "feeds the hungry, clothes the naked, and binds up the wounds of the afflicted." It does not claim that it has fraternised the world; but it diffuses the spirit of universal brotherhood and charity as gently as the dews of Hermon and as genially as the light of heaven. Not many months ago our Grand Master stated that in the last eight years the lodges under his jurisdiction had dispensed in charity over 80,000 dollars. Last year the Grand Lodge alone distributed nearly 8000 dollars in charity, and this exclusive of the sums given for the same object by private lodges and by individual Masons. By these and such like fruits is the Masonic Order known. You need no shining appeal from me to urge you to go on as you have begun, to give to-day as liberally as you have done before. You know as well as I that there are still widows to be cheered, orphans to be fed by your bounty; that here and there some distressed brother who is in want is timidly and anxiously waiting to be relieved, perhaps, by the very contributions you are about to give this afternoon. O, if you could follow this money which you are about to offer for the relief of the poor to-day—if you could trace it to its destination and see the joy and gratitude that it evokes, you would wish you had given double. Brethren, I know that you have many claims upon you and constant applications for relief; but I ask you to remember that you are bound not to love others less, but to love someone; to be charitable to all, but especially to your brethren. The world will judge you "by your fruits." See then that ye have not to be ashamed of your fruits. The present is the legacy of our fathers and the future will be our legacy to those that shall come after us. Let us do our best to make that legacy a glorious one, worthy of ourselves, of our noble aims, and of our ancient brotherhood.

THE LODGE.

Reader, did you ever ponder over the little word "Lodge," and seriously consider what sweet memories it bringeth to the weary soul. To the good Mason there is a charm in the very word. It is the one sacred spot where Masons forget the storms and trials of the day, the tumult and troubles of the outer world. It is there we enjoy our own opinion unrestrained; it is there we modestly and manfully meet and act upon the level as brethren should, despite the differences that may divide or the contentions which agitate us in our social, political, or religious life; it is there we meet together, forgetting alike all earthly sorrow, all earthly strife, all worldly distractions, while outside of its portals we are members of the community, perhaps supporters of a particular church, particular creed, or having a particular theory of our own. But in the Lodge, however humble the brother may be in the outer world, or however proud and haughty or whatever may be his rank or station there, there is a sacred spell which binds us one and all together, in one peaceful unity, where brotherly love and affection beam from every eye; there good-will and fellowship prevail, there our strength unites in giving praise and glory to one common and heavenly Creator; there some of the happiest moments of our life are spent; there our lasting friendship is cemented, and there also some of the happiest memories of our lives are revived; it is the great arch which spans a tolerating brotherhood wheresoever dispersed upon the habitable earth, acknowledging and reverencing the one Supreme God as the loving Father and Creator of all that is.—Corner Stone.

NON-READING MASONS.

Agreeing with our able contemporary, the Craftsman, in his remarks, we have transferred them thankfully to our pages.

The want of knowledge, so often manifested by Masons is not only a matter of surprise, even to those without our portals, but it is also deplorable. When a man enters the fraternity, it is presumed that he does so with the object of receiving "light," but it is to be feared that the majority of those who join the order, do so without any such object in view,—it is the name, and not the power and knowledge they seek, and their ignorance is most destructive to the cause, and deserving of severe rebuke. There are many members of the Order who take delight in decking themselves out with Masonic jewellery and regalia, and hanging out the sign to such an extent as to make themselves laughing stocks in the eyes of sensible people, and yet, if they are sounded, will be found ignorant of the first principles of Masonry. A correspondent in one of our exchanges (a woman), complains that many Masons' families know comparatively nothing of the principles or workings of the Craft, and she assigns this as the principal reason why so many ladies are opposed to Masonry. "There are Masons," she says, "to their shame let it be said, who seldom, if ever, refer to Masonry in their homes, and while it is, as the uninformed ladies believe, of interest or benefit to them, it deprives them of their husbands' society; and more, there is a secret attached which excites their curiosity, and, in some instances, hatred of the institution. There is no true woman but would gladly endorse an institution, let her first be convinced that it is calculated to make her husband a better man. And," she adds, "there is no way of gaining the desired information so effectually as through the Masonic press."

There are those who think that, because they have been initiated, and thus admitted to the "mysteries" and privileges of Freemasonry, and eventually exalted to the Sublime Degree of Master Mason, they know all about Masonry, and need no further enlightenment. We are sorry that they should be so conceited, and pity them in their blindness. We trust, however, that this class of Masons is small, and that the great majority of those who become members of the Fraternity are desirous of learning something more than the mere signs, grips and words of the different degrees. Zealous and well-instructed Masons will endorse our statement, that the true beauties of Masonic art can only be appreciated by those who are diligent in the prosecution of knowledge, and those only who are faithful can expect to grow wiser and better.

A LODGE OF SORROW IN AMERICA.

A Lodge of Sorrow includes the most solemn and impressive ritual known in Freemasonry. Such were the ceremonies performed in Corinthian Hall, Masonic Temple, Philadelphia, in the presence of 800 members of the Order.

In the deep alcove at the eastern end of the hall stood a monument about fifteen feet in height, representing in appearance a solid block of granite. On the cap-stone of the base hung a wreath of twining arbutus, while the base itself was completely buried in the choicest of exotic plants, and on the top of the shaft a white dove was perched as an emblem of peace. In front of the pillars on either side of the alcove, were two large plants of pampas-grass, and in the niches in the walls were also arranged tropical plants, contrasting beautifully with the white walls which formed the background.

In the centre of the hall rested an elaborately constructed catafalque, festooned with rows of myrtle leaves and white roses, while directly over the same, suspended from the ceiling, a hanging basket displayed white roses, japonicas and evergreens. At the head and foot of the catafalque were placed three burning tapers, placed in a triangular form, and on both sides of it were placed three chairs, for the use of the pall-bearers. Directly in the rear a fire flamed from the altar of Sacrifice, and the air was filled with the perfume from the altar of Incense.

Promptly at seven o'clock the soft strains of music from Chapin's Funeral March denoted the approach of the officers and members of the Lodge of Perfection, awakening an interest that never flagged to the close of the ceremonies.

As the procession filed into the hall the officers assumed their respective positions, and following in the rear were six pall-bearers bearing a richly-mounted rosewood casket, which, being placed on the catafalque, the band rendered the prayer, "Moses in Egypt."

Then came the opening exercises, in which the object of the meeting in answer to the question of the Master, "For what purpose are we assembled?" was briefly stated by the Senior Warden, who replied: "To honour the memory of those brethren whom death hath taken from us, contemplate our own approaching dissolution, and, by the remembrance of immortality, to raise our souls above the consideration of this transitory existence."

Then the Master of Ceremonies extinguished the white light in the South, emblematical of darkness; the blue light in the West, to indicate decay; and last, the red light in the East, signifying dissolution. Thus the lights surrounding the catafalque and coffin were all extinguished.

Now came the roll-call of members, and as the names of the dead were called the lodge arose in a body, and placing their right hand over the heart, responded "dead." The interesting feature of the ceremony was the forming of the lodge into a procession, headed by the band and the quartet singers, and marching around the hall, the Master placing on the coffin a bouquet of violets, emblematical of the pure life to which the departed had been called. Retiring to his place, and after an interval of silence, the procession again formed and moved as before, and the head of the procession again having reached the East, the column opened and the Senior Warden advanced and placed another bouquet of flowers as a symbol of the remembrance of all the virtues of the brethren that had preceded them. On completing the third circuit around the hall, the Master placed a wreath of evergreen on the tomb, as a symbol of faith in immortal life.

The pall-bearers now took the casket from the catafalque and slowly conveyed it to the East. Upon reaching the monument, a panel in the base was lifted, and the casket deposited from sight, the hymn "Rest, Brothers, Rest" being sung at the tomb.

Hymns emblematical of "Faith," "Hope," and the "Resurrection" were rendered, the lights in the South, West, and East were relighted, and the Chaplains exclaimed "The will of God is accomplished. Blessed be the name of the Lord."

A eulogy was pronounced by Ill. Dennis F. Dealy on the lives of the deceased brethren, Ill. Bros. James B. Van Osten, George W. Haines, Lloyd H. Walton, George L. Rauch, Charles E. Sutherland, Henry F. Bucher, Robt. Gray, Francis Blackburne, Harmanus Neff, all of whom were thirty-second degree members.—Phila. paper.

GRAND ORIENT OF FRANCE.

Extract of Minute of Grand Committee of Grand Lodge of Scotland.

We take the following from the Scottish Freemason:—
Convened in Freemasons' Hall, this 27th November, 1877, the Grand Committee of the Grand Lodge of Scotland—the Most Worshipful the Grand Master Mason (Sir Michael R. Shaw Stewart, Bart.) presiding:—

"Having had their attention directed by the Grand Orient of France, whereby a profession of belief in Almighty God, the Great Architect of the Universe, and the immortality of the soul, is not now exacted of candidates for admission as Freemasons, and having maturely considered the same, instruct the Grand Secretary to intimate to the Grand Orient of France that, should it be the case that such a radical change in the fundamental principles of Ancient Freemasonry has indeed been confirmed by the Grand Orient of France, Grand Committee will be under the painful necessity of recommending to Grand Lodge to sever the fraternal relations that have for so long a period subsisted between it and the Grand Orient of France."

(Certified)
D. MURRAY LYON,
Sec. to G.L. of Scotland.

Grand Lodge of Scotland Grand Secretary's Office,
98, George-street, Edinburgh,
3rd December, 1877.

Mons. THEVENOT, Grand Secretary,
Grand Orient of France,

Dear Sir and Right Wor. Brother,—I have the honour to forward through you the accompanying extract from the minutes of the Grand Committee of the Grand Lodge of Scotland, to be submitted to the Grand Orient of France. I very much regret the circumstances that have led to this resolution, and sincerely trust that at no distant date the Grand Orient will restore a landmark, the removal of which has given so much pain to the Scottish Craft.

With the assurance of my profound regard, believe me to be, faithfully and fraternally yours,

D. MURRAY LYON,
Sec. to the Grand Lodge of Scotland.

R.W. BRO. D. MURRAY LYON, GRAND SECRETARY OF THE GRAND LODGE OF SCOTLAND.

It must be gratifying to all our Scottish brethren to know that the newly appointed Grand Secretary, Bro. D. Murray Lyon, is paying great and prompt attention to the welfare of the Grand Lodge of Scotland, and of all her Provincial Grand Lodges, both at home and abroad. The R.W. brother's diligence and promptitude are highly spoken of by various distinguished brethren. Having such a zealous brother as Grand Secretary, the Grand Lodge of Scotland ought to strengthen her stakes and lengthen her cords. "Disaffection" has been engendered in certain minds, which has well nigh been fanned into total "alienation" from the Mother Grand Lodge, for reasons which need not be specified; but the promptitude and alacrity with which R.W. Bro. Murray Lyon despatches Masonic business have contributed not a little in removing to a great extent the estrangement and dislike of brethren. Even the members of Scottish lodges at "the distant ends of the earth," though so far away, are quite safe in the hands of such a distinguished Scottish Grand Officer as Bro. Murray Lyon.

Our Scotch brethren are well-known for possessing "the virtue of perseverance." Not only from their Masonic but national annals we find that the sons of "Caledonia, stern, and wild," were never wanting in this Masonic virtue. They knew that he who would enjoy the sweets of the spring or obtain the honeycombs of Mount Hybla should never dread his face being stung or be annoyed by briars. "The rose is guarded by his thorn, the honey is defended by the bee," and whatever might be the discouragements, difficulties, and stumbling blocks, our R.W. Brother, as a Scottish Mason, will set a stout heart to "a stae brae," (a steep hill side) with a Masonic perseverance—

"That wins each God-like act and plucks success Even from the spear-proof crest of rugged danger."
He that tholes (endures) overcomes."—Australian Freemason.

CHRISTMAS.

"Christmas comes but once a year"
Is a saying often heard,
Yet by its living presence,
Man's heart is deeply stirred;
For Christmas takes us back again
Through ages long gone by,
And brings a great and glorious truth,
Full voiced to memory.
In some old troubled hours,
And in some ancient days,
Mid human hate and sadness,
Dim wishes, reckless ways,
There comes a glad announcement
Made by an angel throng,
Which now should rule the ages,
A goodly blessed song.
Sweet was the choral melody,
Which then poured on this earth,
Dear the Divine "Good Tidings,"
Which in yon gracious birth,
Came to the weak and erring,
The grieving and the lost;
The tempted and the wandering,
Hard pressed and tempest-toss't.
What was that message gracious?
What was that anthem glad,
Which spoke in love and harmony
To hearts all cold and sad?
Oh! was it not the goodliest
That has reached our mortal race?
Or was it not the truest
That e'er came from God's own Grace?
Glory to God on high, on earth
Peace to poor man man below,
Was the song of Angel joyfulness
The cure of human woe,
A blessing for the curse shone forth,
A hope midst doubt and shame,
The "Bright and Morning Star" appeared
In God's own Holy Name.
Oh brethren then who still declare
That yours is the "Mystic Tie,"
Which teaches Masons how to live,
Which warns them how to die;
Welcome once more that Christmas song
Which until the world shall cease,
Shall ever be the harbinger
Of Brotherhood and Peace.

THE ANGEL OF MERCY.

BRO. ROB MORRIS.

The Angel of Mercy to-night is abroad:
There gleams from her fingers the signet of God;
Her work in beneficence all is designed,
The sad to console, to give light to the blind:
Oh brightest of beings that nestle above
The Angel of Mercy, the Angel of Love!
The sound of her wings rustles light on the air;
She bends her bright course to th' abode of despair
Her features entrance the dull vision of pain
And the joyless are kindled with rapture again.
Oh sunniest object that sparkles above
The Angel of Mercy, the Angel of Love!
To the lips of fevered, she tenders the cup
The heads of the drooping her hand beareth up;
The friendless she points to the land far away,
And the dying makes hopeful with visions of day
Oh nearest divine of the powers above
The Angel of Mercy, the Angel of Love!
Dear sisters, to you is her mission consigned,
To you she, departing, leaves duty behind,
In errand celestial she bids you go forth,
And be the beneficent Angel of earth;
Yes each of you prove, on the model above
An Angel of Mercy, the Angel of Love!

THE MASON'S JEWELS.

Ere Masonry came down from heaven,
A precious trinity was given
To be her rule and guide.
Then Truth was spoken into birth,
From heaven descended to this earth
With Masonry 'abide.
Hope, much-loved pearl, our Master gave,
From cradle to relentless grave
The Mason's guest to be—
The Hope that centres, Lord, in Thee,
The Hope of immortality.
The peerless jewel, Charity,
The last of Mason's trinity
Of grace from above!
Quintessence of the Deity,
Most precious jewel of three,
All crystalize in Love!

Three peerless graces sent to bloom,
And every Mason's, life illumine,
While on the green earth he stays.
Sweet, sweet the Mason's trinity
Of Faith, Hope, Love or Charity,
Until prayer's lost in praise.

THE CHRISTMAS TREE.

Oh merry Jane and Mary,
And Muriel and Fan,
Oh laughing Amy, Ethel,
Priscilla, Mary Ann,
Oh Polly, Carry, Sophie,
And fair Hermione,
Gather in mystic order
Around the Christmas Tree.
And you stout George and Henry
Fat Arthur, our Sam,
Bold Rupert, Mark, and Tommy,
And Joe, and Jim, and Gam,
And Francis, Kit, and Charlie,
Oh mind you courteous be,
Let every Jack attend his Gill
Around the Christmas tree!
Midst merry peals of laughter,
And the fresh and silvery voice,
In all of genial gaiety,
Oh, let your hearts rejoice.
As in that goodly lighted room,
And much of radiant glee,
The old ones and the young ones
Welcome the Christmas tree.
See now those tapers brightly shine,
To lighten up your joys,
What goodly presents meet the eyes
Of happy girls and boys.
Ah, me, how time is slipping,
Before the "Sisters Three,"
As now I mind, when first I saw
A gleaming Christmas tree.
Yes, life which leaves us daily,
All weary in the race,
Recalls the stately presence,
The dear and wistful face,
As now once more I greet again,
Those who were dear to me,
Who once could gather gladly
Around the Christmas tree.
But vain are chants of sadness,
On this fair Christmas eve,
Let's banish needless troubles
Afar!—the thoughts which grieve,
Rather we'll raise together,
In heart and fancy free,
A cheery Christmas Carol
Around our Christmas tree.

Bold hearts, fair faces, mock and gay,
In pleasant mirth and love
May all God's truest blessings,
Attend you from above;
May you as on your way you wend,
And older years you see,
Remember ancient mates and friends,
Around your Christmas tree.

I hear soft voices singing
A glorious refrain,
I think for the shadowy moment,
That I am young again,
Alas! the echo vanishes.
The loving shadows flee;
The "Sojourner's" alone once more,
Faded his Christmas tree.

N.

* The Three Fates, a classical allusion, which our boys, and certainly our girls, will understand.

THE GRASP OF FRIENDSHIP'S HAND.

Come sit thou at my table—thou the friend of early years:
To see the face of those we love, the coldest bosom cheers.
Come thou, and share the blessings that Providence has sent
To glad my humble dwelling still, and welcome real content.
I care not for thy thread-bare coat, such pride I'd ne'er bequeath,
The heart that was my friend in need still beats, I'm sure beneath;
I scorn thy pomp and empty state, tho' what the world deems grand;
Give me the man that well deserves the grasp of Friendship's hand.
Some tell us Friendship's very rare, it doth not much abound;
If that be true, we'll prize it more when once the jewel's found.
The man whose Friendship's formed of words, like empty air it speeds;
A man's real worth is always known by good and honest deeds.
I would that all were friends on earth, as angels are above,
That man to man would nobly prove a friend—a brother's love;
That no mean boast of wealth or birth 'twixt honest hearts should stand,
Then all alike would well deserve the grasp of Friendship's hand.

Reviews.

"The Christmas Masonic Magazine." 198, Fleet-street, London.

We have received this goodly specimen of our Masonic serial literature, and admire its appearance and appreciate its contents. Its "bill of fare" is both very varied and very attractive. May a good literary digestion follow upon its perusal, for it is alike interesting and amusing, intelligent and tolerant, full of much that can please and that can instruct, much that can amuse and edify. We think that the Editor has, however, been a little amiss in "proving" the printers' pages, as there are some typographical errors which should never have appeared in a Magazine so well printed, so carefully edited, and glowing in so very taking a cover.

We think it right to call the attention of all our readers to the "Magazine," as it is indeed a cheap and good shilling's worth, competing successfully as it clearly does, alike in appearance and contents with many Magazines of older standing and higher pretensions. We wish it all success—the success which it most fairly merits.

The "Eclectic," G. H. RAMSEY, Editor, Washington.

We beg to mention the special merits of this well printed and able specimen of American Masonic literature to all who peruse the weekly pages of the "Freemason."

The "Liberal Freemason," A. F. CHAPMAN, Boston, U. S.

We can conscientiously commend this valuable "Confere" of ours to the patronage and study of all reading Masons.

The "Canadian Craftsman."

We have already expressed our pleasure at, and appreciation of the appearance of this friendly Magazine under the new editorial regime. There are many English Freemasons who may like to know what is going on in Canada among our brethren of the Mystic tie, and they can study no better record of the sayings and doings of Canadian Craftsmen.

The "Voice of Masonry," Chicago, United States, is as many of us know ably edited by our Bro. J. W. Brown and the well known and able Albert Mackey. It may be considered one of the leading magazines of Anglo-Saxon Masonic literature. It is most admirably conducted, and its articles are replete with Masonic interest and marked by Masonic sympathy.

"The Masonic Review," T. J. MALISH, Editor, Cincinnati,

Is another American Masonic periodical, very admirably edited and carefully arranged. It always contains much that is most readable by all Masons.

The "Keystone," Philadelphia.

A Masonic paper "sui generis," edited by our esteemed friend, and brother editor, Clifford P. McCalla. We need hardly add that the "Keystone" is a credit both to Pennsylvania and Cosmopolitan Freemasonry. We wish that it could be more widely read by our English brethren.

"New York Dispatch."

Under the clear and able direction of Bro. Simon, its Masonic page is always full of gratifying articles for the reading and thinking Mason.

"Die Bauhütte." Leipsic; J. G. Findel.

"Die Bauhütte" pursues the "even tenour of its way," though not altogether untroubled by the storms of the passing epoch, and we are glad to see it, and to read it. Though we do not always agree with Bro. Findel, we wish the Bauhütte every success, always remembering Bro. Findel's zealous labours in the good cause of Masonic truth and historical accuracy.

"La Chaine d'Union." Hubert, Paris.

We have often praised this excellent periodical before, and we commend it again sincerely to day, wishing both to it and its editor and publisher, Bro. Hubert, all success. He well deserves it, and the "Chaine d'Union" is always worth reading.

"Le Monde Maçonnique." Edited by Bro. Caubet.

Though we have had to differ, and do differ seriously with Bro. Caubet, we differ from him Masonically and honestly. We do not think that any good will come of suppression of the truth, or shirking the difference of manly opinion, and therefore we think as we speak, and speak what we think. Surely in Freemasonry we ought to seek for and expect the truth. When then we differ from brother Masons, as differ we will and often must; let us try to speak the truth boldly, freely, without fear, without offence, and without personality. We always read the "Monde Maçonnique" with pleasure, and we recognise its Masonic information and its editorial ability.

"Der Triangel,"

A German Masonic paper, published at New York, of which a copy has been kindly forwarded to us. We know nothing of it, or whether under the Grand Lodge of New York, but it seems to be very ably edited, and to be Masonic in its tone, and well arranged. We note, however, that it leans to the Grand Orient of France, even in its last unhappy "faux pas." It is a great wonder that its editor, apparently both Masonic and enlightened, can be deceived by the specious cry of toleration under which that revolutionary change has been effected. No more intolerant act has ever been really committed by any Masonic body, as it is a direct attack on the great foundation-truth of Universal Freemasonry—belief in T.G.A.O.T.U. Bro. Caubet, one of the leaders of the dominant party, boldly states, in the last Monde Maçonnique, that the Irish Grand Lodge is not an Universal Grand Lodge, because it accepts belief in a Personal God and the Bible. What will the editor of the "Triangel" say to such a proposition? It is enough to make the hair stand upon the head of any good old Mason.

"Bulletin du Grand Orient de France."

This is a very useful publication, giving us the official acts of the Grand Orient of France. It is lucidly arranged, and skilfully edited, and ought to be studied by all who wish to know the real position of French Freemasonry.

"Grand Imperial Council of Illinois."

We have received and pondered over this admirably printed report, and are much struck with it as a record of American High Grade work, as well as with the agreeable engraving of Bro. R. B. Smith, the Grand Sovereign.

A CHANGE OF SUITS.

FYTTE I.

"Well, Tiny, if the worst should come to the worst, we can but cut and run for it; take a cab from close to your house so that the old boy can trace it. Drive to Broad-street—tickets to the Alexandra—get out at Dalston—tickets back to Shoreditch—meanwhile, I mount the green specs, and you that eye-shade I bought in the Strand, and then—"

"I won't, Bob, and that's flat. Eye-shade, indeed—why—"

"Well never mind that, something else, Tiny; then we can get a special license, or perhaps the banns at Charley's office, or—or—or—"

"Won't do, Bob; your aunt ran away, I know, and so did my dear, old grannie; but it won't do. Pa would catch us, and off we go to Boulogne, or somewhere else, and I shall have to be Mrs. Titus Tomkins within the week—Ugh!"

"Well, then, Tiny, I must think of something else, for your governor won't hear of me, I know, though I shall come into my own in a twelvemonth; meanwhile, you won't be your own mistress for another four years, and that old beast will force you to marry that humbug Tompus Tightkins, or whatever his lovely name is—By jove, I have it; I'll go and ask Charley Jones' advice; he's a lawyer you know—"

"Lor, Bob, it's half-past seven, and Pa will be waiting for his tea—shan't I just catch it—what must I say? Good-bye, dear. Oh! how tiresome those sharp ends of your moustache are. . . ."

FYTTE II.

"How d'ye do, Charley? Busy, eh?"

"No, not to you, Bob, sit down and tell me what it is—tenant bolted—Smith 'shot the moon,' eh?"

"No, Charley, worse than that. Old Clare insists on Tiny marrying that Tomkins fellow, and I don't see how to prevent it; he raves at her so, and leads her such a dance that I expect she'll be worried out of her life, and give way at last for very peace sake. What in the name of good fortune shall I do?"

"Sit down, man, or else you'll wear out a fortune in your shoe-leather and my carpet to boot—sit down and let's think. H'm!—I have it! You've written her some letters, I suppose?"

"I should just think I have."

"Spoonery, I suppose, Bob?"

"Well, the usual sort."

"Any mention of marriage, Bob?"

"Yes, of course."

"Sit down and write. Now, Bob, fire away!—"

"My dear Sir."

"None of your larks Charley! Fancy, writing to him!"

"Do as I tell you—"

"My dear Sir,

I deeply regret that I have been so ill-advised as to cross your wishes with regard to your daughter, and still further that I have, contrary to your desire, which ought to have been law in so tender a relationship as that of father and daughter, addressed to Miss Clare, several letters.

I feel with you, that we are both too young to enter into any engagement as yet, and I therefore beg to inform you that I shall not again act contrary to your wishes. At the same time may I ask you to kindly return me the foolish letters that I have sent to your daughter.—I remain, my dear Sir, very truly yours,

"T. J. CLARE, Esq. ROBERT ACCRINGTON."

"O, blow it all, Charley! I'm not going to send that—"

"But I am, Bob. Leave it to me, I'll see it all right for you. Good-bye, you must hook it now, for I'm awfully busy—Good-bye!"

FYTTE III.

Martha, I tell you I won't hear of it. Pass me another egg and some more tea. Bob Accrington—pooh! Young ass—"

"But, Pa—"

"Hold your tongue, Emily! I know what is best for you. You will and shall be Mrs. Tompkins, this day six months."

"I wo—"

"Come in Susan."

"Letters please Sir!"

"One from that young idiot again. Hallo! 'foolish' 'please return letters.' 'Letters?' 'What letters?'"

"Oh, Thomas! here's a letter from Charley Jones; he says, 'You'll be pleased, I know, to hear of Bob Accrington's luck. He's going to marry Miss Aspley, whose maiden aunt has just died, leaving her a couple of thousand a year, and—'"

"What, Martha? Oh, that's the game is it? I'll spoil your fun for you, Master Bob! Go and fetch me those letters, child."

"Here they are Pa! but—"

"Run away child. Now Martha."

"Ha! 'stick to you, Tiny dear, through thick and thin; marry in spite of old Grumper—' Now, Martha, I'll tell you what I'll do. I'll put this directly into old Kasay's hands, and he shall enter an action for breach of promise. Master Bob, you shall squeak for this!"

FYTTE IV.

"So, Mr. Clare, the defendant promised your daughter marriage, did he?"

"Yes, sir, he did; and I thought—to begin at the beginning—"

"We don't want you to begin anywhere, Sir, but merely to answer the questions put to you. You swear that he promised your daughter marriage?"

"Yes, sir, he did!"

"Very well, Mr. Clare, and you consented, I suppose?"

"Well, Sir!—I, at first—"

"On your oath, Sir, you gave your consent?—I must know this, as your daughter was, and is still, a minor, I believe?"

"If I might—"

"Be good enough to answer my question—"

"Mr. Smith, you must answer the question of the learned Counsel explicitly."

"Yes, my Lord; I will endeavour to do so."

"Well, then, Sir, your daughter had, and has still, your consent to accept the proposal of the defendant for an immediate marriage?"

"Yes, Sir!"

"Then, my Lord, I submit that this case need go no further, as my client is perfectly willing to carry out his engagement."

AN ACCOMMODATING WITNESS.

In an assault and battery case tried before Justice Moses a day or two since, a Mexican was a witness. The business proceeded as follows:

Judge: You speak English, do you not?

Witness: Yes sir.

Judge: Well, you will please go on and tell what you know about the assault made by this man upon this woman.

Witness: Yes, sir.

Attorney: Ye ondersthand, sor, that ye air to go on now and schtate to the court and jury what ye know about this case—in yer own language, d'ye ondersthand?

Witness: Yes, sir, I understand perfectly well. You want me to tell the story in my own language.

Attorney: Exactly. Proceed, sor.

Witness: Este mojaré vauia mi la casa—

Attorney: What air ye sayin'?

Witness: Este hombre tombein—

Attorney: What is that ye air sayin'? What did the man do—what did he say?

Witness: Aque, senora, yo quere habla vste—

Attorney: (growing red in the face)—What air ye jabberin'—Italian, French, Dutch, or what?

Witness: I am speaking in my own language, sir, as you requested me to do—I am a Spaniard, sir.

Att. rney: I didn't mane for ye to spake yer own language whin I said for ye to spake yer own language. Ye can spake to me as I'm spakin' to ye, can't ye?

Witness: I can try, sir.

Attorney: Well, thin, thry, sor. Schtate to the court and the jury what ye saw of the assault.

Witness: Well, thin, yer honor, this man and this woman kim to me house, and sez the man to the woman, sez he, I want to spake wid ye, sez—

Attorney: What do ye mane, sor, by spakin' in that way?

Witness: Sure, sor, ye axed me to spake in the language ye use yerself, sor, an' sure I'm afther thryin to obleege—

Attorney: I don't want any sich language as that from ye, sor, I—

Judge: Just proceed in English, please, with what you saw of the affair.

Witness: With pleasure sir. I should have done so at first, hut the learned counsel seemed rather particular in regard to the language in which he wished me to give my evidence.

As the witness proceeded with his story the attorney sat mopping his brow with his bandana, and scowling black as a thunder cloud on all in the room.

WHAT HAPPENED AT A CHRISTMAS GATHERING.

BY THEOPHILUS TOMLINSON.

CHAPTER I.

I am getting an oldish youth now, but have not quite lost, happily for myself, all "sentiment." It is a very bad thing for any one to lose his "sentiment," because he becomes dry and hard, and callous, and cynical—indifferent alike to the charms of sympathy, or the attractions of the beautiful. We come across, however, constantly that kindly disposition and that genial temperament which are so comely in themselves, especially in elderly people, and which make us all keenly sensible of all that is loving and "leal;" of all that is fresh and fair, of all that is tender and true, in this rough battle of life.

Whenever you encounter such a person—whether an old boy or an old "gal permeated," as the swell writer says, by an "emotional psychology,"—cultivate him or her at once. Depend upon it your time will not be thrown away, nor your pains in vain.

Now I have not said this to puff myself. I am neither "laudator temporis acti"—at least not too much so—nor egotistical in any degree, but I merely think it well for special and weighty reasons me thereto moving, to praise "sentiment," because it is a main ingredient in this little story. I am like the eloquent speaker, who said once in proposing "The Ladies" (what stuff men will talk about women when they have a chance), "Sir, the man without sentiment is like a flat bottle of Bass!" There is a good deal of force, if not truth, in this illustration, commonplace and sensual as it may appear to some. It would possibly horrify Sir Wilfred Lawson, but pace that excellent man—though not a beer drinker myself—I believe that it is a generally admitted truth that a bottle of "Bass," clear and amber-coloured, well-up, has many charms, not only for a "thirsty soul" and to "soothe the savage breast," but for many very civilised bipeds to boot.

It was my lot to be invited to spend a Christmas—some time ago, alas! now—in what Mrs. Hemans terms one of the "ancestral homes of England." It was a fine old place, with a noble hall, and tapestried chambers, and a haunted room. It had many good features for inmates and visitors. Jemmy Miller, a young hero of the day, whom I met there, and of whom I knew something, said it was a "rum old place, and as for that haunted room," he added, "enough to frighten a fellow, you know; they say, my old boy, it is a woman, who walks in and out of your bedroom and looks at you, and points at you, and goes to the right about and vanishes into thin air. One of our fellows who was here said he had his bedclothes taken off; but between you and me and the wall, I think he had been 'liquoring up.' I like women in general, and one in particular, but I strongly object on principle to a female ghost. For you see," he concluded speaking confidentially, "you don't know what to make of her."

Now, I have quoted these frank words of one of the dramatic personæ because I think they well handle so spectral a subject.

Well, we had gradually assembled at the old hall; a large party, too, from east and west, and north and south. There were some male and female parents; there were some pleasant married couples, some very pretty girls, and plenty of young men, and altogether it was one of those Christmas gatherings you sometimes share in which are not without their sunny side; not so much a family party, as a miscellaneous collection of people who knew something of each other, and have met, not having a Christmas of their own to keep, to spend a merry Christmas in some hospitable mansion.

There were of course, one or two bores, male or female (what party is without them?), but still we had all reached our haven at last, one cold, raw, dreary, inhospitable day outside, and were welcomed warmly within, as was ever their wont, by our kind host and hostess. The ladies are all gathered in a magic circle, in the long picture gallery, round the pleasant fire; and the gentlemen, who formed the "outer ring," were standing or lounging about as men will do, receiving gratefully warm cups of tea from the hands of the ladies; and then, being a little thawed, we all begin to talk.

"I'm blessed," said old Jorum to me, "if I ever heard such a chattering. They declare women are magpies, but I'll back me to gossip against them."

But I don't think that old Jorum is quite impartial in the matter, being very much under the influence of Mrs. Jorum, who has made him give up all his bachelor opinions.

Young Miller comes up to me and says, sotto voce, "Deuced fine woman Mrs. Jorum, but she is better horse a long way;" and here the young rascal winks sagaciously at me and plunges into an animated conversation with the eldest Miss Barnstable.

After we had all talked and got cosy, and even yawned—and one or two actually dozed—we all dispersed inconspicuously to our rooms, whence, after having duly dressed for dinner, we re-descended into the hall. When dinner was announced we all were marshalled in order and marched in double file, a manoeuvre which required no little tact on the part of our hostess, who, however, was equal to the occasion. We were all, at last, comfortably seated in the cheery dining-room, and prepared to enjoy a good dinner. I had two very agreeable neighbours, as the Irishman said, "on each of my two sides," Mrs. Jorum being one of them, and so I took stock of the company, as I was doing so well myself and the "coup d'œil" was quite charming. Among other things which I noticed I saw that Jemmy was making himself very pleasant, as they say, to a very pretty young woman on his left, and was going ahead, she being, as the Germans say, evidently "zukommend." But I also thought I observed that this innocent flirtation was not at all agreeable to the fair Laura's right-hand neighbour, a ponderous and prosaic old gentleman—what mamma calls a "safe man"—who was smitten with that fascinating gipsy, and was evidently thinking, too, that his "kismet" had come at last. He seemed to disapprove of Jemmy's proceedings, and to consider him a very forward and offensive puppy—as these old boys always do when they get spooney and a youngster comes in their way. But the happy Jemmy, all unconscious or little caring for the angry glance of the indignant Jamieson—for that was his name, D. Jamieson, M.P. (old Jamieson as we called him)—went on making hay while the sun shone, and much to the content of the "damsel," though not equally so to her anxious mamma. On the left of Jamieson, again, was a not disagreeable widow, who was said to be well off but bad tempered, both of which qualities for once were true.

Jorum knew something about her, and had said to me, before dinner, in his curt sentences: "Bullied her husband, bullies her servant, often bad tempered old fellow forty-eight if she is a day!"

I know not why, but the demon of mischief or the goddess of "sentiment" suggested to me what a good thing it would be to couple together old Jamieson and Mrs. De Salis, and how needful it was and how proper it would be to help Jemmy and his Laura, two young spoons. Laura's mamma—a stout old party, with too low a dress for my taste, but plenty of diamonds—had been smiling when Jamieson talked to the perverse Laura, but had actually frowned, as mothers sometimes will do, when she turned a very ready ear to the insinuating and light-hearted Jemmy. Still I knew she was not a bad-hearted old party, and as I was also well acquainted with pater L'Estrange I thought I might do Jemmy and Laura a good turn, if things got as they say, "serious." So I said to myself: "I will try for once to make the course of true love run smooth in this rough world." And so I turned to my fascinating neighbour, Mrs. Jorum, for her countenance advice. I knew that she was the most genial and tender-hearted of beings, so I felt sure of her assistance and approval. Nor was I mistaken, for she at once, after I had explained to her my ideas on the subject, kindly and fully said that it was an "imperative call of duty to pair those four people properly;" and so we entered into a compact and concordat on the subject forthwith, then and there, signed, sealed, and delivered.

"It is quite clear to me," she also remarked, "that old Jamieson and the widow would just suit each other; and if she did bully Mr. De Salis, I don't think it will do old Jamieson any harm."

Of course I replied that I thought it would do him a great deal of good; and so we both assented to the general proposition that it was a duty we owed to society and sentiment in general, and to Laura and Jemmy in particular.

Dinner was over, the ladies retired, and the gentlemen drew near to the host's end. We had a pleasant scance, though I observed that Jamieson did not draw near to Jemmy, and that Jemmy did not talk to Jamieson. "Oh! woman," said I mentally, "what a wonderful institution you are; what fools you make of men, geese that they be!" When at last we went off, as a writer of an ill-regulated mind says, "to coffee and crinoline," I managed to get hold of old Jamieson, so as to let Jemmy take ground to the right and get a chair near Laura, to whom, I observed his advent seemed to afford unmitigated pleasure, if I might judge by those bright eyes of hers; and I began a most interesting and confidential conversation with Jamieson about Mrs. De Salis. I knew at once that the old rascal listened; that he was ready as the French say to "envisager" the whole question especially, as an old friend of mine used to say, if there are "Dibs" in the matter it is wonderful how they sweep away difficulties. So I said casually to him, "Fine woman, Mrs. De Salis, and wonderfully well off for a widow; £5000 a year jointure, £25,000 to do what she likes with, and a house of her own."

Old Jamieson's eyes twinkled. "Very agreeable woman," he slowly replied; very neat looking, and well preserved, and becomingly dressed. Her hair is so good—and its all her own! By the way, Tomlinson," he added immediately, "they say at the 'Ulysses' that she is a queer-tempered woman. Admiral Hutton was an old messmate of De Salis's in the Persephane, many years ago, and he told me—" and here Jamieson lowered his voice, "that De Salis told him that if he had known what a deuced bad-tempered old gal she was, he would never have slung his hammock alongside of hers."

"Oh!" I said, "Jamieson, you can't believe Hutton, who is dreadfully afraid of his own wife; and club stories are always canards. All I can say is, if I had your chance I would not throw it away."

"Do you really think that she is amiable and pleasant to get on with?" asked poor old Jamieson again; and so I ventured to remark that "I will not say that; and I admit that there is a flash in her eyes which says, 'look out for squalls.' But you know, Jamieson," I also added, you can find all that out before you put your head into the noose. If a chap can't find out before he marries whether his wife is good tempered or not, he deserves to be bullied-ragged all his life."

"What a pretty girl," he then remarked, "Miss L'Estrange is."

"So she is," I then said, "very pretty indeed; but she has not much money—more's the pity." This was not quite true, but I considered it, under the circumstances, a white lie. I knew that Jamieson, like a good many other men you meet in society, thought his wife ought to have money, and would not marry without money. A sordid view in my opinion, but if it is a popular view, and no doubt has some common sense at the bottom of it, as we cannot, it is quite clear, live on "sentiment," though it would be a very base and dirty world without it.

Jamieson evidently felt what I had said, and after a little went and sat down by the beaming widow, who rewarded him with one of her sweetest smiles.

"Yes, old girl," I thought to myself, "those smiles are like a calm at sea, too often only the forerunners of a gale. But 'sufficient for the day is the evil thereof.'"

Old Jorum said, as we were retiring for the night, "Jemmy will win in a canter, but I am afraid poor old Jamieson will be heavily handicapped in the race."

CHAPTER II.

I left off my story at the end of our first day at Compton L'Estrange for so the old manor-house was termed when the genial company were dispersing for the night. Some of the irreverent youth adjourned to the smoking-room, and when we elderly people had gone to our virtuous couches, were exhaling until early hours the fragrant (?) weed, and imbibing a mysterious compound termed "B. and S."

When we all assembled for breakfast in the morning, everybody seemed very cheerful except old Jamieson. I at first thought it was the mental conflict of the evening before between love in a cottage and love in "widow's weeds," but young Miller whispered to me, "Old Jamieson has been in the haunted room, and I am quite sure he has seen the ghost." But as we were all talking and eating and drinking at the same time, no one had any leisure time for anybody else's grievances or mishaps. And I often think that the breakfast is the one meal of the day when many of us are inclined to be sulky and savage, and resent enquiry, and dislike confidence. Even the "gal" you adore does not always look benign at breakfast time, though I do not know why. Perhaps it is that we noble animals require our "pabulum corporis," like those of a lower grade, and after feeding-time is over become civil and sociable and gregarious again. But this morning Jamieson's little melancholy was soon discovered by the buxom widow, who instantly began to pity and "prone" the old rascal, who, to say the truth, like most men, was not averse to be petted and fussed over. I observed some sagacious looks passing between Jorum and Jemmy, and after we had all left the breakfast-room and the men had got into their morning-room, Jorum began pumping old Jamieson.

"By the way, Jamieson," he said, "I hear you slept in the haunted room last night. Did you see anything?"

Jamieson, who did not evidently relish the cross-questioning, said hastily, "Oh no; I slept very well, and saw nothing and heard nothing."

"Well," replied Jorum, "I thought you was looking pale this morning. I have heard queer stories about that room. They say,—be went on, not pretending to notice old Jamieson's fidgeting about—" that a woman appears and gazes on you with a melancholy look. Come, Jamieson," added Jorum, "tell us the truth old boy; we won't peach. Did you see something last night?"

Jamieson, who was evidently a little nervous, at last said to Jorum, in a lower key than usual, "Well, it is a fact; I believe a woman did cross my room this morning early."

"What was she like?" said Jemmy Miller, in a tone no one could fail noting.

"Well," said old Jamieson, "I did not see exactly, for I was half asleep, and in a dreadful fright, but she looked like a woman in white."

"Stout or thin?" said Jemmy again.

Everybody laughed, and old Jamieson said, "Mr. Miller, none of your jokes on me. Its no laughing matter. I saw something, but what it was I can't say!"

The conversation dropped. But the story soon got out among the ladies, and I felt pretty sure from their low laughs that Master Jimmy Miller and Miss Laura knew something about the matter. However, the discussion ceased, and we spent the day as people usually do in a pleasant and comfortable country house. When we all got together for tea in the afternoon, it was quite clear to me that Jamieson and Mrs. De Salis, and Jemmy and Laura had paired off like Dame Durden's serving maids and men. And so I said to Jorum, "It all appears to be going on as one could most desire."

"Yes," she replied; "that ghost has done it. Mrs. De Salis has profited by the occasion, and has convinced Jamieson how undesirable is a bachelor's life, and how lonely and how unprotected, and how uncompanionable it is. I believe, if the ghost appears again, Jamieson will take and marry Mrs. De Salis off the reel, to keep off such nocturnal visitants. Whether he will be gainer or the loser by the transaction, time only can show."

"Well, but," I said, "what has the ghost to do with it?"

"Well, you see," she replied, looking most mischievous, "old Jamieson is, I believe, an arrant old coward, and Mrs. De Salis has pluck—I won't say brass—for two; and like all weak men—and you men are so weak, such poor creatures—he must lean on a woman. Now Mrs. De Salis is as bold as a lion, and fears no ghost and certainly has no alarm about a husband;" and here Mrs. Jorum laughed again her merry laugh. "Look at them," she said, "why those two old geese are getting quite tender. Well, I never!"

Certainly Mrs. De Salis had played her cards well, and Jamieson was enraptured.

Old Jorum came up and said, "It quite disgusting!"

"What is," asked Mrs. Jorum, "you most unsentimental of men?"

"Those two old donkeys making love in that way."

"Bless my soul," said Mrs. Jorum, "what creatures men are! As if it was not necessary to sweeten the black draught of life with a little coating of sugar or of gold. Jorum, I had expected better things of you, after all the instruction I have given you! Do you remember, Mr. Tomlinson, how loving a certain person was once upon a time?" I bowed impressively, and she went on: "And here he is, positively grudging poor old Jamieson a few short sweet moments of sunshine and quiet and happiness."

At this moment Laura and her Jemmy came up, looking supremely happy. Jemmy came to my chair and whispered in my ear: "All right, old boy—father and mother agreeable—and I am going to write to my friends."

"Oh! incautious maiden," said I to the blushing Laura, whom Mrs. Jorum was warmly congratulating. "You are really determined to land on the dangerous island of matrimony. Be warned and wise in time, ere it be too late."

The impudent young woman only laughed, and said, "Grapes are sour, you old and woe-begone bachelor."

And in due time we all separated to adorn the outer man, for the cheery and pleasant dinner. This evening also went off and went on, as they say, "most swimmingly." Jamieson was so engrossed by Mrs. de Salis that he took no heed of his left-hand neighbour; and Jemmy was so absorbed in Laura's sprightly conversation, that he even had scarcely an ear for Mrs. Jorum's merry sallies. But as she said confidentially to me afterwards, "a man in love is really all but 'off his nut.'"

It was quite clear to all now that old Jamieson was booked, and I confess, like a person suffering from a twinge of gout, I began to feel a qualm of compunction. And as we separated for the night, and the ladies had finished nibbling their biscuits and sipping iced seltzer water, with just a soupçon of cognac—only a soupçon I said to Mrs. Jorum; "I am really sorry for poor old Jamieson."

"I am not," that strong-minded young woman replied; "he wants money, and he will get it; he wants some one to manage him, and he will find what he wants. As he has made his bed, so let him lie; I don't pity him in the least." And I don't believe she did.

I fancied I heard the ladies tittering as they all tramped along, Mrs. De Salis lingering behind to say a soft farewell to Jamieson.

"You and the widow are going it," I said to old Jamieson when he returned to the table. When we all closed round the fire, before separating for the night, "Charming woman, Tomlinson," the old impostor said, "full of warmth of heart, and what a fond and sympathetic creature she is."

"Yes, old fellow," I thought to myself, you and she will do very well; you will get her money, and she will bully you. Such are the compensations of life." Sooner than this we all went our way, wishing each other "buona notte."

At breakfast the next morning poor old Jamieson was more silent than ever, and was evidently ill at ease, and even impervious to the attentions of the ready widow. Soon after breakfast was over, he went up to our kind hostess and told her that most important business called him away to town, much to the apparent astonishment of that amiable personage, to the consternation of the widow, and the evident suppressed amusement of Mrs. Jorum, Jemmy Miller, Laura, and Co. He gave no explanation, and avoided us all, and left by the London express.

Curiously enough, the widow, in the afternoon, also found that she must return to town; and the next morning she also left us, resolute and reticent.

I said to Mrs. Jorum when this second denouement took place, "Can you solve the mystery?" and that heartless woman laughed outright. "You had better, I think," she replied, knowingly, "ask Jemmy Miller and that young scapegrace his brother officer, Mr. Vesey."

But they would tell me nothing, and it was not until some time afterwards that I learnt the solution of the enigma. Mr. Vesey was the "woman in white," and had frightened old Jamieson out of the house and into the loving care of the bold widow.

Laura and her Jemmy were married after Lent was over in the following year, and are as happy as two geese of lovers can be. Mrs. Jorum is my authority for the expression. Jamieson married Mrs. De Salis, and is, they say kept in thorough good order. He has never seen a ghost since, though he probably sees far too much to his taste of a stout woman in white.

Mrs. Jorum and I have often talked over the matter since. She still contends that all is for the best, and that each of the two "spoons" is properly mated, and has got just what he or she wanted. She will not allow that Jamieson is to be pitied at all. "A man who makes up his mind," she says, to get money, must take things as he finds them. If he sets his heart on 'ochre' he must not be surprised if he finds it to be, after all, dross; and that, as he has outraged all true sentiment, he can't get his sweets without his bitters."

I agree with Mrs. Jorum. Though old and gouty, and full of soft memories of what happened to me, "Consule Pianco," I yet feel certain of this one thing: that marriages of affection afford the best prospect of earthly happiness; and that if society is disorganised, if its creed is sceptical, and its morals somewhat "gone astray," it is only because we choose to forget that, though hasty and improvident and incongruous marriages are very bad things for all concerned, a mercenary marriage is detestable, and a marriage without mutual affection is but a certain prelude to severed sympathies, and a mournful fiasco.

"Yes," says Mrs. Jorum, "my view is, that love and affection combined with a quantum suff. of the good things of life are far better than all the money in the world; and that if the heart does not go with the gold, and the dress which perishes with the using, and is not purified and elevated by tender sentiment and true sympathy, there is very little chance of mutual happiness for any two people in this world."

As I think that my readers will agree with the "dictum" of that charming person, who has made the best of wives, and is the most sincere of friends, and the cheer-est of good company—an honest, true-hearted, fascinating woman—I conclude my little tale with her eloquent peroration.

VATICANISM IN A NEW ROLE.

One of the least amiable characteristics of our times, is the growing intolerance of the advanced thinkers. They profess to be the most liberal men in the world and they are often the most dogmatic and denunciatory. They seemed called upon to celebrate their own change of opinion and emancipation from bigotry, by anathematizing those they have left behind, as fools or bigots. In their real zeal against theology, they have stolen the very thunders of the theological schools, and giving a living illustration of what used to be known as the "Odium theologicum." If we may judge by the deliverances of those who are loudest in their praises of science, the science of our day is rapidly changing places in this respect, with the polemic theology of former ages. The science of Sir Isaac Newton's day, if we may take that great expounder as a true type of it, was both modest and devout—modest, as having not yet comprehended all knowledge, and devout as being a willing worshipper in God's great temple. It had not then learned the vocabulary of the blasphemer, nor the boastful ipse dixits of wholesale intolerance. But now the tables were turned. The war is carried into Africa. Many of the popular leaders of modern thought, speak as men who have authority—the authority of science to back them. We should be sorry to think that true science is responsible for all their utterances. The theologians of olden times, especially in papal countries, felt that they had an infallible divine power behind them—that of the Church. They spoke ex cathedra, and they became intolerant. In like manner the advanced free-thinkers of our day, discarding the old church authority and installing in its place another authority, in their judgment of even higher infallibility—the absolute authority of science—have assumed the same arrogant tone, and adopted a similar language of intolerance towards those who will not accept their opinions. Standing, as they think on the vantage ground of superior knowledge, and emancipated alike from the traditions of men, and the alleged revelation of God, they speak with an air of magisterial and oracular authority, not surpassed by the inspired prophets of the Old Testaments. In reading some of their deliverances, especially on the favourite topic of ecclesiastical creeds and dogmas, one is forcibly reminded of the anathematizing clauses of the famous Council of Trent, or of the vatican decrees of Rome, when Roman supremacy was at its height.

This new vaticanism, which may be fittingly called the vaticanism of the latest school of scientific philosophy, is gradually creeping into our current literature, finding expression in lecture and magazine, and even making itself felt in our institutions of public education, both collegiate and rudimental. It may be met with in the quarterly review, and the daily newspaper, in the discussions of municipal Boards of Education, and even on commencement occasions in college and university. It is intolerant of all old systems and ideas. It is at war with all creeds, all churches, and all religious principles. Its aim is radical and destructive as it regards Christianity, and all institutions founded on Christianity. It holds Christianity, as it holds all other religions, to be simply a superstition and a delusion. Having as it imagines, excluded God from the universe, it seeks to exclude all traces of God from the minds of the people, and from the schools, were the children of the people are educated. It aspires to nothing less than to control the educational institutions of the country. Having, as it thinks, excluded God from the universe, it aims to exclude the Bible from the schools of education, and then to expurgate from all school-books every mention of God and the Book of God; and when that is done, to banish all Christian teachers, and along with them all Christian influences of every sort from the education of the people. It is a spirit which boasts liberalism, and wears the garb of free thought. But under its well-disguised liberalism and free thought it is the sworn foe of all evangelical and spiritual religion. It couples the burning zeal of a propagandist with the intense tolerance of a dogmatist of the middle ages.

A single example will be sufficient to illustrate the intolerant dogmatic spirit of this new style of vaticanism. It shall be taken from Chicago. One of the leaders of scientific materialism, who is a high official, exerting a controlling influence in our public schools, is reported in the papers as saying: "That man is a fool who does not know that the discoveries of modern science have utterly exploded all the teachings of the Bible."

One is amazed at the immense intelligence, not to say egotism, of a mind which could thus array its own individual judgment against the united judgments of millions of intelligent men all over the world (not to speak of the millions on millions through eighteen centuries) who have believed in this Book. Are they all fools? On what intellectual meat hath Cæsar fed that he should dogmatize? Who has given him the right, as with the irreversible decree of a Rhamdanthus, to pronounce sentence of death on the most cherished beliefs of mankind, and to tell millions of the most cultivated people in the world that they are fools if they do not know that the latest modern science has exploded all such beliefs? The wonder turns, as Chalmers would have expressed it, on the mighty process by which a single mind grew to know so much, and felt that it had the right to fulminate a sentence so dogmatic and so overwhelming against so many other minds.—Eclectic.

GRAND LODGE OF PENNSYLVANIA.

The Quarterly Communication of the R. W. Grand Lodge of Pennsylvania, on Wednesday, December 5th inst., was one of the largest meetings of this Grand Body ever held. This being the time designated by the Ahiman Rezon for the annual election of officers, the brethren from all parts of the jurisdiction were fully represented, by District Deputy Grand Masters, and the officers and Past Master of lodges. We were especially pleased to meet so large a number of eminent Masons from the interior and western portions of the State, among whom the Keystone numbers some of its firmest friends. The entire business before the Grand Lodge was conducted with the usual fraternal harmony.

The following brethren were elected Grand Officers of the Grand Lodge of Pennsylvania for the ensuing Masonic year beginning on St. John's Day next:

Bro. James Madison Porter, of Easton, R.W. Grand Master.

Bro. Michael Nisbet, of Philadelphia, R.W. Deputy Grand Master.

Bro. Samuel B. Dick, of Meadville, R.W. Senior Grand Warden.

Bro. Conrad B. Day, of Philadelphia, R.W. Junior Grand Warden.

Bro. Thomas R. Patton, of Philadelphia, R.W. Grand Treasurer.

Bro. John Thomson, of Philadelphia, R.W. Grand Secretary.

Trustees of the Girard Bequest, Bros. Sam. C. Perkins, George Thomson, Charles M. Prevost, Henry C. Howell and Jacob Roberts, M.D.

The remarkable unanimity with which all of these brethren were elected, upon the first ballot, to their respective stations and committees, was a matter of special congratulation from the Grand Master to the members of the Grand Lodge, and evinces the thorough fraternal harmony that pervades the Craft in this jurisdiction.

Reports were rendered by the committees on finance, on bye-laws, on appeals, temple and library committees, trustees of the Girard Bequest, commissioners of the sinking fund, and special committee on Ahiman Rezon. All of these reports were listened to with the closest attention, especially that of the committee on finance, which exhibited the healthy and prosperous condition of the monetary affairs of this Grand Lodge.

During the past year 15,000 dols. have been added to the Sinking Fund of the Grand Lodge. The Grand Lodge Charity Fund now amounts to 68,225 dols., of which 67,200 dols. is securely and profitably invested. The income of this fund for the past year was 4023 dols. The charge for the use of the Banquet Hall in the Masonic Temple, after St. John's Day, December 17th next, will be five dols. a night, instead of eighteen dols., as heretofore. It is expected and hoped that this reduction will tend to keep the lodges, when at refreshment, within the walls of the Masonic Temple, in our magnificent Banqueting Hall. No member of a subordinate lodge in Pennsylvania can hereafter be made an honorary member of another Lodge in this jurisdiction. The Grand Lodge Library Committee reported an increased use of the Library, and an addition of one hundred volumes during the past year, in which time its receipts in cash were 850 dols.; but the Committee deplored the little interest as yet manifested by Pennsylvania Masons in the Reprint of the Proceedings of this Grand Lodge, the first volume of which has been handsomely issued at 1.00 dols., to be followed by four or five others at the same price, completing the work. The present investments of the Girard Bequest amount to 61,000 dols., and during the past year 3500 dols. were applied to the use of the Stephen Girard Charity Fund. The Sinking Fund of the Grand Lodge now amounts to nearly 40,000 dols. The reported draft of the proposed new Ahiman Rezon was adopted, with but three amendments, viz.: (1) making the fiscal year end November 15th, instead of September 30th. (2) on page 52, striking out from, line 18 to line 4 which results in making three applications for initiation, and rejections, final in the lodge; (3) and on page 15, making the minimum fees for initiation and membership, in Philadelphia, 75 dollars, and outside of Philadelphia 40 dollars, instead of 50 dollars, and 25 dollars, respectively. Our readers may gather from the above, some of the more important results accomplished at this Quarterly Communication of the Grand Lodge. The session was quite a prolonged one, being from ten o'clock till two, and from four till eight, but all of the business was disposed of fully and satisfactorily.

We congratulate the members, and the entire Craft in the great Masonic jurisdiction of Pennsylvania, upon the able brethren who will govern them during the ensuing Masonic year, all of whom have the full confidence and fraternal regard of the entire brotherhood. Grand Master-elect, Bro. James Madison Porter, will preside over a united and prosperous Craft, and Grand Master Clark will retire from the Grand East, with the assurance that he has performed his difficult duties in all respects acceptably and well. That prosperity may ever attend and distinguish the Craft in this ancient and honourable Masonic Jurisdiction of Pennsylvania, is our earnest and sincere prayer, to which all of the brethren will respond. "So mote it be."—Keystone ROYAL SOCIETY.—At the meeting of the Royal Society, on the 13th inst, Sir Joseph Hooker in the chair, the following were elected foreign members:—Marcellin Berthelot, of Paris; Joseph Decaisne, of Paris; Emil Dubois Raymond, of Berlin; Adolph Wilhelm Hermann Kolbe, of Leipzig; Rudolph Leuckart, of Leipsic; Simon Newcomb, of Washington; and Pafnutij Tscheybyschew, of St. Petersburg. By this election the foreign list of the society is made up to its full complement of 50 members.

GOOD THOUGHTS.

We visited, a few weeks since, a lodge in a neighbouring jurisdiction, located in a pleasant village of two thousand inhabitants, that has kept up an unflagging interest in its meetings for nearly thirty years by adopting the method suggested. Try it. We frequently notice these complaints of inactivity and indifference. Our experience has taught us that they have their origin, primarily, in three causes: First, a surplus of lodges; secondly (and as a result of the first) too many members never adapted to Masonry; and, thirdly, an almost universal tendency by cultivated brethren to decorate our Temple with the drapery of antiquities, jurisprudence and refinement of controversy, rather than to exhibit their ability and skill in the use of "working tools;" or, more correctly speaking, in elucidating and enforcing "cardinal virtues," and the best methods in securing permanent prosperity to the Craft. For these reasons Masonry is having numerical success at the expense of its fraternal vitality. Is this desirable? This tendency to decorate the body of the Craft with old clothes, jurisprudence and polemics, regardless of the more important and unobtrusive equipment that furnish the elements of influence and strength, is bearing fruit of its kind.

Of what consequence is the age of Masonry to a man borne down with infirmities and reverses; struggling for a pittance that is to "keep the wolf from the door?" It is for these that Masons' labour, and but for them its existence would be a burden and not a pleasure. Will it "feed the hungry, clothe the naked, or bind up the wounds of the afflicted," to give the stricken a tract filled with the refinements of legal controversy, or that takes them back to enochian periods, Egyptian mysteries, the "essenes" of our Grecian Mythology? The first great care of Masonry is charity, brotherly love, fraternity; the second, these collateral questions, to which distinguished brethren are so prone to devote their entire ability. If we are to be an active force in human weal, the question of "hoary age," &c., should be of minor importance, and never permitted to become the tares that usurp the place of the wheat. The grand and significant question of the day is this: What is Masonry now? A man thoughtful of his kind, and who wishes to be identified with the Craft, will not trouble his brain with antiquities or abstractions. His estimate of our value to the world will be taken from the present of our relations to humanity! If it were possible or practical to expend all our energies in an effort to fathom the past, and place it beyond question that the lodge said to exist in Jerusalem was instituted by King Solomon, who, with his own hands placed his Masonic mantle upon distinguished craftsmen of our day, it could not be assumed that its parentage alone justifies the continuance of an organization that, for three thousand years, has not accomplished anything in the fraternal possibilities of the race. This is not the Masonry that men of sense seek.

Thought was never more active. Men will not be content with mere cumbersome, antiquated, theoretic institutions. They eagerly stretch forth their hands to grasp every development in art, science, political and moral economies; the consequence is that Masonry, with every other institution, must advance in the line of their own professions, if they expect to bring to their support the forces adapted to their growth and usefulness. If we all devote a life-time to the unearthing of antiquities and refining jurisprudence and ritual, its results will be, as we too frequently see to-day, a frigid, pompous excrement, that has but the semblance of a claim to Masonic parentage.

Brethren, it is much more to our credit to be careful with ourselves than to make any attempt to cover up faults. To shrink from their casutigation and exposure is but to reproduce vagries that have brought shame, confusion and disgrace to organizations that now, but by reasons of the great purposes of their formation would be a bar to the necessity of Masonry or other associations for the perpetuation and practice of principles that are at the foundation of human happiness. Is it not true that the more our attention is absorbed by externals the less we are inclined to cling to the central point of the mystic circle? Much light upon this subject leads us to the firm delusion that a large portion of the lethargy of which so much complaint is made is chargeable to a disposition to flaunt decorations, rather than to be engaged in the unostentatious application of that "cement that unites us into one family of friends," &c.—T. T. GURNEY.

FREEMASONRY.—Its beneficent power is exerted in a thousand ways, diffusing its blessing on all who come within its sphere. Though venerable with age and enriched by the history and traditions of a remote past, it exhibits to-day all the freshness of a renewed youth. Though the most conservative of human institutions, it adapts itself to every changing condition of life, and is in full accord with the newest developments of modern society. Based on the broadest foundation underlying the nature of man, no change of country or lapse of time can destroy its symmetry, impair its beauty, or weaken its influence. It comes to every man with a restraining, ennobling, and sustaining power. It tends to him its powerful aid in his endeavours for self-improvement. It encourages and assists him in his efforts for success, and in his hour of affliction and adversity comes with gentle sympathy to comfort his sorrows, and with ever ready help to relieve his needs. When illness invades his frame, the assiduous ministrations of Masonic brethren solace his sufferings, and when it pleases the Supreme Ruler to call him hence Masonry stands ready to soothe his final moments and tenderly commit his mortal remains to the bosom of mother earth, while his departure is comforted by the assurance that the orphan shall find a sure protection in her ever present care. Thus in life and in death our institution stands the bounteous source of blessing to mankind.

PARIS EXHIBITION OF 1878.

We call the attention of our readers to the following important letters in the Times of the 17th:—

The following are translations of letters received by the English Committee of the Paris Exhibition from the Ministry of Agriculture and Commerce:—

"Foreign Sections, Paris, Dec. 14, 1877.

"Monsieur le Secrétaire,—It is with deep regret that I noticed signs of a real hesitation among the future British exhibitors in consequence of the political disturbances in France. Beyond the Ministries which have lately succeeded one another in power, beyond our Government itself, there has always been France, in whose name the foreign nations have been invited, and she would never have failed to keep engagements of honour entered into by her. The Marshal President of the Republic has just done a patriotic deed in his recognition of the Parliamentary rights of the country. This act, which has led to the formation of a new Cabinet, taken from the majority of Deputies, will allay all misgivings. The Exhibition will open on the 1st of May, 1878, in undiminished beauty, thanks to the noble efforts made and about to be made by the foreign as well as by the French exhibitors. I am authorised to beg of you to make as public as possible the official assurance which I am happy to give you to-day.

"Receive, M. le Secrétaire, &c.,

"GEORGES BERGER,

"Le Directeur de Sections Etrangères."

"Paris, Dec. 14, 1877.

"My dear Mr. Owen,—Although Mr. Georges Berger has already answered by telegram and letter, I must also tell you personally how greatly I should have been disquieted and affected by the perusal of the letters that you forwarded to us this morning if the great political incident which has just now taken place here had not occurred most opportunely to restore matters to their normal condition. The institution of the Exhibition would in any case have prevailed over all obstacles. The sympathetic attitude of England and the character of the relations that we have the honour to hold with His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales were before us to point out our duty, apart even from all the obligations assumed by the French Government. It is France who has invited the nations of the whole world to the great festival of peace on the Champ de Mars, and France would in no circumstances have resigned her mission of international hospitality, however serious might have been her internal anxieties.

"Receive, my dear Mr. Owen, &c.,

"J. B. KRANTZ,

"The Senator Commissaire-General."

PRIVATE INQUIRIES.

We call attention to the following letter in The Times which deals with one of the greatest nuisances of the day, the abuse of private inquiry:—

Sir,—Will you allow me to make public through The Times the following occurrence? I do not add any comment; the grievance speaks for itself. One day recently a man came to this institution and addressed some question to the superintendent as to the business matters of the place. She referred him to the clerk, and an interview followed between the stranger and the two secretaries of the society. Subsequently the same man came and saw the accountants, from Messrs. Waddell's, who keep our books, and required to see the ledgers, &c. He brought no warrant from any society or individual as to this act, but represented himself as doing it "privately."

The officials here, having nothing to hide, answered all his queries. They were such in substance and manner as might be used to convict the criminals with whom we deal, but not those suited to any communication between trustworthy people.

The work of detectives in the employment of the Government is familiar to this society, but "private inquiry" we know nothing about. If the system is to be pursued in this country, we ought to learn it and treat it as it deserves.

I ask for the protection of the public against such proceedings on the part of person or persons unknown.

I am, Sir, your obedient servant,

SUSANNA MENEDITH.

Constitutions of the Ancient Fraternity of Free and Accepted Masons, containing the Charges, Regulations, E.A. Song, &c. A copy should be in the possession of every brother. It may be obtained for 2s. at the office of the Freemason, or will sent post free, to any part of the United Kingdom on receipt of twenty-five penny stamps. Address, Publisher, 198, Fleet-street, London.—ADVT.

Our esteemed Bro. W. J. Hughan, P.G.D., has been unanimously elected W.M. of Fortitude Lodge, No. 131, for the ensuing year.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Colds, Coughs, Shortness of Breath.—These corrective remedies are infallible for these pectoral complaints, which, neglected, often end in asthma, bronchitis, or consumption. The Ointment well rubbed upon the chest and back, penetrating the skin, is carried directly to the lungs, whence it expels all impurities. All the blood in the body constantly passes through the lungs, and there all noxious particles tending to produce disease, can be quickly, thoroughly, and permanently neutralised, rendered harmless, or ejected from the system. Holloway's Ointment and Pills perfectly accomplish this purification, and through the blood, thus cleansed, the influence of these wonderful medicaments reaches the remotest parts of the human body; and thus cures all all diseased action, whether internal or external.—ADVT.

MASONRY.

Freemasonry has its history—a history full of noble deeds, well worthy to be preserved and cherished through ages to come. She has survived the vicissitudes, the wars and revolutions of nearly thirty centuries; has witnessed the rise and growth of all the civilised nations on the face of the globe.

The principles of our Order inculcate honour, probity, justice, self-abnegation: they denounce, they condemn dishonour, falsehood, injustice and presumption. They teach mankind to live together as one great family, loving, cheering, true to one another as God, who is our Father, is true to us.

A man is never too old to practice brotherly love, relief, and never too old to bring a ripened judgment, a holy and consistent life to bear upon his younger brethren.

Masonry has ever been loyal to its own principles, characteristics and aims; it has sought to do no work but its own.

Amid all the strife which has sundered communities and deluged the world in blood, Freemasonry has been in the enjoyment of tranquil repose. It has been for all who were under the tongue of good report. Had it not been so, our affections would have turned from us as dishonouring to that Creator who kindled the splendid fireside of the sun and who poured the mighty floods from the hollow of his hand.

Masonry wears upon its forehead the gathered scars and wrinkles of a thousand years, and yet it is as vigorous to-day, as resolute of mortal purpose, as if it bore upon its frontal only the glittering dew of youth. The world is wide and the demand is great enough to employ the energies of all; but Masonry leads the column of that great army which followed the Church of Christ up and down, and to and fro, in the earth, conquering peace and fraternity among men.

Proverbs xi. 14; xviii 17; xvii. 28.

Masonry is a fountain of charity, whose streams go out to invigorate and gladden the sorrowful, to bear relief to famished poverty, to meander by the widow's cottage, and lave the feet of the orphan. Its crystal waters, cool, the fever of partizan passion, and baptize men of conflicting views into a great brotherhood of mercy.—Corner Stone.

LIVING STILL.

Confucius still enacts the law for China, Plato and the other great sages of antiquity, still rule and reign as kings of philosophy. The temple built by Solomon and our ancient brethren has sunken into decay. The Holy City is a mass of hovels under the domain of the Crescent, and the Holy Land is a devastated desert. The kings of Egypt and Assyria, contemporaries of Solomon, have past into oblivion and are forgotten, their histories are known as mere fables. The ancient Orient is a shattered wreck, bleaching upon the shores of time.

The wolf and the jackal howl amid the ruins of Thebe and Tyre. But the mysterious, quiet and peaceful Order, of which the son of a poor Phœnician widow was one of the Grand Masters, with the Kings of Israel and Tyre, has continued to increase in stature, strength and influence, defying the angry waves of time and the storms of persecution.

Age has not weakened its foundations, nor shattered its columns, nor marred the symmetry and beauty of its harmonious proportions.

This is Masonry, and she is still there. And we proceed onward through the sublime mysteries of its degree, well may it be said of her, too, "I have many things to tell you but ye cannot hear them now." And as one by one of her noble representatives pass away, assuming the robes of immortality, and receiving that last degree of investigation of the hereafter, let it be a lesson to us to deport ourselves in life as to entitle us to a peaceful death, so that finally it may be said of us, "Farewell faithful brother, here is the end of an upright life of toil devoted to the cause of justice, humanity and brotherly love, his life was free from the stain of sin, and his final rest as peaceful as that of the noblest dead."

Therefore let our watchword be, Faith, Hope, and Charity. Faith, that we may prove our fidelity to our highest and holiest ties and obligations; Hope, that we may rest content in the sublime belief of the promised hereafter, and Charity, that we may be charitable to all our fellow men, that he who doeth all things well may ultimately be charitable to us.

Thus we are taught by Masonry, these sublime attributes, Faith, Hope, and Charity, but the greatest of these is Charity. So saith the genius, Masonry.—Hebrew Leader.

SCOTCH FREEMASONS.—Mr. J. Ballantine, Grand Bard of the Scottish Grand Lodge of Freemasons, died in Edinburgh on Tuesday at the age of 69. Mr. Ballantine was the author of several works of fiction including "The Gaberlunzie Wallet" and "The Miller of Deanbush," the former of which attained great popularity. He was also the author of many favourite Scottish melodies, one of these being "Ilka blade of grass keeps its ain drap o' dew." Mr. Ballantine learnt the art of decorative painting in his youth, and for many years was head of the firm of Messrs. Ballantine and Son, glass stainers, of Edinburgh. He was a great admirer of the works of Burns, and did much towards forming the Burns Collection in the monument erected to the poet on Calton-hill, Edinburgh. He was for many years secretary to the Edinburgh Burns Club.—Times.

NOTES ON ART, &amp;c.

Titian's Quatercentenary is to be kept in January at Berlin, by an exhibition of copies, drawings, and prints of the Venetian's pictures.

Shakespearian representations are quite the fashion in Berlin this winter, and the historical plays are being given with enormous success at the Royal Theatre. The hundredth anniversary of the production of "Hamlet," in Germany, will be kept on Monday by a gala performance of the tragedy.

A quaint reproduction of the Manners of the Thirteenth Century is to be given by a play, the "Bonhomme Misère," to be brought out this week at the Paris Odéon. The play has been founded on an old legend, and the principal characters will be St. Paul, Misery, represented by an old beggar, and Death in the character of a young girl in white, crowned with myrtle, while the piece is to be got up after the paintings in mediæval missals, the scene taking place in a sort of reliquary or triptych, the wings of which will shut up after each act.

ANGLING.—Anglers generally, and Thames anglers in particular, will be glad to hear that a very influential meeting of nearly 120 gentlemen has been held in Reading for the purpose of forming an Association for protecting and improving angling between Mapledurham, and Sonning, and in the Lower Kennet and tributaries. There is hardly a finer stretch of water on the Thames for angling purposes than that just mentioned, and though much poached it still holds some very fine fish of all kinds. Every inch of the Thames should be protected by local associations, which conduce to the sport of the legitimate anglers of the working classes as well as to that of their richer brethren.

TECHNICAL EDUCATION.—The Executive Committee of the Livery Companies of London, formed to promote the establishment of a Technical University, met on Thursday to consider the reports which had been drawn up for their guidance. At the last meeting of the committee it had been determined to procure reports from qualified persons as to the best means of utilising the funds available in the promotion of technical education. The following were accordingly requested to prepare such reports:—Professor Huxley, Sir William Armstrong, Captain Douglas Galton, C.B., Colonel Donnelly, Mr. H. T. Wood (assistant-secretary of the Society of Arts), and Mr. G. C. Bartley (of the Science and Art Department). Dr. Lyon Playfair was also asked, but his absence in America obliged him to decline. These reports were taken into consideration by the committee, and it was decided to meet again on the 17th prox. for their further discussion.

The companion obelisk to Cleopatra's Needle, promised to the Americans, is not looked on with much favour across the Atlantic. With the example of our failure in the matter of transport before their eyes, the Americans are unwilling to spend either labour or money on the monument, and an irreverent New York correspondent suggests that the New Yorkers have the makings of a pyramid at home without sending to Egypt. There is an old reservoir close to Fifth Avenue which would answer admirably if it were carried up 200 feet to a point, and adorned with a few mummies from the museum.

MARLBOROUGH HOUSE.—Mr. Rawlinson, C.B., writes to the Builder:—"All old drains and all tainted subsoil are being removed from the basement of Marlborough House. Old drains are also removed and new drains are constructed, externally; all sink-pipes pass into external traps externally ventilated. All timber floors are being taken up, and the ground surface examined, cleansed, and covered by gin. of Portland lime concrete. These floors will be free from any refuse underneath, and will be fully ventilated. Where the old drains have been removed new clean gravel is substituted, and the surface then concreted. The entire basement is, in fact, being examined, freed from tainted material, and is also being concreted. . . . No pains nor expense are being spared by the Office of Works to free Marlborough House from a suspicion of sewage taint; and when it is again handed over to his Royal Highness, I believe it will be as complete in all sanitary works as a house can be made."

A curious and instructive case of "the infinitely little" (says the Birmingham Post) occurred at the meeting of the Birmingham Board of Guardians. The dietary of the workhouse is regulated by authority—the authority being the Local Government Board. The guardians desired to alter it; for they thought that currant pudding would be more agreeable to the children than suet pudding, a delicacy against which the human stomach sometimes revolts. But red tape would not permit this very harmless alteration without the sanction of the controlling authority, so the guardians had to ask leave from the board in London. On Wednesday, amidst much laughter—rather, we should think, of the kind which is called sardonic—the reply was read. Written on highly official paper, with the wide official margin, and with the regulation official number in the corner, it ran as follows:—The Local Government Board approve of the proposal of the guardians of the parish of Birmingham to give the children in the workhouse currant pudding occasionally instead of suet pudding. With regard, however, to the formula of the currant pudding, the board are advised that a little sugar should form one of the ingredients of the pudding, to make it more palatable.

The Annual Exhibition of works of art by the Students of the Queen's Institute in Molesworth-street, Dublin, was opened on Tuesday last, December 18th, by the Duchess of Marlborough.

A SHAKESPEARE SEASON.—The Theatre states that early in January the whole of Shakespeare's historical plays, from Richard II. to Richard III. inclusive, are to be played at the Vienna Burgtheater on consecutive evenings. The hundredth anniversary of the production of the first German version of Hamlet in Berlin will be commemorated by a special performance of the tragedy on the 17th inst. in that city.

THE BRITISH MUSEUM.—Considerable progress has been made towards the settlement of the much vexed question of the remuneration of the officers of the British Museum. The scheme will be in general accordance with the published correspondence between the Museum authorities and the Treasury. The salaries of keepers of departments are to begin at £650 per annum, and rise to £750 after five years' service. The assistant-secretary is to be paid £600; the salaries of the present assistant-keepers are to begin at £500, rising to £600 after five years' service. The assistants are to be divided into two classes; the first, or upper class, with salaries commencing at £250, to rise by annual increments of £15 to £450. The salaries of the second, or lower class, to begin at £150, and rise by annual increments of £10 to £240. The scheme is to be retrospective, from the 1st of April last inclusive. The assistants are most of them opposed to the new plan.—Athenæum.

ASSYRIAN ANTIQUITIES.—Permission has been at length obtained by Mr. Rassam to prosecute the search for Assyrian remains at Kouyunjik which was unfortunately suspended by the untimely death of Mr. George Smith, of the British Museum.—Athenæum.

The Gloucester Chronicle says that the accounts of the late Three Choirs Festival have been made up. The total expenses were £2634. 19s. 9d. The sale of tickets realised 4094. 17s. 0d., thus leaving a deficiency of 1694. 2s. 9d. A call of 1s. has therefore been made on each of the 171 stewards, and this, with a balance of 324. 7s. 4d. from the festival of 1874, leaves 344. 4s. 7d. to be carried forward to the account of the next Gloucester Festival. The Chronicle is unable to state the exact sum to be paid to the Clergy Charity, but it will amount to between 1800l. and 1850l., the largest sum by far ever derived from any festival.

NEW ROYAL ACADEMICIAN.—At a General Assembly held last evening, the following gentlemen were elected Royal Academicians: Mr. W. G. Orchardson, painter; and Mr. K. Norman Shaw, architect.

THE ROYAL BARON OF BEEF.—The Royal baron of beef will be supplied this year by Messrs. Webb and Sons, of Windsor, purveyors to Her Majesty. It will be cut from a very fine shorthorn, bred and fed by Her Majesty at Shaw Farm, Windsor, under the care of Mr. Tait, the steward. The joint will weigh about 300lb. It will be cooked at Windsor Castle, and will be forwarded to Osborne, to be placed on Her Majesty's sideboard on Christmas Day.

THE BANFF NATURALIST.—Mr. Thomas Edward, the Banff naturalist, is engaged in collecting further reminiscences of his life, which, with the addition of various natural history notes, will form a supplement to the life already published.—Academy.

English archaeologists in Rome have lost a scholarly representative by the death of Mr. Strother Smith, fellow of St. Catherine's Hall, Cambridge, author of a recent work on the Tiber.

The Athenæum states that it is proposed to restore the roof of Southwell Minster to its original pitch, to crown the western towers with the spires, and to replace Bernasconi's plaster choir screen with a grille.

In 1851 the purchase-money of the London Water Companies would not have exceeded 6,000,000l. In 1865 the valuation had increased to 12,000,000; and the present estimate is roundly stated at 25,000,000l.

PROPOSED AUSTRALIAN EXHIBITION.—Australian papers state that arrangements are in progress for the international exhibition proposed to be held at Melbourne in 1879, and the scheme has the approval of the Legislative Assembly. The Governor, speaking recently at Stawell, said that the proposal could not fairly be described in any quarter as premature, if regard were had to the wonderful progress which the Australian Colonies have already achieved. In 1879 the aggregate public revenue of the several Australian Colonies will exceed 16 millions sterling, while their trade, including exports and imports, will amount to nearly 90 millions in value. In other words, Australasia, as a whole, could already take her place among the 10 or 12 great nations of the world in point of the value of their trade and general importance, for there are only seven or eight nations with a larger public revenue than 16 millions. The three powerful colonies of Victoria, New South Wales, and New Zealand have each a revenue and trade which would place them on a higher scale than ancient European kingdoms like Sweden, Denmark, and Saxony. The single colony of Victoria, with its yearly revenue of 4½ millions, is already equal in wealth and importance to the kingdom of Portugal, while Melbourne is considerably above Lisbon in wealth and trade. The success of the Exhibition, he pointed out, would depend in a great measure upon the cordial co-operation of the mother country and the sister colonies of Australasia. His Excellency further stated that he was in correspondence with the Secretary of State for the Colonies, who was anxious to give every possible assistance, and that the presence of the Prince of Wales was all that was needed to render the Exhibition a triumphant success. He expressed himself confident that His Royal Highness, if invited by both Houses of Parliament, might be induced to come out to open the Exhibition, and he was certain he would be received with enthusiasm.

THE GRAND ORIENT OF FRANCE.

The following is the actual text of the circular of the "Conseil de L'Ordre," announcing the result of the last untoward meeting of the Grand Orient to the lodges of the obedience:

Le Conseil de l'Ordre vient d'adresser à tous les Ateliers de l'Obéissance la circulaire suivante:

"T. C. FF.—L'Assemblée générale du Grand Orient de France, dans sa session 1877, a adopté diverses résolutions que nous avons la faveur de porter à votre attention. Vous trouverez au compte rendu des travaux de cette Assemblée la discussion qui a précédé ces résolutions et les considérations qui ont déterminé les votes du Grand Orient. Ces résolutions, promulguées par le Conseil de l'Ordre, dans sa séance du 24 de ce mois, sont les suivantes:

"Premièrement.—Modification à l'art. 1er de la Constitution dont la rédaction a été et reste arrêtée dans les termes suivants:

"Art 1er.—La Franc-maçonnerie, institution essentiellement philanthropique, philosophique et progressive, a pour objet la recherche de la vérité, l'étude de la morale universelle, des sciences et des arts, et l'exercice de la bienfaisance.

"Elle a pour principes la liberté absolue de conscience et la solidarité humaine.

"Elle n'exclut personne pour ses croyances.

"Elle a pour devise: Liberté, Egalité, Fraternité."

We need hardly repeat how deeply we, in common with all Anglo-Saxon Freemasons, deplore this hurtful and revolutionary proceeding.

TECHNICAL EDUCATION IN THE MINING SCHOOL.

Teacher: First class in mining stand up. Now, what is syenite?

First boy: It is a rock that would be granite if it contained mica instead of hornblende.

Teacher: Correct. Now, what is granite?

Second boy: It is a rock that would be syenite if it contained hornblende instead of mica.

Teacher: Correct. What is a diorite?

Third boy: It is syenite with the quartz of syenite left out.

Teacher: Correct. What is a shaft?

First boy: A tunnel stood on end.

Teacher: Correct. What is a tunnel?

Second boy: A shaft lying flat on its back.

Teacher: Correct. What is an incline?

Third boy: Its a hole in the ground that would be a shaft if it stood straight up and a tunnel if it lay flat down.

Teacher: Correct. Report yourselves in San Francisco for the first vacancies that occur in mines that are taking in regular assessments.—Virginian Paper.

"PASS-WORDS FOR THE CRAFT."

[Lines quoted by the late GEORGE DAWSON.]

"What matters it to us who are immortal,
Which side the grave we stand on, when we know
That what the world calls death is but the portal
Leading to life again. 'Tis but to go
Across a gurgling river in the dark,
Hanging on God; and—but a moment so,
Till we are over, when we disembark,
And enter life afresh. 'Tis basely wrong
We should so meanly understrike the mark
As measure life by years, and all along
Busy ourselves arranging little schemes,
That death will dash to pieces, when we might Be building far above these earthly dreams,
Houses that stand for ever in God's light."

TRESTLE-BOARD.—"As the Operative Mason erects his temporal building in accordance with the design laid down upon the Trestle-board by the master workman, so should we, both operative and speculative, endeavour to erect our spiritual building in accordance with the designs laid down by the Supreme Architect." What is here Masonically designated the "Trestle-board," artists, and poets, and philosophers denominate the Ideal. All things that exist, save God, are created by the ideal, or are reflections of it. The visible creation is God's ideal, wrought out in material forms; and all the works of man are copies of ideal types which he discovers on the Trestle-board of his soul. Every nation exists according to an ideal which is reflected in its life, its institutions, and manners; and the life of man as an individual is high or low, as his ideals of life are high or low; or, in other words, it is fashioned after the designs that are traced on the moral Trestle-board. Societies, also, are constructed from the ideal. If a society have no ideal it can have no influence, and can exist but for a brief period, because it has no ability to arouse enthusiasm or command the respect and allegiance of men.

There is no doubt that our ceremonies and mysteries were derived from the rites, ceremonies, and institutions of the ancients, and some of them from the remotest ages. Our morality is deduced from the maxims of the Grecian philosophers, perfected by the Christian revelation. The institutors of this society had their eyes on the progressive advancement of religion, and they symbolised it, as well in the first stage as in the succeeding Orders of Masons. The knowledge of the God of nature forms the first estate of our profession; the worship of the Deity, under the Jewish law, is described in the second stage of Masonry; and the Christian dispensation is distinguished in the last and highest Order.—Hutchinson.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF NORTH WALES AND SHROPSHIRE.

On Friday, 14th inst., one of the largest Masonic gatherings ever held in the Province of North Wales and Shropshire took place at Shrewsbury, on the occasion of the Annual Grand Lodge which this year was held in the County town, in the lodge room of No. 262, at the Lion Hotel. The great interest attaching to the meeting was the presentation to Sir Watkin Williams Wynn, Bart. M.P., of an address of congratulation on his completing the twenty-fifth year of his rule over the Province as its Grand Master; accompanied by a "Sir Watkin Presentation" to the Masonic Boys' School, which is to be purchased at a cost of £530 by the private contributions of the brethren of the various lodges.

The province, as at present constituted, was formed in 1852, and Sir Watkin was its first Grand Master. He was installed on the 9th of March that year by the Hero of Bhurtpore, Lord Combermere, in the presence of a distinguished company of Masons. That ceremony over, the new Grand Master invested his officers—sixteen in number—of whom only four are living, and three of whom—Messrs. J. P. White, S. Wood, and T. Onions—were present on Friday, the absent one being the Rev. P. G. Bentley, Sir Watkin (as we learn from the chapter on "Freemasonry" in the gossiping book about his family, called "Wynnsteyn and the Wynns") was initiated into the mysteries of the Craft at Chester in 1851, in a lodge which contained amongst its members the late Lord Chief Justice Jervis and other distinguished brethren.

With the exception of Bro. John Fawcett, who was installed Grand Master of Durham in 1847, and Bro. the Rev. Dr. Bowles, who was appointed to the same office in Herefordshire in 1848—and who would have been present on Friday had his health permitted—Sir Watkin has been in office longer than any other Provincial Grand Master in England; and he has probably done more work than any of them. During his rule the following lodges have been consecrated:—Admaston 1852 (removed to Wellington in 1857), Ludlow 1853, Carnarvon 1854, Llandudno 1858, Welshpool 1864, Llangefni 1866, Oswestry (St. Oswald's) 1866, Ironbridge 1866, Denbigh 1867, Wrexham 1871, Bala 1872, Oswestry (Fitzalan), 1872, Mold 1874, Amlwch 1874, Portmadoc 1874, Market Drayton 1876, Brignorth 1876, Llandidnoes 1876, Newtown 1876, Rhyl 1877, Towyn 1877. Sir Watkin has also performed other Masonic work; such as laying the corner-stone of Trinity Church, Llandudno, in 1864; opening the Masonic Hall in the same town, in 1867; and laying the foundation-stone of the Oswestry Cottage Hospital, in 1869.

The attendance of the Provincial Grand Lodge on Friday included, in addition to the Grand Master, Bro. W. Bulkeley Hughes, M.P., and several visitors, including the R.W. Bro. Charles Hunter, P.P.G.M. of Aberdeenshire East, and P.G.W. of Greece. The names of the brethren of the Province (who were either present or had signified their intention of being so) are, as far as we can supply them, given below.

The brethren present were: Bros. Bunny, Blockley Deakin, Evans, P.P.A.D. of C., Harries Hanky, P.P.G. Reg., Lea Lewis, P.M., Morris, W.M., Moores Newnes P.A. Tyler, Oliver, P.P.G. Reg., Robbins, Richards Spraggon, Warren Thompson Andrew P.G. Stew., Bodenham, P.M., Barr, Bagnall, Brightwell, P.P.G.S.W., Blakeway P.P.G.J.W., Clarke, J. W. Chandler P.P.G. Reg., Clement, J. Sides, Davies, Downes, Doyaston, Forrest, P.P.G. Org., Hickman Lowcock, Newman, W.M., Onions, P.P. Reg., Patchett P.P.J.W. Cresswell Peete, P.M., Randal, P.P.G.S.W., Redman, P.M., Stuart, Smith, Wakeman, P.P.S.W. Oxon, Withers, White, P.G. Treas., S. Wood, P.P.G.J.W., Hide P.G. Tyler, R. W. O. Withers, Cameron, Elliott, Peters, P.P.G.S.W., Acton, Adams, P.M., Bates, P.M., Brookes, Felton, Hunt, Henshall, King, Millington, P.G.S.B., Trevor, Parkins, Poole, J. Smith, Webb, P.M., Van Straubenzee, Sydney-Boucher, Ringers, T. Roberts, Bretton, P.P.G.D. of C., Banks, F.G.S. of W. Hazledine, Roden, P.P.G.S.W., Brown, Calender, P.P.A.D. of C., David Pryce Owen, P.M.; Withy, P.M.; T. Lloyd Kyffin, P.G. Chaplain, Lister, Bryce Smith, Burton, P.M.; Christian Corfield, J. C. Edwards, Homfray, G. Owen, P.G.S.W.; Oswald, Askew Roberts, W. H. Spaul, P.G. Sec.; J. Thomas, P.G. Stew.; E. Wood, P.G.D. of C.; Walker, P.P.G.S. of W.; J. Davies, Jesse, Lloyd, Sisson, P.G. Reg.; Lloyd Williams, P.G. Pur.; Benson, Oswald Bury, Cooper, Howell Davies, Edisbury, Eytton, Jones, Low, P.G. Stew.; Lloyd, Lovett, Morris, J. C. Owen, E. Smith, S.W.; J. Williams, Dr. Beresford, P.M.; J. Williams, Adams, Corbett, Algernon Potts, P.M.; Salmon, P.G.J.W.; Roose, Ginders, Jones, G. G. Warren, Elliott, Foulkes Jones, Danily, Morgan, J. Owen, Chitty, Foxall, Nock, Hubert Smith, H. L. Southwell, Trevor, Coxhead, Foulkes, Gibbank, J. E. Roberts; and Parmetor, P.P.G.D.

Provincial Grand Lodge was opened at four o'clock, and, we rejoice to say, we have not for some time seen our Grand Master looking so well. This was a matter of general congratulation amongst the brethren, after the long and serious indisposition which Sir Watkin has suffered. After the usual formalities had been completed, minutes read, and finances discussed, the work of presentation was performed.

Bro. W. Bulkeley Hughes, M.P., D.P.G.M., stepped forward, album in hand, and said:—Right Worshipful Grand Master, I am deputed to be the organ of the province to present to you an illuminated album, descriptive of the sentiments of your province, and which will contain the names of a great number—I hope nearly of all—the brethren of North Wales and Shropshire. It contains an address, which describes the sentiments expressed, and the feelings entertained throughout the province for you, sir, personally, and in acknowledgment of your services as Grand Master for five-and-twenty years. For myself, together with many in the room, I can say that each succeeding year has only added to the sense we entertain of your worth, and we all wish to express to you the deep feeling we entertain of the value and the privilege the province has enjoyed in being for so long a period under such a chief. No one amongst your countrymen and admirers can, more than I do, sir, feel pride in being selected to present this address, and I beg you, Sir Watkin, to accept it with the hearty good wishes of the whole province.

The P.G. Sec., Bro. Spaul, then read the address, as follows:—

"To Sir Watkin Williams Wynn, Bart., and Member of Parliament for the county of Denbigh, the Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Master of North Wales and Shropshire—

"We, the undersigned officers of the Provincial Grand Lodge, Masters, Past Masters, Officers, and Members of the Lodges in the province of North Wales and Shropshire, beg to offer you our hearty congratulations upon having presided over this province for a quarter of a century. To commemorate this happy event we propose to establish a presentation for this province to the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys at Wood Green, and we ask your permission to call it the "Sir Watkin Presentation." During the above period your rule has been such as to give the greatest satisfaction to all Masons, and has been so highly appreciated that Masonry has largely increased and flourished. The fact also that you have personally attended the consecration of twenty-one lodges in the province is sufficient proof of the great interest you have taken in the Craft, and the prayer of every brother is that the G.A.O.T.U. will long spare you to continue that happy rule which has endeared the name of Sir Watkin Williams Wynn to each and all who have been connected with the province since it was formed in 1852, and of which you were the first Grand Master."

Bro. Sir Watkin Williams Wynn, Bart. M.P., P.G.M., in reply, said—Bro. Bulkeley Hughes and brethren, I am exceedingly honoured by this last tribute of your kindness. Twenty-five years ago I was installed in this room. It seems a long time since, but it has included many happy days spent amongst you, and I hope I may be permitted to spend a few more. With the exception of our esteemed old friend, Dr. Bowles (who would have been with us to-day but for his age), and Bro. Fawcett, I am now the oldest Grand Master in the kingdom. During my career I have had difficulties in my path in giving away the Purple, but my object has always been to do justice to brethren who were entitled, and you must bear with me if I have omitted some who have merited it. I can assure you my object has always been to confer it on such as would benefit the Craft. I beg again to thank you for your kindness. The Deputy Grand Master especially do I wish to thank for his kind words. It is to him and to me a matter of deep feeling how many familiar faces we have seen in the twenty-five years, at our lodges, who are now gone from among us, and their faces will be seen no more here, but we trust they have gone to that place where those who here have acted out the principles they professed as Masons will obtain their reward.

The album (which had been entrusted to Messrs. Woodall and Venables, of Oswestry, to execute), is bound in Morocco, Masonic colour; with Sir Watkin's Arms emblazoned on the side, lined with silk, the leaves being vellum. So far only the address and the Grand Master's heraldic shield have been emblazoned, but the book is to contain water colour drawings of Sir Watkin's seats, and the lists of names of all the brethren who subscribed to the School Presentation; consequently it is desirable that any brethren who have not yet intimated their wish to subscribe will do so at once to their respective Masters, or to the Grand Secretary or Grand Treasurer.

At the conclusion of this interesting episode the ordinary routine business was resumed.

On the motion of Bro. Rodin, seconded by Bro. Bulkeley Hughes, a sum of £50 from the Grand Lodge funds was voted to the widow of the late Bro. Dr. Goldsbro'

On the motion of Bro. White, seconded by Bro. Blakeway, £100 of the funded money of the Grand Lodge was voted to the purchase of a vice-patronship in the Masonic Boys' School; and £50 as part of the larger sum for the same in connection with the Girls School.

The Prov. Grand Master, in the name of the Prov. Grand Lodge, presented Charity jewels to Bros. Algernon Potts, W.M. 1477; and R. J. Sisson, P.P.G. Reg., who had qualified to wear them by serving two Stewardships to the Masonic Charities; and to Bro. W. H. Spaul, P.G. Sec., who had served five Stewardships.

The Prov. Grand Master invested the following brethren as the Prov. Grand Officers for the ensuing year:—

W. B. Hughes, M.P., 755	D. Prov. G.M.
E. M. Wakeman, 262	Prov. G.S.W.
Lloyd Williams, 1143	Prov. G.J.W.
Rev. A. J. Van Straubenzee, 601	Prov. G. Chap.
Rev. J. S. Boucher, 606	Prov. G. Chap.
J. P. White, 262	Prov. G. Treas.
G. G. Warren, 1575	Prov. G. Reg.
W. H. Spaul, 1124	Prov. G. Sec.
E. Andrew, M.D., 262	Prov. G.S.D.
J. Thomas, 1124	Prov. G.J.D.
W. Low, 1336	Prov. G.S. of W.
E. Wood, 1124	Prov. G.D. of C.
R. T. Phillips, 1488	Prov. A.G.D. of C.
J. L. Griffiths	Prov. G.S.B.
J. H. Redman, 262	Prov. G. Purs.
J. C. W. Lister, 1120; J. O. Bury, 1336; A. McMillan, 384, John Corbett, 1477; W. Spraggon, 117; W. Burton, 1336	Prov. G. Stwds.
J. B. Hide, 262	Prov. G. Tyler.
B. Newnes, 117	Prov. G.A. Tyler.

Bros. W. Blakeway and J. Bodenham were appointed Auditors

At the close of the Grand Lodge the brethren sat down to a dinner at the Lion Hotel. The usual toasts were given and responded to; on this occasion with unusual additions; as for instance, in the health of the Treasurer, which included congratulations on his "completing the twenty-fifth year of office." Bro. White is the only officer in the province who has for the quarter of a century of Sir Watkin's rule been annually invested by the Grand Master. To Bro. Forrest, P.P.G. Organist, the music of the evening was intrusted, and he very successfully accomplished his task by obtaining the services of Mr. Rawlings, who engaged Messrs. Lea, Probert, and Millward to sing, accompanying them on the piano.—Oswestry Advertiser.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

CONFIDENCE LODGE (No. 193).—On the 10th inst., the installation meeting of this old-established lodge was held at Anderson's Hotel, Fleet-street. Amongst those present were Bros. Reed, W.M.; King, P.M., acting S.W.; H. Leah, J.W., W.M. elect; Warne, P.M., Treas.; Shackell, P.M., Secretary; Biddle, S.D.; Footitt, P.M., J.D.; and Past Masters Webb, Kershaw, and Bonney. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, the W.M. raised Bro. Holt, passed Bros. Silvester and Pye, and initiated Mr. R. W. Roxby most ably. The ceremony of installing Bro. Leah into the chair of K.S. was then proceeded with by Bro. Reed, who appointed Bros. King, P.M., as S.W.; Bonney, P.M., as J.W.; and S. Webb, P.M., as D.C., to assist him in the working, which was carried out most impressively; the rendering of the addresses being marked by more than ordinary elocutionary ability. The officers appointed and invested for the ensuing year were Bros. Biddle, S.W.; Footitt, P.M., J.W.; Warne, P.M., Treas.; Shackell, P.M., Secretary; James, S.D.; Lemare, J.D.; Hall, I.G.; S. Webb, P.M., D.C.; and H. Webb, P.M., W.S. Previously to the closing of the lodge a vote of thanks was unanimously passed and ordered to be entered on the minutes in recognition of the able manner in which Bro. Reed, I.P.M., had installed his successor. The lodge was then duly closed, and the members and visitors, to the number of nearly 90, adjourned to the Pillar-room, where a most elegant banquet was served by Bro. Clemow. Amongst the visitors were the following, Bros. Edmonds, G.S. Lodge; Maidwell, 27; Criswell, 30; Newbon, 46; Salter, 72; T. C. Walls, 141, &c., P.G.O. Midx. (Freemason); Beauchamp, 167; Rawley and Batram, 174; Cohen, P.M. 185; Walters, 188; Godfrey, late 193; Laxton, 511; Anderson, 554; Hesketh, 711; Morris, 901; Gosheron, 902; Johnson, 933; Lever, 1178; Jupe, W.M. 1287; Fortescue, 1306; Hill, P.M. 1366; Morgan, 1385; Goggs, 1527; Clarke, 1567; H. W. Clemow, 1589; Broniley, 1658; Western, 1693; and A. Macpherson, 141, Scotland. At the termination of the banquet the customary Royal and Craft toasts were given from the chair with the most commendable brevity. "The W.M." was proposed by the I.P.M. in a very complimentary speech. He particularly referred to the efficient manner in which Bro. Leah had discharged the minor offices in the lodge, and he believed that the higher duties of the chair would be performed by him equally as well. This toast having been received with excellent "fire," the W.M. briefly responded by stating that he hoped to carry out the great responsibilities of his position to the satisfaction of the brethren. In conclusion he said that during his year of office he would endeavour to advance the interests of the Confidence Lodge and the comfort of its members in every possible way. In proposing "The Health of the Initiates," the W.M. trusted that Bro. Roxby would take such an interest in Freemasonry that in the course of a few years he would be seen occupying the position of Master in the lodge. He then went on to explain to the newly-made brother some of the principles of Freemasonry, and in concluding his remarks stated that when he first saw the Masonic light he was deeply impressed with the initiatory ceremony, and hoped that Bro. Roxby had experienced the same feeling. The initiate having acknowledged the compliment, the W.M. in very complimentary terms proposed "The Health of the Visitors." This toast having been warmly received, Bro. Edmonds, of the G. S. L., made an able response. "The I.P.M. (Installing Master) and Past Masters" followed. In introducing this toast the W.M. considered it "par excellence" the toast of the evening. The Confidence Lodge was noted for the Masonic abilities of its Masters, but he ventured to think that the I.P.M. was more than ordinarily good, and he believed that every member present would agree with him that Bro. Reed by the excellence of his working had richly deserved the handsome jewel he was about to place upon his breast. In speaking of the old Past Masters of the lodge, the W.M. said that he could only state what others had said before him, that they were ever ready and willing to come forward at all times to assist in the work of the lodge, and to devote their best energies for the benefit of its members. The I.P.M., in reply, deeply thanked the brethren for the kind recognition of his services to the lodge, manifested by their having unanimously voted him the jewel which the W.M. had just presented him with. He then proceeded to acknowledge the compliment paid to the other Past Masters, and in conclusion he humorously remarked, that from that evening he should consider as one of their august number that he had been promoted to the Masonic House of Lords. "The Treasurer and Secretary," "The Officers," and "The Caterer" followed, and were duly acknowledged by Bros. Shackell, Biddle, Footitt, and Clemow. During the evening Bro. Sinclair and others entertained the brethren, who separated at an advanced hour. The next meeting takes place on the second Monday in January next.

UNITED STRENGTH (No. 228).—The most interesting meeting night in the whole lodge year next to the installation night is the one upon which the W.M. for the coming year is elected, and it was upon the last meeting of the United Strength, at the Guildhall Tavern, Gresham-street, under the shadows of Gog and Magog, on the 11th inst., that this weighty business was dispatched, as well as other interesting business. Bro. Jas. Hill, W.M., was in the chair, the Senior Warden's chair being filled by Bro. Snare, who had stolen from the sickness at home to be present on this occasion. Bro. Halford, the J.W., whose merits in assisting most ably in the lodge work have placed him in the high position of holding the Second Warden's chair after a very short Masonic career; Bro. Percy being S.D.; Flaws, J.D.; Patmore, I.G.; and Hickman, D.C. The Past Masters of the lodge present were Bros. Joseph Crump, Sec.; Jas. Terry, E. Davies, Colston, J. Hillhouse, J. While (Freemason), and H. Griggs (I.P.M.). Bro. Smith was passed, and Bros. Henrich and Swain were raised, the work being wholly done by the W.M. The election for W.M. then proceeded, and Bro. Snare, to the regret of all, for every brother in the lodge knows him to be a thoroughly efficient Mason, stated that home matters would prevent him taking upon himself the office of W.M. The election then fell upon the J. Warden, Bro. Halford, who was elected with absolute unanimity. The usual congratulatory and responsive speeches were delivered. The grateful task to the lodge of re-electing the Treasurer, Bro. J. Winsland then followed. The announcement was made, and was received with great sorrow, that Bro. Doherty, a most promising young member, had been carried off by typhoid fever. A letter of condolence it was agreed should be written to his friends. Bro. Steedman was re-elected Tyler. An interesting ceremony then followed, and one which took the brethren by surprise. Bro. Moseley stepped to the front, and stated that he had been commissioned by Bro. Henrich, who had been raised that evening, to offer for the acceptance of the lodge three solid ivory gavels. The gavels were greatly admired for their beauty, and the gift was thoroughly appreciated, for the lodge, on the motion of Bro. James Terry, P.M., entered a vote of thanks upon the minutes, and ordered that the name of the donor should be engraved upon the gavels. The lodge, too, voted a Christmas gift to the poor brothers and sisters in the almshouses, and to the Tyler. The lodge closed, and adjourned to banquet, the visiting brethren being Bros. Denison, 308; Fenney, Goode, S.W. 1288; Porter, P.M. 1269; Turner, 902; and McNiven, 1426. The W.M. in acknowledging the toast of his health, proposed by Bro. Griggs, drew attention to the fact that he would stand as Steward for the lodge at the forthcoming festival of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution. Bro. Porter, in responding for the visitors, testified to the good work he had seen in the lodge, and expressed himself as delighted with the truly brotherly feeling he had seen on all sides in lodge as well as at the banquet table. The example the lodge set in all respects could not but effect the greatest good followed. The other visiting brothers also spoke, and the W.M. elect was warmly toasted, and the deepest sympathy with Bro. Snare in his inability to take upon himself the highest office which the members of the lodge have in their power to bestow upon any of its members. The W.M. elect, in his reply, warmly thanked the brethren for the honour conferred upon him, and indicated that he would select his officers according to the laws laid down in the Book of Constitutions—by their merits. The P.M.'s were also heartily toasted, and they each replied in speeches of greater or lesser length. Bro. Terry, however, striking the keynote of the whole by speaking of the pride with which the Past Masters watched the working of the young members, and saying that the Past Masters were as united as a band of brothers could be, thereby setting an example to all. The proceedings were over before the eleventh hour.

ECLECTIC LODGE (No. 1201).—The concluding meeting of the year of this advancing and prosperous lodge was held on Friday, the 14th inst., at Freemasons' Hall, Great Queen Street. An exceedingly large and representative company graced the work in the Zealand Room. The W.M., Bro. Edward James Hart, was supported in the chair by Bro. James Stevens of "The Great City" lodge, in the absence of the I.P.M., Bro. Watts, and Bro. Manders, P.M., and Treasurer, was also an assistant in the arduous work. The S.W. was Bro. A. Taylor, the J.W., Bro. G. W. Saul, Bro. Lee the S.D., Bro. Dobbing the J.D., Bro. Moss the I.G., Bro. Pochin the D.C., and Bro. W. H. Barber the Secretary. The first work of the evening after the minutes had been confirmed was the initiation of two gentlemen, Mr. W. E. Wright and Mr. A. Rayner, who had been regularly elected in open lodge, and the work was executed in the perfect manner to be expected of so experienced a Craftsman as the W.M. of this lodge; the ritual was heightened in its solemnity by the musical accompaniments of Bro. Higgs, the Organist and P.M. of St. Mary's Lodge. Bro. Absolon was missing when called upon to show his proficiency in the First Degree and to stand a candidate for the Second, so the lodge was raised to the Second Degree, for the due examination of five candidates for the promotion promised them in due time: these were Bros. Everett, Stewart, J. Amesden, A. Amesden, and G. E. Travers. They were all present, and having passed in a most satisfactory manner the lodge was in due form raised, and the five brethren were made participants in the privileges of Master Masons. The ceremony was long in consequence of the lodge as a whole having a great pride in good work, and the greatest care was taken to give the degree with becoming, we might say with artistic effect, and Bro. Higgs' organ accompaniment was most effective and striking. The lodge work was opened when the lodge was resumed to the First, and the important task of electing a W.M. for the ensuing year came before the members. The brethren discharged this duty by unanimously electing the Senior Warden, Bro. A. Taylor, to whom the W.M. gave hearty congratulations in the name of the lodge, and the W.M. elect, in a modest speech, fully appreciative of the honour done to him, thanked the lodge, and took the weighty office upon his shoulders. An election was then held for Treasurer, and Bro. Manders was unanimously re-elected to this position, and was congratulated upon being the senior P.M. of the lodge. Bro. Grant was elected Tyler, and a Christmas present was made to him. An audit committee was elected in Bros. Dr. Pearce, Rush and Moss. Upon the proposal that the lodge should present the usual jewel to the W.M., it was voted by various brethren that the value should be doubled in token of the gratitude of the brethren to Bro. Hart for rescuing the lodge from its cold and inhospitable character, and for raising it to a higher degree of prosperity than it could ever have hoped to "enjoy" under its old system of meeting for work and parting without refreshment. It was thought, however, that the lodge should keep to the value set down in the by-laws, the brethren to be at liberty to show their feeling by supplementing the well earned jewel of the lodge in any way they thought proper. The lodge being closed, the brethren adjourned to the Holborn Restaurant, where a banquet was served. In the course of the evening, the five newly raised brethren received a further insight into Masonic mysteries, for having with all heartiness toasted the W.M., they were jokingly told that they had exposed themselves to the fine of a bottle for challenging the W.M., and they all at once accepted the situation by ordering up the "extra best." Bro. Knight Smith sang and played, Bro. Watts' favourite ditties were missed, and in the responding to the visitors Bro. J. Stevens, in a lengthened and very complimentary speech, replied to the toast of the visitors, who were Bros. Major Williams, Dr. Alworth, Capt. Brickett, Dr. E. Payne, and G. W. Tolmie, who also replied. The great amount of work in the lodge had made the banquet late, and as a matter of course it was late before it had finished.

PERFECT ASHLAR LODGE (No. 1178).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held on Thursday, December 6th, at the Bridge House Hotel, Southwark. Bro. Frederick Garbett, W.M., presided. Present: Bros. J. Stock, S.W.; T. Simpson, J.W.; F. H. Ebsworth, P.M., Treasurer; F. Walters, P.P.G.D. Middlesex, P.M., Sec.; J. Bell, S.D.; S. Quincey, J.D.; G. H. Forder, I.G.; J. H. Harmsworth, P.M., D.C.; C. Deakin, P.M.; W. T. Lover, P.M.; J. A. Smith, P.M., and about forty members. Visitors: Bros. Rev. H. J. Hatch, P.M. 160; T. Aldridge, 507; D. Smith, 1326; R. Pooley, 1326; R. W. Williams, 1622, and others. The work done well by the W.M. was raising, passing, and initiation. The initiation fee was raised to ten guineas. Some joining members and candidates for initiation were proposed. The lodge closed and adjourned to February 7th.

THE ROTHESAY LODGE (No. 1687).—The regular meeting of this prosperous and well-established lodge was held on Wednesday, the 5th inst., at the Inns of Court Hotel, Holborn. Bro. Louis Beck, W.M., opened the lodge. There were present Bros. Frank Kirk, S.W.; Hancock, J.W.; B. H. Swallow, P.G.J.D. Middlesex, P.M., Treas.; W. C. Parsons, P.M., Sec.; J. B. Docker, S.D.; J. Crossland, J.D.; J. Outwaite, I.G.; Forscatt, D.C.; Duret, W.S.; Jones, A.W.S.; Levermore, Ellen, Lintott, Lucas, Palmer, Michaels, and others. Amongst the visitors we noticed Bros. F. Walters, P.P.G.D. Middlesex, P.M. 73, &c.; E. H. Thiellay, P.P.G.S.B. Middlesex, P.M. 145, W.M. 1423, &c.; H. A. Stacey, P.M. 180; G. Bubb, P.M. 180; Farwig, S.D. 180; Collins, P.M. 1328; Denton, 25; Partridge, 1445; Crowther, I.G. 1248; J. W. Thompson, 1695; E. Crickmay, 1426; J. Berrow, 190; W. A. Tinney, P.M. 1319; E. Swanborough, J.W. 1319; H. H. Bennett, 370; and some whose names we were unable to ascertain. The W.M., Bro. Louis Beck, in an able manner, which gave great satisfaction to all who had the good fortune to be present, raised Bros. Taylor, Levermore, and Ellen, passed Bros. Lintott and Ellen, initiated Mr. Epaminondas Leonidas Valeriani and Mr. Lionel Nathan into Freemasonry. He was then unanimously elected to the proud position of Steward to represent the lodge at the forthcoming festival of the Girls' School, to be held on Wednesday, May 8th, 1878, the worthy Treasurer, Bro. B. H. Swallow, P.G.J.D. Middlesex, giving timely help by giving notice of motion to swell his list by voting a goodly sum from the lodge funds to head it with. The Secretary proved himself the right man in the right place by an admirable notice of motion which he gave concerning an important and wise alteration in the by-laws. It is seldom that we visit any lodge where there is to be found such good work from a W.M., careful and discriminating exercise of the duties of Treasurer, wise and judicious rendering of the Secretarial administration, as what is to be found in this lodge. The names of gentlemen who are anxious to be initiated were given in to the Secretary. Other formalities were gone through, and the lodge was closed and adjourned to meet next year. A splendid banquet and dessert was served under the courteous management of Mr. Gosden, who attended personally to supervise it. The usual toasts were given and responded to. The event of the evening was the presentation to Bro. Louis Beck of a handsome marble bust of himself. The bust when unveiled was such a striking good likeness that it was received with a genuine burst of enthusiasm of the appreciation of the merits displayed by the artist in its execution. The presentation was entrusted to Bro. Frank Kirk, S.W., who in the best manner it was possible for it to be done, on behalf of himself and the other subscribers asked the W.M. to accept the bust. The W.M., Bro. L. Beck, who seemed deeply affected by this splendid gift, acknowledged the high compliment paid him by presenting him with the bust, and accepted it with gratitude and thanks. Songs, recitations, and music brought a pleasant meeting to an agreeable close. The brethren separated at a reasonable hour, wishing one and all the compliments of the approaching season.

WOOLWICH.—Union Waterlon Lodge (No. 13).—The regular meeting of the above lodge took place on Wednesday, the 12th inst., at F.H. William-street, Bro. G. W. Reed, W.M., presiding. The other officers present were F. G. Pownall, I.P.M.; G. Davies, P.M.; J. P. Moore, S.W.; T. Hutton, J.W.; J. Henderson, P.M. and Treas.; H. Syer, Sec.; N. Brown, S.D.; G. H. Masters, J.D.; T. Hosgood, I.G.; T. Hassell, D.C., and B. Norman, Tyler. The visitors were G. Andrews, P.M. 871; G. Spinks, W.M. 1536; D. Wilson, 54; G. T. Edds, 40; and C. Jolly, 913 (Freemason). The work before the lodge consisted of the passing of Bro. Akers, and the raising of Bro. Westlake; the former ceremony being worked by the W.M., and the latter (in the W.M.'s temporary absence) by Bro. P.M. Pownall. The lodge was then closed in due form. Having honoured the usual preliminary toasts and the W.M. had responded to a flattering recognition of his name, he proposed the toast of "The Visitors," coupling it with the name of P.M. Andrews, who he mentioned as the Preceptor of the "Star Lodge of Instruction." Bro. Andrews, in the course of his reply, said they had a good Lodge of Instruction at Woolwich, and strongly advised the brethren to attend it, for there they would see the whole of the ceremonies worked, under the eye of careful Preceptors, with accuracy and in perfect order. The W.M. had been to his house, and there he had gone through the three degrees without a hitch, but of course it was a very different thing to do so before a full lodge. He had advised the W.M. to go into it like a boy would take his first header—with a dash (laughter and cheers). He felt sure that their W.M. would sustain the credit of the lodge and leave that chair with their entire satisfaction. (Cheers.) Bro. Spinks then spoke of the pleasure it gave him to see the W.M. do his work, and the excellent feeling which pervaded the whole of the lodge towards him. He and their W.M. had been closely associated in Masonry together for some time; they had been S.W.'s together in this district, and now were W.M.'s together. He wished him a prosperous year of office, and the lodge success, and concluded by inviting as many as could come to his lodge, the "United Military," on the following Friday. (Applause.) In proposing the toast of "The Past Masters," the W.M. warmly eulogised Bro. Pownall, who he said, was one of the best P.M.'s in the district, and regretted the necessity of his (Bro. Pownall's) leaving them. Bro. Pownall, in reply, took no especial credit to himself but gave all honour to those who had preceded him. He should continue to be a subscribing member of the lodge. It was a regret of his to leave Woolwich, because of the happy associations formed here, but especially, felt the losing of his pleasure in being with them on lodge nights. They were looking forward to their centenary, and he hoped to see the day when they would obtain a jewel for it. He trusted that they would long continue in their bond of unanimity and brotherly love which now held them, and trusted he might long be spared to place his humble services at their disposal for the welfare and interest of the lodge and its members. (Cheers.) "The Officers' Health" was next proposed, and Bro. Moore suitably replied. The Tyler's toast concluded the duties of the evening.

MIDDLETON.—Imperial George Lodge (No. 78).—The last meeting of this lodge was held on Wednesday, Nov. 29th, at the Asheton Arms. Bro. G. Bradbury, W.M. presided, being assisted by Bros. W. Percival, S.W.; F. Fothergill, J.W.; D. Reid, I.P.M.; J. Garlick, P.M.; S. H. Cheetham, P.M.; J. Hutton, Sec.; F. Hooper, Org.; J. Kent, Tyler. The minutes of the last meeting were read by the Secretary and received confirmation. Bro. Tetlow having to the satisfaction of the brethren answered the questions leading to the Third Degree, was entrusted with the test of merit and passed out. The lodge was then raised to the Third Degree, and Bro. Tetlow elevated to the Sublime Degree of a M.M. by the W.M., in a manner at once impressive and solemn. Bro. Hooper presided at the harmonium, and contributed in no slight degree to the solemnity of the ceremony. The lodge having been lowered to the First Degree, the brethren proceeded to the election of W.M. for the ensuing year, and their choice fell upon Bro. Percival, S.W. Bro. Harvey Heywood, P.M., whose unavoidable absence was regretted by all, was again appointed Treasurer. Bro. Kent was elected Tyler and Bros. Barley, Hewitt, and Valentine, Auditors. "Hearty Good Wishes" were accorded from Lodges 148, 152, 1213, 1588, and 1633; after which Bro. Reid, I.P.M., rose to address the brethren upon the death of Bro. Mills. He said that few who saw the cheerful face of Bro. Mills at their last meeting would have expected that he would so soon be taken from them. He felt very deeply the loss of Bro. Mills; he had been the last initiate in his (Bro. Reid's) year of office. By his exemplary conduct, his regular attendance at their meetings, and his studious endeavour to walk the path of life by Masonic rule, he had won the esteem and respect of the brethren. The death of Bro. Mills was a great loss, not only to the lodge but to that wide circle of friends who would long feel his removal. In conclusion, he moved "That the Imperial George Lodge, No. 78, of Ancient Free and Accepted Masons desires to express its profound sorrow at the death of their Bro. Moses Mills. The brethren, therefore, place on the minutes of the lodge this expression of their respect and sorrow, and direct that a copy of this resolution be forwarded to the family of their late Bro. Moses Mills in token of their sincere and earnest sympathy in the loss they have sustained." Bro. Garlick, who exhibited much emotion, seconded the resolution. He expressed his sympathy with the family of the deceased in their affliction, and spoke in high terms of the character of the deceased. Bro. Mills and himself had been schoolfellows together, and the friendship then commenced had grown stronger with advancing years. Through life he had invariably found Bro. Mills to be straightforward, honest, and respected by all who knew him. The W.M., Bro. Bradbury, in supporting the resolution, also referred in feeling terms to the loss they had sustained by the death of Bro. Mills, who had taken such a lively interest in their proceedings last month. To all of us, he said, it afforded a salutary lesson, showing the uncertainty of life, and the necessity of so walking in the Masonic path of rectitude as to be prepared when the last summons came. It taught us to reflect on our inevitable destiny, to perform our allotted task while it was yet day, that when death called us from this sublunary sphere we might, like Bro. Mills, ascend to the Grand Lodge above. The resolution was unanimously adopted. Charity having been attended to, the lodge was closed in due form, and the brethren adjourned for refreshment. After the usual loyal and Masonic toasts had been duly honoured, Bro. Reid alluded to the sad event which had thrown such a gloom over their proceedings that evening, and said it was the wish of the W.M. as well as of himself, that one and all should recall in silence the memory of the departed, which request was carried out with a marked and deserving solemnity. Bro. Tetlow responded to the toast of "Our Newly-raised Brother." Bro. Percival, in responding to the toast of "The W.M. elect," thanked the brethren for the honour they had done him. He would do his best to carry on the work of the lodge in the same complete and perfect manner for which No. 78 was noted, and he felt sure he might rely upon the cordial support of the brethren. Bro. D. Reid proposed "The Visitors" and expressed his gratification at seeing the representatives of so many Manchester lodges seated at their festive board. They were always proud to receive their visiting brethren; he bade them a hearty welcome, he trusted they had enjoyed their visit, and he hoped they would speedily repeat it. Bro. Young responded, and expressed the pleasure they felt at bringing present that evening. They had been especially struck with the perfect working of the ceremony and with the hearty welcome they had received. The W.M. then proposed "The Health of Bro. Hooper," the Organist of the lodge, who was on the point of leaving this country for India. Bro. Hooper said he was placed in an embarrassing position as he had not expected the honour they had done him. He knew it was the custom to welcome the coming guests, but he had not expected they would speed the parting one. For their kind wishes for his welfare he sincerely thanked them; he should never forget his mother lodge, and he hoped that when he did return in the course of a few years he should find all the brethren present. The Tyler's toast concluded the business of the evening, and the brethren separated shortly before 10 o'clock.

SOUTHAMPTON.—Royal Gloucester Lodge (No. 130).—At the invitation of the W.M., Bro. R. Sharpe, the Prov. G. Master of Hants and the Isle of Wight (Bro. W. B. Beach, M.P.), the Deputy Prov. G.M. (Bro. W. Hickman), and the Grand Lodge visited this old and influential lodge at its meeting last week. Two Indian brethren studying as surgeons at the Royal Victoria Hospital at Netley having been passed, the election of W.M. for the ensuing year was proceeded with, the ballot resulting in the virtually unanimous election of Bro. C. John Phillips, the Senior Warden. Before the election of Treasurer, Bro. E. Booth, one of the oldest and most experienced Past Masters of the lodge, took advantage of the presence of the Prov. G.M. to protest against an alteration made in the Royal Gloucester bye-laws, on the advice of the Prov. Grand Secretary, one of the P.M.'s of the lodge, repealing the nomination of Treasurer, and directing that he and the W.M. be elected by ballot. There was no rule of Grand Lodge, he said, to this effect, and its inconvenience would be illustrated that night, for Bro. LeFeuvre, the Prov. G. Sec., having resigned the office of Treasurer to the lodge, the brethren were entirely in the dark as to whom they should vote for, whereas under the old, open system of nomination probably one name would have been put before the lodge and agreed to. The Deputy Prov. Grand Master, in the absence of Prov. Grand Sec., said it was only fair to say that that brother had acted under the advice of Grand Secretary. The ballot then took place, and the retiring W.M. (Bro. Sharpe) was on the first round, elected as Treasurer by a substantial majority. Forty-nine brethren afterwards sat down to the banquet. In the course of the proceedings the Prov. Grand Master, replying to the toast of his health, made reference to the recent proceedings in France, and expressed his opinion that the English Grand Lodge would have no alternative—painful as it must be—but to decline to recognise those who repudiated that which formed one of the fundamental bases of all true Masonry. He subsequently proposed the health of the retiring W.M., which was received with much cordiality, Bro. Sharpe, being very much esteemed throughout the town as an able and energetic Mason and a worthy and useful citizen.

MANCHESTER.—Caledonian Lodge (No. 204).—The festival of St. John in connection with the above lodge was held on Wednesday evening, at the Masonic Hall, Cocker-street, when a goodly number of members and friends assembled to assist in the interesting ceremony, and to do honour to the new W.M. The lodge was constituted in due form, after which Bro. George East, P.M., P.G.S.D., duly installed Bro. Robert A. Eldershaw as the W.M. for the ensuing year. The ceremony was performed in a most impressive manner, the general opinion being that the way in which it was conducted reflected the highest credit upon the Installing Master. Bro. East was assisted by Bro. Schofield, P.M., who delivered the charge to the Master and Wardens in a very creditable manner. The following were invested as the officers for the ensuing year: Bros. John Roberts, S.W.; G. T. Mullock, J.W.; William Bagnall, S.D. and D.C.; Thomas Guest, J.D.; John Sutcliffe, I.G.; and the Rev. P. Hains, Chaplain; John C. Hind, P.M., Treasurer; A. F. Beeton, Secretary. After the installation Past Master Hains on behalf of the brethren presented to the I.P.M., A. Humphreys, a magnificent time-piece for his services as W.M. and acting Master for the last nine months, owing to the death of the late Master, Bro. Jepson. This lodge is anxious to be in the front rank as a supporter of the various charities, and it was decided that an old member of the lodge should be taken in as a joining member, in order that he may become qualified for the Benevolent Institution. After business, a magnificent banquet was laid in the dining hall, when between 70 and 80 sat down. The chair was, of course, occupied by the new W.M. (Bro. Robert A. Eldershaw), who filled his position with a dignity which did honour to the choice of the lodge. During the evening he made some very good speeches in proposing some of the toasts: but want of space prevents us giving a report of them. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were proposed, and drunk with the greatest enthusiasm. It is a matter of regret that we cannot give a report of the speeches, especially that of Bro. East on being "Unaccustomed to public speaking;" that of Bro. the Rev. Philip Haines on "Charity;" and that of Bro. Prescott (one of the visitors) on "The Principles of Masonry." These speeches made an excellent impression, and we have no doubt they will be productive of good results. We must not close this notice without referring to the great pleasure that was given to the brethren by the very excellent singing of the glee party—Bros. Robberds, Lever, Thomas, Sharrock, and Stanley. The singing of the song "Here's to his health," by Bro. Robberds, was magnificent, and deservedly received enthusiastic applause. The Caledonian Lodge is to be congratulated on the great success that attended all the arrangements.

WINDSOR.—Etonian Lodge of St. John (No. 209).—The usual monthly meeting of this lodge was held at the Masonic Hall, Windsor, on Tuesday, the 4th inst. Present: Bros. Hume, W.M., P.G.S.; Roberts, S.W., P.G.S.; E. Schiemann, J.W.; the Rev. J. Studholme Brownrigg, P.P.D.G.M., Chaplain; Wilson, P.M., Treas.; Carter, P.M., P.P.G.D.C., Secretary; Nicholes, S.D.; Pears, J.D.; Tolley, P.M., P.P.G.D., Org.; Cousins, I.G.; Evans, Steward; Past Masters, Bros. Stacey, P.P.G.R.; Reid, Dixon, P.P.G.D.C.; Denne, Bryett, P.G.S. of Wks.; McIlwham, Hopwood, Long, and Stedwell. Visitors: Bros. Spicer, W.M., 569; Masters, 145; Green, P.M. 27; Harris, 1351 and 1567; Thompson, 55; Date, 34; Turling, 780; Arnold, 382; Cole, 742; Benson, S.W. 1613; Lay, 569; Powell, P.M. 771; Johnson, 771. Messrs. Fairclough and Harris were initiated; Bros. Riley and Stollery were passed to the Second Degree, and Bro. Perks raised to the rank of M.M. Bro. Schiemann, J.W., was elected W.M. for the ensuing year (the S.W., Bro. Roberts, not being eligible, as he is at the present time W.M. of the Crystal Palace Lodge, No. 742). Bro. Wilson, P.M., was unanimously re-elected Treasurer. Bros. Dick Radcliffe and Apted were nominated to audit the accounts. The usual Past Master's jewel was voted to the W.M., to be presented at the conclusion of his year of office.

LIVERPOOL.—Merchants' Lodge (No. 241).—The premier lodge in West Lancashire—the "Old Merchants," which will very soon reach its century of existence, had an unusually interesting meeting on Tuesday evening, the 11th instant, at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street, Liverpool. There was an attendance of about seventy members and visitors, presided over by Bro. Councillor George Peet, W.M. The principal officers and members present were Bros. J. I. Knight, P.M.; J. W. Baker, P.M.; G. Hutchin, P.M.; Richard Brown, P.M., Hon. Sec. of the West Lancashire Masonic Educational Institution; Ralph Robinson, P.M.; James Winsor, S.W.; T. H. Sheen, J.W.; Dr. S. J. McGeorge, Treas., P.G. Registrar of W.L.; Thomas Salter, Secretary; W. Williams, S.D.; John Latta, J.D.; G. Broadbridge, P.M., D.C.; T. Whitehead, I.G.; and A. B. Ewart, Organist. Amongst the visitors were Bros. H. S. Alpess, P.G. Sec.; J. Jones, P.M. 216; Dr. D. D. Costine, S.D. 216; Dr. Sheldon, P.M. 1094; Councillor George Fowler, W.M. 155; J. Keet, S.D. 1356; J. Beesley, P.M. 216, and others. The special interest of the meeting consisted in the recognition by the brethren of the seven years' services as Treasurer of Bro. Dr. McGeorge, and to commemorate his recent appointment by Bro. Lord Skelmersdale, R.W.P.G.M., to the honourable office of Provincial Grand Registrar—an office which he worthily deserved after eighteen years' enthusiastic support of Masonry. The recognition and commemoration took the form of a dining-room timepiece, in front of which was a gold plate, in the form of a P.G. Registrar's jewel, bearing an inscription testifying to the esteem in which he was held by all the brethren of the lodge who had subscribed for the testimonial, and congratulating him on his appointment in the Prov. Grand Lodge. The regular lodge business consisted in the work of initiation, which was most admirably performed by Bro. Councillor Peet, the popular W.M. The brethren subsequently sat down to a sumptuous supper, under the presidency of the W.M., who was supported by a large number of P.M.'s, officers, brethren, and visitors. The presentation to Dr. McGeorge, P.G.R., was made during the evening by Bro. Richard Brown, who said:—Brethren, I am permitted by the Worshipful Master to propose the next toast. It is a toast which is never omitted at these very pleasant meetings, but it does sometimes appear to me, that the very frequency with which the subject is brought under our notice is apt to cause us to look upon it with less importance than its merits demand. "The Health and Prosperity of our Masonic Rulers, Supreme and Subordinate," is a subject entitled to our warmest sympathies. My brethren have only to refer to any of the returns of the proceedings of Grand Lodge, to find our rulers, in that quarter, earnestly and briskly engaged in the many matters that came regularly before them, and whether it be the disposition of the funds, arising from the fees, either for charity to distressed brethren, the establishment of a life boat, the support of our schools and institutions, or the settlement of some matters of Masonic jurisprudence; we always find the best intellect carefully brought to bear to secure the wise and satisfactory results of which we are reasonably proud. And if ever there was a time when our rulers in Grand Lodge were entitled to our regard it is surely now; when questions of such universal importance are before them, which unless settled in the wisest way will assuredly shake the very foundation of Freemasonry throughout the length and breadth of the land. Coming nearer home, to our Provincial Grand Lodge of West Lancashire, we have equal reason to feel proud; of this, the largest Province in the kingdom, where we have more lodges and I believe, a larger number of Masons than elsewhere; and where we are so ably governed by Lord Skelmersdale, whom I venture to say is one of the most earnest of Freemasons and one of the brightest ornaments at present connected with our Craft. (Cheers.) The wisdom of his ruling is best proved by the fact of our wonderful prosperity and undoubted harmony, and therefore I say for these reasons also I claim for this toast your fullest approbation. But there are other good reasons for claiming your attention, and this brings us to the more immediate cause of my saying more than is usual on the subject of this toast. It has pleased our Prov. Grand Master to appoint, at the recent meeting, as his Prov. Grand Registrar, one of the most respected and oldest brethren of this Merchants' Lodge, Bro. S. J. McGeorge, an appointment in which the brethren of this lodge so greatly rejoice that they have desired to mark their appreciation of the honour conferred on our worthy Treasurer by asking his acceptance of a tribute of their esteem, more especially to mark the event I have alluded to. In a large province like this, the appointment of Provincial Grand Officers must necessarily be one of much anxiety to Lord Skelmersdale and his advisers. In many cases it becomes necessary to honour a lodge for its general good work, and here the dignity has to be conferred on some brother who, without having the opportunity of individually and personally earning the distinction, has possibly assisted in the general good working of the lodge; but in the Merchants' Lodge, I venture proudly to assert and I do so in the presence of our Prov. Grand Secretary, that we may truthfully boast that where Prov. Grand honours have been conferred on members of 241, they have been undoubtedly earned, and these degrees and offices have not been derived as a mere matter of form, but have been won by the merit of the wearer. I may briefly glance at the four last appointments. No one will for a moment say, nor shall I attempt to prove, that our late lamented Bro. Captain Mott did not well earn his position. Then we have our hard-working and indefatigable Bro. George Broadbridge, whose work in connection with the London Charities is increasing, and who, as the Secretary of the most successful Masonic ball ever held in this town, has left his mark in the records of our own Educational Institution in the shape of £500 in aid of its funds, and we can best estimate the importance of such an addition to the funds by remembering that the interest alone will educate at least two of our fatherless or orphan children each and every year, "as long as the world goes round." I think you will agree with me that Bro. George Broadbridge deserved his laurels. Then we have our Bro. Robert Wilson, and without desiring to depreciate the efforts of others, I venture to say that it is mainly owing to his constant exertion, extending over a number of years, that we are indebted for the building of this hall (unfinished as it unfortunately is), for although Bro. Wilson's work in this matter was not confined to his own lodge, yet I may remind the brethren and the visitors present, that the Merchants' Lodge alone provided one-third the amount that has been paid for this building. I think, therefore, you will agree with me that Bro. Wilson's honours were well deserved. And now we have our Bro. Dr. McGeorge. It is impossible in his presence, as indeed it is unnecessary, for me to say how popular, both in and out of the lodge, is this most recent appointment of Prov. Grand Registrar. I may just refer to the services of Bro. McGeorge as a Past Master and Treasurer of this lodge, ever present at our meetings, always genial, courteous, and good natured. I may also inform the brethren, that Dr. McGeorge has twice filled the chair as M.E.Z. of the chapter connected with this lodge, and not only has he filled the chair, but he has done the work; but above and beyond all these acts, which have endeared him to his brethren, he has for many years past given the benefit of his excellent professional skill on behalf of almost every one of the orphan and fatherless children who have been placed on the foundation of our Educational Institution, and these may be counted by hundreds, and are, as we know, largely increasing, and I take this opportunity, as the Secretary of this great charity, of bearing testimony to the invariable attention of Dr. McGeorge in this important matter. To say more would be superfluous. It may be gratifying to you, Bro. Dr. McGeorge, to know that this testimonial, which bears an inscription that it is "presented by the brethren of the Merchants' Lodge, 241, as a mark of their esteem, and in recognition of their appreciation of your appointment as Prov. Grand Registrar of West Lancashire in this year 1877," was subscribed for by every brother present at the last meeting and during the short time you were out of the room, about ten minutes. In their name and with their good wishes, I present to you this testimony of their goodwill. Brethren—We are accustomed to draw from some of the matters that come before us, some inferences that may point a moral, and to me an act like this, on the part of the brethren of a large and influential lodge, teaches us that a man may live a long time in this somewhat critical, caustic, and censorious world, and may fulfil the many and varied offices to which he may be appointed, so as not to give offence to one single, solitary soul; but on the contrary, so as to secure the lasting and undoubted esteem of his fellows, and those who know him best and most. In conclusion, Bro. McGeorge, I couple your name with this toast, and in the words of old Rip Van Winkle, I say, "Here's your good health, and your family's good health, and may you live long and prosper." The testimonial was briefly acknowledged by Bro. McGeorge, P.G.R., who referred to his long connection with the Merchants' Lodge, and the interest he had taken in its affairs. He greatly esteemed the honour which had been conferred on him by Lord Skelmersdale, and that honour was enhanced tenfold by the presentation which had just been made to him—a gift which he hoped would descend to his children, as evidence of the esteem in which their father had been held. A pleasant evening was spent with toast, song, and sentiment.

CHEETHAM.—Derby Lodge (No. 1055).—The annual soiree of this lodge was held on the 15th inst., at the Knowsley Hotel, Cheetham. Bro. Brenmehl, the host, had done all in his power to make every preparation for the reception of the guests, even going to the trouble of taking down the two billiard tables in order that there might be no lack of room. The company were admitted at the private door of the hotel and ushered into the reception-room, where they were welcomed by Bro. Alfred Turner, W.M., and Mrs. Turner. They then passed through the ball-room, and promenaded to some excellent music performed by Bro. Charles Fielding. When the guests had all arrived tea was served in the billiard room. The catering did great credit to the worthy host; and when the company were all seated the room had a very pretty appearance—what with the beauty of the fair ones, the magnificence of their toilets, the flowers, plants, and candelabra adorning the tables, and the happiness that beamed from every countenance, there was presented a "toit ensemble" not often witnessed. After the cloth was withdrawn the W.M. (Bro. Alfred Turner), rose and said:—Brethren, perhaps I ought to have said ladies, but unaccustomed as we are to have the interior of our Derby Lodge graced by the presence of ladies, I may well be forgiven the omission. It is said "All's well that ends well." So I will now address you as ladies and brethren, and feel assured every brother present will be willing, for once, to assign the place of honour to the ladies who have favoured us by their presence to-night. Few Masters of lodges have been called upon to fill such a responsible, and yet, I must add, such a pleasing position as that which now devolves upon me, and I only regret the task has not fallen into abler and better hands than mine. One thing, however, has always cheered the heart of every Master of his lodge, and that is, that when he feels his own weakness and inability, he knows he need not look in vain for help and assistance to the P.M.'s of the lodge. The I.P.M. (Bro. E. G. Hughes) I have ever found ready in every good work, and willing at all times to lend a helping hand to a poor and distressed Mason. To each of the other P.M.'s of this lodge—without mentioning or singling out any names—I must say I am very much indebted, and feel grateful for the help and assistance they have afforded me. But, ladies and brethren, I am wandering from the special business now in hand. It is known to some that we desire and are accustomed to have the portraits of the P.M.'s of this lodge gracing the walls of the same after they (the P.M.'s) have ceased to act, and I know of no reason why an exception should be made in the case of my I.P.M., Bro. Hughes. My esteemed friend and brother, P.M. Smith, the senior P.M. of the lodge, has kindly consented to perform this duty, and I doubt not it will be a source of great pleasure to him, because, in addition to the portrait which will be retained by the lodge, he is to present one as a tribute of respect and esteem to Mrs. Hughes, of her beloved husband. I need only say—which I am sure every lady and every brother will endorse—long may our brother and Mrs. Hughes be spared to each other, sharing each other's joys, bearing each other's sorrows, and helping one another amid the battle of life, until that time when, the battle being over, they shall each enjoy the reward prepared by the Great Architect of the Universe for all who wait His coming to summon them to the United Lodge, which is above. Bro. James Smith, senior P.M. of the lodge, said that as they were all well aware he was a very bashful man amongst the ladies, and if he did not acquit himself to their satisfaction they must attribute it to his nervousness. He had been called upon in his capacity of senior P.M. to present to Mrs. Hughes, on behalf of the lodge, the portrait of her husband. It was well known to all Masons, especially to Past Masters, that the duties appertaining to the office of W.M. of a lodge were not light, but on the contrary, took up an enormous amount of time, entailed a great deal of self-denial, and required great devotion and attention to the duties of the office if they were to be efficiently and satisfactorily performed. It was a source of satisfaction to him that the Derby Lodge had at all times been blessed with Masters who were alive to their duties, and had done all in their power to promote the well-being and prosperity of the lodge. It was owing to their efforts that they were in such a state of prosperity to-day, and it was because the brethren felt this, and believed that the Immediate P.M., Bro. Hughes, was second* to none of his predecessors in his labours and in his love for the lodge that they desired to show their esteem. The Derby Lodge, during Bro. Hughes's term of office, had enjoyed a most prosperous career, and this was mainly owing to the hard work and never-failing courtesy of its W.M. He had very great pleasure in being the mouthpiece of the brethren on this occasion, and in presenting to Mrs. Hughes, on their behalf, this oil portrait of her dear husband. He trusted that the Great Architect would long spare them to each other, that they would continue to find their chief happiness in each other's love, and that they would be blessed with every blessing this world could afford; and that finally, after this life, they would be removed to the Grand Lodge above, where joy exists for evermore. Bro. Glendenning, P.M., remarked that it gave him great pleasure to endorse the sentiments that Bro. Smith had so well expressed, as he was sure that Bro. Hughes had earned the esteem and love of every member of the lodge. Bro. Joseph Snape said that as they had been listening to the Masters of the lodge with such attention, perhaps they would not object to hearing a word or two from one who was only a working or journeyman Mason. He had risen for the purpose of drawing attention to one trait in Bro. Hughes's character that had not been alluded to by the previous speakers, and that was the great devotion he had always shown to the first, greatest, and noblest principle of Freemasonry—viz., charity. Bro. Hughes had been ever first and foremost in promoting in that lodge the cause of the different Masonic charities, and only last week he declared that he would not rest satisfied till the Derby Lodge was second to none in Manchester in the amount subscribed to their support. Bro. Hughes, in returning thanks, said that he was somewhat at a loss to find words in which to express, as he would like, the gratitude he felt. But, on behalf of Mrs. Hughes and himself, he would simply say that they thanked them from their hearts for this manifestation of their good will. It was a great pleasure to him to hear the kindly expressions of the different speakers in reference to himself, although he was afraid they were somewhat exaggerated; but, however, to know that he had to some extent gained their approbation, was quite a sufficient reward for all his labours on their behalf. He was quite sure that Mrs. Hughes would treasure up the portrait that had been presented to her, and it was a source of satisfaction to him to know that his children, and those friends who survived him, would have in the portrait something to remind them that the friends and brethren of the Derby Lodge respected him, and were not unmindful of his services on their behalf. The company then adjourned to the ball-room, where dancing was kept up with great spirit until an early hour in the morning. In the intervals between the dancing some beautiful songs and concerted pieces were rendered by Mrs. Buckley, Miss Dumville, Messrs. F. H. Hollins, N. Dumville, J. Senior, Phenix, and Pollitt. Bro. Charles Fielding presided at the pianoforte with his accustomed skill. In the ante-room there were photographs, objects of art, some very ingenious mechanical figures, and a telephone, exhibited by Bro. Morrison. Bro. Cox exhibited a splendid collection of coins of the Georgian era. Bro. G. Kenyon, P.M., made an efficient D.C., and he had an able deputy in the person of Bro. Cooper. The whole of the proceedings passed off with the greatest eclat, and reflected the highest credit upon Bro. Alfred Turner, the W.M., and his officers.

THIRSK.—Falcon Lodge (No. 1416).—The annual installation meeting of this lodge was held on Thursday, December the 13th, at the Masonic Hall, when there was an unusually large attendance of brethren. Besides the members, amongst the visitors were W. Bro. G. Marwood, J.P., G.D., P.G.M., 543; Installing Master; Bros. J. S. Walton, P.M., P.P.G.S.B., 1337; J. S. Moss, P.M., P.P.G.S.B., Lion, 312; Paley, P.M. Earl de Grey and Ripon, 837; Lukis, S.W. 837; Waistell, P.M. Anchor, 1337; Southern, Anchor, 1337; J. Fairbourne, P.M. 1337; C. Palliser, P.M. 1337; G. Oxendall, 1337; Hutchence, 1337; Hollings, 236; J. W. Fleming, P.M. 1211; J. Richardson, Claro and Ripon, P.M., P.P.S.P. West Yorkshire; Jno. Rhodes, P.M.; C. E. Camidge, P.P.G. Organist; Jno. Harker, A. G. Duncombe, Diwoodie, Broderic, J. H. Gilling. The lodge was opened by Bro. G. Anderson, W.M., and after the usual formalities, the position of Installing Master was taken by Worshipful Bro. Geo. Marwood, P.D.P.G.M. Bro. Geo. Ayre, S.W., and W.M. elect, was then duly presented by Bro. Geo. Anderson, W.M. The ceremony of installation was performed by W. Bro. Marwood in his usual most impressive manner, and Bro. George Ayre having been placed in the Master's chair and saluted with full honours, according to ancient custom, he appointed his officers, invested them with the respective insignia, Bros. T. J. Wilkinson, S.W.; W. Colman, J.W.; H. Smith, Treas.; C. E. Camidge, Chaplain; Jas. Johnson, Sec.; A. G. Duncombe, S.D.; R. Atkinson, J.D.; W. Hall, D.C.; J. Lee, I.G.; Zachaeus Wright, Organist; E. Richardson and J. H. Gilling, Stewards; J. Farmery, Tyler. Bro. Marwood having addressed the officers, they proceeded with the work of the lodge, the ceremonies being admirably performed, the Worshipful Master giving proof of great ability. Bro. Z. Wright very efficiently conducted the musical arrangements. After the installation the brethren sat down to an excellent banquet, admirably served by Bro. T. Foreman, at the Three Tuns Hotel, the menu carte embracing all the delicacies of the season. The Worshipful Master mentioned that he had received a number of letters of apology and congratulation, amongst others from Bro. Sir James Meek, 236; Bro. W. S. Orde-Powlett, k.P.S.G.W.; Bro. Cowling, 236; Bro. Baskitt, 236; Bro. Hollans, P.P.G. Treas., 236; M. C. Peek, P.P.G.S.; Bro. Jos. Todd, P.P.S.G.; and others. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given by the W.M., and drunk most enthusiastically. The toast of "The Earl of Zetland, and Past Provincial Grand Officers" was cordially received, and Bro. C. E. Camidge responded. The W.M. proposed "The Health of the Installing Master," and expressed his gratification in being honoured with the presence of Bro. Marwood, who had installed all previous Masters, and who had now placed in the chair the first W.M. who had been made in the lodge. Bro. Marwood replied that it was always a great pleasure to him to be of any service to the Falcon Lodge, and he hoped for many years to be spared to come to the installation of the W.M.'s of the Falcon Lodge, No. 1416. He concluded by proposing "The Health of Bro. George Ayre, W.M.," whom he felt assured would prove an efficient and excellent Master, wishing him a prosperous and successful year of office, and expressing himself much pleased at placing the first W.M. made in the lodge in the chair, the highest office the brethren could confer. Bro. George Ayre, in replying, feelingly expressed his sense of the honour and proud position to which the brethren had elected him, and said it would be his utmost endeavour, to the best of his ability, to do credit to their choice, to maintain the harmony and good feeling so cordially existing, and instil into every candidate the tenets and principles of Freemasonry. Bro. Jno. Rhodes, P.M., then gave the toast of "Bro. George Anderson, I.P.M.," remarking that the duties of W.M. had been most creditably performed during the past year, and he had earned the good opinion of all the brethren. Bro. Anderson responded, and gave "The Officers of the Falcon Lodge, 1416." Bro. Wilkinson, S.W., replied, and proposed the toast of "The Visitors," referring to the past obligation of the lodge to visiting brethren, coupling with it the names of Bros. Paley, P.M.; Lukis, S.W. of Earl de Grey and Ripon Lodge, No. 837, and Bro. Richardson, P.M. of Harrogate and Claro Lodge, No. 1001.

PLUMSTEAD.—United Military Lodge (No. 1536).—One of the most memorable and enthusiastic gatherings of the brethren of the Woolwich and Plumstead districts that have ever come under our notice took place on Friday the 14th inst., at the above lodge, the occasion being its usual monthly meeting, but it was taken advantage of to show the high esteem in which two of its most prominent members were held in by the district at large: we refer to Bros. F. G. Pownall, the first Master of the lodge, and J. Mc Caffery, the popular and genial favourite of all who have the pleasure of calling him friend and brother. Both of them we are pleased to record have just received Her Majesty's commissions as Lieut. in the Coast Brigade, and both leave Woolwich at once to take their respective commands, Bro. Pownall at Dover, and Bro. Mc Caffery at Devonport. The fine hall of Bro. Plaisted's on Anglesea Hill, was crowded with some 150, brethren of the lodge and visitors; among the latter were Bros. Dr. Spurrell, W.M. 615; Prov. G.J.W. for Kent; C. Coupland, P.P.G.J.D. Kent, who is as well an honorary member of the lodge; H. Butter, W.M. 913; E. J. De Salis, A. Penfold, P.M. 913; S. Goddard, P.M. 700; J. D. Hayes, S.W. 913; T. Hutton, J.W. 13; T. Donolly, S. D. 106; J. Porter, 563; A. Thore, 563; A. Jarvis, 913; A. Mabbitt, 913; J. Christie, 836; A. Mc Dougall, 836; A. Hatcham, 153; D. C. Capou, 913; G. H. Baker, 13; A. Upperton, 913; W. J. Light, 299; A. Cleal, 13; G. Mc Coy, G. Mc Lambs, 115; E. Tappenden, 791; F.C. Lyons, 790 and 913; I.G. 700; E. B. Hobson, J.D. 700, T. Hassel, D.C. 13; G. Fraser, 700; A. Hiscock, 13; W. Cobb, 700; and C. Jolly, 913; (Freemason). Bro. G. Spinks, W.M. presided and was supported by the following officers: Bros. W. Weston I.P.M., R. Croisdale, P.M., and P.M., 706; H. Pickern, S.W.; H. Shaw, J.W., W. Murphy, Treasurer. F. G. Pownall, Sec., and P.G. Supt. of Works Kent, and P.M. 13; J. Mc Caffery, S.D.; H. Harding, Org.; A. Brooks, and T. Hollyman, Stewards; and D. Deeves, I.G. The lodge having been duly opened and the minutes and account passed, Quarter-master Serj. Saunderson, R.H.A., was alter ballot and approval initiated into Freemasonry. Bros. Beach, Nollage, and Orchard were then passed to the Second Degree, and Bro. Steadman received the benefit of the Third Degree, the ceremony being worked by the W.M., and his officers in splendid style. Bros. Pownall, McCaffery, and Wright, the latter being D.C., then separately resigned their offices, and placed their collars in the W.M.'s hand, who said he deeply regretted the great loss the lodge sustained by the loss of their services; and it was unanimously resolved that a vote of thanks should be recorded on the minutes of the lodge, and presented to Bros. Pownall and McCaffery, for the valuable services rendered by them to the lodge since its foundation. The lodge was closed, and the brethren reassembled for refreshment. "The Queen and the Craft," and "His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, G.M. of England," were most enthusiastically received, a party of musical brethren, headed by Bro. C. Buckland, playing a verse of the "National Anthem" and "God bless the Prince of Wales," after each toast. The other Masonic toasts followed, and in giving that of the D.G.M. of Kent, and the rest of the P.G. Officers, coupled it with the name of Bro. Dr. Spurrell, who the W.M. assured the brethren took great interest in Freemasonry, and said go where they might east, west, north, or south, where there was charitable work to be done, there they would find Dr. Spurrell. (Loud cheers.) Bro. Spurrell in reply said he came there that night in a double capacity—one was in that of a Provincial Grand Officer, and the other as a personal friend of the W.M. He always felt it a pleasure to visit the United Military Lodge, because it was a treat to see the excellent manner of their working. What was done was done well. During the time he had been in office as a P. officer he had visited a great many lodges, and although most of them did their duties well, yet the precision and perfectness of the working in that lodge was, he felt bound to say, rarely equalled, and never surpassed. (Cheers.) As to Lord Holmesdale, they, who had the honour to know him even in his high office, must admit how jealously he worked, and how unemitting were his exertions for the welfare of Masonry. (Loud cheers.) Bro. Easton, their esteemed D.G.M., and the rest of the G. officers, had but one desire, and that was to promote the interest of every lodge in the province, and especially to care for their grand and munificent charities. (Applause.) He wished them all "A Merry Christmas" and resumed his seat amid rounds of cheers. Bro. Weston then briefly but eloquently proposed the toast of "the W.M." saying that six months ago when they placed their W.M. in that chair, he told them that they must take him for "better or worse," and he (Bro. Weston) believed that the lodge would agree with him when he said that from their W.M. they had had all of the "better" and none of the "worse." (Applause.) The W.M. had by his assiduity set them such an example that he trusted would not be lost upon those who were aspiring to follow in his footsteps. (Cheers.) Bro. Spinkes thanked them for their kind reception of the toast. It was to him highly satisfactory to know that he had their hearty good wishes. At his installation he promised them three things, first that he would strictly maintain discipline in the lodge; secondly efficiency in the working; and thirdly, a strict economy in the use of the funds, consistent with a due regard for their personal comforts, and those promises he intended to fulfil to the letter. (Loud cheers.) He had the best interests of the lodge at heart, and should do everything in his power to promote its prosperity. He wished them the compliments of the season, and concluded with the toast of "Tiney Tim," "God bless us, one and all" (applause). In proposing the next toast, that of "The Officers of the Lodge," the W.M. said he hoped to be excused for travelling upon this occasion rather out of the regular road, but it was one for which he felt sure both the visitors and brethren felt with him a bond of sympathy. Two of their most distinguished officers, Bros. Lieutenants Pownall and McCaffery, were about taking their departure from that garrison. Both had been hard-working officers of that lodge. The name of Bro. Pownall would be carried down to posterity as one of the founders of it, and every candidate for admission into its ranks would be shown the name of Bro. Pownall as the first and most honoured upon its unsullied charter. (Applause.) He asked them to think of what Bro. Pownall had done for its prosperity, and assured them that it was his solemn conviction that if Bro. Pownall had not been its first Master, it never would have been so successful and honoured among the lodges of the province and district as it was that day. (Cheers.) Bro. Pownall had passed the chair in another lodge in Woolwich, the Union Waterloo, and there his name was honoured and known as one of the landmarks of its success (applause), thereby connecting ancient and modern Freemasonry through his association with the two lodges. But it was not alone in the lodges, and in the work therein, that Bro. Pownall's hand and heart had been busy. In every movement, whether of filial respect and love, or in the grand and noble attributes of charity, there first and foremost in all good work stood their esteemed brother and never left his work till it was well finished. (Great cheering.) Let them remember the Grayden memorial, which in Wickham Cemetery stood as one of the noblest examples of what all good Masons felt for departed worth and unblemished honour. (Cheers.) Who had been the moving spirit of that work? Bro. Pownall! Who had worked harder for charitable purposes than Bro. Pownall? There were in those noble institutions, our Masonic Charities, old heads and young hearts, who daily and hourly thanked him for their comfort and education. (Loud cheers.) These were living witnesses of his worth, energy, and determination, and they might well say of him—

"Nor frost, nor rain, nor wind, nor cold,
E'er chilled his glowing breast;
For charity, fair maid of old,
There found a welcome guest.
'Twas there the widowed, orphaned pair,
Soon found a balmy rest;
For soothing all their real grief
Gave to his labour zest.

This Free and Accepted Mason,
One of the present time."

(Great cheering.) Turning to Bro. McCaffery, the W.M. said his career as a Mason was different from Bro. Pownall's, but for him, as a brother, they had but one feeling of affection and esteem. He had begun in that lodge on the very lowest rung of the ladder. At the consecration of it he was D.C. Since then he had been I.G., J.D., and S.D., and in every position he had performed his duties in such an admirable manner that it had been remarked by many visitors and the brethren generally as something worthy of Freemasonry. (Cheers.) His amiability, geniality, and kindness of heart, his ready smile, and invariable courtesy, had made him beloved in the lodge, where he was as well, and that not the least of his qualifications, "The Prince of Harmony," (cheers and laughter)—the veritable "King Cole" of the United Military Lodge. (Renewed applause.) If they took all these talents and qualifications, and blended and united them together, what a combination they had, and all directed for the furtherance of one aim and one object, namely, the prosperity, happiness, and welfare of the lodge. (Cheers.) With such desires what could they not accomplish? What had they not accomplished in the past? And what will they not accomplish in the future? (Cheers.) The W.M. then concluded a brilliant address by saying: "Bros. Pownall and McCaffery, in the name of your lodge, and of the visitors, and myself, I beg most heartily to congratulate you upon the honour your Sovereign has conferred upon you, and to express our wish that T.G.A.O.T.U. may grant you health, strength, and prosperity to enjoy every happiness that this world can afford; and that you may in your new sphere of life, and in your new place of residence, discover fresh fields of labour, and find new paths of usefulness, duty, and honour, and finally lay up for yourself a crown of joy and rejoicing that shall never fade away, but shall continue till time shall be no more. (Loud and continued cheering.) Bro. Pownall, who was deeply affected, rose with Bro. McCaffery, and were greeted with the most enthusiastic cheers, and in reply, said it was impossible for him to express his thanks for the magnificent eulogy paid him by the W.M., and the kind reception the toast had received at the hands of the brethren. He felt that both himself and Bro. McCaffery had done all they could, both in the work of the lodge to promote efficiency, and a thorough carrying out of its duties, and at the social board afterwards to aid in the comfort and happiness of the brethren. (Cheers.) He trusted he had been the means of placing the lodge upon a secure basis, and believed it would make one of the first in the Province of Kent (cheers). He congratulated the junior officers of the lodge upon their prospects, and asked them to imitate Bro. McCaffery, who he declared without fear of contradiction, to be one of the best Deacons he had ever seen work (cheers). When he took the office of their first W.M. he took it with the unanimous wish of the whole of the brethren. He had been exceptionally successful in his Masonic career. He felt it a pride to have the opportunity of helping any one who wanted aid from the Masonic charities. His first attempt in that direction was a most successful one; upon that occasion he had been fortunate enough to get the aged widow of one of their master gunners into the Widows' Asylum, and if ever he felt a pleasurable sentiment of having done some one good in his life it was only the other day, when the old lady called upon him, and with tears in her eyes thanked him for what he had done. (Loud cheers.) His next attempt was for the child of one of their deceased brethren, and there again he had succeeded. He did not attribute that success to himself, but to the kindness of many good friends in sending him their votes. He did not wish to be invidious, but to the brethren of the Pattison Lodge, and more especially Bro. Coupland, he gave most of the credit. (Cheers.) They could not all be successful, but,

"Tis sweet to cheer the aching heart,
The mourner's tear to dry;
We cannot compass all we wish,
But, brethren, let us try."

(Loud and continued Cheers.) Bro. McCaffery said he was truly sorry to leave Woolwich, and the lodge. He had looked forward to one day occupying the chair now filled by their W.M., "but now it was a failure." (Cheers and laughter, and cries of no, no.) When he got to Devonport he should join the best lodge there, and try his best to get into office, and if he did he would show them there how they worked in the United Military Lodge. (Cheers and laughter.) Bro. McCaffery concluded by assuring the brethren that he should always remain a member of the lodge "as long as he lived." Several other toasts followed, and at a late hour the Tyler's toast concluded a memorable evening. We have much pleasure in recording an interesting episode that occurred during the evening. On passing round the charity box the W.M. said the proceeds would be devoted to Bro. Lackland, their Tyler, whose wife had died suddenly the day before, and the handsome sum of £5 17s. was collected.

INSTRUCTION.

UNION WATERLOO LODGE (No. 31).—The members and friends of the above lodge, to the number of fifty, celebrated its fourth anniversary at Bro. Tucker's house, "The Lord Raglan," Burrage-road, Plumstead, on Thursday, the 13th inst., P.M. Govan Macdonald, one of the Preceptors, in the chair, and Bro. P.M. G. Davies, the other Preceptor, in the vice-chair. Bro. Macdonald was supported by Bros. T. E. Hassell, Hon. Secretary; P.M. S. Goddard, Treasurer; G. H. Masters, Assistant Secretary; Randall, Canty, Syer, Farr, Brown, Moore, Hutton, Coltar, Cleal, King, C. Jolly, (Freemason), and others. The excellent and well served dinner prepared by the worthy host having been fully attended to, the Chairman gave in well expressed language "The Queen and the Craft," and "His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, G.M. of England;" Bro. Farr singing a verse of "God save the Queen," and Bro. Hassell one of "God bless the Prince of Wales," after either. The other Masonic toasts followed and were duly honoured. In proposing that which he called the toast of the evening, "Prosperity to the Union Waterloo Lodge of Instruction," the Chairman said he was pleased to say that for the last four years the title of it had been one of continued prosperity, but it was not so much so as it should have been, considering the Woolwich district to be one of the "hotbeds" of Masonry. There were, he could not help feeling a little sorry to say, a great many Masons who never thought of working up until they were promoted to positions in their various lodges; nothing could, in his opinion, be a greater mistake, for proficiency in the lodge of instruction was one of the best and surest roads to recognition in their own lodges, and was one of the greatest adjuncts to Masonic success. (Applause.) He considered lodges of instruction to be the life blood of their Institution, and the foundation of all discipline and regularity in their Order. (Cheers.) He would ask them what could lift a man's heart and mind to the highest attribute of faith, truth, and honour, more than a thorough knowledge and practice of their sublime ritual? It was founded upon that book upon which their faith was founded, and he felt that no man who ever practised the tenets taught in their ritual, their lectures, and their sections, could ever be else but a good man and a good Mason. (Loud cheers.) He hoped, therefore, that they would place their hand upon that lever of Freemasonry, so that it might "flourish as a vine." He then spoke of the benefit done to their charities by lodges of instruction, and said that lodge had its name upon one of them, but he should like to see it like the lodges at New Cross and Deptford, in which there were charitable clubs or institutions, into which by paying one shilling per week they would all in time become life governors of all the charities. (Cheers.) The Star Lodge of Instruction at New Cross, of which he had the honour of being one of the Preceptors, had paid £1000 into the Charities by means of such institutions. (Loud cheers.) He then gave the toast, which was drank most heartily, Bro. G. Davies briefly replied to the toast, and then Bro. Goddard proposed in glowing terms "The Health of Bro. Macdonald," commending his zeal and assiduity, and attributing all the success of the lodge to his patient and increasing efforts. (Cheers.) Bro. Macdonald in reply told them how much he had the prosperity of the lodge at heart, and as they knew his sickness had caused him to be away last year more than he desired to be, but trusted next year with renewed health to be with them again. (Applause.) To the toast of "The Officers of the lodge," Bro. Hassell said they had had forty-seven meetings that year, the number of attendances were 656, or an average of twelve. The income had been £7 19s. 9d., and the expenditure £2 6s. 7d., leaving a balance of £5 13s. 2d. in hand. Bro. Masters as well replied. Bro. Jolly replied for "The Freemason." Several other toasts followed, and the harmony was well sustained by Bros. Farr, Hassell, Moore, Wells, How, and others.

ROYAL ARCH.

JERUSALEM CHAPTER (No. 185).—The last consecration of this very old chapter was held at the Freemasons' Tavern, on Tuesday, the 11th inst., when there were present Comps. Loewenstark, P.Z., acting M.E.Z., in the absence of Comp. Elsam, through indisposition; Wagner, H.; Robinson, J.; Harfield, P.Z., Treas.; Davage, P.Z., S.E.; Mander, S.N.; T. C. Walls, P.S.; Hurst and Davis, acting Assistants; Holbrook, P.Z. Elborn, and Beckett, Janitor. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, the M.E.Z. exalted Bros. Manners, J.G. 1589, and Gispert to the Sublime Degree of the Royal Arch. There being no other business before the convocation it was closed, and the companions adjourned to the banquet, and at its termination the introductory toasts were done full justice to. The Health of the First Principal was proposed by Comp. Harfield in very kind terms, in which he expressed sympathy with the absent Comp. Elsam in his illness. He was pleased, however, that their old Past Principal Loewenstark had been able at so short a notice to undertake the duties of M.E.Z., and which he had discharged so creditably, and in giving the toast he should couple his name with it. The acting M.E.Z. having replied proposed "the Exalted," in the course of his remarks he complimented the chapter upon having enrolled in their ranks that evening two such worthy companions, who would, he was sure, reflect great credit upon the old "Jerusalem." This toast having been most warmly received, Comp. Gispert, in the absence of his co-exalte, briefly replied. "The Health of the Second and Third Principals" gave the M.E.Z. an opportunity of enlarging upon the Masonic ability of Comps. Wagner and Robinson. He said that he personally looked forward to two very prosperous years under their auspices, as he believed that they would spare neither time nor energy to render their respective offices a great success. The companions thus honoured having responded in suitable terms, "The Past Principals," "The Treasurer and S.E.," and "The Officers" came next in order, and those toasts were respectively acknowledged by Comps. Holbrook, P.Z.; Harfield, Treas.; Davage, S.E.; and Mander, S.N. During the proceedings Comps. Mander, Walls, Hurst, and others vocally entertained the members, who separated, after the Janitor's toast, until the second Friday in February next.

BEDFORD.—Stuart Chapter (No. 540).—On Tuesday, December 11th, this chapter met at their rooms at the Swan Hotel, Bedford, when there were present Comps. Alderman, J. R. Bull, J.P., M.E.Z.; Cookson, H.; Cuthbert, J.; Col. Stuart, I.P.Z.; Capt. Colburn, E.; Rev. W. Tebbs, P.S.; Billson, 1st. A.S.; Stafford, and A.S.; Trapp, Treasurer; Thody, Organist; Reynolds, Janitor; and companions of chapter Capt. Nash, Richardson, and Hitchman, (Kettering); Harris, Coombs, Allan, Carter, Ald. Sergeant, Linsell (Biggleswade); Lambie (Luton); Broughton Smith, with visiting Comp. Biggs, of Bedford Chapter, Tavistock, 282. A satisfactory reason was given for the absence of Comp. Fisher, N., whose duties were ably performed by Comp. Colburn. The minutes of the former chapter having been read and confirmed, Bro. Samuel Leach Kilpin, of "Stuart" Lodge, was then balloted for, and having proved unanimously acceptable was exalted together with Bro. Walter Higgins of "St. John the Baptist" Lodge (Luton), who had been balloted for at the last chapter, but prevented by ill health from proceeding to exaltation. As usual in this chapter the ceremony was admirably performed by every officer concerned; indeed the working was so good as to call for express praise from Col. Stuart, who as a P.G.J. as well as being a Mason of deep research and many years' experience is well qualified to express an opinion. The officers for the ensuing year were then unanimously elected as under:—Comps. Cookson, M.E.Z.; Cuthbert, H.; Fisher, J.; Colburn, E.; Tebbs, N.; Billson, P.S.; Carter, Treasurer; and Reynolds, Janitor. The Audit Committee, consisting of the officers of the chapter, was then appointed, when there being no further business the chapter was closed. Twenty-three companions sat down to an excellent supper, after which the usual toasts were well given and received, the proceedings being enlivened by the excellent singing of Comps. Biggs, Sergeant, Cookson, Stafford, and Carter. A well-spent and enjoyable evening thus came to a close, and the companions separated until March, which convocation is now that upon which the annual banquet is to be held.

Red Cross of Constantine.

ORIGINAL OR PREMIER CONCLAVE OF ENGLAND (Acting by Immemorial Constitution).—A meeting of the above conclave was held on Monday, 1st inst., at the Freemasons' Tavern, presided over by V. Ill. Sir Kt. Rev. Dr. Brette, G.H. Prelate, M.P.S., assisted by Sir Kt. John Thomas Moss, P.S. Eusebius; Sir Kts. Robert Wentworth Little, P.S.; H.C. Levander, P.S.; Thomas Cubitt, P.S.; H.A. Dubois, P.S.; George Kenning, P.S.; Rev. P. M. Holden, J. Mason, T. Kingston, Joshua Nunn, Shirley, Townsend, Mather, Letchworth, Parker, Colonel Peters, Cockle, and others. Visitor: Sir Kt. Lambert, Plantagenet Conclave. The minutes of the last conclave were read and confirmed. It was proposed, seconded, and carried, that the future meetings of the conclave be held at the Freemasons' Tavern. The Sir Knights dined together, the usual toasts being most ably proposed by the M.P.S.

[The following reports were received too late for insertion under their proper heading.]

DOMATIC LODGE (No. 177).—This old-established lodge met at Anderton's Hotel, on Friday, the 14th inst., under the presidency of Bro. J. Willing, W.M., who after his usual perfect rendering of the ceremonies, proceeded with the election of W.M., Treasurer, &c., for the ensuing year, resulting in the unanimous choice of Bro. J. Buscall, J.W., to the Worshipful Masters' chair. Bro. Smith, P.M., P.G.P., was also unanimously re-elected Treasurer. The lodge adjourned to banquet, presided over by the W.M., and honoured by numerous visitors.

ECLECTIC LODGE (No. 1201).—The following were present at the meeting of this lodge, as reported at page 571: Bros. J. Sear, 1224; T. K. Smith, Ivy, 1441; W. E. G. Pearce, St. Mary's, 60; Jas. Stevens, The Great City, P.M. 1426, 1216; Jno. Syer, 1017; A. Allworth, Golden Rule, 1261; A. Botibol, Joppa, 188; J. E. Beckett, Golden Rule, 1261; C. J. Read, Vaux, 393; Dr. E. Payne, Golden Rule, 1261. A. F. Tontine, Finsbury, 861; S. Botibol, Joppa, 188; A. Sedgwick Wooley, Adelphi, 1670.

METROPOLITAN LODGE (No. 1507).—The usual monthly meeting was held at Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-street, on Wednesday, the 19th inst. Bro. R. T. Kingham, W.M., presided, supported by Bros. J. Willing, P.M., Treas.; J. Williams, I.P.M.; W.M. Stiles, Sec. and J.D.; W. Side, S.D.; Colls, I.G.; H. Stiles, D.C.; G. Clark, W.S.; H. Lovegrove, Steward and Assist. Sec. The lodge having been opened, Bro. H. Clark and G. J. Barton were raised to the degree of Master Mason. Bros. T. Lea, Channing, Garrett, J. Ford, and J. J. Steele were passed to the Second Degree. Bros. J. Gawith and F. H. Clemow were elected joining members. After ballot, Messrs. R. Kearns, S. Ward, C. G. Cruikshanks, and J. H. Grant were duly initiated into the mysteries of the Order. Some other business having been transacted, the lodge was closed and the brethren adjourned to the banquet. Bros. Read, Rees, Brown, and several others were visitors, and made suitable speeches in response to the toast of "The Visitors," several highly complimenting the Master on the efficient working of the lodge.

SUNDERLAND.—Palatine Lodge (No. 97).—On Thursday, the 13th December, the installation of Bro. Taylorson Sharp, S.W., took place at the Masonic Hall, Park Terrace. The lodge was opened at four o'clock by the W.M., Bro. Thos. Twizell, and the minutes were read and confirmed. Bro. T. Sharp was then duly installed in the chair of K.S. by the retiring W.M., in a most able and impressive manner, in the presence of about twenty Masters and Past Masters. The newly installed W.M. then invested his officers for the ensuing year as follows: Bros. Thos. Twizell, I.P.M.; J. W. Horsfield, S.W.; T. M. Watson, J.W.; M. Allison, P.M., Treas.; H. Tomkinson, Sec.; J. H. Leech, S.D.; A. J. Wardroper, J.D.; W. Skelton, P.M., D.C.; J. S. Bentley, Organist; G. C. Watson, I.G.; G. O. Tawse and A. F. Amundsen, Stewards; Chas. Cobham and H. Fryer, Auditors; J. Thompson, Tyler. The lodge was then closed by the W.M., after which the brethren, numbering about fifty, sat down to a sumptuous dinner provided in the banquet hall. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts having been given, "The Health of the Newly installed W.M." was then proposed by Bro. Thos. Twizell, I.P.M., which was responded to in a feeling manner. The harmony of the evening was greatly enhanced by the musical ability displayed by several of the brethren.

BATH.—Royal Cumberland Chapter, (No. 41). On Tuesday Dec. 18th., a regular meeting was held for the installation of the new officers appointed last month, but was scantily attended from two causes, namely, the near approach of Christmas, and illness of some of the members. The chair was taken at 6.15 by Ex. Comp. George Parfitt P.Z., acting as Z. at the request of the M.E.Z.; Curey, H.; Hill, J. There were also present Ex. Comp. Moutrie, P.Z. and Treasurer; Keene, P.Z.; Dr. Hopkins, P.Z. 328, 587, 710; Comp. Hearne, E.; Brown N.; Falkner, as P. Soj.; Graham as S. Soj.; Hunt as J. Soj.; and several members; also Ex. Comp. Walker, H. 53. The chapter having been opened, the minutes were read and confirmed. The acting Z., in feeling terms, reported the illness of Ex. Comp. Thompson, M.E.Z. Jas. Parfitt, P.Z., and Jelly, P.Z. of so serious a character as to cause directions to be given to Scribe E. to send letters of sincere condolence to each of them. Comp. Young, who had been appointed Scribe N., at the last meeting having declined to take office under medical advice, a ballot was taken for Comp. Falkner as N., and for Comp. Williamson in his place as P. Soj., which proved favourable. The Treasurer read the report of the finances as audited, which was passed and ordered to be entered on the minutes. A clear ballot was taken for Bros. Hayward and Stuckey as candidates for exaltation at the next meeting. A resolution of which notice had been given, as to a donation of £5 to one of the charities, was directed to be held in suspense for the present, owing to the illness of the M.E.Z., who had proposed to represent the chapter as a Steward at the annual meeting in February, and to have the amount placed on his list. All offices were then declared vacant, the companions who were not Principals retired, Ex. Comp. Parfitt left the chair of Z., which was taken by Ex. Comp. Dr. Hopkins, to whom Ex. Comp. Carey was presented, and received from him the benefit of installation as Z. Ex. Comp. Hill was then in like manner presented and duly installed as H. Lastly, the Installing Principal completed the work by placing Comp. Hearne in the chair of J., in the usual form. The Board of Installed Principals was closed, the companions re-entered, and the new Principals were duly saluted and proclaimed. The following officers were invested: Brown, E.; Falkner, N.; Moutrie, P.Z., Treas.; Williamson, P. Soj.; and Bigwood, Janitor. The appointment of Assist. Sojs. was deferred. Three candidates for exaltation were proposed, and their names and qualifications recorded by Scribe E. On the proposition of the M.E.Z., votes of thanks were passed to Ex. Comp. George Parfitt, for his readiness in conducting the early proceedings of the evening, in place of the invalid chief of the chapter; to Dr. Hopkins for the care and ability with which he had worked the three ceremonies of installation of Principals; and to Ex. Comp. Walker for his attendance as a visitor. The resignation of membership by a companion who has left Bath was accepted. The chapter was closed at 8.30 p.m., and a small party adjourned to the Castle Hotel for refreshment and social intercourse.

SHEFFIELD.—Wentworth Lodge, (No. 1239).—The annual festival of this prosperous lodge was held on Monday, the 3rd inst. The lodge was opened at five o'clock by the out-going W.M., Bro. S.B. Ellis, assisted by his officers and the whole of the P.M.'s. After having disposed of some routine work Bro. Ellis at once proceeded to instal his successor, Bro. W. R. Thomas, M.D., which having been performed Bro. Thomas appointed and invested his officers as follows, Bros. S. B. Ellis, I.P.M.; R. Renton, S.W.; John Clark, J.W.; H. J. Garnett, P.M.; Treas. (re-elected), Chas. Hill, Sec. J. E. Darling, S.D.; H. T. E. Holmes, J. D.; J. Broadhead, I.G.; H. Nixon, Senr. Steward, and Thos. Blair, junr. Steward. Bro. Tindell, P.M.; was re-elected Charity Steward on the Provincial Committee. Amongst the visitors we noticed the D.P.G.M. Bro. T. W. Tew, J.P.; Bros. Dr. Bartolomé, P.P.G.W.; (42 years a Freemason, the oldest in Sheffield) C. F. Matier, P.G.W. Greece; T. M. Ramplen, P.P.G.D. Linc.; M. B. Whytehead, W.M.; 1611, York; W. Jervis, W.M. 139; G. E. Webster, W.M.; elect 139; W. Nicholson, W.M. elect, 296; B. Saville, W.M. 904; Rotherham, W. W. Jendwine, W.M.; 681, Chesterfield, and a very many others. A good deal of interest was taken, as this was not only the first installation in the New Hall, but Bro. Ellis was the first W.M. of the Wentworth Lodge to instal his successor. The ceremony, over the brethren repaired to the banquet, which was well served in the spacious banquetting room. The chair was most ably filled by the new W.M., Bro. Dr. Thomas, who gave the Royal and Masonic toasts with good taste. The toast of the evening, "The W.M.," was ably given by Bro. P.M. Garnett, and was received with enthusiasm. Bro. Thomas having suitably replied, the toast of "The Installing Master, Bro. S. B. Ellis, I.P.M.," was given, wherein Bro. Ellis was congratulated on the perfect manner in which he had performed the onerous duties of his year of office, which ability he had kept up to the last, as was shown by the excellent style in which he had that evening installed his successor. Bro. Ellis having acknowledged these high compliments, the remainder of the toast list was gone through, that of "The Sister Lodges in Sheffield," also that of "The Visitors" being exceedingly well received and ably responded to. Bro. Buckley presided at the organ in lodge, and also presided at the piano, so, with songs and recitations between the toasts, the evening was truly enjoyable and flew but too fast. The bill of fare and toast list were very much admired, being interspersed with most appropriate and happy Shakespearian quotations; altogether the Wentworth Lodge is to be congratulated on its last success, and with such a W.M. as our Bro. Thomas and his excellent staff of officers there is a future equally as bright as its past.

LONDON MASONIC CLUB LODGE OF INSTRUCTION (No. 58).—A meeting was held on Monday, 10th inst., at 101, Queen Victoria-street, E.C. Present: Bros. C. E. Smith, W.M.; Langton S.W.; W. Sharrett, J.W.; J. E. Shand, Sec.; C. J. Hogg, Treas.; Turner, S.D.; Triggs, J.D.; Bauman, I.G.; W. Smallpeice, Preceptor; Strauss, White, and others. Visitors: Bros. Marner, 1673; W. Legg, P.M., &c. Lodge opened in due form, and minutes of last meeting were approved. The ceremony of initiation was rehearsed. Lodge advanced to Third Degree, and ceremony worked. Lodge closed down to First Degree. Bro. Langton was elected W.M., at next meeting. Two brethren were elected members of lodge. The next meeting was adjourned over the Christmas festivities, until Monday, January 13th, 1878, at six o'clock.

MOUNT SINAI CHAPTER (No. 19).—A conclave of this chapter was held at Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-street, on Tuesday, 18th inst. Present: Comps. Rev. J. M. Vaughan, M.E.Z.; W. T. Worthington, acting H.; Geo. Read, J.; Joseph Smith, P.Z., Treasurer; E. B. Grabham, Scribe E.; Lewis Bryett, P.S.; W. Game, Second Assistant. The minutes of the previous convocation having been read and confirmed, Comp. Joseph Smith, P.Z., then rose and announced the decease of a well known and worthy companion of the chapter, Comp. Thomas Lewis Fox, one of the oldest Past Principals of the chapter, whose many excellent qualities endeared him to a large circle of friends, both in and out of Masonry; he moved a vote of condolence to his widow and family. Comp. Birch, P.Z., seconded the resolution, which was carried unanimously. There being no candidates for exaltation, the chapter was closed and the companions adjourned to banquet, presided over by the M.E.Z.

CONCERNING FREEMASONRY AND ITS SECRETS.

The following asks questions we often asked before becoming a member of the Masonic brotherhood or fraternity. To the letter, and the replies to its questions, we invite attention, as we answer the truth and a disposition to give correct information.

Freemasonry is not a religious Order but the result of efforts to establish a great brotherhood. At the building of Solomon's Temple armies of men were employed. They were men skilled in their various crafts. To have been a workman on that Temple was considered a good certificate or recommendation on which to travel in search of work. The enterprise gave birth to a necessity for good workmen to organise, as poor workmen who could not hold situations were in the habit of going about the country claiming to have been employed in responsible positions on the Temple. They were both tradesmen, and by their pretensions received work from other parties which they did not do well, and thus wronged the one who gave them confidence, and brought discredit on the thousands who were of the best workmen and engaged on the grandest edifice ever built by human hands. Thus arose the necessity for an organisation of excellence which was suggested by the builders of the Temple. It gave then and there the result—

A brotherhood of Masons, who were free men, builders, duly empowered to make contracts for themselves. Free Masons, accepted in the brotherhood as they were good Masons, builders. Signs, grips and passwords, whereby they came to know each other, and thus able to talk of the plans of the Temple, which were by order of King Solomon kept secret.

These architects, free men, free and accepted Masons, were given the plans, designs and models of the Temple, as they came from the wise men who were the planners thereof.

The room where the plans were lodged or kept under guard, was the lodge room. To this room, those who had the signs, grips, and passwords had free access at all times, because they were men who were free, who would have no excuse for telling of the plans or the secrets as slaves might have been forced to tell.

As the wall grew, none but Free and Accepted Masons were admitted to the enclosure surrounding the Temple. As the elder members of the brotherhood needed assistants, they vouched for the character of those who became apprentices, and who were afterwards made Fellow Craft, or workers under instruction, and finally elected and made Master Masons.

Then they could come and go, free of delay at the gates. When called to their homes, they could obtain employment and wages on their return. When travelling in foreign countries they could tell who were impostors and who had been really workers on the Temple.

As the Temple was dedicated to the glory of God, no person who did not openly profess the belief in God or the Great Power of Light, Love, Power, Wonder, and Mercy, could be engaged on the edifice, lest it be profaned; the character of the builders was strictly in accord with the design of the Temple, a grand, a glorious edifice, with none but God-like influence suffered to touch its material. Hence you see the necessity for secrecy, as the builders were sworn not to reveal the plans, nor to admit as helpers persons not made Masons by the solemn ceremonies of the lodge room.

The brotherhood grew and grew. Men who died while at work were buried. Men who were sick, were cared for. The families of these Free Men were held sacred among Free Masons. They became a grand, united, harmonious brotherhood, keeping the secrets of Solomon, doing their best work on the Temple, caring for each other and the various jewels given them as presents by the king, and the jewels of children given them by God, while at work on the wondrous edifice.

The institution grew apace and took rich root in the minds of men that it has outlived the Temple built by the Free and Accepted Masons, as the spirit outlives the material it once actuated. As Solomon wished to glorify God, so did Masonry arise and grow under the same inspiration.—Pomeroy's Democrat.

ARTIFICIAL GEMS.—MM. Feil and Fremy, at last week's meeting of the Paris Academy of Sciences, read a paper describing a new process for the manufacture of rubies and other precious stones. The sensation created by these wonderful experiments has been so general that the Association of Jewellers have written to some of the papers stating that it was impossible for human art to compete against nature, that mysterious maker having at her disposal an indefinite number of centuries, which is not the case with any human worker. M. Daubree, the Director of the School of Mines, has expressed the wish to open, in the public museum of that magnificent establishment, a gallery for the exhibition of minerals produced artificially. M. Feil has already produced in his glass foundry, and by the same process as rubies, an immense number of stones, which can be compared with the most admirable crystalline productions of nature. Some of them are so inexpensive that they may be used for ordinary decorative purposes.—Nature.

THE ORDER OF THE TEMPLE.

H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, Grand Master of the Order, has been pleased to appoint Bro. Emma Holmes a Knight Commander of the Temple, in recognition of his services on the Ritual Commission. Bro. Holmes some time since contributed a series of antiquarian articles to the Freemason, entitled "Notes on the United Orders of the Temple and Hospital," which attracted a good deal of attention at the time, and were translated into French, and republished in the pages of La Verité, and quoted in the American and other Masonic journals.

For the information of our readers we may state that the Queen is Patron of the Order, and amongst the Knights Grand Cross we note the names of the Prince of Wales, the Emperor of Germany, the King of Sweden, the Crown Prince of Germany, the Crown Prince of Denmark, Prince John of Glucksburg, Lord Skelmersdale (Seneschal), the Earl of Limerick, the Earl of Charlemont (Great Marshal), &c.

The late Earl of Shrewsbury was installed Great Prior of England, last December, in succession to the Earl of Limerick, and Lord Skelmersdale has just been appointed to the office vacant by the death of that popular nobleman.

The Duke of Connaught has been recently appointed Great Prior of Ireland, in succession to the Marquis Conyngham, and it was hoped that Prince Leopold would have filled the English throne, but his ill-health, we believe, prevented acceptance of a position in which most Templars would have been glad to see the genial and kindly Prince raised. Amongst the officers of the Order are Sir Patrick Colquhoun (late Chief Justice of the Ionian Islands), who is Arch Registrar; the Hon. Judge Townshend, Arch Chancellor; Lord Dunboyne, Standard Bearer; Viscount Newry, Grand Master's Banner Bearer; and General Doherty, C.B., is Aide-de-Camp. — Civil Service Review.

WHAT IS CHIVALRY?

"The glory of our Troy this day doth lie
On his fair worth and single chivalry;
By his light did all the Chivalry of England move to do
Brave acts in deeds of war."

Thus sang the poet in praise of boldness and gallantry. The qualification that endows the man of force with the spirit of nobleness in all its relations of life, and makes him respected as a gallant hero in the most trifling of things, is that of dignity, courtesy, and the practice of humane principles. Chivalry requires obedience to contracts, as well as valour in arms; it demands dexterity in all matters touching error or the destruction of truth; it calls to action the finer senses of our natures when the great law of right is trampled upon; nay, it teaches manly courage as a virtue, and gives purity to enthusiasm, and dignifies love by raising it above the passions of the brute. If chivalry were understood and made the acme of every act done by man, it would drive from the face of the earth all cruelty, injustice, and oppression. It would do more, because it would sanctify the love that is innate in all humanity, and cause rejoicing where now is lamentation and suffering. To be chivalrous is to be honest and virtuous, inasmuch as they that are honest are emblems of truth, and they that are virtuous are types of heavenly hosts. Templarism is styled chivalric because it aims to teach the neophyte the laws of gratitude and protection; because it weaves around its votaries the chain of fraternal obligation to defend the weak and succour the law of light; because it encourages art and science, and fosters literature and education; because it plants the seeds of reverence for those things that are holy above, and for the things that are good below. Chivalry takes upon itself many forms of development, yet in each form or variety of it there are clearly defined the principles upon which she moves and has her being. Look toward the explorer, the navigator, the discoverer—toward the warrior, the hero and heroine of brave deeds—toward the statesman, jurist, and director, that have achieved success and brilliancy—toward the humble donor of half of his worldly wealth, even though it be a sennep, or a million of them, to the needy—toward those who can afford a charitable thought to their enemies, or those who can forget self in a kind act to their neighbour, and observe the hand of chivalry marking well the beat of her inward glory. Was there not chivalry in the act of the poor peasant fisherman who, in the face of death, manned his frail boat and rescued a number of passengers from the ill-fated steamer that stranded upon Long Island shore a few years ago? Was there not chivalry in the act of the beggar when he dragged the man out from a quagmire who had refused him a miserable pittance but a few hours before? Is there no chivalry, in fact, in all things that partake of bravery or nobleness—in all thoughts and deeds that have for motive the benefit of humanity? Nay, it is chivalrous to be honest and true, not only to yourselves, but to all of your fellow creatures. A noble or generous act begets emulation as well as praise; it also moves the heart to forbearance, and inspires youth and age alike to go forward and manfully battle for right as against wrong, for justice against tyranny, for liberty against despotism. Such, Sir Knights, is chivalry! Let us practise it. To posts—march! — N. Y. Dispatch.

THE WESTMINSTER PLAY.—The following were among those present at the Play on Tuesday night:—Earl of Devon, Sir Robert Phillimore, the Bishop of St. Alban's, the Master of the Rolls, Mr. Justice Denman, Mr. Justice Lopes, Lord Justice Baggallay, Canon Farrar, Canon Jeffreys, Admiral Phillimore, the High Master of St. Paul's, Dr. Walter Phillimore, Mr. C. B. Phillimore, Mr. Spottiswoode, General Goodenough, Colonel Goodenough, &c.

HANNAH IRWIN ISRAEL.

A MASONIC ANECDOTE OF THE REVOLUTION.

Bro Israel Israel (afterwards Grand Master Mason of Pennsylvania), the husband of this lady, was one of the Committee of Safety. On a visit to his mother's dwelling, he found it in possession of several soldiers quartered on the family. While the family was seated at supper, the house was surrounded and Israel taken prisoner as a rebel. He convinced them of their error by saying it was his brother Joseph. This was done merely to gain time.

Having bid adieu to his family, Mr. Israel set forth on his journey homeward, he having arrived only to be made a prisoner. The loyalist who had given him the countersign had betrayed the secret of his expedition. He and his wife's brother were immediately seized and carried on board the frigate Roebuck, lying in the Delaware, a few miles from the then borough of Wilmington, and directly opposite his farm, in order to be tried as spies.

Being one of the Committee of Safety, the position of Mr. Israel, under such an accusation, was extremely critical. On board the ship he was treated with the utmost severity. His watch, silver shoe-buckles, and various articles of clothing, were taken from him; his bed was a coil of rope on deck, without covering from the bitter cold of the night air; and, to all appearance, his fate was already decided. The testimony of his Tory neighbours was strong against him. Several were ready to swear to the fact that, while the loyal population of the country willingly furnished their share of the provisions needed by the ships of war, he had been heard to say repeatedly that he "would sooner drive his cattle as a present to General Washington than receive thousands of dollars in British gold for them."

On being informed of this speech, the commander gave orders that a detachment of soldiers should proceed to drive the rebel's cattle, then grazing in a meadow in full view, down the river, and slaughter them in the face of the prisoner.

What, meanwhile, must have been the thoughts of the young wife, herself about to become a mother, when her husband and brother were led away in her very sight? The farm was a mile or more from the river, but there was nothing to intercept the view, the ground from the meadow sloping down to the water. Mrs. Israel was at this period about nineteen years of age, and is described as of slight, but symmetrical figure; of fair complexion, with clear blue eyes and dark hair; her manner modest and retiring. She was devoted to her family and her domestic concerns. It needed the trying scenes by which she was surrounded to develop the heroism which, in times more peaceful, might have been unmarked by those who knew her most intimately.

From her position on the look-out she saw the soldiers land from the ship, shoulder arms, and advance towards the meadow. In an instant she divined their purpose, and her resolution was taken. With a boy eight years old, whom she bade follow her at his utmost speed, she started off, determined to baffle the enemy and save the cattle at the peril of her life. Down went the bars, and followed by the little boy, she ran to drive the herd to the open lot. The soldiers called out repeatedly to her to desist, and threatened, if she did not, to fire on her.

"Fire away!" cried the heroic woman.

They fired. The balls flew quickly around her. The frightened cattle ran in every direction over the field.

"This way!" she called to the boy, nothing daunted; "this way, Joe! Head them there! Stop them, Joe! Do not let one escape!"

And not one did escape! The bullets fired by the cowardly British soldiers continued to whistle around her person. The little boy, paralyzed with terror, fell to the ground. She seized him by the arms, lifted him over the fence, and herself drove the cattle into the barnyard. The assailants, baffled by the courage of a woman, and probably not daring, for fear of the neighbours, to invade the farm-house, retraced their steps, and returned disappointed to the ship.

All this scene passed in the sight of the officers of the Roebuck and the two prisoners. The agony of suspense and fear endured by the husband and brother, when they saw the danger to which the wife exposed herself, may be better imagined than described. It may also be conceived how much they exulted in her triumph.

The trial was heard on board the ship. The Tory witnesses were examined in due form, and it was but too evident that the lives of the prisoners were in great danger. A kind-hearted sailor sought an opportunity of speaking in private with Mr. Israel, and asked him if he was a Freemason. The answer was in the affirmative. The sailor then informed him that a lodge was held on shipboard, and the officers who belonged to it were to meet to-night.

The prisoners were called up before their judges, and permitted to answer the accusation against them. Mr. Israel, in bold but respectful language, related his story and acknowledged his secret visit to Philadelphia, not in the character of a spy, but to carry relief to his suffering parent and her family. He also acknowledged having said, as was testified, that "he would rather give his cattle to Washington, or destroy the whole herd, than to sell them for British gold." This trait of magnanimity might not have been so appreciated by the enemies of his country as to operate in his favour, but that, watching his opportunity, he made to the commanding officer the secret sign of Masonic brotherhood. The effect was instantly observable. The officer's stern countenance softened, his change of opinion and that of the other judges became evident, and after some further examination, the court was broken up. The informants, and those who had borne testimony against the prisoners, hung their heads in shame at the severe rebuke of the court for their cowardly conduct in betraying and preferring charges against an honourable man, bound on a mission of love and duty to his aged mother. The acquitted prisoners were dismissed, loaded with presents of pins, handkerchiefs, and other articles not to be purchased at that time, for the intrepid wife, and were sent on shore in a splendid barge, as a mark of special honour from the officer in command.—LOSSING'S FIELD BOOK OF THE REVOLUTION.

A "GENTLEMAN MASON."

1. It is not generally known that "Speculative Masons" were once called "Gentleman Masons." The following catechism occurs in some of the old lectures of the last century:

Q. What do you learn by being a Gentleman Mason?
A. Secrecy, Morality, and Good-Fellowship.

Q. What do you learn by being an Operative Mason?
A. Hew, Square, Mould Stone, Lay a Level, and Raise a Perpendicular?

Every Son of Hiram is a gentleman—he is a gentleman—in the Masonic parlance of olden times.

2. According to the Roman Law, "gensmen or gentlemen, were those only who had a family name, were born of free parents, had no slave in their ancestral line, and had never been degraded to a lower rank.

3. The following definitions of "a gentleman" might well be applied to every genuine Mason:—

"He that can enjoy the intimacy of the Great, and on no occasion disgust them by familiarity or disgrace himself by servility, proves that he is as perfect a Gentleman by nature as his companions are by rank. (Colton).

"A Christian is God Almighty's Gentleman: a Gentleman in the vulgar, superficial way of understanding the word, is the Devil's Gentleman. But to throw aside these polished and too current counterfeits for something valuable and sterling, the real Gentleman should be gentle in everything, at least in everything that depends on himself—in carriage temper, construction, aims, desires. He ought therefore, to be mild, calm, quiet, even, temperate, not hasty in judgment, not exorbitant in ambition, not overbearing, not proud, not rapacious, not oppressive; for these things are contrary to gentleness. Many such gentlemen are to be found, I trust; and many more would be were the true meaning of the name borne in mind and duly inculcated." (HARRIS.)

4. But when a man or brother in our Order of "the Level and the Square," arrogates among "the Sons of Light" to himself the name of "a gentleman," he deserves to be designated by an epithet, wherewith Thackeray called George IV., who considered himself "the greatest gentleman in Europe." Such a brother's conduct becomes very offensive, and he may stand in need of being reminded of Tennyson's words:—

"The grand old name of gentleman

Defamed by every charlatan.

And soild with all ignoble use."

For "a real gentleman" will seldom or never make pretensions to gentility which is an airy and mere borrowed thing from "dead men's dust and bones." A worthy brother, therefore, will make his gentility by his affable manners, his courteous deportment, his superior education, and his general zealous Masonic conduct.

5. And sometimes we may meet with (perhaps) a gentleman in the Roman sense, but who is what is commonly called "a gentleman of the four outs," i.e. a vulgar upstart, without manners, without University education, without money, and without credit.—Australian Freemason.

MASONIC DIARY FOR 1878.

"The Cosmopolitan Masonic Calendar, Diary, and Pocket Book for 1878" has just been issued by Mr. George Kenning, of 198, Fleet-street, London. The matter is admirably arranged, and the information as to Masonic bodies and lodges in this country and throughout the world, is the most complete which has yet been published. A full list is given of the office-bearers of the United Grand Lodges of England, of Scotland, and of Ireland, as well of the Provincial Grand Masters, District Grand Masters, and Grand Stewards. To facilitate reference the lodges are given in two lists, one according to their numbers, and the other under the names of the respective towns in which they meet. The names of the whole of the office-bearers in the Supreme Grand Chapter of Royal Arch Masons and the list of Royal Arch Chapters follow, with the duplicate arrangements before noted. There is equally full information as to the Grand Lodge of Mark Master Masons, with the roll of lodges; the Great Priory of the United Orders of the Temple and Malta of England and Wales, with the roll of preceptories; and other Masonic orders, both in this country, on the Continent, and in America.—The Manchester Courier.

THE ROYAL ACADEMY OF MUSIC.—The Balfie Scholarship of the Royal Academy of Music was competed for on Tuesday. The examiners were Mr. H. C. Bonister, Mr. H. C. Lunn, Mr. A. Randegger, Dr. Steggall, and the principal, Professor Macfarren. There were six candidates, and the scholarship was awarded to Percy Stranders. The Westmoreland Scholarship and Potter Exhibition were competed for the same day. For the Westmoreland, the examiners were Mr. J. F. Cox, Mr. H. C. Lunn, Mr. Walter Macfarren, Mr. A. Randegger, Dr. Steggall, and the Principal. There were eighteen candidates, and the scholarship was awarded to Marian Williams (re-elected). The Potter Exhibition, for which there were eight candidates, was awarded to F. W. Bampfylde. The examiners were Mr. H. C. Lunn, Mr. Walter Macfarren, Dr. Steggall, and the Principal.

Masonic and General Tidings.

The Consecration of the Windrush Lodge, No. 1703, took place on Friday, the 21st inst., at the Corn Exchange, Witney.

We understand that it is the intention of our brethren in the province of Hertfordshire, to present to Bro. George Lambert, 3rd, a portrait of himself, painted in oil.

At a meeting of the Royal Athelstan Lodge, No. 19, held at the Cannon-street Hotel, on Thursday, 13th inst., Bro. John Charles was unanimously elected Worshipful Master for the ensuing year, owing to the recent sudden death of Bro. T. L. Fox, of H. M. Stationery Office, and for many years a much respected Past Master of the lodge, the brethren appeared in mourning as, a slight mark of the esteem in which he was held.

We are pleased to hear that Bro. George Attenborough is steadily recovering from the effects of the carriage accident which recently befel him.—City Press.

Bro. Julius Charles Frank, P.M. Euphrates Lodge, 219, has established himself as a translator of languages, at 3, Newman's-court, Cornhill.

Even Masonic secrets will "out." It is proposed to make Sir James McGarel Hogg, one of the respected representatives of the city of Truro in Parliament, a member of the "Phoenix Lodge of Honour and Prudence;" and a worthy "brother"—forgetful alike of the virtues indicated by the name of his lodge and of the momentous oath by which, it is said, he is bound to secrecy—let the cat out of the bag in the West Briton. We have heard ominous murmurings anent this crime of publishing to the Gentile world a secret of the sacred fraternity, and doubtless the dear but erring "brother" will have to suffer some dread punishment. "So mote it be!"—Royal Cornwall Gazette.

"The Gossips' Bowl," is the title of the Christmas number of the Illustrated Sporting and Dramatic News, including a splendid coloured picture of most attractive character, by J. T. Lucas, entitled "Chips of the Old Block!" Numerous illustrations by distinguished artists are also given. Stories, poems, drama, &c., by well-known authors. The leading story is by Miss M. E. Braddon, author of "Lady Audley's Secret." It is certainly one of the best Christmas numbers of 1877.

The damages occasioned to the National Hospital for Diseases of the Heart and Paralysis, Boho-square, through the recent gales, have, on further examination, proved more serious than was at first anticipated, and has rendered it necessary that the entire building be placed under repair. Owing to the critical state of some of the patients, the hospital is but partially closed, and an earnest appeal for funds at once to repair the damages and to re-open all the wards has been made by their Treasurer, the Earl of Glasgow. In the meantime the committee are obliged to refuse daily pressing applications.

The Annual Ball of the Norse Rowing Club will be held at Willis's Rooms, King Street, St. James's, on Friday, January, 11th, 1878, under the patronage of His Grace the Duke of Buccleugh and Queensbury, K.C.

There was a Cabinet Council held on Tuesday last, the result of which was an announcement that Parliament will meet on the 17th of January, or about three weeks earlier than usual.

The Masonic Hall, Kirkdale-road, Liverpool, has been purchased by the Roman Catholics, and will be opened immediately as a chapel, dedicated to St. Alphonsus Liguori. This, it ought to be stated, is a comparatively small hall at the north end of the town, and as its accommodation has been found too limited for the increasing number of lodges and brethren in this district, another larger building is now in course of erection, which will probably be opened early in the year with Masonic ceremonies.

It had been arranged that the Queen and Princess Beatrice were to leave Windsor Castle on Wednesday next for Osborne. On Saturday evening, however, upon the return of the Queen to Windsor Castle, after visiting Lord Beaconsfield at Hughenden, her Majesty altered her determination, and she will now pass Christmas at Windsor Castle.

REGISTERED LETTERS.—In the changed system of registration which will come into use on Jan. 1, it will be important to note that the new envelopes bearing a twopenny stamp for the payment of the registration fee only must have affixed to them the necessary stamp or stamps for postage, and must not be dropped into a letter-box, but must be given to an agent of the post-office. The envelopes are stoutly lined with linen, and fasten at one end very securely. For the convenience of persons living in country places, where no post-office is near, letters will be registered by rural post messengers, who will receive letters for registration on their outward and on their inward walks, whenever it is practicable for them to do so. In the event of a registered letter containing an enclosure of intrinsic value or its contents being lost while passing through the post, the department will, under certain regulations, make good the value of the contents up to £2. Inland letters containing coin, jewellery, or watches, cannot be sent unregistered. If dropped into a letter box, they will, as heretofore, be registered by the post-office, and charged on delivery with a registration fee of 8d; a similar fee of 8d, will be charged on letters (without regard to their contents) marked "Registered," but posted unregistered instead of being given to a post-office servant. No letter containing coin, jewellery, or watches, can be sent, even if registered, to any foreign country. The Postmaster-General hopes that when registration is made so cheap and so easy the public will altogether abstain from sending letters containing enclosures of value through the post unregistered.

At a meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge of North Wales and Shropshire on Friday, the 14th inst. a sum of £50 was voted from the Grand Lodge funds to the widow of the late Bro. Dr. Goldsbro'. A sum of £100 was also voted to the purchase of a vice patronship in the Masonic Boys School, and £50 as part of the larger sum for the same in connection with the Girls School.

Rejoicings were held on Thursday week on the extensive Forfarshire estates of the Earl of Dalhousie, the occasion being the marriage of his lordship's eldest son, Lord Ramsay, to Lady Ida Bennett, youngest daughter of the Earl of Tankerville, which marriage took place on Thursday week, at St. James's, Piccadilly.

The National Lifeboat Institution held its annual meeting in London on Thursday, at which it was stated that lifeboats had this year saved 743 lives; 208 lives were saved during the gales of last month.

THE MARQUIS OF BUTE AND THE HIGHLANDERS.—The Marquis of Bute presided over a great gathering of Highlanders in Greenock a few evenings ago. Three thousand persons were present. His lordship was supported by Sir Michael Shaw-Stewart, Bart., Mr. Grieve, M.P., and a number of distinguished gentlemen. The Marquis delivered a long address, tracing the history of the Celtic race and languages. He remarked on the great tenacity of Cymra, saying there were twenty-four newspapers in the Welsh language in Wales. Irish and Scotch literature could not compare with this. He advised his hearers to cultivate their literature, to preserve their language. His lordship received loud demonstrations of sympathy when he said that a recent event, "the disastrous fire at Mount Stuart House," had deprived him of the literary means of being better prepared for the subject.

KNIGHTHOOD.—The licensed victuallers of Liverpool appreciate keenly the honour reflected upon the whole of their body by the knighthood which her Majesty has been pleased to confer upon the ex-Mayor, Sir A. B. Walker. At their monthly meeting, the Chairman (Bro. W. Vines, W.M. 1299; Bro. W. Coates, 1609, being the Vice-Chairman), referring to the matter, said he was sure every member of the association would rejoice in this mark of the Queen's favour, and he moved that a complimentary letter should be sent to him from the members of that association. The recommendation was agreed to by acclamation.

A new poem entitled "Angels and Men," by Bro. Wellin Smith, P.M. 1261, has been published. It is dedicated by permission to the poet laureate.

The meeting of the Grand Committee of the Grand Lodge of Scotland will be held on Monday, instead of Tuesday next.

The announcement is made that Mr. Chief Inspector Clarke, of the Detective Department, Scotland-yard, has been reinstated on full pay. The action of the Commissioners will entitle Mr. Clarke to the arrears of his pay since the date of his arrest, and to his full pension.

We are asked to state that the "Scottish Masonic Calendar" for 1878 will not be published until the middle of January, to permit of those lodges who do not elect their office-bearers until the 27th inst. The Secretaries of lodges, chapters, &c., under the Grand Lodge of Scotland, will therefore oblige by sending in their returns not later than the 1st of January next.

Her Majesty on Saturday afternoon paid a visit to Lord Beaconsfield at Hughenden, and though the occasion was private, advantage was taken of it by the Mayor and Corporation of High Wycombe to present the Queen with a loyal address. The stay of her Majesty lasted a little over two hours, during which time, and after luncheon, she visited the church in the park where the late Lady Beaconsfield is interred.

PARIS EXHIBITION.—Tuesday night's Gazette contains a list of the intending British exhibitors at Paris. The catalogue is a very comprehensive one, and fully representative of all the leading industries of the United Kingdom.

The Mayor, Alderman Albert Wood, entertained the members of the Conway Town Council, and a large number of guests at a grand banquet at the Castle Hotel. Bro. Bulkeley Hughes was present during the evening.

STAFFORD HOUSE COMMITTEE.—A meeting of this committee was held on Saturday last, at which Mr. Barrington Kennett was present, and gave a full and most satisfactory account of the work of the committee in Central and Asiatic Turkey. Upwards of 30,000 sick and wounded soldiers have been attended by the surgeons of the committee, and have received food on their way to the front, and at the present moment upwards of 1000 men are under treatment in the permanent hospitals, independently of the field ambulance.

The Earl of Chichester, Lord-Lieutenant of Sussex, while riding in his park at Stanmer, near Lewes, recently, was thrown from his horse, and sustained severe injuries. It is hoped, however, that no bones were broken.

Mr. S. A. Hagon, Hon. Sec. of the Goldsmiths and Jewellers' Annuity and Asylum Institution was presented on Thursday week with a handsome silver-leap in recognition of his services so cheerfully rendered in connection with the Jubilee Festival held at Goldsmith's Hall. Bro. George Lambert made the presentation.

Don Carlos, who is travelling incognito in Italy, has been robbed of his Collar of the Golden Fleece, which is not only of great pecuniary value, but is believed to be the ornament made for Philip, Duke of Burgundy, in 1430, on his founding the Order in celebration of his third marriage. Don Carlos, who always carried it about with him, and had recently placed it in his trunk, found the case empty.

Bro. Sir R. Michael, Shaw Stewart, Bart., M.W.G.M. of Scotland, has intimated that he will not contest the representation of Greenock.

The Crystal Palace Grand Comic Pantomime entitled The Sleeping Beauty, by Messrs. Augustus Harris, and W. R. Osman, will be performed for the first time on Wednesday next (Boxing-day) under the personal direction of Mr. Charles Wyndham. The Ballet and Chorus will consist of an army of two hundred children.

The Peninsula and Oriental Company's steamer Bokhara sailed from Southampton with £20,000 in gold for Alexandria, and 300,000 in specie for Bombay.

The traffic receipts of the London and South-Western Railway for last week show an increase of £417; and the Grand Trunk of Canada an increase of £8,700.

CHRISTMAS HOLIDAY ARRANGEMENTS.—In order to afford the public an opportunity of taking their railway tickets, and obtaining information previous to the holidays, the London, Brighton, and South Coast Railway Company give notice that their West-end office, 28, Regent-circus, Piccadilly, will remain open until 11 p.m. on Friday, 21st, Saturday, 22nd, and Monday, 24th inst., for the issue of tickets to the various attractive places on the South Coast and Isle of Wight, Paris, and the Continent. Passengers may be booked at that office at the same fares as charged from the Victoria and London Bridge stations.

Messrs. Dowling, of Half-moon-passage, Leadenhall Market, were the purchasers of two pens of pigs (exhibited at the Cattle Show), one the property of Her Majesty, the other the property of R. Drew, Esq., of Dorset. The latter took the first prize of its class.

The "Freemason" of this week (Dec. 22nd) consists of 32 pages exclusive of wrapper. The wrapper is unambitiously illustrated with portraits of the following eminent brethren:—

H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, M.W.G.M.

H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught, S.G.W.

H.R.H. Prince Leopold, J.G.W.

Æ. J. McIntyre, Esq., Q.C., G. Registrar.

J. B. Monckton, Esq. P.B. of Gen. Purp.

Sir Albert Woods, G. Dir. of Cer.

T. Fenn, Esq., A.G. Dir. of Cer.

Bros. Terry, Little, and Binckes, Secretaries of the Royal Masonic Institutions; and Bro. Henry G. Buss, Asst. Grand Sec.

The price of this number is 4d., and may be had of all news-agents, or direct from the office (198, Fleet-street), on receipt by the Publisher of 5 penny stamps.

As we are in Christmas times I'll conjure up a conundrum. Why is a policeman like the ghost of Hamlet's father?—Because he is "doomed for a certain time to walk the night!"

"Hold on!" cried a candidate to his rival, with whom he was stumping the State. "Do you mean to say that I spoke falsely?" "Well, no, not falsely, but I'll leave it to this intelligent and patriotic assemblage if they ever saw any other man take such a circumlocutory course around the truth as you did!"

Two whiskered dandies, with hair enough upon their upper lips to make a grenadier's cap, went, the other day, to the academy of fine arts. On reading the inscription over the door, "No dogs admitted," the foremost turned to his friend and wittily observed: "You must go back, Fred, you see they don't admit you." "Oh, don't be frightened, gentlemen," said the door-keeper, "you may both come in;" adding while pocketing the cash, "the regulation does not extend to puppies."

A MISNOMER.—Lord Donoughmore has presided over a Masonic festival at the Freemasons' Hall. Lord Do-no-more is scarcely a fit title for a man who is inclined to do so much.—Funny Folks, Dec. 15th.

Highly Considerate. Little Smithkin (debonairly): Object to smoking?—North Briton: Nae in the least, if it does na mak' ye sae? As Little S. said, he "cut the old cad for the rest of the journey."

"Who can hold a fire in his hand?" exclaimed a public speaker. "Any one that smokes," responded a voice; "he'll strike a match and light his cigar with it the windiest day that ever you saw!"

A lawyer having worn out the patience of a judge by his quibbling, the judge testily exclaimed: "Mr. —, what do you think I'm sitting here for?" "That's too hard a conundrum for me. I give it up," said the lawyer, as he sat down.

The clerk of a criminal court having read the indictment of a prisoner for horse stealing, said to him: "Guilty or not guilty?" "Wal," he responded, "I'm guilty fast enough, but then I want to be tried just the same, 'specially as I see several of our boys on the jury."

The Kroomen of West Africa say of the American: "Him catchee horse, make he work; catchee water, make he work; catchee fire, make he work; catchee wind, make he work."

"I didn't at all expect company to-day," said a lady to her visitors, with a not very pleasant look; "but I hope you will make yourself at home." "Yes, indeed," replied one of them, starting off, "I will make myself at home as quick as possible."

"Madam, don't you know that your baby will catch its death of cold?" "No, sir," she promptly responded. "Well, it's such carelessness as that which fills our cemeteries with little graves," he continued. "While all the meddlesome old fools continue to live," she replied.

"The Cosmopolitan Masonic Calendar, Diary and Pocket Book" (G. Kenning, 198, Fleet-street) is especially adapted to Masonic people; to others it will be a curiosity. It contains very full statistics of the body for which it is intended.—The Queen, Dec. 8th, 1877.

CHRISTMAS AND THE POST.—The general post, or morning delivery, will be the only delivery in London and its suburbs on Christmas Day. In London generally and the nearer suburbs letters for the night mails to the country must be posted in the street letter boxes, as there will be no collection from receiving offices on that day. The General Post-office and the post-offices at Lombard-street, Gracechurch-street, and Charing-cross, will be open from 5 to 7 p.m., for the registration of letters and the sale of postage stamps, but not for money order or savings bank business. With these exceptions all the post-offices in London and the nearer suburbs will be closed. Letters, newspapers, and book packets can be posted for the night mails at the General Post-office, District offices, and the offices at Lombard-street, Gracechurch-street, and Charing-cross, at the usual hours. There will be no collection at 8 or 9 p.m. on Christmas Day either from the town receiving offices or letter boxes, but letters to be forwarded by the early morning mails will be collected from the district and branch offices, and from the letter boxes in London and the nearer suburbs, at the usual hours on Wednesday morning, the 26th of December. In the more distant suburbs, letters, &c., for the night mails of Christmas Day will be collected from the receiving offices and letter boxes at the usual hours. No morning, mid-day, or mid-night mails will be despatched from London to any town in the United Kingdom on Christmas Day. Telegraph Arrangements:—The following offices will be open in London and its suburbs:—Blackheath and Blackwall Railway Station, 8 a.m. to 8 p.m.; Bow Railway Station, North London Railway, 7 a.m. to 11 p.m.; Broad-street Railway Station, North London Railway, 1 p.m. to 11 p.m.; Camberwell, 8 a.m. to 8 p.m.; Camden-road, North London Railway, 7 a.m. to 11 p.m.; Central Telegraph Office, St. Martin's-le-Grand, always open; Chalk Farm Railway Station, North London Railway, 7.30 a.m. to 11 p.m.; Clapham, 8 a.m. to 6 p.m.; Cornhill, No. 27, 8 a.m. to 1 p.m.; Crystal Palace, 8 a.m. to 8 p.m.; Dalston Junction, North London Railway, 7 a.m. to 11 p.m.; Eastern District Office and Euston-square Station, 8 a.m. to 8 p.m.; Fenchurch-street, corner of Mincing-lane, 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.; Greenwich, Nelson-street; Highbury Station (North London Railway), and Kensington Station (West London Railway), 8 a.m. to 8 p.m.; Lower Thames-street, 7 a.m. to 12 noon; Northern District Office, Notting hill (near Archer-street), Paddington (London street), Putney, South-Eastern District Office, South Kensington, South-Western District Office, and Swiss Cottage, 8 a.m. to 8 p.m.; West Strand, always open; Western Central District Office and Western District Office, 8 a.m. to 8 p.m.; and Woolwich Arsenal, 8 a.m. to 10 a.m., and 5 p.m. to 9 p.m. In England, Wales, and Ireland, the hours of attendance at the various provincial offices will be the same as on Sundays, except at the Brighton Office, which will be open all day; and at Dover, Eastbourne, Hastings, Margate, Ramsgate, and Portsmouth, the offices at which towns will be open from 1 p.m. to 2 p.m., and also during the Sunday hours of attendance. In Scotland all the telegraph offices will be kept open as on ordinary week days.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

RYE.—Wellington Lodge (No. 341).—The usual monthly meeting was held at the Cinque Ports Arms Hotel, on Thursday, the 20th inst. Present: Bros. F. J. Rubie, W.M., in the chair; Wm. Dawes, I.P.M. and Hon. Sec., P.P.G.R., Sussex; J. N. Masters, P.M., S.W.; M. Hatch, J.W.; F. Fuller, P.M., Treas.; C. J. Hatcher, as S.D.; F. Milson, as J.D.; R. C. N. Davies, I.G.; C. Hatcher, Tyler, &c. The lodge having been duly opened, and a ballot having been taken with unanimous approval as the result, Mr. Wm. Cowtan was regularly and duly initiated into Freemasonry. The ceremony was very ably performed by the W.M.; the I.P.M. delivering the charge. The Hon. Sec. then by command of the W.M., read from the Freemason of 8th Dec. the report of the speech of the M.W. Pro. G.M. at the last Quarterly Court of Grand Lodge, on the recent action by Grand Orient of France. The brethren expressed their admiration at the clear explanation therein given of that action and the valuable advice as to their present conduct in the matter accompanying it, and hearty thanks were tendered to the W.M. for having caused it to be read. Some other business having been enacted, the lodge was duly closed.

SOUTHAMPTON.—The Peace and Harmony Lodge (No. 359) has elected Bro. W. H. Martin W.M., for the coming year and re-elected P.M. J.R. Weston, Treasurer. The new Worshipful Master, Bro. G. J. Telling, of the Clausentum lodge, No. 1461, at Woolston, a suburb of Southampton, has been installed by the D.P.G.M. of Hants, and the Isle of Wight, (Bro. W. Hickman, P.M.), the charges at the respective chairs being impressively given by Bro. T. P. Payne, P.M. Bro. Tilling invested his officers as follows:—Bros. F. A. Rosoman, I.P.M.; Richard Rosoman, S.W.; Andrews, J.W.; Capt. Evans, Treas. Walter Bowyer, P.M., Sec.; Chapman, S.D.; James Methuen, J.D.; Walters P.M., D.C.; Robert Ekless, I.G.; and Vare, Tyler. Before the lodge was closed, a cordial vote of thanks for his attendance and valuable services was tendered to the D.P.G.M., who, in response, expressed the interest he felt in the work, and congratulated the lodge on the position it had already attained. The annual dinner, supplied by Bro. Dartnall, was subsequently held at Woolston College, the hall of which was very pleasingly decorated for the occasion, and was well attended. Many congratulations were exchanged on the progress of Masonry in the province and the excellent prospect of the lodge possessing a hall of its own at a not distant period.

LIVERPOOL.—Prince Arthur Lodge (No. 570).—The annual celebration of the festival of St. John in connection with this lodge, took place on Tuesday afternoon, the 18th inst., at the Masons' Rooms, North Hill-street, Liverpool, where there was one of the largest and most influential gatherings seen for a long time to assist at the installation of Bro. Archibald Morrison, S.W., the W.M. elect, chosen to that position by the unanimous vote of the brethren. The meeting was called for 2.30, and punctual to the time, Bro. Thomas Goans, W.M., took the chair, and began business. There were no fewer than twenty-four installed Masters present, and these embraced about a dozen P.G. Lodge officers, past and present. The Tyler's book showed the following brethren were present, who are attached to the "Prince Arthur": Bros. H. S. Alpass, P.M., P.G. Sec.; S. E. Ibbs, P.P.G.S.B.; A. Morrison, S.W.; S. Hickins, J.W.; Robt Roberts, Secretary; H. Worthington, S.D.; R. Webster, J.D. Walter W. Thomas, I.G.; J. H. Davies, S.; J. Seeley, J. Wainwright, J. C. Jones, J. Webster, J. Lawson, W. P. Vines, T. Senar, J. Pye, J. Morgan, J. H. Carter, J. Parker, C. Cockcroft, J. Meddicott, and T. Smittom. Amongst the numerous visitors present were: Bros. Duncan Ross, 823; (Everton Lodge); Rev. T. W. Richardson, W.M.; 1380; John E. Jackson, P.M. 667, P.G. Steward of West Lancashire; W. Pugh, S.W., W.M. elect P.M. 1182; J. W. Thurley, P.P.G.J.D.; W. J. Chapman, W.M. 1609; L. Courtney, S.W. 1609; J. B. Mc. Kenzie, J. W. 1609; H. Leslie, 1609; A. Woolrich, J.W. 1356; Treasurer 1609 Henry Eves, 667; R. P. France, I.P.M. 594; H. Firth, J.W. 667; E. Paull, Treasurer, 1356; J. Edgington, P.M. 1182; J. H. Gregory, Sec. 667; J. P. Rea, I.G. 1182; J. S. Houghton, S.W. 1182; J. Skeaf, P.G.O.; W. Woods, W.M. 1620; A. Winkup, P.M. 667; J. Hartley, 594; W. Avis, Org. 1299, I.P.M.; Arthur, P.M. 1086; W. Doyle, P.P.G.J.D.; Capt. J. F. Ainscow, 1393 and 370; J. Williams, W.M. 1182; J. W. Williams, S.W. 1356; F. Nickson, W.M. 1356; W. Peacock, 594; H. Burrows, W.M. 673; H. Jones, I.G. 1289; T. Holden, 1182; D.

Morris, 1182; John Lecomber, W.M. 594; J. D. Thomas 594; F. Boswell, J.W. 594; B. B. Marson, P.G.J.D.; W. M. Asher, 477; A. B. Fraser, 1473; P. Asken, 1356; F. Sutton, 1380; J. Hughes, 1675; E. Benedict, 820; J. G. Griffiths, 1393; and W. S. Times, P.G.D.C. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, Bro. T. Evans, W.M., proceeded, in an excellent manner, to instal Bro. A. Morrison, as his successor in the chair of W.M., and the "hearty good wishes" of about a score of representatives from other lodges proved how popular the new occupant of the chair was. The newly installed W.M. then invested his officers as follows:—Bros. T. Evans, P.M. Treasurer; H. S. Alpass, P.M., P.G. Sec.; W. Lee, Dir. of Ceremonies; Samuel Hikins, S.W.; Robert Roberts, J.W.; Henry Worthington, Secretary; Ralph Webster, S.D.; Walter W. Thomas, J.D.; Edward Jarvis, I.G.; John H. Davis, S.S.; and William P. Vine, J.S. Between fifty and sixty brethren, after business, banquetted in the lodge room under the presidency of Bro. A. Morrison, W.M., the catering being in the capable keeping of Bro. W. S. Vines, W.M. 1299, P.G.D.C. The ordinary loyal and Masonic toasts were given and responded to during the pleasant evening's proceedings. Not the least interesting of the items on the programme was the presentation of a chaste and valuable electro plated tea and coffee service to Bro. T. Evans, I.P.M., for the valuable services which he had rendered to the Prince Arthur Lodge in particular and Masonry in general. The presentation was made by Bro. Alpass, P.G. Sec., and suitably acknowledged by Bro. Evans. Songs and recitations were given during the evening by the various brethren.

TWICKENHAM.—Francis Burdett Lodge (No. 1503).—The last meeting of this provincial lodge was held at the Albany Hotel, on Wednesday, the 12th inst., when there were present amongst others Bros. S. H. Knaggs, W.M.; Court, S.W.; Taylor, J.W.; Tomlinson, P.P.G.D. of Norfolk, Treasurer; W. Wigginton, P.P.G.S. of Works, Middlesex, Secretary; W. H. Saunders, P.G.S. of Middlesex, I.P.M.; Vaughan, S.D.; Ashley, J.D.; Palmer, I.G.; Walls, P.G.O., Middlesex, D.C., (Freemason); Briggs, Steward; Ricknall, W.S.; Court, jun., Assistant Organist; C. Horsley, P.P.G.R. of Middlesex, and others. The minutes of the installation meeting in November last, having been read and confirmed, the W.M., assisted by his officers, passed Bro. Newton and initiated Mr. Rollard, both ceremonies being most ably and impressively performed. There being no other business before the lodge it was duly closed, and the brethren adjourned to a collation. The cloth having been removed, the W.M. gave the time-honoured preliminary Royal and Craft toasts, tersely but to the point. "The D.P.G.M. of Middlesex, and the rest of the P.G.O.'s Present and Past," was acknowledged in fitting terms by Bros. C. Horsley, W. Wigginton, and T. C. Walls. "The Health of the W.M." was proposed by the I.P.M., who congratulated Bro. Knaggs upon the excellent manner in which he had conducted the proceedings that day. In the course of his speech he also touched upon the great interest that the W.M. had always evinced in the welfare of the "Francis Burdett," and stated that he believed that his year of office would be as pleasurable to himself as it would be to every member of the lodge. This toast having been most warmly received, the W.M. made a modest reply, and immediately afterwards proposed "The Health of the Initiate," who briefly acknowledged the compliment paid him. "The Past Masters" was proposed in complimentary terms by the W.M., and responded to by Bros. Saunders and Wigginton. In introducing "The Officers" the W.M. spoke very highly of the important services rendered to the lodge by Bro. Wigginton as founder, Master and Secretary, and also of the great interest taken in the fortunes of No. 1503, by Bro. Tomlinson, in the dual capacity of founder and Treasurer. The other working officials were also entitled to every praise for the manner in which they had hitherto discharged their duties, and he trusted that their zeal would in due time be rewarded, by their being successively elected to occupy the proud position which he then held. This toast having been duly acknowledged, the brethren shortly afterwards separated, until the second Wednesday in February next.

INSTRUCTION.

WEST SMITHFIELD LODGE (No. 1623).—The annual dinner of this flourishing lodge of instruction was held on the 17th inst., at the New Market Hotel, King-street, Snow Hill, E.C. Bro. W. T. Adams, W.M. 1623, presided, supported by the following brethren: Bros. G. H. Stephens, S.W.; H. J. Lardner, J.W.; W. Pennefather, P.M., Preceptor; E. Mallett, W.M. 1411, acting Secretary, in the absence of Bro. F. Walters. The lodge was opened with prayer, and the minutes of last lodge meeting read and confirmed. Bro. G. H. Stephens being elected W.M. for the ensuing week, the lodge closed with prayer, and adjourned to the banquet room, where a splendid dinner was served by Bro. T. Butt, the host, in his best style. The usual loyal and Craft toasts followed the banquet, and were suitably honoured. The toasts of "The W.M.," "The Preceptor," and "The Acting Secretary," were received with great enthusiasm, and were responded to in a most happy manner by the W.M., T. W. Adams; W. Pennefather, Preceptor; and E. Mallett, acting Secretary. "The Visitors" was also greeted with hearty expressions of goodwill, and responded to by Bro. Larking and others. In answer to an appeal from the chair, the sum of over £4 was collected in aid of the lodge charitable fund. Having passed the evening in a manner which augurs well for the future of the lodge, the brethren separated, having enjoyed some excellent songs during the evening, which was thoroughly successful throughout. There were present besides those already named Bros. Pearson, Faija, Combie, Stevens, Butt, Howes, Davis, Snow, Morrison, Stuart, Smythe, Fairbank, Adams, Cellier, Urelfobs, Chapman, Barth, and Larking.

Royal Arch.

BARNSTAPLE.—Chapter of Loyalty and Virtue (No. 251).—The fifty-seventh annual meeting of this old and flourishing chapter was held at the Masonic Hall, Queen Ann's-walk, on Wednesday, the 19th inst., for the purpose of electing officers for the year ensuing. The Principals' chairs were filled by Comp. Wm. Britton, Z.; J. T. Shapland, H.; and J. C. Oliver, J. The meeting was well attended, and after the usual preliminary business was transacted, the following were elected officers for the year ensuing:—Comps. J. T. Shapland, Z.; W. C. Oliver, H.; Jno. Brewer, J.; Wm. Britton, P.Z.; W. H. Toller, S.E.; E. Holmes, S.N.; T. Hancock, P.S.; Wm. Boyle, 1st A.S.; Wm. Young, 2nd A.S.; W. J. List, Treas.; Wm. Curtis, Reg.; O. J. Nicklin, S.W.B.; C. Whickham, St.B.; T. S. Herbert, M.C.; J. Edwards, Org.; R. P. Morrison, Steward; J. Hancock, Jan. Comp. Thomas Galway, of Chapter 46, Comber, C. Down, Ireland, was unanimously elected a joining member. Chapter was then closed, and the companions adjourned to the Golden Lion Hotel, and partook of a splendid banquet got up by Mrs. Marsh, and a very pleasant evening was spent.

Mark Masonry.

MARYPORT.—Whitwell Lodge (No. 151).—The ordinary monthly meeting of this flourishing lodge was held on Thursday evening, the 20th inst., in the Masonic Hall, Maryport. On account of business and other engagements, there was only a limited attendance, the W.M., Bro. T. Mandle, P.G.S.W., being absent at Liverpool. Amongst those present were Bros. J. Gardiner, P.M., P.G.M.O.; Jos. Nicholson, P.M. and Treasurer P.P.G.S.W.; J. H. Banks, J.W., P.G.I.G.; Jas. Quay, Sec.; J. W. Robinson, R.M.; E. G. Mitchell, S.D.; J. W. Thompson, J.D.; J. Smith, Org., P.P.G. Org.; W. T. Lamonby, P.G.A.D.C., as Chaplain (Freemason); J. Stoddart, and J. Harris, Tyler. There being a candidate to ballot for and advance, (Bro. John Melmore, Lodge of Perseverance, No. 371), most of the officer's posts had to be doubled. After the lodge had been opened in form by Bro. Gardiner, P.M., the minutes of the preceding meeting were read and confirmed, after which the candidate was balloted for and approved, whereupon, Bro. J. H. Banks, J.W., ascended the dais, and performed the whole ceremony of advancement in first-class style. The lodge was then closed in form.

Red Cross of Constantine.

PORTSMOUTH.—Naval and Military Conclave (No. 35).—This conclave, met on Monday, Dec. 17th. The conclave was opened by the P.M.S., John Harrison, at 6 p.m. The minutes of former conclave of Sept. 25th and emergency of Nov. 18th were adopted. The ballot was taken separately for Bros. Slatier and Captain J. Andrews, Hants Volunteer Artillery, and proved unanimously in their favour. Bros. Slatier being in attendance was entrusted, installed and proclaimed. The annual balance sheet was passed. Sir Kts. Dixon, Brick, Richardson, and Reed signed and received their G. Con. certificates. Sir Kt. Harrison the retiring M.P.S. expressed his acknowledgements to the officers and members for their attention to duties and punctual attendance during the past year. The Recorder presented Em. Sir Kt. G. A. Green Past K. to the presiding officer, to receive the honour of enthronement as M.P.S.; for the coming year; and, he, having assented to the several questions contained in G. Statutes; Sir Kt. Adams was presented as Vy. elect for the purpose of consecration as Eusebius. All the Sir Kts. below the grade of Viceroy having retired, a college of Viceroy's was opened in ancient form, Sir Kt. Adams was entrusted, admitted and consecrated. The college was closed. All the Sir Kts. below the grade of M.P.S. having retired, a Senate of Sovereigns was opened in ample form, Sir Kt. Green was entrusted, introduced and enthroned. The senate was closed, and the members re-admitted, when the M.P.S. invested his officers: Sir Kt. C. G. Adams, Viceroy; A. Nance, Jr. Sen. Gen.; W. Tuck, Jun. Gen.; J. Lillywhite, H.P.; J. Clay, P.S., Treas.; A. R. Robinson, P.S., Rec.; R. Osborne, Prefect; W. C. Redward, Sub-Prefect; G. Watson, Org.; G. Reading, Sen. Aide; A. M. Dixon, Jun. Aide; J. W. Stroud, Herald; and G. Copus, Sentinel. The M.P.S. stated that he would present four collars in addition to those already in use, and possibly some future M.P.S. or companion would append the required jewels. Thanks were unanimously expressed for this gift. The Int. Gen. proposed that the chair should be endowed with £10 10s. in part payment of the required sum to render the M.P.S. for the time being a life governor or vice-patron of the Masonic Institution for Girls, and associate the act with the name of the respected retiring M.P.S., who at a considerable sacrifice of both time and money had frequently travelled long distances to fill his place in the conclave ever since his installation into the Order. This was also carried, when Sir Kt. Harrison acknowledged the pleasure it gave him to see this so enthusiastically approved, and most feelingly dilated upon this compliment, which he valued more highly than anything else possibly could be. The Dep. Int. Gen. then rose, and requested permission to introduce a motion which had been discussed in the Perm. Council of No. 35 with satisfaction, and which he was confident would receive the approval and support of the members, viz., "That the continuous services of their valued Recorder, Sir Kt. Robinson, P.S., was deserving of some substantial acknowledgment, he was an active founder, who was unremitting in his exertions in founding the conclave, and had ever since worked continuously, sparing neither labour or expense in its behalf, and that it is our desire that his name should be respectfully submitted to the consideration of the G. Sov. for some mark of his favour. This was supported by Sir Kt. Harrison and the Int. Gen., and adopted. The Recorder in acknowledging the honour thus proposed for him, stated that he was confident from the first that the Order must flourish eventually in this division; that this flattering mark of their approbation was most pleasing to him, and he hoped still (if life be spared) to work in the future as much or more than in the past. Several brethren having been proposed for installation, the conclave was closed at eight, when the Sir Knights adjourned to the George Hotel, High-street, Portsmouth, where the Red Cross annual festival of Sir Knights and brethren was held, under the presidency of Em. and Pl. Sir Kt. G. A. Green, M.P.S., supported on the right by the Int. Gen. of Hants, Dr. Knott, and visiting brethren, and on his left by the Dep. Int. Gen. Sir W. J. Clark, Lillywhite, Robinson, Groom, Simister, O'borne, and others. Letters were received from the G. Sov. Col. Burdett, J.P., Rev. Canon Beckles, Int. Gen. Dorset, expressive of regret at compulsory absence. After the tables were cleared, the usual toasts were duly honoured, that of Int. Gen. Hants, being proposed by the M.P.S. in most felicitous terms, making special mention of the great accession of numbers since the division had been under his generalship. Dr. Knott in responding paid a high compliment to the labours of the Past and Present Officers, expressing his conviction that all and each Sir Knight endeavoured to keep in view the high character of our Knightly Order, but above all the grand principle of Charity, and for the information of those brethren present who were not of the Red Cross Order he would state that the conclave being free from debt, had, at his suggestion made a commencement by endowing the chair with ten guineas for the Girls' School, associating with the donation the name of Bro. Past Master Harrison, who in carrying out his duties had frequently travelled many miles and sacrificed much time and money in so doing. When he contrasted their feebleness some two years since, with their present strength and prospects, he failed properly to express his thankfulness to those brethren; who in spite of good natured criticism and sometimes something more severe than that still held on the even tenor of their way, as Christian Masons; and were now receiving their reward in the acquisition of many P.M.'s. and past and present P.G. Officers to their standard; and, as their mission became known, the elite of Hampshire Masons would join:—still exercising a wise discretion in the admission of candidates; and thus maintain a real bond of brotherhood. In conclusion, he said this was, without exception, one of the happiest Masonic gatherings at which he had ever been present. This sentiment was cordially assented to by every Sir Knight and visitor present. The banquet by Mr. Kemp gave much satisfaction to all.

Ancient and Accepted Rite.

BOURNEMOUTH.—Vigne Chapter Sovereign Prince Rose Croix, H.R.D.M. — The regular Advent meeting of this chapter was held on Wednesday, 19th December, at the Masonic Hall. After the chapter had been opened by Ill. Bro. S.G. Kirchhoffer, 30°, and certain formal business had been transacted, Bro. Kirchhoffer vacated his chair of office in favour of the Installing Officer, Ill. Bro. Emra Holmes, 31°, who thereupon inducted Ill. Bro. Kirchhoffer into the chair, and in doing so expressed the great pleasure it gave him to instal his friend as M.W.S. of the Vigne Chapter. Bro. Kirchhoffer having been re-elected for a second term of office, in consequence of the efficient manner in which he had governed the chapter during the past year it was not necessary for him (Bro. Holmes) to perform the full ceremony of installation. He was glad, however, to take this opportunity of congratulating him on his re-appointment as it was an evidence of the good will of the brethren, and he hoped the chapter would prosper during his year of office. He would venture to remind the brethren of the great duty of obedience to the commands of the M.W.S., a duty especially inculcated in Freemasonry. He also would ask them to be careful in the selection of candidates for this office so that none but Masons of high social character should be admitted to this sublime degree. This he believed was the wish of the Supreme Council 33°. As they were doubtless aware the Rose Croix degree was the most widely diffused and probably the most ancient of any degree outside the Craft. It appeared under one form or another, in almost every known rite throughout the civilised world. It was formerly an appendant degree to the Order of the Temple and was given in Knight Templar Encampments, and he the speaker knew of one chapter where they would not admit candidates who were not already Templars. They would understand by all this how interesting the degree was, and for his own part he thought that every man should be a Mason, every Christian should be Rose Croix, and every gentleman a Templar. Bro. Holmes concluded his remarks by wishing the M.W.S. every prosperity both during his year of office and through the years to come. The M.W.S., returned thanks and proposed a vote of thanks to Bro. Holmes for the instructive remarks he had made upon the degree. This was seconded by Bro. E. W. Rebbeck and carried unanimously. The M.W.S. then appointed his officers for the ensuing year; alms were collected, and the chapter was closed in ancient and solemn form.

Special Christmas Services will be held in St. Anne's Church, Soho, Westminster, on Fridays, December 28, 1877, January 4, 11, and 18, 1878, at eight o'clock, at which a selection from Bach's Christmas Oratorio will be sung, with orchestral accompaniment.

WHO SHALL BE GREATEST?

This is a question of the highest importance, especially in a Masonic lodge, and just now it is propounded to us all. Another year has rolled away; we are approaching the festival of St. John's Day; and in all of our lodges each Freemason must answer the question we have placed at the head of this column. Let us see to it that it is answered aright, for an erroneous answer may bring the saddest consequences upon the Craft.

At the annual election of your lodge, you are called upon to determine not only who shall be greatest during the approaching Masonic year, but also, practically, who shall be greatest during the two succeeding years, for the Senior and Junior Wardens almost invariably are regularly advanced to the supreme station in the lodge. Certainly there are two questions of prime importance, namely, who shall be Master and who Junior Warden; and there are two other questions, of only less importance, as to who shall occupy the Treasurer's and the Secretary's stations, for absolute fidelity is required in the one, and unusual accuracy and business tact in the other. First as to the Master:

Character is the primary and absolute pre-requisite of a Worshipful Master; without it he is but a shadow, or worse. See to it, then, that your candidate stands well with the world, is unblemished morally, and is such a one as will enforce the precepts he utters by his example. One of the duties of the Master (if not delegated to a Chaplain) is to address the Great Architect of the Universe in prayer, and it ill becomes him who is not distinguished by sobriety in word and deed to stand between man and his Maker.

Intelligence is the secondary qualification—secondary only in order, however, not in importance, for how can a ruler govern without it? This word intelligence covers many requisites, such as knowledge of the work of the lodge, acquaintance with men and measures, information as to the origin and history of the fraternity, and aptness in instructing his subordinates and the brethren subject to his authority. We do not say that the Master must necessarily be a scholar and person of literary ability, although such qualifications will adorn the dignity of his station, and render the performance of its duties polished as well as instructive. Novices are to be taught the mysteries of Freemasonry, and all of the members are to be led by a way that they know not up to the stature, morally and intellectually, of Masonic manhood. Intelligence of no mean order is needed for the accomplishment of this work.

Ambition may be named as the third qualification—ambition to excel. There are twelve months in the year, and the duties of each succeeding month shall be increasingly well performed. The best of us are learners, including teachers themselves. He who cannot learn should not teach. When the first year rolls around, if a laudable ambition has been exhibited, and it is justified by results, a second term may and should reward the Master, and distinguish the lodge. We believe in second terms—when they are deserved. When character and intelligence are matched with ambition in the Master, the lodge cannot do better, or so well, as to retain him.

Bro. Oliver hit the nail upon the head when he said, in one aphorism: "An incompetent person in the chair of a lodge is like a hawk on the wing, from which all the inferior birds hasten to escape, and leave him the sole tenant of the sky. In the same manner, such a master will cause the lodge to be deserted by its best members, and to be left alone in his glory." Here we have a key to a mystery which we will unfold.

The ability or ignorance of the Master, as the case may be, will gauge the attendance at the lodge. Brethren will not go there for nothing; they will not dance attendance, and every time be sent empty away; and if the Master is incompetent, the number of non-affiliates will also be rapidly increased. It is indisputable that lodge meetings should be made interesting; and to do this the work must be well performed, or if there be no work, something that is legitimately Masonic must be improvised to take its place.

If a brother be ambitious, and intelligent, or seeking to be intelligent, he will be a "reading Mason." Every candidate for Masonic office should be of this class, now a growing, if not a large one. Freemasonry possesses vast literary treasures. Nearly four thousand volumes have been written upon it and its related branches. There is no dearth of intelligence, then, in books, if there be in men; and this intelligence is readily available to make a Craftsman wise. We have known of a young Mason, only six months after his initiation, elected to the Master's station. This was the fruit of character, industry and study. An easy and handy way of increasing one's knowledge is to take and read a Masonic newspaper. It will keep one not only abreast with the current news of the day, but also acquainted with the latest decisions in Masonic law, and with discussions relating to the leading principles of Freemasonry. In every jurisdiction the judicious voter might advantageously ask of each candidate, "Do you take and read a Masonic journal?" Lord Chancellor Bacon said, "Reading makes a full man," and we need full men, intellectually, in all of the chairs of the lodge. Brethren, everywhere, select the ablest and best members for office, and the Craft during the approaching year will largely prosper, the meetings will be fully attended, and "more light" will be dispensed in Freemasonry."—Keystone.

Students of chymistry will be interested by the following telegram from Professor Pietet, of Geneva, which was received yesterday by Professor Tyndall:—"Oxygene liquifié samedi par acides sulfuroux et carboniques combinés. Pression 320 atmosphères. Température 100deg. Centigrade de froid." Hitherto all attempts to liquify oxygen have failed."

WESTMINSTER ABBEY.—This week has been completed the window erected by the Dean to the memory of Lady Augusta Stanley above her grave in Henry VII.'s Chapel. It is executed by Messrs. Clayton and Bell in the style of the stained glass of the period of the building of the chapel. In the upper compartment the subjects are taken from the history of the Bruce family:—1. King Robert Bruce watching the spider—"Patience worketh experience, and experience hope;" 2. King Robert Bruce halting the army for the sake of a poor washerwoman—"Be pitiful, be courteous;" 3. King Robert Bruce bequeathing his heir to Douglas—"Keep that good thing committed to thee;" 4. Lord Elgin dying in India—"Faithful unto death: I give thee a crown of life;" 5. Robert Bruce guiding the Prince of Wales to Jerusalem—"I will be surety for him: of my hand require him;" 6. Frederick Bruce's remains brought from America—"The path of the just is a shining light." In the lower compartment the subjects represent Lady Augusta Stanley in the six acts of mercy (Matt. xxv., 35, 36, 37) 1, feeding the hungry; 2, giving drink to the thirsty; 3, receiving the stranger; 4, clothing the poor; 5, visiting the sick; 6, delivering the prisoner. The heraldic emblems consist of the armorial bearings of the houses of Stanley and Bruce, with those of the Lyncaster and Oswald families. At the two sides are the armorial bearings of the House of Orleans (as represented in the tomb of the Duke of Montpensier) on the east side, and of the Worsley family (as represented on the grave of General Worsley) on the west. The vacant spaces are filled with the Royal insignia of Henry VII.'s Chapel from the Tudor dynasty—namely, the porcupine of the house of Beaufort (John of Gwent), the daisies of Margaret Richmond (mother of Henry VII.), the greyhound of the house of York, the fetterlock of the house York (Elizabeth of York), the dragon of Wales (Owen Tudor), the crown on the bush (the battle of Bosworth), the white and red rose (union of the houses of York and Lancaster). A window (also by Messrs. Clayton and Bell) has been completed in memory of the Ashantee war in St. Michael's Chapel, in the north transept, representing St. Michael in Heaven, and St. George and St. Maurice on earth.

CLEOPATRA'S NEEDLE.—A popular authority, speaking of the Christmas waits, instances London as waiting for Cleopatra's Needle. Punch and his friend the public will doubtless be glad to hear that in all likelihood London will not have to wait very long. The law's delays are proverbial, and maritime law is no exception to the rule. Hence, when Mr. John Dixon's cylinder ship Cleopatra, with the obelisk on board, besides being wrecked in the Bay of Biscay, was caught in the meshes of a salvage suit, there were but too good grounds for fearing that the new and thorny questions sure to be raised by counsel in so peculiar a case might almost indefinitely detain her at Ferrol, so that none could tell when she might be looked for in the Thames. Happily, there are ways and means of smoothing over such difficulties, and, thanks to the good sense and right feeling of the litigating parties, these have been resorted to. Mr. Dixon has given bail in the Admiralty Court to the owners of the Fitzmaurice, the ship which picked up the Cleopatra after she had been cut adrift by the Olga, to meet such salvage as shall be ultimately awarded. Accordingly a week or two ago Captain Carter, the master of the floating needle-case, was sent out to Ferrol, with a picked English crew, to resume possession of his ship, and a telegram announcing his arrival has now reached Mr. Dixon's office. He reports himself and crew all well; he has inspected the Cleopatra, and found her in much better trim than might have been looked for considering what she has gone through. The necessary repairs can be completed, he says, in ten days. Mr. Dixon has already arranged with Mr. William Watkins for the hire of one of his powerful Channel tugs to fetch the Cleopatra from Ferrol. The contract is for £500, payment to be contingent on the obelisk ship's safely reaching her moorings in the Thames. Mr. Dixon has consulted some of the most experienced captains in the service of the Peninsular and Oriental Company, and they are agreed in the opinion that the season of the year presents no sufficient reason for the ship being kept at Ferrol. It has been decided to send a tug for her instead of simply engaging some merchant steamer to call for her, as the tug would be wholly at her service, could have no interest clashing with the speedy and safe arrival of the Cleopatra at her destination, and can wait, if need be, for what in nautical phrase is termed "a streak of fair weather" for the voyage. Across the Bay of Biscay the distance is 350 miles, and as much more may be reckoned to the Thames, and it is computed that, in favourable circumstances, the whole 700 miles could be traversed by one of Mr. Watkins' fine Channel tugs, with the Cleopatra in her wake, in five days.

THE ST. PANCRAS GARDENS.—The Special Committee appointed for the laying out of the old St. Pancras and St. Giles-in-the-Fields burying-grounds as gardens have reported to the Vestry that Lady Burdett-Coutts had evinced great interest in the affair by erecting a marble monument to the memory of John Walker, author of "Walker's Pronouncing Dictionary." They approved also of a very handsome design for a memorial sundial to be erected by her Ladyship to the memory of the illustrious dead lying in the grounds. This memorial will cost probably £3,000, and will be of a unique character and of lasting usefulness in recording the names of the many distinguished and other persons buried there. The committee reported further that the sum of £1000, presented by the Baroness, had been expended in the erection of a greenhouse, in accordance with the suggestion of her Ladyship. The report was approved on the motion of Mr. Westcott, the chairman of the committee.

Two Royal Academicians were elected the week before last—Mr. W. O. Orchardson and Mr. R. Norman Shaw, the architect.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

The General Committee and subscribers to this Institution met on Thursday, at the Freemasons' Hall. Colonel Creation, V.P., in the chair. There were also present Bros. H. Browne, Thos. W. White, H. A. Dubois, S. Rawson, Griffiths Smith, Herbert Dickets, John Boyd, H. Venn, R. B. Webster, H. Massy (Freemason), Peter De L. Long, H. Potter, R. W. Little (Secretary), and F. W. Hedges.

The brethren accepted five candidates for election in April and deferred one case for better reading, and one for further information.

The Committee declared vacancies for eighteen children at April election, for which there are 23 candidates.

Bro. Joshua Nunn's motion was adopted for increasing the salaries at the School as follows:—Miss Jarwood, (matron), from £100 to £125; Miss Davis, (head governess), from £140 to £160; Miss Carr, (teacher), from £65 to £75; Miss Redgrave, (teacher), from £45 to £50; Miss Triggs, (teacher), from £30 to £40; Miss Buck, (teacher), from £30 to £40; Miss Shepherd, (assistant matron), from £30 to £40; Miss Hutchinson, (teacher), from £20 to £25; Miss Flintoff, (teacher), from £6 to £10; Miss Groves, (pupil teacher), from £2 to £4; and Miss Barrow, £2 and clothing; making a total increase in the salaries of £112 from January 1st, 1878.

Notice of motion for next Quarterly Court was given for the purchase of a slip of land adjoining the school, and for building a wall from the new laundry down to the piece of ground just purchased.

Notice of motion from the Quarterly Court was also given by Bro. Raynham W. Stewart "That a committee be appointed to consider the system of education which is pursued in the school, with a view to ascertaining whether any improvement can be effected."

The Committee then adjourned.

POST OFFICE FACILITIES.—Mr. J. Mc'Intosh, M.S.A., F.R.H.S., writes to the Times from 38, Langham-street:—"Having lately been over the General Post Offices of London, New York, and several large cities, it struck me, it would very greatly facilitate the sorting of letters in all post offices if each large town had a different coloured envelope, which could be picked out by the sorters immediately without examining the addresses; for instance—London, red; Edinburgh, yellow; Dublin, green; Paris, blue, and so on until the prism was exhausted. Envelopes might also be striped with one, two, or three broad or narrow lines. Envelopes of foreign countries with the national flag on the left-hand corner, or any bold device which would at once catch the sorter's eye, would be of great use."

GEOGRAPHY MADE EASY.—Some time ago the Lyons Geographical Society suggested an original means of vulgarising geographical knowledge. It proposed that the French railway companies should add to the names of their stations certain information of a geographical or statistical nature. A traveller passing along a line would thus learn something about the geographical position, the elevation above the sea level, the population, leading industries, and so on of the towns he passed. This suggestion has already been acted upon by the Southern and Eastern Railway Companies. The same society has proposed that a geographical pillar—pierre géographique—should be erected in every commune throughout France. The idea has met with the approbation of the French Academy, and a model pillar is to be erected at Lyons. We remember having seen a similar structure at Frankfurt-on-the-Main, close to the Schiller statue. The information it supplied was of the most miscellaneous character. There were barometers, aneroids, thermometers, and other meteorological instruments; maps of the town and environs; the bearings and distances of the capitals of Europe and the places of interest in the neighbourhood were given, as likewise information of special interest to visitors. This pillar we understand, was set up by a local improvement society.—Athenæum.

Electrical apparatus for lighting churches and other public buildings are becoming general in the United States. Recently this method has been adopted for the street lamps. In Rhode Island 220 lamps, stretching over nine miles of streets, are now lighted in about 15 seconds.

BRAZILIAN BUTTER.—The Medical Examiner observes that there are four native modes of making butter in the Empire of Brazil. The first is by putting the milk in a common bowl and beating it with a spoon, as you would an egg. The second by pouring the milk into a bottle and shaking it till the butter appears, when it is removed by breaking off the top of the bottle, as bottles are valueless in that part of South America on account of the vast number imported with foreign fruits and liquids. The third, when the dairy is more extensive, is performed by filling a hide with the milk, which is lustily shaken by an athletic native at each end until butter is produced. The fourth, which is considered to indicate vast progress over any of the preceding methods, consists in dragging the hide or leathern vessel, filled with milk, on the ground after a galloping horse, until it is supposed the butter is formed. The milk is never strained and the butter never washed.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—A Cure for Abscesses, Piles, Fistulas, and Sores.—The many satisfactory cures resulting from the use of this invaluable Ointment in cases where patients have been suffering from these complaints, have induced many medical practitioners to introduce them into the hospitals and their private practices; and in many instances where the sufferer was considered incurable, Holloway's Ointment, in conjunction with his Pills, has healed the most desperate wounds. These medicaments are unequalled for the cure of scrofula and diseases of the skin. In all cutaneous affections incidental to children, from the simple red gum to the complicated scrofulous disease, Holloway's Ointment exercises a remarkably beneficial influence, cooling inflammation, relieving irritation, and giving ease to the impatient little sufferer. —ADVT.

Masonic and General Tidings.

We are happy to announce that H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught, K.G., Senior Grand Warden, has graciously consented to pre-ide at the 80th Anniversary Festival of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys.

The installation of Bro. T. E. S. Jelley as W.M. of the Royal Clarence Lodge, Bruton, took place on Thursday week. The ceremony was performed by W. Bro. R. C. Else, V.W.D.P.G.M., of Somerset. There was a large attendance of Brethren.

Mr. Shaw, the manager of the South-Eastern Railway Company, has written to several of the local governing bodies, stating that the new line from Woolwich to London, via Greenwich, will be opened on Jan. 1.

In Scotland it seems that Christmas Day was observed with more than usual geniality. It is noted that year by year the tendency to keep the religious festival rather than New Year's Day shows an increase.

We learn with sincere sorrow of the death of Bro Richard Wolf, of Worcester. We hope to furnish our readers with an obituary of this distinguished Mason in our next.

The London Freemason has been enlarged from sixteen pages to twenty. This is a sign of prosperity which its publisher well deserves, for he makes an admirable Masonic paper.—Masonic Review (U.S.A.), Dec. 1877.

Her Majesty's Christmas bounty to the poor of the metropolis and its environs was distributed on Friday and Saturday week and on Monday, at the Almonry Office, Scotland-yard, Whitehall.

On Monday afternoon the Prince of Wales and his sons were present at the annual distribution of beef to the poor people on the Sandringham Estate. The recipients were nearly 200 in number.

The Queen has been graciously pleased to signify her Majesty's intention of conferring on Lord Lytton, her Majesty's Viceroy and Governor-General of India, the honour of the Grand Cross of the Civil Division of the Order of the Bath.

Her Royal Highness the Princess of Wales attended the Special Advent Services at St. Anne's Church, Soho, Westminster, on Friday evening, the 22nd inst.

A Wolverhampton correspondent says that Lord Dudley and party, counting in all five guns, bagged three thousand head of game in three days ending last week. The battue took place in his lordship's well-stocked preserves at Baggesbury Woods, and Black Hills.

A branch of the Volunteer Sick-Bearers' Association has been started by the officers of the garrison and others at Woolwich. Many of the arsenal employes have promised to attend the classes and receive instruction in attending to injured persons, and the association are endeavouring to procure the attendance of as many railway servants as can be spared to attend.

SEA SERPENTS.—The gigantic whale captured in February last in the Gulf of Taranto, Italy, has been subjected to a critical examination by Professor Capellini, who, in a report lately published, states it as his opinion that the whale is of a species hitherto unknown to science, and he has named it Balaena tarentina, in allusion to the locality of its capture. This unlooked-for discovery of a new species of huge marine animal, taken in connection with the alleged appearance of another "monster" a short time later, and in the same neighbourhood, as vouched for by the officers of the Royal yacht Osborne, is regarded as a strong argument in favour of the existence of unknown huge marine living objects, such as are popularly indicated by the name of "sea serpents." The opinion is gaining ground in Italy that the sea serpent of the Royal yacht was some creature usually living at the bottom of the sea, but disturbed by submarine volcanic phenomena.

The other day a curious application was made by the owner of a picture, "The Raising of Lazarus," which had been sent to a dealer to be restored. When the upper paint or dirt had been removed a valuable portrait of a lady, by Lely, was discovered beneath, and the dealer threatened, unless a sum, in addition to the amount he had originally agreed to take, were given to him, to paint over the picture again with some indelible substance. The Master of the Rolls granted an interim injunction restraining the defendant from mutilating or destroying the picture, and also made an order for the inspection of the picture by the person serving the injunction.

A FASTING GIRL.—Martha White has died at Market Harborough, Leicestershire, under very peculiar circumstances. She had been ill five years and is popularly supposed to have taken no food for four years. She was at first attended by Mr. Francis, surgeon, and latterly by Dr. Grant, his successor, and has been kept alive by the injection of morphia into her system. The case has excited considerable interest among the medical profession. It is stated that a post-mortem examination fully satisfied the doctors who made it that no food had passed the stomach for a long time.

I have received a Post-office order for eight shillings from Nemo, Wakefield, for the poor children's dinners, to which reference was lately made in Barrel Organ. The amount seems to have been subscribed "by a few of the members of the Wakefield Lodge of Freemasons." Nemo remarks, that he sends the money direct to me, in order that I may know that the "Barrel Organ" made no uncertain sound in Wakefield. I am indeed pleased to hear this, and hope that many other people will, during the next few days forward their mite to Messrs Ransomes, Boverie, and Co., 1, Pall Mall East, to whom I have sent this eight shillings, in order that many poor children may have a substantial proof that it is Christmas.—Truth.

Bro. Raynham W. Stewart has given notice of motion for the next Quarterly Court of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, "That a committee be appointed to consider the system of education which is pursued in the school, with a view of ascertaining whether any improvement can be effected."

We are asked to state that on and after Friday next the Royal standard Lodge of Instruction, No. 1298, will meet at the Alwyne Castle, (Bro. T. Meckham's), St. Paul's-road, Canonbury.

We understand that Mr. Henry Dymond, the Morning Advertiser's correspondent, lately returned from the seat of war is a candidate for initiation into Freemasonry.

The American lady pedestrian, Miss Bertha von Hillern, of Philadelphia, is going to attempt a walk of 150 miles in 50 hours.

"Belated Sisters" is the latest title for old maids across the Atlantic.

The General Committee of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls' on Thursday increased the salaries of the staff at the school by £112 a year.

THE EMPRESS OF AUSTRIA.—Her Majesty the Empress of Austria, accompanied by His Imperial Highness the Crown Prince Rodolphe of Austria, will arrive in London from the Continent on the 31st inst., and will stay for the night at Claridge's Hotel. Her Majesty intends to proceed immediately to Cottesbrook-park, in Northamptonshire, while the Crown Prince proposes to remain in London for the purpose of visiting the scientific institutions and studying industrial and commercial life here. His Imperial Highness will afterwards undertake a tour through the principal manufacturing districts. The Ministerial Councillor and Deputy Consul-General, Chevalier de Scherzer, the well-known author of the great work on the Novara Expedition, has been ordered by the Government to assist and attend the Prince during his stay in this country.

TEMPLE BAR.—A correspondent sends us the following verses, as likely to be of interest to the curious reader just at the present moment, when Temple Bar is in the course of demolition. They are said to have been published as far back as the year 1788; and it is to be hoped that the bad consequences which they predict as likely to follow on the removal of the Bar will not be realised:—

"If the Gate is pulled down, 'twixt the Court and the City,

"You'll blend in one mass prudent, worthless, and witty;

"If you league cit and lordling as brother and brother,

"You'll break order's chain, and they'll war with each other.

"Like the Great Wall of China, it keeps out the Tartars

"From making irruptions where industry barters.

"Like Samson's wild foxes, they'll fire your houses,

"And madden your spinsters, and cozen your spouses.

"They'll destroy in one sweep both the mart and the forum,

"Which your fathers held dear, and their fathers before them."—Times.

"The Cosmopolitan Masonic Calendar and Diary" for 1878. (George Kenning, 198, Fleet-street, and all booksellers.) This welcome companion of the Free and Elected Mason is too well known to require comment. It contains information connected with every lodge throughout the world. In pocket-book form, price 2s.—Hornet.

SCHOOLS OF ART.—At the distribution of the prizes to the students of the Manchester School of Art recently, Sir Henry Cole, C.B., remarked that genius was the gift of Heaven and could not be created by any school. One of the chief functions of Schools of Art was, in his opinion, to train workmen to reproduce works of art for the benefit of the public. The problem was to unite the artist and the workman—to gratify, not one person only, but millions; and this, he maintained, was being successfully done. He ridiculed the idea entertained by some artists that the reproduction by copyists of works of art was only mechanical and not artistic work, and said that for all the purposes for which fine art existed, a copy, if it was a thoroughly good one, and especially if, as often happened, it could not be distinguished from the original, was as valuable as the original for all practical purposes. Fine art as applied to industry had made great, and would make still greater, strides in this country, conducing enormously to the pleasure, the material prosperity, and the elevation of the people. He also strongly urged that the ratepayers of Manchester should get the corporation to undertake the work of forming and maintaining an art gallery for the city. It may be mentioned that at the next meeting of the City Council a motion will be brought forward for the appointment of a committee to consider what assistance the corporation can give to the scheme which the Committee of the School of Art have in hand.

A SPURIOUS PICTURE.—A curious action was dealt with by the Common Pleas Division lately. The plaintiff, a picture-dealer, having bought a picture bearing what was supposed to be the signature of Mr. J. E. Herbert, R.A., took it to that gentleman to ascertain whether it was genuine. Mr. Herbert not only pronounced it to be a forgery, "a mere daub," but refused to give it up unless the owner would undertake not to sell it again. Hence the action, which resulted in the order of the Court for the picture to be given up, or the payment of £10, the amount at which the jury had assessed its value. It is rather humiliating to reflect that with all our boast of culture, taste, and art-education, there are people who will gladly give £250 for a picture which bears some celebrated name, but that if that name turn out to be a forgery, the work itself, hitherto so highly prized, becomes in their estimation a "mere daub."

The Freemason,

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 29, 1877.

With this, our concluding Freemason for 1877, we think it well to call the attention of our readers to the Masonic events of the past twelve months, trusting that they may find some pleasant reminiscences, and some seasonable thoughts in this remarkable record of another twelve months of Masonic life, of Masonic labour. And though we leave 1877, as far as Anglo-Saxon Masonry is concerned, with every feeling of satisfaction and confidence, we feel bound to admit that in respect of many sections of Foreign Freemasonry, our voice is and must be a voice of reprobation, of warning, and of mistrust.

JANUARY witnessed, as most befitting the commencement of a new Masonic year of light and beneficence, the vote of £4000 by the Grand Lodge—an especial Grand Lodge—to establish two lifeboats in perpetuation of the safe return of our Royal Grand Master from India, and to assuage in some fitting measure the often stormy waves of human destruction and human sorrow. In this month we also gladly note that New Year entertainments were given at the three great Metropolitan charitable Institutions, to the inmates, a goodly custom always to be carefully observed. We remember also that in January, the Starkie Lodge, No. 1634, was consecrated, and that the New Temple of St. John's Lodge, Antigua, 492, was dedicated. A grand Masonic ball in Liverpool was also given, which was marked by equal success, in aid of the Provincial Charity and the Provincial Grand Lodge of Glasgow, and by a numerous and pleasant meeting.

FEBRUARY. We had the usual meeting of the Grand Chapter of England, though no important business was transacted. In this month the festival of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution took place, over which Bro. H.R.H. Prince Leopold was to have presided, but was prevented by indisposition. His absence, though most deeply regretted on every account, was admirably filled up by our lamented Bro. the Earl of Shrewsbury. The noble sum of £12,900 in round numbers, was collected, much to the gratification of all supporters of that excellent Institution, and to the great credit of all concerned in the arrangement and management of that most admirable charity of our Order. We believe that since that time other lists have come in, making the amount £16,300 in round numbers. Bro. Sir George Elliot was appointed Provincial Grand Master for the Eastern Division of South Wales, and our respected Bro. R. W. Little, Deputy Prov. Grand Master for Middlesex; and Bro. David Murray Lyon announced himself as candidate for the vacant office of Grand Secretary for Scotland. We have to record in this month the happy consecration of the Aldersgate Lodge, 1657, under some striking circumstances, as well as the Wolsey Lodge, 1656. Bro. Walters, P.P.G.J.D. Middlesex, was presented in February, with a purse of £180, and a silver inkstand, value £20. February also witnessed the laying the foundation stone of a Masonic Hall at Bournemouth. We had also to announce that in February the first annual meeting of the Leeds Masonic Educational and Benevolent Institution was held.

MARCH, always a busy month for English Freemasons, beheld the Quarterly Communication of Grand Lodge, when the previous grant of £4000 was confirmed, and a picture of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, M.W.G.M., by Bro. Louis Desanges, was presented to Grand Lodge by the Lodge of Friendship, and heartily accepted. H.R.H. the Prince of Wales was unanimously confirmed and proclaimed Grand Master of English Freemasonry. Our worthy Bro. Samuel Tomkins was unanimously re-elected Grand Treasurer. At the Provincial Grand Chapter for Cornwall held this month, Bro. the Earl of Mount Edgcumbe was installed as Provincial Grand Superintendent. We had to note during this month the consecration of the Stuart Lodge, 1632; of the Beaconsfield Lodge, 1662; of the Skelmersdale Lodge, 1658; of the Mizpah Lodge, 1671; as well as of the Croydon Mark Lodge, 198. In this month Bro. D. Murray Lyon was elected by a large majority, Grand Secretary of the Grand Lodge of Scotland. He is emphatically the right man in the right place, and will, we feel sure, gradually restore confidence and raise the prestige of the Grand Lodge of Scotland. In March also, the annual meeting of the Belfast Masonic Charity Fund, and Masonic Widows' Fund took place, as well as the first anniversary meeting of the Langthorne Masonic Charitable Association.

APRIL witnessed the Annual Festival of the English Grand Lodge, when their Royal Highnesses the Duke of Connaught and Prince Leopold were appointed the two Grand Wardens. Such an unusual coincidence of three Royal brethren high in office, reminded old Masons of olden days of Royal patronage and presence. In April the following consecrations of lodges took place, namely, of the Southern Cross Lodge, 1590, Africa; the Amatole Lodge, 1640; the Ancient Britons' Lodge, 1675; the Samson Lodge, 1661; the Adelphi Lodge, 1670; the Scarlet Mark Lodge, 184; and the Phoenix Chapter, 173. April which welcomed the meetings of the Provincial Grand Lodges of West Yorkshire, Warwickshire, Queensland, and the Provincial Grand Chapter of West Lancashire, also beheld the consecration of the Provincial Grand Mark Lodge of Monmouthshire. In this month Bro. Lord Leigh, amid a numerous assemblage, laid the foundation stone of the Shakespeare Memorial Theatre, at Stratford-upon-Avon, and a concert was given successfully in aid of the Upper Norwood Masonic Benevolent Fund. In May the Supreme Grand Chapter met, and we note also the assembly of the Provincial Grand Chapter of East Lancashire and Leicestershire. The Provincial Grand Lodges of Cumberland and Westmoreland also assembled, and Bro. Sir W. W. Burrell, Bart., M.P., was appointed P.G.M. of Sussex, Bro. M. J. Guest was installed Provincial G.M. of Dorsetshire, and Bro. W. J. Hammond, District G.M. of Jamaica. The Annual Festival of the Girls' School under the presidency of Lord Suffield took place, when the large amount of £9800, in round numbers, which sum has been since slightly increased, was collected. H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught presided in May at two meetings of the Masonic Orphan School, Dublin, with great kindness, and made a truly Masonic speech. During May the anniversary of the Stability Lodge of Instruction was held, and our esteemed Bro. Henry Muggeridge greatly lauded for his faithful Masonic labours. In this month the Exeter Masonic Hall was dedicated, and the following lodges were consecrated:—Mornington Lodge, 1672; Henry Muggeridge Lodge, 1679; while the two chapters, Felicity, 438, and Stratford, 464, were properly dedicated. The Centennial of the Grand Lodge of Massachusetts was duly and Masonically celebrated.

IN JUNE, at the meeting of the Grand Lodge, Bro. Lord Donoughmore made an able report as to the two life boats which the Life Boat Institution had agreed to establish for the £4000 voted by Grand Lodge. During June H.R.H. Prince Leopold presided at the meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Oxfordshire, and Sir W. W. Burrell, Bart., M.P., was installed Prov. Grand Master of Sussex. Bro. Lord Suffield, P.G.M. for Norfolk, presided at the distribution of the prizes to the students in our Girls' School. June witnessed the consecration of the Newton Lodge, 1661; Tonbridge Lodge, 1678; Crusaders Lodge, 1677; Guelph Lodge, 1685; and the Hervey Lodge, 1692. The Annual Festival of the Boys' School was celebrated at the Alexandra Palace, our fair sisters gracing the festive board, when the goodly return of £13,200, in round numbers, was announced; this amount has reached since then, we understand, £13,500. Thus the year of grace and light 1877 beheld the unexampled sum of nearly £40,000 collected for our great Metropolitan Charities—all honour to our Craft. The whole returns for the charities for the close of 1877 are very promising. The Centenary Festival of the Lodge of Peace, 149, was also kept in June.

JULY, a somewhat slack month in English Masonry, saw the foundation stone laid of the Masonic Hall, Launceston, Cornwall, by Bro. the Earl of Mount Edgcumbe, P.G.M. There was also in this month the opening of the New Masonic Hall, Sheffield, before a numerous assembly of the brethren, and with great eclat.

IN AUGUST we had to record the consecration of the Rothesay Lodge, 1687; the Caradoc Lodge, 1674; the Kingsland Lodge, 1693; and the United Strength Chapter, and the St. John's Chapter, at Timaru, New Zealand.

SEPTEMBER, which hailed the Quarterly Communication of Grand Lodge, also beheld the consecration of the Evening Star Lodge, 1719, under most auspicious circumstances, as well as that of the Corbet Lodge, 1583; and the All Saint's Lodge, 1716. In this month Bro. Col. McLeod Moore delivered his annual address to the Grand Priory of Canada. But September is, and will be, a memorable one in the annals of Freemasonry, on account of the ill-omened proceedings and unmasonic resolution of the Grand Orient of France. A factitious and political agitation had caused the Grand Orient most needlessly and unseasonably to submit a certain "vœu" or wish, to the lodges of France. This was, that "belief in God and the immortality of the soul" should be struck out of the enactments of the Book of Constitutions. Had these hasty reformers proposed as with us, to separate the Charges from the Laws, we should not have found fault. But such was not the object of those who created and carried through this Masonic revolution. Indeed, it was openly admitted, that the object was to facilitate the admission of certain persons into French Freemasonry whom the present "formulæ" hindered or kept out. Hence it was clear that the great idea was to pave the way for the entrance either of the pure materialistic unbeliever, or some zealous disciple of Massol's "Morale Independante." The French Grand Orient, by unwisely yielding to this idle clamour and this political movement, has inflicted one of the greatest blows on Freemasonry which it has ever received.

IN OCTOBER, the Freemason started an Indian Famine Fund, which was kindly supported by some lodges and brethren. October was a great month for the consecration of lodges, for it witnessed the following: New Buxton Lodge, 1688; New Finsbury Park Lodge, 1695; Wilbraham Lodge, 1713; The Albert Edward Lodge, 1714; Arthur John Brogden Lodge, 1715; Hartismere Lodge, 1663; and the Sub-Urban Lodge 1702; We had also to record the consecration of three Chapters: New Concord Chapter, 813; Skelmersdale Chapter, 1874; Islington Chapter, 1871. In October, we have also to note, the Masonic presentation to that worthy and distinguished Bro. Sir Watkin Williams Wynn, Bart and M.P.

IN NOVEMBER, the consecration of the Kaiser-i-Hind Lodge took place, with every promise of a peaceful future, and the centenary of the York Lodge, No. 236, was held at York, before a distinguished company, and with every association of success. The York Lodge is, for various reasons, well known to Masonic Students, as one of the most historic lodges in England.

DECEMBER welcomed the meeting of Grand Lodge, when Lord Carnarvon, after a most able speech, referred to the mournful question of the Grand Orient of France, which was submitted to a select committee of eleven, and the subject will be fully discussed in March. French brethren, whose certificates date before September 13th, can still be admitted into our lodges. The words he spoke so well, and the cheers of the brethren, must have convinced our French brethren that they had no hope of sympathy in the smallest measure from the Grand Lodge of England, or any English brethren, and that, to use a familiar expression, they had not "a leg to stand upon." At the same Grand Lodge Bro. R. J. Simpson P.G.C., brought forward the question of the German Hebrews, as well as 300 petitions of English lodges, relating to the same subject. But Grand Lodge had clearly no right to interfere with the matter, though there was but one opinion as to the unrighteous and unmasonic exclusion of the Hebrews. We shall hope that the German Grand Lodges may see their way to make their Masonry, as with us, Universal. During the last twelve months English Masonry has progressed in the most wondrous manner. Indeed, we must all of us somewhat fear, that in the creation of new lodges, and the admission of too many candidates we are somewhat overdoing it, and shall one day have to pay the penalty. We have raised in 1877 the largest sum ever given for our charities, but it is clear that if we progress in numbers at the rate we do, either we must increase our Metropolitan Charities, or set up provincial "Succursales," to use a French word, in fact, subsidiary institutions. We leave English Freemasonry on the whole in a very satisfactory state, and we bid farewell to 1877, and we look forward to 1878 with legitimate pride in our Order, and with every confidence in the onward and peaceful career of our good old Craft. We wish that we could say the same for foreign Freemasonry. We fear that a cloud is drawing over it, which may one day burst and do severe damage to our Order. The unwise proceedings in France, foolishly copied in Belgium, have greatly agitated continental Freemasonry, and have lighted a torch and thrown down a stumbling block, which seem to point to burning questions and serious obstacles. If any other Grand Lodges seriously support the revolutionary aims and acts of the Grand Orient of France, we fear that we shall witness much confusion and disorder in Foreign Freemasonry. Under the specious cry of toleration, some are hastily clamouring and lauding a great unwholesome "coup de change." If the example of the French Grand Orient is followed, we think that the future of continental Freemasonry is likely to be very gloomy. Indeed, such Godless teaching and unwise proceedings can only end in the downfall of Freemasonry. "Mole ruit sua." There are, it would seem, ninety-five governing bodies in the world, and five independent lodges in Germany. This is an immense organization representing a large membership, though not so large as some writers unwisely put it. We should say according to the best calculations, that the number of Masons in the world may be approximately stated at 300,000. Is it too much to hope or to expect that this great body of Masons in the world will carefully adhere to our ancient landmarks, and avoid, with one consent, revolutionary changes and irreligious theories? The progress of the Craft in Canada and the United States is most wonderful. There is in that enormous continent a brotherhood of 700,000 Masons zealously upholding the tenets and working out the principles of true Freemasonry. We have not thought it needful to go here into detail on these matters, as the repetition of an "oft told tale" is apt to be very tedious to our readers. We might protract these columns and weary our kind friends by a reproduction of many events in continental and transatlantic Masonry but we confess that we cannot see the use of such a pre-Raphaelite sketch of a history well known to many. There are some little minds which never can be satisfied unless they have a meaningless repetition of dates, which are valueless, and facts which are without importance. We, therefore, always lean to a via media, and abhorring "pompous preludes," and avoiding monotonous imbecility, seek to lay before our good friends all, a short and sufficient resumé of our Masonic work in 1877.

1877 has seen many attacks, and not a few maledictions on our venerable brotherhood; but they all have fallen happily, harmlessly on our devoted heads. We heed them not, nor are we alarmed by menace or discomfort by anathema. On the contrary, we gain strength by all such puerile attempts at intimidation or censure, and we march on, our good old banner over our heads, borne aloft by stalwart arms and faithful hearts, the banner, let us remember always, of a religious, a loyal, a beneficent and a united Order, which bids defiance to every foe who seeks to bar its way or stop its progress. May all of good in the wise providence of T.G.A.O.T.U. attend our Universal Order in 1878. So mote it be!

Before we announce our general obituary for 1877, we wish once more to express our sense of the loss entailed by the Craft, in the premature removal from amongst us of our lamented Bro. the late Earl of Shrewsbury. His zeal and worth as a Mason will be acknowledged by all, while his geniality and kindly heart endeared him, not only to his province and the Craft, but to a large circle of attached friends, by whom he has been sincerely mourned, and by whom he will long remain a much "missed man."

We have had to record during the last twelve months the lamented decease of Bros. Williams, W. H. Francis, J. Gundry, R.W. Prov. G.M. of Dorsetshire, W. Lane, W. R. Baker, Henry Matthews, Sir Donald Maclean, Rev. R. J. M. Vaughan, Quarter-Master Moon, Montague Scott, the Right Hon. Earl of Shrewsbury, Major Hamilton Ramsay, F. Pattison, Frank G. Gouley, F. Ellen, G. A. Bond, Lieut-Col. Pilsworth, C. J. Vigne, H. Newman, John Emmens, the Rt. Hon. G. Ward Hunt, Rev. H. V. Palmer, Moore, Beatty, W. Kibble, Rev. W. Lake Onslow, G.C., J. Thornton, R. J. Spiers, Dr. Whittle, Edward Harris, Superintendent James Mott, G. W. Wheeler, James Goodall, W. Purnshon, Rev. W. Beeby, R. Dodson, J. S. Pullen, J. Redfern, M. Thomas, J. Thornton, W. Myatt, and W. P. Leiohoku

THE CLOSING YEAR.

Before we meet our readers again, 1877 will have passed away, and 1878 will be with us? And though we keep back our special remarks on this subject until we are in 1878, we think it right to point out that this season of the year, while a happy period of rejoicing and domestic reunion, is not merely to be kept as a purely earthly rejoicing time, or degenerate into untoward Saturnalia. We want a little more at this time of the year than the mere love of the good things of this world. We live in an age of much brass and more hypocrisy. We have the "high moral line" and "extempore falutin" crammed down our throats "usque ad nauseam" by the Pecksniffs and Joseph Surfaces of the hour. Humbug and cant and "bottled moonshine" seem to be in high public favour just at this moment, and we make speeches and offer sentiments which do not represent our real principles, and are as unreal and deceptive as anything well can be. Hence we must not be surprised when we meet with day by day, abounding proofs of the hollowness of profession, of the insincerity of life. There are a great many would-be teachers of this or that, who like to hold forth, to hear themselves talk, and, as they think, to improve the occasion. They never, poor souls, can travel out of their own narrow, very narrow grooves, and so they lay down for us laws of morality, which are a ridiculous parody on all things true and sacred, and they indulge in flights of personality which are as undesirable as they are ludicrous. In the very midst of a mission of peace, of a Christmas sermonette, comes the barbed arrow and the unseemly taunt, and the reader, wearied with much petty meaningless malice, and ashamed of much unmasonic feeling, turns away disgustedly from words which are a discredit to the head and heart of the senile or juvenile writer. We want, we venture to say and to think, a little more charity—a little more brotherly feeling amongst us. Didactic essays are very fine and magnificent, profession is very beautiful, but we should like, we confess, practice rather than profession, acts rather than words. What is the use of talking of brotherly love, when we only seek how to wound another person's feelings? Where is the good of boasting of Christmas rejoicing, when we make a fellow creature uncomfortable by unkind words or pitiable personalities? So let us look matters clearly in the face, and let us get rid of fustian and frivolity, of peevishness and personality. The world is a very good world on the whole, despite man's "bassesse," if only we will use it and not abuse it. Let us therefore clear our brains of the "shoddy" which seems to fill them, and emancipate our minds from those hateful prejudices and those petty animosities which disgrace us as men, and discredit us as Masons. With the closing year let us rise above the conventional meanness and littleness of humanity, and seek to show ourselves before our brethren and the world, Freemasons, indeed, as well in all humble sincerity, as in pretension and pompous assertion.

CHRISTMAS AMONG THE POOR

We rejoice to note how wisely and how liberally Christmas is now observed in our metropolitan workhouses, and how very much is done so seasonably and so well to lighten the burden of penury and to cheer the spirits of the friendless. Each year, as it passes, serves to manifest how much philanthropy can do, when rightly directed and judiciously employed, to mitigate the trials and tedium of suffering humanity, and we, as Freemasons, are especially pleased when we read of such kindly sympathy manifested towards that large class, our English poor. We need not worry ourselves to-day with any of the recondite views which exist as regards the poor laws and their administration, their dark and their sunny side, but we can all feel great gratification at the thought that so much has been done at the festive and holy season of Christmas to afford a day's gratification to a very large and helpless portion of Her Majesty's subjects. We congratulate all concerned in the undoubted success of these benevolent and pleasant labours, altogether in accord with the memories and sympathies of the Christmas season.

THE GRAND LODGE OF ENGLAND AND THE GRAND ORIENT OF FRANCE.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Each Freemason, I think, is obliged to work for the true benefit of the Craft, even if he must be aware, that his intentions will be misunderstood. This seems to be the case with my letter, published in the Freemason, page 542, which had no other purpose than to be a brotherly warning for my dear English brethren not to vote in Grand Lodge against the Grand Orient of France, without having studied the whole question thoroughly, free from passion and prejudice, and not to take any hasty action in dissolving the fraternal bonds which have till now united both Grand Lodges.

My highly esteemed friend and Bro. the Editor of the Freemason has, I may suppose, misunderstood the intention of my letter, which, because written in a foreign language, necessarily must be imperfect in form and thought, for he has in his critique of my letter (p. 548) only reviewed some weak parts, without taking into consideration the very substance, the only principal point of it, i.e., what I have said of the true meaning of the vote of the Grand Orient of France.

I am not so weak as to hold up my interpretation of sec. 31 of the Old Charges. It may be "unreasonable and childish," and that of the Editor be right. Well, I accept it, and I say with him—"No one ought to be so stupid as to be an Atheist, and if he is so stupid, he ought not to be a Freemason."

But may I ask, whether the Grand Orient of France has done anything contrary to this interpretation? I cannot find it so. The Craft says "no one ought to be so stupid as to be an Atheist, and if he is, he ought not to be a Freemason," but the Craft has, if a candidate knocks on the door for initiation, only to enquire after his moral mind and character, not after his faith and convictions, whatever they may be—after his doings, not after his meanings (opinions), after his conscious heart, not after his erroneous head. It is the duty of the Craft to enquire, whether the candidate is a free and honest, a virtuous and truth-loving man of good report, but the Craft never can and will be an inquisitorial jury on his convictions. The Masonic love bears all, tolerates all, but it does not approve all.

Freemasonry rejects Atheism as a false theory, but it cannot reject the Atheist, the bearer of an error. You yourself have said, that Freemasonry has "the purpose of humanitarian sympathy, relief and good will," that it is a cosmopolitan and uniting institution, which forbids every debate on religious topics. Has the Craft at any time promulgated, what is an Atheist? I know well, that there are men of high intellectual force and of cultivated mind, who profess to be Atheists. But are they indeed? I think, in quite the same manner, as there are many who profess to be Christians, without being so. Allow me, to say once more, the lodge is no inquisitorial jury, and Freemasons are no Popes.

I am sorry if I have said more than is necessary on Atheists and Atheism, the more so as the vote of the Grand Orient de France has nothing at all to do with the Atheistical question. Perhaps all brothers would much easier come to a common understanding if the bad word "Atheist,"—for many people as bad as the word "Freemason" for the Roman Catholic clergy—would not have been used in the discussion on the French vote, which is only a profession for liberty of conscience, not a vote against any religious faith. In this French vote I can see nothing which leads to the destruction of true Freemasonry. But if the Grand Lodge of England should take a passionate vote against the Grand Orient de France, like the blinded Grand Lodge of Ireland, then this would result in most deplorable consequences in the destruction of the Craft. To prevent such a destruction I have written against "cruel agitation," which only can sow the seeds of discord, hatred, and contempt towards well-meaning, good and true brethren. Let us love one another, avoid all discussions on religious topics and uphold the Cosmopolitan character of Freemasonry, which is in no way altered by the vote of the Grand Orient de France.

Believe me, dear Sir and brother, yours fraternally,

J. G. FINDER.

Leipzig, 17th December, 1877.

[We publish Bro. Finder's letter, as we like him to speak for himself, but we cannot agree with his arguments or accept his facts. He forgets much that has taken place which has opened our eyes, and startled us not a little. The exclusion of the Bible, followed by the erasure of belief in God, is to us a proof that it is, as indeed it is admitted to be, for the relief of tender consciences, those whom our Constitutions term "stupid Atheists," those who "live without God in the world," and are "Atheists." There is and can be no intolerance in acknowledging T.G.A.O.T.U., and we in England will never consort with those who reject this needful and cosmopolitan "formula" of Ma-onic belief. Whether this profession is in its right place or not in the French Constitutions is another question, but that is not now raised by the "destructive party" in the Grand Orient of France. In England, Bro. Finder may rest assured, there is but one opinion of the folly and the wickedness of the act, as well as the injury accruing to Freemasonry, and of the handle given to our bitter foes.—Ed.]

FREEMASONRY IN JAMAICA—A NEW THEORY.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

As the transactions of the Craft in any part of the world cannot be otherwise than interesting to the entire Masonic body, permit me to report, for the benefit of your readers, a new theory that has recently been broached in this country by a learned brother; and, as it has found favour with a great many, I doubt not that it will attract the attention of all the Masonic scholars of the Continent.

On the evening of the 15th of October last, I attended a Lodge of Instruction attached to the Glenlyon Lodge, of Kingston, Jamaica (to which I was specially invited) to hear a lecture on the "Inner Mysteries of Freemasonry," to be delivered by Bro. Herman John Burger, a Masonic student of more than thirty years. From the brother's well-known literary ability, a great Masonic treat was generally expected, and the brethren mustered in great force, there being present on the occasion no less than fifteen Past Masters of the several lodges in the city, and altogether between 140 and 150 Master Masons—for the lecture was delivered in the lodge opened on the centre. The lecture was what is called "extempore," that is to say, Bro. Burger referred to no book nor MS., but for over two hours and a quarter spoke fluently and kept us spell-bound with his pleasing oratory. But now to the subject.

Bro. Burger took for his text "Freemasonry is a peculiar system of morality," and proceeded to show that morality is a branch of philosophy which is divided into natural philosophy or physics, moral philosophy or ethics, and spiritual philosophy or metaphysics. Then he explained what natural philosophy comprehends, what moral, and what spiritual; and thereupon proceeded to show that the Entered Apprentice's Degree is a lesson in natural philosophy; the Fellow Craft's a lesson in moral philosophy; and the Master Mason's a lesson in spiritual philosophy.

To meet certain objections that might be urged against this theory, Brother Burger explained that the First Degree taught morality only in the charge, which is not always delivered, therefore not an essential part of the degree; and argued that although we have hitherto accepted the Second Degree as having for its peculiar objects of search the hidden mysteries of nature and science, nevertheless he contended that as late as 1750, the liberal arts and sciences formed part of an earlier teaching. But I should be doing Bro. Burger an injustice were I not to state that although he declares that the First Degree is a lesson in Philosophy, he went on to state that the three branches of philosophy are interwoven with each degree, only that one branch is always more prominent in the degree that belongs especially to it. After this Bro. Burger proceeded to discuss the Egyptian theory of Le Noir, the Sun worship theory of Cardile, the Sabæism theory of Fellows, the religious theory of Preston, and the Christian theory of Dr. Oliver, and showed how each, in the search after the key of the plan of Freemasonry, missed it. He next alluded to the loss which the Craft sustained in 1720 by the valuable MSS., particularly of one by Bro. Nicholas Stone, and he entered on the consideration of the subject, his opinion being that the MS. referred to did not contain a ritual, because it is not to be supposed that the scrupulous brethren who burnt it could have for one moment entertained the belief that the Grand Lodge would have published such in the Book of Constitutions; next that the MS. could not have been a code of rules, regulations or charges, because no harm could have befallen the Craft by its publication; but if the MS. was a treatise or lecture like his, that established the fact that Freemasonry is based on philosophy, it could well be understood how the brethren—those scrupulous brethren—dreaded lest the Grand Lodge might have in their zeal published it and laid the Craft open thereby to the odium theologium of the age; for philosophy was synonymous with infidel; as Bro. Burger stated even so late as the days of Voltaire, the word philosophy was used to signify religion, as witness "the Philosophical Dictionary"—and he called attention to the fact that Dr. Oliver had to qualify the term philosophy for one of his works by naming it "The Theocratic Philosophy of Ma-onry." From all I have gathered Bro. Burger sets up the claim of having discovered the true key of the plan of ancient Freemasonry. Of course I have not attempted to give more than a rough outline of the Lecture, and I really believe that unless stenography had been employed it would have been difficult to take down the words as they fell from our learned Brother's lips, for I must not omit to mention that Bro. Burger has not only a fair command of language but keeps the attention quickened by the recital of most interesting tales and quotations from Greek and Rabbinical works, of which he seems to have a large stock. At the conclusion of the lecture Bro. Dr. Thomas Allen, the General Superintendent of the Lunatic asylum of Jamaica, rose and proposed in most complimentary terms a vote of thanks to Bro. Burger for the great literary treat he had given the brethren present, stating at the same time, that although the lecture had exceeded two hours and a quarter in delivery, nevertheless it comprehended so wide a field of observation and so great a depth of learning (indeed the Doctor confessed that it went far beyond his depth), that on behalf of the brethren he felt great pleasure in thanking Bro. Burger. He proposed the thanks of the lodge for the lecture, and the vote of thanks having been duly seconded, the usual applause followed as carried, when Bro. Burger rose and thanked the brethren for their kind attention and good wishes, informing them that this was only the first of a series of the "Fundamental Philosophy of Freemasonry" that he had promised the Right Worshipful Bro. Dias to deliver for the benefit of the Glenlyon Lodge.

The Worshipful Bro. Dias then proposed Bro. Burger as an honorary member of the Glenlyon Lodge, which, having been immediately seconded, was carried unanimously, and this most instructive and interesting Lodge of Instruction was thereupon closed.

I understand that Bro. Burger intends to submit his theory to the Lodge of Emulation in London, with the view of obtaining an expression of opinion, to perhaps eventuate in a revision of our ritual in several particulars.

Being a young Mason, of course I am not qualified to say, if this be Bro. Burger's object, whether it is possible or not; nevertheless I think the matter is worthy of consideration.

I remain, dear Sir and Brother, yours fraternally,

A YOUNG MASTER MASON.

[We have published our worthy correspondent's letter, as he will see, with some needful erasures, owing to our rules on the subject. Able and eloquent, as no doubt Bro. Burger's lecture is, it is not, it is right to remark, altogether a new or original theory, and we feel pretty sure that the Emulation Lodge will say that they prefer "quieta non movere." We think that there is great danger in philosophising too much in respect of the simple system of Freemasonry, and we prefer the older system of exposition, &c. We thank our correspondent for his communication.—Ed.]

APOLLO UNIVERSITY LODGE.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

As the question of membership of the University of Oxford being a "sine qua non" for admission to this lodge is called attention to by "357" in your paper of 22nd inst., allow me to inform you that during the five years when the Grand Registrar of England recently presided over the Province of Oxfordshire, the Bye-laws of this lodge were revised, and that, as they now stand, no one can become a member of the lodge (except as an honorary member), who is not at the time, or who has not been, a member of the University of Oxford. Further I may inform you, that with the exception of some of the founders of the lodge, and of one other brother, no non-University man has ever been a subscribing member of the lodge.

Yours fraternally,

HUGH H. BLACH, F.M.,

Past Secretary of 357, and of Oxfordshire.

BRO. DESMONS OF PARIS.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Can any of your readers give me an account of this French brother? I have read his report, and despite its undoubted ability, there comes over one a sort of uncomfortable feeling that one has seen before similar specimens of special pleading and casuistry destructive to morality, to truth, and to religion. Had Pascal lived to read that too famous report, we might perhaps have had another edition of the "Provincial Letters."

I am, dear Sir and Brother, yours fraternally,

ANTI-JEWITISM.

THE GERMAN QUESTION AND KNIGHT TEMPLARS.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I have read with pleasure Bro. Bent's letter in your paper of the 15th, and with reference to his query as to whether if he presented himself, being a Swedish Templar, at our encampments or preceptories he would be received, I can only say that I, for one, should be glad to welcome him as a member of the Order, and I feel sure he would have no difficulty in becoming affiliated to an English preceptory if he desires to join us. It is quite true that the Prince of Wales was made a Knight Templar in Sweden; but, if I mistake not, he was also installed in the Faith and Fidelity Immemorial Encampment in London, and became Eminent Commander prior to his installation as Grand Master of the United Orders of the Temple and Malta in England and Ireland. He wore the Grand Cross of the Temple at the Albert Hall, for I saw it myself, but as to the ring I was not near enough to see it. Bro. Bent does not seem to know that the Ring of Profession is now supposed to be worn by all Knights Templar. Our Brother Kenning no doubt supplies it. The design appears in the Convent General Statutes. This ring should be worn on the index finger of the right hand as a perpetual symbol of union with the Order. It is always worn, I believe, by the Scotch Templars. I hope to see the day when all the Templar bodies in the world may be under one Grand Master.

Yours fraternally,

AN ENGLISH KNIGHT COMMANDER OF THE TEMPLE.

CONSECRATION OF THE WINDRUSH LODGE, No. 1703, WITNEY, OXON.

For some three months past, the consecration of this lodge has been held in abeyance owing to the indisposition of H.R.H. Prince Leopold, the Provincial Grand Master for Oxfordshire, who had expressed a great desire to be present at the inauguration of this, the first lodge which has been established since his appointment as Provincial Grand Master.

H.R.H., feeling unable to fix a day on account of his continued illness, conferred the honour of Consecrating Officer upon Bro. T. B. Brown, P.M. Marlborough Lodge, Woodstock, and expressed a wish to the Deputy Prov. Grand Master, Bro. Bird, M.A., Magdalen College, Oxford, that the lodge should be consecrated forthwith.

Accordingly, Friday week, December 21st, was the day appointed for this interesting ceremony.

A large gathering of the fraternity took place in the Corn Exchange, every lodge in the province with one exception (Banbury) being represented. There were also brethren from the Silesian Lodge, No. 471; the Prince of Wales', 941; and the Cutswold, 592.

The brethren having entered the lodge-room in procession, Bro. Bird, D.P.G.M., after being saluted, took the chair, and having addressed the brethren on the object of the meeting, resigned it to Bro. Brown, who appointed Bro. H. Williams, P.M., as Senior Warden, and Bro. Bud, P.M. Apollo University Lodge, as Junior Warden.

The musical portion of the ceremony was effectively conducted by Bro. Owens, assisted by Bros. Hallowell, Crane, Rowley and Wentworth.

The Provincial Grand Chaplain being unavoidably absent the prayers were most impressively rendered by the Deputy Provincial Grand Master.

The ceremony of consecration was performed in Bro. Brown's usual masterly style. His delivery of the oration was admirable, and was listened to with profound interest and pleasure.

The consecration being ended, Bro. Jas. Long, Prov. G.S.D. was presented for Installation, and was approved of by the Deputy Provincial Grand Master.

He was then installed with the ancient formalities observed by the Craft.

The following brethren were invested as the officers for the ensuing year:—Bros. William Cluich, S.W.; Harry Robbins, J.W.; Rev. F. W. Macdonald, M.A., S.D.; W. Whadvar, J.D.; Q. Owens, I.G.; Jno. Coles, Secretary; J. Bayliss, Tyler.

After the investment of the officers the usual charges were delivered.

The W.M. proposed that the Deputy Prov. Grand Master, (Bro. Bird), and the Consecrating Officer (Bro. Brown), be elected honorary members of the lodge. This proposition was duly seconded, and carried unanimously.

Propositions for initiation were made, and the lodge was then closed in the accustomed manner, and the brethren adjourned to refreshment.

Between thirty and forty brethren sat down to an excellent and well served banquet, provided by Bro. Elms, the enterprising host of the Marlborough Arms Hotel.

After the banquet the W.M. gave the usual toasts, all of which were right loyally and Masonically honoured, the musical brethren contributing not a little to this part of the evening's programme.

The Tyler's toast having been given, the brethren, "happy to meet, sorry to part," gradually dispersed. Those who attended from Oxford were, through the kindness of Bro. Sir D. Gooch, provided with a special train to convey them to Oxford.

TESTIMONIAL TO BRO. GEORGE ABBOTT, P.M. 192.

On Tuesday the 18th inst., a very pleasant gathering took place at the Cannon-street Hotel, on the occasion of the presentation of a testimonial to Bro. George Abbott, station-master at Cannon-street Station of the South Eastern Railway. The chair was occupied by Bro. W. Hine Haycock, P.G.O., Devon, who, in proposing the toast of the evening, said he had with great pleasure travelled some 200 miles in order to be present, and to say that which was strictly true with regard to the guest of the evening. Bro. Abbott despatched something like 700 trains and 30,000 passengers a-day from Cannon-street, and many of those present had been indebted to a considerable extent for their safety in travelling to and from the City during the last ten or twelve years, to the excellent arrangements of their friend. Bro. Abbott's course had been signally straight and undeviating throughout the thirty-two years of his service with the company, following up his successive steps by well-deserved yet patient advancement and progress, and he had always shown a kindly feeling towards those with whom he came in contact, and when the proposal for a testimonial was made, a great number of the passengers contributed to it, and not one who had been asked had declined. He had great pleasure in presenting Bro. Abbott with a cheque for £350, an album, and an illuminated address. Bro. Abbott, who, on rising to respond, was very heartily applauded, after thanking his friends for their kindness, contrasted the present work of the railway with that of some years since, some curious details being furnished in passing. Amongst the facts thus mentioned, reference was made to the Spa-road Station, where a few years ago trains only stopped when signalled to do so, and frequently two hours went by without the signal being given; whereas now, upwards of 9000 persons used that station daily. At one time it was thought a great deal of if a train was started every five minutes, but matters had so progressed that sometimes over sixty trains in an hour had been sent out from that one station. He thanked his friends very heartily for the testimonial so kindly given, and hoped still to merit their esteem and respect. "The Health of the Chairman" was proposed by Mr. Daly, after which Mr. J. T. Howie McEwan gave "The Executive Committee," Bro. Brackston Baker, P.G.D., gave "The Honorary Secretary," Mr. Clapton, C.C., and a hearty welcome was accorded to the visitors, coupled with the names of the Rev. J. Jackson, M.A., and Mr. Cobby, the station master at Sidmouth, who travelled up that day to do honour to a brother official. Mr. Jackson, in his reply, alluded to the fact that the former starting place for the north, "The Saracen's Head," was in his parish. During the evening some excellent singing was contributed by Mr. Colson Phillips, Mr. J. J. Burgess, and Bro. E. W. Mackney, all of whom gave their services in honour of the occasion. There were also present Bros. J. G. Rollins, Jardin, Sara, Abbott, Mr. H. Hughes, Mr. Alfred Lee, Bros. H. Dyne, Bates, and several others.

FREEMASONRY AND ROMAN CATHOLICISM.

The Buffalo Roman Catholic Union of November 22nd ult. contains the last of three communications from Bro. A. D. Hauverman, of Youngstown, N.Y., on Freemasonry, — a four-columned article, to which the Union gives a two columned reply. Bro. Hauverman's articles were excellent ones, but his logic and rhetoric were thrown away on the Roman Catholic Union. Still, some of its readers may have had their understandings enlightened by its clear and accurate statements, of which the following is one:

"A Roman Catholic in becoming a Freemason does not substitute Masonry for the Church in matters of belief or disbelief, for belief in God and a resurrection to a future life are the sole creed a Mason is forced to have. Masonry, as we have before said, never teaches a system of faith, but leaves each one free to worship God as he may elect,—It says, like Pope, that,

'For modes of faith let zealotous bigots fight,
He can't be wrong whose life is in the right.'

The writer has passed through the ceremonials of the Order in conferring ten of its degrees, and knows that in none of them has he found anything which could in any way interfere with any man's politics or religion, and that all the precepts, charges, and symbols have been such as to deeply impress upon him the fact that,

'We have an immortal part within us,
Which shall survive the grave, and which Shall never, never die.'

Herr Rholf is organizing an expedition for the exploration of the Sahara. He will be accompanied by a staff of scientific men, among others by Professor Zittel, of Munich. Tripoli will be the head-quarters of the expedition, and its first efforts will be directed to the exploration of the mysterious oases of Wajanga and Kufara to the south of Ajulia, which has not hitherto been visited by any European traveller.—Athenæum.

A statistical abstract relating to British India presented to parliament was recently issued. The area under British administration is 909,834 miles, with a population of 191,065,445. The Native States comprise 573,952 miles and a population of 48,233,978. Including the French and Portuguese possessions, the total area of all India is 1,484,150 square miles, with a population of 239,978,595. Of the 191,000,000 inhabitants of British India, the religious denominations are given as follows:—Hindoo, 139,343,820; Sikhs, 1,174,436; Mahomedans, 40,867,125; Buddhists and Jains, 2,832,851; Christians, 897,682; others 5,417,304; and "religion not known," 532,227.

Reviews.

"The Cosmopolitan Masonic Calendar for 1878." We are glad to note how greatly this carefully compiled calendar has been appreciated by foreign as well as by Angl.-Saxon Masons. We congratulate Bro. Kenning on his well-earned success.

"Almanack." Moses and Son. Very well got up, and very useful, neat and available.

"North of England Illustrated Annual." This excellent little annual is edited by our well-known Bro. G.M. Tweddell, and his equally able wife, Florence Cleveland. It is indeed a real cheap threepenny worth. We recommend all of our readers to help a deserving literary brother by ordering it of him, Rose Cottage Stokesley, Northallerton, Yorkshire. It is admirably illustrated and skilfully edited. Its tales are most amusing and we have laughed heartily, over its true Yorkshire Fun, over the poetry and prose. But the proper thing to do is to send at once an order for a copy to Bro. Tweddell with four postage stamps to the address above given, and we believe that all, especially Yorkshire brethren, will be thoroughly satisfied and highly amused. The annual is most useful, also, for memoranda and business engagements and deserves our Masonic support.

"The Christmas Number of the Freemason." We beg to commend this remarkable issue of a very prosperous paper to the notice of all who, not subscribers, happen by chance to read the paper at the clubs, or in the lodge, or in the library, or even at a bookstall. The Publisher will be very glad to receive the names of continuous subscribers.

"The Christmas Number of the Masonic Magazine." This has had a large sale, and seems highly appreciated by a friendly circle of old and new subscribers.

"The Scottish Freemason." Has a claim on all our good brethren across the border, for its well arranged matter, its good printing, and the ability with which it is conducted. It is a most valuable record of Scottish Freemasonry.

"The Masonic Advocate." Is a capitally conducted paper, and full of sensible remarks and sympathetic touches.

"Loomis's Musical and Masonic Journal." Is as far as we are aware, an unique miscellany, and is always welcomed by those who like two good things, "Music and Masonry."

Obituary.

BRO. JOHN SUTCLIFFE.

It is with sincere regret we announce the death of Bro. John Sutcliffe, of Grimsby, R.W. Grand Master of Mark Masons for the Province of Lincolnshire, which melancholy event took place on Monday last (Christmas eve.) This sad and very unexpected news reached us late on Thursday night at the time of going to press, which prevents us from giving in the present number more than this very brief record of the irreparable loss that Freemasonry has sustained in the death of this most highly esteemed and popular brother.

BRO. ROBERT HERNIMAN, P.M., 261.

We find the following in the Taunton Courier.—"We have the melancholy duty of announcing the death of Bro. Robert Herniman, who for a long period carried on business in the town as timber merchant and builder. Lately, however, failing health obliged him to dispose of his business, but he was able up to the last to devote his interest to several concerns with which he was officially connected among others directorate of the College Green Hotel, Bristol. It is however, as a true and faithful Masonic brother that the writer of these lines has chiefly to regret his loss. Bro. Herniman was 'made' a Mason in the Taunton Lodge about forty years ago, and in 1840 he was honoured by being elected as Worshipful Master of 'Unanimity and Sincerity, 261.' As a Past Master he has been constant in his endeavours to promote the prosperity of his Lodge and of the Masonic body generally; and by his genial disposition and generous sympathies he won the universal respect and esteem of his brother Masons." Bro. Herniman was also a much esteemed member of the Royal Philanthropic Lodge, No. 291, Highbridge, and a P.Z. of the Taunton Chapter. He received many years since, at the hands of the late Provincial Grand Master of Somerset, Colonel Tynte, the collar of Provincial Grand Superintendent of Works, and more recently from Lord Carnarvon the appointment of Provincial Senior Grand Warden. Although far from well he attended the Provincial Grand Lodge at Taunton on the 26th ult.

The address in answer to the speech from the Throne will, we are informed, be moved in the House of Commons by Bro. the Hon. Wilbraham Egerton, M.P. for Mid-Cheshire, and seconded by Mr. Robert Tennant, M.P. for Leeds.

CHRISTMAS CRACKERS.—To pretend that you only go to a pantomime for the amusement of the children. To assert that Brighton is improved by the presence of the Boxing-day excursionists brought down to spend a happy day at the seaside for three-and-sixpence. That you have been in the habit of saying grace all these years in a really thankful spirit over Christmas turkey and plum pudding.—Punch.

The Adelphi of Terence was performed the week before last, for the second and third time by the Westminster Boys on the well-appointed stage of the old Dormitory of St. Peter's College. Additional interest was imported to the performance on these occasions, from the fact that owing to the lamented decease of Lady Augusta Stanley, followed by the sad occurrence which resulted in the death of the youthful Captain of the School, Mr. Roger, no performance of any kind took place last year. The play has been carefully studied, and the performers evince something more than the average of talent, the Demea of Mr. Williams, the Micio of Mr. Bulkeley, the Syrus of Mr. Robinson, and the Sostrata of Mr. Tepper, being especially noteworthy for their spirit and humour, and for the elocutionary qualities which they displayed. The prologue, spoken for the first time at the second performance on Tuesday last, referred as usual chiefly to the position of the school, and to other local and domestic matters. The theme of the prologue, in which all the personages of the comedy reappear in modern costume, is this year the vexed question of "The Endowment of Research," which is made to yield as much amusement as the subject seems to admit of. Crowded and distinguished audiences have assembled on each occasion to witness the performance.

"Our Boys" reached its 950th night on Friday, Bros. James and Thorne being as fresh as ever.

CIVIL AND MECHANICAL ENGINEERS' SOCIETY.

VISIT TO THE SOUTH METROPOLITAN GAS WORKS.

The interest attached to this visit was enhanced by the fact that this is the first Gas Company that has paid 11 per cent. on its capital, which dividend was declared at the half-yearly meeting held on the 2nd October. The members assembled at the Gas Works Old Kent-road, and were courteously met by Mr. G. Livesey, the engineer to the company, and his brother, Mr. Frank Livesey, both gentlemen kindly showing them through the works, and explaining the apparatus and processes carried out on the establishment. The works, like many others of the kind, were started in a small way, on a narrow strip of land adjoining the canal, whereas the company have now an area of about thirty-five acres. Some idea of its importance may be gathered from the fact, that the district supplied with gas covers thirteen square miles, and requires 180 miles of street mains. Much interest was manifested in the gasholders and tanks—the largest holder, 180 feet diameter, with a capacity of 2,200,000 cubic feet—being constructed without any internal bracing or trussing, the cover or crown when empty being supported on a timber staging erected in the tank; but the most remarkable feature, and one showing the boldness and sound judgment of the engineer, was the tank 184 feet diameter and 47 feet deep, constructed entirely of concrete, without either brick lining or puddle-backing. This tank is, in all probability, destined to be the pioneer of many similar constructions; and has given the directors so much satisfaction, on account of the great saving due to this novel mode of constructing gas-holder tanks, that they unanimously voted the engineer, Mr. G. Livesey, a very handsome bonus, in addition to his salary. One of the chimney shafts at these works, constructed on a somewhat novel plan, was much admired by the visiting party. It is built with a five feet square and parallel flue from bottom to top, the shaft itself being of 14in. brickwork with No. 8 buttresses 1ft. 10in. thick, projecting at ground line 2ft. 4in., and tapering up the shaft until they disappear into the 14in. work within a few feet from the summit. The quantity of bricks used in the construction is about 80,000—the total height from ground line 108ft., and its cost £530. It is gratifying to note that these visits are so much appreciated by the members and their friends. They form one of the most useful and instructive portions of the society's programme, and this association was the first to introduce these social and practical visits, which might with profit be followed by many provincial technical societies. The party, consisting of the president, Bro. R. M. Bancroft; hon. treasurer, W. C. Street; members of the council, Messrs. Burrell, Ellis, Hill, and Payne; also Messrs. Finlayson, Feeney, and upwards of two dozen members and friends, who unanimously passed a vote of thanks to the engineer and his brother, Mr. Frank Livesey, for the great trouble they were put to in explaining all the "modus operandi" of gas manufacture. The session of the institute for the reading and discussion of engineering and scientific papers commenced on the 20th of December; and, at the conclusion of each meeting, new members are proposed and balloted for admission.

The authorities of the Bethnal-green Museum have announced that the museum will be open free during the Christmas holidays, from Wednesday, December 26, to January 1 inclusive, Sunday excepted, from 10 a.m. until 10 p.m. The unique collection of curiosities brought from India by his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales which proved very attractive while on view at the East-end Museum, is, we are informed, shortly to be removed to make way for an exhibition of an interesting industrial character, intended to include as specialties specimens of horological work from Clerkenwell and workmanship in furniture from Shoreditch. Colonel Lane-Fox's extensive collection of anthropological curiosities is still on view at the museum.

The Inventor of Ink has been deified by the Chinese, and is believed by the Celestials to keep a record of all the evil ends to which that useful fluid is adapted. Whenever a bad sentence, word, or joke is written, a black mark is scored against the author in the deity's books.

The competition for the Novello Scholarship was held at the National Training School for Music on Wednesday week last. The examiners were Mr. Joseph Barnby, Dr. Arthur Sullivan, principal of the school, Dr. Stainer, and Mr. Alberto Visetti. There were seven candidates. The Scholarship was awarded to James Farquharson Waken. At the same time Miss Charlotte E. Cobb was elected out of seven candidates to the vacant Scholarship of the Clothworkers' Company.

Mr. G. W. Martin is about to organize a Choral Society for the City of London. The members will consist mainly of those employed in the Great City houses. No way of indulging in the practice of really good music exists in the city. Excellent as the existing societies are—notably the City Glee Club—they are necessarily exclusive. The new society will, it is expected, begin with about 500 members. There will be an elementary class for the study of sight singing, and for those who have already acquired that art the usual opportunity will be given for practice of choral music of the highest class, and in due time a series of concerts will be given in aid of City charities.

The sketches and drawings of the late M. Gustave Brion, the French artist, were to be sold in Paris this week. The only finished picture of any importance among the collection in his Alsatian painting, "Le Reveil," which was exhibited at this year's Salon.
